SIU Blows Its Stack for Boiler Ache

SIU's been blowing its stack--in a manner of speaking--for several days and it may not be over yet.

Don Shepherd, power plant mechanical engineer, says all that hassling and escaping of steam from the power plant is part of a test on one of the exhaus-tion boilers installed last year.

Shepherd said that they had hoped to complete the test by Wednesday. He added, however, that the test was put off into Thursday because the boiler wasn't performing as guaranteed by the builder.

"If we have to do it again but when we analyze the results we have to start all over," Shepherd said.

"I hope we are done now," he said late Thursday, "but really it's not certain until we've completed checking today's tests."

The continuous blast of steam has been audible over most of the University area.

Shepherd said the steam was blown off from a main line so the plant the boiler could be brought back on line. He added that it didn't reach its 80,000 pounds-per-hour guarantee. Performance should have been near peak.

Tests following the boiler's installation last summer also were unsatisfactory, Shepherd added.

The boiler was installed by The Wick Boiler Co., Saginaw, Mich.

Discrimination Off-Campus

by William Moffett

One of the racial facts of life for students at SIU is that the overwhelming majority of off-campus property owners refuse to rent to Negroes. In fact, most Negroes would have a difficult time in this city if it were not for the efforts of the ROTC and Carbondale. The ROTC drew near to the train bearing the oppressed students, the people living in their eyes. The Egyptians were completely changeable, varying manner, and they were sore afraid. The students' troubles were not yet to cease, for they hungered and thirsted especially for homes. If we have no food and drink on the table, what is there to eat?

And the merchants, who were swiping with Pharaoh on the battle field, said to him: "Oh great and noble fat one, (behold) they burn the errant bands, for how else is Carbondale to survive? As for the Egyptians and their/off-campus housing section reluctantly admired, that more than 90 of the off-campus house home owners refuse to rent to Negroes. The editors of this paper will appreciate any help that the community can offer in solving this problem. We believe that discrimination in housing is a serious issue that needs to be addressed.

6 Rollers Displayed Wallpaper Printing Process Featured in Window Exhibit

The current exhibit in the front display window of the Home Economics Building is featuring six aluminum rollers used for printing wallpaper designs, together with other materials showing various steps in the process of printing and displaying wallpaper.

The rollers and display material were given to the Department of Clothing and Textiles by Robert G. Wolf of Joliet, father of a student in the department.

The exhibit includes the artist's original designs, the printing process through which the pattern is photographed onto the rollers (one roller for each color), several rolls of finished wallpaper and sample books.

Also shown is an antique wallpaper roller, dating back to the era when wood cylinders were used, with small pieces of copper hammered into them to form patterns.

The aluminum rollers have become popular acquisitions by interior designers and homemakers as lamp bases or for other decorative purposes, according to Mrs. John Stewart, instructor in interior design.

4 Aircraft, 1 Pilot Are Lost
In 150-Plane Strike on Reds

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) - Bombs, rockets and gunfire from about 150 warplanes ripped Communist North Vietnamese targets Thursday in the third and heaviest of the U.S.-South Vietnamese reprisal strikes. It was a thunderous response to Viet Cong terrorist attacks.

Smoke columns surged up through broken clouds in the barrack areas of Chan Hoa and Cap Le, singled out for destruction after the bombing Wednesday night of a U.S. enlisted men's barracks in Qui Nhon which left 25 Americans dead or missing.

A U.S. spokesman said the raids were highly successful. But it was announced four carrier-based Navy planes and one of the fliers—the pilot of an F-8-D Crusader jet—were lost. Of 48 land-based planes involved, all returned safely.

Radio Hanoi declared North Viet Nam's armed forces shot down seven U.S. planes and captured one American. The radio said the prisoner was Robert H. Shumaker, "bearing identity card No. 9,131,615." It was not brought out whether he was the missing Crusader pilot.

This was the second casualty of the retaliatory action set off by a Viet Cong attack Sunday on American installations at Pleiku, where eight Americans were killed and 19 aircraft destroyed or damaged.

Navy Lt. Edward S. Dickson of Wyoming, Pa., was lost in the first reprisal raid, on coastal Dong Ho.

The new strike came while American relief workers were probing debris of the four-story billet in Qui Nhon, 270 miles northeast of Saigon, for the living and the dead. The known American toll was two dead, 23 missing, 18 injured. The attacks were made through antiaircraft fire described as ranging from light through moderate to heavy. The defensive weapons appeared to be relatively small—37mm guns and 50-caliber machine guns.

One of the four Navy planes lost was a Skyhawk, from the carrier Ranger. Guy sought to sit down at Da Nang, a missile-guarded U.S.-Vietnamese base 50 miles south of the border. Its landing gear collapsed and some of its unsput munitions exploded.

The crash temporarily closed the Da Nang runway. The targets were described by White House press secretary George Reedy in Washington as "military facilities in North Viet Nam used by Hanoi for the training and infiltration of Viet Cong personnel into South Viet Nam."

The barracks areas were said to contain training, supply, maintenance and other facilities in addition to troop housing.

Reedy said the air attacks were agreed upon in consultation with the Saigon government.

Jet Pilot's Words Give Clue
To Cause of Airliner Crash

NEW YORK (AP)--Eastern Air Lines Flight No. 663, in the final 60 takeoff seconds before it plunged to disaster, apparently rolled over in the air after a "close miss" with a jetliner coming into Kennedy Airport.

Captured on tape were the chill, laconic words of the jetliner pilot as, from the dark skies over the airport Monday night, he radioed the ground control station:

"We had a close miss here. He was well over the top of us and... ihh. . . it looked like he went into an absolute vertical turn and kept rolling."" The Federal Aviation Agency released Thursday the dramatic transcript of radio messages from the outbound, propeller-driven Eastern DC-7B and the Pan American World Airways jet flight.

Titan's Aerial Circus Is Space-Age First

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) -- A Titan 3A rocket Thursday hurled its third stage into orbit as a flying launch platform and, in a space-age first, executed a series of "aerial circus" maneuvers involving four orbit changes and three satellites.

These tricky acrobatics, which included the first triple ignition of a rocket motor in space, must be perfected for future manned and unmanned military space operations.

The moves would be necessary for executing military payloads swiftly to any desired spot in space. Potential assignments include reconnaissance, inspection and perhaps destruction of enemy satellites and transfer of men and supplies between space outposts.

Major goal of Thursday's test launching was the triple ignition of the third stage—a unique start-restart rocket called a transtage.

The transtage was one of three satellites involved. Ejection of the other two—in experimental military communications payload and a 320-pound chunk of metal—was considered a secondary objective.

The 12-story-tall Titan 3A rumbled away from Cape Kennedy at 12:19 p.m. EST. The transtage, carrying the other two satellites, ignited six minutes later and drilled itself into a near-earth orbit between 108 and 128 miles high.

Eighty-nine minutes after launching, off the California coast, the Air Force reported the transtage successfully fired a second time to shift its orbit into an elliptical path ranging from about 116 to 1,766 miles up.

Three hours later—at 4:41 p.m. EST—the transtage ignited for a historic third time to circularize the orbit.

Humble Lincoln Summed His Life As ‘Short, Simple Annals of Poor’

By Louis Sandbore

Abraham Lincoln wrote in 1859, "If any personal description of me is thought desir able it may be said I am in height, 6 feet 4 inches, nearly; lean in flesh, weighing on an average 180 pounds; dark complexion, with coarse black hair and grey eyes. No other marks or brands recollected."

The phrase used in just in his last sentence usually appeared at the end of advertisements announcing a dis-cription of stray animals or runaway slaves.

Perhaps some would conider it impolitic to begin a piece on Lincoln in such homely terms on this his 156th birthday, but we are, after all, a nation of men rather than idoli zers, and Americans have always loved best those leaders whose characters reflect the simple wit and ch arm that have marked our people separate from those of other countries.

To portray Lincoln in 1860 rhetoric as the "Hellman of Columbia" is to miss the essential pitchiness of the man.

Anyone who has ever attempts to read by firelight has discovered to his chagrin that the quixotic novelty soon wears thin. The simple life a great piece of folly to attempts to make small parades of me or my early life. It can all be condensed into a single sentence, and that sentence you will find in Gray's Elegy: 'The short and simple annals of the poor.'"

Lincoln's married life has been portrayed by some writors as no more idyllic than his early life. An account by William Herndon, a friend of Lincoln, recounts on the less charming events in the married life of the Lincolns.

Being chased down the street by Mary Todd Lincoln, who was at the time branddashing a knife, the fleeting Lincoln noticed the neighbors were taking the ugly scene in and "turned suddenly, in the words of William Herndon, his friend, caught his wife at the heavy end, her hips, if you please, and quickly hustled her to the back door of his house and forced, held her in, at the same time, as it were, spanning her heavy end, saying to her "there, damn it, stop you staying home and don't disgrace us before the eyes of the world."

The Lincoln period away from home in a struggling young lawyer's career did not help matters in the Lincoln household. Many of the rifts in the Lincoln family must be prefaced upon the fact that Mrs. Lincoln suffered, as one biographer put it, "from daytime loneliness and nighttime remorse.

The Great Emancipator was a terror and emotional man. Upon viewing the speccular of a slave auction, he bitterly exclaimed to a friend, "if I ever get a chance to hit that thing, I'll hit it hard!"

Combining mercy and wit in his job of reviewing the cases of court-marshaled deserters during the war years, he once told a vexed judge,

MARY TODD LINCOLN DURING LINCOLN-DOUGLAS DEBATES was no more romantic than Lincoln.

He once confessed to Chicago Tribune reporter John Scripps, "Why, Scripps, it is quite true that the quixotic novelty soon wears thin. The simple life.

"If Almighty God gives a man a cowardly pair of legs, how can he keep his running away with him?"

He continually asserted that all his political feelings sprang from the "truths em-bodyed in the Declaration of Independence" which he said, "gave liberty not alone to this country but to the world in all future time."

He regarded the principle of liberty for all with such reverence that he once stated "I would rather be assassinated on the spot than surrender it."

When Lincoln was elected President, he told his law partner and friend Herndon, "If I live, I'm coming back and we'll resume practice as if nothing had ever happened."

On Good Friday, 1865, an actor made Lincoln's wish impossible.

He was a good man, this gentle fellow who was our first President to wear a beard. He was a man of wit and was our first President to enjoy the personal friendship of many of the contemporary rulers across the sea. He was a tender man, but he could be stern.

He rightfully became a part of the American Legend.

Council to Discuss Proposals
On Student Government Future

Student Council made plans Wednesday night to discuss at next week's meeting proposals from individual students and council members concerning the future of student government at SIU.

Wednesday is the deadline for individual proposals to be submitted to the campus council.

The Council plans to use individual proposals in formulating a working paper that is to be eventually drawn up by a special committee of the University Studies Council. Campus leaders from living areas and organizations had been invited to Wednesday's meeting, but only three showed up. They were briefed on the present situation and encouraged to solicit opinions from their constituents.

Two Books Include Wieman Writing

Henry N. Wieman, professor of philosophy, is author of a chapter in each of two new books, "Philosophy, Religion and 'Dreaming World: Civilization'" and "Philosophical Interrogations."

The first, edited by Leroy S. Rouner and published in honor of William Ernest Hocking, contains a chapter by Wieman entitled "Empiricism in Philosophy of Religion."

In "Philosophical Interrogations," edited by Sydney and Beatrice Home, one chapter is based on Wieman's interrogation of Charles Hartshorne on his idea of God.

Thursday the meeting was held a night early. As a result the Council barely had a quorum. Twelve voting members were present.

Jan R. Standard, president pro tem, chaired the meeting in the absence of vice president Donald R. Grant.

In other action, two bills were defeated, one passed and another was referred to a committee.

The bill which passed recognized a student organization, the Pakistani Student Association.

The Council defeated a bill entitled "Equal Opportunity," which called for the establishment of a compulsory AFROTC program on the Edwardsville Campus.

Standard, the senator from the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, was sponsor of the bill. He admitted to council members that the bill was drawn up "with tongue-in-cheek."

The Council also accepted a committee's recommendation to defeat a bill calling for the purchase of a student government sign for the University Center hallway.

A bill that would grant a student representative on the University Council (an administrative council) was referred to the Student Rights Committee and will be reported on next week.

The Council also heard a report from Bob Wese, out-town senator, that two students reportedly had been removed from the University Center for refusing to remove their hats. He asked that an investigation be made.

Shipton Gymnasts Seeking No. 33, 34

At Ohio State, Michigan State

Southern’s men gymnastic team will be on the road this weekend searching for its 33rd and 34th straight dual meet victories as the Salukis meet two Big Ten schools, Ohio State University and Michigan State University.

Coach Bill Meade looks for little difficulty from the Ohio State Buckeyes Saturday afternoon, but is expecting stiff competition from Michigan State Spartans.

The Spartans finished eighth in the NCAA finals last year and have lost only one key performer from that team. That performer is Dale Cooper, two-time NCAA still rings champion.

So far this year the Michigan State Spartans have a 3 and 2 record. They beat Minnesota, Ohio State and Indiana and lost to Iowa and Iowa State.

Minnesota and Iowa State are the only common foes for both teams so far this season. The Spartans defeated the Minnesota team 75-45, but lost to Iowa State 74.5-42.5. The Salukis defeated Minnesota 68-44 and Iowa State 63.5-56.5.

The Salukis have Frank Schmitz returning to bolster the lineup against the Buckeyes and Spartans. Schmitz, a top trampoline performer, will be competing in that event in addition to free exercise and long horse events.

Larry Lindauer, who has won the all-around event in the last two meets will be trying for his third win of the season. He will be getting strong competition from the Spartans’ Jim Curzi.

Curzi, a junior from Butler, Pa., was hampered much of last season by injuries but recovered in time to win the Big Ten all-around title and finish third in that event in the NCAA finals.

Other returning lettermen for the Spartans are Capt. Dave Price and Ted Wilson. Price and Wilson are fine all-around performers, but will probably be used only on the high bar, the parallel bars, and the side horse.

By events, Michigan State appears strongest in free exercise, the high bar, the parallel bars, and the side horse. The trampoline remains weak.

Senior Steve Wells is the only experienced trampoline on State's 12m.
SIU Baseball Team Starts Spring Drills

By Roy Franke

SIU baseball coach Glenn (Abe) Martin is back in business this season with spring training already under way for the veteran mentor. Although the early season drills are old hat to the 17-year Saluki diamond crew, there's a fresh spurt of anticipation around Martin's office these days. Never before had the Saluki coaching staff hoped so much for its team to go all the way.

One of the greatest pitching duos ever to provide talent for a Saluki team returns in Gene Vincent and John Hotz. The junior right-handers were unbeaten in regular season play last year as they combined for all 21 Saluki victories.

Outlook

Martin sent the team into its first indoor workout Monday and was much satisfied with the result.

"I'm very optimistic about the year," said the veteran mentor. "Right now we're mainly concerned with conditioning and skills.

"Our pitchers are throwing for conditioning and our catchers for the same reason. Our basemen are swinging the bat to get the feel back. And we're playing a good deal of shortstop. Our infield is working on ground balls and all of the infield drills. We've also been working on the sacrifice bunt," he added.

Prior to Monday, Martin spent a week in the classroom with the team going over the things they were trying to put into practice this week.

"You've got to know the fundamentals before you can do anything," Martin explained.

Unexpectedly the team got an early contact with the Saluki diamonds. Martin considered it a rare privilege.

"Never before have we gotten out this early," he said, and, "we wouldn't be able to get out now if it weren't for the blacktops."

Martin was referring to the fact that the team worked out on the blacktop east of the Arena which is available for the first time this year. In past years even when the weather permitted, its teams had to drill outdoors, wet ground forcing them elsewhere many times.

Weather: Whether they can get outdoors much or not will be determined by their annual spring trip beginning in mid-March, Martin plans to keep the team busy. "We'll work out five days a week, one with 3 p.m. to 5.p.m. in the Armoury now and we leave on the trip if the weather doesn't permit us outdoors, he said.

What's Martin got to work with this year? You name it and he's just about got it. That's just how loaded his squad is. The four top hitters from last year's team are back and seven out of the top nine.

One of the greatest pitching duos ever to pool its talents for a Saluki team returns in Gene Vincent and John Hotz. The junior right-handers were unbeaten in regular season play last year as they combined for all 21 Saluki victories.

Vincent also set a new single season strikeout record with 100 in 91 innings of work. Only-time catcher Mike Pratte and veteran first baseman Jim Long are back from last year's team which Martin labels "the greatest in SIU's history."
First Five Plus Strong Bench Equals 13 Victories For SIU

It takes more than five men to make a basketball team. No matter how good a man's starting lineup may be, its overall success often depends just as much on a strong bench.

As Coach Jack Hartman put it after their 13th game of the season, "The Salukis are more than just Ramsey, Frazier, O'Neal, McNeill and Lee. They're every man on the roster."

Hartman said he was very pleased with the enthusiasm of the fans, but was displeased with reactions about late substitutions.

In addition to providing themselves with some experience they will need next year, Hartman said the late substitutions also provide the valuable service of resting the regulars for coming games.

A case in point is the present crowded schedule, with four games this week. "The regulars just had to have rest," Hartman said.

The men used in late substitutions practice hard and they deserve a chance to play," Hartman added.

However, William Justice, manager of the Arena, said that he didn't have a "no banner" policy and said that he would consider giving space to well-made banners that could be hung where they wouldn't interfere with the crowd.
