Center Planning Exhibit On 'Know University'

Displays To Be Jan. 26-28 In Ballroom

The special events committee of the University Center Programming Board asked department chairmen Thursday for information on their displays for the annual "Know Your University" exhibit. The exhibit will be Jan. 26, 27 and 28 in the Ballroom of the University Center.

According to co-chairmen Robert Perkins and Becky Fortado, "The purpose of the exhibit is to acquaint students, faculty and staff of SIU with the many academic units of Southern, their purposes, and their relationship to each other, to the University, to the greater southern Illinois community and to society."

The co-chairmen said that some of the opportunities which the exhibit will provide are informal student-faculty interchange, introduction of students to new areas of academic, vocational and co-curricular interest and a greater understanding of the total program and scope of the University.

In a letter sent to the department chairmen, Perkins and Miss Fortado said that last year's exhibit was seen by more than 3,500 persons. The co-chairmen said the exhibit was being extended to three days this year for the first time.

For work in connection with construction of a new children's hospital-school in the Chicago Medical Center, $2,962,640.

Morris To Show Slides Of Africa

President Delyte W. Morris will show slides of Africa, taken during his recent visit there, to two groups next week.

Monday night he will be the main speaker at the Cobden Lion's Club's annual Ladies Night and next Wednesday he will be the speaker at the Carbondale Lions Club.

Ghana Accepts SIU Students

A group of SIU design majors yesterday received approval from the dean of Nkrumah University in Ghana to study there during the Winter Quarter.

Victor F. Seper, a spokesman for the students, said they received a cable yesterday informing them that the African University would be happy to accept them.

They intend to do independent research while working with R. Buckminster Fuller, research professor of design at SIU, who will be a guest lecturer at the African university during the Winter Quarter.

In addition to Seper, the students are Wayne Comstock, Gerald Knoll, Terence Overeem and Roger Karsk. John Bis and Larry Richards also may make the trip.

Officials Deny Slater Will Stop Running Cafeteria

Rumors circulating around campus that the Slater Food Service will not continue operation of the University Center cafeteria have been denied both by Harvey Kinnard, food service manager, and Clarence Dougherty, manager of the University Center.

According to Dougherty, the food contract is under review but no official action has been announced.

Kinnard said, "I just don't understand it. Somebody's made a mountain out of a molehill."

The Slater Food Service has been under contract to provide cafeteria meals since September 15, 1962. They were given a one-year contract with the option to renew it.

Campus Starts Coasting To Halt For Christmas Holidays

"You should be here when everybody's gone."

This could well be a statement attributable to the few who remain behind while the great majority of SIU students departs for the Christmas holidays.

In the description of one, the campus becomes somewhat like a downtown area early on a Sunday morning. The situation is definitely different when roughly 90 per cent of a population of about 12,500 suddenly departs.

And this is soon to happen at SIU, where the student body is in the stretch drive of final exam week--the half-way point.

When the "Great Exodus" is complete by the middle of next week, life on the campus takes a drastic turn. It's apparent in traffic, at Morrill Library, the University Center, and the other focal points in the daily lives of a student body as large as many a community.

As a result, activities are adjusted to the sudden drop in population. At the library, for example, shorter hours will go into effect--8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Dec. 18-31, and closed all day on Dec. 22, 25, 29 and Jan. 1.

With most of the potential patients gone, Health Services will also shorten hours. It will be closed Christmas and New Years Day, and no evening hours will be kept from Dec. 18 until resumption of normal hours Jan. 2.

With the drop in patronage, the University Center will also reduce its schedule. The tentative proposal is to have the building open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Dec. 18, 19, 20, 23, 26, 27 and 30, 8 a.m.

to noon on Dec. 24 and 31, and 1-8 p.m. New Year's Day for the benefit of football fans who can watch games on the TV set. This means the building will be closed Saturdays, Sundays and Christmas Day.

The information desk will be closed from Dec. 18 through Jan. 1, and the bookstore will be open when the building is open, through Dec. 24. It will then be closed for the balance of the holidays.

The bowling alley will be closed from Dec. 18 through Jan. 1, as will be the Olympic Room.

The "closed" sign will be up on both the Cafeteria and Oasis Dec. 24 and 31, as well as when the entire building is closed. But one or the other will be open on the days the building is open, according to Clarence Dougherty, director. This will depend on the maintenance schedule, and signs will direct persons to the "open" side.

The check room will be closed throughout the holidays and the parking lot will be unattended but open to usage.

The office of John E. Grinnell, vice - president for operations, said there will be no change in regular office hours at SIU during the holidays.

As during any holidays, the coming weeks will be a busy time for the personnel of Physical Plant. Any period when the students are gone represents an opportunity to get at buildings, according to W.A. Howe, director.

Holidays are "always a busy time," Howe said. Where certain maintenance problems require interruption of utilities such as heat and electricity, vacation time represents an ideal opportunity to get at such situations, Howe said. Preventive maintenance is another example, he added.

Necessary painting is done to the extent possible, floors are "stripped" and waxed, and buildings cleaned, Howe said.

In addition, there are general improvements requests to be handled.

'Twas two weeks before Christmas
And all through the campus
The students were stirring
To slide through their finals.

Term papers were hung
In typewriters with care
In hopes that instructors
Would find merit there.

All hands were confined
To their quarters with books
To cram for the answers
They'd need to make good.

When up on the roof
There arose such a clatter
Seniors sprang from their sacks
To see what was the matter.

And through the haze
Of final exam fog,
Appeared old Saint Nick
Sled, reindeer and all.

He shouted and whistled
His reindeer along;
On Econ, on English,
On Spanish, on Math.

On German, on Calculus
On Literature and Crafts.
The sled landed plunk on top of the roof
And Santa stepped out to deliver the loot.

He reached into his bag,
And pulled out his goodies;
The answers to finals
And term paper classics.

He distributed same
To all students on campus,
Then sped to his sled
To continue his dashes.

The finals were over
And all over the campus,
The A's and B's fluttered
--the pros only muttered.

The grades were then posted,
The students were merry;
Santa had delivered---
SIU letters were answered.

SIU Housing Official Says:

Housing Should Be More Than Shelter

"Student housing should offer more than shelter," emphasized J. Albin Yokie, housing coordinator. "It should have an education function. This is the purpose of the educational philosophy chairman on the university housing committee. "This is not to say that we should interfere or compete with the classroom, but that we should augment it. A student's education doesn't cease when he leaves the classroom, so we should make his housing atmosphere conducive to learning," Yokie continued. In the new housing areas under construction, and in the planning stage there will be no classrooms or faculty advisors housed in the buildings as there are at the Thompson Point Halls, said Yokie. This is due to budgetary matters. "This presents a serious problem with holding student and teacher contact," said Yokie. "We are exploring the possibility of having faculty associates to fill this gap. These would be faculty members who would "adopt" certain floors and work with them in building better teacher-student relationships. "Students may fail to realize that professors have other interests besides his special field, that he has wants and fears like any other human." It is the desire of the housing personnel, he said, to remedy this void to the largest extent possible.

There are many other places where housing can help educate the student, Yokie pointed out. "For example, we try to see that the noise is kept at a low enough level that students are not bothered; that desks are of the proper size, etc. We have to decide if we should provide room in the Commons Building for study. "Of course, the student doesn't spend all of his time sleeping, eating and studying. We try and encourage him to use his free time to the best extent possible. Often these bull sessions give the student an opportunity to expose himself to other political, religious, geographical and social views. It gives him a chance to really weigh his own views against those of his same age group." The food service was another area where Yokie was able to point out educational possibilities. "We feel we should introduce students to new and different foods. Often students have never had the chance to try many foods from different countries or regions. We try to have a few special dinners stressing different nationalities or special foods such as some sea foods that most students have never had." Student government was the final aspect of student education in the living area which the housing coordinator discussed. "I feel that we should let these students, and the rest of the student body take as much of the responsibility of running their government as they are willing to take. We encourage them to make their own decisions and to handle their own problems as much as possible."

Badminton Added To Laurels

Judy Miller Doesn't Look The Part, But She's An All-Around Athlete

Judy Miller is a 5 feet 2, trim brunette with flashing brown eyes who looks like anything but an athlete.

Yet the 21-year-old senior from East St. Louis probably is one of the finest all-around female athletes at Southern.

Judy won the 1962 Illinois State Badminton Championship held at Eastern Illinois University and then teamed up with Jesse Yen and grabbed the second place title in the mixed doubles.

Now this sounds like quite an achievement in itself, until you learn that Judy never played badminton until she was a freshman at SIU.

Badminton is not the only interest of this quietly composed physical education major. Judy is a member and past president of Southern's Women's Physical Education Professional Club, a member of Aquettes, Competitive Swim, girls varsity field hockey, volleyball, basketball and tennis teams.

you find she can be moderately outspoken.

"I dislike the attitude of so many people in and out of the academic situation that stereotype physical education majors," she said. "I know the same thing happens to people of a few other fields too," she added, "but I feel more strongly about physical education because I am so closely associated with it."

As to her reason for turning to physical education as a major, she said, "At first I wanted to be a secretary but I couldn't sit still in my typing class for the full hour, so I decided I needed something more active."

"Swimming is the best source of exercise," she said, "because it teaches endurance, coordination and strength, and also because it is an individual activity and not dependent on an organized group."

When asked about future aspirations she thought for a moment and replied, "after college I want to teach for a while at the high school level and later return for a masters degree, because my eventual interest is teaching college students."

Now--Chevy spirit in a new kind of car!

We built this one to do more than just stand around looking beautiful. Held its weight down in the 3,000-pound range. Then built four lusty engines--two sixes and two V8's--with output all the way up to 220 horses*! And if that makes you think this is one frisky car, you've got the right idea.

You've also got a roomy car here. Yet its 115-inch wheelbase keeps it highly maneuverable in traffic and very easy to park.

With its Full Coil suspension, it's got a ride that reminds you of the Jet-smooth kind the way it muffles noise and cushions bumps.

And the fine hand of Body by Fisher craftsmen shows up beneath this one's suave good looks, too.

Sound goo!? There's more. Like the fact that Chevelle comes in three series with eleven models--convertibles, sport coupes, sedans, wagons, even Super Sport models with front bucket seats. Like the fact that (and see if this isn't one of the nicest surprises of all) the new Chevelle comes at an easy-to-take price!

McNamara To Close 26 Bases, Shift 5th Army To Ft. Sheridan

WASHINGTON -- Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced plans Thursday to close 26 domestic military bases in an economy move and ran into immediate opposition in Congress.

The announcement included the 5th Army headquarters in Chicago, which will be relocated to Ft. Sheridan, Ill.

The present facility will be turned over to the General Service Administration for disposal by June 1966.

Little more than an hour after McNamara said the 26 U.S. bases and 7 others overseas will be closed or reduced, Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., introduced a bill to slow up defense reports to curtail activities.

Keating's bill would require the Defense Department to notify the Area Redevelopment Administration of any decision to close a base in an area of substantial unemployment if 100 or more civilian employees would be affected.

Obviously angry, Keating, whose state would be hit hard by the closing or curtailment orders announced by McNamara, said:

"It is incredible that anyone could analyze this as an economy move."

He said it costs about $4,230 to create a new job under the accelerated public works program in unemployment areas. To recreate jobs for the number of persons that would be affected by the Defense Department orders, he said, would cost about $28 million.

McNamara, in announcing orders to close or curtail activities at the bases, told a news conference that in 3 1/2 years he expected annual savings of $106 million.

He also said that, "I have every reason to believe that studies now under way will lead to further reductions in the coming months."

The curtailments announced Thursday will cut off 8,500 civilian jobs and result in a reduction of about 7,800 military personnel, McNamara said.

Passman Refuses To Yield In Fight On Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON -- Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., chief congressional foreign aid slasher, made clear Thursday that he intends to be just as sharp a thorn in the side of President Johnson as he was to two previous presidents.

"I'll go to the White House when I'm invited and I'll be polite and I'll listen," Passman told a reporter. "But if the day comes when I have to yield my own convictions, fully supported by facts, then I'll go home."

Passman's convictions are that the foreign aid program is wasteful and well-nigh worthless and is costing the United States a billion to two billion dollars too much each year.

As chairman of a House Appropriations subcommittee, he rides herd on the aid money bill each year. He reportedly expects to get committee approval Saturday of a bill far less than $3 billion. A House-Senate conference agreed on a $3.6-billion authorization ceiling.

Economy Plan May Curtail US Agencies

WASHINGTON -- President Johnson's economy campaign may delay expansion of some existing federal programs and curtail others not to the highest urgency, the White House reported Thursday.

All heads of departments and agencies have before them a presidential directive to re-examine personally their budgets for the next fiscal year which begins July 1, 1964, to determine what further savings can be made.

Press secretary Pierre Salinger said Budget Director Kermit Gordon, acting as the President's request, sent to department and agency heads Wednesday night an order for them to take a final look at their budget requests and report back to Gordon today.

Announcement of the impending marriage was made at the 12-room home of Checker's parents.

Life-Size Toys:

Education Professor Restores Old Cars

When school is out, Victor Randolph goes home to his life-sized toys.

There's nothing strange about that except, of course, Randolph is a professor of elementary education and wouldn't normally be expected to have toys.

Actually he's had a pretty hard time keeping them in a chest or box under his bed because they are antique automobiles; Randolph collects and rebuilds them.

Randolph said he first became interested in tinkering with cars when his older brother, who went to auto mechanics school, started working on the Randolph family's first car, a model T Ford.

Hot roders existed even in the days of the model T because Randolph claims that through constant care and tuning they had the fastest "T" in Galconda.

Leaning back in his swivel chair, with one elbow resting on a desk supporting his raised arm topped with a big unlit cigar, Randolph told of some thirty cars that he has rebuilt. Many of these cars he still owns today.

His favorite is a 1929 Reo

Flying Cloud with hydraulic brakes and overdrive. The Reo could go 70mph. Only 2,000 were made so he believes he has one of the very few remaining.

He estimates he has $6,000 in parts for model T's and A's on which he may be considered an authority.

"Henry Ford was a looney experimenter," Randolph said, "because he would start something and never follow it up."

One year he built a model B that was a little bigger than the "A" and then discontinued it. In 1936 he built six cars with stainless steel bodies and never did it again.

Randolph's latest endeavor

VICTOR RANDOLPH is a 1931 model A roadster on which he has installed new fenders and upholstery.

Though his favorite, cars are not his only hobby. He also has a thorough collection of Illinois license plates.

Noted Astronomer Is Named Winter Visiting Professor

Harlow Shapley, professor emeritus at Harvard University, will serve as visiting professor of philosophy next term at SIU.

For many years Paine Professor of Astronomy at Harvard, Shapley has served as exchange lecturer in Belgium and has filled titled lecture posts at Oxford and Northwestern universities.

Willis Moore, chairman of the SIU Philosophy Department, said Shapley will serve on the faculty of the "Plan A" honors program while at Southern. A series of public lectures also is planned.

Shapley received his Ph.D. degree from Princeton University, and has been awarded numerous honorary degrees. He is a past director of the Belgium-American Educational Foundation and former trustee on the Worcester Foundation of Experimental Biology.

Among outstanding national and international awards given Shapley are the Gold Medal of the Royal Astronomy

Society of Canada, the Draper Medal of the National Academy, the Janssen Prize of the French Astronomical Society, the Pope Pius XI Award, the Rittenhouse Medal, the Jefferson Award and many others.

Shapley also is the author of several books on astronomy and education.

The dinner ceremony was held Dec. 8 at the University Center Ballroom at which time 49 southern Illinois communities received commemorative plaques and 47 mayors from the area received gavels in recognition of efforts to improve the communities of the southern Illinois region.

Deadlines Near For Grants In Home Ec Graduate Study

Deadlines for grants for graduate study in home economics at SIU are approaching, according to Eileen E. Quigley, dean of the School of Home Economics.

Applications for graduate and research assistantships, carrying stipends ranging from $1,125 to $2,160, are due Feb. 1, with appointments to be made in March, she said. Recipients may take a maximum credit load of 12 quarter hours of study, and must perform 20 hours of service per week.

Fellowships with stipends ranging from $1,620 to $1,890 are also available, and recipients selected by the Graduate School are permitted to carry normal graduate study loads. Applications for these grants should go to departmental chairman by Jan. 15.

Candidates may also apply for the doctoral program in the filed of home economics education.

The Carbondale Plan Commission will recommend approval of a proposal to build a dormitory at 509 Ash Street and an annexation petition.

At Wednesday night's regular meeting, the Commission voted to recommend City Council approval of both proposals.

The three-story, 50-occupant dorm is to be built by Glenn Williams. A special exception to zoning regulations was needed.

The annexation petition was filed by Earl and Leona Hendrick, who requested that 2 1/4 acres on Park Street at the southeast corner of present city limits be taken into the city.

What Might Have Been

We share the disappointment of Director Donald Canedy and his Marching Salukis that the plans of some members prevented the marching band from accepting an invitation to perform at the National Football League championship game Dec. 29.

Previous commitments prevented several members from returning to campus Dec. 26 for practice and from accepting the Dec. 29 offer.

Such an appearance undoubtedly would have provided the largest audience for which any representatives of Southern Illinois University have ever performed. Watching the Salukis would have been not only a championship crowd, but a nationwide television audience as well.

Although reluctantly, we can appreciate the motives of those band members unable to change plans on such short notice. When a between-terms job may mean the difference between attending school and staying home, even performance at a national championship game must take second place. For others, family plans could not be changed.

In itself, receiving the invitation was an honor—perhaps the greatest the Marching Salukis have ever received. They have played twice at Chicago Bears' regular season games, each time delighting audiences with their novel musical arrangements and instrumentation, sprightly maneuvers and colorful uniforms. At Tulsa this fall their rendition of "Oklahoma" received a standing ovation from the partisan Tulsa University crowd. SIU can be proud of its talented musical ambassadors.

We plan to watch the Dec. 29 contest anyway—but with considerably less enthusiasm.

Never mind what might have been.

American Religious Revival Of Post War Years Is Gradually Losing Its Momentum

Religions in America, by Leo Rosten. Simon and Schuster, 1962

According to the compilation of facts and figures and beliefs of religions by Dr. Leo Rosten, two outstanding observations must be made:

1. The majority of Americans really do not take their church seriously. Only 47 percent are attending church, and part of this group attends because it is the accepted thing to do.

2. The revival enjoyed in the post World War II years has either come to an end, or is descending into a great lull, and is not likely to start upward again until Americans truly look at themselves in the proper religious perspective.

It is doubtful that the average American has a true picture of religion and its influence on our nation. Some glibly call it a Christian nation, while according to the prophets of gloom it is "gone" religiously. Dr. Leo Rosten has presented a relatively clear picture of how America stands religiously. He indicates that this nation has experienced a religious revival, which began during World War II, reached its apex in 1958, and since that time has been on the decline.

This most recent (and some say current) revival in its historical setting is the seventh such in America, beginning with Jonathan Edwards, then the Wesley Brothers, Billy Sunday and others have been instrumental in religious revivals in American history. The most recent revival is called the twentieth century revival.

Reviewed By

The Rev. J.B. Buchanan, Pastor University Baptist Church

According to recent polls, religion is on the decline in America, at least in the minds of people. For example in the year 1958, of the people questioned in a poll, 69 percent believed religion was gaining ground; five years later only 45 percent believed religion and its influence was gaining ground. Likewise a poll shows that from 1955 to 1958 49 percent of the adult population attended some church, but by 1961 this figure had decreased to 47 percent.

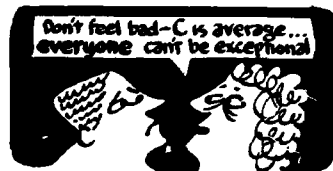

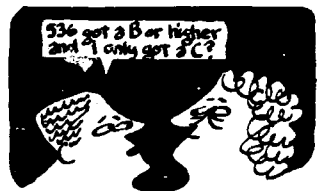

As for respect for religious leaders, a poll has shown that this has been on the increase. In the year 1942 only 18 percent thought that religious leaders did this country more good than any other type of leaders, while 28 percent thought that government leaders made the greatest contribution; but by the year 1957 this picture had been reversed—46 percent of those questioned in a poll thought that the religious leaders did the country more good, while only 17 percent attributed to government leaders this compliment.

Contrary to public opinion, and even though there are 66 million people in America who choose to belong to no church (this incidentally is the largest single group) most everyone has religious learning. In a government census 68.2 percent of the population preferred Protestantism, even though all do not attend church; 25.8 percent preferred Catholicism; the other six percent preferred some minority group, or no religion at all.

The editor of this very fine reference book has done well in choosing reliable people to express the beliefs of major religious groups.

From this book one may get a true picture of, not only religion in America, but may even learn what his own church believes. It would be nice to have in hand the next time you are in an argument about religion with a friend,

Letter To The Editor :

Student Peace Union Leader Complains About Denial Of Student Mailbox Use

The following is a letter I wrote to Gerry Howe, student body vice president. I have not, as yet, received a reply:

Since the beginning of the school year, I have been bothered by the seeming injustice of the allocation of mail box spaces in the Student Government office. It would appear that only elected and appointed organs of Student Government are permitted to utilize this facility, even though one would expect any campus-recognized group to use it. Yet we see that Young Democrats and the Young Republicans are permitted a box apiece.

Assuming that the only requirement for a group to have a box would be the initiative to claim an empty space, I put the Student Peace Union label up. In fact, I put that label up no less than 12 times, since each time it was removed a few hours after it was put up. If this is petty vandalism on someone's part, perhaps something should be done about it. If this was done in an official capacity, I should be notified of the policy and why some groups, such as the above named, are permitted to have a box and others (somewhat less popular with Student Council) are not.

I am sure you share my feeling that there should be an element of fair play in the area of student-administered services and I believe you are in an ideal position to enforce it. Your cooperation will be appreciated.

William Tranquilli

Gerry Howe, student body vice president, says Tranquilli is correct in stating only elected and appointed organs of Student Government are permitted to use Student Government Office mailbox spaces. The only exception is Sphinx Club, all-University activities honorary. He says Young Democrats and Young Republicans currently do not hold boxes.

Neil Leonard Helps Reader To Distinguish Difference Between Jazz And Popular Music

Jazz and the White Americans: The Acceptance of a New Form by Neil Leonard. University of Chicago Press.

The social implications of jazz have been and continue to be a major controversy. In academic circles there is still violent argument as to whether jazz is or is not an art form. Most Europeans consider American jazz our most important artistic musical accomplishment.

For the most part, the academicians of the American university disagree with the European thinking on this matter.

The basic hypothesis of this book is as follows: "A new art form or style, touching upon the basic assumptions of a culture system, usually provokes controversy. Traditionalists, that is, those who hold strongly to conventional values (aesthetic and nonaesthetic), tend to disregard or oppose the innovation.

"On the other hand, modernists, who find that the innovation satisfies aesthetic and other needs, react against traditionalist opposition by drawing together in an area of understanding or brotherhood and often ignore or flout important traditional values. Before long, a group of moderates arises and tries to bridge the gap between the sensibilities of the two camps."

Mr. Leonard does a remarkable job in educating the reader to the difference between jazz and popular or commercial music.

It is made most clear that many critics of jazz are in fact critical of popular commercial music, that they themselves have labeled as jazz.

In the 1920s most legitimate American composers, the older generation now, accepted with open arms and open ears many of the musical subtleties, driving rhythms, and other aspects of jazz music.

At the same time the commercial artists were promoting another type of music called commercial and symphonic jazz which many listeners today confuse with true jazz.

Mechanization, that is the improvement of the phonograph, radio, and television, has given the American public the opportunity to hear more popular music. At the same time, much of that labeled "jazz" is in effect commercial or symphonic popular music.

The conclusions reached in this book can probably best be expressed by a statement written in 1932 by the French pianist, Stepane Mougins:

"We are creatures of habit, we inherit conventions which cannot be infringed upon without serious disturbance.

"It takes tolerance and willingness to accept these new art forms. One must forget all that one's previous artistic education has taught one.

"The mind must be like fresh wax, ready to receive these new impressions. Otherwise, your entire being, everything you are accustomed to and have learned to like, will be shaken and even wounded—nevertheless, there is no reason why you should renounce classical music; it is simply necessary that you take along with classical music an entirely different set of emotions, those belonging to jazz."

Where Was 'Spirit' In Christmas Dinner?

Because of the public complaint, we would like to voice our condemnation of the "Christmas Dinner" held in the University Center Sunday. We voice our complaint on the following points:

The dinner was advertised in the Daily Egyptian and by the University Center Programming Board as the "Holiday Delight Dinner" with special Christmas dishes. This was not the case—the only special food served was baked beans. The buffet was very poorly planned because Slater Food Service ran out of roast beef and chicken a full hour before serving time was over. To us this shows very poor estimating abilities on their part.

One serving line also was closed much too early. Contrary to normal Sunday buffet policy, one could not get as much to eat as one wanted because of poor planning.

Also, advertising said semi-formal attire was required. This stipulation was completely disregarded.

Basically we feel Slater used the Week of Holidays steering committee to its own advantage and to the detriment of the student body and faculty, by taking free advertising of a special Christmas dinner without putting out a special dinner.

This false advertising was not the Programming Board's fault—they were promised it would be a special dinner. Most students attending the dinner were very disappointed in the food served and the way it was handled.

We also feel the Sunday meal should be referred to as a buffet - style exhibition. The foods Slater serves do not constitute a smorgasbord because of lack of variety.

Gymnasts Compete Saturday:

Saluki Varsity Teams To See Little Action During Holidays

Intercollegiate sports activity slows to a small's pace for SIU varsity squads this weekend, and for much of the remainder of December during the holiday season.

Just one Saluki team will be in action Saturday, as Coach Bill Meade takes his all-around gymnasts to an invitational meet at Iowa.

Southern will be paced by senior Rusty Mitchell, who was first in the all-around competition in the Midwest Open last weekend, as well as taking top honors in the free exercise and tumbling events.

The Salukis' twin brother threat, Juniors Dennis and Bill Wolf, and juniors Ray Yano and Bill Hladik will make up the five-man team. Bill was second among the all-around finishers at Chicago, Dennis sixth and Yano ended eighth.

Dennis also notched his third straight triumph on the high bar in the meet. Hladik sprained a thumb while competing and is a questionable starter tomorrow at Iowa.

SIU's gymnasts will then take a breather until the end of the month, when they travel to Tucson, Arizona, to compete in the Western Gymnastics Clinic Dec. 27-30.

Wrestling coach Jim Wilkinson was to have put his powerful wrestling crew on display for the local fans here tomorrow for the first time in two seasons, but the scheduled opponent, Findlay College, called to postpone the match.

Ralph Casey's swimming team is out of action for the rest of this year, with its next meet scheduled away, Jan. 4 at the Michigan State Relays. The Saluki finners carry a second-place finish in the SIU Open into the new year, as that was their only meet so far this season.

Annual Illinois Holstein Meeting Here Dec. 16-18

The annual Illinois State Holstein Convention and State Holstein sale will be held Monday through Wednesday in the arena in the Agriculture Building.

RUSTY MITCHELL

Next date for any of the Salukis will be the holiday cage tournament at Springfield, Mo., Dec. 19-21. Coach Jack Hartman's five, despite losses to strong major-school powers in its first four games, has been ranked eighth in the nation in the latest college-division basketball poll.

Alkies Win Fall Quarter Intramural Bowling League

SIU's fall quarter Intramural Bowling League team title was captured by the Alkies this year, as the champs bested the Powerhouse Keglers quintet 2 to 1 in a championship roll-off at University Center Lanes.

The two teams split the first two lines in the roll-off, but the Alkies fired a 940 finale in the third round to cop first-place laurels.

An original entry lineup of 50 teams was narrowed down to the two finalists last week, as the Alkies and Powerhouse clubs qualified for the roll-off by bowling the highest pinnage in the three-game block in which nine section champions participated.

Wayne Hicks, Mt. Vernon, was the pacesetter among the 300 participants, as he defeated Rich Bryles of Oak Lawn for the individual average crown by a slim three pins, 194.4 to 194.1.

The Alkies had the team high for three games with a 3,067

Southern's basketballers had been rated sixth in the country in pre-season balloting, slipping just two notches since, although yet to find a victory.

In the Missouri Intercollegiate Invitational Tournament, Southern will get back into college-division competition, and a first-place trophy is certainly far from out of the picture. SIU will have to nose out seven other quintets for the title.

Six Missouri schools will participate, as will one from Arkansas, Arkansas Tech. The Missouri schools are Central Missouri State, Missouri School of Mines, Northwest, Northeast, Southwest and Southeast Missouri State.

Southern's cagers will be at home in their first 1964 tilt, hosting Tennessee A & I in the local gym Jan. 6.

Wilkinson's grapplers will also find themselves at home when they return from the holiday break. SIU is slated to meet Miami of Ohio here Jan. 4.

total, topping the Magnificent Five's 2,950 mark. Merle Sapp had the highest individual Alkie series at 536, while teammate Tom Grant rolled the highest individual game at 210.

Hicks had the best individual game of the two finalists with his 220. His second effort was a 194, then he fell far off his early pace in completing the threesome with a 124. His 538 series was still best of the two teams. These scores were scratch totals.

Half Of Anthropology Grad Students Working Toward Doctorate Degrees

More than half of the 24 graduate students working toward advanced degrees in anthropology at SIU are engaged in doctoral studies, according to Philip J.C. Dark, chairman of the department.

The anthropology graduate program has drawn students from 13 states besides Illinois and one from India. Other states represented include Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Kansas, Kentucky (two students), Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Dakota and Washington.

Doctoral candidates already holding the master's degree include David Counts, Ross Morrell, David Salzer, William Folan, Richard Palles, David Thompson, Monte Kenaston, John McBride and Berle Clay.

Aslo Loretta Reinhardt, James Schoenwetter, Matthew Hill, and D.P. Sinha.

Students with bachelor's degrees who are working toward the master's degree or who, by-passing the master's, are working toward the doctorate, include: Joseph Mountjoy, Philip Weigand, Roy Miller, Larry Bowles, David Ward, Robert Knittle, Roy Miller, Brenda Clay, Barry Curcio, Marianne Palmer, Jerry Melbye and Carl Schmid.

Several of the advanced students have completed course work at the University and are completing theses or dissertations while already engaged in professional work elsewhere.

Among these are Folan, who is regional archaeologist with a special project for the Mexican government, stationed in Merida, Yucatan; Melbye is a salvage archaeologist with the SIU Museum; Schoenwetter is an archaeologist with the New Mexico State Museum; Sinha is engaged in an anthropological-sociological housing study in St. Louis.

Mrs. Hartman Says:

Basketball Coach Has Tension Beat

"I don't think Jack will develop an ulcer. He has been coaching for 11 years and he hasn't one yet."

That, is the inside word on Jack Hartman, SIU basketball coach, from the person who knows him best, his wife, Mrs. Pat Hartman.

She claims the coach doesn't bring his troubles home.

"He talks the game over and that's it until the next game," Mrs. Hartman said.

"On game day Jack eats very little; I don't give him anything special before the games," said the petite brown-haired woman, who is the mother of three children. "Being the wife of a coach has it's moments, but I don't think it is any different than any other persons work. There are more crucial moments, but he comes home from the office just like any other man."

The Hartmans have three children, all girls. Jana, the oldest, is 10 and is in the fifth grade. She is a redhead and very sports-minded (she broke her arm last summer playing baseball). Second in age is Davy Sue who is in the first grade. She, like her kindergarten - aged sister, Jackie, is a blonde.

Mrs. Hartman commented, "Men can enjoy sports no matter who is playing. I have to know something about the team before I can enjoy it." She attends most of the home sporting events at SIU, including basketball games, football and track.

The Hartmans met while they were still in high school.

Both attended Oklahoma State University. They have been married 16 years.

The Christmas tree is already up and decorated in the Hartman home on Taylor Drive. According to Mrs. Hartman, it was family project, with the girls doing their share.

However, the tree will be alone this Christmas. The Hartman's will be able to visit relatives this year. The basketball tournament will be held prior to Christmas and the family will be able to travel during the vacation season.

"The problem with coaches isn't the time element. The girls and I, are able to adjust to his hours. The big problem is that the joy has so much tension; the ups and downs of the job are terrific. One day you are on top of the world, the next week you are at the bottom of the heap."

"With Jack there are two seasons, golf and basketball; they don't mix," Mrs. Hartman's activities are playing bridge and working in the yard in the summer.
