Women race by Murray State

21-point performance by Scott leads to win

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

The SIUC women's basketball team toppled Murray State in non-conference action 85-79 Wednesday.

The win put the Salukis overall record at 15-5. The Salukis beat Murray State in Kentucky earlier this season. SIUC has won 9 of its last 10 games with MSU.

The Racers dropped to 10-12 on the season. Forward guard April Scott, who scored 21 points, said the team needed to get a quick start against Murray State and the team did just that.

In the first half, senior guard Karnie Redeker led 7-2 Saluki run with a 3-point basket. The Racers came back and tied the game 4-4. SIUC took a 2-point lead with 7-25 to play, but SIUC balled back with an 11-5 run in the final five minutes of play and were up 40-31 at halftime.

Murray State coach Kelly Breazeale said her team played very intensity early in the game. “Our team was on an emotional high because we lost one of our top scorers (Angie Waldon), earlier this week,” Breazeale said. “Because it was a non-conference game, a lot of our younger saw a lot of playing time. In the final four minutes, they hit some big shots for us.”

In the second half the Salukis came out powerfully. They went on a 11-0 run. With six minutes to play they led by 22 points. The Racers were able to narrow the margin to 16 with some 3-point shots, but it was not enough to complete the comeback.

After losing to Northern Iowa and a close call against the Cougars, coach Cindy Scott said the Salukis needed the non-conference game to take off the pressure.

“IT was a good victory for us,” Scott said. “It was the intensity of the second half but kind of let up in the last two and a half minutes. Anita Scott played extremely well. The team is so good on itself. They are mature, but because they don’t think they played as well as they could have.

Both the Salukis and the Racers were averaging 75 points before the game and had four players averaging in double figures.

Junior center Kelly Firth had 18 points and 15 rebounds for SIUC. Freshman forward Rockey Ransom had 12 points and 13 rebounds, and Redeker had 10 points. Scott chipped in five assists.

Ferdoniel Garner led 15 points and 10 rebounds for MSU. Julie Parker also had a double-double as she had 12. Alison Gillmore had 11 and Melissa Sheehan had 10.

Saluki divers’ diversity gives strength to team

By Cyndi Ollerbe
Sports Writer

Two kinds of divers exist—strength and finesse. The SIUC diving team has both, diving coach Dave Andrey said.

Junior Greg Testa, who qualified for the NCAA in the Feb. 1 meet against Kansas, is a finesse diver, Andrey said. “Greg is more artistic,” said Andrey, “and he exemplifies the finesse side of the sport. He is tall and thin and he uses his build instead of his muscles.”

Testa qualified for the NCAA Zone competition with a score of 509.70 on the three-meter board.

Senior Michelle Albrecht also qualified for the NCAA on the three-meter board with a score of 444.75.

Andrey said Albrecht combines both strength and finesse to execute her dives.

“Her is not always typical of women divers,” Andrey said. “Michelle is tall, 5-8, and big, so she can do power dives. But because she is tall, she has long legs and dives pretty. She has a nice dive line and a beautiful entry into the water. “You cannot coach that either. You are born with it.”

Also in the Kansas meet, sophomore Rob Stracanano set pool and SIUC records on both the one and three-meter boards. Stracanano already qualified for the NCAA earlier in the season.

Head swimming coach Doug Ingram said the strength of the divers has brought added depth and success to his team.

“Our diving program is as good as it has been in the Midwest,” he said. “With our strength, we have every aspect of the sport covered.”

Andrey said Stracanano is a strength diver, but uses power instead of the form Testa uses. “Greg is a pretty diver,” Andrey said. “His best dives at the invitational and one-half meter and the two-and one-half tuck. He seems to make diving into an art, and it is fun to watch.”

Testa also qualified for the NCAA Zone competition last season, and he said his goal was to do even better.

Austrian sisters double pleasure

ALBERTVILLE. France (UPI) — The host nation revolved in Olympic glory Wednesday with two medals, an achievement muted a simple family from that Austria won the same number.

Speedskating star American Bonnie Blair enjoyed no such success. She suffered a leden from her emotional triumph of two days earlier and finished a distant 21st in the 1.500-meter race.

On the fifth day of the Olympics, the French were treated to their first gold medal of the Winter Games and only their second since 1968.

The French, who led the cross-country portion of the Nordic combined event to easily beat countryman Sylvain Guillemot and touch off celebrations at all the Olympic venues. Hundreds of French volunteers working for the organizing committee briefly stopped what they were doing to watch on television as Guy cross the finish. The volunteers then listened intently to a rare playing of the French national anthem, "La Marianne," at the Winter Olympics.

France's achievement, however, paled before the exploits of the Austrians, the latest of which came from the sisters Nenner—Doris and Angelika. They pulled off a family double, taking the 18- and 34-kilometer gold and silver in the women's luge. I can't describe the feeling,” Doris said. “It's difficult to describe it. I went into the final run without any pressure because I knew we would end up as medal in the family, whatever happened.”

The sisters' medal haul ran their country's shocking medal count to 10. That equals Austria's total for the 1980 Olympics and is only two less than the nation's Winter Games record of 12.

Rape victim wants to testify at Tyson sentence hearing

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The 18-year-old woman who came to Indianapolis as a beauty pageant contestant and left as a rape victim is home in 20th-century Indiana and plans to come back to make her mark.

"She wants to testify," her attorney Don Hennessy said. "She might surprise some people but it's for her to say."
RUSSIA OFFERS TO DISARM WARHEADS — Russia offered Wednesday to separate its nuclear warheads from the missiles that carry them as part of a strategy to prevent an accidental triggering of a nuclear war. "It is absurd that we have nuclear arsenals when the bell has tolled for the ideologies which made them necessary, and the new Russia is not a potential adversary," Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev said during a disarmament conference.

U.N. REJECTS LIBYAN MOVE TO NEGOTIATE — Secretary of State James A. Baker III said Wednesday a Libyan request to negotiate a U.N. Security Council demand for the extradition of two Libyans accused of blowing up an Pan American Airways Flight 103 in 1988 was "all options" were considered open. Western diplomats at the United Nations also said France would reject another Libyan demand to set up a third party to mediate the case.

OPEC TO CONSIDER PRODUCTION CUTS — Oil ministers of the 13-nation OPEC cartel tried Wednesday to forge an agreement on cutting production to bolster sagging world oil prices despite opposition from Saudi Arabia and Venezuela. Most ministers appeared willing to produce the first days of talks for the need to further reduce production by at least 1 million barrels a day to raise prices for OPEC oil to at least $17.50 a barrel from the current depressed level.

AT LEAST 10 KILLED IN KASHMIR INCIDENTS — Pakistani troops opened fire Wednesday to stop 10,000 protesters from reaching a cease-fire line dividing India and Pakistan in the scenic Kashmir region, killing as many as 15 people and wounding up to 150 others, march organizers said. An Indian official claimed he was not aware of any "killings" among demonstrators marching to the frontier, but called for a resolution of a dispute over Kashmir.

BUSH ANNOUNCES RE-ELECTION BID — President Bush, saying he wants to finish what he started three years ago, formally announced the obvious Wednesday — that he is a candidate for president in the 1992 election. Bush, accompanied by his wife Barbara and his vice president and running mate, Dan Quayle, and his wife, Marilyn, told a partisan crowd, "I want to continue serving as your president four more years and to do this moment on I'm a candidate for president of the United States."

NASA ADMINISTRATOR RESIGNS — NASA Administrator Richard Truly, a former shuttle pilot who helped guide the space agency back into orbit after the Challenger disaster, announced his resignation Wednesday, saying orders from the White House came "like a box out of the blue." Soviet descendant of slave to talk on changes in the East

By Sherri L. Wilcox
General Assignment Writer

Russian journalist Yelena Khanga can trace her roots to a Mississippi plantation. She is the granddaughter of an African-American man who was a runaway slave, and a white, Jewish woman from New York City.

Both grandparents emigrated from the United States to Russia in the 1930s to escape the prejudice of a segregated society. Khanga will present her views on the recent changes in Eastern Europe and their impact on Soviet lives at 7 tonight in the Student Center Auditorium.

The 29-year-old journalist has worked for the Moscow News for the past eight years. She spent time in the United States in the late 1990s seeking financial support for the Russian newspaper, and now is traveling throughout the country as a Warren-Weaver fellow.

Khanga is the daughter of Lily Golden, a Soviet tennis star and Abdalla Khanga, former vice president of Tanzania.

She is writing a book exploring her roots in the United States and in Russia.

She was a guest on the Today Show, Good Morning America and the MacNeil-Lehr Report. Khanga was the first Soviet journalist to work for the Christian Science Monitor.

She was part of an exchange program with that newspaper in 1987.

The presentation is a University Black History Month event.

University Housing proposed hike prompts criticism from residents

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

SIUC student Christopher Mozingo said the University is trying to take blood from a rock.

Mozingo, a sophomore in social work and psychology from Quincy, said a proposed housing room and board increase comes at a bad time.

"I hate to come down on the University because I'm sure they're doing the best they can," Christopher Mozingo said. "But they are hitting us up for more money. While the quality of service is kind of lame.

University Housing official are proposing a 5-percent increase in room and board costs to compensate for the loss of revenue from declining freshmen enrollment.

Residents would pay an additional $72 a semester, pushing the yearly cost of living in residence halls to more than $3,000.

The University is charging students for the money they lack, pushing the quality of education in the background. Mozingo said.

"We're here for an education and everything's going up and up," Mozingo said. "First tuition, now housing—they're trying to take blood from a rock."

The SIU Board of Trustees is expected to vote on the increase in March.

Tia Swartz, is required to live in University-approved housing as a freshman, and a proposed 5-percent increase in room and board has her worried.

Swartz depends on a Monetary Assistance Program grant and a student loan to pay for the school, which costs her parents do not pay. Her financial aid is being reduced because of can.

"My mom had to find two jobs to help pay for my education and I depend on a MAP award and loan for the rest," said Swartz, an undecided freshman from Houston. "I think this increase is ridiculous—everything is.

Bear wrestling: Fun, but what about Ted?

What Joe Sixpack and Friends consider good clean fun can sometimes be seen as needless cruelty by others. Witness the events of last week, when Terrible Ted the wrestling bear made his Southern Illinois debut.

For those who wrestled Terrible Ted Wednesday night in Harrisburg and those who planned to try their luck in Centralia Thursday before Clinton County law officers stopped the show, grappling with 600-pound grizzly from the state of Siberia probably seemed like a grand idea. Doubless Ted’s owner, Andy R. Walker of Georgia, had no qualms about touring the Midwest win the bear and making a fast buck from bar owners and aggressive, insensitive bar patrons out looking for a tussle.

For Ted, who has had his teeth removed, his claws cut away and must wear a metal choke collar and have his body defanged while wrestling, the matches probably weren’t such a joy. Imagine the life of a toothless, declawed predator like Ted: with his natural defenses stripped away, he is totally dependent on合适的, makeshift chains that actually trip him for movement in a fight and probably inhibits his breathing—that is the function of a choke collar. Without claws and teeth, he is outmatched by the hopefuls who come at him for a scuff, one provided — or until he is finally taken down through sheer exhaustion.

The Winner Takes Home His Prize Money.

Walker takes home his cut from the bar owner. Terrible Ted takes home a bruised and tired body and a head full of impotent rage.

Granted, wrestlers were warned not to strike the bear or otherwise injure it; but such actions can be difficult to control in the heat of conflict. It is safe to say Ted probably wasn’t feeling like a million bucks the next day. This is not to suggest that anyone should be allowed to wrestle a bear while wrestling with its natural weapons intact; that would be suicide. The injustice begins when an animal is used for such entertainment purposes at all.

Hopefully Walker Understands That Now.

Charged with animal cruelty, he walked away from police custody after posting a mere $50 bail. His showmanship violated Illinois’ dangerous animals law, which forbids possession of a dangerous predator outside of a properly equipped zoo or circus. His mistake was in trying to bring a piece of the circus to Southern Illinois.

The great circus magnate P.T. Barnum understood the appeal of death-defying feats and dangerous animals on display. There will always be thrill-hungry audiences to throw down cash for such a spectacle.

Sadly, Spectacle Is Not Enough for Some Jaded Fun-Seekers. The real appeal for them lies in being part of the action, in defeating a “dangerous” animal at a hand-to-hand audience of admiring friends.

People Like Walker Are the P.T. Barnums of the rural barroom crowd, exploiting confused animals for their own gain. He, and Terrible Ted’s challengers, should be ashamed. Fortunately Ted should get a well-deserved rest in a public zoo.

Tom Williams claims that state law schools and their funding are unnecessary. We disagree. We do not dispute an educated public could learn the law, but the legal system has become increasingly complex, requiring attorneys with comprehensive legal education. It is unrealistic to expect most people to be able to protect themselves adequately in the time allotted.

Consider: You are a male who has worked for 15 years for X-Corp, national corporation operating in Carbondale and based in Pennsylvania. You were recently passed up for a promotion into management that was awarded to a female. You are told you are not qualified. You have done your best to satisfy a minority quota requirement. Your sex is the reason.

The law requires you to be treated as you would have been if you were a male. The supreme court has said you have been denied equal protection of the law.

You may argue the state has done all it can. But does equal protection mean you are entitled to the same job opportunity as someone else because you are a woman? No. It means you are entitled to the same job opportunity as someone else because you are a woman and a qualified male.

presidents on the different campuses. The chancellor should use or have only the powers that are needed to coordinate campuses, and to represent the interest of the University to the external public, to the legislature, and to the general public," Kasotes said. "In other words, he should be a lobbyist." The chancellor should not get involved in campus policies, which was what the last chancellor seemed to do, so said.

Donald Paige, president of the Faculty Senate, said the proposal is a good one. "If you are going to be a chancellor you have to be a chancellor not a president," he said.

The chancellor is not responsible for the day-to-day activities on the campus and should not act as such, Paige said. "We are moving back to where the president has the autonomy to run the campus and the chancellor oversees the system," he said.

Brown also is proposing to reduce the membership of the committee of constituent leaders that interviews chancellor candidates. The proposal would reduce the number of members from 10 to five.

metropolitan enforcement groups, drug task forces, community policing programs, anti-drug programs in public housing developments, developing historical records, developing alternatives to jail non-violent prisoners and a comprehensive anti-drug program in the East St. Louis area.

"Violent crime and drug use have cut across all segments of our society, and we represent a group out to the well being of our nation," Attorney General Brown said in a press release. "These vital funds pertain to justice for those who are daily waging the war against crime and drugs on Main Street USA."

The amount approved was the exact amount requested by the Illinois Criminal Justice Authority under a program from the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988. The Continuation programs of the Anti-Drug Abuse Act as well as current programs and additional equipment purchases.

The grants will provide additional equipment to groups such as the Southern Illinois Enforcement Group with $5.1 million. The collective enforcement groups will divide the $5.1 million equally, according to Brown, so that the state can tailor its own programs.

Brown wrote that we can update our equipment or add additional personnel it will naturally help us," said SIEG special agent Keven. "I imagine the money will go to our additional personnel, drug testing kits and narcotics purchases. Better equipment will allow us to do a better job."

offices because of the all day construction going on.

The original contract allowed Vaughn Roofing of Marion, SIU, to finish the project.

The money was appropriated by the state General Assembly and administered through the Capital Development Board under the project.

Although the dollar amount only covers the cost of the new roof, the roofing company has a maintenance agreement with SIUC that may cover upkeep and damages caused by repair work.

for financial affairs ...and he does not know who will take the position as vice president for administration.

"Whoever takes that position will have a major undertaking on their hands," Capie said.

The vice president of administration will be in charge of physical and financial operations of the University, he said.

"Luckily, the people in the direction offices and president's office are diligent at their jobs which will facilitate the change by helping it run smoother," he said.

Once Guyon receives the new position, he will be given a search for personnel to fill the two new positions.

The rationale behind making the change in structure of the presidency is to gain a more efficient use of the facilities of SIUC and to reallocate some of the burden of operation of the University from the president to the vice presidents, said SIU Chancellor James Brown.

The proposal is a good idea and will help the University grow by putting an emphasis on the clean operation of the library, he said.

"The board is king bee, and it will be up to them if this reorganization is to happen," Brown said.

The vice president for administration would not handle Information Resources, which currently reports to the vice president of financial affairs.

Under the reorganization, the budget director would handle Information Resources.

The new position of vice president for institutional advancement would include positions of new programs and additional equipment purchases.

Charging the name of the vice president for Institutional Advancement, Brown said the research to vice president for academic affairs and provost is expected to provide a focus to the duties and responsibilities of the vice president of academic affairs.

It is also expected to encourage better coordination between the senior administrative offices.

being cut back and its making it harder to get financial aid."

Brent Brouch, a junior in industrial marketing from Rankin, said dormitory residents are getting less for their money.

University officials are falling short of creating a balance between raising prices and meeting financial needs, he said.

"I'm relying heavily on student loans to pay off the rest of my bursar bill," he said. "They're cutting back on financial aid but increasing tuition and housing rates. Somewhere, there needs to be something to balance the two.

Officials are raising room and board costs while student services are falling behind, Busbee said.

Ed Jones, director of University Housing, said operational costs are being reduced while maintaining the services.

Area service desks have been closed, cafeterias will be consolidated on the campus' east side next year and Saturday breakfasts will be eliminated in an effort to cut costs.

The services still will be available even though students might be inconvenienced by the changes, Jones said.

But some students claim they are not getting their money's worth.

Troy Fritz, a senior in marketing from East Moline, transferred elsewhere after living in Mae Smih in 1987-88. He returned last fall to find the services have diminished, he said. "I think the service levels have gone down considerably," he said. "The dorms are designed for a social atmosphere, but the quality of service is poor. For what we get right now, I think the increase is kind of a joke, actually."

Students are complaining about cold showers, small rooms, the closing of the service desks, poor food quality in the dining halls and malfunctioning laundry facilities.

Brent Bertram likes to live in the residence halls because of the social atmosphere, but the increase is making living in the halls less attractive.

"There is no reason for them to raise the rates," said Bertram a free man in French and foreign language international trade from O'Fallon. "It's probably going to cause a lot of people to move off campus."

Tiffani Wilson, a junior in elementary and special education from Hoopeston, will live in Mae Smith again next year and said the increase is adversely affecting students.

"Two thumbs up—way up.

It's one of the year's best films."

Giant pipe organ continues to echo at SIUC after 21 years

By Kristi Rominger
Entertainment Editor

All it takes is one note. And the sound of the largest instrument in Southern Illinois is overpowering.

The Reuter Pipe Organ at Shryock Auditorium weighs more than six tons and has more than 3,500 pipes. It was purchased for about $95,000 in 1971. Today it is valued at more than $500,000.

University organist Marianne Webb, who helped design the organ in 1971, oversaw its construction and has been teaching on it for 20 years.

Designing this instrument took many years of thought, and she was fortunate to have played on a wide variety or organs to know what was needed at SIUC, Webb said.

The organ is designed to play all the classical organ literature, Webb said. This is the reason for the number of “stops” on the organ console.

Stops are knobs used to change the sounds on one of three keyboards. An organ must be large enough to accommodate enough stops to provide a varying range of notes and sounds.

Mark Westin, technical director at Shryock Auditorium, said the organ takes up about 52 square feet.

“Not all of the pipes are showing,” he said. “There is another room behind what you can see from the front which holds many more.”

In 1990, Webb donated to the University a zamb.Positive, a device which makes the sound of tinkling bells. Before this time, the organ could not produce this sound.

In 1968, an earthquake rocked many of the buildings on campus. Webb said, Shryock Auditorium was one of the buildings on campus heavily damaged from the earthquake.

Former SIUC President Deloye W. Morris made the decision to restore Shryock Auditorium, instead of demolishing it and rebuilding.

Endowment fund keeps future alive for organ recitals

By Kristi Rominger
Entertainment Editor

A Southern Illinois couple does not want the sound of organ music to be silenced by a lack of University funds.

University Organist Marianne Webb and her husband, David N. Bateman, presented an endowment fund of $50,000 to the University last September to ensure future appearances of organ recitists on campus.

The fund—the Marianne Webb and David N. Bateman Distinguished Organ Recital Series—will be used to bring in internationally known artists to give performances with free admission to Southern Illinois residents.

During the late 1960s and 1970s, the University had ample money to do exciting things in all fields, Webb said.

In 1968, an organ festival established at SIUC brought nationally renowned organists to give recitals on campus. On the day following the performance, the organists met and worked with students.

Webb said the SIUC organ festival was the largest and most extensive of its kind in the country.
SIUC students get scholarship for auto studies

Two SIUC students have received the Electronic Data Systems Automotive Studies scholarship to help support their accomplishments and help their career goals.

EDS, a subsidiary of General Motors, recruits automotive technology majors at SIUC to encourage more students into the field.

SIUC junior Jose Milan and sophomore Greg Hunt earned the award. Both students were awarded $750.

The scholarships were given for the first time this year to help increase enrollment in automotive programs and to encourage academic excellence and diversity, said Jim White, coordinator of automotive technology at SIUC.

"It's an example of education and industry working together," White said.

Enrollment is low because many students do not understand the different kinds of employment opportunities in automotive technology, said Christina Motz, recruiter for the program.

Students can use their marketing, consumer relations, sales and technical training skills in the automotive industry.

"While many students may choose to work as a dealership technician, opportunities in corporate environments for General Motors exist as well," she said.

It was the perfect time to think about buying a new organ for the auditorium, Webb said.

She talked to Morris, and he agreed to her proposal. Webb took control of the project. Shryock Auditorium was closed for renovations for about two years.

Everything from the chairs on the floor and in the balcony to the detailed plaster on the stage was restored.

The organ was made by the Reuter Organ Co. in Lawrence, Kan., after a contract was signed for construction by Morris in 1970. It took two years to complete.

Webb was at Shryock night and day when the Reuter Co. was installing the organ in the summer of 1971, she said. Webb has spent her career at SIUC teaching music theory.

She also teaches organ majors and advanced students on the Reuter organ as well as performing on it herself.

All of her advanced students get a chance to learn on this magnificent instrument.

She said her time at SIUC has been a wonderful, challenging, growing experience.

Webb practices the organ about four hours each day — two in the early morning at Shryock, and two hours at night on her organ at home, she said.

"Being a musician is very close to being an athlete in a way," she said.

"You need to practice all the time, or your technical skills are lost."

"And if an organist does not practice correctly, injuries will result, just as an athlete's incorrect moves will result in injury."

Playing in Shryock Auditorium is a sound of its own.

"When performers come to play recitals or concerts, they find the visual and acoustical aspects to be very pleasing."

"There was a time when we considered putting another section of the organ on the opposite side of the balcony," Webb said. "But the distance between the two parts would have caused such a time lapse in playing, then hearing the music. I'm so glad we did not put in the other section."

Webb is an SIUC graduate and has been working at the SIUC since the early 1960s.

"We drew in people from all over the United States," she said.

"From as far east as the Washington, D.C., area, as far west as California, as far north as Michigan and as far south as Atlanta, Ga., people came to see and hear the guest organists," she said. "Those were very exciting years at the University."

This program lasted for 13 years, Webb said, but in 1980, funds were no longer available for organs such as the organ festival.

The endowment, which will fund at least one performance annually, is Webb and Baereman's way of ensuring that fine organ recitals would always be available for the world's greatest organists to perform for the people of Southern Illinois.

Recitals will begin in fall 1992. They will be performed at Shryock Auditorium on the Reuter Pipe Organ, which Webb helped design in 1971.

It can't do laundry or find you a date, but it can help you find more time for both.

The new Apple II Macintosh Classic II computer makes it easier for you to juggle classes, activities, projects, and term papers—and still find time for what makes college life real life.

It's a complete and affordable Macintosh Classic system that's ready to help you get your work finished fast. It's a snap to set up and learn. It's a powerful 8088 microprocessor, which means you can run even the most sophisticated applications with ease. And its internal Apple SuperDrive disk drive reads from and writes to Macintosh and MS-DOS formatted disks—allowing you to exchange information easily with almost any other kind of computer.

Introducing the Macintosh Classic II.

Computer Corner
Campus Computer Center
809 South Illinois Avenue • 457-5744

In addition to its built-in capabilities, the Macintosh Classic II can be equipped with up to 10 megabytes of RAM, so you'll be able to run several applications at once and work with large amounts of data.

If you already own a Macintosh Classic, and want the speed and flexibility of a Macintosh Classic II, ask us about an upgrade—it can be installed in just minutes and it's affordable.

To put more time on your side, consider putting a Macintosh Classic II on your desk. See us for a demonstration today, and while you're in, be sure to ask us for details about the Apple Computer Loan. You'll be time well spent.

SPC's Coffee House to showcase traditional Celtic music by quintet

By William Ragan
Entertainment Writer

Traditional Celtic music group The Dorian Brothers will perform at SPC's Coffee House during the week. The event is sponsored by the Student Council and SPC's Programming Council.

The Dorian Brothers are a quintet that specializes in traditional dance pieces and ballads. Their music comes from Ireland, Scotland, and North America. The group is sponsored by Brian Cowl, a professor in Speech Communication and the host of "The Celtic Connection," a traditional Celtic music program that airs on WSUI-FM Sunday nights at 7.

Other members of the group include Mike Shanahan on guitar and cimba, an elongated mandolin; Barry Bohumien on fiddle; Mickey Foley on guitar and banjo; and vocalist Elaina Floyd-Kenney.

An open mic in the Coffee House will be available from 10 to 10:45 p.m. Participants will be asked to perform something with an international theme. Other students will practice origami, the art of paper folding.

The Coffee House also will feature an art exhibit by international students. Mocha, Java and Hazelnut coffees, coffee chocolates and cookies will be available free of charge.

Checkers, chess and domino games will be available for anyone bored with studying. The SPC Coffee House is entering its third year of existence. Coffee House coordinator Mark Purchin said the event continues to offer an alternative to the bars.

"It's a chance for people to enjoy entertainment in a non-alcoholic atmosphere," Purchin said.

"It's a place for students, faculty and the community to perform whatever they want," he said.

Purchin said SPC is planning to hold the Coffee House outdoors on campus once the weather gets warmer.

He wants to make the event "bigger and better," Purchin said.

The Coffee House is sponsored by SPC and the International Student Council.

This week is International Week in the State of Illinois and in the City of Carbondale. ISC is sponsoring International Festival 1992 this week. The Coffee House is one of the events of the week.
Panel: Funding unfair for public school districts

By Brandi Tippi

Editor’s Note This is the last in a two-part report.

Illinois must take steps to correct the inequalities in education public school districts offer children in the state, education finance experts say.

A panel of education experts met Monday at SIUC to discuss how to assure all children in the state have the same opportunity for education.

"There is a problem," said Owen D. Larche, director for the education department of the Chicago Urban League, "for students who the University has on campus and within one mile of campus."

Coalition of Hogan said.

"I'm not saying that there are no inequalities in the state, but the problem is that's not a reasonable expectation."

"I think the only way this issue can be resolved is by simply reverting to power politics and

Panel members listen to Edward Olds III, superintendent of Mount Morris Unit School District No. 261, as he discusses the funding problems in his school district. The five-member panel discussed fair funding for Illinois schools Monday at SIUC.

The president of the district said these goals could be achieved through a seniority program that would provide cheaper parking to those who park in lots farther from campus classrooms, and that would encourage faculty to buy blue decals for cars to save money on parking fees to three times the amount of red sticker users to discourage students from parking cars to campus.

"Real estate criteria would be modified, allowing only students who live outside a determined radial around campus to park in the red parking decals."

President’s Day not observed as School holiday

The University will be open Feb. 17 for President’s Day. SIUC President John C. Guymon said SIUC would not observe President’s Day as a holiday this year, but the free day will be granted during March.

"The decision was made to extend that vacation period because there is a need," he said.

The university will be open Tuesday March 1.

The vacation day will be open to all students.

"Inconvenience is inevitable in a situation like this," he said. "But we're trying to take a green position in deciding how to best use the resources we have and minimizing the need to pave over a beautiful campus."

"This is the only way that's available," she said. "But students want to park within two minutes of their classes, and that's a major inconvenience."

Herbert Dessau, chairman of the parking advisory subcommittee, said students need to distinguish between need and convenience when deciding to keep the parking lots.

"The problem is the subcommittee is exploring to determine whether students want to park within two minutes of their classes, or if they want it closer to their major."

Hogan said these goals could be achieved through a seniority program that would provide cheaper parking to those who park in lots farther from campus classrooms, and that would encourage faculty to buy blue decals for cars to save money on parking fees to three times the amount of red sticker users to discourage students from parking cars to campus.

"Real estate criteria would be modified, allowing only students who live outside a determined radial around campus to park in the red parking decals."

A seniority program would be established in which graduates and seniors who have priority in receiving a limited number of remaining red stickers.

"Right now we're beginning the process of evaluating what the advantages of pursuing these projects would be in relation to the effort it would take to put them in place," Hogan said.

Among those allegations confirmed by the probe were instances of a prominent Syracuse booster giving players cash tucked inside Christmas cards, players being given discounted or free food and drinks at a local restaurant, and booster functions where students had free board, meals and transportation.

In addition, the investigation uncovered a casual relationship between Coach Jim Boehm and Bob Johnson, an alleged "street agent" from New York City. Several street agents, who act as advisors to inner-city prospects, have been accused of steering players to certain schools in exchange for money or perks.

Boehm and assistant Wayne Morgan acknowledged that they knew Johnson as a fan of Syracuse basketball and had provided him with complimentary tickets upon request. The university says it has since dissolved its athletic program from Johnson.

Shaw said the most significant finding was that there was no systematic intent from within the university to violate NCAA rules.

"The violations we found are unacceptable, but they were isolated incidents," Shaw said. "Our new monitoring systems will ensure future compliance. I have the utmost confidence in the integrity of those who operate the basketball program and our athletics department."

Lou Marcocci, Syracuse's senior vice president who was in charge of the probe, said investigation was only the first step in correcting any irregularities in the Orangemen program.

"My goals, as the University's officer in charge of the investigation, were for the university to conduct an appropriate investigation for reporting to the NCAA, to act promptly in instituting corrective actions in response to findings, and to develop and implement enhancements to the athletics department compliance program."

The Post-Standard, in a two-part series, reported a seven-month investigation revealed players received merchandise, cut-rate use of cars and cash gifts from boosters.

In addition, 10 players said they received hundreds of dollars from prominent boosters, including NBA Hall of Famer Dave Bing, former Syracuse star and current New Jersey Nets player Derrick Coleman and local car dealer Bill Kapp Jr.

for this year is to make it into the final.

"I have more experience," he said. "But I'll need to keep my head straight and not lose it during the competition."

Ardey said Testa has always had the skill to dive well, but over the years he has gained confidence.

"When he came to us three years ago his skill was strong," Ardey said. "Since he has been at SIUC he has increased his performance and his skill level."

Albrecht, who did not qualify for the NCAA zone competitions last season because of a foot injury, qualified in 1990.

Ardey said Albrecht lost 18 months of training and competition with the surgery.

"An injury of that magnitude would be a setback for anyone," he said. "She has progressed well and is on the road to recovery. She needed to come back and competes.

The zone meet will mean a lot to her since she could not qualify last year. Ardey said.

"Michelle's real injury was personal in nature," he said. "She had to overcome pain, discouragement, failure and the fear of diving. It was a personal struggle, but it was one she overcame."

Ardey said Albrecht's biggest asset was the fact that she never quit.

"She continued to fight and struggle," he said, "and she has constantly improved and tried to get better. Qualifying for the NCAAAs says a lot about her strength and determination."

Both Ardey and Testa said the zone competition March 12-14 will be one of the toughest meets yet.

"Every good diver in the region will be there," Ardey said. "There will be 30 divers competing for six spots. Whoever is good that day will go to the finals."

Testa, a cinematography major from Winter Gardens, Fla., said he was not scared of the competition.

"If I keep calm, I have a better chance of realizing my goals," he said.

"Someone else who might have something to say, but presumably not at the sentencing, is Tyson's former wife, actress Robin Givens who divorced the boxer in 1990 to end a turbulent eight-month marriage.

Givens will be contacted as a matter of routine during a pre-sentence investigation, said Steve Williams, chief probation officer for Marion County.

Tyson reported to the probation office Tuesday as required by Indiana law and remained free on $30,000 bond.
