Bomb incidents cause furor

Editor's Note: The actual names of the two students who manufactured the bombs will not be used, because one has returned to SIU and has not violated his probation.

THE NATURE OF the disciplinary action taken last spring against two students who manufactured over two dozen small bombs in a University dormitory room has caused some housing staff members to feel that University discipline has been eroded.

During finals week last spring semester two residents of a Thompson Point dormitory were suspended for manufacturing in their room at least twenty-six homemade bombs. Two of the bombs were apparently exploded on campus, damaging private and University property.

The suspension, ordered by an assistant coordinator of Student Life, was changed to disciplinary probation by Vice President of Student Affairs Bruce R. Swinburne. The students were allowed to move back into their same dormitory room. One chose not to return to the University.

Many housing staff members in Thompson Point have expressed discontent with the less severe disciplinary action taken by Swinburne. They say their jobs are more difficult and frustrating now because of it.

SWINBURNE is expected to meet with several housing staff members Friday, but he said that the bomb manufacturing incident and alleged disciplinary problems in the dorms will not necessarily be discussed.

This motorcycle, owned by a dorm staffer, may have been victim to a homemade bomb.

Thompson Point, 12 worked there during spring semester. Nine of the 12 were asked if they were satisfied with the disciplinary action taken against the two students. All nine said they were not.

Most housing staff members asked that their names not be used, for fear of retaliation by their supervisors.

"Disciplinary procedures are shot," one staff member said. "You don't deal with zicohol or loud stereos because you think, 'Why bother?'"

IN A MEETING WITH the Thompson Point housing staff in September, Swinburne reportedly asked how many of the staff members thought his office didn't adequately support the resident assistants.

According to several staff members,

Gas, fuel oil controls lifted by Reagan order

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Reagan ordered the immediate lifting Wednesday of all federal price and allocation controls on gasoline and fuel oil—a multi-billion-dollar decision that will hit consumers in the pocketbook.

Reagan signed an executive order eliminating the nine-year-old ceilings on U.S. oil production and marketing that were to expire Sept. 30.

The president's action will allow oil companies to raise prices at will. Reagan did not predict how much prices will rise, but some analysts say gasoline pump prices may go up as much as 13 cents.

"Ending price controls is a positive first step toward a balanced energy program—a program free of arbitrary and counterproductive constraints, one designed to promote prudent conservation and vigorous domestic production," he said in a statement.

Reagan said the order "ends the gasoline allocation regulations which the Departments of Energy and Justice cite as important causes of the gas lines and shortages which have plagued American consumers on and off since 1974.

Only 15 percent of the crude oil processed by American refineries—about one-fourth of the crude oil produced in the United States—is still subject to price controls.

Reagan said restrictive price controls "have held U.S. oil production below its potential," and forced the United States to depend on oil-producing nations.

Some industry spokesmen and consumer groups disagree, however, saying U.S. oil production is now pushed to the limit and nearly every innovation program to find more energy is already being pursued.

Reagan said some minor provisions of the current regulatory program will not expire until March 31, providing for orderly termination of petroleum controls.

A fact sheet distributed with Reagan's announcement said immediate decontrol "is not expected to have a major effect on the prices faced by U.S. consumers," although it might speed up the timing.

Energy Secretary James Edwards said, however, a rise in the price of gasoline as a result of decontrol would be a "tradeoff" necessary to keep gas available at the pump.

"The main thing," Edwards said in an interview Wednesday on ABC's "Good Morning America," "is that when you go to that gas pump you are going to have some gas available to you. These lines in the past are going to disappear."

Discipline decision angers dorm staff

roommates Joe Smith and John Jones, not their real names, at Abbott Hall in Thompson Point, according to a University police report. They were both freshmen.

Smith sold the bombs to another Thompson Point resident, who distributed most of them to several other dormitory residents, the police report states.

On April 27, Jones was arrested, along with another SIU-C student and a student from the University of Illinois, for allegedly breaking a window of a 1976 Honda with a bumper jack and stealing a cassette tape from the car, a University Security report said.

All three were charged with burglary, criminal damage to property and possession of an explosive compound, records show.

ACCORDING TO POLICE, several small canisters and two plastic bottles of gunpowder were found in Jones's car.

Eventually, a Jackson County judge fined each $200, placed them under "supervision without judgement of guilt," and ordered that restitution be paid to the car owner.

On May 10, two weeks after that incident, one of the bombs apparently was detonated on the third floor of Felts Hall. Shrapnel was found embedded in a door 20 feet from the explosion, a Felts resident said.

The bomb used that incident was traced back to Smith and Jones's room, and their bomb-making equipment and supplies were confiscated by officials from Student Life.

On May 13, the two students were ordered suspended from school by William Kehoe, who was then assistant coordinator of student life.

New Davies Gym equipment high on state improvement list

By Randy Roguski
Staff Writer

Equipment to furnish Davies Gymnasium after its renovation ranks second on a list of capital improvement priorities for fiscal 1982 which will come before the Illinois Board of Higher Education for consideration Tuesday.

The 64-item list includes ten projects planned by SIU-C, more than any other state university. SIU-C projects total $5,665,600.

The IBHE ranks capital improvement projects according to the order in which it thinks they should receive state funding. Equipment to make facilities functional and emergency projects receive highest priority.

If approved by the board, the priority list will be forwarded to Gov. James R. Thompson as a recommendation for capital improvement appropriations in fiscal 1982 totaling $59.8 million. The IBHE would also recommend $20.1 million for special capital improvement projects in energy conservation and food research.

IBHE Executive Director Richard Wagner said he expects some indication from Thompson Tuesday as to how much money he will allot to higher education in fiscal 1982. Last year Thompson allocated $40 million of the $100 million the IBHE recommended.

Equipment sought for Davies Gymnasium—at a cost of $300,100—includes classroom furnishings, a whirlpool, a sound system for the gym, basketball backboards and other equipment which Women's Athletics Director Charlotte West called "non-expendable."

A $287,500 project to replace electrical cables which run under the campus is ranked sixth on the IBHE list. Replacement of the 21-year-old cables would prevent the type of electrical blackouts which have hampered the University in the past, according to Alan Haake, the supervising architect and engineer at the Physical Plant.

Ranked tenth on the IBHE list is a $141,800 project at the SIU-C School of Medicine in Springfield. The project calls for institution of a small computer system which would control the heating, ventilation and air conditioning systems at the Medical Instructional Facility.

Projects at Northern Illinois University hold the first and third rankings on the priority list. The top priority, a $312,600 project, calls for equipment for a law school which NIU Information Director Don Peterson said will be completed in May.

Accord reached on PCB dump site

By United Press International

State officials Wednesday reached a temporary agreement with the owners of an oil reclamation site near Atkinson, Ill., which will permit the facility to remain in operation despite high concentrations of PCBs in a holding pond.

In Waukegan, meanwhile, federal environmental officials said they might get started this year cleaning up PCB-laden silt in the city's harbor. But they said they can't say yet when the project will be completed or exactly how much it will cost.

The Atkinson agreement, reached in circuit court in Cambridge, calls for sealing off the contaminated pond, continued operation of 2.43 acres licensed to operate as a reclamation site and restriction of the rest of the 45-acre property until it is licensed.

Thomas Immel, a lawyer for Technical Services Corp., which owns the site, said the PCB concentration came from a 1.7 million-gallon consignment of reclaimable oil sent from an Alcoa plant in Bettendorf, Iowa.

Immel said Alcoa told Technical Services the oil contained "trace amounts" of PCBs. EPA tests of the pond, however, showed concentrations of 310 parts per million of the chemical.

The agreement replaces a temporary restraining order against operation of the site.

In Waukegan, John McGuire, Midwest administrator for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Wednesday night explained at a public meeting what his agency plans to do about heavy PCB concentrations in the Waukegan harbor.

The first step, with a three-month timetable and an $8.4 million price tag, is dredging the contaminated silt out of the harbor, McGuire said. Next, a new $2.4 million ditch will be dug to let harbor water escape into Lake Michigan, bypassing the contaminated ditch that now serves that purpose.

The third phase is disposal of the contaminated silt. McGuire said the EPA is seeking a suitable disposal site near Waukegan but has not yet found one. He said it would cost too much to haul the silt to existing facilities equipped to handle it.

Maverick suit yields $1.6 million

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — A federal jury Wednesday awarded $1.6 million in damages to an Indiana man who charged a faulty rear axle in his 1971 Ford Maverick spurred an accident that caused him permanent leg and head injuries.

The four-man, two-woman jury deliberated for more than 11 hours before rendering its verdict in the court of U.S. District Judge Benjamin Gibson.

Kevin Spurgeon, 23, the man injured in the crash, had sought $20 million in damages from the Ford Motor Co. The jury awarded a total of $2 million in damages, but the award was reduced by $400,000 through Michigan's comparative negligence law.

Spurgeon, of Angola, Ind., was paralyzed from the waist down and confined to a wheelchair after the 1978 accident which occurred on I-69 near Coldwater. Another Angola, Ind., man, Jeffery Gurzynski, was killed in the accident.

An attorney representing Ford, Donald V. Souter, declined comment on the verdict and said he did not know if the automaker plans to appeal.

Muriel Humphrey plans to remarry

LEXINGTON, Neb. (UPI) — Muriel Humphrey, wife of the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., Wednesday announced her engagement to Max Brown of Lexington, retired manager of Lexington radio station KRUN.

Mrs. Humphrey and Brown, both Huron, S.D. natives, said a private wedding ceremony for the immediate family was planned in February. They did not give a date or location. Humphrey, who served as vice president in the Lyndon Johnson administration, died Jan. 13, 1978, after a long battle with cancer. The Humphreys had a lakeside home in Waverly, Minn.

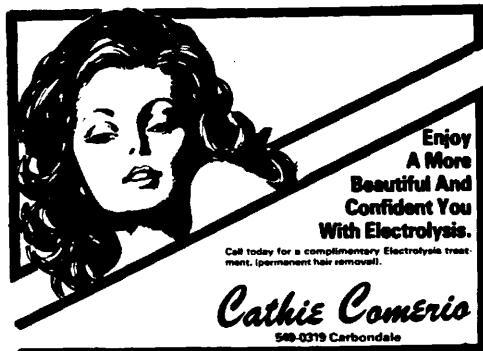

Mrs. Humphrey in early 1978 was appointed to the Senate by Gov. Rudy Perpich of Minnesota to complete the remaining months of her husband's term. She decided against seeking election in 1978 to the Senate.

Former Nazi guard goes on trial

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A 74-year-old former member of the Nazi SS went on trial before a state court Wednesday accused of involvement in the executions of 166 Poles near Lublin in April 1940.

The prosecution claims Friedrich Paulus and others executed the Poles in reprisal for the robbery-murder of a number of ethnic Germans in southeastern Poland during World War II.

Paulus joined the Nazi elite guard in 1932, the year before Adolf Hitler came to power—and was so severely wounded during the last days of war that he lost a leg.

No classes for public schools Thursday in hostages' honor

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — State Schools Superintendent Donald Gill, after a day of interpreting a state statute, ruled Wednesday there will no school for public grammar and high school students Thursday in honor of the hostages.

Gill said President Reagan's signing of a resolution Monday declaring Thursday to be a day of thanksgiving automatically invokes a state law. That law reads "A teacher shall not be required to teach on ... any day appointed by the president or governor as a day of fast or thanksgiving."

A joint resolution passed by Congress and signed by Reagan declared Thursday to be "A day of thanksgiving to honor our safely returned hostages."

"We certainly have a great occasion to celebrate," Gill said, "and the appropriate action for schools, under Illinois law, is to cancel classes Thursday and join in the national celebration of unity and welcome for our returned hostages."

Lee Milner, a spokesman for the Illinois State Board of Education, said the closings will be voluntary for private schools.

A UPI check of Catholic schools in the states' six dioceses showed that most of them were leaving the decision of whether to close to the individual schools.

Milner also said, "It's appropriate for a district to use tomorrow as one of the five extra days required in the school calendar." The use of one of the days allows the schools to close without losing any school aid funding.

State school officials spent much of Tuesday trying to figure out whether the resolution signed by Reagan fell under the scope of the state law regarding school closing and battling down premature rumors all schools would be closed.

SIU to honor hostages in services at Shryock

By Carol Knowies
Staff Writer

President Ronald Reagan has declared Thursday a national day of Thanksgiving in honor of the return of the hostages. SIU-C, along with other state universities, will remain open.

A service commemorating the release of the hostages will be held at noon Thursday at Shryock Auditorium. Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said the service would be open to the campus and the community.

The ceremony, expected to last 45 minutes, will combine music with comments from campus ministers. Specific details of the service were not available at press time.

Northern Illinois University and Western Illinois University administrators said Wednesday that similar commemorative services were planned at the schools. No service is planned at the University of Illinois, but there will be a ceremony in Champaign, according to Fred Mohn, director of the U of I news bureau. No service is planned at Eastern Illinois University.

Bernard Warren, deputy director for governmental relations at the Illinois Board of Higher Education, said Wednesday, all public grade schools and high schools would be closed, because teachers are not required to report to work on days declared holidays by the president or the governor.

Outside inmates working at prison

By Scott Canon
Staff Writer

Despite an inmate work stoppage at Marion Federal Penitentiary, about 30 federal prisoners are working maintenance jobs in the prison.

However, those prisoners working are not inmates of the Marion penitentiary. Instead they are inmates of a federal prison camp about 150 yards from the Marion prison walls, according to prison spokesman Rich Phillips.

The prison administration has been forced to use convicts from the prison camp, basically a support facility, since inmates at the federal penitentiary went on strike Sept. 15, 1980 to protest prison conditions, Phillips said.

The strike, the longest in federal prison history, went on until last Monday when the prison administration declared a halt to the stoppage by shutting down industries within the maximum security facility.

Although the industries have been removed from the prison, Warden Harold G. Miller has admitted, "the strike is over, but it is not over in the inmates' minds. I know that."

No prisoners have returned to cooking or cleaning jobs since the strike began, Phillips said. "Those jobs have been filled by the inmates of the prison camp."

The strike began as a result of prisoner discontent with conditions. Inmates claims include charges that prisoners have been beaten, denied religious freedoms and been subject to "cruel and unusual punishment" by confinement in the prison's Control Unit.

Closing IAC meeting was the wrong decision

WHATEVER THE reasons, the decision by the chairman of the Intercollegiate Athletics Committee to close Tuesday's committee meeting to presidents of student organizations and the press was wrong.

IAC Chairman William Klimstra was wrong to have overruled a 5-3 committee vote and ordered that Debbie Brown, Graduate Student Council president, and Paul Matalonis, Undergraduate Student Council president, could not sit in on the IAC meeting (Klimstra had previously told the press that the meeting was closed).

Both student organizations will soon be evaluating recommendations made by the Ad Hoc Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics about the future of Saluki athletics. Both Brown and Matalonis probably went seeking nothing more than a better understanding of the issues involved. To exclude them was wrong.

BUT THE PRIMARY wrong in Klimstra's decision to close Tuesday's meeting has been overlooked. The real issue behind the closure of the IAC meeting is that it appears to be a clearcut violation of the Open Meetings Act.

And before we get into any arguments of applicability, let's get one thing straight—the Open Meetings Act clearly applies to the IAC. A 1975 Illinois Attorney General's opinion states that Eastern Illinois University's Intercollegiate Athletic Board is subject to the Open Meetings Act. Using this yardstick, the act clearly applies to the IAC.

The Open Meetings Act was enacted in 1957 to insure that public bodies' actions and deliberations are conducted openly. Public business is to be dealt with in public view. Exemptions under which a public body can conduct a closed meeting are narrowly drawn and have been narrowly construed.

KLIMSTRA CITED one of the exemptions when he said the meeting would deal with "sensitive" personnel matters. Under the act, a meeting may be closed "to consider information regarding appointment, employment or dismissal of an employee or official."

The exemption Klimstra cited is far from open-ended. If it were, almost all public meetings could be closed, as most governmental decisions effect people in some vague manner. Only specific discussions about such topics as a person's pay, qualifications, personality and family are exempted.

Furthermore, and this point must be emphasized, the act specifies that when discussion at a public meeting returns to topics not exempted, then the meeting must be reopened to the public.

IT IS HARD to believe that the entire IAC meeting Tuesday was devoted to "personnel" matters. The IAC is in the final stages of preparing an evaluation of a report done by the ad hoc Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics. The evaluation is due on President Albert Somit's desk next week. In fact, Klimstra is even reported as having said that the meeting dealt with 19 of the 24 recommendations contained in the report.

If that is the case, then the IAC clearly violated the Open Meetings Act. And that is wrong.

Citicorp executive's argument: Institutions do not need values

As the nation's leading banker, Walter Wriston of Citicorp, the global power which has offices in 92 countries, can rightly command attention when holding forth on the value of money. It's when he talks about values in themselves—values based on moral and ethical codes that trouble starts.

In a recent New Yorker article the interviewer that current "values are topsy-turvy. It boggles the mind the transfer of personal integrity to institutional integrity. Now college students have a mixed dormitory, men live on one floor and women on the next, and they all sit around worrying about whether or not General Motors is being honest. When I was in college it was different. We were concerned about personal values. I believe that there are no institutional values, only personal ones."

The Wriston philosophy is chilling. Though he is to be thanked for publicly expressing so brazenly what other men of financial power discreetly whisper only inside their clubrooms, Wriston is advancing the dangerous idea that institutions should be allowed to function outside the moral and ethical order.

The Wriston brow prefers to be furrowed about campus hanky-panky. The morality of a General Motors' decision, say, to delay the marketing of life-saving air bags some years back, is not the public's concern. According to the thinking that institutions should be value-free, a vice president for an international bank is right to restrain himself from stealing his secretary's purse which she forgetfully leaves on her desk when she goes to the water cooler. But he is expected to say nothing when an institutional decision is made that denies equal opportunity to women and minorities or decisions that ignore public health, or justice.

Colman McCarthy

This division of morality into personal and institutional realms, and never the twain shall meet, is not new with Wriston. What is astonishing, though, is that someone of his rank and power fails to understand what so many others see as fundamental. In "An American Life," Jeb Magruder, one of the Watergate criminals, says of himself and the others that "we had the private morality but not a sense of public morality."

Magruder, like Wriston, was the ideal college boy: a moralist when among the coeds but amoral when reflecting on the use of institutional power. Magruder's discovery that it wasn't enough to be personally moral is one that is routinely made by others in government. In the new book, "Personal Values in Public Policy," a government consultant was quoted as saying that "a lot of decision-making takes place in government as adversary or advocacy proceedings rather than on the basis of moral judgements... You make the best argument that you can possibly make as a lawyer would make it in litigating a case for his client quite independent of whether or not you think it's the right thing to do."

Underlying the Wriston philosophy—or rather the philosophy that has Wriston as its latest and bluntest cheerleader—is the notion that institutions (corporations, unions, banks, club, churches, governments and schools) function best under anonymity. Faceless, they easily become soulless. Should they go further and become lawless, the outrage over their crimes is muted because the victimization is impersonal. The corporate price fixer never sees those whom he cheats and the cheated all too often never know that they were taken.

But the effect of an institution's value-free or value-blind decisions are felt, even if it must be described fuzzily as "the decline of quality" or "the lowering of standards." In the end, institutional behavior should be held to as much moral accountability as personal behavior. And perhaps more, because the collective power of a wealthy multinational institution has the potential for greater destructiveness than an anti-social act of the lone individual.

As the old English verse goes, the law locks up both man and woman who steal the goose from off the common but lets the greater felon loose who steals the common from the goose.—Copyright, 1981, The Washington Post Co.

Quotable quotes

"We hear it said that we live in an era of limits to our power. Well, let it also be understood there are limits to our patience. Let terrorists be aware that when the rules of international behavior are violated, our policy will be one of swift and effective retribution."—Ronald Reagan addressing the former hostages.

Fighting rape by any means

It is clear that Jim Hanson "At What Cost Safety?" is himself not in "touch with social reality." To call the Women's Services' pullout on Campus Safety paranoiac, is to flagrantly ignore the reality of being a woman in today's society. Conservative statistics now show that one out of every three women in the U.S. can expect to be raped at some point in her life. Any measures which we can take to protect ourselves are clearly justified.

Mr. Hanson's implication that rape cannot be more damaging than being always alert shows his callous lack of empathy with women who have undergone a terrifying experience, the emotional (and often physical) effects of which stay with us.

Rape is a crime of violence and hostility. To analyze it in terms of a "longing for companionship" denied by paranoiac women is tantamount to blaming the victim for the crime—as in "she asked for it." It is hard to believe that either this or his inflammatory statement that the women who prepared the pullout are more dangerous to the community than rapists.

Rape may not be something which effects his own "social well-being" but as someone so concerned with the community Mr. Hanson should exhibit more care for community members other than himself.—Lynda Thomas, graduate student computer science. This letter was signed by 35 other people.

Isn't Reagan a conservative?

Until reading Steve Katsinas' commentary in Tuesday's DE, I had foolishly believed that the campus protests of the '60s were over a war in Southeast Asia that, perhaps, time has made seem a little less horrible. Imagine how silly I felt to learn that the protests were really over dormitory visitation violations! I also naively assumed that there is still poverty and hunger in Appalachia and the urban ghettos. It was with great relief to learn that this hunger and poverty was confined to the '60s.

I only wish that Mr. Katsinas would ease my mind about one other pressing concern I have—Ronald Reagan isn't really a conservative, is he?—Dave Micus, Carbondale

Church seeks young members

By Melody Cook
Staff Writer

A few blocks down from where it runs by the campus, "The Strip" grows quiet as the trail of bars and fast-food restaurants trickles to an end. Furniture stores, car dealers, a pawn shop and other operations less likely to attract student attention takes the place of the nighttime hangouts, and student traffic becomes lighter.

But down along the 100 block of Illinois Avenue, between an empty store and the Rhodes-Burford Furniture store, is The Door, an International Church of the Foursquare Gospel and a place its organizers hope will become the center of student activity.

The storefront church itself is bare except for several pew-like rows of chairs, a desk and a podium. However, a bright red door mat declares in black letters what appears to be the church's slogan. "We're glad you're here."

"We're not trying to build the church on students alone, but our church really relates to that age group," the Rev. Harry Hills, pastor of The Door, said.

Clad comfortably in jeans and leaning back in an easy chair in the living room of his Carbondale home, Hills said that the month-old church is trying to help young people in their 20s and 30s realize that "church ain't only for grandpa." The main objective of The Door is to help young people trying to fit into life's mainstream to realize that God and the church can occupy a very important place in their lives, he said.

"We are telling people that they can be a Christian and be happy," said Hills, who says he's been a minister for 15 years, said.

Hills said one way The Door hopes to do that is to make the church more attractive by featuring music—"peppy" hymns with guitars and "a lot of choruses" and free concerts on weekends with "Jesus Rock" bands. The turnout for such events should be good, Hills said, because The Door is in a good location within walking distance of the campus. Films, revivals and conferences are also planned, he said.

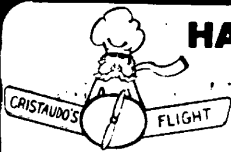

So far, an average of about 25 people have been attending each of two regular Sunday services, Hills reported. One service is at 10:45 a.m. and the other at 7 p.m. About 20 people are regulars and the rest are occasional visitors, Hills said. But he said he expects attendance to pick up as soon as he, his wife and other members of the congregation can meet more people.

Already about 26,000 pieces of literature about The Door have been handed out, he said. But, he continued, the church will grow through "hard work and relationships," and helping people who need guidance or comfort. Hills said that the most important function the church can perform is to "be there" when someone needs it.

A church pamphlet says Foursquare Gospel was founded in the early 1900s and is one of the largest of the pentecostal churches. Its beliefs are in faith healing, salvation by grace, baptism by immersion and with the Holy Spirit, Christ's second coming and that "the church is responsible to evangelize all the world."

The Door's nearest sister church is the Marion Victory Temple in Marion.

ON THE SAME DAY Smith and Jones wrote an appeal of the suspension to Swinburne.

Two days later, at 3 a.m. on May 15, a motorcycle was blown up on the parking lot of Lentz Hall.

That afternoon, Swinburne overturned the suspension and allowed the students to remain in school.

Swinburne said that when he considered the case, he had heard about Jones's recent involvement with the automobile near Brush Towers, but did not check police records from University Security.

He said he was concerned with only the charge of manufacturing bombs. As far as he knew, Swinburne added, neither student had any record of past offenses.

Police have not determined who blew up the motorcycle the morning before Swinburne heard the two students' appeal, but what appeared to be a fragment of a bomb was found near the motorcycle by University detective Robert Hopkins, a police report said.

JIM MACKEY, ANOTHER resident assistant of Pierce Hall, said he heard the explosion and saw 30-foot flames engulfing a pine tree at the Lentz motorcycle parking lot.

He said he and Brunner ran outside with fire extinguishers.

The flames were so hot when the two reached the fire, Brunner said that he thought "the whole parking lot was going to go up." Then he realized that it was not just a pine tree, but also his motorcycle that was on fire.

According to a Kawasaki dealer in Decatur, the bike was a total loss from the explosion and fire. Brunner said he had only liability insurance on his vehicle. He estimated his loss at $2,000.

A CAMPUS POLICE investigation of the motorcycle bombing was started immediately, and now six months later is "still on-going," said Captain Carl B. Kirk of University Security.

Depending on the case, Kirk said, University police can file charges under the Student Conduct Code through Student Life, send the case to the city court or county court, or to a combination of these.

Kirk said the state's attorney will decide whether or not to prosecute if a suspect is apprehended. He declined to say if there is yet such a suspect.

Smith admitted that the bomb used to blow up the bike was probably made by either himself or Jones.

"I HAD NO IDEA that this would happen," said Smith of the motorcycle incident.

He began making the bombs, he said, because "I have a fetish for noise." He said he used them for events like the Fourth of July.

The bombs were 2-inch metal cartridges made to contain CO2. These were filled with black gunpowder, with a fuse in one end.

Smith had sold 26 bombs, for 50 cents each, to a resident of Felts Hall, who distributed all but nine to friends, a campus police report said.

Section 102c of the Student Conduct Code for SIU also forbids "unauthorized possession and/or use of...explosives." A spokesperson for Student Life said possession of explosives in residence halls qualifies as "unauthorized."

IN RESPONDING TO the destruction of the motorcycle, Swinburne said he was "absolutely sick" about it and regretted that there was nothing the University could do to compensate for Brunner's $2,000 loss.

Haig: Iran won't be sent U.S. supplies

WASHINGTON (AP) Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig said Wednesday the United States will refuse to sell military supplies to Iran and will not turn over equipment the Tehran government already has purchased.

Making clear the Reagan administration will continue to view Iran with great suspicion, Haig also said American businesses should use the "most careful caution" in future trade with Iran.

Haig indicated the United States will abide by the terms of the agreements that freed the 52 American hostages, although he said U.S. officials will want to be sure the Iranians are living up to their obligations under the agreement as well.

The Defense Department reported that Iran has paid for about $457 million worth of U.S. military equipment that was not delivered.

'North South' smokes with hot, upbeat blues

By Alan Sculley
Staff Writer

With no offense to Paul Butterfield, I can't see why his latest album "North South," has his name on the front cover. From what the credits say, he only does backing vocals on the album (although it seems obvious he also plays harmonica and does lead vocals).

However, this album draws its success from the meat and muscles of the other musicians in his band. Led by Michael Toles, Eddie Fisher, Julius Bradley and Steve Cobb, who write the five original songs on the album, "North South" smokes with the hottest cross section of blues and funk I've heard this year. In other words, move it on over, George Thorogood, and let some people get a listen to this.

Butterfield is not a rookie in this field either. Listeners of the "Woodstock" album will recall his Butterfield Blues Band of the '60s, and that history provides one justification for giving his name prominent mention on the new album.

But that mention could almost be an honorable one.

The rhythm section of drummer Fisher, bassist Cobb and guitarist-keyboardist Toles are the heart of this band. They deserve accolades for providing a very consistent, steamrolling rhythm for the horn section to fill sweetly over.

Combine the band, which meshes like a finely oiled machine, with Willie Mitchell's superb mix, and the result is as sharp and clean a sound as you could want to hear.

Seven of the nine selections on "North South" fit the formula mixing up-tempo blues and Motown funk. Those ingredients produce a delightfully danceable sound that at times is deliberate, but is always energetic and powerful.

Even "Bread and Butterfield," a slow-paced blues tune, which combines the contrasting sounds of a sassy harmonica with soaring horns and strings, finds an energy of a subtler sort in its melody.

With the exception of "Baby Blue," the rest of the songs don't make you look so hard for the energy. They hit you like a brick in the face. The funkiest and most pulsating of them, "Slow Down," is written by Cobb. It features some of the most infectious guitar-bass lines I've heard in a long time.

"I Let It Go (To My Head)" at times reminds one of a rawer, more rocked-out version of Steely Dan's "Peg." "I Get Excited" is a raver that sets the tone for the album with its title, its choppy guitar and smooth synthesizer.

If the rest of the songs (all of which are good), "Catch A Train" and "Living In Memphis" rate as the best, each remains true to the band's urban blues sound that at times recalls early Graham Parker, a bluesier Rolling Stones and of course, blues artists from Muddy Waters to Thorogood.

The vocals, too, deserve a special mention, as their smooth and rich sound add some extra depth and fill out the album's sound. It's just one more element that gives the listener plenty of reasons to enjoy "North South."

My guess is Toler, Fisher, Cobb, Bradley, and even Butterfield would be glad to know their efforts didn't go unnoticed. (Album courtesy of Plaza Records.)

Transfer students get chance to learn about campus lifestyle

The annual Transfer Guest Day, aimed at acquainting prospective transfer students and high school students with the University's services and extracurricular activities, is set for Saturday, Feb. 7.

Highlights of the all-day program will include a special session for transfer students who have questions about their career choices, information on the evaluation of credit and on-the-spot admission for students who bring their official transcripts, according to Debbie Perry, program director in the Office of Admissions and Records.

Other activities scheduled include tours of the campus and panel discussions with representatives from University Housing, Student Work and Financial Aid, and faculty and staff members from each academic unit.

Registration for the program will begin at 9 a.m. in the Student Center International Lounge.

Attending the Transfer Guest Day should be looked upon as an investment, Perry said, since it "lends itself to helping one have a better experience the first semester here."

As an "added attraction" this year, the Career Counseling staff will be on hand to answer questions concerning choice of major and careers that will suit a student's particular interest, Perry said.

Currently enrolled students are asked to encourage friends to come down for the day "because we will be going all out to impress them," she said.

SIU-C President Albert Somit has been invited to welcome everyone at the opening session which will begin at 9:15 a.m. in the Student Center Auditorium, Perry said.

For further information contact the Office of Admissions and Records, Woody Hall A-202, or phone 453-4381.

Romantics' distinctive sound is missing from newest album

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

A tight, danceable sound is what the Romantics strive for, both in the studio and on stage. They broke into the music scene in 1980 with just that exciting sound on a self-titled debut album and subsequent tour as a backup band in large halls.

However, the band's second release, "National Breakout," offers a more hard-rocking sound that is powerful and catchy, but not quite as colorful and distinctive as their earlier work. Whereas the first album had the fresh, invigorating sound of the early Kinks (the album included "She's Got Everything") and the Who, the new album sounds like Bachman-Turner Overdrive with a New Wave beat.

The Romantics used to pride themselves on a simple, accessible sound which could easily alternate between tender and tough. Songs such as "What I Like About You," "Little White Lies" and "Tell It To Carrie" made their first album seem like a breath of fresh air lodged between the dying disco craze and the self-destructive nihilism inherent in early punk. Unfortunately, they've chucked away most of that on "National Breakout."

From beginning to end, the new album is full of loud, driving rockers which are still better than most of those being circulated these days. There's plenty of earth-shaking power chords, but barely any of the sweet, ballad-like tunes which made their debut album great instead of just good.

Most of the new tunes, including the title track, "Tomboy," "Poor Little Rich Girl" and "Stone Pony" feature drummer Jimmy Marinos and bassist Rich Cole pounding out a heavy, thumping beat while

Review

National Breakout, The Romantics, Nemperor Records.
Reviewer's Rating: 2½ stars (four stars tops).

guitarists Mike Skill and Wally Palmar grind away on rhythm guitar. There is barely ever an impressive solo break or even any distinctive instrumental interplay on this album.

As on the first album, Palmar and Marinos take turns barking out gravelly voiced, fast-talking vocals, but the passion and good-natured attitude which made their first efforts so much fun just isn't there this time around.

"Forever Yours" does achieve the early, more passionate sound which distinguished the first album, but it could die of loneliness here. "21 and Over," featuring a solo guitar fill which sounds like it's straight from a Clint Eastwood spaghetti western, is a half-hearted attempt at a reggae-ska sound which is interesting, but sorely out of place.

The main problem with "National Breakout" is a frustrating one. The Romantics have proven that they can do much more than this heavy-handed album offers. It's a good effort, but not up to the high standard of quality they achieved early on.

Maybe it's time for the Romantics to pull out the old Kinks and Who albums again and return to their roots—just where they belong.

Combined drugs lower cholesterol

BOSTON (AP)—A new combination of drugs dramatically lowers cholesterol in people who risk early death from heart disease of an inherited disorder that affects up to a million people in North America, a new study shows.

Until now there has been no treatment for this common disease, called familial hypercholesterolemia. Victims have two to three times the usual levels of cholesterol in their blood. And they are five times more likely than normal to have heart disease, which often appears when they are in their 40s.

The combination of drugs, tested at the University of California in San Francisco, cuts their cholesterol almost in half.

"In this group of people we finally have an effective treatment that can completely normalize the levels of lipoprotein," said Dr. John P. Kane, who directed the research.

The study, conducted on 50 men and women, was published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The two drugs—colestipol and niacin—have been used separately for several years to control cholesterol, but this study is the first to discover that the two together produce far stronger effects.

The drugs are currently available and the researchers recommended that physicians immediately begin giving the combination to people with the inherited disorder.

High cholesterol causes fatty deposits on the blood vessels and makes them narrow and hard. The level of cholesterol in the blood is directly linked to the risk of developing heart disease.

'Tongue Twister' gives Shoes right to expect further success

By Randy Lynch
WIDB Music Director

If tradition means anything, Shoes is a band that does everything backwards. And if results mean anything, Shoes could become a model for new bands to follow.

Most bands play the club circuit for years before they get a recording contract. Shoes recorded two albums before they ever played a live date. There is a very good reason why they didn't do any live gigs first. When the nucleus of Shoes formed in 1974, not one of them could play a note.

This seemingly serious lack of talent couldn't deter John Murphy and Gary Klebe at their home studio in Zion. They had songs in their heads that needed to get out, and by fooling around with tape machines, they managed to approximate the necessary sounds. If one note wasn't quite right, they would erase it and try another. John's brother, Jeff, and drummer Skip Meyer eventually joined up to share the fantasy that John and Gary had started—making pop music.

In 1977, still without a major recording contract, Shoes third homegrown album became their second local release and it brought a lot of attention from the major labels.

Shoes finally went national in 1979 with their first album on Elektra Asylum. "Present Tense." That was a very competitive year, especially for new bands named after apparel or household appliances. But Shoes never got lost in the shuffle, and their album rose into the national Top 50.

expect continued success with their latest release, "Tongue Twister." In the finest tradition of Badfinger and the Raspberries, Shoes have crafted a dozen pop gems that should keep the radio waves hopping.

Of course, pop music implies strong harmonies and catchy melodies wafting through with another silly love song. Shoes avoid wimpy sweetness by fueling many of their songs with the anger of love lost. They bring it home with some scorching guitars. While there are no solos, the riffs on songs like "Burned Out Love" and "When It Hits" would please

AC-DC fans.

In their more melodic moments, Shoes recall the early Hollies or middle-period Beatles. In fact, Shoes music contains nothing of the basic ingredients of rock in the '70s. Shoes are carrying the torch of mid '60s pop into the '80s, where the fuzz tone bass and the guitar synthesizer will live together happily ever after.

Yet, for all their pop artistry, Shoes still haven't proven themselves as performers. The tour to promote their last album was a fiasco for reasons that went beyond musicianship. But they've been playing for seven years now, and if their songwriting maturity is any sign, the time has come for Shoes to really shine. (Album courtesy of WIDB)

Frogs make a splash with newest recording

By Rod Smith
Entertainment Editor

Despite numerous personnel changes, 10 years of playing the same bars, high schools and concert halls in the Midwest and lack of national recognition, the All Star Frogs have endured.

This Champaign-based band has existed in one form or another—longer than any "bar band" in this region. Now fronted by lead guitarist and showman Duke Tumatoe (pronounced just like the fruit) and down to only four members, the latest version of the Frogs has recorded its second album—"Naughty Child."

Only the die-hard Frogs fans have the group's first album, "Red Pepper Hot," a 1977 recording on their own label, Trouserworm. Tunes, that demonstrated the band's pleasant bluesy jazz sound. Unfortunately, poor promotion sent that album to an early death in the cut-out bins and subsequently it went out of print.

Its lack of availability is a loss to jazz fans. The album was well done considering the inconveniences of recording, pressing and promoting it. But don't worry Frogs fans, the new album is much the same. That is, very good.

With the aid of Midwestern producer Greg Riker (Faith Band, Appaloosa, Roadmaster), Duke and the Frogs have recorded a sometimes jumpy, sometimes cool, but WILLIAMSON, W.Va. (UPI)—United Mine Workers President Sam Church, in an apparent about-face, says he will not seek an extension of the current contract if the UMW and coal operators fail to reach an agreement by the March 27 expiration date.

Last summer, Church said he would consider asking the UMW's governing board to extend the contract if talks with the Bituminous Coal Operators association continued past the deadline. The proposal sparked controversy in light of the union's "no contract, no work" tradition.

"I think we've got plenty of time to negotiate," Church told a conference of local union officers from Southern West Virginia Tuesday. The chief negotiating teams of both sides will meet again next Tuesday.

Naughty Child, Duke Tumatoe and the All Star Frogs. Blind Pig Records. Reviewer's Rating: 3 stars (4 stars tops).

always refreshing album that even your "establishment" parents might enjoy.

Fortunately, this album doesn't try to capture the scorching, fast sound that the band sometimes demonstrates in its live performances. The Frogs realize their real fans are jazz listeners, not drunken barroom slobs that don't care if the music is good as long as it's loud.

That's not to say that the entire album is mellow. Songs like "Take Me Home" and "Brown Eyed Woman" are fine upbeat rhythm and blues. The title cut features a rock mode and some out of place, obnoxious guitar work at the start.

I think the only reason "Naughty Girl" was chosen for the title was so the risqué, suggestive drawing on the cover could be used. The song itself is a valley among the peaks.

The strength of this album is in songs like "Fool Around With You" and "Love Is A Three Letter Word." These soft, romantic songs showcase Tumatoe's wide vocal range and strong songwriting talents. The songs could make your girlfriend (or boyfriend) melt into your arms.

Tumatoe's vocals and pianist James Hill's impressive electric keyboard work deserve better recognition. This band has a lot of talent. With this album maybe more people will notice.

I don't think Duke Tumatoe and the All Star Frogs care if this album is a break into national tours and major recording contracts. In "Love To Play the Blues," Duke says:

"I don't need money, I don't want a great big car, a little recognition, but I'm not out to be a star, I'm not looking for all kinds of expensive things. I just need enough to keep me in picks and strings."

This record is just for people who like jazz, blues, romantic songs and who like to relax. The Frogs aren't out for big bucks, they just want to please their fans and themselves. And isn't that what music's all about? (Album courtesy of Plaza Records)

Economy not expected to dim '81 graduates' job prospects

By Dan Sitarz
Staff Writer

In the recent past, it was often possible to judge employment trends for college graduates by the number of gas-station attendants and waitresses with degrees.

But today, despite a sluggish economy and double-digit inflation, job opportunities for this year's graduates look better than ever, according to the 1981 Endicott Report on employment trends.

The report, published annually by Northwestern University, surveys more than 140 well-known business and industrial firms on job possibilities for college graduates. Though certain fields and specializations are more marketable than others in the competitive job market, the prospects for employment for the graduate in 1981 is at an all-time high.

This year's report shows that surveyed companies expect to hire 16 percent more graduates with bachelor's degrees than in 1980 and 10 percent more graduates with master's degrees. Almost without exception, the report shows that these companies will raise their starting salaries about 10 percent in 1981.

Average starting salaries for graduates with bachelor's degrees will range from more than $15,000 for graduates with degrees in the liberal arts to more than $22,000 for engineering graduates, the report predicts. Average starting salaries for graduates with bachelor's degrees in business and administration are expected to be $16,200; economics and finance, $16,800; accounting, $17,000; sales and marketing, $17,200; math and statistics, $18,600; chemistry, $19,500 and computer science, $20,300.

Graduates with master's degrees can expect starting salaries to range from $20,400 for accounting to more than $26,000 for graduates with a master's degree in business and administration who have a bachelor's degree in a technical field, the report shows. For MBA graduates with a non-technical bachelor's degree, salaries are expected to average $22,600. For graduates with master's degrees in other technical fields, salaries around $25,100 are expected, while non-technical master's degrees should gain the graduate a starting salary of over $21,000. According to the report, the greatest demand will be for graduates in engineering, accounting, business and administration, computer science and sales.

The report also offers graduates and current students some hints aimed at preparing them more employment. Students are urged to get as much on-the-job experience as possible, to develop writing and speaking skills, to keep grades up, and to enroll in business-related courses.

The Career Planning and Placement Center at Woody Hall will hold Government Career Day from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 3 in Ballrooms A and B of the Student Center.

The program, designed to inform students about job opportunities, desired training, career trends and application procedures for government careers, will be organized on a walk-through format. Representatives from the State of Illinois, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the IRS, the U.S. Forest Service and other governmental agencies are scheduled to attend.

A series of free workshops, covering interviewing skills, resume writing, government employment, summer employment and geographical job searches, will be offered from 3 to 4 p.m. Monday and Thursday in Quigley Hall Room 306. All students are invited to attend. Contact the Career Planning and Placement Center, Woody Hall B204, for specific scheduling.

Sound waves used to detect fetal defects

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Arizona scientists are bouncing sound waves off tiny hearts to search for cardiac defects and problems while babies are still in the womb.

The "ultrasound imaging" techniques being developed at the University of Arizona's Health Science Center "may be able to provide accurate, safe, and non-invasive diagnosis of congenital heart disease before birth," said Dr. David J. Sahn.

The process provides a moving picture of an unborn baby's heart.

Sahn told an American Heart Association seminar Tuesday his team has examined about 400 unborn infants, half of them born in high-risk pregnancies, and has accurately diagnosed four major abnormalities and at least seven less serious ones.

He said the procedure, which allows diagnosis as early as 18 weeks into a pregnancy, can ease a high-risk mother's anxiety if results are good. If bad, they can insure the birth is at a well-equipped hospital with cardiac care.

Ultrasound was developed about 20 years ago and is used routinely by obstetricians to gauge the growth and development of unborn children and to search for gross birth defect. It is also used to study the hearts of cardiac patients.

Peanut butter situation sticky; dining halls facing shortage

By Bill Turley
Staff Writer

The status of peanut butter on campus may soon become a sticky situation.

The thick, brown spread may be in short supply for students who dine in residence hall cafeterias, according to Sam Rinella, director of University housing.

Rinella said there is about a 60-day supply of peanut butter left on campus and that finding more is proving to be difficult. "We are unable to get a delivery of peanut butter," said Rinella. He said the reason was that there is a national shortage of peanuts.

Howard Stonecifer, company spokesman for Planters Peanuts in New York City, said there is a shortage.

"In 1979 there were 4 billion pounds of peanuts harvested," Stonecifer said. "In 1980, only 2 billion pounds were harvested."

He said the shortage was caused by a drought and high temperatures in the south and southwest parts of the country. He said his company expected no relief from the shortage until this fall, and that prices for peanuts would stay unusually high.

Lois Brumitt, director of residence hall food service, said she is expecting a shipment of peanut butter any day but. "We've been expecting some before and none has come in," she said.

Jim Cook, a purchasing agent for the University, said, "Getting peanut butter is a problem."

He said in a shortage like the present one, the big packing companies first cut off bulk buyers like the University because they buy big packages. Sales to companies that sell the product in smaller packages for grocery stores are unchanged because those companies have money tied up in advertising for the product.

"They want the smaller packages in the grocery stores, in order to help out those who advertise," Cook said.

Martha Farris, assistant food service manager in Grinnell Hall, said peanut butter was offered at all three meals until last week when she noticed it was hardly touched during breakfast. Now it is only put out for the two later meals and, because of the shortage, peanut butter use in baking products is also being curtailed.

Farris said a large can of peanut butter left out for self-service use by students lasts about two or three days. Brumitt said all the dorm cafeterias together use an average of a can a day.

A big peanut butter eater is Gary Carter, a freshman with an undecided major. Carter, who patronizes the Grinnell Hall cafeteria, said his mother sends him jars of the food so he hadn't noticed the shortage or any price increases. When asked how much peanut butter he eats in a week, his friends shouted, "jars of it."

New superintendent is eager to shape up Chicago schools

CHICAGO (UPI) — Newly appointed Schools Superintendent Ruth Love, eager to begin the tough job of straightening out the Chicago public school system, said Wednesday she is "ready to hit the ground running."

Miss Love, in town this week to meet with officials and to find housing, said at a news conference her goal as superintendent is to insure the quality of education for Chicago youngsters.

Miss Love, currently superintendent of Oakland, Calif., schools, said, "The general superintendent sets the tone and develops a management system. But without doers, competent people, we won't be able to win this game."

Miss Love, responding to a question about a recent study of the Chicago school system by the Chicago United organization, pledged to support the city's school principals. She said principals are the "key leaders. Whatever we do at the central office will be to support what occurs at the schools."

The new superintendent said she will develop high reading, writing and mathematics standards for Chicago's students. "But we need the parents' help," she said.

Miss Love declined to name the three people she wants to bring with her from Oakland until the Board of Education's confirmation. She said they will fill the positions of chief deputy, business manager and special assistant to the superintendent.

Though saying she had in mind "other sources" of additional funding besides the Illinois Legislature for the Chicago school system, she said she intends "to work hard with the Legislature. We must convince them that we are in the business of education."

Furthermore, she said, the city and the school must have a symbiotic relationship.

Miss Love said she supports the school system's desegregation effort. Although busing for balance has become an emotional issue, she said, Chicago must "obey the law of the land."

Miss Love said her reception in Chicago has been "warm and gracious" and said it "tells me there is great concern about the schools here."

Ex-hostage returns home to Illinois

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Former hostage Paul Lewis journeyed home Wednesday to Illinois, where the governor declared Thursday as "Welcome Home Hostages Day."

State officials announced public elementary and secondary schools will be closed for Thursday's observance but state offices will remain open.

Lewis, a Marine sergeant from Homer, flew from Washington to St. Louis aboard an Ozark airplane adorned with yellow ribbons and flowers. He was expected to arrive home Wednesday evening.

Gov. James R. Thompson said Thursday was made a special day to honor the 52 returned Americans in conjunction with President Reagan's call for a national day of thanksgiving.

"In connection with the Illinois celebration, I ask that all church bells be rung at noon on this day as a final exclamation of joy for those who returned, followed by a moment of silence in the memory of the eight soldiers who perished in an attempt to rescue the captives," Thompson said.

He noted that two of the former hostages are from Illinois — Lewis and Leland Holland of Scales Mound. Thompson has been invited to attend Homer's homecoming celebration for Lewis Saturday.

State Schools Superintendent Donald Gill said Reagan's declaration of Thursday as a national day of thanksgiving invokes a state law requiring closing of state elementary and secondary schools on such a day.

"We certainly have a great occasion to celebrate," Gill said. "And the appropriate action for schools, under Illinois law, is to cancel classes Thursday and join in the national celebration of unity and welcome for our returned hostages."

State universities are not covered by the law.

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale announced it would hold classes as usual but an hour-long thanksgiving service would be held at noon in Shryock Auditorium. The Campus Ministerial Association was planning the non-denominational service.

Netters draw tough opening assignment

By Greg Walsh
Staff Writer

SIU-C men's tennis Coach Dick Lefevre and his eight Saluki netters will open their indoor season against a tough Northwestern team at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Court Club.

According to Lefevre, Northwestern is one of the toughest teams around.

"They have their whole team back from last year and they finished second only to Michigan in the Big 10," Lefevre said. "They are very good."

Lefevre said whenever the two teams get together there is always "good tennis." SIU-C also has all of its players returning from last year's 11-18 squad. The team ended up getting third place in the Missouri Valley Conference and third in Illinois Intercollegiate last fall.

Facing a team of Northwestern's calibre early in the season is going to be tough, Lefevre said, because the long Christmas break allowed the players to fall out of shape.

The Salukis had trouble the last time they met NU, too. The Wildcats whipped them in a quadrangular meet at Michigan last spring, 7-2, although Lefevre pointed out SIU-C sent four of the matches into a tiebreaking third set.

The number one man for Northwestern is Senior Paul Wei, a player Lefevre called "one of the top players in the United States." Asked how Saluki Guy Hooper, a junior college transfer with senior standing, will do against him, Lefevre said, "we will just have to wait and see. Wei is very good."

Lefevre added, "the guy who will play number one for us is going to have a very rough time because we play teams with good first men."

A tentative No. 2 man for the Salukis is Lito Ampon, a junior from Manila, who was a standout last year and is the third of three brothers that have played here. He may not play at No. 2 Saturday night, however, because of a bout with the flu.

"He will play," Lefevre said, "but not as high up in the lineup."

Other than Ampon's illness, Lefevre said his players "seem to be in pretty good shape."

Possible doubles combinations include Ampon and junior Steve Smith, and David Filer and John Greif, both juniors, all of whom Lefevre said he will be counting on heavily.

The rest of the team also will be expected to pull its weight against the strong perennial power, Lefevre said.

Gymnasts to venture to Windy City

By Mike Anthony
Staff Writer

The Saluki women's gymnast's team travels to Chicago Friday for the Windy City Invitational Gymnastics Meet that will be held Jan. 30-31.

The 10-team meet will feature the defending champions, 12th-ranked Louisville, 6th-ranked Arizona State and 16th-ranked Missouri. The other teams competing will be Iowa State, Nebraska, Illinois, Michigan, Central Michigan and Illinois-Chicago Circle.

Last year, the Salukis finished third in the meet.

According to Coach Herb Vogel, even though Louisville is the defending champion, Arizona is considered the favorite this year.

"Arizona has been scoring 140 and 142 consistently and Louisville and Missouri have scored in the '40s," Vogel said.

He added, "we have a shot at winning. If we get a solid bars performance, we can hang in with any of the teams."

The Salukis, who scored a season-high total of 141.55 against Oklahoma State last Sunday, are entering the meet with a little more confidence than they've had in the past, Vogel said.

"We lost a lot of confidence in our first meet, and we still don't really know what we can do yet," he added.

Vogel said that without the services of All-American Pam Harrington, who is injured and will only compete in the balance beam competition, the team has the "possibility of losing two points off our total score."

He added the Salukis still pose a threat to the other teams with the Lori Erickson-Pam Turner combination and that a key factor in the tournament is whether or not All-American Val Panton has a consistent performance.

According to Vogel, Panton can hold her own with any of the national all-around scoring leaders.

In order to meet the required AIAW four all-around gymnast rule, Mary Runk will "probably" be the fourth all-arounder for the Salukis, Vogel said.

"There are a lot of judges and each event will have separate judges. They may or may not work together. If the scoring is equitable, we should score 140," Vogel said.

According to Vogel, if the Salukis win the meet, they will enjoy their 18th consecutive winning season, and the win will be the "kick in the pants" the Salukis need in their attempts for the state, regional and AIAW championships.

The team-scored all-around competition will be held Friday night, and the individually-scored events will start Saturday afternoon.

Sailors prepare for spring season

Members of the Southern Illinois Collegiate Sailing Club will be going to Delaware, Ohio, Feb. 1-8 for their midwinter scheduling meetings which are to be held Feb. 6-8. The weekend meetings will consist of election of Midwest Sailing Association officers and the scheduling of spring and fall regattas.

Among the 32 schools represented in the M.C.S.A. are such major universities as Notre Dame, Michigan State, Ohio State, Purdue, Kansas, Iowa and Wisconsin.

The scheduling meetings will be a prelude to what promises to be a busy spring semester for the SIU-C club. According to commodore Troy Tolan, women's regattas will be planned in order to encourage more women sailors. Social secretary Alison Emberson added that there are many additional events aimed at benefiting club members that are in the planning stage.

The club is open to anyone who is interested in learning how to sail or to race on the collegiate level.

Anyone interested in joining the club can attend the club's meetings which are held at 9 p.m. every Thursday in Room 231 of Lawson Hall.

Here's an opportunity for you to enjoy the 'great indoors'

The winners of nine indoor games held at the Student Center bowling alley last semester will have a chance to face tougher competition when they attend the Association of College Unions International regional tournament to be held Feb. 6-8 at Illinois State University.

Doug Daggett, assistant manager of the recreation area in the Student Center, said travel, lodging, entry fees, competition fees and $20 food money will be provided by the Student Center for the 25 people expected to go. The top one or two winners from SIU-C will be attending, depending on the number of contestants in the competition.

Daggett, who will accompany the group, said the main idea of the tournament is to have fun, but, like any sport, it allows the competitor to find out just how good he is when facing tougher competition.

"I think a lot of them think it's a sport," Daggett said. Like anything else, you want to excel at it, to be the best in the field."

Games that SIU-C will be represented in include, bowling, trap and skeet, darts, video games, chess, table soccer (foosball), table tennis, pocket billiards and frisbee discs, Daggett said.

SIU-C also has a returning winner to the regional tournament. Daggett said the table soccer team went on to the national competition. But all returning members have nothing but praise for the competition and tournament.

Jimmy Gevas, a junior in finance, who will be in the chess competition, said the tour-namment was fun and the competition was tough when he attended two years ago. However, this year he is going to win.

"I am a pretty fierce competitor to begin with," Gevas said. "When you are playing with just friends it's just for fun, but this is tougher competition. "I think I have a pretty good chance to win."

Bowler Scott Bahno, a senior in industrial technology, said "I was very impressed to say the least with the competition. I met a group of bowlers that were very experienced."

Calling himself the old man of the group going to ISU, Bahno, 30, said he does not know what his chances of winning are, but, he said, "if for nothing else we are meeting other bowlers from around the state."

Sox owners approve second sale

CHICAGO (AP)—Shareholders of the Chicago White Sox voted unanimously Wednesday to sell the American League baseball club to Jerry Reinsdorf and Eddie Einhorn for $20 million.

Final consideration of the transaction now goes to AL owners, who meet in Chicago Thursday. Approval of the shareholders and the owners has been expected.

Andy McKenna, acting chairman of the club's board of directors, said the shareholders' meeting was "upbeat and harmonious."

Asked if he considered owner approval assured, he said, "Well, based on past experience one never knows, but we have no indication we have any problem."

Unlike earlier attempts to sell the White Sox to Edward J. DeBartolo Sr., there have been no signals from the owners that they have any objection to Reinsdorf and Einhorn.

DeBartolo had the approval of the club's directors and stockholders, but league owners held a special meeting last October and turned him down. The vote was 8-6 in favor. DeBartolo fell short of the 10 votes needed.

White Sox directors again voted in favor of selling the club to DeBartolo and the stockholders approved, but league owners turned him down again at the major league winter meetings in Dallas in December. DeBartolo was able to get only three approving votes the second time.

Richardson said. "The thing about it was, Drake was probably much hungrier than we were because its backs were against the wall."

Despite SIU-C's 7-10 record, eight-game losing streak and 93-59 loss to Loyola Tuesday Richardson doesn't think his team will be overconfident. He noted that 6-10 center Rod

Camp couldn't play effectively in the teams' first meeting because of an ankle injury.

"Camp will make a big difference," Richardson said. "He'll be fired up for us a lot more than he would be for any other team. He played against all of my kids in junior college."

"I don't think you can take any road game lightly,"

Richardson added. "We're not the kind of team that can do that."

Saluki Coach Joe Gottfried is expected to once again start Camp at center, Darnall Jones and Charles Nance at the forwards, and Rob Kirsner and Johnny Fayne at guards. Fayne was SIU-C's only standout against Loyola with 14 points.

points make a difference at the end of the season. Every meet and every routine is important because of that. I also want to see what we can score outside of the Arena."

Besides the No. 1 all-around ranking, Babcock is ranked second in the pommel horse, tied for fourth in vaulting, tied for fifth in parallel bars and fourth on the high bar.

Despite all of the national rankings, the Salukis still have a few problems to work out. The overall scores in the parallel bars, pommel horse and floor exercise have not been as high as they could be according to Meade.

"We've come a long way in parallel bars," Meade said. "We got a 35 in the first meet and in the last meet we got a 43.20, so they're improving. We would have gone higher in pommel horse if Wagstaff hadn't blown it. With Randy Bettis back in the lineup, we should do a little better in floor exercise."

Senior Randy Bettis will be back in the lineup after suffering facial bruises in a fall during the warmup before the NIU meet. Murph Melton, who dislocated an elbow in practice last week, will be out until the end of February.

"We are coming along better," Meade said. "The whole key is improving our performance on rings, parallel bars and the high bar. Jimmy Muenz is coming along for us."

Tulsa cagers feature speed, 13 victories

By Scott Stahmer
Associate Sports Editor

Speed kills. For proof, just ask any of the Tulsa basketball team's 13 victims.

The Hurricane, one of the nation's most improved teams this season, also may be one of the quickest. New Coach Nolan Richardson uses that quickness to his team's advantage, as Tulsa presses defensively and runs a devastating fast break offensively.

The Salukis found out about the Hurricane's speed Jan. 5, when they lost, 85-67, at Tulsa. SIU-C has a chance for revenge Thursday at 7:35 p.m., when the Golden Hurricane invades the Arena for a Missouri Valley Conference game.

Tulsa, 4-2, is in fourth place in the MVC after an 86-77 victory over Drake Monday night. The Hurricane trails Valley leaders Bradley and Wichita State by 1½ games.

Last year, the Hurricane tied for last with SIU-C. But Richardson, the coach of last year's junior college national champions at Western Texas, signed four players from that team. All share responsibility for Tulsa's turnaround.

David Brown, a 6-8 forward, is the Hurricane's leading scorer and rebounder. Greg Stewart, 6-9, is the starting center. Paul Pressey, 6-5, is a starting guard and Tulsa's best all-around player, while Phil Spradling, 6-4, shares time at the other starting guard with Mike Anderson.

Brown (14.1 points per game), Stewart (14.1), Spradling (12), Pressey (11.1) and Anderson (10.9) all are double-figure scorers. Brown is the leading rebounder, 6.9 per game, and Pressey is averaging six assists per outing. Tulsa's only remaining starter from last year is 6-6 forward Bob Stevenson, who averaged 16 points and 10 rebounds per game and was an all-MVC pick in 1979-80. He's averaging nine points and six rebounds this year.

According to Richardson, the victory over Drake was a pivotal one for the Hurricane. While Drake lost its fourth conference game and fell out of contention, Tulsa remained in the race.

"Any time you win a basketball game in this conference, it's a great win,"

Gymnasts heavily favored vs. Ball State

By Michelle Schwent
Staff Writer

Saturday's gymnastics meet which pits the Salukis against the Cardinals of Ball State University at Muncie, Ind., may not be much of a contest, but it is important because of the numbers game by which the teams are ranked.

The Salukis are ranked eighth in the nation while Iowa State, Oklahoma and UCLA claim the top three positions respectively. Junior Brian Babcock is ranked as the third all-around gymnast in the country, behind senior Ron Galimore of Nebraska and sophomore Mitch Gaylord of UCLA. The rankings are based on meet scores since Jan. 1.

SIU-C is on top of the Midwest Region and Coach Bill Meade hopes to stay in that position. The Salukis will go to the national tournament if the team finishes the season in first place in the region. If not, the Salukis would have to score enough points to be ranked as one of the top six scoring teams at the end of the season in order to make the trip to nationals.

"We are number one in the Midwest Region now and that is where we want to be at the end of the year," Meade said.

Ball State has a record of 1-4. The Cardinals have mustered a score of 231.8 twice this season, the team's highest. The Salukis are 3-1 in dual meets and have twice scored 268.05 points this season. Ball State's Doug Naylor's best all-around score is 48.07 while SIU-C's Babcock hit his personal best of 57.10

Sunday against Northern Illinois.

While the meet appears to be a mismatch, Meade is intent upon winning the meet even if turns out to be a runaway.

NCAA makes appeal for sports unity

Editor's note: At its national convention in Miami, Fla., two weeks ago, the National Collegiate Athletic Association voted to establish championships for women on the Division I college level beginning next fall, as well as to adopt a four-year plan to develop NCAA policies that would govern both men's and women's sports programs. This is the first of two articles discussing the NCAA movement and how it may affect the SIU-C women's athletics program.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association has been in existence since 1906. It touches many areas of amateur sports in the United States, but it has been most distinctly identified with men's intercollegiate athletics. That is, until the past several years.

Until the early 1970s, women's intercollegiate sports were considered secondary, especially from the financial standpoint. It was not until 1970 that a unifying body, the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women, was formed to establish guidelines and governance for women's college sports. The AIAW is considered the women's parallel to the NCAA.

"When we were not important, they (the NCAA) didn't want us," said Director of Women's Athletics Charlotte West. "They didn't care about women and now they profess that they do care about women."

The question of sincerity on the part of the NCAA toward women athletes has been brought up constantly by women administrators, but according to Ruth Berkey, the newly-appointed director of women's championships for the NCAA, there is no pressure being put on schools to join the previously all-male organization. Berkey recently lost in her bid for the presidency of the AIAW.

"We want to allow for as much flexibility as possible," Berkey said from the NCAA headquarters in Shawnee Mission, Kan. "We're not asking for any definite statements or anything like that right now."

According to Berkey, the NCAA is presently forming sports committees to set up the guidelines for the championships. Not only are championships for Division I schools to be offered, but for Divisions II and III as well. Plans were made to sponsor Division II and III championships during the 1980 convention, and they will also begin next fall.

"Commitments from schools sometime in May, I believe," Berkey said. "But we're using a different format in the form of a questionnaire. They simply ask questions like 'is your program interested in fielding its basketball team in NCAA-sponsored championships?'"

"We'll hopefully get those back as soon as possible. A school's entry has to be approved by our executive committee in April."

An institution such as SIU-C would not have to place its entire women's sports program under NCAA governance. Each sport would be considered separately. If, for example, the basketball team is entered into the NCAA-sponsored competition, it would still have a four-year option to operate under AIAW guidelines or the equivalents such as regional or conference regulations. At any time during those four years, it may elect to adopt NCAA rules, but it must make a final commitment by the end of the fourth year.

Berkey does not foresee any ambiguities resulting from having teams in the same championships operating by different regulations.

"Schools may have different operating regulations, but the championship rules are basically the same," Berkey said. "They have two options, either NCAA or AIAW, and more and more I think there will be a trade-off. I think there would have more of an advantage under NCAA rules, but overall I don't think there will be that many inequities."

The four-year plan to develop a governance system for women's athletics is just getting off the ground, also. The NCAA contends it is aimed toward getting women involved in the decision-making processes, and guarantees that one-third of every NCAA committee will be made up of female administrators, one-third men, and one-third varying from committee to committee.

Berkey said the three major councils are the NCAA council, the executive committee and the steering committee. Of those 16 possible positions, she said, 16 are guaranteed to women. But what of the middle one-third?

"I can understand women's concerns that the committees will continue to be male-dominated," Berkey said, "but it's a genuine effort to get women involved. I believe there will always be a sufficient number of positions allocated for women."

Recruiting, the No. 1 thorn in the sides of college athletics administrators, is also of prime concern. The AIAW has been traditionally conservative in its policy toward recruiting. It is feared the NCAA will loosen the reins and the competitive recruiting characteristic of men's athletics will come into play in women's programs as well.

A tight-budget school such as SIU-C could be at a disadvantage recruiting against major schools from the Big Ten, the Pac Ten and the Big Eight.

"I think there are two things that have to be considered there," Berkey said.

"Less stringent recruiting regulations may allow more women to get to college campuses that never had the chance to before. Most don't have the money, especially the black female athlete."
