Senator says U.S. 'prepared'

Percy hopeful for arms talks

By Phillip Fiorini
Staff Writer

MARION - U.S. Sen. Charles Percy said he is confident the United States will be able to re-open arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union no matter who succeeds Soviet President Yuri Andropov.

"I think President Reagan will be willing to meet with the new leader whenever they're prepared to talk," Percy said Friday at a press conference Friday in the Holiday Inn. "We've never been more prepared to talk."

Percy, a Republican seeking his fourth term, said the United States "had been prepared" before the Soviets suspended the talks last fall in Geneva, Switzerland.

The Soviets left the negotiating table after the United States refused to halt deployment of cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Europe.

Percy, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations

Charles Percy

Committee, said he believes it will be to in "the best interests of mankind" for the Soviets to renew negotiations.

"We have now proposed dramatically deep cuts and are in the process of going down to zero. That's our objective," he said.

But Percy said that since Reagan became president, it's been difficult for the two countries to agree on anything. The only agreement the United States has made with the Soviets in three years is the five-year grain pact, which the senator said has helped Illinois farmers.

After Reagan was elected in 1980, Percy said he gave his "trusted assurance" to the Soviets that, if the president signed an arms limitation agreement with them, he could guarantee ratification by two-thirds of the Senate.

"That assurance they've never had before," he said, adding "We can have that again" with the successor to the 69-year-old Andropov, who died last Thursday after a long illness.

Percy said Andropov's poor health during the last four months may have hampered arms talks between the two countries.

"There wasn't anyone to make a decision — that we swap our missiles for bombers," said Percy. "And no one wanted to stick his neck out."

The process to replace Andropov won't be "long and protracted," Percy said.

"Whoever they select, we feel we will be able to establish relations," he said.

Questioned on the redeployment of U.S. Marines in Beirut, Percy said the process will be done "as quickly as possible."

"I think we can get out faster if we could rotate troops from the other countries," he said of those countries involved in the peacekeeping mission in Lebanon.

Percy said the process has been accelerated, "particularly since our Marines have been assured that by the end of this month, at least 500 Marines will be removed from Beirut."

Percy said the offshore shelling of West Beirut from the U.S.S. New Jersey has been focused on "batteries that had been shelling our Marines." He said the offshore firing has not been done "indiscriminantly but with precision."

Claiming Illinois is an "internationally minded state," Percy said he hasn't been publicly ducking the issues with his opponent for the Republican nomination, U.S. Rep. Tom Corcoran of Ottawa.

Cororan has asked the senator to debate in all 22 congressional districts in the state, but Percy said "there's not any requirement for me to take him around by the hand and introduce him to people."

The two will have debated four times before the March 20 primary.

Lebanese, Shiite forces continue sporadic fighting

By Jeffrey Ullrich
Of the Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — About a third of the Lebanese army's combat force either has refused to fight or has been neutralized and its ability to take effective action is uncertain, Western and Lebanese military sources said Sunday.

Sporadic fighting continued between the army and Shiite Moslem militias Sunday, and traffic slowed to a trickle on the sole crossing between Christian-controlled East Beirut and mostly Moslem West Beirut.

Although the situation remained static along the old "Green Line" dividing the city's two sectors there were persistent reports that large numbers of Palestinian fighters were infiltrating the Lebanese capital, sparking fears that another battle could be in the offing. Those reports, although from several sources, could not be independently verified.

The Lebanese army was driven from west Beirut last week by fighters loyal to Nabih Berri, leader of the Amal movement.

Of the 37,000 men in the army, about 21,000 are combat troops. Roughly 7,000 of those either have refused to fight in West Beirut or are blocked by the Syrians and unable to move in such areas as Lebanon's eastern Bekaa Valley, the sources said.

Many of the soldiers in the army's 6th Brigade, trapped in west Beirut, answered Berri's appeal to lay down their arms.

Actual defections of army troops to the Shiite militias are believed to be few. Some Shiite soldiers reached an agreement with the Amal forces in West Beirut and have stopped fighting and others have families there and have dropped out, at least temporarily, sources said.

Even Lebanese military sources acknowledge the army's position is not good and Western military experts don't think the government's troops can do much more than hold on where they are.

Many sources blame the Syrians for stirring up the latest round of fighting and the devastating round of shelling of both east and west Beirut and as far north as Byblos, about 25 miles up the coast.

"The Syrians have done their job very well," said one source who, like the others, spoke on condition they not be identified. "They had a good scenario and played it out in the southern suburbs."

Communist Party to choose new leader

By Andrew Reenthal
Of the Associated Press

MOSCOW (AP) — The Communist Party Central Committee is expected to convene a plenum Monday that could name a new party chief to succeed Yuri Andropov, whose body lay in state Sunday near the Kremlin as Soviets lined up for miles in 10-degree weather to pay respects.

There was no announcement by Sunday night who the new general secretary would be. Attention focused on Konstantin Chernenko, 72, the Politburo member with the most visible role during the period of mourning, as well as some of the younger members of the ruling body.

These included Grigori Romanov, 61, head of the party disciplinary body, and Mikhail Gorbachev, 32, a technocrat whose power is said to have increased significantly under Andropov.

Soviet TV did not say when the plenum would sit.

Andropov is to be buried on Tuesday, with dozens of foreign leaders attending, and, as in the past, it seemed unlikely the party would delay proclaiming a new leader until after the funeral.

There were unconfirmed reports among Western correspondents in the Soviet capital that the plenum would be convened Monday morning in time for the expected afternoon arrival of most foreign dignitaries.

Japan's Kyodo News Service quoted the Soviet Ambassador to Japan, Vladimir Pavlov, as saying the meeting would be Monday.

Andropov, who had severe kidney disease and diabetes, died Thursday at 69, and his death was announced Friday. Mourners by the thousands lined up to pay their respects at Andropov's casket for a second day in the red- and black-draped Soviet House of Unions.

Tens of thousands of citizens were expected to view the body, in an open coffin atop a bier of flowers and medals, by Tuesday's funeral insanity presented by defense attorney Harvey Welch of Champaign.

Snowden was charged and convicted of four counts of rape, two counts of deviate sexual assault and one count of home invasion resulting from an April 29, 1983, incident when Snowden entered a Giant City Road apartment and raped two women.

Circuit Judge Richard Richman declared Snowden guilty, but mentally ill — a verdict which judges Snowden guilty of the charges brought against him but also in need of psychiatric treatment. Richman revoked Snowden's $600,000 bond and ordered a presentencing investigation to be conducted by the Jackson County Probation Department before sentencing Snowden April 4.

Richman said that prior to the change in the law January 1, the state had the burden of proving the defendant "sane beyond a reasonable doubt."

The revision in the law has shifted some of the burden to the defense which must now prove the accused is insane.

Both lawyers who participated in the Snowden trial have sharply different opinions of the revised law.

Clemons believes the change now makes the law "prosecution," which makes his job easier.

"I think anything the General Assembly can do to make it easier for the prosecution, I am for," he said.

Insanity law controversial, may make prosecution easier

By Dave Saelens
Staff Writer

As commonly defined, insanity is a "disorder of the mind to such a degree as to be unable to function safely and competently in ordinary human relations."

The plea of not guilty of a crime by reason of insanity, a controversial defense strategy, has been receiving much notoriety. In Illinois, the insanity law was recently modified — a move which has some lawyers calling the law unconstitutional, and others calling it a blessing.

The revised statute was used this month for the first time in Jackson County in the rape trial of Carbondale resident Arron Snowden. In that trial, State's Attorney John Clemons successfully contested a plea of insanity presented by defense attorney Harvey Welch of Champaign.

Snowden was charged and convicted of four counts of rape, two counts of deviate sexual assault and one count of home invasion resulting from an April 29, 1983, incident when Snowden entered a Giant City Road apartment and raped two women.

Circuit Judge Richard Richman declared Snowden guilty, but mentally ill — a verdict which judges Snowden guilty of the charges brought against him but also in need of psychiatric treatment. support from within the policy-setting Central Committee, a body of more than 300 which ratifies any new party leader. Such meetings are never announced, and its choice will not be named until afterward.

Chernenko, the chief party ideologist, is head of Andropov's funeral commission, a post that in the past has gone to the man who succeeded a deceased party leader. Chernenko was first in the line of Politburo members who filed past Andropov's funeral bier Saturday and offered their condolences to his family.

Professors agree improved U.S.-Soviet relations unlikely

By Phillip Fiorini Staff Writer

Two SIUC political science professors agree that a thaw in U.S.-Soviet relations is unlikely as the Kremlin awaits a successor to Yuri Andropov, because President Reagan "doesn't want good relations."

Ikuo Chou, a Soviet government expert, said he foresees no policy changes in either country's government until after the November election when the United States knows who its next president will be.

"The Reagan administration doesn't want good relations with the Soviet Union," Chou said Friday. "It wants to continue the arms race and continue to spend more money on nuclear weapons."

Manfred Landecker, an American foreign policy expert, said Andropov's successor won't change the Soviet Union's foreign or domestic policies, but "might present some unique possibilities to go into some serious negotiations."

"I don't see an olive branch reaching out between the two countries or attempted arms negotiations in the near future."

said Landecker, an associate professor.

Any thaw between the two countries is unlikely since the two superpowers remain committed to policies that produced the current chill, Chou added.

"The Russians will not negotiate with Reagan in 1984," Chou said. "It's an election year and it would be useless for them to go through the motions."

"The Reagan administration essentially condemned detente. It's for a hostile relationship," he said.

Chou said though, that if Reagan is re-elected, the new Soviet leader will have to negotiate "earnestly."

Landecker said he envisions no change because of the Soviet Union's collective leadership the past few months — while Andropov was ill — and their view of the Reagan administration.

"The Russians really don't like the Reagan administration. They view him as being hawkish," said Landecker.

The Soviets will continue operating from a "superiority" ideology, which they call "strength," he said.

Because of its collective leadership form of rule, Chou said Andropov's death won't cause a shift in Soviet ties with Western Europe and Third World countries, either.

The Soviets will continue to improve economic ties with Western European countries "to alleviate political opposition," he said. And, they will also continue to support "revolutionary elements," in whatever countries need their help, he said.

Landecker said he hopes the Reagan administration doesn't make the same mistake it did 15 months ago when Leonid Brezhnev died and Andropov became leader of the Kremlin.

"At the time Brezhnev died, we had a chance to lower the rhetoric, but the Reagan administration didn't do that," he said. "I thought that was unfortunate."

The successor to 69-year-old Andropov, Chou said, probably will be younger man in good health who can help create a more stable leadership.

Polls say Jackson is doing well

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson is putting up a strong fight for votes in New Hampshire, as polls say he has a good chance to make a strong finish in the Granite State's first-in-the-nation primary.

The black Democratic presidential candidate is pouring much of his campaign's limited resources into the state. And, in the two weeks before the voting Feb. 28, Jackson will spend at least nine days in New Hampshire. He already has opened five state campaign offices.

By comparison, Jackson is not scheduled to be back in Iowa this week during the closing days before that state's first-in-the-nation Democratic caucuses Feb. 20.

Withdrawal, shelling a 'compromise'

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan's decision to remove U.S. troops from Beirut but to escalate shelling from Navy ships was a compromise to accommodate the vastly differing views of Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, a White House official says.

"The policy is a balance between the two views, but also a balance that everybody agrees to — that is, you continue to support a U.S. diplomatic position in the Middle East, at the same time according more protection to the Marines," said the official, insisting on anonymity.

Radioactive table leg called the last

CHICAGO (AP) — Following the discovery of a highly radioactive table base in a Chicago hotel, Illinois nuclear officials said Sunday they were "pretty confident" no more of the contaminated pedestals will be found in areas open to the public.

The Illinois Department of Nuclear Safety ordered a shipment of 38 table bases removed from the unidentified hotel Saturday after inspectors found one of the pedestals emitting radiation of 200 millirems per hour, the equivalent of 10 chest X-rays.

The others averaged readings of about 2 millirems per hour, but that was still significantly more than what nuclear authorities consider safe, said DNC spokesman John T. Elmer.

Politburo is virtually nonexistent, such outward signs are taken seriously in the Soviet Union.

Andropov was funeral commission chairman for predecessor Leonid Brezhnev. He led the Politburo in viewing Brezhnev's body about an hour before his appointment as general secretary was announced on Nov. 12, 1982.

Chernenko wields significant power in the Politburo and is believed to have sought Brezhnev's job before it was awarded to Andropov. But there were factors — including his advanced age and the rise of others within the Politburo — which left Western observers uncertain about whether Chernenko has indeed taken the top party post.

Some believed the Politburo might appoint a younger man who might hold power longer. Andropov died after 15 months in office.

Western analysts said that if Chernenko does not become general secretary, his appearance in the leading public role during the period of mourning could be explained by protocol. As party ideologist, Chernenko formally is the No. 2 man on the Politburo after the general secretary, and therefore would be a logical choice to head the funeral proceedings.

Scores of world leaders plan to attend the funeral. Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe arrived Sunday, a day before the scheduled arrival of Vice President George Bush and most other dignitaries.

Donow won't endorse new alcoholic beverages marketing guidelines

By Anne Flaszta
Staff Writer

The newly written guidelines for marketing alcoholic beverages on campus and the proposed Illinois Board of Higher Education Freshman Admission Standards are major items slated for discussion at the Faculty Senate meeting Tuesday.

John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs and research, is expected to address the Senate at 1 p.m. in the Mississippi Room in the Student Center. Guyon is expected to report on the Academic Affairs reorganization approved by the SIU Board of Trustees last Thursday.

Herbert Donow, Faculty Senate president, said Sunday that the alcohol marketing policy being reviewed by various campus groups does not resemble the senate's previous recommendation enough to warrant his endorsement.

Donow said the senate had recommended that the University abstain from virtually all alcohol marketing practices.

"Essentially we don't think the University ought to be participating in that sort of thing, especially when you consider the harmful nature of some products," he said.

Donow said there may be extensive discussion on IBHE recommendations on public college and university admission requirements. The recommendations are viewed by many as "too stringent and quite impractical," he said.

Last fall, Gov. James Thompson vetoed legislation related to requirements for the high school diploma. The legislation as amended establishes additional diploma prerequisites as follows: three years of language arts, two years of mathematics (one of which may be related to computer technology), one year of science, two years of social science, and one year of either art, music, foreign language or vocational education.

The Undergraduate Education Policy Committee will review the IBHE recommendations, but Donow said he does not expect action on the matter at Tuesday's meeting.

Guyon is expected to address the senate on a plan approved last week to restructure General Academic Programs. One part of the plan calls for the elimination of three positions in the academic affairs office — dean of continuing education, dean of General Academic Programs and director of International Education.

Mondale: opponents' barbs are expected in 'trash period'

By Cliff Haas
Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A week before Iowans begin picking delegates to the Democratic National Convention, front-runner Walter F. Mondale is nonchalant about barbs from his rivals for the party's presidential nomination.

"This is the trash period. We're getting close to these elections and people are saying things," Mondale said, exhibiting a boys-will-be-boys attitude toward the other seven major contenders.

During a 2½-hour debate here Saturday, Mondale's rivals repeatedly swiped at him directly and indirectly, charging that big labor was trying to steamroll him to victory over the other candidates, that he was promising too much to too many, and that he was not candid about past positions on various issues.

Despite the attacks, Mondale was upbeat and later told about 700 union members at an AFL-CIO rally, "I'm proud of your support and no one is going to put me on a guilt trip because of it."

Meanwhile, Sen. John Glenn, No. 2 in the polls, grumbled to reporters, "I'm getting tired of this misleading of the public" by Mondale.

Although Mondale is the acknowledged front-runner going into the Feb. 20 party caucuses here — the first test of strength among Democratic rank-and-file — his support remains somewhat shallow.

Public opinion surveys say up to one-half of the Democratic voters in Iowa are undecided about who should be the party's nominee to face President Reagan in November.

And it was former Sen. George McGovern — not Mondale — who won the loudest and most sustained applause from the nearly 2,500 people who viewed the debate staged by the Des Moines Register.

"Let's assume ... somebody else has this nomination locked up," he said. "We'll just say for purposes of discussion it's Fritz (Mondale) ..."

"If you really believe that I'm the closest to your views on the issues before this country, you owe me that vote for this reason: it's the only way you're going to be able to send a message to whoever you think is the nominee of the direction in which you want that man to go."

been in the past.

Welch, however, believes that the change is unfair to defendants. He requested in Snowden's trial that the law be declared unconstitutional as applied to the facts of that case.

He said burdens placed on the defendant are unfair because the state has more resources for gathering evidence.

Richman said he had a difficulty dealing with the revised law. He said the law probably makes it easier to reach a verdict in an insanity-plea case, "but just because it's easier that doesn't make it better."

Bracy Building negotiations to begin

The Capital Development Board will begin negotiating the purchase of the Bracy Building in Marion for use as a library storage facility within days, SIU Vice Chancellor James Brown said Thursday.

Brown told the Architecture and Design Committee at its meeting prior to the SIU Board of Trustees meeting that the CDB had received a third appraisal on the property and would pursue the next step — negotiation to purchase.

Brown did not specify a time frame for the negotiations.

Time to end controls on electronic media

IN A TIME when the call to get the government off people's backs is popular, two more regulations have begun to draw criticism.

The Senate Commerce Committee recently considered a measure that would do away with "the fairness doctrine" and "equal time" rule, two regulations that have outlived their purpose.

The fairness doctrine requires radio and television stations to air both sides of controversial questions, and the equal time rule require they offer air time to political candidates opposing any candidate whose opinions were broadcast outside a regular news program.

Both of these controls on broadcast journalism are based on the assumption that since there are only a limited number of broadcast frequencies, some control is needed to insure minority viewpoints a fair chance to be heard.

But the facts about broadcast media, and some research, show a different outcome.

A 1983 SURVEY found that about 25 percent of television news directors and 12 percent of radio news directors found the rules a problem in their day-to-day operations. While the percentages are small, they do not take into consideration the effects the rules have on story selection. Some broadcasters may tend to shy away from controversial stories to avoid invoking the regulations. Rather than guarantee a forum for minority opinions, the rules may insure that no opinions get aired.

And the notion that a limited number of frequencies makes broadcast journalism a special case is a fallacy. Newspapers may publish any view they wish, without any control other than the editors' sense of responsibility and the controls of the marketplace. Yet daily newspapers are outnumbered by nearly 6 to 1 by commercial radio and television stations. Without regulation, minority viewpoints would probably have a better chance of finding a home on the air than in print, especially with the growing number of cable television networks.

The United States has always trusted in the marketplace to guarantee that the best ideas will come to the forefront — changes in the way those ideas are delivered does not mean that tinkering is required with that marketplace, or that its newest entrants are any less likely to act responsibly.

A trust in the ethics of news editors and the ability of people to find the best ideas will, in the end, work far better than either of these unnecessary rules.

Ron's running; so is he

I'm moving to Australia. Or maybe New Zealand. Perhaps Canada would be nice. Well, any of those places would definitely prove to be a much better country than this one — if Ronald Reagan is re-elected. Putting down America isn't something I normally do. No, I'm not a "commie pinko red," or I would move to Russia. Actually, I love the values that this country used to stand for. It's just that recently those values have become degraded, stepped on, and some have been totally wiped out. Some of our beliefs were lost during the social upheaval of the 1960s. But most of those needed to go anyway.

I'm talking about the mores such as justice, honesty, peace and goodwill toward your fellow men (or women). In one year, those values were lost in the public eye. The year was 1972. Watergate. The man we referred to as our commander-in-chief was caught in the act of espionage against members of a rival party. There were other similar incidents at the time. Spiro Agnew, Nixon's vice president, was linked to criminal acts in Maryland, where he was previously governor. He responded to the charges by resigning.

Following the lead of the Washington Post, several other newspapers began exposing political scandals. Soon it got to the point where the public couldn't trust their own elected representatives. This was no great news to anyone from Chicago, where political scams are a way of life, but the rest of the nation was quite shocked.

That brings us to Ronald Reagan. Steve Martin described him as the man "who could make this country what it once was — a vast frozen wasteland." To some people that's funny, to others it's scary. It is one thing to pocket a little spending money from your campaign contributions, but quite another to start a nuclear war.

Since Reagan has deemed it necessary to increase the military budget by billions, the poor are left out. Since Reagan thinks that it is not wise to tax his rich corporate friends, the poor are taxed. Since Reagan thinks it is a fine thing to destroy our environment for minerals, our wildlife will die. Since Reagan thinks that we have better things to spend our money on than educating college students, our nation may not ever have the brains to recover from all that Reagan "thinks is right."

There is one great American virtue that hasn't fallen yet. Our freedom. It is, however next to go. Vote against Reagan.

Elvis and Hefner top the list of who's who in American life

IF SOMEONE asked you to name the two most influential persons of the last 30 years, the names of politicians, lawmakers and scientists would probably leap into your mind immediately.

But the names that would jump from my mouth would be Elvis Presley and Hugh Hefner.

The notion that these two men played crucial roles in shaping today's society is not a new one. It has been brought forth before, but is casually disregarded as too far-fetched to be believable.

The significance that the King and Hef had on our lives cannot be denied. Politicians and lawmakers have made some pretty heavy decisions through the years, but they never shaped our social culture the way Elvis and Hugh did. I've got a friend who has 50 Presley albums. Now that's influential.

IN THE 1950s, Presley brought the black man's blues to the white masses. Rock 'n' roll was born, and instantly became popular. With the birth of rock 'n' roll came a new culture, one more willing to explore new avenues of thought and accept new values.

I'm not saying Elvis was as good as, say, Buddy Holly or Carl Perkins, but he was the one who had the energy and persona to allow rock to burst onto the scene when it did.

The King's musical start became the catalyst for other musical acts (the Beatles, for example) that followed. Everyone says music is only a reflection of society and doesn't shape it, but it sure can help. Thus came the '60s and the underground movements. From the '60s came the more liberal values that many of us embrace today. Not just lofty values about war or religion, but more common values concerned with how we live our everyday lives.

TODAY WE ARE more willing to accept, or at least respect, other people's viewpoints, are more willing to experiment with drugs and are more willing to question and defy authority openly than we were 30 years ago, despite the Reagan administration's attempts to bring back the good old days.

Elvis, knowingly or not, had a great influence on these changes.

Then there was Hefner and Playboy magazine. The magazine today is a far cry from most of its smuttier competition, but Playboy was the father of them all.

The magazine brought sex into the open in the '50s, gradually making it a more normal part of life, instead of a mystery. People have a way of thinking something is "OK" if it is successful. Playboy was a success; sex was a success. Therefore, sex was "OK." Playboy magazine had a great influence on the changing of morals that began in the '60s and continues today.

I'LL GO A STEP further and say that both of these men probably had a lot to do with the growth of the feminist movement in this country and to asserting oneself in general. Elvis' and Hef's "do your own thing" concept of life indirectly influenced women to claim their rights.

The feminist movement exists in part because of the kind of exploitation of women seen in Playboy, and because of the macho image of men proliferated by Presley's tough-guy role and gyrating hips.

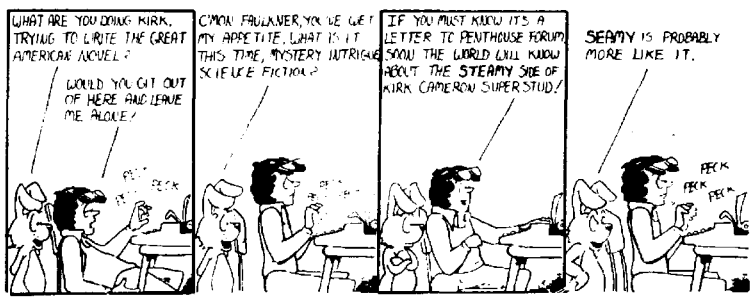

Admitting that these two men were very influential does not condone what they did. And from their means came ends they probably never envisioned. But they weren't afraid to do what they felt was right. Elvis electrified the human spirit with the raw energy of rock 'n' roll. Hugh displayed the naked female body, and in a very commercial way.

THE WAY MEN and women treat each other is directly related to Hefner and Presley. The way a legislator votes in Congress (with the people of his home district in mind) is directly related to Hefner and Presley. Our patterns of thought, and therefore our values and attitudes, are directly related to Hefner and Presley.

Like it or not, that's the way it is. It's best if you say it quickly.

World leaders plan to attend D-Day invasion commemoration

By Paul Treuthardt
Of the Associated Press

OMAHA BEACH, France (AP) — The immaculately tended cemeteries along the D-Day beaches stand winter-ly now, a silent testimony to the savage days 40 years ago when allied forces began the final push against Adolf Hitler's Nazi Germany.

The shores, site of the greatest military invasion in history, are sullen and deserted. Storms buffet the concrete breakwaters of the artificial Mulberry Harbor, still partly sheltering the beach at Arromanches. Past the craters and shattered blockhouses, rain beats against the rough-cut granite monument to the American Rangers who scaled the vertiginous Pointe du Hoc to protect Omaha and Utah Beaches from German heavy guns.

At Ouistreham and Courseulles, shuttered vacation apartments face the broad beaches where the British and Canadians, and a small French commando detachment, fought their way ashore.

But inland, in cafes and farmhouses, in museums, hotels, city halls and ministries, planning is under way for exceptional ceremonies to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the June 6 landings by Allied forces — D-Day.

President Reagan has already announced he will join President Francois Mitterrand of France in the June 6 ceremonies. Officials say plans also are being made for Mitterrand to formally invite Queen Elizabeth II or another member of the British Royal family, and Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau of Canada.

Kings Baudouin of Belgium and Olav V of Norway and Queen Beatrix of the Netherlands also are expected to be invited.

The thousands of Allied soldiers who fell breaching Hitler's Atlantic Wall, and in the grim fighting in the hedgerows of Normandy, will be remembered many times, in many ways, this year as every year since the end of World War II, but especially this year.

The D-day period will start with ceremonies across the Channel in Portsmouth, England, the heart of the coastline from which the great armada set out.

French officials are expecting tens of thousands of visitors, many of them veterans making what may be a final visit.

All hotel rooms in the area are booked for the period around June 6 and local officials are appealing for householders to offer private rooms.

They are urging veterans groups and travel agents to consider coming "any time between April and October — but not the first week of June."

In her empty cafe-museum at Pegasus Bridge over the canal from the sea to Caen, 82-year-old Georges Gondree vividly recalls every moment of the night 40 years ago when gliders crash-landed within yards of her cafe. British paratroops swarmed out and captured the vital bridge.

"Machine guns were firing all around. I grabbed my daughter, then 3, and with my husband we sheltered in the cellar. Later, when it was light, there was a wounded British soldier lying at the door and we brought him inside for treatment."

Throughout the year, British veterans drop in at the cafe and the Pegasus Bridge Parachute Regiment memorial next door, built on land donated by Mrs. Gondree.

Michel de Valavielle, mayor of St. Marie du Mont, the nearest village to Utah Beach, points to stained tiles on his study floor.

"The farmhouse was used by a German artillery battery, and two of the men were wounded in this room. We've never been able to wash the bloodstains away."

De Valavielle was seriously wounded by mistake by American troops and was "the first Frenchman treated on Utah Beach."

The Invasion Committee, headed since World War II by former French Veterans Minister Raymond Triboulet, will coordinate hundreds of events over the commemorative period.

But there will be special ceremonies at two of the sites of particularly notable feats of arms.

Allied commanders believed the Germans had heavy guns atop the Pointe du Hoc, posing a serious threat to U.S. invasion beaches below. At daybreak on June 6, 225 men of the 2nd U.S. Ranger Battalion under Col. James E. Rudder, using ropes hanging from grapnels fired to the cliff top by rocket, and London Fire Brigade ladders, scaled the sheer cliff under heavy fire.

They fought their way some 800 yards inland and held the cliff top against savage counterattacks before being relieved late that night. They lost 135 men. The German guns had never been installed.

At the other end of the D-Day zone, the German battery that was there at Melville posed the same kind of threat to the British and Canadian beaches.

It was captured in what British historian David Howarth called "the unhesitating fury of their hand-to-hand fighting" by 150 British paratroopers, all of a force of 750 that Col. Terence O'way could find after the confused night drop.

Man considered legally dead dies after 4 days on life-support

Libertyville (AP) — A 20-year-old man who had been considered legally dead for an entire day before his cough led doctors to try to revive him has died after four days on a life-support system.

Alan Supergan, of the Chicago suburb of Glenview, died of heart failure in Cor:ell Memorial Hospital at about 6 a.m. Saturday without regaining consciousness, officials there said.

Supergan, an assistant groundskeeper at the Allendale School for Boys in Lake Villa, had suffered massive brain injuries in a Feb. 2 traffic accident. He was declared legally dead last Monday after showing no response to pain and exhibiting no brain activity.

Supergan was being readied for organ-removal surgery Tuesday when a slight cough startled medical personnel. A finding of slight brain activity led doctors to try to revive him. But his physician, Dr. Meneleo Avila, said there were no signs of upper brain activity after that.

His family had agreed last Monday to donate Supergan's heart, liver and kidneys for transplant after they were told his condition was hopeless.

A specialist at the University of Tennessee Hospital, where Supergan's liver had been destined to go for transplant into a waiting recipient, said the organs were no longer usable because they had deteriorated while the young man was on life support.

"Most of our donors still have some function in the brain stem," said Dr. James Williams, a surgeon at the Tennessee hospital. "If the brain stem is completely wiped out, the cardiovascular system is also wiped out."

HEALTH CARE CAREERS IN RESPIRATORY THERAPY

Respiratory therapy is an allied health specialty involved in the diagnostic evaluation and treatment of patients with cardiopulmonary deficiencies and abnormalities. This patient populous spans the newborn nursery, surgical and medical wards, emergency room, outpatient department, and intensive care unit of any hospital.

Working under the supervision of a physician the respiratory therapist performs therapies which include ventilatory support, bronchopulmonary rehabilitation, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, maintenance of natural and artificial airways, and the use of medical gases and administrative apparatuses, environmental control systems, humidification, aerosols, and medications.

Production costs raise rose prices

The high demand for roses on Valentine's Day always pushes the price of a blushing dozen up, but some area florists say this year the tab will be slightly higher than usual.

A dozen in a box, costing between $40 and $50 this Valentine's Day, is more expensive than last year because the producers faced colder weather and higher heating bills during the 70-day growing period, according to Linda Ward, floral designer at Irene Florist in Carbondale.

Ward reported the price for a box of 12 at Irene's is $45.

According to Sonia Riggs, designer at Village Florist in Murphysboro, roses usually cost $35 a dozen on Valentine's Day. This year Village Florist is charging $42.50.

However, Jerry Brooks, manager of Jerry's Flower Shop, Carbondale, said his roses are no more expensive than usual this Valentine's Day. Though the growers are claiming the colder weather has raised their costs this year, floral shops are simply taking less of a mark-up in an attempt to keep the flowers affordable. His roses cost $45 a dozen, wrapped.

Manager of Carbondale's Wisely Florist Carol Griffith, also said her selling price for a dozen roses, $42, is no higher than on most Valentine's Days.

Most of the flowers sold in Southern Illinois are shipped either in-state or from California, Colorado or South America.

Single roses are going for approximately $3.50 to $4.

Synagogue on wheels urges return to faith

CHICAGO (AP) — Rolling through the streets of Chicago, a converted delivery truck called the Mitzvah Tank is an unorthodox synagogue on wheels with a mission of attracting Jews who no longer practice their faith.

"It seems we're in a war," said Rabbi Daniel Moscovitz, director of the Chicago chapter of Lubavitch-Chabad, a small but energetic Hasidic sect that seeks to reach out to other Jews to encourage greater religious devotion. "The Mitzvah Tank" is a tank against assimilation, a tank against apathy. We've won a lot of battles with that tank," he said.

Wearing traditional long beards and coats, the young Jews who accompany the tank on its rounds stand aloofside it and try to strike up conversations about Judaism.

Later, they may go inside to pray.

"The goal, in a simple sense, is to expose the Jewish people to the beauty of their religion and promote and enhance a return to Jewish belief and practice," said Rabbi Yosef Schanowitz, leader of a Lubavitch-Chabad congregation in suburban Highland Park which has about 50 Chicago-area members.

Lubavitch-Chabad was founded as a sect in the early 1700s and remained centered for much of its history in the Russian town of Lubavitch. Since 1940, it has been headquartered in Brooklyn, N.Y., where its leader, Rabbi Joseph Schneerson, had immigrated.

Besides operating the Mitzvah Tank, Lubavitchers run a summer Jay camp and a Hebrew day school and visit hospital patients and prison inmates. They also conduct informal classes on Jewish practices and traditions throughout the city and suburbs and in a Chabad House near the Evanston campus of Northwestern University. A Dial-A-Jewish-Story telephone line and special displays and events for Jewish holidays further spread the message.

"We believe a Jew is a Jew, and we have a common obligation to grow as Jews," Schanowitz said. "We accept Jews even if they're not religious."

Lubavitchers themselves are highly orthodox in following Jewish laws and traditions. But, Moscovitz said, "We understand that people may not be ready to embrace all of the Torah at one time, but if one does a little at a time it's easier to become interested in the traditions of old."

Feeling and playing the blues, Stevie Ray Vaughan entertained at Shryock Saturday night.

Vaughan mixes talent, stunts, rocks Shryock mob Saturday

By Joe Walter
Staff Writer

Admiring Stevie Ray Vaughan's musical expertise is one thing, but to genuinely appreciate his performance is to notice how he gets into playing his guitar.

In Shryock Auditorium Saturday night, Vaughan seemed at one with his guitar. His face, body and hands flowing with the harmonic stream of notes or rush of power chords from the instrument. The audience that nearly filled the auditorium were at times at one with Vaughan and his band Double Trouble.

The Texas bluesman not only made his one guitar at times sound like two, he combined impressive playing with guitar stunts such as playing the ax behind his back and with his teeth.

Vaughan combined classics such as Jimi Hendrix's "Voodoo Chile," instrumental versions of "Third Stone from the Sun" and "Little Wing" with cuts from his album, "Texas Flood."

Vaughan's tunes demonstrated both a powerful verve, in "Mary had a Little Lamb" and "Pride and Joy" and gently mellifluous playing, in "Texas Flood."

Backstage, Vaughan talked in a soft, Texan drawl about his music and his recent winning of three Guitar Player magazine reader's poll awards for best new talent, best guitar album and best electric blues guitarist. "It's quite an honor."

Concert Review

Vaughan said of the awards. "That magazine is bought by guitarists."

Many rock critics have compared Vaughan to the late Jimi Hendrix, but Vaughan said he's not "the new Hendrix."

"No," Vaughan said, "there is not a new Hendrix. There's only one Jimi Hendrix. But, I am glad to say that I have fun trying to play a lot of the things that he brought off."

"I mean what he was doing with his music was taking everybody that he ever listened to and taking it further, as much as he could, keeping it going anyway," he said. "Now that he's gone, we who can play his music should keep on trying. There's no reason not to."

In addition to Hendrix, Vaughan named Koko Taylor, Lonnie Mack and Albert Collins as having influenced his musical career.

Although Vaughan has played guitar for years without the recognition he presently enjoys, he said that his and his band's success is due to help from the likes of Jackson Browne, The Rolling Stones, and David Bowie, with whom Vaughan played on Bowie's hit album "Let's Dance."

Vaughan said he refused to tour with Bowie because of promises that were not kept. "I like people to tell the truth," Vaughan said, "and if I can't do what I want to in the first place with the people that I want to play with... as was offered, then I'll go play with... the people that I care about playing with, which is this band."

And Vaughan is apparently doing very well without Bowie. He said that he and his band will release a new album in April, "Couldn't Stand the Weather." Vaughan said his brother, Jimmy, who is a guitarist with a Texas rhythm and blues band The Fabulous Thunderbirds appears in the album.

The Rockamatics, the band that opened Saturday night's concert, also deserve enthusiastic notice.

The band performed great boogie woogie R & B and was psyched from the first song of their set to the last.

The Rockamatics' keyboardist performed a tirade on the keys in a style reminiscent of Jerry Lee Lewis, while guitarist and vocalist Mike Jordan charged up and down the aisles playing his guitar with furious energy.

The Rockamatics provided an interesting contrast to Vaughan and Double Trouble. They were dance oriented while Vaughan is listening oriented.

SIU-C seminar on slavery to draw 15 selected teachers

Fifteen high school teachers from across the United States will be attending a six-week seminar at SIU-C next summer titled "Slavery and Antislavery in America."

Funded by a $52,138 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the seminar is scheduled to run from June 25 to August 3, and is designed to give "an intellectual boost" to a selected group of superior high school teachers, said SIU-C history professor Betty Fladeland, director of the seminars.

Fladeland is a recognized authority on the history of slavery and antislavery in the United States and Great Britain.

An offshoot of NEH's programs for university-level academicians, the new summer seminars are part of a nationwide effort to upgrade the quality of high school teaching.

"One way to do that is to help establish a rapport between high school teachers and college and university teachers," Fladeland said. "We'll be choosing outstanding teachers who express an interest in getting together to share their thoughts and learn something about slavery and the anti-slavery movement."

More blacks in med schools, but critics call numbers too low

By Chris Geschel
Of the Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD — (AP) Blacks are slowly increasing their numbers in Illinois medical schools, but some critics say the state still has a long way to go in recruiting minority students.

"The state has failed in its mission to get better black representation in medical schools," said Dr. Andrew Thomas, medical director of Operation PUSH in Chicago.

Illinois medical schools are close to the national average of 6.8 percent first-year black students. But the percentage of would-be black doctors remains less than half the proportion of blacks in the state, which is about 14.5 percent.

The state's eight public and private medical schools recorded average first-year black student enrollments of 6.7 percent for this school year, according to a recent report by the state Board of Higher Education.

The board's figures showed the percentage of blacks in public medical schools was much higher than in private ones — 14.4 percent compared to 2.6 percent.

Even though the percentage of black medical students is up from 4 percent of the total class in 1970, the still-low numbers remain a critical problem, according to black doctors.

Thomas says he wants the acting director of PUSH to organize an Illinois Legislative advisory committee to study the problem and recommend solutions.

Dr. David Satcher, president of the Association of Minority Health Professions Schools in Tennessee, said one of the major impediments to black medical education is a lack of financial aid.

He also argues that medical school admissions tests "don't accurately reflect qualified students."

But medical school officials have their own ideas about why there are so few blacks in their institutions. They blame poor training in public elementary and high schools.

"All Chicago public schools are inferior. On average, we lose 21 minorities a year; last year we matriculated one black," says Daniel Burr, director of admissions for Loyola University of Chicago's Stritch School of Medicine.

In Loyola's freshman class of 131, only one student is black. Dr. Richard Moy, dean of Southern Illinois University Medical School, says the problem goes all the way back to kindergarten.

"Most blacks are coming from Chicago and it's a shock for these A-average kids to realize they need remedial help to stay in college," Moy said.

He said the federal government uses tax dollars successfully to increase the nation's supply of doctors, but is "not being creative in helping to recruit black students."

SIU's freshman class is 19 percent black, the highest rate in the country for a predominantly white medical school, according to the Association of American Medical Schools in Washington.

The state in recent years has made efforts to draw more blacks into medical schools. One program, called the Chicago Area Health and Medical Careers Program, is designed to guide minorities from high school to acceptance into medical schools. Started in 1979, the program has helped 64 blacks through the five-year cycle.

A similar program called MEDPREP is in place at SIU, and seeks minority college students who are qualified to study medicine, but who may be "academically deficient" in terms of grades or test scores, Moy said.

Turboprop flights may begin soon

Air Illinois hope to resume service Wednesday of its turboprop fleet, according to a spokeswoman for the company. The airline had targeted Monday as the start-up date for its Twin Otters.

Alice Mitchell, company vice president for marketing, said Sunday that the Federal Aviation Administration suggested that the carrier choose Wednesday for putting its 19-passenger planes back in the air.

She did not cite a reason for the two-day delay. FAA approval of Air Illinois' nine Otters is expected to come by Wednesday.

No change in Soviet relations expected by ex-ambassador

By Chris Ogbondah
Staff Writer

Yuri Andropov's death will have no significant change in the foreign policy with the Soviet Union because the Soviet government is a collective system, and not run by one man, said former Sierra Leone Ambassador to the Soviet Union Andrew Conteh.

In a keynote address Friday in the Student Center marking the 19th Model United Nations at SIU-C, Conteh said that U.S.-Soviet relations are a barometer of international relations.

Conteh said U.S.-Soviet relations are of great political, economic and military importance in the world. Both countries, he said, have a fundamental interest to avoid war.

Conteh said there can be no winner in a nuclear war, and therefore called for better relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"The prevention of nuclear war," he noted, "remains the biggest challenge of our time."

Conteh, a former Sierra Leone Deputy High Commissioner in the United Kingdom, said "nuclear disarmament should no longer be regarded as a moral issue. It should be regarded as an issue of human survival."

He identified five issues in U.S.-Soviet relations — the preservation of international peace, reduction of arms and world disarmament, pacific solution to international disputes, the observance of international treaties and fulfillment of international obligations and imposition of East-West confrontation on regional conflicts.

Although Third World countries want East-West negotiations to succeed because most wars take place in Third World countries, their views are often ignored in East-West negotiations, he said.

"Frustration at disarmament must not lead to pessimism," he said. "Rather, it is at such times that efforts should be redoubled to reduce confrontation."

Orbiter returns in best shape yet

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger came back to Earth after its historic Florida-to-Florida trip as the cleanest shuttle yet, and should be back in orbit in a record 53 days for a satellite rescue mission, NASA officials said Sunday.

"The orbiter is very clean, in better shape than any of the others," Ken Coffey, shuttle mechanical systems officer, told reporters Sunday — a day after Challenger returned to be the first shuttle to land at its launch site.

The only problems, he said, were a failed brake, 31 damaged thermal tiles, two hazy windows and tires scraped where they hit the concrete runway.

'Intellectual property' council to discuss professors' rights

Los Angeles — (AP) A professor of computer sciences was working all day on a knotty problem. He goes home, frustrated, and at the dinner table the answer suddenly hits him. He's elated; he's found his solution.

But is it his? Or does it belong to his university?

Millions of dollars are riding on questions like this, and the issue of "intellectual property" has led to skirmishing between universities and faculty.

As rapid changes in technology offer a shower of riches to those who can stay one step ahead, some universities and researchers are taking a close look at updating long-standing rules on their professors' involvement in businesses.

The nine-campus University of California hopes to have a new Council of Intellectual Property — composed of faculty and administrators — operating within the next few months.

The council, which replaces the University's Board of Patents, will try to sort out such issues as when a professor's time is his own and when it is the University's.

at SIU-C. "He said he would prefer to play the offensive line," Dorr said. "We're looking at him to start as a sophomore."
Tailback Bobby Smith, recruited heavily by Wisconsin, can play "all but five positions," Dorr said.
"We were able to land players who are versatile enough to play many positions," Dorr said.
SIU-C began recruiting seven weeks late because of the Salukis' march toward the NCAA I-AA national championship. Dorr said that the late start "made us band together."

"We had a system. We knew the direction that we were headed for," Dorr said. "If a youngster did not want to come to SIU-C, we did not change directions. We did not panic and change our plan to go after someone that we did not originally recruit."
Two players whom Dorr wanted to sign but could not were Carbondale's Mike Altekruze and University City's (Mo.) Mike Baker. Altekruze, a wide receiver, will attend Eastern Illinois while Baker, a quarterback, will attend Minnesota.

Ten Illinois prep players are among the 22 players that SIU-C has signed.
"I feel an obligation to the state of Illinois and athletes in Illinois to try to recruit them," Dorr said. "I feel it is extremely important."
Although Dorr said he is "very satisfied" with his first recruits, he said the key will be in four years to see how they turn out.
"They're here now," Dorr said. "We'll see if they can dance."

with about six minutes remaining.
"I wish he would have got sick another day," said Cleveland Bibbens, who played the entire game along with forward Chris George.
Bibbens was SIU-C's top rebounder with 11, seven of which were on the offensive boards. He added 10 points, all in the first half.
George drove to the basket often, earning 15 points on seven of nine shooting and handed out six assists. His ally-oop slam dunk from Bufford midway

"We felt like we had to," Van Winkle said, "with the type of shooters they have."
Richardson said he thought the Salukis would use a zone.
"We worked on it yesterday, but I'm glad they played a man because it made us execute our offense," he said.
The Salukis switched to a zone twice but Tulsa scored both times.
SIU-C led for the first seven minutes, and briefly regained the lead with 6:34 left in the first half when Bernard Campbell stole a pass and went half the length of the court for an uncontested dunk.

But Harris countered 20 seconds later by popping in a 12 footer from the lane, putting Tulsa ahead to stay.
Despite the loss, the Salukis maintained a half-game lead in fourth place since the three other teams contending for that spot — Creighton, Bradley and Indiana State — each lost MVC games Saturday.
"I want to make sure our kids get some credit," Van Winkle said. "They played a fine basketball team. They were in it all the way but just got beat by a good team."

MVC standings

Illinois State	9-1	17-4
Tulsa	9-2	20-2
Wichita State	8-3	14-7
SIU-C	6-6	14-9
Bradley	5-6	13-9
Creighton	5-6	12-10
Indiana State	4-7	12-10
W. Texas State	2-9	8-13
Drake	1-9	5-16

through the second half electrified the crowd.
Tulsa shot a blistering 63 percent in the first 20 minutes while building a 40-35 halftime lead.
"We figured they'd cool down in the second half," Bibbens said. "We didn't think they could go all the way shooting that percentage, but they just about did."
SIU-C used a man-to-man defense for virtually the entire game.

Gymnasts end streak with win over Cyclones

By George Pappas
Staff Writer

It may have taken 14 years, but the Salukis gymnasts finally did it.

SIU-C ended a 14-year dual meet skid to Iowa State by thrashing the Cyclones 279.34 to 276.20 before 200 fans at the Arena Sunday afternoon. More important than the win over the Cyclones was the team point total the Salukis garnered.

"We're getting closer to that 280 goal," Saluki Coach Bill Meade said. "That's what we're working for and the kids are starting to respond."

"This was a big pressure meet for them being against Iowa State and the conditions surrounding it, but they still came through."

The Salukis, 8-1, also came through on Friday night by winning a triangular meet in Memphis, Tenn. They scored 276.10 points and beat Memphis State, 261.75, and Jacksonville State, 242.30. But this meet was meaningless compared to the one against the Cyclones.

The Salukis won or tied all but one event in their best performance of the season. Lawrence Williamson's 9.65 tied Cyclone Shane Sanders for first place in the floor exercise, the first event. John Levy and Brendan Price also scored well, 9.6 and 9.55. The Salukis were beating Iowa State by 0.25 points after the floor exercise.

Herb Voss saved the day for the Salukis on their weakest event, the pommel horse. Voss nailed a 9.8 after the first four Salukis couldn't score over a 9.0. The Cyclones took advantage of the Saluki mishaps on the pommel horse and took a 0.45 lead.

Cyclone Mark Diab won the rings event, barely edging Saluki Gregg Upperman 9.65 to 9.6. Levy also kept the Salukis within striking distance with his 9.45. After the rings event, the Cyclones were winning 138.95 to 138.45.

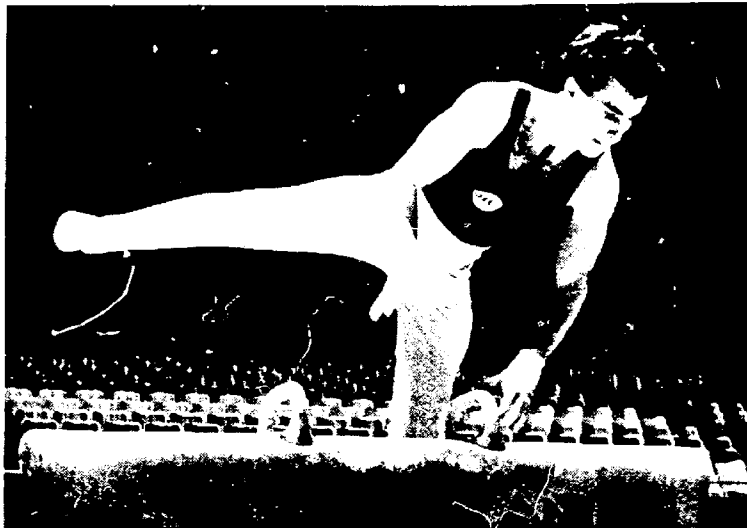

In stepped freshman Mark Ulmer in the vault event. His personal best 9.45 score put the Salukis on top for good. His performance may have been the spark the Salukis needed.

"We were down so I had to get something going," Ulmer said.

Apparently, he did. David Lutterman continued the vault massacre with his 9.2. Levy nailed a 9.35, Williamson nailed a 9.6 and Price won the event with his 9.7 mark. All together, the Salukis scored 47.30 on the vault and had accumulated 185.75 points compared to Iowa State's 184.15.

From there on, it was smooth sailing for the Salukis. Price won the parallel bars with a 9.5. Levy and Kevin Mazeika both nailed 9.3.

Saluki John Levy won all-around honors in SIU-C's three-point win over Iowa State at the Arena Sunday. Levy has won the all-around three times this season.

Salukis were still rolling. Levy won the event with a 9.7 and also won the all-around with a 55.90. Mazeika scored a 9.6, Price a 9.5, Lutterman a 9.45 and Upperman a 9.25 on the bar which gave them a 47.50 bar score.

Lutterman finished fourth in the all-around with a 54.70. He was beaten by Cyclones' Brett Finch (55.55) and Mark Bowers (55.45). For Levy, it was the third time this season he won the all-around competition. Lutterman has won it twice.

The Salukis' 279-plus points were the most they've scored all year. They also haven't lost a meet since Ohio State beat them on Jan. 14. The Salukis' average is now up to 275.83, putting them ahead of Iowa State's 275.62 average. The Salukis should be ranked fifth in the nation when the NCAA Gymnastics Coaches Poll comes out this week.

The Salukis' next meet will be at the Arena Feb. 18. They will host Memphis State and Western Michigan.

Women netters blanked in season-opening match

Shut out and shut down.

That was the condition of the women's tennis squad Friday at Edwardsville. Playing against SIU-E, the Cougars beat the Salukis 9-0.

"Overall, it was not the best way to start (the season)," Saluki Coach Judy Auld said.

The Salukis, 0-1 (11-6 with the team's fall record), did not win a set. Alessandra Molinari came the closest, losing at No. 1 singles to Elizabeth Calander 1-5, 4-6.

"The girls were pretty discouraged," Auld said. "It was kind of a shock to them."

Auld tried to arrange a match or Saturday against Principia, a Division III college, but she said it never came off. Although Principia could have fielded a team, it would not have been at full strength because its No. 2 and No. 3 players would have been missing from the lineup.

Auld did not know Thursday who she would play at which singles positions. The top three singles players, though, began the spring season at the same position that they ended at in the fall season.

At No. 2 singles, Monica Bridle beat Heidi Eastman 6-1, 6-2. Jan Petras knocked off Mary Pat Kramer at No. 3 singles 6-3, 6-3.

Maureen Harney, who compiled a 15-4 mark in the fall at No. 6 singles, moved up to play at No. 4 singles. Laurie Foederer beat Harney 6-2, 6-2. Lisa Schuito beat Stacy Sherman, who stayed at No. 5 singles, 6-2, 6-2. At No. 6 singles, Paity Tiddy beat Kathy Harney, a freshman walk-on in the fall, 6-2, 6-3.

In doubles action, the Cougars continued the romp. Bridle and Calendar teamed at No. 1 doubles to beat Molinari and Eastman, 6-3, 6-0. At No. 2 doubles, Foederer-Tiddy beat Sherman-Maureen Harney 6-0, 6-0. At No. 3 doubles, Petras-Schuito beat Kramer-Allen 6-1, 6-3.

After the match was over, Auld said that SIU-E's coach came up to her and asked her about the Salukis' amount of practice time, with the lack of court time apparent.

"We haven't had a lot of practice as a team," Auld said. "Our practices haven't been that intense."

The Salukis' next match is at the Eastern Kentucky Invitational Feb. 23-25. The invitational will feature individual play only, with no team scores kept.

Auld said she is hoping the two-week layoff will allow the Salukis to "get our act together."

"We have only one practice per week as a team," Auld said. Auld said she saw the team's play improve in the second set, although "it wasn't to the point where we were winning the close games."

"It's hard to start a season like this," Auld said.

Hale of North Carolina just before the final buzzer bounded off the rim.

Arkansas, 19-4, led by four points at the half, and by as many as eight in the second half.

Character comeback falls short

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

Although the SIU-C's men's basketball squad lost by 10 points to No. 12-ranked Tulsa Saturday, the Salukis appeared to have acquired character.

After beginning the season with six junior imports vying for starting roles, having the squad's most experience player declared academically ineligible and losing three of their last four Missouri Valley Conference games, the Salukis could have folded early against Tulsa. Saturday, and let the Hurricane walk all over them.

But they didn't.

Tulsa has stomped on its opponents throughout the season while rolling to a 20-2 mark. An average victory for the Golden Hurricane is by more than 17 points. Tulsa has beaten six teams this season by at least 24 points, including a whopping 46-point win over Long Island University.

In a ballgame that SIU-C trailed most of the time by six to eight points, the Salukis narrowed the deficit to four points twice after trailing by 10. With 4:07 left, SIU-C came to within three points after trailing again by 10.

Tulsa, though, finally pulled away from the Salukis in the game's final minutes. The Golden Hurricane made 11 of 12 free throws in the final 3:12 to seal the win and preserve its national ranking.

"This team (SIU-C) does have good character," Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle said. "Against that quality of a team and its reputation, it could've been very easy for us to fall behind by a lot and quit."

Saluki guard Nate Bufford said that the Salukis showed "a lot of character."

"We didn't let them beat us by 20 points," Bufford said. "We thought we could hang tough with Tulsa."

Bufford said the Salukis made "mistakes at crucial times" that hurt.

Tulsa Coach Nolan Richardson said because SIU-C tried to dribble against his squad's press, it "put us in good position for some steals." Tulsa scored several breakout layups off steals, while SIU-C missed at least three layups.

Saluki center Kenny Perry, weakened by the flu, scored on a dunk — after missing one a minute earlier — that cut Tulsa's lead to 70-64 with 4:56 left. Bernard Campbell made two baskets within 25 seconds to make the score 71-68, but that was as close as the Salukis would get.

Harry Hunter, Perry's backup, said that although the Hurricane is a good ballclub, he does not have a lot of respect for them.

"They're too cocky," Hunter said. "It's great to be a winner, but let's have some grace while you're doing it."

"Our coaching staff wants us to be a ballclub with character."

Hartzog's team dominates Domino meet

By David Wilhelm
Staff Writer

The Saluki men's track team showed more than 40 teams Friday and Saturday at the Illinois Domino Pizza Classic at Champaign how good it is.

Although no team scores were kept, SIU-C had a number of solid performances at the meet.

Probably the most impressive performance was from the mile relay team. Elvis Forde, Mike Franks, Tony Adams and Parry Duncan set a new meet record while taking first. The four ran the race in 3:09.92, just under a second slower than their world's best time of 3:08.94 set two weeks ago. The team holds the world's top two times. Illinois finished second, 10 seconds off the pace.

Franks took first in the invitational 440 with 47.05. Not only did that time qualify him for the NCAAAs, but it set a meet record. Teammate Mark Hill finished third in the open 440 with a time of 48.97, a personal best indoors.

The other three mile relays also made impressive showings.

Forde finished first and qualified for the NCAAAs in the invitational 600 with a time of 1:09.56. However, Coach Lew Hartzog said Forde, along with others on the team, was battling bronchitis. Hartzog said it was "of some concern to us. We have to get well."

Duncan won the 300 with a 30.46. That places him second on the all-time Saluki list behind Franks. Duncan took sixth in the 60 high hurdles with a 7.64 SIU-C's John Savre ran a personal best in the 60 high hurdles with a 7.65. Savre finished first in the long jump.

Adams took first in the developmental 300 with 31.61.

Three Saluki shot putters recorded personal-best throws in the 35-pound weight class. John Smith finished fourth with a toss of 57-0.25. Tom Smith finished fifth with 55-1.25 and Karl Schneider recorded a 48-7.25, but he did not place.

Edison Wedderburn finished fourth in the two-mile run, recording the fastest time at SIU-C in 15 years. Wedderburn ran a 8:49.72.

Savre continued his consistent performances in the pole vault. He finished first with a vault of 16-6. Teammate Andy Geiger finished fourth while vaulting 16-0.25.

Saluki Stephen Wray finished second in the high jump with a 6-10.75.

Hartzog said one of the Saluki objectives at the meet was to qualify individuals for the NCAAAs. While two qualified, there were a number of personal bests and SIU-C was able to further condition themselves for the two-week layoff from competition they now face.

"We had a good meet," Hartzog said. He said that the mile relay team's time was "awfully good on that track. Each one tried to run incredibly fast."

Woman shot putter in spotlight as track squad finishes fifth

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The Ohio State women's track team won the Eastern Invitational Saturday, but it was SIU-C shot putter Rhonda McCausland who shined in the spotlight.

McCausland took first place in the shot put with a throw of 49-8, bettering the qualifying standard for the NCAA indoor championships by 11 inches. It was also the third consecutive week McCausland has shattered her school indoor record in the shot put.

"Rhonda won the competition with her first throw of 48-2," Coach Don DeNoon said. "Rhonda got stronger as time went on. She is throwing with a tremendous amount of confidence and to her ability, and all her effort and hard work is paying off."

DeNoon said a 50-foot throw is within McCausland's reach.

Behind record-breaking performances by McCausland and sprinter Denise Blackman, SIU-C finished fifth in the eight-team invitational. The Salukis recorded 19 personal bests.

Ohio State claimed the championship with seven first-place finishes in 15 events and scored 154 points. Following the Buckeyes were Western Illinois 80, Murray State 67, Eastern Illinois 60, SIU-C 55, Southwest Missouri State 21, Bradley 9, and Illinois-Chicago 0.

If Sharon Leidy had been able to compete in the pentathlon, DeNoon said that the Salukis could have finished in fourth place. Leidy had her tonsils removed over Christmas break and has only two weeks of practice under her belt.

Blackman set two school indoor records in the 60- and 300-yard dash. Blackman edged Ohio State's Michelle Thompson 6.88 to 6.92 to win the 60-yard dash and came within 0.08 seconds of qualifying for the NCAAAs. She shattered her old indoor school record of 7.10, set at the Indiana Quadrangular on Jan. 28.

Thompson gained revenge on Blackman, nipping her in the 300-yard dash, 35.74 to 35.90.

"Denise didn't take off as quick as she should have," DeNoon said. "Thompson had a lead, Denise kicked and tried to catch her but came up a little bit short."

"Denise was basically the class of the meet. She needs to work on her start because she gets out of the blocks late but with her hamstring injury (which occurred at the Indiana Quad) that isn't surprising."

Kathryn Doelling set the school indoor record in the 880-yard run with a 2:23.93 time to finish sixth. Ohio State's Donithy Jones finished first with a timing of 2:12.53.

"I thought Kathryn ran real well," DeNoon said. "The best time from our conference was Western's Kathleen Magnifici with a 2:19 and (Doelling) being a walk-on, she is not far from those scholarship athletes."

In the 440-yard dash, Debra

Davis finished third with a 58.98 time and Sally Zack finished sixth in the two-mile run at 11:15.21. Sydney Edwards finished fourth in the long jump at 17-1. De'jon said Edwards won the event if she didn't foul on two of her jumps.

In the two-mile relay, the quartet of Sandra Burchette, Odette James, Bonnie Hielmick and Doelling finished third with 10:13.81.

Men cagers dropped by Tulsa's guard duo

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

Ricky Ross and Steve Harris, who have wreaked havoc on Missouri Valley Conference basketball teams all year, formed a two-man wrecking crew for Tulsa Saturday as the 12th-ranked Hurricane ripped through the Saluki men 86-76. A season-high crowd of 6,375 at the Arena looked on as Harris and Ross heaved in 25 and 24 points, respectively.

The win kept Tulsa, 20-2 overall and 9-2 in the MVC, within one-half game of league-leading Illinois State, but it did not budge the Salukis from their perch in fourth place.

"It's no secret you have to stop Ross and Harris," SIU-C Coach Allen Van Winkle said. "We tried, but didn't — like most people."

When the Hurricane's high profile backcourt tandem wasn't scoring from the outside or from inside the lane, center Bruce Vanley was busy collecting hoops inside.

Vanley, 6-10 and 240 pounds, tossed in 21 points and ripped down 11 rebounds. Vanley, Harris and Ross shot a combined 67.5 percent and accounted for 70 of Tulsa's 86 points. As a team, the Hurricane shot 60 percent.

The Salukis, 14-9 and 6-6 in the MVC, climbed back from 10-point deficits to within four on two occasions in the second half, and trailed 71-68 with 4:07 left. But that was close as they could get before Tulsa pulled away in the closing minutes.

"We played what I call an excellent game," Tulsa Coach Nolan Richardson said. "Southern gave it everything they had but they were tired. They made the big run but that was as far as they could go. I think if the game had gone another five minutes we would have won by 15."

"Sixty percent from the floor," Van Winkle said, "is a figure that is hard to overcome. They gave us very few chances to catch up because of their field goal percentage. We'd make a tiny bit of a run and they'd stick two more in the hole."

Nate Bufford, who led SIU-C in scoring for the second straight game by netting 24 points, said, "We played good but they played great.

The Salukis got just 20 minutes of floor time from their season-leading scorer, Kenny Perry, who was slowed by the flu. His backup, Harry Hunter, played 20 minutes with a touch of the flu, also.

Van Winkle said Perry spent Friday at the Student Health Service receiving fluids intravenously.

"We weren't sure if he would play," Van Winkle said, "but he said he wanted to give it a try."

Perry managed to score 13 points and five rebounds, but appeared to be a half step slower than usual, especially toward the end. He missed an easy layup after hauling in a long pass that would have pulled the Salukis to within two

Dorr 'excited' about recruits; still 'actively' after one more

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

Saluki football Coach Ray Dorr said he was "pretty excited" about how his recruiting campaign has gone so far.

"We really are excited about it," said Dorr, who flew into Carbondale Thursday night and left for Seattle, Wash., Saturday to see his family for the first time since he was hired as the Saluki coach Jan. 6.

Dorr said his recruiting campaign concentrated on 38 players, of which the Salukis signed 22 to national letters of intent. SIU-C is still trying to sign Pete Jansons, an offensive lineman from Chicago's Lane Tech High School.

Jansons was visiting the SIU-C campus last weekend. Dorr said that Jansons, 6-7, 280 pounds, had told him that he would not visit another university until he had visited the SIU-C campus.

"He's a really good football player in my opinion," Dorr said.

Jansons is the last player that SIU-C is "actively" recruiting Dorr said.

The Salukis brought only 38 players to the SIU-C campus because "we tried to eliminate the players on a sight-seeing trip," Dorr said.

Unlike former Saluki Coach Rey Dempsey, who recruited many junior college players, including cornerback Donnell Daniel and wide receiver James Stevenson, Dorr said he did not bring a junior college player to visit SIU-C.

"I feel if you bring in a junior college player, he should be able to start or be able to beat out a starter on your team," Dorr said. "We felt there were none available in the junior college ranks that could help us."

Dorr declined to say who he regarded as the best recruit that SIU-C signed, but mentioned quarterback Kevin Brown, wide receiver Bobby Sloan, linebacker Eric Hursey, tailback Byron Mitchell and offensive lineman J.P. Watters as "impact football players."

Brown recorded the second-best Indiana prep season (behind former Purdue standout Mark Hermann) last year. Brown completed 170 of 301 passes for 2,479 yards and 22 touchdowns in 10 games at Northwestern High School at Gravestown.

Mitchell rushed for 1,388 yards, averaged 6.4 yards per carry and scored 22 touchdowns for Bishop DuBourg High School at St. Louis.

Dorr said that he was looking for players who can play more than one position.

Watters, originally recruited as a tight end, played both tight end and defensive tackle in high school. Dorr said that Watters was given the choice of playing tight end or on the offensive line

Drake dumps women; win streak ends at 11

By Dan Devlin
Staff Writer

The SIU-C women's basketball team returned empty handed from an encounter with Drake.

The Salukis missed Connie Price, who was in foul trouble, they missed the offensive contributions of Petra Jackson and they missed a lot of shots.

SIU-C shot just 32 percent and lost 77-53 to a Drake team that had its back to the wall. With the win, the Bulldogs kept themselves in the hunt for the Gateway Conference title.

Drake closed to within one game of the front-running Salukis, as did Illinois State, which beat Indiana State 67-51 Saturday night. The Bulldogs and Redbirds have a showdown Saturday night.

The Salukis are through with Drake, having split the season series, and they finish the season by entertaining Illinois State. SIU-C is 16-4 overall, and 10-1 in the league. The loss snapped a school-record 11-game winning streak.

Drake and Illinois State are 9-

2 in conference play. If two teams tie for the championship, there will be a playoff, with the home team decided by a coin flip.

"It's a tight race now," said Saluki Coach Cindy Scott, whose team could have broken the race wide open with a win. The Salukis may have been feeling that pressure.

"I think we were a little too intense," Scott said. "You could really tell in the warmups. We were really keyed and pressing."

It showed in the Saluki shooting. SIU-C made only 23 of 73 shots and seven of 12 from the free-throw line.

Forward Petra Jackson was especially cold. Jackson, who had missed playing time last week with the flu, made only one of 16 shots.

"I don't know if she's not in the groove yet after being sick," Scott said. "She feels fine, she just doesn't have her shot back."

SIU-C missed Connie Price on the offensive end too. Price was plagued with foul trouble, played only about 18 minutes and took only five shots.

The SIU-C center also had trouble containing Drake power forward Wanda Ford, who combined with center Lorri Baumann to score almost as many points as the entire Saluki team.

Ford scored 26 points and had 18 rebounds, many on the offensive end, and Baumann added 24 points and 11 rebounds.

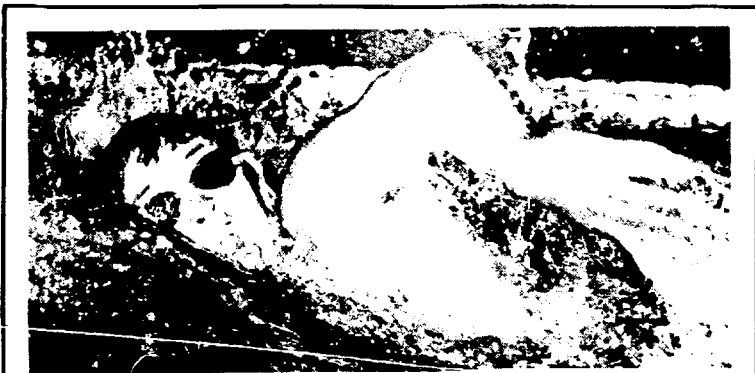

"Ford was the key for them," Scott said. "She played very strong."

Char Warring and D.D. Plal led the Salukis with 16 points each.

"D.D. played very well," Scott said. "Char had a good night. She did a real good job on Baumann."

Warring eventually fouled out with four minutes left, three minutes after Price had been disqualified. Drake made the most of SIU-C fouls, sinking 27 of 32 free throws.

It was a case of deja vu for the Salukis, who had won 11 in a row last year only to have the streak stopped by Drake.

Gary Brinkman was one of three Salukis to qualify for the NCAA championship during the Saluki Invitational last weekend. Brinkman qualified in the 1,650 free as the Salukis with the meet, held at the Recreation Center pool, with 301 points. The Saluki women won the Gateway Conference championship, also held at the Recreation Center pool, by winning 19 of 20 events. Fourteen Salukis made the all-conference squad as SIU-C scored 809 points.
