Menard escapee still at large; last seen in Pinckneyville area

By Jeff Wilkinson Staff Writer

A Menard Correctional Center inmate who escaped Monday was seen last night in Southern Illinois. The inmate, in a white shirt, black pants and a white baseball cap, was last seen in Southern Illinois.

Three escapees are still at large, but there is no evidence to indicate that he is armed.

Officers are searching for them in the East St. Louis and Belleville areas.

Parr said that if we believe we can have quality education based on today's level of funding, Parr said at a press conference in the Student Center on Thursday.

He said that the signs of economic recovery Thompson referred to have not been seen in Southern Illinois.

"It seems to me that this system is underfunded," he said. "We must provide quality education which is affordable." He said, "In order to provide an adequate level," he said.

"Insufficient funding," Parr said at a press conference in the Student Center on Thursday.

Campus offices to receive $31,708

By Anne Fiatasta
Staff Writer

The remaining $21,700 of a Student Affairs reserve fund will be distributed to seven offices on campus, Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said Wednesday.

The Office of Student Life and the Office of Student Services were given the highest amount of funding from the reserve, each receiving $8,000.

The Office of Student Work and Financial Aid received $3,500, the Student Center received $3,000 for operating costs, Swinburne's office received $3,500, and the Ombudsman's office received $2,700.

Swinburne said $3,000 will be put in a general Student Affairs account, which may later be distributed to various departments.

Although he said the departments will have "maximum autonomy" as to how the funds are used, of the $5,000 freed for the Student Center, Swinburne said some of that money would pay for repairing the air-conditioning system in the dining rooms at the School of Technical Careers.

With the exception of the Student Health program, all departments requesting reserve fund money received a part of the allotment, Swinburne said.

"Their need will be taken care of through other channels," he said.

The reserve funds were generated by holding about 2 percent of each vice presidential office's total budget, said John Baker, director of planning and budgeting.

This is the second year the procedure has been in effect. Baker said, and it is likely to be followed again next year.

"We started the reserves when we were unsure what the enrollment picture would look like," Baker said. "And we probably will adopt the same technique until we see that enrollment is progressing nicely."

Partner shoots police officer

CHICAGO (AP) - A Chicago policewoman, accidentally slain by her partner Wednesday as she struggled with a suspect after making a cocaine buy, is the first policewoman killed in city history, the police superintendent said.

Supt. Fred Rice said ballistics tests show that plainclothes tactical unit Officer P-Relle Brandon, 33, was killed by a bullet fired by her partner, Officer Clarence Keith, during an early morning shootout at a South Side apartment.

Mrs. Brandon, the mother of three children, had been on the force for nearly six years and was described by a superior as a "very nervy and aggressive officer."

Mrs. Brandon, Keith, and two other officers went to the apartment after an informant appeared at their district station.

"Some of the less contentious spending cuts still pending before Congress could cut the deficit by about $100 billion over three years."

But an administrative official, requesting anonymity, said only about one-half of such slashes would be included in the fiscal 1985 budget Reagan will send to Congress next week.

Reagan asked Congress to act on a Constitutional amendment that would give him "line-item" veto authority on appropriations bills - meaning the president could scuttle particular projects without killing entire bills. As for reducing deficits, he said the primary emphasis must be on spending reductions, not new taxes.

Reagan said he asked Trademart President Donald T. Regan to come up with specific recommendations by his cabinet to simplify the tax code.
Italy may sever ties with Vatican

ROME (AP) — The Socialist leader of Italy told the Senate Wednesday of major changes proposed in its ties with the Vatican. Roman Catholicism would cease to be the state religion and Rome would lose its status as a "sacred city." The change Premier Bettino Craxi presented to the upper house of Parliament are in a proposed revision of the Holy See's 54-year-old accord with the Vatican and the increasingly secular Italian state.

In a TV speech, he said the revisions would overcome the current "unsuitable and anachronistic" ties.

They would not alter the status of Vatican City as an independent state run by the pope in the heart of Rome. Although most Italians are Catholics, divorce is legal and the country has one of Western Europe's most liberal abortion laws, and Italian voters have rebuffed church-backed bids to overturn the laws.

The proposals reflect Italy's secular trend, with the church giving up many privileges including financial ones. Under Craxi's proposal, religious education would be given only to children whose parents want it; special privileges no longer would be given to arrest and crime, and Rome would lose the "sacred city" designation allowing banning of books the church found unacceptable.

In an unrecorded vote, the Senate gave its backing late Wednesday to the government's negotiations with the Vatican — although parliamentary approval is technically not needed. The lower House of Parliament, the Chamber of Deputies, debates the proposals Thursday.

base for funding; not just for us but for all public service agencies," Sorell said.

Shaw said he was "disappointed the governor didn't take the other position on the tax increase extension," but understood that "it was a hard call for the governor to make, particularly in an election year."

Shaw said Thompson missed an opportunity to make a serious investment in education.

"It's clear that as a society and an economy an educated workforce is more important than ever before," he said.

Shaw said that a decision whether budget cuts, a tuition increase or both would be necessary for next year's budget would have to wait until Thompson's budget message in March.

"Last year, Thompson called on the Legislature to pass a pm mantex, multi-billion dollar tax increase package to avert a fiscal crisis and maintain a "decent" level of state services, Thompson said he changed his mind because he "doesn't see a reason" for a permanent tax increase anymore because of the state's continued economic growth.

The people of Illinois "made a sacrifice last year to keep the state going," he said. "The trust and confidence on the people's part ought to be repaid."

On July 1, the state's personal income tax rate will return to 4.5 percent from its present 3 percent. The corporate income tax rate will decrease back to 4 percent from its present 4.6 percent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new, more accurate Soviet medium-range nuclear missile that could pose a wider threat to Western Europe has been spotted in East Germany for the first time, U.S. intelligence sources said Wednesday.

That sighting of an SS-22 rocket that could mark the start of the weapons deployment on Soviet allied territory in response to placement of new U.S. medium-range missiles in Western Europe, said the sources, who spoke on condition they remain anonymous.

The 560-mile-range SS-22, developed to replace old SS-12 missiles, never before has been reported deployed in Europe.

The SS-22 was seen at Bernsdorf, East Germany, about 33 miles west of the Polish border, the sources said. From such a position, the SS-22 could hit targets throughout Western Europe. The sources said from such a position, the SS-22 could hit targets throughout Western Europe.

Leadership needed for tax extension plan

ELECTION YEARS are always rainy things for politicians. They are always looking for a way to adopt a permanent 50 percent income tax increase, but could only get a one-year hike, which is due to expire June 30. This year, however, the governor has changed his tune and announced that he will not support an extension of the tax increase.

Writing in the Weekly Review, Thompson predicted that the state can reduce taxes and increase services without creating a budget deficit.

In a memo based on the belief that the national economic recovery will be large enough and last long enough to sweep Illinois in to the black, Thompson says that even if prices rise and the inflation will, so the theory goes, create added revenue which will offset the reduction of the tax rate.

All the more reason, then, such a development would certainly be welcome. But it's also possible that Big Jim's decision to abandon his fight for a permanent tax hike is based more on politics than economics.

NO POLITICIAN, particularly in an election year, likes a tax increase. And although Thompson isn't up for re-election, a lot of his fellow Republicans in the Legislature are, and as the symbolic leader of the party he is understandably reluctant to lead what would definitely be an unpopular battle. Thompson also will be heading up President Reagan's re-election campaign in Illinois if he manages to run, and the president has made a very successful career of opposing taxes.

Chancellor Kenneth Shaw has predicted that without the tax extension, the state's potential revenue will indeed increase more than the 6.5 percent recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education. Similarly, the IDOE's plan to raise salaries for faculty and staff by 7 percent may also be jeopardized without the extension.

BUT STUDENTS and higher education officials aren't the only ones who will suffer if the tax increase isn't extended. The prisons system remains overcrowded, the welfare offices remain full and various state-funded capital development projects remain unfinished.

Governor Thompson is not responsible for the economic problems that continue in the state, but he could have provided the leadership to help solve them by making the temporary tax hike a permanent one.

Thompson should follow the example of Utah Governor Scott Matheson, who is ignoring the protests of state legislators and promoting a state tax increase to improve the quality of education in Utah. During a three-day tour of his state, Matheson found surprising public support for his plan to retain a half-per cent "temporary" increase in the sales tax and raise state income tax by the same amount.

ILLINOIS COULD take a lesson from Utah in another manner as well. By proposing a progressive state income tax and reducing less on sales taxes, which place a bigger burden on low-income families. Utah's income tax ranges from 2.75 percent to 7.75 percent, while Illinois' current tax will drop back down to 2.9 percent for all residents. A reduction in sales tax could be accompanied by distribution adjustments to make up revenue lost to local government.

But such moves would require the type of leadership that we likely won't see during an election year in Illinois.

Loan refusal won't be forgotten

Well, here it is the beginning of the semester and I'm having somewhat of a cash flow problem. You see, my student loan isn't due yet, and I only get paid every other week. Since I still need text books and other school stuff, I thought I'd get one of those short-term loans - 60 days to repay, no problem. Anyone can get one, or so I thought. Silly me.

Well, I got out the form, turned it in, and then went back to check on things, hoping for some money. After going through three different people, what am I told? My short term loan can't be OK'd until my student loan comes back from the school. (I've already paid the school and the bank).

But I need the money this week, not next week, or the week after. It kind of bothers me that I can't get a short-term loan when I need it.

I'm not eligible for financial aid outside of guaranteed loans which must mean my income is too high - which probably means that paying back $120 in 60 days is something I can handle. I don't have a student work job because I choose to work off campus - something I have done for more than six years. I've been a resident of Carbondale for 22 of my 23 years here on earth - it's not like I skip from town to town. A local bank OK'd me for a loan to buy used car, and both my parents work for the University and are alumni, as is my sister, who still resides in Carbondale. What value is it I can't get a short-term loan OK'd?

Perhaps the answer is to quit working, be poor, get money from the government. Then I bet that OK'd, too. Well, I guess you could say that I've been enlightened by one more fine example of this university's fair and nondiscriminatory policies. I mean, don't you think I feel bad enough that I can't get free money and don't have a student work job? And one more thing you can bet on - I'll certainly remember this when I'm an alum of SIUC. -

Photos tell real cost to El Salvador

WE LOVE THINGS best, and see them clearest, the poet Robert Browning told us, the first time we see them painted. The photographers of our own time are currently displaying a Collection of documentary photographs that help give a clear view of exactly what University involvement in El Salvador means.

The display includes the work of several photographers who have taken black and white images of American and Salvadoran life. The photos put the human and familiar face on the man and woman who fight for their own and Salvador's civil war.

There is nothing really new about the war. After all, photography is supposed to show us something that is recognizable forms. Still, these pictures caught me by surprise. They seem so strange, those scenes from Central America. They turn an abstraction into something I can compare to the one I know.

I AM NOT an unusually thoughtful or tearless person, but I'm difficult for me to for an alien culture until I see the people of that country suffering. For instance, to me the most striking parts of the television coverage of the civil war in Lebanon weren't the battle scenes, but the scenes of the people in the aftermath. I was ashamed to admit that until I saw those pictures, the Lebanese and Palestinians seemed so unfamiliar. I can only be surprised that they too might mourn their dead and suffer from the wounds the way Americans would.

The photos in the museum have the same effect. On one wall is a picture of five American teenagers, gang members, looking tough, staring hostilely at the camera. Another shows a group of Salvadoran soldiers in training, all the same, and the comparison obvious.

There are smiling young American lovers on the walls too, and a wedding celebration. But a similar picture of a Salvadoran wedding seems grim. A wall containing photographs of Geoff Wingham's scenes of high school football in Texas faces opposite the Salvadorans. The photos of the football players' fight includes sweat and tears on the field. The fight for the Salvadorans is depicted in dramatic titles such as "Mother of a Dead Soldier Receiving His Coffin," "Funeral Procession," and "Blood of a Slain Student."

OF COURSE, some ideas - like democracy - are worth fighting and dying for. But the balance between the expense of a fight and the success of its methods weighed against the value of the idea should determine the methods of battle. I wonder if those who call for more military aid for El Salvador while ignoring human rights issues realize the human costs those methods entail. Or do they, like me, require graphic black and white images to show them that what is being lost in El Salvador is not really depicted in horrible, realistic figures, but rather, in the faces of men and women who have their countries destroyed. I know that those who design such a policy realize that the total of 15,000 to 30,000 casualties in the 5-year-old civil war was reached by taking one human life followed by another and more.
'Bow Tie Brigade' opens office; will back Simon's Senate bid

By Jeff Wilkinson
Nafri Writer

An open house to kick off U.S. Rep. Paul Simon's Southern Illinois grassroots campaign for the U.S. Senate was held Tuesday night despite the candidate's absence.

About 50 supporters gathered at the Simon campaign headquarters at 715 S. Illinois Ave. to discuss campaign strategy.

Peter Walsh, Simon's 22nd District campaign coordinator, said the Southern Illinois campaign will focus on registering voters and canvassing Southern Illinois counties for support. "SIU-C students are under-represented and powerless because they are not voting," Walsh said. "We can change all that."

Walsh said he is confident Simon will carry Southern Illinois, but the Congressman "has to have a large turnout here to offset his anticipated losses in the Chicago area."

Walsh said that the Simon campaign will place its emphasis on getting voters out at the neighborhood and precinct level.

"We're confident we have the votes to win," Walsh said. "To solidify and increase our support in Southern Illinois counties outside of Jackson county the campaign is planning to expert workers from Carbondale. We're forming the 'Bow Tie Brigade,'" said Students for Simon head Jim Von Boeckman, "to do footwork in counties like Union and Perry."

Von Boeckman said the group has about 200 student volunteers in Southern Illinois but needs "more warm bodies" to pound the pavement for Simon beginning Feb. 4.

In addition to canvassing and registration drives, the Simon campaign is planning "P.S. I Love You" fund-raising events for all Southern Illinois counties on Valentine's Day. The Jackson County fund-raising campaign will be at 4 p.m. on Carpenter's Hall, 210 W. Willow. Tickets for the event are $5.

Dixon got challenges he wanted, and more

By Bruce Kirkham
Staff Writer

William Dixon said he was looking for a challenge when he took the job as Carbondale city manager Dec. 1, and events that have transpired since then should have provided enough challenges to keep him satisfied.

Dixon was greeted in his new job by the indefinite postponement of the construction of the downtown conference center, charge by the best NAACP of police harassment of blacks and white winter weather that would put Alaskan public service corps to the test.

Dixon has been on the job seven weeks now, and he has told an SIU-C public affairs reporting class some of the problems that lie ahead for the city.

The city will continue its efforts for redevelopment of the downtown business district, Dixon said. He described the conference center plan as a "well conceived idea."

Redevelopment would improve the downtown area by removing run-down property from the area, and the city would benefit because the conference center would function as an activity center for the city, Dixon said. In addition, he said construction and operation of a conference center could be good for area employment.

Another major project for the city is the railroad relocation project, Dixon said. The $19.5 million project is well underway, with construction of the Pleasant Hill Road overpass and the new downtown train station already completed.

The remainder of the project includes a 30-foot depression of railroad tracks through the city, for which the final design is now being drafted. The project should be completed by the end of the decade, he said.

Another project that Dixon said has been critically important to the city is the railroad relocation project, Dixon said. The $19.5 million project is well underway, with construction of the Pleasant Hill Road overpass and the new downtown train station already completed.

The city's current economic development, Dixon said, is centered on the railroad relocation project, Dixon said. In addition, he said the city should continue to work on the problems that lie ahead for the city.

"Another problem facing the city manager is what to do about the increasing demand for social services when funds available for the programs continue to diminish," Dixon said. "The city's task is to find the 'best blend of services that maximizes the resources available to the city' on economic development, Dixon said, the city should strive to broaden and diversify its current economic base as a means of maintaining further development. The city should retain what it has and develop on it," he said.

Dixon expressed support for the Illinois Open Meetings Act, which he said has been good for local government. The act is designed to protect governmental bodies from conducting secret meetings which could affect the public.

Dixon said the act specifies three subjects on which governmental bodies can conduct closed sessions: matters concerning land acquisition, personnel and pending litigation.

SIU-C housing is considering installing private telephone lines in all residents' rooms and doing away with the present party line system, according to housing director Samuel Rinella.

"We're excited about the idea. I think we've needed it for a long time," Rinella said Wednesday.

With the deregulation of American Telephone and Telegraph Co. Jan. 1, housing can now seek companies other than its present one, General Tel, which Rinella said is becoming too costly for the University.

"According to police, the victim, a female, called Synergy at about 10:30 p.m. and said she had swallowed some pills and was drinking Everclear, a grain alcohol, in an attempt to kill herself," SIU-C Security police said.

After the victim hung up, the employee called Brush Towers Crisis Center reporting a possible suicide attempt at Mae Smith Tower.

Week slated to highlight financial aid opportunities

By Elizabeth Shipton
Staff Writer

The opportunity for students to continue their education with financial aid assistance is the objective of the second annual Illinois Financial Aid Awareness Week February 5-11. Informing the public of all the aid available to finance a college education is the key to awareness week, said Janet Jeffries, public relations coordinator of student work and financial assistance.

"We want parents, community members and students to be aware of all the aid that is available and the importance of applying before the April 1 deadline," Jeffries said.

High school counselors and community college advisors will receive information about aid programs to distribute to students including loans and grants available, the applications needed and when to apply during the week.

A financial aid newsletter will be sent to all parents of students admitted to SIUC for the fall to explain the various Illinois loan programs they and their child should consider. About 75 percent of the students attending SIUC receive some type of financial aid assistance, Jeffries said.

During awareness week Jeffries has scheduled several presentations at resident halls on financial aid opportunities and will make the ACT Family Financial Statement available for students in the dorms during the week.

"Having the awareness week during February is important because we try to stress applying for financial aid the earliest date possible before the April 1 deadline. Some programs are on the first-come, first-served basis and applicants must apply promptly," Jeffries said.

Pilot's act upheld

ST LOUIS (AP) — A pilot did "what he was supposed to do" by putting a USAir jet into a 21/4-mile dive after the cabin suddenly began losing pressure at 22,000 feet, aviation officials said Wednesday.

The incident Monday night aboard the British Aerospace 111 twinjet caused no injuries among the four-member crew or 56 passengers.

The pilot "did the appropriate maneuver. He did really what he was supposed to do," by diving 10,000 feet, said John Ellis, a regional public affairs officer for the Federal Aviation Administration.

McGovern backers to meet

A campaign organization for Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern is forming on campus.

The group, George McGovern for Illinois, will meet at 12:30 p.m. and 2 p.m. Thursday in the Kaskaskia Room of the Student Center to organize and discuss strategies for the campaign in Southern Illinois. Anyone interested is welcome to attend either meeting, said Harvey Woods, coordinator of the group.

Woods said the group will attempt to reach both students and other voters in the Southern Illinois area.

"It's a long race. Anything can happen," he said. "The race will get closer as it goes on."

Group to send delegation to arms freeze meeting

By Phillip Fiorini
Staff Writer

Southern Illinoisans interested in forming a delegation to the Illinois Nuclear Weapons Freeze Voters Convention will meet at 7 p.m. Friday in the Wesley Foundation.

If a find congessional district delegation is formed, a representative will have an opportunity to endorse candidates for the presidency and U.S. Senate at the freeze convention Feb. 24-26 in Peoria, said Tom Stephenson, chairman of Illinois Freeze Voters.

Stephenson of Chicago, will explain the goals, actions and plans of the Freeze Voters at Friday's meeting.

Joyce Fry, a member of the Mid-America Peace Project and a host for the meeting, said all people concerned about the direction of the nuclear arms race and improving national security should attend and pledge to be a freeze voter.

She said that before the March 20 state primary election, freeze voters will canvas, arrange phone calls and conduct other forms of educating the public on the freeze issue.

To form a delegation, $100 must be pledged to the Freeze Voters. Nick Rion, a member of MAFP, said that the candidate for the Freeze Voters endorsement, could receive $50.000 to $100,000 from the federal freeze voters campaign.

Rion said that he believes the freeze voters will endorse U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, who is running for the U.S. Senate.

Farmer wins fight with coal company

NEW ATHENS (AP) - A 78-year-old farmer took the nation's largest coal producer, turned down millions of dollars for his property and won a five-year battle to keep the land he loved.

And neither Peabody Coal Co. nor the 45 miners laid off because of Phillip Fiorini's refusal to sell his 460-acre farm publicly criticized his decision.

"I don't think they fault him at all," said Edwin Cockerell.

Grade school class produces child abuse film

MARINETTA, Ga. (AP) - A group of elementary school students who want to "make a contribution to the community" have produced, written and acted in a seven-minute film about child abuse. "It was so prise. at the seriousness of the acting," said Stan Lynch, a teacher at Runberry Elementary School, said Wednesday. That was my biggest question, whether they could actually put themselves in a role like that.

"But fear was something that they definitely understood, and when you see these kids acting it out, it really paints a picture of what child abuse is really like," he said.

"I said that the 24 students in his language arts class decided to make a film as their entry in the Georgia Student Media Festival and chose the topic of child abuse because they had just read a book on the subject as a class assignment.

Each student wrote a script, and then the class as a whole selected 10-year-old Kirit Mat Lester's script for the final production. Lynch said that the seven actors in the production were selected by a vote of the class, with the other students taking the jobs of producer, sound engineer, prop crew and cameramen.

"None of the students had experience in sound or video before," Lynch said. "And they had to be responsible for a lot of the work on their own. But they went with it and did it.

"The kids wanted to make this film, as realistic as possible. They understand the seriousness of the problem and wanted to make a contribution to the community through this production.

In the film, "Child Abuse From the Eyes of the Student," Kirit Mat plays a young girl who is abused regularly by her mother.

The mother punishes her for not cleaning her room, so Kirit Mat and her sister and brother go to a neighbor's house for help and protection.

When a police officer arrives to investigate, the mother begins making excuses to explain Kirit Mat's injuries. "She fell on the steps and hit her head," the mother says. "She's always making up lies.

The police officer is not convinced by the mother's story, and the children are taken away to live in a shelter. The film ends with the mother beginning counseling sessions with a social worker.

Kirit Mat said she "didn't understand how kids were getting abused" before reading the child abuse book and writing the script. She said she hoped it will relay the message to other students that "if they've got a friend who's getting abused, they should help them."

Nine-game home win streak to be put on line by men cagers

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

The men's basketball team will defend its nine-game home winning streak and try to hang onto its third place position in the Missouri Valley Conference standings against Drake Thursday afternoon at the Arena. Tipoff is set for 7:35 p.m.

The Salukis, 15-5 overall and 4-2 in the conference, have 10 games remaining, all MVC games. Since four are against front-runners Illinois State and Tulsa, SIU-UC has few losses to spare if they hope to maintain their conference-leading status.

Drake, meanwhile, was picked to finish fourth in the MVC in a preseason coaches poll, but has stumbled since the season started. The Bulldogs are 6-5 in the MVC and 4-11 overall. In their last game, they lost to West Texas A&M 87-78 on the road last Thursday.

At the season's outset, the Bulldogs had high hopes of re-establishing themselves as winners after posting a combined 21-30 mark in Coach Gary Garner's first two years at the helm. Garner replaced Bob Ortegel, who in 1981 led Drake to its first NIT trip with a 14-10 record.

But Drake's hopes of returning to glory were dashed when Garver's first two years at the helm were marked by inconsistency. "Winning gives people confidence to the team and prestige to the individual," said Vogel, in his 21st year at SIU-UC with a 151-55 record. What counts in gymnastics is the squad's overall score. Gymnastics teams are ranked according to their top four scores averaged together, with at least one score coming from a home meet. Vogel said that according to NCAA rules, only about six of 18 teams in SIU-UC's region will make the regionals.

SIU-UC's score of 175.60 in a loss to Jacksonville State (176.15 points) was good enough to place the Salukis fourth although it did not help their win-loss record. Alabama tops the rankings with a 178.3 mark. Counting SIU-UC's road score of 167.55 at the Mizzou Quad, the Salukis would fall to sixth in the average-meet over MVC last weekend, and will be resting for their meet with the Salukis.

"We're just, trying to get up mentally for the meet," Patton said. "We know SIU is a better team than Illinois and that going into the meet with that attitude." Patton dismissed any problem beating Drake.

Starr Wittering has helped lead SIU-UC to a 12-3 record and first place in the Gateway Conference. The 6-2 forward leads the Gateway in shooting percentages, the Midwest in free-throw accuracy and is the brother of Lewis Lloyd. Lloyd is averaging 11.8 points per game. The Salukis face Illinois State, Saturday at 7 p.m., at Normal, and Tulsa stand above them in the conference standings. Those teams are the only ones to challenge the Salukis, rate as "average" according to Garner because "everyone is average." See CAGERS, Page 15

Men swimmers seek sixth dual meet win

By Scott Rich
Staff Writer

Two hungry swim teams will meet head-on Saturday when the Salukis travel to Iowa to take on the Hawkeyes.

Iowa, 8-6, is coming off an impressive 6-4-1 thrashing of Big 10 rival Indiana. The Hawkeyes love nothing better than to finish their dual meet season with an undefeated record.

The Hawkeyes were picked eighth in the season as a favorite. Up to this point, they've been the Big 10, but their latest victory puts them in the position to bring home the Big 10 title.

Saluki Coach Bob Steele said his team will be "very close" and could go down to the last second. "They've made a big commitment to win all of their dual meets," Steele said.

"Which is a big motivator for us. They've shaved and rested for the win-loss win streak so far and that's the reason we're going into the meet with that attitude," Patton said.

"They're just, trying to get up mentally for the meet," Patton said. "We know SIU is a better team than Illinois and that going into the meet with that attitude." Patton dismissed any problem beating Drake.

If the Hawkeyes can't beat the Salukis, they won't be part of any Big Ten team planning to qualify for national championships. The Hawkeyes are 5-1, blasted Nebraska 82-31 in their last outing and are seeking to beat a team, which would boost SIU-UC's dual meet record to 6-1.

"We're not looking to win the distance events," Patton said. "I know Andrei Grinham and (Gary) Brinkman can beat our distance swimmers so we'll concentrate on the other events.

Neither the top performers on the Iowa squad that Patton said he was looking forward to seeing, Tom Williams, Mike Curley, David Ross and Chris Coveney, nor the freestyle events, turned in a Big Ten season-best time of 20.88 in the 50 free during the Iowa State meet, and according to Steele, "we're not looking to win the event, we're just looking to beat them.

"Our final dual meet," Steele said, "is the only events that are clear-cut wins for his team. We're shooting for 6-2 but they have a great player in Williams.

"Winning gives people confidence to the team and prestige to the individual," said Vogel, in his 21st year at SIU-UC with a 151-55 record. What counts in gymnastics is the squad's overall score. Gymnastics teams are ranked according to their top four scores averaged together, with at least one score coming from a road meet and at least one score coming from a home meet. Vogel said that according to NCAA rules, only about six of 18 teams in SIU-UC's region will make the regionals.

SIU-UC's score of 175.60 in a loss to Jacksonville State (176.15 points) was good enough to place the Salukis fourth although it did not help their win-loss record. Alabama tops the rankings with a 178.3 mark. Counting SIU-UC's road score of 167.55 at the Mizzou Quad, the Salukis would fall to sixth in the regionals.

Senior Pam Turner entered this season as probably the squad's top all-around gymnast. Turner, though, started the season with a 32.40 mark at the Mizzou Quad. Vogel dismissed Turner's season-opening score, saying it was "typical" of her to begin the season with a low mark. He said he believes she will start rolling once she gets a couple of meets behind her.

"Pam should be scoring 36s every time she walks out on the floor," Vogel said. Monday night against Jacksonville State, a leading contender for the Division II championship, Turner rebounded to post a 36.25, including a school-record 9.5 floor exercise mark.

Freshman Michelle Spillman has topped Turner's marks in both meets this season with a 34.8 at the Mizzou Quad and a 34.43. She claimed second place in the MVC's all-around title last week.

Defense has earned Saluki Chris George a starting role for SIU-UC. The Salukis take on Drake at the Arena-Thursday night.
