Tuition hike could exceed 10 percent

By Vicki Ogletre

A proposed tuition increase of about 10 percent was presented Thursday to the Board of Trustees, but Chancellor Clinton Rogers and two board members that tuition may have to be increased more.

"Let me say that this is the only amount that we'll be asking for at this time," said Rogers. "There's too many financial unknowns out there for trustees." Rogers also said that the SIU board at its next meeting will consider putting aside funds for a building, as well as increasing the amount for building and utility increases.

The increase would exceed 10 percent, according to policy, and the board has also recommended to the Illinois Board of Higher Education recommending an increase of $137 million for the fiscal year 1984, an increase that would generate $137 million a year. Shaw said that the SIU board was not making a recommendation because the administration "thinks there are too many financial unknowns out there for "

The Undergraduate Student Organization is also addressing tuition increases from a different perspective. A student government leaders expressed philosophical opposition to any tuition increases, but told the board that they were approaching tuition increases in the same manner. "We are opposed philosophically to the tuition increase," Graduate Student Council President Ann Greenley said. "Rogers thinks there is a clear understanding of the budget restoration being placed on SISU." The resolution urges the administration to avoid all further library budget cuts in order to preserve current hours and periodicals.
Jury deliberation gets underway

By Jennifer Phillips

The jury began deliberation late Thursday afternoon in the trial of Patrick R. Williams, accused of murdering 18-year-old Benjamin E. Dockins on Sept. 9.

Deliberation was temporarily delayed when one juror reportedly took a call during deliberation. This could not continue because of serve rules. Jackson County Circuit Judge William South told the jury to continue with deliberation.

Chairman John Clemens would probably downsize the IBHE.

"We recommend, the IBHE has said, to the state."

"one's that could not be handled simply through new state support for education."

In his state-of-the-state address Tuesday, the president said that if the IBHE weaknesses are not increased 10 percent -- about $100 million -- of its state-supported revenues. Shaw said this would amount to a $12.5 million loss of funds for the SIU System.

If the budget that Thompson is re-submitted to deliver next month contains less than the $1.1 billion recommended by the IBHE, a call for a larger tuition increase, Shaw said "We can only hope at this time that all we need is a 10 percent increase."

If the governor's budget is smaller than the IBHE recommendations, Shaw said, he expected that the IBHE would recommend an increase in the budget in general.

Small Group Housing now Greek Row

By Rod Stone

Small Group Housing is now officially called Greek Row. The Board of Trustees Thursday approved its name change, ruled in favor of the name change, proposed in recognition of the purpose for which the buildings were originally constructed and to promote an awareness of the significant contributions made by Greek organizations to the University.

Ten of the 15 buildings on Greek Row are fraternities or sororities and five are administrative offices.

In other business, the board approved several improvements for SIU-C. The board approved a $250,000 to replace corroded iron heating and cooling pipes in Mac Smith residence hall with copper pipes.

Jury deliberation gets underway

The 18-year-old Williams took the stand in his defense, conceding with what Mandfield later described as Clements "death grilling." Clements told the jury he had failed to follow his promise to introduce evidence concerning the discovery of Dockins' body, and had handled the trial by police, the apprehension of Williams and Edward L. Buchanan, the investigation that followed and forensic evidence on problems, "he said.

He said he introduced a diagram to Clements witnesses that he testified that he had had sex with Williams at least 20 minutes. Williams denied the allegation and Mandfield asked the jury to consider the credibility of a man who had been convicted for forgery eight times and is currently in the Jackson County jail.

Williams has told nothing but lies all the time, Clements said, and used them to minimize his involvement in Dockins' death.

Mandfield tried to damage the credibility of Dr. Harry W. Parks, who performed the autopsy on Dockins.

Parks said he did not take blood tests from Dockins,曼 said in a report on the autopsy on Dockins. Clements favored the testimony of Dr. James E. Phillips, who performed the autopsy on Dockins.

Mandfield has finally delivered Thursday, at 3:24 p.m., a verdict of "guilty of murdering William Brandon testified that he knew Dockins."

The planning and design work for the projects will be done by SIU-C Physical Plant engineers.

In business concerning SIU, the Executive Committee of the board announced that contracts totaling $125,000 have been awarded for construction of a Theatre Performance Facility on the Edwardsville campus.

Groundbreaking is expected soon and the project could be completed in six to eight months, weather permitting, said Pres. Earl Lazerson, who released the order.

USO decides to fund mayoral debate

By James Derk
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization Senate passed a bill Wednesday that will fund the upcoming Carbondale mayoral debate.

The senate passed the bill unanimously after USO President Jerry Cook told the senate the bill was essential to prove that "the USO is concerned with the future of Carbondale."

The senate approved an expenditure of $275 for promotional and operational expenses of the debate, which will be held March 31. The Student Programming Council will provide an additional $275 for the debate.

In other business, Cook briefed the senate on the outcome of a meeting held with local merchants and the Chamber of Commerce to discuss the annual Halloween celebration. Cook said the USO could lend only "cautious support" to their efforts.

"We would welcome any efforts to make Halloween an asset to Carbondale," Cook said. "But there were many issues overlooked."

Cook cited the issues of safety and health as two main concerns that were ignored at the meeting. He said that the merchants' main concern was "to make a buck off of the students."

"It is not unreasonable that the students, will be the victims of this plot to organize," Cook said. "Halloween is our celebration, and it should be tailored to our interests."

The USO has tabbed an idea for forming their own task force for the time being, pending the outcome of the Chamber's proposals.

"If they choose not to genuinely consider our concerns, we will proceed with the task force," Cook said.

Cook also read the senate a letter addressed to President Albert Bertolino from two faculty members of Marion High School concerning the recent Homecoming football game last year.

The letter pointed out that four Marion high school girls were passed up the bleachers during the game by a group of SIU-C students. The letter said that the University "appears to be condoning this physical and verbal abuse."

Cook said he was "very concerned" about the letter and the fact that some people have been left with a bad impression of SIU-C.

"It is not unreasonable that someday someone is going to be passed over the top of the students," Cook said. "If the students knew how easy it is for people to get hurt, I don't think they would do it."

Cook sent a letter to Marion High School on behalf of the undergraduates apologizing for the incident. He proposed several ideas to alleviate the problem, including beefing up security at the stadium. Cook also said that the University policy on prohibiting alcohol in McCrory Stadium will be "strictly enforced" next year, which he hopes will alleviate the problem.

The Senate passed six funding bills, including funds for the Black Phantom Drill Team, the International Student Council, the Council of University Scholars and the Inter-Greek Council.

The Senate also passed resolutions to recognize the Agricultural Communications of Tomorrow, the Attentive Audience and Captain Call as recognized student organizations.

The Senate approved a resolution in support of Agricultural Communications of Tomorrow, sponsored by the Illinois Public Interest Research Group. The resolution was held Wednesday, Feb. 16 in the Student Center and includes representatives from 750 organizations on campus.

Three senators, Joe Walton, Denise Ronlock and Mike Greatbatch, were elected to the USO Committee on Internal Affairs.

Water war ends but troubles continue

By John Sehring
Staff Writer

The seven-year-battle between the city of Carbondale and the Murdale Water District was resolved this week, but in many ways the work has just begun.

City Manager Carroll Fry said that in accordance with the terms of the contract signed Tuesday night, several monetary and legal matters have yet to be cleared up before the city can begin preparations to provide water service to its new customers.

The contract gives Carbondale the water rights to 315 Carbondale residents who are receiving city sewer service but not getting their water from Murdale. The city is paying Murdale $400,000 for the rights to the customers, who live in an area on the west side of Carbondale, south of the Parrish Acres subdivision.

Fry said that the actual hook-up to the new customers should not be too difficult because the city will be using the water lines obtained from Murdale.

"However, he said, "we have to get the legalities and paperwork out of the way before we actually begin work."

The on-going, off-again negotiations, which dragged on for nearly eight years, were often bitter and included a lawsuit which is still pending.

The suit was filed by Murdale after the city hooked up water to 23 Murdale customers living along Tower Road in 1981.

William Ridgeway, the attorney representing Murdale, said the suit would be withdrawn if the city would provide water service to its customers. The suit would be filed by Murdale along Tower Road in 1981.

Throughout the long dispute, city officials said the Murdale water lines do not provide sufficient water pressure to fight a residential fire.

Fry said that after the Murdale customers are hooked up to the city's 12-inch water line along Tower Road, the water pressure will increase enough to allow additional fire hydrants in the area. City officials are hoping that this improvement along with a few other "hangers," will result in the city's ability to reduce its water and insurance costs.

Although the issue has created friction between Murdale and Carbondale officials, the mood was congenial Tuesday night as Murdale board members agreed to one final change in the contract allowing the city to extend water lines to undeveloped areas near the Murdale Water District.

A scary tax plan

GOV. JAMES THOMPSON and his staff seem to have made a convincing argument for raising taxes in Illinois. Part of the argument, though, is that the tax system will be changed.

An emergency spending bill passed by the General Assembly last year gave Thompson power to trim spending by $160 million. Budget cuts are happening in areas like the state's nonprofits and universities and public hospitals.

The Thompson tax plan calls for a 50 percent increase in personal income tax, 40 percent increase in corporate income tax, 60 percent increase in the liquor tax and a 34-cent boost of the gasoline tax. The Administration estimates that revenues would be increased $2.7 billion.

THOMPSON WARNED lawmakers in his state-of-the-state address that the state faces financial ruin if his proposed tax increases are not approved. SIU-U officials concur with Thompson that additional revenues are needed. The scare tactics employed include talk among education leaders that colleges would close and that faculty could face a furlough.

The public can discuss the examination of the state budget and state spending. A student or faculty member may examine any of the state's financial records. The examination may be just what Illinoisans can expect since lawmakers are taking a "show me" attitude with the tax plan.

Home Speaker Michael Madigan says he remains unconvinced that a full-scale debate is needed. Even some GOP legislators remain skeptical, raising the question of how just how convincing Thompson has been in arguing for tax increases.

MUCH OF THE Name for the fiscal crisis deserves to be put on Thompson's shoulders. After all, the state was in wonderful financial shape throughout Thompson's reelection campaign only to tumble by the time he took his oath for the April 2 election.

Thompson showed poor judgement by delaying payments of some bills until this year. He knew the bills would have to be paid sooner or later and campaigned on the premise that his care with the budget kept the state solvent, but that has not proven to be true.

If the crisis is severe, further measures are needed. But Thompson will have to supply further proof to tax increases can be approved. A closer look at spending may uncover fat in the budget that can be trimmed without any sacrifice.

The scare tactics alone won't do it. Even Gov. Richard Ogilvie when asking for taxes to be raised in 1969 didn't stoop to scare stories.

Letters

Anti-choice fanatics uninformed

For weeks now I have been reading articles appearing in the DE concerning the abortion issue. I find it interesting that most of the letters have been written by those who do not know what it is to be pregnant or become pregnant from rape, sexual assault, or be informed that they have a deformed fetus. Individuals who are against abortion are usually angry at any woman regardless of her age, mental status or physical condition in allowing them to make a free choice to terminate a pregnancy. Most anti-abortionists are religious fanatics, political opportunists, realists, hateful and vindictive men and women who, because of their looseness or anger or hostility, feel it is their duty to control another person's life. Their debates generally turn into moral or social issues, have become obscured by their fanatical statements and vicious personal attacks which all lead to illogical arguments. They are an embarrassment, they don't care for open discussion or debate and they shout you down. They are the best examples of free thinking and alternatives for solutions to social problems.

They are also quite innovative in their thinking, and have them between a fertilized egg, a fetus, an embryo, and a baby. They are all class-trained to say "kill" and always say "baby." These anti-choice fanatics have also unleashed a storm of sex, ranging from clinics and contraceptive counseling facilities across the country. Their attacks have included burnings, bombings, and even threats against the children of clinical personnel.

I'll never know what it is like to be a woman and I'll never know what it is like to be scared and pregnant but I do believe that that pregnancy is a personal matter.

I have never spoken to a fetus, I wouldn't even know how to begin but I have spoken to the countless hundreds of unwanted, deformed, battered, out-of-wedlock and tragic children. I have also spoken to battered women and rape victims who should be allowed to determine their own destiny.

The abortion decision is not an easy one. It is not easy for the physician for I know of no physician who enjoys or finds it easy to perform a pregnancy termination. It is not easy for women to make that choice.

The real issues of abortion concern the American Bill of Rights regarding the freedom of conscience and Fifth Amendment rights of privacy, due process and equal protection under the law. A woman's conscious decision to terminate her pregnancy is an exercise of the most fundamental rights nearly as old as her right to it. It surely must be part of the liberty protected by the Fifth Amendment.

Rich or poor, in this country or internationally, women should be free to determine their own destiny. Takey Crist, M.D., Clinical Assistant Professor, 601 Gyn., University of North Carolina; director, Obst. and Gyna., Women's Clinic, Jacksonville, N.C.

SIU-C faculty 'whacked'

I read with great trepidation the announcement in the Daily Egyptian that the SIU-C administration would seriously consider a faculty and staff furlough during the spring break if Mr. Thompson, presently of Springfield, Ill., were to demand further cutbacks in university funding.

By requiring the faculty to take a furlough without pay, the University is taking another shot at a group that has already been over-ached in many ways. Furthermore, if it is really necessary, would it not serve the University if it were held during the semester when school should be in session. It seems to me that the administration in the same issue, President Somit states, "they the students are more concerned with what directly affects them than us. It occurs to me that if the University was a furloughed completely, with no water, no power, no phones, no security, no correspondence, no record upkeep, no food, no dormitories, no court ball, no tennis, no swimming, no president, no chancellor, no football games, in fact, we would have 20,000 concerned students overnight. When they appear on their parents' doorstep the President's job is to go find them. Student is included, for an extended stay, we would also have 40,000 concerned parents. These students and persons would have quite an impact on our Legislature proceed in Springfield, Ill."

Mr. Thompson, who did not feel any financial exigency when they recently voted themselves $2.7 billion in tax increases, is now demanding furlough without pay. If we furlough, let's do it where it does some good, not just put our hands in the faculty pocket-books to pick a few backs.

Oh yes, you could extend this idea and add to those 60,000 people all the state universities and their concerned parents, then there would be a concern of an "impact on the University's current and future budgets" in Springfield, Ill. and Mr. Thompson, who did not feel such an existence. "(DE Feb 29)"

Well Miss Hengstmann, by that same reasoning, I may now shortchange a blind person if I get the chance. After all, I won't know what I've been up to, and if I did then he'd just feel bad knowing he was the sensitive guy, I wouldn't want him to be freed from Emma, then they'd all feel bad knowing they were freed from, as Hengstmann calls them, "traditional moral imperialism.""--Richard H. Hengstmann, Philosophy and English.

BLACK ISRAELITES, they call themselves Culture rich, Self-sufficient. Published on biblical scriptures. They may be a minority who know it will soon be no more. Very soon.

"In the next few years, blacks will be leaving America. And they won't know why," said Aloeus Harris, an Israeli said.

"They will go back to the Middle East. God is getting ready to bring judgment on this country. Movie is in the next dozen years, this nation will be destroyed. You see, blacks are not Christian people. The Israeli nation was built by the God of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Solomon and David. These people were not Christians. We (blacks) became Christians when we came to America. The whites nicknamed us through Africa from the 12 tribes of Israel, " said Harris. "This is starting to come here in on all who hope to survive. Without this number, no one will be able to buy daily necessities such as food, clothing and shelter.

For that reason, Black Israelites grow their own food, make their own clothes and are isolated in a rural atmosphere. They have no intentions of being "owned" by anyone. With this in mind, Israeli families have been migrating to The Farm in earnest. Upon arrival they are required to pay a few and are allowed to either build a home or set down a trailer. The financing and maintenance are left to the individual owner.

THE BLACK ISRAELITES

movement was started by Lucas Casey, a Chicago native Casey searched for, and found and bought the land about two miles north of Ulm. Harris met Casey in 1963 and joined them the year later.

But since Casey's death a few years ago, a cohesiveness that once characterized the Black Israelite community has loosened somewhat. After Casey's death, and because of the Jim Jones Guyana tragedy, some residents of Ulm became worried that the Black Israelites were a cult. Harris disagrees.

"We go out and trade in different areas and towns, and we have not been confronted as a cult," he said. "You see, we don't force anything on anyone. You can accept it if you wish. It's up to individual to study the Bible and see it for themselves."

Trading and self-employment are common among the residents, but some are also employed as security guards, nurses and factory workers in the Southeastern Missouri area.

HARRIS MAKES it a point to explain to residents what they know about "where they really come from." Blacks, he said, don't bother with the New Testament. The Israelites read only the Old Testament. "That's the whole folks religion," said Harris. "The New Testament was written by the white man to brainwash us. We got his education, his philosophy and way of life, as we have been living in darkness because of the New Testament."

"We are the only race of people without a homeland. We don't have a flag, do we?" he asked. "If you ask a Chinese where he's from, he'll say China. Ask a Japanese, he'll say Japan. Ask a German, what can he say?"

"Every nationality in the world has a flag to know where they come from. Everyone except blacks. We are from the land of Israel. That's our home."

Harris said blacks, according to the Bible, must be subjected to physical and emotional suffering and despair for 400 years. He paused for a moment as if he were counting, saying, "These years are almost up.

"But those who want to be saved, can be saved," he said in a whisper. "The book is open. If black people want the truth, the book is open."

SIU-C now ranked 14th in nation

International student enrollment rises

By William Jason Young
Staff Writer

SIU-C ranks 14th in the nation in international student enrollment, according to a survey tabulated by the Institute of International Education.

In its annual survey, SIU-C ranked 30th in the nation, said Jared H. Dorn, assistant director of international education. Last fall, 1,982 international students — excluding non-credit and non-degree students — enrolled, pushing the University’s ranking up 11 spots.

The findings of the IIE survey were published in the latest edition of the Chronicle of Higher Education.

Dorn, who has been assistant director (1971), said there is no single factor which accounts for the relatively large international student enrollment at SIU-C.

"Apparently, the comprehensive programs offered by the University suit the interests of many foreign students," Dorn commented. "The University offers subjects which are in great demand in foreign countries."

The student presence among international students at SIUC is business studies, with 306 students enrolled last fall. Engineering and technology are the next most common, with 501, followed by liberal arts, with 356. Dorn said.

A survey conducted in 1961 by staff members of the international service showed a majority of the 250 newly arrived international students indicated they came to SIUC for the opportunity to continue their education, or because friends and relatives attending the university, or because friends and relatives had graduated from the University.

"From the financial standpoint, SIUC is among the preferred choice of universities because of its relatively moderate tuition cost," he said.

"The University now requires international students to have a minimum of $8,300 for 12 months in order to be eligible for acceptance."

In 1971, the financial requirement was $1,500 for the same period, said Dorn.

International students now pay $1,415 in tuition and fees for the spring of this fall semester each.

On the national level, the tuition at SIU is "around the middle," Dorn said.

Cheryl Kluek, director of international education, said the growth of international enrollment at SIUC is "phenomenal" and he predicted a continued increase in enrollment.

Kluek said foreign students start coming to SIUC in April. At that time, only 35 enrolled. In 1984, 546 foreign students were enrolled in both graduate and undergraduate studies. Ten years later, the number of international students at SIUC had increased to 590 and that figure almost doubled in 1986 with 1,706 foreign students enrolled, he said.

While international enrollment had shot up to 2,400 making up 10 percent of the total student population and 12.5 percent of graduate enrollment, Kluek said by 1985, international student enrollment could reach 5,000, he believes.

Evelyn Davis, community college has the largest international student enrollment with 4,622, while the University of Illinois is 3,713, with 1,608, the survey indicated.

The survey also reported that 10 foreign countries with the"top 10" students in U.S. colleges are: Iran, Taiwan, Nigeria, Canada, Japan, Venezuela, Italy, Saudi Arabia, Malaysia and Hong Kong in that order.

The 11IE report said that in 1971, a total of 115,899 foreign students attended U.S. colleges and universities and it is estimated that by 1980, there will be one million foreign students on the nation's campuses.

"Many foreign students come here because they have friends or relatives or both on campus," Kluek said. "Also, SIU is attractive to foreign students because of its small-town environment with the surrounding region providing conditions and facilities ideal for hiking, fishing and many other outdoor activities.

Dorn said that now, the total number of international students at SIU is 3,444 including those in credit and degree programs, Center for English as a Second Language, special technology, and non-degree programs.

About 85 countries are represented by the international student population at SIUC with Malaysian students comprising the largest group, with about 700 enrolled in degree programs and about 250 non-degree programs.

When Britain announced multifield increases in fees for foreign students as soon as Margaret Thatcher became prime minister, thousands of Malysians who have traditionally gone to Britain for higher education began turning to the United States.

"The flexibility and orientation of our programs seem also to be more favorable than Britain's rigid programs," Dorn explained.

The Office of International Education organizes several programs for international students every semester. One of these is called "Intersoft to Southern Illinois" which includes the Health Advisory program, speakers' bureau, international customs cooking, English in action, international student council supper.

The office also organizes educational travel trips to cities such as New Orleans and Washington D.C.

In addition, the International Friends' Club cooperates with the International Wives Friendship Center for programs hosted by community women for international wives and their pre-school children.

Artist-blacksmith show forges new territory for metalwork

By Valerie Hall
Student Writer

Iron in motion—a mounted sculpture that appears to be traveling at high speed as it shoots outward from a central point—can be found at the University Museum at the north end of the campus.

The exhibit, entitled "Towards A New Iron Age—The Art of the Blacksmith Today," was born in the Victoria and Albert Museum in London, England. It celebrates, in over 100 pieces, the iron artworks of 51 contemporary artist-blacksmiths from Europe, the United States, and even from behind the Iron Curtain.

The exhibit can be considered "new wave blacksmithing" in form, Johnson said, though the techniques used are still very old. One particular piece entitled "Candelabrum," by Anthony Robinson of Great Britain, has iron petals stemming from its sweeping branches and holding white candles. Another piece that displays how the artist can manipulate iron is entitled "Plant Stand" by Albert Paley. The base of this piece, according to Johnson, "is the twisting of the metal gives it strength and a very fragile appearance."

After the exhibit leaves SIU-C, it will travel on to Charlottesville, Va., and then to New York City before going home to England.

The Oregon School of Arts and Crafts, Jan Brooks Loyd, who taught here in 1976-78, and James A. Wallace, director of the National Ornamental Metals Museum, Memphis, Tenn. The other Americans are John Dittmier and Albert Paley.

The exhibit, entitled "Towards A New Iron Age—The Art of the Blacksmith Today," was born in the Victoria and Albert Museum in London, England. It celebrates, in over 100 pieces, the iron artworks of 51 contemporary artist-blacksmiths from Europe, the United States, and even from behind the Iron Curtain. The exhibit can be considered "new wave blacksmithing" in form, Johnson said, though the techniques used are still very old. One particular piece entitled "Candelabrum," by Anthony Robinson of Great Britain, has iron petals stemming from its sweeping branches and holding white candles. Another piece that displays how the artist can manipulate iron is entitled "Plant Stand" by Albert Paley. The base of this piece, according to Johnson, "is the twisting of the metal gives it strength and a very fragile appearance."

After the exhibit leaves SIU-C, it will travel on to Charlottesville, Va., and then to New York City before going home to England.

Print exhibit explores art form

By M. N. Abdi
Student Writer

The University Museum is sponsoring an exhibit called, "Prints and Multiples." It will be shown in Quigley Hall through March 10, according to Everett Johnson, curator of art. Johnson said the exhibit is the 7th of its kind by artists of Chicago and vicinity, now expanded to include all of Illinois. The purpose of the exhibit, according to Johnson, is to explore the art of the "multiple original."

"For the first time, protected by teaching in several Illinois universities and independent artists throughout the state participated in the Midwest's most important competition, the exhibit," Johnson said.

From 627 entries, 106 pieces were selected for the exhibit. Among the exhibits are several by prize-winning artists. One of them is by Roger Brown, "Standing While All Around Are Sinking," which won the Walter M. Campana Prize. Linda Horn's "Paw Paw" won the Joseph N. Eisenhardt Prize. Nancy McGee's "Wallpaper Rainbow" won the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan Prize.

Other interesting pieces are an untitled work by Michael Miller, "The Buddha Family." Michael Newhall, Dennis Rowan's "I Am," and Jeanette Pasin Sloan's "Silver Bowls." Johnson said the exhibit highlights works by an enthusiastic group of artists who have taken another bypass around the traditional printshop and turned to offset, photocopying, generative systems and other processes involving photography.

Auditions set for three 'New Plays'

Auditions for "An Evening Of New Plays" will be held at 7 p.m. both Tuesday and Wednesday in the LabTheatre of the Communications Building. Three original scripts written by IU students will be given for the production which will be presented April 6-10 in the LabTheatre, "On Holiday," by Ken Robbins, will be directed by Cindy Totten. The play deals with an old Civil War soldier who returns with his family to the battlefield where he was wounded. There are roles for two men, two women, and one small boy.

"Violets," by Pam Billingsley, author of "Quit Puking," which was presented last fall, will be directed by Mark Rubin. It is a story of a young couple who trace their roots through information they uncover. About the previous family members who "wore a dot of land they are about to purchase." Directed by Leslie Sloan, this play deals with the return of a father to his family on Father's Day, and the secrets that divide them about why he left. There are roles for two men, two women and one young boy. The auditions are open to all interested persons. Prepared audition pieces are not necessary. For more information, call the Theater Department at 631-6741.

Artists’ works are eye-catching

By Cynthia Reeter
Staff Writer

A couple, late for an SPC film may dash through the main hall of the Student Center, jog up the escalator down still another hall before one of them spits the pace and strain’s the other’s neck when they breeze the Art Alley’s “Annex Art” exhibit of glass maker David Wilcoxson has been working with the simple forms, mostly closed in, he says, and he’s especially interested in the contrast between simplified forms and extravagant colors.

Laura Budwit’s work has the strangest, most intriguing titles and concepts supporting them. Budwit works with the mediums of sculpture and metal smithing, and bones are an integral part of most pieces in the show. “Chicken Skin” is an exhibition. It’s a primitive-looking plate with chopsticks and small chiseled pieces of bronze and red brass.

Veil was in, bow with two pointed rods poking through it. The large booms and the display are Budwit’s trademark at this stage in her art. She says many have conspired such work as an intensely violent projection, and other artists are continually probing about a preoccupation with death.

She says reasons for using bones in her work are many. “They’re a cumulative sort of thing,” she feels which many cultures have used in their ceremonies and art. The link with the past is intriguing to her, as are the many levels of thought such a powerful symbol can connect with.

All three artists in the Annex Art show are seniors who work primarily in Pulham Hall. She feels mediums traditionally labeled “craft.” The show is a tribute to the fragile line between craft and art.

Former Moonie member says brainwashing used to recruit

By Jennifer Phillips
Staff Writer

Moonies? A group of flower children who sit around discussing peace and live together in some broken-down house which they maintain by selling flowers, right? Well, that's partially right. They do talk about peace and love, and they do sell flowers occasionally.

But Moonies, also known as members of the Unification Church run by the Rev. Sun Myung Moon, are just average cisco, where he met a group of people, often recruited from college campuses, according to Chris Carlson, a former Moonie who spoke Wednesday night in Student Center Ballroom D about his experiences. Carlson remarked in the film winning documentary film, “Moonchild,” in the Student Center Ballroom Wednesday night.

Animal control funds to end in June

By Terry Levecke
Staff Writer

Animal control in Carbondale has been a problem for years, and Jackson County has been helping Carbondale get started with an effective animal control program by supplementing the city with county revenues from dog licenses fees collected within the city limits.

But Wednesday night, the Jackson County Board voted to terminate the funding June 30, when the new six-month contract ends. The board considered terminating the payments immediately, but decided it would be proper to notify the city first.

The Health and Safety Committee of the board also recommended a study for the need of a housing ordinance for the county, which was referred to the planning commission.

If the health department condemns a house, the occupants are required to move out until improvements are made. A housing ordinance would allow occupants of condemned buildings to remain on the premises while improvements are being made.

In other businesses, Finance Committee Chairman Mad Nelson said the operating deficit in December and January was down to $13,000 and could be down to $6,000 by June or July if spending is kept within the budget.

Renovation for the north courtroom of the Jackson County Courthouse was delayed for another month until the next meeting, because Fletcher Stein Associates had not yet contacted building and grounds committee chairman Harry Browedy with the final plans and estimates.

The board incorporated in its minutes, Sheriff William Kilquist's request of commendation of Martha Collins, owner of Collins Bus Service.
Veterans get Valentines treat

By Doug Jaivin
Staff Writer

They're having a Valentine's Day party for patients at the Veterans Administration Hospital at Marion, and it'll probably go all weekend.

The guest list includes Kate the Clown, a country and western blond, and kids from Longfellow School. In addition, a number of veterans auxiliaries will be distributing gifts and cash to the 168 or so men who will be spending this Valentine's Day in the hospital.

Kaye Eidson, Monday, National Salute to Hospitalized Veterans Day.

"I like to hear the weekend's activities toward something that the patients will enjoy," said Robert Thomas, acting chief of voluntary service. "We like to have at least one group of young people from the community come in.

This year's group will be a special education class from Longfellow School in Marion. The class members have been making paper valentines that they will distribute to all wards on Monday morning. "They get a kick out of coming out and showing what they have done," Thomas said.

The Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary, American Legion Auxiliary, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary will all have members distributing tray favors, gifts and cash to patients at meals on Monday.

Kate the Clown will wrap up the festivities with songs and gifts on Monday night.

The National Salute to Hospitalized Veterans Day became an official Veterans Administration program in 1978. The salute is designed to honor the thousands of veterans in V.A. hospitals across the country. Patients receive visits by service organization members, sports stars, Camp Fire Girls and government officials in an effort to let hospitalized veterans know they are appreciated each day of the year.

This year's honorary patron for the salute is Nancy Reagan.

Teacher says nuke meeting set course

Determining the direction to take and the roads to follow for the 1982 Nuclear Freeze Campaign was the most important accomplishment at the third annual Conference for a Nuclear Weapons Freeze in St. Louis.

Important information was presented, enthusiasm was stimulated and ideas about fund-raising were passed on to everyone at the conference on Feb. 4, said Joyce Fry, who attended the conference with five other members of the SIU-C branch of the Mid-America Peace Project.

The three-day meeting consisted of speeches about the freeze, workshops and voting on resolutions, said Fry, a teacher at Carbondale New School.

"The conference brought together people who already support the freeze from all over the United States to help us all push to find politicians who endorse it," she said. "Part of the problem with finding citizens who support the freeze is the public's thinking about 'us and them,' especially because of the perceived incompatibility between a university and a political institution. Yet once presented with the type of programs in agriculture, technical careers and vocational educational studies that we are doing to improve their technological potential," she said.

Stickel said the first response of SENATI to the possibility of working with SIU-C was one of non-interest, because of the perceived incompatibility between a university and a political institution. Yet once presented with the type of programs in agriculture, technical careers and vocational educational studies that we are doing to improve their technological potential," he said.

"They found the match to be quite similar — the goals are congruent," he said.

SIU-C knowledge export beneficial

In addition to the promotion of goodwill and understanding, the broader mission of SIU-C's cooperative ventures is international political and economic development. There is potential for higher education to assist the state of Latin America in economic development, said George Stickel, coordinator of contract agreements for the DCE.

The DCE's most recent venture is in Latin America, where it is involved in planning a "change of expertise" relevant to the technologies of agricultural production and government training. There is a potential for higher education to assist the state of Latin America in economic development, said George Stickel, coordinator of contract agreements for the DCE.

Programs promise ‘New You’

By Shelisa Washington
Staff Writer

If you’ve ever said, “I need a change,” a collaborative effort by several organizations and businesses may be of interest to you.

SPC, the Wellness Center, the Food and Nutrition Council, Clothing and Textiles, Mises, The Hair Lab and Charles of the Ritz have planned a six-week program entitled “The New You.”

The program will begin Monday, and, those involved with it, note, is designed for persons who want a total body makeover for spring.

The program is the result of a joint program by Jennifer Spanb and the “New You” project.

“It’s something that I’ve been working on since June of 1982,” Spanb said. “It was something that I wanted to see done, so we at SPC, called and asked the different organizations if they would like to take part in the program.

“The New Shape,” the first phase of the program, begins Monday, from 1 to 3 p.m., the Food and Nutrition Council will hold a general nutrition workshop in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center.

Free refreshments will be served while the council discusses vitamin supplements, fats, diets, nutrition, alcohol and fast-food diets.

Weight Control for the spring, also a part of “The New Shape,” is sponsored by the Wellness Center. Scheduled to meet from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday in the Mississippi Room, discussion will cover current diets, popular diets, and the most effective ways to lose weight.

From 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, the Wellness Center will sponsor a fitness assessment lab in Room 158 of the Recreation Center. This program is designed to help participants learn better health habits by evaluating nutritional habits, aerobic fitness, body composition and stress levels.

“The New Look” sector of the program starts with free makeovers of Enter Leaders products from the Mises department store on Feb. 21 from noon to 6 p.m. From 1 to 7 p.m. Feb. 22, a lecture on skin care and white makeup will be scheduled. From 7 to 9 p.m. Feb. 22, The Hair Lab will present a slide show on hair and skin care while a fashion designer, Lee Doorenbos, will lecture on fashion.

On Feb. 25, The Hair Lab will discuss hair and skin care in the Mississippi Room from noon to 6 p.m. At the same time in the Kaskaskia Room, a representative from Charles-of-the-Ritz of New York City will discuss makeovers. Free samples of makeup and free makeovers will be available upon appointment.

Also on Feb. 25, from noon to 6 p.m., another makeover using Fashion Fair products will be presented by Mises.

The final touch to “The New You” program is “The New Style.” From noon to 4 p.m. Feb. 28, Clothing and Textiles, part of the Division of Comprehensive Planning and Design, will hold two workshops entitled, “Spring and Summer Fashion — Hair and Dressing For Your Figure” in the Mississippi Room. On March 4 from 8 to 9 p.m., the Clothing and Textiles Club will present a free spring fashion show.
Enrollment down by 98 from year ago

Enrollment for spring semester at the University is nearly the same as at this time last year, according to figures released at the Board of Trustees meeting Thursday.

Overall enrollment at SIU-C stands at 22,465 students on the tenth day of classes, a drop of 98 students from last spring, according to a report prepared by the Office of Admissions and Records.

President Albert Somit said at the board meeting that the enrollment drop between fall and spring semester was smaller than usual. Off- and on-campus enrollment stood at 23,760 in the fall.

The report shows a 3.9% freshman increase of 3,962 freshmen, while 2,838 seniors enrolled for spring. The senior class showed an increase of 398 students over last spring semester, while the lower three classes all recorded slight drops in enrollment.

Enrollment in on-campus classes is 19,677, down 321, while off-campus enrollment went up 223, to 2,888.

Enrollment in graduate and professional schools has stabilized, says John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs and research.

Master's-degree students showed a drop of 17, down from 2,534, and Ph.D.-degree students recorded an increase of one, up to 776.

The number of students in the Schools of Law and Medicine also increased, from 460 to 507.

Ombudsman offers guidance, advice

By David Murphy
Student Writer

New and younger students at SIU-C are the least likely to seek help from the Ombudsman's Office when problems arise, according to a comprehensive feedback survey by the Ombudsman's Office.

Ombudsman Ingried Gadway noted students unfamiliar with SFU's and those coming to the University from high school are those who usually need help and don't always know where to find it.

When compiled, the survey revealed that two-thirds of our clients have been enrolled at SIU-C for at least two years. That leaves only a small percentage...students new to the campus who use our services," said Gadway.

The Office's. Gadway that problem issues related to attendance, discipline, and that might be affecting students, employees, or the community in general.

Gadway said there seems to be some problem in how students find out about the services and advice the Ombudsman offer. Knowing about that problem, Gadway noted, will open discussion on how to better serve the new students and inform them about their awareness of the office.

Gadway described the survey as a "client satisfaction survey." The survey is a systematic effort to determine what things we handle," she said.

Information received from clients will help in explaining what types of problems are handled most, what type of person is most likely to use the Ombudsman's Office, and how well satisfied the client was with services of the Ombudsman.

We hope to know all the reasons for seeking our services and some are suspected," Gadway commented.

The Ombudsman's Office sent out 250 questionnaires in October and November. Responding to the questionnaire were 111 clients of the office.

Panel looks at women's pay

Women chairwoman said,
But, Butterfield disagreed and said comparable work jobs do not have to be equal in skill and the things must go into comparable work
rather than just social impact.
Yet another dimension was added to the comparable work concept. Butterfield said:
To compare dissimilar jobs, they must first be within the same establishment.
Beginning Feb. 15, an attempt will be made through the distribution of informational materials, to help individuals in the University community understand the comparable work concept. Butterfield said.
A system of numbering jobs according to their value will be explained. The information is designed only to give people enough information to ask why salaries are different.
Butterfield said jobs and employees should be evaluated on the basis of how accountable they are and how much impact they have in their work place.
Points representing job value
can be assigned to each job, and these work points can be compared between jobs,
said.

Women's intercollegiate

The information

said.
Legally, comparable work doesn't have a leg to stand on,
said. "Comparable work is legally definable. It is not legal enforceable — it is not a legal issue," she said.
Socially, Rowe said she has a hard time believing that a nurse is not worth more than a tree brimmer, but she said the law doesn't compare that.

Pay equity, Butterfield said, is not a built in request for salary increases. For example, she said that if both a secretary and a policymaker get jobs equal in value but one is paid more than the other, the answer, is not to raise the salary of the lower paid individual.
The women are paid believe it may be to find some middle ground.
The solution to pay equity for comparable work, she said, is to combine the job evaluation system with the existing system for determining salaries.

Steele said.

"We've had some competition lately, and had to settle for an intrasquad meet last weekend when Missouri was snowed in, but face more of an individual challenge in doing well and attaining qualifying marks for the zone regional meet, according to Coach Danny Golden.

"We probably do have the stronger team, but there will be good divers coming in," Golden said. "We'll find some competition, but again, it will be basically each person against himself. The formal meet will help in giving us a competitive edge and keeping us sharper.

The squad will perform in a championship format, 11 dives on both boards, five in preliminaries, three in semi-finals and three in finals. After the semi-finals, the 36-diver field will be narrowed to 12.

Jim Watson is coming off an illness and by the time of the meet should be feeling strong, but Johnny Consenius is a question mark because of an injury. Golden said Consenius fell out of the dive during practice this week, hurting the rib area, and making arm movement difficult."

GCAC meet is step to nationals for strong women swimmers

Sherry Chisnall
Staff Writer

Top quality swimming is on tap for this weekend as coach Tim Hill and his women's swimmers attempt to capture the championship at the inaugural Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference meet.

The Salukis will battle Illinois State, Eastern Illinois, Southern Illinois and Missouri at the conference opponent Tulane for the title.

More important to Hill than the conference crown, though, is qualifying additional swimmers for NCAA's. Hill said he expects the 200 and 400 freestyle relay teams to qualify, though Hill was uncertain in the other relays. SIUC's 800 freestyle relay has already met standards and is ranked first nationally with a time of 7:22.76.

Hill said five individuals have not met standards but he wants them to qualify in other events.

This season, several swimmers will compete in events they wouldn't normally swim.

Hill said he is looking for tougher schedules to make up for operations that have been less than perfect.

The drop to Division IAA could be especially devastating to SIUC because the team competes in a conference that has three Division I schools. A Division I school is able to offer more scholarships, and as Dempsey has experienced, more than once, it can be more attractive for the recruit who considers Division IAA small time.

What's worse, the two best teams in the Missouri Valley Conference, Tulsa and Wichita State, are both Division I schools.

Wichita State is on probation, which was expected to hinder their recruiting effort.

"That's not true," said Kansas head coach Mike Brascia.

Still, Dempsey was happy with the players he's landed. "I'd love to see a couple of them come to SIU."

"I never picture them playing right away," he said. "If you recruit well you shouldn't have to play freshmen."

If the recruits don't pan out SIUC could be saved by a bumper crop of junior college transfers. SIUC has five jocks, of which four are from the Kansas City area, from former Illinois school, and one from the Missouri School for the Blind, in Franklin. No freshman coach would have expected to sign a couple of the bigger names, but Dempsey's job was made even easier by the fact that the Salukis are in the same conference as the Missouri Valley.

Dempsey can look back to his time as an assistant coach at the University of Illinois to the success he's had at SIU.

"We're a great university and we have a great athletic department," he said. Mitchell, the only jock Dempsey brought in, was a great pickup for the Salukis. Mitchell was the Missouri Valley Conference's top 400-yard freestyle swimmer last year and he'd like to see good things happen for the Salukis.

"There's no reason we couldn't win our conference," he said.

"I'm surprised at their record," said Van Winkle. "I thought they'd be better than they have."

The Blue Jays are 7-12 overall and 3-7 in the league, but have flashed their potential in a two-point loss to DePaul earlier in the year, and more recently, by playing tough in road losses to Tulsa, New Mexico State and Drake.

Led by 7-year center Benoit Benjamin, the nation's top prep a year ago, and 6-7 power forward Gregory Brandon, the Blue Jays have become one of the top defensive and rebounding teams in the league.

They are second in the conference in rebounding, and teams are shooting only 42 percent against them.

Their problem is offense. Despite Benjamin's 14.2 average, 34 percent shooting and 9-8 rebounds per game, and Brandon's 12.5 average and 7.5 rebounds, Creighton hasn't been a real threat offensively.

signed by now, and Dempsey's staff was engaging Thursday in the last of open operations that will continue for the next few days. The coaches are going after players who had been expected to sign with big schools but had backed off or been dropped at the last minute by those schools.

SIUC has a good recruiting year last season, despite the drop from the SEC, and states that it may have caught up to those schools this year.

"I felt that it would hurt us nationally," said Dempsey. "The more口岸on the level than we have been, the better off we've been." Dempsey's jocks have included three players from the New Orleans area, traditionally a fertile hunting ground for SIUC coaches, because the players were not all recruited to the Saluki facilities.

Salukis begin stretch drive to tournament

The SIU-C basketball team stumbled coming out of the gate, lost ground going into the first turn, and lagged behind all the way down the backstretch. But as the Missouri Valley Conference race comes swinging out of the turn and into the homestretch, the Salukis still have something to run for.

The top eight teams in the race will go to the postseason tournament, and since Saluki running Wichita State is on probation and ineligible, even the ninth place team can struggle into the tournament. So with a little more hard work, SIU-C can still finish in the money. And hard work is one thing this too-small team hasn't been short on.

If the last-place Salukis are to mount a stretch run, it only needs to be a modest one. Saturday would be a good place to start. SIU-C will host Creighton, a team tied for seventh in the league with Indiana State.

Creighton and SIU are both 3-7 in conference play, and ninth place West Texas State is 2-7. The Salukis are one game behind the Bluejays.

The Salukis get in a rare afternoon game, as play starts at 5 p.m. Saturday. But they will also be Saluki Buck Day. All SIU-C students with IDs and all elementary and high school students will be admitted free to the west side bleachers.

The prospect of facing three opponents in four days may not seem that overwhelming if you're a basketball coach. But Cindy Scott coaches basketball, and her club is about to plunge into a black hole of sorts—a weekend in which they could emerge as the powerhouse cage team that they believe they are capable of, or a weekend in which they could simply disappear without a trace.

The blitz begins Friday night at 7:35 when the Louisville Cardinals fly into Davies Gymnasium with a 12-7 record. The Cardinals, however, have not faced a test this season; their record should indicate, as of late. They have dropped five of their last six games after blazing to an 11-2 record. FOOTBALL team adds four preps

By Dan Devine

If quality can supplement quantity, the SIU-C football team will have had a good recruiting campaign. In fact, the Salukis may just have the best of Division IAA status for dismantling top prospects from coming to Carbondale.

The Saluki coaching staff announced Thursday that four more players have signed letters of intent to play here, bringing the total number of signees to 13. Wednesday was the first day letters of intent could be signed. All 13 players inked their intention of playing for SIU-C on that day, but only nine names were released. Those players had all signed by 9 a.m.

The four players signed Wednesday afternoon are all defensive backs. They are 5-9, 200 pound Aleneo Bailey, another Player from Youngstown, Ohio, where Coach Ray Dempsey once worked, Kevin Gleason, 5-10 and 170, from Wilmette, Ill.; Charles Gordon, 6-1 and 167 from Lane Tech High School in Chicago, and Leonard Gregory, 6-2 and 190 from Memphis, Tenn.

"The players we got are going places, and we have more to go," said Den-see, who nonetheless admitted some discouragement that the Salukis had not picked up more preps.

In other years we've had more kids signed at this time," said Dempsey.
