More jets land in Iran; oil spill trickling down

United Press International

Allied bombing turned the flow of oil in the massive Persian Gulf spill to a "trickle," U.S. military officials said Monday, while flights of Iraqi jets into Iran grew rapidly.

As hundreds of allied bombing raids continued over Iraq and Kuwait, both sides showed their determination in the war that was 12 days old.

President Bush declared that the war against Iraq is "a just war and ... a war we will win."

And Iraqi strongman Saddam Hussein came out of hibernation for his first interview with a western organization since the war began.

Peter Arnett of Cable News Network said he met Saddam in a suburban Baghdad house and would air the interview, which he described as "chilling," later.

An 11th U.S. warplane was downed Monday but the fate of the pilot was not immediately known.

After a day of quiet from Scud attacks, Iraq launched two more of the Soviet-made missiles Monday.

One launched toward Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, was shot down by the U.S.-made Patriot missile and the other, heading toward Tel Aviv in Israel, apparently fell short, U.S. officials said. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

The allies were sending experts and equipment into the gulf area to do what they could to restrict or break up the oil spill, believed the largest in history.

Allied forces on Saturday bombed pipes feeding the source of the gulf oil slick, an offshore Kuwaiti tanker terminal.

The allies say the slick started when Iraq opened the valves but Iraq claims it came from U.S.-led bombing.

U.S. Navy Capt. David Herrington, director of intelligence for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said oil going into the slick appeared to have gone "down to a trickle."

He also said that so far the 10-by-25-mile slick had not washed up on the shores of either Kuwait or Saudi Arabia.

A second slick, from Kuwaiti storage tanks shelled by Iraqi forces, however was lapping Saudi shores and fouling the wildlife.

The number of Iraqi planes that have flown into Iran numbers more than 80, according to Army Lt. Gen. Tom Kelly, chief of operations for the joint chiefs.

Of this number, he said there were more than 60 fighter-bombers and more than 20 transport planes.

Military officials said they did not know the exact reason why the planes were leaving Iraq — whether to save them for another day, whether they were forming for an attack through Iran airspace on the U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf or whether the pilots were defecting.

U.S. officials said they were glad the pilots were out of the action.

Professor: Spill impact unknown

By Brandi Tipps
Staff Writer

Although the Persian Gulf has been polluted with millions of barrels of oil, an SIUC environmentalist had a few suggestions for cleaning it up.

The spill, started Jan. 26 through Iraqi controlled spigots, has grown into a slick 35 miles long and 10 miles wide.

It is alleged Iraqi President Saddam Hussein ordered the spill to cause obstacles for allied forces moving in the gulf.

Daniel Roby, assistant professor of cooperative wildlife research, said the Persian Gulf war will make cleanup more difficult.

People can do little once the oil has dispersed, Roby said, but people must try to protect the estuaries, salt marshes, and streams that

Gulf war soldiers, spouses exempt from taxes

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

U.S. citizens serving in Operation Desert Storm and their spouses qualify for tax exemptions, an Internal Revenue Service official said.

In addition, Illinois legislators support state tax provisions for military personnel serving in the gulf.

President George Bush designated the region surrounding and including the Persian Gulf as a combat zone Jan. 17.

No matter how long a person serves in a combat zone, he or she has 180 days after leaving the combat zone to file 1990 federal income tax returns, said Kris Zini, spokeswoman for the IRS.

The IRS also will suspend any action to collect back taxes, and no penalties or interest will be added to any tax due, said Daniel Black, IRS Springfield district director.

The law for tax exemptions for military personnel serving in a combat zone was originated in the 1950s and was used last during the Vietnam War.

Another IRS provision states that military pay received while serving in the combat zone is exempt from income tax, Black said.

All military pay is exempt for enlisted men, as is the first $500 of commissioned officers' salaries, Black said.

Troops are given imminent danger pay of $100 per month on top of their normal salary, which

Applicants win court appeal after liquor licenses denied

Circuit Court Judge J. Phil Gilbert denied Carbondale a second hearing Monday, upholding the state liquor commission's ruling that the city must grant two local businessmen liquor licenses.

John Ham, owner of Saluki Laundromat on U.S. Highway 51 south of Carbondale, and Dennis Immen, owner of Murphy's Bar and Grill on East Walnut Street, have been battling the city for liquor licenses since summer. The businessmen want to open liquor stores on U.S. 51 south of Pleasant Hill Road.

Every city council member will be in contempt of court if the council does not comply with the ruling, said attorney Robert Schulhof, who represents both businessmen.

"The law has been on my clients' side every step of the way," Schulhof said. "We have won every step, and we've won overwhelmingly."

Both men applied for and were refused liquor licenses with the Carbondale Liquor Control Commission last summer. The businessmen appealed to the Illinois State Liquor Commission, which repealed the city's decision. The city refused to grant the licenses despite the state liquor

Soviet summit delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union agreed Monday to delay their planned February Moscow summit because of the gulf war and unresolved problems with a strategic arms reduction treaty.

The postponement "until later in the first half of this year" was announced at the White House by Secretary of State James Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmyrnykh after a one-hour meeting with President Bush.

The announcement, read in Russian and English, said, "By mutual agreement, Presidents Gorbachev and Bush will be rescheduling their summit in Moscow originally planned for February for a later date in the first half of this year."

"The gulf war makes it inappropriate for President Bush to be away from Washington. In addition, work on a Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty will require some additional time. Both presidents look forward to setting an exact summit date as soon as it becomes feasible to do so."

Bush had also been scheduled to go to Greece and Turkey on the same trip and those side trips will also be put off.

Asked if the tensions between the central Soviet government and the Baltic states were an element in the postponement, Baker said, "The statement speaks for itself."

He said he and the Soviet foreign minister spent five hours discussing the situation in the Baltics at sessions that they held Saturday and earlier Monday. They are scheduled to hold a final set of talks Tuesday.

Baker said that the problems with the START treaty are basically the ones that the two sides have been wrestling with since September when he and

Creighton ices Salukis late in game

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

It wasn't the 'Dynamic Duo,' but the 'Iceman' that put the freeze on the Salukis Monday night.

Creighton's Matt Petty, in his first game back from when he suffered a concussion a week ago, hit two free throws with seven seconds left in the game to seal the Bluejays' 78-75 victory.

The Salukis won in every statistical category except the final score. SIUC dominated Creighton's highly regarded inside team of Chad Gallagher and Bob Harstad, out-rebounding the Bluejays 41-22.

Rick Shipley and Ashraf Amaya combined for 19 of those boards.

The Salukis also took 13 more shots than Creighton, but the Bluejays' 51 percent from the field compared to SIUC's 44 percent was the difference in the contest.

The Salukis controlled the tempo throughout most of both halves. It wasn't until with 3:58 left in the game, when Gallagher fouled out that Creighton picked up the momentum to take a lead.

Petty hit two 3-pointers in the last two and a half minutes to put the Bluejays on top 72-69.

The Salukis slowed the ball down looking for a good shot, but that gave the Bluejays time to collect themselves and make a last surge for the victory.

With 33 seconds left, Creighton's Duan Cole drove the lane for a bucket and is fouled. He converted the 3-point play, putting the Bluejays up 75-71.

Sterling Mahan raced the length of the court before picking up a foul with :29 on the clock. He hit the second of two free throws to make the score 75-72.

Creighton's Latrell Wrightsell was sent to the line on the other end of the court, hitting one of two.

With SIUC down 76-72, Mahan again drove the length of the floor, dishing off to Shipley, who hit a 3-pointer with 13 seconds remaining.

SIUC called a timeout, down by one.

Shipley fouled Petty, who nailed both free throws, and SIUC was unable to get off a last second shot.

The game see-sawed back and forth for most of the 40 minutes, but SIUC was able to manage an 8-point lead at 8:10 in the second half.

The Dawgs continuously pounded the ball up-court, picking up 24 points off the transition.

When SIUC slowed it down they went to Amaya, who finished with a game-high 20 points, and Shipley, who notched 17 tallies.

When Shipley and Amaya denied Harstad and Gallagher room to maneuver inside, Creighton went to the Missouri Valley Conference leading 3-point shooter Duan Cole. Even though he only put up one 3-point shot, Cole penetrated the Saluki defense and poured in 19 points to lead the Bluejays' scoring attack.

The Arena crowd of 7,440 was one of the largest this season and played a definite role in the ballgame.

"This is a very tough place to play," said Creighton assistant coach Dick Fick, who stood in for Head Coach Tony Barone, who was with his ill mother in Chicago. "SIUC has such great basketball fans, they show such great emotion. And it's such a tough place to play because of that. I'm really proud of our guys for overcoming that.

"We wanted to pick up Coach Barone tonight," Fick said. "SIUC is always picking the team up, I hope word of this ballgame gets to him to pick him up."

The loss was the Salukis first conference defeat at home, putting them at a 4-3 in the Valley. Creighton upped its record to 6-3 in conference action.

"We've struggled on the road and we wanted to stay undefeated at home," Tyrone Bell said. "We'll just have to overcome some mistakes late in the game to be successful."

The Salukis continue MVC action Thursday night at Bradley.

Salukis Marcelo da Silva and Kelvan Lawrence trap Creighton's Duan Cole in the corner, but Cole was able to break free to collect 19 points and lead Creighton to a 78-75 win over SIUC Monday night in the Arena.

Red Grange dies at 87

LAKE WALES, Fla. (UPI) —Red Grange, the famed Galloping Ghost who became the first major college football star to sign a pro contract, died Monday of complications from pneumonia. He was 87.

He died early in the morning at the Lake Wales Hospital Extended Care Facility.

Grange galvanized the sports world in the 1920s with his play at the University of Illinois. He was one of the most luminous stars in that golden age of American sports, an era that produced baseball's Babe Ruth, boxing's Jack Dempsey and tennis's Bill Tilden.

"For over 60 years, his name has been synonymous with football, certainly Illinois football," Illinois Athletic Director John Mackovic said. "We've been fortunate to call him one of our own. I think the whole football world has been fortunate to call Red Grange one of our own."

The university planned a moment of silence before Monday night's Illinois-Iowa basketball game at Champaign, Ill.

Grange's No. 77 became the most famous football number in the country, along with his nicknames,

Football revenue shows improvement

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

While the 1990-91 school year is just past the halfway mark, indications are that the SIUC football program is on course for an improved financial finish.

The projected income for 1990-91 fiscal school year is $477,000 and the projected expenditure budget is at $738,252.

The final, exact figures won't be in until after the school year is over, but in comparison to the past few seasons the improvements are evident.

The 1989-90 income was just $277,448.34 and the expenses were $676,670.05, for a difference of $399,223.71. The difference between the projected income and spend budget for this year is $261,25.

The majority of the additional money brought in this year has been through the Salukis guaranteed income from its away games against the University of Illinois and the University of South Carolina. SIUC's trips to these two Division I schools upped the guaranteed income from $132,500 in 1989-90 to a projected $355,000 in 1990-91.

"I arranged the Illinois game and it definitely was a monetary consideration," Associate Athletics Director Charlotte West said. "I think it's important to get at least one money game per year to decrease our costs. This year we had two."

West said scheduling Division I programs isn't a quick task. For example, a few years ago she tried to get the University of Indiana on the schedule. The Indiana representative said it would not be possible until at least 1996.

The South Carolina game came See FOOTBALL, Page 14

St. John's cracks Top 5 in UPI's basketball poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — St. John's, the top team in the most powerful conference in the nation, moved into the Top 5 Monday in the United Press International college basketball ratings.

Nevada-La. Vegas was the unanimous No. 1 choice by the UPI Board of Coaches for the seventh straight week, while No. 3 Ohio State moved past Indiana following a win over the Hoosiers.

The Big East has been college basketball's predominant league all season, placing at least four members in the Top 25 every week. None of its nine teams has a losing record, and it is the only conference in the nation in which each school had at least nine wins through Sunday.

However, Big East members have been conspicuously absent from the Top 5 since conference play began a month ago and teams started knocking each other off. Every team in the Big East already has at least two losses in the conference, the earliest point in the season that has happened.

St. John's, 15-2, was not ranked in UPI's preseason ratings, but has gradually moved up the list all year. The Redmen took over the Big East lead on the strength of five straight wins, including close victories last week over Connecticut and Villanova.

"Look at the number of (Big East) games decided in the last minute or so, and we've been involved in about five of them," said St. John's Coach Lou Carnesecca, who gained his 499th career victory in Saturday's win over Villanova.

This season, the Redmen have posted an overtime win over Providence, a two-point triumph over Pittsburgh and three-point victories over Connecticut and Villanova. In addition, St. John's

SIUC inks 10 JUCO recruits

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

The SIUC football team has spent quite a bit of time trying to improve its size this winter. Of course the returning players are getting bigger in the weightroom, but the most important expansion has come through recruiting.

The Salukis has added ten junior college prospects since the 1990 season ended. Usually head coach Bob Smith likes to do the majority of his recruiting from the high school ranks, but he believes his team needs the immediate improvement the JUCO recruits can provide.

"Hopefully this is a one-time departure from our basic recruiting philosophy," Smith said. "Our intentions are to rebuild SIUC's football program with top high school recruits, but we have some voids in certain areas and felt we needed more immediate help."

The recruit that could make the biggest splash could be 6-foot-5, 215-pound Doug Amaya. Amaya played one year at the University of Illinois before leaving the school. He is the brother of Saluki sophomore basketball player Ashraf Amaya.

The Saluki defense, which will not have the services of seniors Kevin Kilgallon, Marty Hochertz and Brian Miller next season, received a boost from the JUCO recruiting.

Six of the 10 players signed are defenders. Defensive coordinator Gerry Hart said the new players will definitely impact his defense.

"The new players will provide a lot of competition at all the positions," Hart said. "That good competition makes for a better team. And it will also add much to our depth."

Challenger crew honored on anniversary of disaster

United Press International
 NASA workers observed 73 seconds of silence to honor the five astronauts and two civilians who perished aboard the space shuttle Challenger five years ago Monday in history's worst space disaster. On board were commander Francis "Dick" Scobee, co-pilot Michael Smith, Ellison S. Onizuka, Ronald McNair, Judith A. Resnik, civilian satellite engineer Gregory Jarvis and New Hampshire high school teacher Christa McAuliffe. The shuttle was destroyed by the rupture of a faulty solid-fueled booster, grounding the U.S. manned space program for two years.

Terrorist attack expected at Bush address

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Capitol is mounting extremely tight security, perhaps the most stringent in history, to guard against any terrorist attack during President Bush's State of the Union address Tuesday night. The Capitol has been the target of terrorist attacks three times in the last half-century and Jack Russ, the House sergeant-at-arms, has called the building the "No. 1" target in the United States since the start of the war against Iraq. "We don't know how we're going to be hit. We just believe we are going to be hit," Russ said.

Prof: Finance students face job competition

MUNCIE, Ind. (UPI) — Excellent communication skills are becoming essential to finding a job in the shrinking financial services industry, says a Ball State University finance professor. "It will be tougher to find employment in today's banking industry, which has suffered from many ills caused in the 1980s when leveraged buyouts, mergers and acquisitions eliminated thousands of jobs," said Ball State's Grant Wells. "There will be even more jobs lost in the coming years. If graduates want to find jobs, they will have to make themselves more marketable."

Gulf crisis brings oil company record profits

United Press International
 ARCO, the ninth largest U.S. oil company, said Monday it had achieved record company profits in 1990 as a result of oil markets' price-boosting reaction to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. "ARCO is reporting records in both earnings and earnings per share for 1990," ARCO chairman Lodwick Cook said. "Third and fourth quarter increases in crude oil prices as a result of market reaction to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait in August played an important role in our earnings improvement."

Children's agency accused of abuse, settles out of court

CHICAGO (UPI) — The beleaguered Illinois Department of Children and Family Services Monday announced the settlement of one of three major lawsuits charging it sometimes hurts, rather than helps, abused and neglected children. The agreement calls for the state to make available to poor families grants up to $800 each to help them upgrade living conditions and avoid having their children taken into foster care. It would pay initial rent, security deposits, utility charges or necessary furniture.

Graphics design tough, but worth it

Grad student to sing recital

The SIUC School of Music will present a graduate recital by soprano Mara Rice at 8 tonight in the Old Baptist Foundation Recital Hall.

Rice, graduate student in opera/music theater said tonight marks her first solo recital at SIUC. The recital will fulfill part of the requirements for a master's degree in opera/music theater. Students seeking the degree are required to do an in-depth thesis or a graduate recital and musical document.

Rice said it was easier for her to do the recital now and write her document on soprano performance techniques at a future time because she is singing in McLeod Theater's "The Abduction from the Seraglio," in April.

The recital includes songs in many languages. She said she selected the pieces for different reasons.

Her family lives on a dairy farm, and her children were tired of not understanding the songs in foreign languages so she picked several songs from "A Child's Garden of Verses," by Seymour Barab. The songs, in English, depict the happenings on a farm.

Rice said she likes them all but if she had to pick one, "Bravour-Variationen (or on a theme by Mozart)" would be her favorite.

"The theme is a variation of 'Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star.' It should be very exciting," Rice said. "There are a lot of technical things in the piece."

Students in commercial graphics design agree that although their major is hard work, it's worth it.

Some of their talents can be seen at Morris Library, where they are on display in the lobby of the main entrance.

"Many people think that we are associated with the School of Art and Design, but the commercial graphics design program is actually in the College of Technical Careers," said John Yack, coordinator of the program.

Classes meet in the College of Technical Careers Annex, which is the smaller of the two blue barracks located behind the women's softball field.

Commercial graphics design includes a two-year and a four-year program and requires prospective students submit a portfolio of their work.

"There are approximately 200 inquiries about the commercial graphics design program, and of that about 90 complete the initial process of enrollment into the program," Yack said. "And of those 90, approximately 45 students are accepted."

As of fall semester, 46 students are enrolled in commercial graphics design.

"We start with perfection and work our way up from there," Yack said. "It's a tough program, and we stress accuracy and discipline, which are very important elements of success."

Yack said that the SIUC commercial graphics design program has a national reputation for turning out skilled people.

"We pride ourselves on that," he said. "Our department is one of the best kept secrets on campus."

The Advanced Technical Studies program, which offers a Bachelor's degree, gives students the opportunity to do work for actual clients.

Local businesses can commission students to design logos or graphics for letterheads, envelopes, business cards and folders which are used as class projects. If a student-created logo is chosen by the business, the student may receive a nominal fee.

Michelle Stokes, sophomore, created the logo for Carbondale Business Developments. The company now uses the logo on its letterheads, envelopes and business cards. Stokes was paid $100 for her services.

"By assisting the local businesses, we help develop a good relationship between the community and the University," Yack said.

The Morris Library showcases display the works of both first and second year students, and the works completed for actual clients by ATS students.

These works were created by first year students, who study the fundamentals of drawing, layout and typography—the setting and printing of type.

The second showcase displays logos, color key prints which are made by adding color to the print's negative and marker renderings created by students in the first semester of their second year.

Displayed in the third showcase are billboard designs, marker renderings and a Chinese talismant container, which is an example of three-dimensional product design.

These works illustrate the techniques that the students have learned in the second semester of their second year.

On display in the fourth showcase are the designs created for clients, including the 1990 Murphysboro Apple Festival poster and brochure designs for Stiles Office Service and the Memorial Hospital of Carbondale.

Jonah Cagle, sophomore and president of the Advertising Design and Illustration Club, has marker renderings on display in the second and third showcases.

"I love this program," Cagle said. "It's not easy, but nothing's really worth it unless it's challenging. This program is top notch and has a high quality reputation."

Stokes, who has a color key print on display also feels that SIUC has a good commercial graphics design program.

Gulf war topic at USG meeting

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

Student leaders may get an opportunity to voice their views on the gulf war Wednesday night at the Undergraduate Student Government meeting.

USG Chief of Staff Brad Cole said although nothing on the agenda concerns the gulf, six resolutions before the senate may open a discussion on the gulf war if someone moves to accept them.

Michael Parker, a member of the Judicial Board of Governance, said he hopes that senators will take the opportunity to express their opinions on the gulf war, which began Jan. 16 when U.S. planes bombed Iraq.

"You could say it's a moot point, but it's never too late to speak your mind," Parker said.

The resolutions cover a variety of angles on the gulf war, Cole said.

When a resolution is brought before the senate, it will be up to the vice president, who presides over the meeting, to choose the method of discussion.

Although the boundaries of the discussion won't be defined until someone moves to accept one of the resolutions, both Cole and Parker said they feel the debate will last about an hour and will not include comments from the floor for time considerations.

Cole urged undergraduate students to come to the meeting and discuss their views with their senator.

According to senate rules, the discussion of a resolution is open only to senators, but the senate can vote to suspend those rules to allow comments from the floor, Cole said.

The meeting is at 7 p.m. in Student Center Ballroom B and is open to the public.

Officials get tougher on drunken drivers

LOCAL AND STATE OFFICIALS are putting the brakes on drunken drivers.

The Illinois General Assembly put into effect Jan. 1 three new drunken driving laws aimed at reducing the number of people who drink and don't think twice about getting behind the wheel.

Although the number of drunken driving accidents across the state are on a downward trend, the numbers are still far too high.

THE NEW LAWS TIGHTEN DOWN on three specific areas. The first law states that anyone who causes an injury or death on a state highway must undergo a chemical blood test.

The second law states that drivers found guilty of reckless homicide while under the influence be imprisoned from three to 14 years.

The third law states that underage drunken drivers must participate in the Youthful Intoxicated Drivers' Visitation Program as part of their probation.

THE FACT THAT ALCOHOL IS the most widely used and socially accepted drug makes combating this national problem a tough battle.

At this University, health officials estimate 90 percent of the students use alcohol on a regular basis. Last year, 30 students were required to undergo alcohol evaluations after being arrested for DUI.

DESPITE THE STEREOTYPES, drunken drivers are not monstrous people. They are mothers, fathers, teachers, teens and public leaders who have used extremely poor judgment in choosing to drink and drive.

People believe that if they are ever in an alcohol related accident, it will be as the victim and not the negligent driver.

LAW ENFORCERS AND LEGISLATORS have no choice but to continually pass and enforce stricter DUI laws.

Mandatory fines, alcohol abuse evaluations and suspension of drivers licenses are at the most light consequences for driving under the influence.

It is unfortunate that for many people it takes being slapped with a DUI citation and license suspension to sober up their common sense about drinking and driving.

Support distinct from Vietnam

Though many Americans differ in their opinions toward the war, it's important that we respect those differing opinions.

Being for or against the war doesn't make someone more or less patriotic, nor does it mean that they don't support our troops.

In my case, and I'm sure many others feel the same, I was against this course of action, but I support my family, friends and all of our men and women over there with an undying love for them and my country.

There have been many comparisons of this war to the Vietnam conflict, but there's been one great difference, and that is the support of our troops. Therefore, in one aspect we have grown up a bit as a nation.

Remember that our men and women in the gulf are there out of their obligations to the system.

Even though they may or may not agree with why they're there, the fact is that they are over there at war; and they need all of our support now more than ever.

Basically what I'm saying is that this war will affect off of us no matter how you view it or try to escape it.

I don't think any of us will fail and allow history to repeat itself like when the men came home from Vietnam. I was only one or two years old then, but I want them to know that I would have acted in their support as well.

When all is said and done, war kills. War kills sons and daughters, mothers and fathers, friends and the like.

In the case of the Gulf crisis, I have failed to hear the voice of reason. When war is still an alternative...it has not yet been spoken. Yes, we can be against war policy and support our troops because most of them are our friends and family.

(This one's for you Pvt. John Morris, my best friend.)—Sherry L. Woodson, senior, political science.

Turks performed rescue, not invasion

In his Jan. 17 letter, Mr. Georgatos called my Dec. 3 letter on the Cyprus conflict propagandistic.

If citing the chronological events from international press produces a propagandistic article, how does one write an objective article?

He would have been less "revolting" and perhaps more convinced that my article was a fair one if the DE editor did not extract most of the excerpts from the international press.

The purpose of that article was to explain that the Turkish army's intervention was a rescue operation and not an invasion.

A rescue in which Turkish-Cypriots were saved from a total massacre perpetrated by EOKA (a terrorist group dedicated to annex Cyprus to Greece), the Greek Army and their fanatic Greek-Cypriot collaborators.

The international press disclosed all the atrocities perpetrated by these groups upon the innocent Turkish-Cypriots from 1963 to 1974. Please read Daily Express, Dec. 28, 1963; Il Giorni, Feb. 14, 1964; Washington Post, Feb. 17, 1964; United Press Int., July 23, 1974; France Soir, July 24, 1974; and many more, to find out about Greek crimes.

If you don't believe the press, look in U.N. documents S/5764, S/5950, S/6102, S/7001 and S/7350. Also read the Zurich Treaty of Guarantee before you call my article propagandistic.

You cannot convince anybody of the idea of Turkish expansionism.

Turks do not have an active fascist group like EOKA and primitive Greek ideologies such as ENOSIS (annexation of Cyprus to Greece) and "Megali Idea" (or Great Idea, which is the re-creation of the Byzantine Empire at its apogee).

I am willing to discuss this issue with you, one on one, if you are not one of those Greek students who raises a finger whenever he sees a Turkish student on the campus.

It is my sincere hope that, despite the repeated non-conciliatory attitude of the Greeks, the Secretary General of the United Nations and the TRNC government renew their efforts and propose new resolutions to find a peaceful solution to the conflict.—Cengiz Alacaci, graduate, curriculum and instruction.

Warmongers doomed for Apocalypse

OK flag-wavers, line up! Be like everyone else!

Just because 90 percent of America supports Bush's actions, they must be right, right? Just like 90 percent of Nazi Germany, right?

Armchair patriots, get up and ship yourself or your children off to boot camp now to avoid the draft-time rush.

You wouldn't want this war to end before you all have a chance to die a pointless death in Arabian sands.

Empty-headed Americans unite!

Those who want peace in the gulf must all be those yucky hippies who spoiled our God-given right to bomb the crap out of Vietnam 20 years ago, and thus must be killed now!

Warmonger boobies, rush out now and sign your life over to defend a monarchy propped up by profit-greedy oil companies!

Clueless morons, don't you know that by sticking our grossly fat nose into the affairs of the Middle East we are only fanning the fires of Apocalypse.

We may win this war, but it will only set up tensions which will re-erupt within a generation.

There will be another madman like Hussein who really will have nuclear capabilities, and his first target will be America.

And we won't have been able to stop it... we'll have been too busy tie-dying right?

After all, we were just a pathetic minority.—Dan Sohn, junior, psychology; Spike Perkins, junior, english.

Saddam goes too far with spill

FOR MONTHS NOW, I have been on an emotional and intellectual rollercoaster.

I'm a veteran of the anti-Vietnam war peace movement and have always considered myself a pacifist against war in general.

Yet, I'm also a graduate student concentrating in international relations, which has given me the historical perspective to realize that there are some things in life worth fighting for.

I HAVE DETESTED the thought of going to war in the Middle East.

I prayed our government would give the economic sanctions time to work.

I've shuddered at the loss of life and the destruction taking place this last week.

Can anything justify this war? War is the ultimate obscenity.

TODAY, A SCENE shown on CNN hit me harder than any that I've seen this past week.

It has made my stomach knot and my blood is boiling.

Cormorants and other sea birds floundering in a sea of black goopy oil, the product of Saddam's continuing insanity.

A deliberate massive oil spill in the Northern Persian Gulf.

LAST WEEK, SADDAM stepped over Bush's line in the sand.

Today, he stepped over the line drawn in my mind.

He has shown he has no respect for anyone or anything. He cares for no one.

He is willing to destroy an entire environment at his whim.

CAN THERE BE ANY doubt left at all that he would show no hesitation to use any destructive force he can get his hands on to further his megalomania.

Can there be any doubt left that he fights not for principles but for power and a messianic complex.

Can there be any doubt left that he must be stopped now by any means necessary.—Bricker "Chip" Fletcher, graduate, political science.

Protesters deserve credit for voicing different political views

Robert "Sgt. Rock" Lindblom's Jan. 22 letter on America's new peace movement needs to be addressed.

Mr. Lindblom, unlike yourself, many Americans see farcical contradictions in such phrases as "a just war," a term used in your letter.

War waged for any purpose in mass murder—though in this age of remote-control conflict, soldiers can avoid bloodying their hands directly.

Unlike yourself, many Americans see hypocrisy in a war pursued to keep oil prices low.

Kuwait bought our government's help, something few other small nations can afford.

True, the Kuwaiti people have suffered under Saddam Hussein's troops—but Kurdish Iraqis were gassed to death en masse by their leader during his war with Iran. Where were we then?

At home—because Kurdish Iraqis couldn't afford to buy us.

Unlike yourself, many Americans can see beyond the immediate success of mass bombing to a very near future where U.S. infantrymen suffer huge casualties trying to roust a dug-in enemy from Kuwait.

And if Iraq is defeated, how many billions will our economically-strained country have to pay in war reparations?

Mr. Lindblom, I have never participated in a public political protest, but I admire the conviction of those who demonstrate, whether they support or oppose this war.

They deserve more respect than you give them, and they will not go away.

You quoted John Stuart Mill, and now I return the favor: "The peculiar evil of silencing the expression of an opinion is that it is robbing the human race."—Marc A. Meierkort, junior, accounting.

Calling gulf war World War III may bring unity

I wish to address this war issue in somewhat of a different slant.

We view war as an armed conflict. The conflict at hand has a number of powers involved.

We have nearly thirty countries engaged in some way or another. But we are calling this the Gulf War.

Why is this? With so many countries involved, why not call this World War III?

Webster has no definition of world war unless it is categorized either I or II.

My own view is that we see World War III as the war to end existence.

If those words have that effect on us, then we certainly have fallen into all of the mediums' hype, as to the last war.

I believe classifying this as World War III would take away that trepidation.

And World War IV, at this point, sounds way too odd for us to say or use in the same context.

Thus, the alleviation of tension by seeing World War III end, may bring a certain unity in itself.

For we must remember, no matter what we think war is for, it comes down to a conflict of opinions.—Michael Hoffmann, freshman, cinema and photography.

Basic freedom to express political opinions not appreciated by majority of Americans

God bless America! Reading the letters this past week on the gulf war, I started contemplating on how great it is to be an American.

How we, as Americans, can speak our minds on any issue—even war.

We can put down our government or praise it. It's a privilege not many people in this world can enjoy.

Recently, in Iraq, three men took over a television center and denounced Saddam Hussein and the war on Iraqi national television.

They were shot. Similarly, in South Korea, Korean students who protest against their governments are met with barrages of tear gas and often severely beaten.

Let's not forget Beijing, China and its horrible blood bath.

Whether or not I'm for or against the war doesn't really matter; it's the fact that I can praise Bush or denounce Bush in public without fearing the consequences.

Recently I saw in the DE a student holding a defaced American flag.

This really upset me because of the extreme pride that I have for my country.

I've lived overseas for over five years (three years in Europe and two years in Japan).

I've been to 26 countries and have seen starvation and the effects of war in some of them.

But of all the countries that I've been to, none compare to our beautiful country.

Even with all our domestic and economic problems, we live in a truly blessed country.

When I saw the defaced American flag, I was going to write a "hate" letter to the DE explaining how wrong it is to deface our flag.

Then I started thinking—we as Americans have that right along with many others.

No matter how opposed I may be to such an act, the fact is we are a truly privileged people to have the rights we do.

So the next time you see a group of protesters protesting something you're in agreement with, thank God and America for those rights we have.—Jeffrey "Bear" Dupuy, senior, history.

War demonstrators should spend time seeking answers instead of demonstrating

Ultimately, the greatest barrier to democracy is ignorance.

In order for democracy to work efficiently and effectively, the voting public must be well-informed.

It was disturbing to see a fellow student caught in the turmoil of war with many questions and no answers.

We have taken the liberty of expressing our opinions to some of Mr. Groble's questions.

Will the death of Hussein, his troops and weapons solve Middle-Eastern problems?

Nobody can predict the future but looking at the past shows that Middle Eastern problems were nowhere near being solved.

Certainly raping and pillaging a free nation will not solve them. The bottom line is that the United States is not there to kill Hussein, nor to solve these problems.

The United States is there to liberate Kuwait.

The United Nations chose this response and we're abiding by their agreement.

Could an agreement have been reached without a war?

Apparently not. The line was drawn and Hussein chose to ignore it.

Past experience shows us when dealing with tyrannical, dictatorial aggressors, time is of the essence, as exhibited by Hitler's rampage through Eastern Europe.

Will Kuwait be liberated because of the war?

Kuwait has a greater chance of liberation through U.N. intervention than through Iraqi aggression.

Should our government seek to end aggression against others?

U.S. Government policy maintains that if asked, the United States will come to the aid of any free nation against its aggressors.

Is economic value necessary for U.S. support of oppressed nations?

Clearly not, as exhibited by U.S.

involvement in Vietnam, South Korea, Nicaragua, etc. (See U.S. Government policy.)

Those who share the same questions with Mr. Groble and continue to protest our government's actions, may not agree with our suggested answers.

Perhaps it would be better to spend time looking for answers rather than protesting.—Amy Brannan, junior, psychology; Vasi Koufis, graduate, radio and television; Lisa Little, senior, speech communications; Greg Petrowich, senior, radio and television.

Mayor appoints 3 from SIUC to study Carbondale betting

By Leslie Clop
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council will consider approval tonight of three SIUC representatives for an 11-member off-track betting facility task force.

Harvey Welch Jr., vice president of student affairs; Harry D. Wirth, director of service enterprises; and Richard Fasano, a graduate assistant for the Wellness Center are among the five at-large members being considered. The other two at-large members being considered are Linda Flowers and Robert Stalls, both Carbondale residents.

Other task force members to be considered are Charlie Travelstead and Ron Diei from the Chamber of Commerce; Don Jackson and Collynn Pearl from the Convention and Tourism Bureau; and Bill Whitson and John Ryan from the Carbondale Business Development Corporation.

These members were appointed by Mayor Neil Dillard and must be approved by the council before serving on the task force.

"We think we will have a good cross-section of the city represented (with the proposed members)," Dillard said.

Since summer 1990, officials from Fairmount Park, a race track in Collinsville, have been in contact with city officials about locating an off-track betting facility in Carbondale.

Fairmount already has off-track betting facilities in Springfield and Grayville.

The task force will study the possible effects that a betting facility could have on the city.

"I would have preferred more students on the task force," said Charles Ramsey, president of the Graduate and Professional Student

Dillard said only one space was reserved for a student because there are only five at-large spaces available.

"I hope the students don't feel they are being shut out," he said. "We're all representing students."

Residents wanting to voice their opinions should do so by calling city council members, he said.

The council also will appoint members to an advisory committee to study the Northern Connector project.

Women deserve equal rights in selective service, combat

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

Women play an important role in the military, but the possibility of ground troops being involved in a war with Iraq has brought up many questions on women's issues.

More than 25,000 women are involved in Operation Desert Storm. They make up 6 percent of U.S. troops.

Women can participate in anything except actual combat, said Martin Binkin, military analyst for the Brookings Institution in Washington, D.C.

"Some women are involved in Patriot launchers, and an entire range of jobs gets them close to the fighting, but not as combatants," Binkin said.

Binkin said the use of women is one reason the government won't rush back to a draft.

After the draft was reinstated in 1975, the issue of registering women for Selective Service went to the U. S. Supreme Court. The court ruled it should be left to Congress and the Pentagon to decide, Binkin said.

"I would not think we'll see a draft and if we do, it won't include women," Binkin said.

Susan Hall, vice president of the SIUC Graduate and Professional Student Council, said women have proven themselves and should be allowed into all areas of the military.

"Women have shown themselves competent participants in the military," Hall said. "I see no reason why they should not be in combat, and I see no reason to exempt women from a draft if the U.S. government finds it necessary to activate one."

"Women who have chosen the military for a career are willing to accept the responsibility of combat and I feel they should be able to participate," Hall said.

Although women currently cannot be involved in front line fighting, Binkin said an Iraqi attack may result in female casualties.

"The number of casualties would depend on what strategy the Iraqis use if attempting to use artillery on the rear areas of U.S. troops," Binkin said. "Women are no closer than a few miles from the actual front."

Kathryn Ward, associate professor of sociology and coordinator of SIUC Women's Studies, said front lines are not easily defined in a conflict such as the Persian Gulf war.

"In this war there is a big difference. The front is everywhere," Ward said. "They (women) can shoot and fire weapons with the best. They are perfectly capable. The question is would we be there at all."

Ward said she thought women would be involved if a draft were used.

"It doesn't take a constitutional amendment to draft women," she said. "Women can be drafted at any time."

Women have proven they belong beside men in the battlefield, but many do not believe violence is the answer, Ward said.

Learn how men and women's expectations, roles, and interactions lay the foundation for the problem of date rape. Discussion in this presentation will focus on how to identify high risk and coercive sexual situations. Skills for protecting yourself and preventing unwanted sexual encounters will also be discussed.

City accessible to disabled

By Rennie Walker
Staff Writer

Complete accessibility for disabled people in Carbondale is not going to happen without some work.

Because SIUC has been known for over a decade for its accessibility, many disabled students are attracted to Carbondale, said Curtis Kohring, volunteer president of Partnership for Disabled Student Issues.

"Before accessibility was even in vogue, SIUC addressed it," Kohring said. "Carbondale was regarded as an accessible campus, with buildings and curb cuts, when only a few campuses nationwide were considered accessible."

The city continues working to accommodate the disabled student population, Kohring said.

He said although Carbondale has problems, the city is doing an admirable job working to meet the special needs of the disabled.

"We cannot fault the city," Kohring said. "The city officials deserve credit. They're trying."

Lois Naegle, assistant coordinator for Disabled Student Services said that overall, Carbondale is an accessible city, but problems still need to be solved.

"I think a lot has been done, but a lot still needs to be done. Fine tuning is what is needed," she said.

PDSI informs the city of structural problems in the area, such as curbs without cuts or telephones that are not reachable to disabled citizens. Kohring said the city listens to suggestions and corrects the situations.

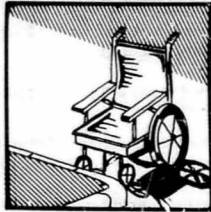

Corrections are tough on buildings that were not constructed with accessibility in mind, he said.

"You're not going to ask a business man to tear down his establishment and rebuild it," Kohring said. "But when he makes renovations, you can ask him to make changes and accommodations. You can't be unreasonable."

The city does not have a public transportation system. This is a problem for the disabled people who do not have cars, because they cannot afford one or cannot drive,

Disabled students still find some usability problems

By Rennie Walker
Staff Writer

Although many disabled students come to Carbondale for its accessibility, there are still many boundary lines that cannot be crossed by wheelchair.

Carlos Clarke-Drazen, 35, a graduate student in journalism, has gotten around in a wheelchair since she was 11 years old. She has Vitamin D deficiency, a bone disorder.

Clarke-Drazen said her limitations go beyond being able to get up a curb.

"If I want to go out to a nice meal, I have to go to one of the chain restaurants, like Burger King, Shoney's or Denny's," she said, saying that other restaurants in Carbondale do not have accessible bathrooms.

"And why should I have to get a carry out order? The whole point of going out to a restaurant is to get away from the house."

Lee Smith, a graduate student in educational psychology, said he has had problems with city blocks having a curb cut at one end and not the other. Smith has been paraplegic since 1977, when he broke his neck in a diving accident at age 16.

One of the main obstacles is transportation, Smith said. Although the University provides a transit service, disabled students cannot depend on it for a basic means of transportation, he said.

"The van service is mostly for going from off-campus to on-campus or taking people home," Smith said.

"I'm going to try to get out to the laundromat today, but I don't know how to get there. The van service is a possibility, but that's really pushing my luck."

JoAnn Milas, 27, is a senior in therapeutic recreation that has cerebral palsy. Other than working to get her bathroom in Smith Hall to accessible standards, Milas said she does not have too many problems.

"The problems are just the little things that everyone takes for granted. When they're not there, it can get really aggravating," Milas said. "Sometimes it just gets frustrating because it takes longer to do things. I could ask someone to help me if I wanted to, but I don't want to."

"If I drove around the city, looking around and assessing it, I could probably find some things wrong. But generally, as a person getting to where I went to go, I don't have much of a problem with it."

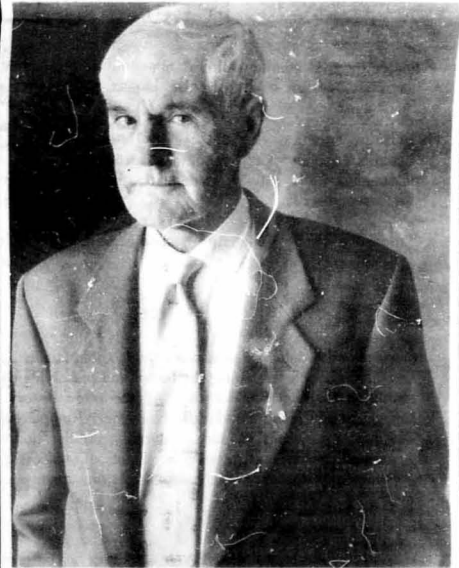

Kohring said. The stumbling block in getting a public transportation system is finding money for organization and maintenance of vehicles, Kohring said. Kohring is satisfied with the city's effort, but unhappy with the disabled population for not voicing their needs.

"They aren't an active group. It is time for them to be active," Kohring said.

AN INVITATION

TO SIU FACULTY AND PROFESSIONAL STAFF FROM SIU IEA CHAPTERS

Even if you are not yet a member of IEA-NEA, our organization is working on your behalf at the national, state, and local level.

NEA: AN EFFECTIVE PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATION

Founded in 1853, NEA is the oldest professional organization in the United States and has the same professional status as the American Bar Association or the American Medical Association. Each of these organizations has long been committed to protecting and advancing the professional and economic interests of their members. The NEA has been in the forefront and will continue to be addressing the major issues confronting higher education in the United States and shaping solutions.

The following are just a few examples of what IEA-NEA has accomplished on behalf of higher education faculty and staff:

AT THE NATIONAL LEVEL

- * Systematically promotes the cause of higher education through legislation in Washington, D.C.
- * Lobbies for expanded federal funding for higher education
- * Maintains an effective national office and staff to achieve a broad range of higher education issues including minority concerns and women's rights
- * Conducts numerous meetings, conferences, and workshops to address the problems of higher education through legislation and political action
- * Maintains a comprehensive research department which provides model contract language for higher education bargaining locals
- * Provides legal financial assistance to affiliate members
- * Provides resources to higher education organizing efforts throughout the United States
- * Publishes numerous higher education publications including "Thought & Action", one of higher education's premier journals

AT THE STATE LEVEL

- * Wrote and sponsored the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Act which provides the legal structure for collective bargaining in educational institutions
- * Maintains the most influential political action lobby in the state of Illinois
- * Lobbies for increased state funding for Illinois institutions of higher education
- * Helped pass the temporary state income tax increase
- * Helped elect Governor Jim Edgar based on his commitment to extension of the temporary state income tax surcharge and commitment to education
- * Forced greater university administration accountability through legislative hearings and proposed legislation
- * Conducts studies and comparative analyses on the status of funding for higher education in Illinois and nationally
- * Employs a Higher Education Specialist
- * Maintains an effective state office and staff in Springfield to monitor higher education issues
- * Assists local faculty on Illinois campuses in their effort to achieve collective bargaining
- * Provides model contract language compiled by State Research Department for bargaining locals
- * Provides professional staff, resources, and legal services to higher education locals

AT THE LOCAL LEVEL

- * Forced the SIU administration to abandon the 2% Plan because of its negative impact on curriculum
- * Focused attention on SIU faculty salaries, benefits, and working conditions including governance and SIU's inadequate faculty grievance procedure
- * Stopped the unilateral administrative appointment of a Dean
- * Fought for and won the issue of separate campus elections and bargaining units
- * Stands opposed to the continued expansion of the Chancellor's Office
- * Is highly critical of the internal shift of major resources from instruction to administration
- * Created effective working relationships with local area state legislators
- * Provides legal assistance to numerous faculty with grievances against the university, including tenure issues
- * Secured a $50,000 cash settlement for a SIU faculty member
- * Works continuously for increased administrative accountability
- * Publishes regular SIU Budget Study Reports

OUR DILEMMA

Our day to day duties often obscure the fact that faculty and A/P staff must have an equal role in shaping the future and preserving the integrity of our institutions of higher education. All too often history has shown what happens when the Professoriate becomes overly complacent and uninvolved. The inevitable results include an alarming proliferation of autocratic and unaccountable administrators, the flight of university resources from teaching, and the shocking erosion of the quality of undergraduate education. Regrettably, these examples are but a few of the consequences that faculty and staff must deal with now. NEA is confronting these issues on a national, state, and local level. NEA, the largest national professional organization, has more than two million members, 80,000 of whom are employed in institutions of higher education. NEA's membership is growing everyday.

A COMING EVENT

This Spring semester, the NEA will sponsor a conference on "Strategic Planning for the 21st Century". This conference will highlight an analysis of critical issues facing institutions of higher education in Illinois and throughout the nation. The conference will take place at SIU. PLAN NOW TO ATTEND.

empty into the gulf.
 He mentioned a couple of ways to try and remedy the problem.
 First, the military can set up booms, which are made of very absorbent substance like sponge rubber and float on the surface of the water to protect certain areas.
 Because oil floats on the surface, the boom prevents the oil from floating past the barrier, Roby said. But the success of booms depends largely on the wave action.
 "If there's a lot of wave action, the booms won't do any good," he said.
 Waves cause the oil to spill over the barriers and affect the protected areas, Roby said.
 The second method of cleaning up the oil is bioremediation. The process fertilizes places along the shoreline where oil has washed up, thus attempting to degrade the oil with bacteria. The method's success depends on the geography of the shorelines, Roby said.
 He said he was not sure if the process would be as effective on fine sand beaches, because the bacteria may not be able to survive.

 Bioremediation was effective during the 1989 Exxon Valdez spill, but the beaches in Alaska are mostly cobble stone, he said.
 Roby said bioremediation is an experimental technique that is effective because it saves the beaches from being washed with hot water and detergent.
 "The people who are going over there to help clean up are essentially writing the book as they go," Roby said.
 Even with all the devastation, Roby said there is hope because a lot of oil will evaporate in the warm climate. Second, the military's decision to torch the spill will help destroy toxic pollutants.
 "Setting the oil on fire helps because the most toxic components of the oil are the ones that burn," he said.
 Roby said fish, dolphins, whales, sea birds and coastal birds are the most likely to suffer from the spill. The Socotra Cormorant's only natural habitat is the Persian Gulf. This is a vulnerable time for the birds.

 These birds already started their breeding colonies and they don't fly far from the colony. If they should become surrounded by oil it could prove disastrous, Roby said. The oil will kill the coral reefs and fish that live in them.
 The economic side of the spill also is in question, but the loss of millions of gallons of oil will have only a minimal effect on prices.
 Paul Trescott, professor of economics, said he does not think the spill will have a big effect on the price of oil.
 Trescott said America gets oil from a lot of different sources, and Saudi Arabia can increase its production to compensate for the loss. He also said Saudi Arabia can't afford to raise the price of oil because U.S. forces are protecting the country.
 "My hunch is that oil prices will keep coming down," Trescott said.

commission's ruling and petitioned for a rehearing. The state denied the city's petition in September.
 In September, the city council passed an ordinance prohibiting the sale of alcohol in Carbondale south of Pleasant Hill Road.
 Schulhof said the city ordinance does not apply to his clients because both filed for licenses before the ordinance passed. This constitutes pre-existing nonconformist use.

To sell liquor in Illinois, businesses must have a state and city liquor license as well as a federal stamp. Ham and Immen already have state liquor licenses and federal stamps, Schulhof said.

City Attorney Michael Wepsiec and Judge Gilbert were not available for comment.
 "After meeting city licensing requirements, I'll be ready to open business," Ham said.

varies according to rank, said Maj. Doreen Burger, spokeswoman for the United States Marine Corps.

The imminent danger pay rate begins when personnel enter a designated combat zone and the presence of hostile troops basically puts troops in imminent danger, Burger said.

U.S. Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Cartrville, said tax provisions for troops are well-deserved and the "least that can be done for U.S. troops."

"They are sacrificing a lot to be over there," Poshard said. "Many of them had better salaries before going to the Persian Gulf, they gave up a lot. In many instances, hazardous duty pay is just making up for their state side per diem."

Poshard said he expects Congress to create benefits for military personnel after the Persian Gulf war is over.

"When it's over I think people will see Congress pass laws for educational opportunities, especially for the reservists and regular duty members," he said.

State Sen. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, said he will support legislation: in the Illinois Senate to give a state income tax break to members of the armed forces in Operation Desert Storm.

"We need to show our support for our citizens who are fighting for us and risking their lives in the Persian Gulf," Dunn said. "This is just one small way to show them our thoughts and concerns are with them."

Because Illinois tax laws and federal tax laws are linked, the state allows the 180-day tax return filing delay for military personnel involved with Operation Desert Storm.

Illinois does not, however, provide for the suspension of back taxes and interest penalties.

"Illinois has no provisions to waive penalties and interest on these late returns, Dunn said. "I hope that the Department of Revenue can eliminate these changes. If not, I will work in the legislature to see that these changes are made."

Black said in the event a member of the armed forces dies while serving in the combat zone, no tax is due for the year of death or any prior year in which the person served in the combat zone. In addition, any unpaid tax for the years prior to service in the combat zone is forgiven.

Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze met in Houston.

Those problems are basically technical, including operating rules for monitoring sites around missile production factories and a full exchange of data on the present number of weapons held by both sides and their location.

According to administration officials, the Soviet military has resisted decisions by the Soviet political leadership to turn over their most closely guarded nuclear secrets to the Soviet Union's chief adversary during the Cold War.

White House press secretary

Marlin Fitzwater said the gulf war is "the principal factor" in the suggested delay. Baker said that if the war is not finished by the end of June, "then obviously there would be another postponement."

Fitzwater said, "This is not a declaration of when the war would end. Nobody knows when that will be."

"Our main concern is just the gulf conflict," Fitzwater said in explaining Bush's desire to put off the summit. He said Bush wanted to explain to Bessmertnykh "the difficulties that we might have in time away from home."

On his arrival Friday, Bessmertnykh, who recently served as the Soviet ambassador to Washington, added to the signs of friction in U.S.- Soviet relations by expressing concern over the "scale of U.S. bombing of Baghdad and damage to the civilian economy" of Iraq.

At the White House, Bessmertnykh insisted there is not a great difference between the United States and the Soviet Union on the issue of the gulf war, but has warned of the military conflict getting out of hand.

Police Blotter

Heidi Hitzeman, 20, 501 W. College, reported her car was burglarized between 8 p.m. Friday and 11:30 a.m. Sunday, Carbondale Police said. Hitzeman said her car had been entered and a radar detector and cassette tapes were taken. The loss was estimated at $320.

Police arrested SIUC student Russell Sherlock, 18, 211 Abbott Hall, and charged him with DUI Sunday, SIUC Police said. Sherlock failed a field sobriety test, police said. The officer reported he saw the car hit a curb twice when Sherlock made a turn and the tires squeal. Sherlock is to appear in court on Feb. 13.

NOTICE TO STUDENTS CALLED TO ACTIVE DUTY

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale is committed to assisting students who are called to active duty in the Persian Gulf. It is our intent to insure that transition from the University to military duty is accomplished as expeditiously as possible. Students who are activated should report to the Office of Transitional Programs to be informed of options available to them. Those who do withdraw will not be required to pay their Spring semester tuition and fees, regardless of when during the 1991 semester they are activated. The Office of Transitional Programs is located within the Student Development Annex T-40 and may be reached by calling 536-2338. Students with questions regarding their withdrawal options should contact that office. Specific questions regarding military benefits should be directed to the Office of Veterans Affairs, Woody Hall B358 (453-2791).

Becker comes home after Australian Open win

BONN, Germany (L.) — Boris Becker returned home Monday with the world No. 1 ranking in tennis, 11 years after his first Wimbledon triumph catapulted him to fame.

When Becker first won Wimbledon in 1985, he was 17 years old and few people had heard about him. He was the first unseeded player ever to win Wimbledon, and also the youngest man to do so.

It wasn't until this past weekend, though, that the German claimed the top ranking, a cherished goal he achieved by beating Ivan Lendl in the final of the Australian Open in Melbourne, a tournament in which he had only once made the quarterfinals.

Becker's career could have been totally different. It is all but forgotten now that in his fourth round match against American Tim Mayotte at Wimbledon in 1985, Becker almost gave up because of an injury, and had to be urged by trainer Guenther Bosch to use the three minute injury timeout.

He carried on to win the match in a dramatic fifth set to pave the way for victory.

From then on his performances have seen-sawed. He led the German team to two stunning Davis Cup triumphs in 1988 and 1989, repeated his Wimbledon success in 1986 and 1989 and won the U.S. Open in 1989.

But it was in Australia where he suffered most setbacks. In 1987 he produced one of his worst performances when he lost to Wally Masur, soon after firing Bosch.

lost an overtime decision to Syracuse.

"I think our experience helps us down the stretch," St. John's forward Billy Singleton said.

The Redmen will attempt to give Carnesecca his 500th win Wednesday night at Georgetown.

Nevada-Las Vegas, 15-0 and owner of the nation's longest winning streak at a school-record 26 games, earned all 41 first-place votes cast by the 42-member Board of Coaches to finish with 615 points. Arkansas remained No. 2 with 548 points.

No. 3 Ohio State and No. 4 Indiana flopped places for the third consecutive week. The Buckeyes moved back in front via a 93-85 triumph over the Hoosiers.

No. 6 Arizona, No. 7 Duke, No. 8 Syracuse and No. 9 North Carolina all slid down one place after suffering losses last week. No. 10 Nebraska, 17-2 after its win Saturday at Oklahoma, broke into the Top 10 for the first time in school history.

No. 11 UCLA slipped one spot and Utah, 19-1, jumped ahead five places to 12th. No. 13 East Tennessee State, No. 14 Louisiana State and No. 15 Southern Mississippi all remained unchanged.

Georgetown moved ahead four positions to 16th and No. 17 New Orleans vaulted up six places from last week. No. 18 New Mexico State improved four spots and No. 19 Virginia moved up two.

Oklahoma plummeted nine places to 20th after losses to Southwestern Louisiana and Nebraska, and No. 21 Kansas improved three positions. Pittsburgh and Georgia Tech tied for 22nd.

Southwestern Louisiana, a 103-101 victor over Oklahoma, entered the ratings at No. 24, and fellow newcomer Houston was 25th.

Dropping out of the ratings this week were Connecticut, loser of five straight games, and Michigan State.

NYC honors Giants, no ticker-tape parade

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Super Bowl champion New York Giants, for the second time in five years, will have no ticker-tape parade in Manhattan.

The office of Mayor David Dinkins said the city's severe financial problems forestalled any chance of a parade. However, the city does want to salute the Giants with a more modest celebration Wednesday at 1 p.m. EST.

"Unfortunately, the city cannot afford a ticker-tape parade but the city will honor the Giants," said Ruby Ryles, a spokeswoman for the mayor. "There will be a presentation on the steps of City Hall and the public is invited," she said.

When the Giants, who play their home games in East Rutherford, N.J., won the Super Bowl in 1987, then-Mayor Ed Koch refused to celebrate a championship for a team that does not play in New York City.

The Giants, in turn, said at the time they wanted no part of a Manhattan tribute. Instead, the team was feted by a crowd of some 50,000 at Giants Stadium.

The Giants left Tampa, Fla., Monday on an 11:30 a.m. EST flight into Newark, N.J.

Whether the team enjoys a big celebration of any kind this year remains to be seen.

Galloping Ghost and Wheaton Iceman. He followed his feats at Illinois during the 1923, 1924 and 1925 seasons by helping the National Football League establish its credibility as a big-time sport. Grange, however, had a relatively ordinary career with the Chicago Bears.

Grange was a charter member of the NFL's Hall of Fame and in 1950 was elected to the all-time All-America team, with the largest number of votes received by any football great.

Harold Grange was born June 13, 1903 in Forksville, Pa. He moved with his family to Wheaton, Ill., when he was 5 years old.

In the 1924 season, Grange, a 5-foot-10, 175-pound halfback, scored 13 touchdowns and enjoyed perhaps the greatest day of any player in college football.

That day, marking the dedication of Illinois' new 67,000-capacity stadium, the Illini faced rival Michigan and Grange ran the opening kickoff back 95 yards. He had touchdown runs of 56, 44 and 67 yards, all within 12 minutes. In all, he scored five touchdowns and passed for a sixth in a 39-14 romp, finishing with 303 yards gained on six carries.

This past season, the Illini's Howard Griffith scored eight touchdowns in a game to break Grange's school record.

Grange scored 31 touchdowns and gained 3,637 yards during his stay at Illinois. Grange and Dick Butkus are the only two Illini football players to have their numbers retired.

As the 1925 college season neared its end, fans wondered whether Grange would turn pro. Pro football then had little more stature than pro wrestling. The college game was supreme, while pro teams shuttled in and out of the embryonic NFL.

Grange faced strong pressure not to go pro. But Illinois Coach Bob Zuppke, who had given pro football George Halas, was now about to give the game its most illustrious name.

Halas worked out a deal with Grange and a promoter named C.C. (Cash and Carry) Pyle, to have the football star sign for two years with the Bears. Included was an exhibition tour during which Grange played seven games in 11 days and received 50 percent of the gate receipts.

The tour began on Thanksgiving Day 1925, when 36,000 fans at Wrigley Field saw Grange and the Bears play the Cardinals. The game was an artistic flop as the teams battled to a scoreless tie. Two days later Grange ran for 140 yards in a snowstorm as the Bears beat the Columbus Tigers 14-13 before 28,000 fans.

No sooner had word of that performance spread than Grange scored four touchdowns in St. Louis and followed with another spectacular performance in Philadelphia.

The next day the Bears played the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds. Before a crowd of 70,000, Grange ran for a 25-yard touchdown and led the Bears to a 19-7 victory.

Grange, Pyle and Halas split $210,000 in receipts, but Grange injured his knee during the tour and never recaptured his college form. He had a modest career with the Bears and old New York Yankees, retiring in 1935 to become an assistant coach and broadcaster.

For his career, Grange played in 237 games, gained 32,820 yards on 4, 013 carries and scored 531 touchdowns.

Giants, Parcells savor one more Super Bowl title

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—New York Giants Coach Bill Parcells Monday celebrated winning Super Bowl XXV by steering clear of the controversy he created the last time his team captured the title.

Parcells has a year left on his contract. He vowed that team management will savor the 20-19 triumph over the Buffalo Bills Sunday as they couldn't following Super Bowl XXI, when Parcells' agent provoked discussion of the coach going to the Atlanta Falcons.

"Last time we won, I was at the center of a little controversy that started right off that didn't allow my ownership to enjoy this," Parcells said. "They're gonna enjoy this one, I promise you."

Parcells said he won't address his future until the Giants get through the Plan B free-agent draft and scouting combines. But he did dismiss speculation he is a candidate for the vacant Tampa Bay Buccaneers coaching job.

"Everything that's been written about me is a fabrication," he said. "They made it up. I've talked to no one—in any field, I have work to do this week."

Parcells lauded Giants management for spending money on free agents and allowing him the freedom to give veterans second chances.

"They've been just terrific to Bill Parcells in player acquisition, picking up key veterans," Parcells said. "I think probably for O.J. Anderson, Johnnie Cooks, Everson Walls, Dave Darrison and Lawrence McGrew, this game was probably just a little more special."

Anderson, the Most Valuable Player, scored a touchdown and ran for 102 yards. He was left unprotected on the roster last year but had no takers and re-signed with the Giants.

"Oh, if I'm not on Plan B (free agency), I would be totally insulted," he said. "It's kind of traditional, me being on Plan B. I got the routine down, waiting by the phone for no calls."

"Trust me, I won't get any calls.

Now a lot of owners, coaches can say 'That's it for him—all he wants to do is get the MVP and retire.'"

The Plan B deadline is Feb. 1 and teams may protect only 37 players.

"I got a lot of guys who might not be too happy at the end of this week," Parcells said. "I start all over again with 37 players."

Parcells is no fan of Plan B, but on Monday he had few quarrels about football.

"I love this game," he said. "I don't love everything about it, but I can't tell you how much I love this game."

Anderson, 33, recognizes he likely will be left unprotected because the Giants must retain young backs Dave Meggett, Rodney Hampton, Maurice Carthon, Lewis Tillman."

"You put one of those four guys, teams are licking their chops," Anderson said.

Hampton, the Giants' No. 1 draft pick last year, broke his leg in the Giants' opening playoff game.

"We were basically grooming, Rodney to take over the whole deal," Anderson said.

Against the Bills, Anderson steered the Giants when they trailed 12-3. His first big play started the drive leading to Jeff Hostetler's 14-yard touchdown pass to Stephen Baker. Anderson's 1-yard score put the Giants ahead 17-12.

Otis Anderson to visit troops

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—Giants running back Otis Anderson, the Super Bowl's Most Valuable Player, is considering a trip to Saudi Arabia to visit the troops.

"We are trying to work it out," he said. "We want to find out if it is possible."

"The troops over there are fighting for a cause. I'm quite sure if they weren't over there they would have been home watching the Super Bowl. It's just a way of me giving something back."

Along with a trophy, Anderson received a convertible. He was given the option of a red car or one in another color.

"My first car was red," he said. "My second car was red. I have a gray car now. My truck is white, and my other car is blue. I need a red car."

One of Coach Bills Parcells' joys in coaching seems to be taking friendly shots at Anderson. He said when training camp comes in July, nobody will have a job locked up.

"I'm going to go by what I see," the coach said. "The MVP in the Super Bowl don't mean anything."

Anderson, 33 was acquired by the Giants in a trade with the Cardinals during the 1986 season.

"He's lucky I didn't get him 10 years ago," Parcells said. "If I did, he'd be in a coffin. I'd run him to death."

Houston QB keeping NFL decision open

HOUSTON (UPI) — University of Houston quarterback David Klingler says he still has not decided whether to pass up his senior season with the Cougars to enter the NFL.

"Nothing has changed," Klingler said. "I'm still trying to gather as much information as possible. I want to sit down with Coach (John) Jenkins and my parents to talk about it."

Klingler said he may announce his decision as early as Wednesday. He has until Friday to notify the NFL if he plans to enter the draft.

"This is a tough decision and I really need to get as much information as I can before I make that decision," he said. "As of right now, I'm planning to be back (at Houston) next year."

Those are familiar words on the Houston campus. Klingler's predecessor, Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware, said the same thing, then decided to skip his senior season and was drafted in the first round (seventh pick overall) by the Detroit Lions.

Klingler took over the run-and-shoot offense and threw for 5,140 yards and 54 touchdowns last season.

He had said he would return for his senior season until a television report claimed that the New England Patriots, who have the first pick, would select Klingler if he decided to enter the draft.

There have since been conflicting reports on whether the Patriots would indeed take Klingler.

Super Bowl ratings not impressive

NEW YORK (UPI) — The closest Super Bowl in history failed to produce equally impressive ratings, according to overnight numbers released Monday by the A.C. Nielsen Company.

The New York Giants' 20-19 victory over Buffalo earned a 42.8 rating and 63 share for ABC — the third lowest Super Bowl rating since 1976.

Ratings are based on the number of people watching some portion of the broadcast. The share measures the percentage of homes tuned to an average minute of coverage.

The game may have produced low numbers because the Super Bowl is often a one-sided contest, and this year's championship was played by teams from the same part of the country.

Enthusiastic crowd welcomes Bills home after Super Bowl XXV loss

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — A crowd estimated by police at 25,000 packed Niagara Square Monday to thank the Buffalo Bills for a season that ended with Sunday's 20-19 loss in the Super Bowl.

The fans, in the heart of the city's downtown area, screamed and yelled and welcomed the team back from Tampa Bay and its heart-breaking loss to the Giants.

The boisterous but orderly fans cheered as Bills players, coaches, front office personnel and owner Ralph C. Wilson Jr. stood on a makeshift stage in front of City Hall, while other fans lined up on rooftops of nearby buildings.

The fans, in a virtual sea of red, white and blue—the team's colors and in support of U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf—saved their loudest and biggest cheers for kicker Scott Norwood, whose 47-yard field goal attempt was wide to the right in the game's waning seconds.

The crowd chanted, "We want Scott, we want Scott" in recognition of Norwood, who has scored more points than any player in the 31-year history of the franchise.

"I know I've never felt more loved than right now," choked out Norwood. "I'm dedicating next season to the fans of Buffalo."

As American flags and Bills flags flapped in the chilly breeze, the hearty throng stayed warm with chants of "Thank you, Bills" and "USA, USA."

Fans and players, trying to put behind them the loss in the team's first Super Bowl, were eager to talk about next year and the successes of this year's 15-4 club.

"This is the largest crowd I've seen down here since John F. Kennedy came to Buffalo 30 years ago," shouted Mayor James Griffin. "And don't forget, we'll be back."

"You fans that have supported us, I love every one of you," a smiling coach Marv Levy said. "I want to tell you this: Our quest is not over. We are going forward with your help."

Several public officials, including Gov. Mario Cuomo and Erie County Executive Dennis Gorski, attended the 45-minute event.

Cuomo pleased the crowd when he displayed a sweatshirt he had made up that read: "Buffalo Bills, Champions, Super Bowl XXVI, Minnesota."

"There is only one New York State home team," Cuomo shouted, "and that's the Buffalo Bills. They have made this entire state proud by their performance this year, and their performance yesterday."

"They showed more character, more class, more style coming up one point short," he added, "than most teams show in victory. They were victorious."

as the result of Tulane University pulling out of the Salukis schedule for that date.

As part of the contract for the game, Tulane assisted SIUC in finding a replacement team for the date, which turned out to be South Carolina.

The one category in which the football program fell money-wise this season was ticket sales.

With only four home games on the schedule, the income from ticket sales dropped from $137,378 in 1989-90 to about $93,000 in 1990-91.

The attendance, however, was encouraging as three of the four home contests attracted over 10,000 fans.

The football recruiting budget, which has fluctuated from anywhere between $39,000 and $52,000 in the past four years, is projected to be just under $40,000 this year.

Seluki football head coach Bob Smith said he would like to see the recruiting budget move into the area of $50,000 a year.

"I think to do things right, a first class job," Smith said, "we need to work toward a $50,000 budget. We're not trying to do any fancy things. The price of driving and flying goes up and we need to take that into consideration."

The booster donations for the first half of the 1990-91 season totalled $137,989.64.
