Ryan, union attempt to avoid layoffs

By Scott Wuerz
Special Assignment Writer

Some driver's license facilities may stay open

Secretary of State George Ryan and an employees union reached a tentative agreement Thursday that would give employees at 52 Illinois driver's license facilities, including 11 in Southern Illinois, a reprieve from layoffs.

Ryan had announced layoffs would be necessary when an arbitrator awarded the General Services Employees Union a 4-percent raise increase Jan. 17. Ryan had said the pay increase was not possible without additional funding from the General Assembly.

Union and state employees met for five hours Wednesday and again Thursday, coming away from the table with a tentative agreement which could save the 473 driver's facility employees' jobs.

Neither side released details of the plan.

Secretary of State spokesman John Torre said Ryan offered a one-year contract extension to the GSEU in exchange for concessions toward a raise. The current agreement would expire June 30.

Union officials agreed in principal to the extension. Torre said.

Members will vote on the proposal Monday.

But employees who tentatively still have jobs are cautiously optimistic on the prospect of keeping them.

George Purcell, Pinckneyville driver's facility manager, said he had not heard details of the agreement but remains hopeful for a permanent solution.

"I can't really say what I think about the situation yet," he said. "I've only heard the rumors so far, but any proposal that lets us keep our jobs sounds like a winner to me."

Glen York, an examiner at the driver's facility in Carmi, said he is

SIUC employees pay premiums for health insurance for the first time

By Christine Leninger
Administration Writer

SIUC employees who receive medical benefits began paying premiums on their health insurance for the first time this month.

University employees have never been required to pay for coverage.

The premium is the result of a nationwide health cost crunch that is crippling many college and university insurance plans.

Paying a premium cost each month for coverage has many University employees in an uproar, said Civil Service President Muriel Narve.

"Not only did we not get a raise this year, but now we have to pay the insurance premium," Narve said.

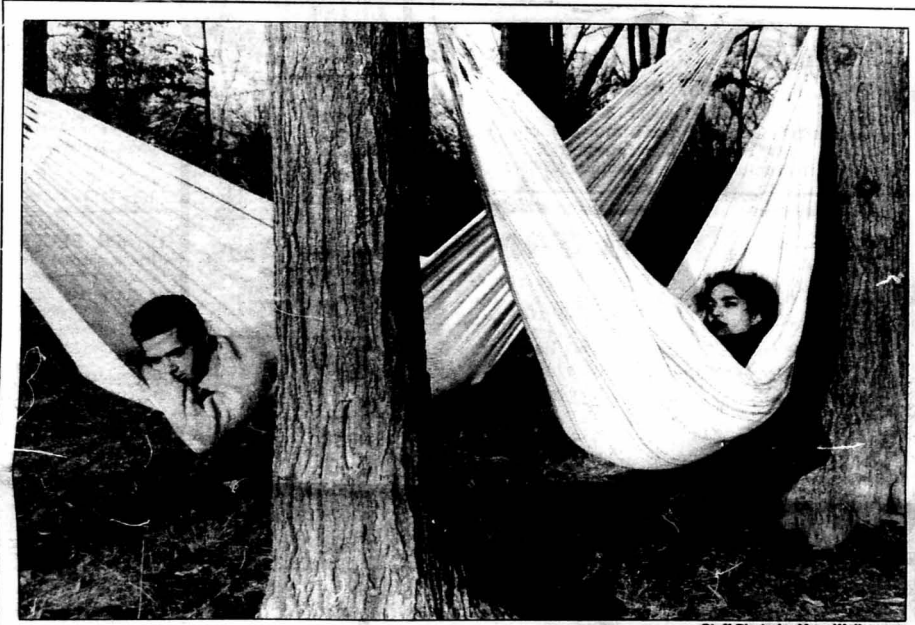

Vice President of Financial Affairs William Capie said he understands the need to generate more state revenue, but he still is agitated because of the time it takes to reconcile the cost of treatment.

"I have no objection to paying a premium if the state would pay the bills for medical service on a timely basis," Capie said.

Many employees agree they are glad the premiums are figured according to salary and not across-the-board costs, Narve said.

For instance, an employee whose salary

Use of alcohol in U.S. drops by 6.7 percent

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans drank less booze last year but vodka was still king and tequila lovers as loyal as ever, it was reported Thursday.

Consumption of distilled liquor dropped 6.7 percent in 1991 — 10.7 million cases less than 1990 for a total of 148.5 million cases, said the Jobson Beverage Group in its annual report.

Council: GE courses too easy

By Brandi Tipps
Administration writer

Members of a faculty council that makes graduate education and research policy say the general education courses offered at SIUC are not tough enough.

The SIUC Graduate Council met Thursday to discuss the proposed faculty 21st Century Plan.

The plan is a blueprint for the University created by a faculty task force committee. The task force calls for fewer but tougher GE classes as part of its plan to mainstream the core curriculum.

Jack McKillip, task force member and SIUC psychology professor, said the new core curriculum would be comprised of disciplined courses, which are courses majors in a field would take.

"I don't think we should offer classes that are not college-level work and call them college-level," McKillip said.

If a University offers an introductory course, it should be one that a student in the same major would take, he said.

But Cal Meyers, an SIUC chemistry professor, said to eliminate the GE courses and to offer only introductory courses would be impossible.

"Kids come in to SIU and are not even prepared enough to pass the introductory courses," Meyers said.

But McKillip said students should be more prepared for college courses in the future because admission requirements are changing.

"We can expect students coming to SIU will have a stronger high school background," he said.

SIUC requires high school graduates to have three years of English and math, two years of science and social science and one year of electives.

Beginning summer session 1993, high school graduates entering

Women hoopsters give Bradley boot

Scott's club up to 7-1 in Gateway play

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

Blowouts are becoming a habit for the SIUC women's basketball team. The Salukis scalped Bradley 85-57 Thursday.

For the third consecutive game the Salukis, 12-4, have dominated the court. The Salukis beat Illinois State by 20 and Indiana State by 28 in action last week.

The victory raises the Salukis' Gateway Conference record to 7-1. The Braves drop to 3-5 in the conference and 8-8 overall. The win marks the hoopsters' 21st straight win on home court.

The Salukis are in a tie with Southwest Missouri State, 15-2 overall, in the conference. The Bears, also 7-1 in the Gateway, beat Drake 64-60 Thursday.

The Salukis dominated early in the game. Junior center Kelly Firth poured in a quick 2 points, which led into a 10-2 run on the Braves. Another 9-0 run gave the Salukis a 19-4 advantage.

The Salukis kept the pace with a 45-24 halftime lead.

Coach Cindy Scott said she was glad to see the team play as well as it had at Indiana State and Illinois State.

"It was a tremendous effort for our kids," Scott said. "(Junior guard) Anita Scott was doing what we want her to do finding the open person. (Junior forward) Angie Rougeau shot better tonight, and that was good to see.

"I think it's a mark of a great basketball game to have that consistency down the line, and fortunately we have it."

Domination on the boards was a key to SIUC's success throughout the game. The Salukis outrebounded the Braves 41-24 for the game, and Firth, SIUC's leading rebounder, grabbed a game-high 15.

"I thought Firth was outstanding in her movement and her rebounding defensively," Scott said.

In addition, the Salukis held league-leading rebounder Eileen Yerkes to just six all night. Yerkes is ranked 19th nationally with 11 boards a game.

In previous games, the Salukis stopped Illinois State's big player Tami Baalke and Indiana State's Angie Eichhorst and Hazel Olden. Anita Scott said the team was concentrating on stopping Yerkes from dominating the boards.

"We were focused the whole time," Scott said.

"Bradley's a hard-working team, and we knew to win we would have to stop Yerkes on the boards. They also have good outside shooters, so we had to stop that also."

Rougeau came out of scoring slump to pitch in 14 points for the Salukis, who shot 50 percent from the field. Rougeau said she has gained her confidence back in shooting.

"I'm playing better than I have, and trying to be a leader for the team," she said. "We can't go into any game being really relaxed. I think our team is learning to play with each other, and we know the transition."

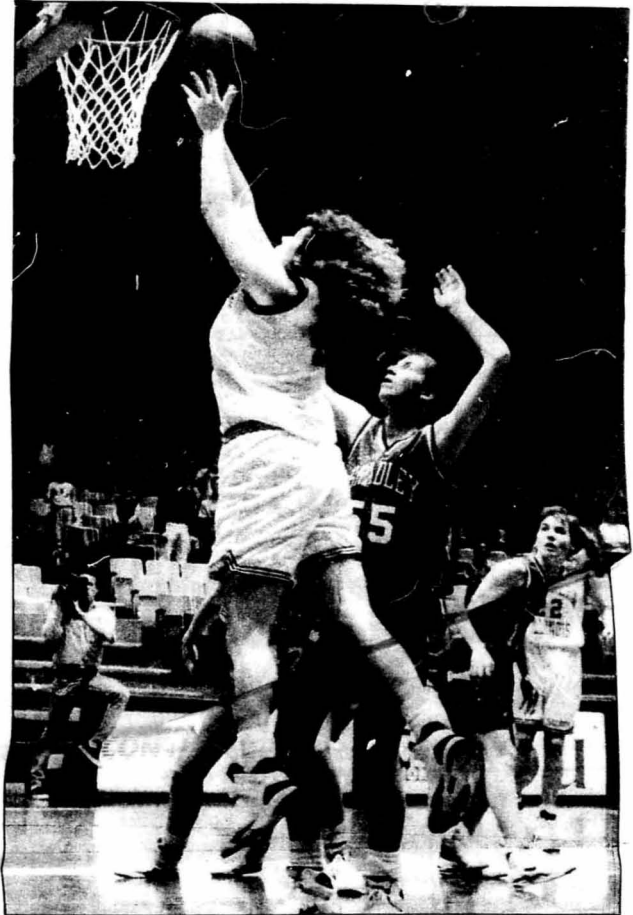

Firth scored 12 points for the Salukis. Anita Scott had 14 for SIUC. Sophomore Karen Powell came off the bench for 13 points including three 3-pointers in the first half.

Bradley's Cara Riggenbach had the game high score with 18 points. Yerkes scored 14 points and had only 6 rebounds for the Braves.

Bradley coach Lisa Boyer compared the Salukis with Southwest.

"SIUC killed us on the boards," Boyer said. "Southwest is a little quicker, but Southern is more complete. Point guard-wise Southern has Southwest beat, but I'd have to say Southwest is better inside and more intense on its defense."

The Salukis play Western Illinois at 7:35 p.m. Saturday in the Arena. Western, 8-9, beat Eastern Illinois Thursday night to improve to 4-4 in the Gateway.

Saluki junior center Kelly Firth scores the first 2 points of the game during SIUC's 85-57 win over Bradley. Firth, who scored 12 points and grabbed a game-high 15 rebounds Monday night, helped the Salukis improve to 12-4.

Salukis set for defense of first place

By James T. Rendulich
Sports Writer

SIUC's men's basketball team will put its first place standing in the Missouri Valley Conference on the line Saturday as it takes on conference rival Southwest Missouri State.

Despite a Valley record of 4-4, the fifth place Bears tout an overall record of 11-6 and are currently on a three-game win streak.

"Missouri is a very good team that is very good at controlling the tempo of the game," head coach Rich Herrin said. "Also, we are facing them at a time when they are probably playing the best ball they have played all year. It will be tough."

Thus far the backbone of the Bears' game has been their defense, which ranks first in the Missouri Valley and has given up 64 points or more only three times this season. One of those instances came in overtime.

Testimony begins in Tyson rape trial

Alleged victim's roommate testifies

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The roommate of a Miss Black America contestant who has accused former heavyweight champ Mike Tyson of rape Thursday said the woman did not immediately report the alleged attack because she feared she would be called a liar.

Keisha Johnson, the first prosecution witness, testified Tyson's accuser was excited when she first made a date with Tyson but later was wracked by despair.

The testimony came after the prosecution and defense painted widely differing pictures of what happened in Tyson's hotel suite last July 19.

Tyson, who is planning to testify, is charged with rape, confinement and two counts of deviate criminal conduct for the alleged attack on the Miss Black America contestant. If convicted on all charges, Tyson faces up to 63 years in prison.

The case is being heard by a jury of eight men and four women in Marion County Superior Court.

"He's such a creep. He's such a jerk," Johnson quoted the accuser as saying upon returning to her hotel room after meeting with Tyson. "He tried to rape me."

Johnson said the 18-year-old woman spent the remaining days of the pageant "staring off into space."

She said the accuser told her on the afternoon of July 20 that she went to a hospital with her mother early that day to report she had been raped. Johnson said the accuser did not immediately report the rape because she wasn't sure she would be believed.

Defense attorney Vincent Fuller said the accuser was witty, vengeful and sophisticated, in contrast to the coarse boxer.

Prosecutor Greg Gar-rison portrayed her as the victim as one of the most physically powerful men in the world.

Kansas to invade SIUC for swimming rematch

By Cyndi Oberle
Sports Writer

After losing to Kansas in the fall, the SIUC swimming and diving teams will take their second shot at knocking down the Jayhawks.

Both the men's and women's teams are gearing up after losses last weekend to Nebraska, but senior freestyler Tonia Mahaira said she does not expect the teams to stay down long.

"Kansas is a tough team, and they beat us in the fall," Mahaira said. "But we are going to get back at them if we can."

Mahaira said the women's strategy is to win as many events as they can.

"Kansas has a lot of depth, so we need to capitalize on our strengths and not let them win," she said.

Kansas head coach Gary Kemps said Mahaira and senior Julia Hosier will be hard to stop. He said he also expects difficulty with senior Nancy Schmidkofer and her younger sister, Sara.

"They have good personnel in many events," Kemps said. "Just with those four they have the freestyle, backstroke and butterfly covered."

Magic to play All-Star game; return to NBA not ruled out

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Saying he has no bad days, retired NBA superstar Magic Johnson said Wednesday night that he will play in the Feb. 9 All-Star Game to prove he has courage.

"Every day that you are living is a great day," said Johnson, who has not played this season after testing positive for the AIDS virus. "The way I'm going now, playing, practicing, everything is great."

"The mental part was easy and the physical part, nobody knew how I'd respond to the drug treatments."

Johnson said he runs 3-4 miles a day and will play in the All-Star Game in Orlando, Fla.

"I can play as many minutes as I want," he said before the Los Angeles Lakers played Golden State at the Forum. "Everything is a go."

"I haven't ruled out coming back (to the NBA). But I make the decisions on that. If I felt like coming back and playing, I'd be going against my doctors' advice. Right now everything is going great. I don't have any bad days."

SHAMIR SEEKS U.S. LOAN GUARANTEE — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, seeking U.S. guarantees for $10 billion in loans to finance housing for new immigrants from the former Soviet Union, promised Thursday none of the money would be used to build settlements in the occupied territories. "There is no connection between such loan guarantees and our settlements," Shamir told top Jewish contributors to Israel at a dinner in Jerusalem.

NORTH KOREA SIGNS NUCLEAR AGREEMENT — North Korea signed a nuclear safeguards agreement Thursday with the International Atomic Energy Agency, allowing agency inspections of the country's nuclear facilities. A North Korean official, following the signing ceremony at IAEA headquarters in Vienna, also publicly confirmed for the first time the existence of a North Korean nuclear facility long alleged by Western intelligence.

MEXICANS TO PRODUCE LESS POLLUTED GAS — Plans by Mexico's oil giant to build five new plants to produce pollution-reducing gasoline additives mark another step forward in the modernization of Petroleos Mexicanos, analysts said Thursday. Production of the additives is particularly important given Mexico City's severe air pollution and is another example of the modernization of Pemex, said Dehesa, of Macro Asesoria Economica.

NINETEEN NATIONS FIGHT ECONOMIC BLOCS — Officials from 19 Central American and Caribbean nations began a conference Thursday aimed at integrating their regions in the face of the formation of economic blocs worldwide. DCCA TO TRIM COSTS, RESTRUCTURE — The Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs said Wednesday it is cutting administrative costs by $500,000 and restructuring its Small Business Development Network. The state agency, criticized in the past for its spending practices, was the subject of major budget cuts this fiscal year. DCCA Director Jan A. Grayson said the new setup divides the state into 12 regions.

RYAN HOPES TO SAVE JOBS IN HIS OFFICE — Secretary of State George Ryan met for more than four hours Wednesday afternoon and evening with the head of his largest union in the hopes of saving the jobs of 475 employees in his office. Ryan was trying to get the General Services Employees Union workers to give up salary increases ordered by an arbitrator so he does not have to lay off any workers. However, there was no report of progress.

Local talents to perform at Black History Month's 8th inagural ball

By Sherri L. Wilcox
General Assignment Writer

Black Affairs Council will start Black History Month with the 8th annual Red, Black and Green Ball Saturday night.

The Ball will feature performances by current Miss Ebonyess, Yetha Parks, guitarist and folk singer Anne Chamberlain and other local talent.

The Red, Black and Green Ball was named after the colors of the Liberation Flag. Each color is a symbol of black freedom.

"Red is for the blood we shed, black is for the color of our skin and green is for the land we grew," said Antonio Washington, president of BAC, who will host the event.

Performers for the evening were chosen through a talent search held Wednesday.

Harriet Wilson Barlow, associate director of Student Development, said she is looking forward to the entertainment activities in the program.

"Because of the umbrella of organizations that BAC is involved with, members are very much in tune with the talent available at SIU," she said.

"The program highlights the contributions of African-American students on this campus, and that is important."

The ball also will feature music and dancing for the remainder of the evening.

The Ball will be held from 7 p.m. to 2 a.m. in Ballroom D of the Student Center. Cost for the event is $3 a person and $5 a couple.

Development company brings business to town

By Teri Lynn Carlock
City Writer

The Carbondale Business Development Corp. has generated more than $7 million for the Carbondale economy by bringing three businesses to the area.

CBDC's main concern is bringing business to Carbondale by recruiting companies to open in the area. Com-Pac International Inc., AMS Carbondale Inc. and Hillbilly Tackle were recruited by CBDC and brought to Carbondale in the last three years.

CBDC figured the total revenue the three companies brought to the city based on their annual payrolls and local purchases. This includes office supplies and building supplies and local contractors they employ, said Donna Foy, executive director of CBDC.

Com-Pac International Inc. was developed in November 1989 from a former company called Uly Pak.

Uly Pak came to Carbondale from its original business location in Arkansas because of the access to transportation in the area, said LaDonna Eastwood, Com-Pac personnel manager. "All the way around it was a better location," she said. "The company had better transportation access with the railroad and truck lines."

The company remained in operation in Carbondale for 13 years but fell victim to bankruptcy.

CBDC worked with a local businessman to help him buy the company out of bankruptcy, said Foy.

Under a new name and new management, Com-Pac International Inc. is a plastic-converting company that takes raw materials and converts them into specialty plastic bags.

The company produces medical bags, beauty supply bags, plant sleeves for nurseries, pastry bags and seasonal bags for Easter and Christmas.

"We do not make 'Glad' bags," Eastwood said. "Our bags are kind of like a zip-lock bag, but ours are guaranteed leak-proof."

Com-Pac, which has a payroll of $1.5 million a year, employs 75 people and plans to employ 105 people in 1992.

The company has continued to profit under new management, Eastwood said.

"We expect to grow because of the demand for different products—especially in the medical line, and hope to give some people who are out of work jobs," she said.

AMS Carbondale, Inc. opened in Carbondale in November 1990 and began production in 1991. CBDC officials heard about the company after a representative from Rep. Glenn Poshard's office told CBDC that the company was looking for a mid-west location.

AMS, which has 36 employees and a payroll of $800,000, manufactures mine roof bolts. CBDC bought a building in the city's industrial park and is leasing it to AMS.

Hillbilly Tackle, which makes and sells fishing lures, has been operating out of Marion for the past two years. It will move its company to Carbondale in March of this year.

Its building, located in the Bicentennial Industrial Park, currently is being worked on for its new opening.

Hillbilly Tackle employs 20 workers, but will expand to employ 40 by the end of 1992.

CBDC has bought one company to Carbondale every year for the last three years, and that is uncommon, Foy said.

"Most communities go for two or three years without seeing a new company come into the area," Foy said. "Carbondale is an exemption."

State of Union plan only sound and fury

BEFORE BEGINNING HIS STATE OF THE UNION address Tuesday night, President George Bush joked that "I wanted to be sure it would be a big hit, but I couldn't convince Barbara to deliver it for me."

Perhaps he should have tried a bit harder to convince his wife—or even Millie, the First Dog. Either one might have been able to outline a clearer and more workable economic policy, without all the sound and fury that in the end signified next to nothing.

Bush understands that his presidency hinges on America's economic status. If his administration is not perceived as pushing hard for recovery, the Democrats could usurp the White House throne held by Bush's party for 20 of the past 24 years.

But Bush's strength is foreign policy, and his only real victories have occurred abroad, as with the Persian Gulf War of last year. So his rhetoric Tuesday night was couched in Desert Storm terms: The recession, like Iraq's conquest of Kuwait, "will not stand," he said.

But his administration has not put the same kind of rigorous planning into its economic blueprint that it put into the Desert Storm assault. As a result, the recession may stand for a good long time.

The plan Bush put forth is an injection of more trickle-down economics, the same policy that helped steer the United States into the recessionary ditch during eight years of the Reagan presidency. The proposals offered are quick fixes—a 90-day moratorium on federal regulations, a reduction in the capital gains tax, a cut in federally withheld tax to allow workers larger immediate take-home pay. They are luxuries to be enjoyed in the short term only. They are booster shots for a sick economy, not the wholesale inoculation it desperately needs.

Expectations for Bush's speech were high; it was hoped that he would show the country the same quality of leadership he displayed during the Persian Gulf crisis.

BUT INSTEAD OF A BOOMING BLITZKRIEG of economic reform and renovation, all the nation saw was a scattering of firecrackers popping off at random. Unlike the victory in the gulf, the State of the Union speech was no cause for celebration.

Duchess' career suited for Hall of Fame honors

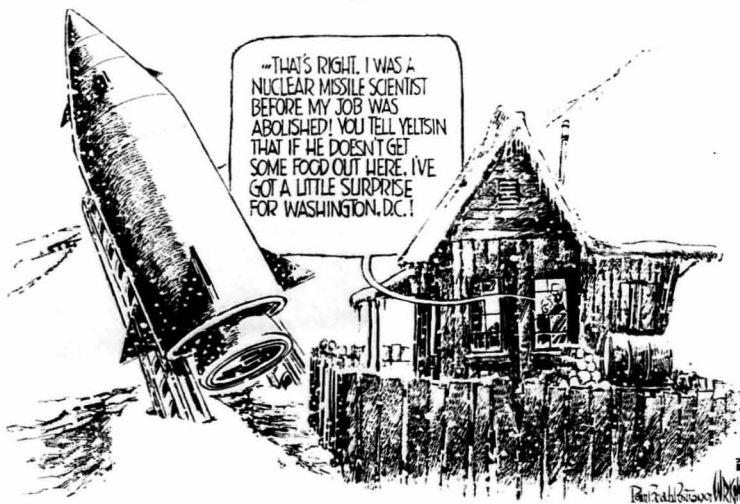

SORRY WILL BE THE DAY when journalism students can no longer appreciate the accomplishments and style of the Duchess.

Southern Illinois native Virginia Marmaduke will be inducted into the Chicago Journalism Hall of Fame, an award suitable for a woman who is one of the best "newspapermen" anyone will ever meet.

Marmaduke pioneered women's movement into the once male-dominated newsrooms of Chicago, working with the Chicago Sun, the Chicago Sun-Times and the Chicago Tribune Sunday Magazine.

In her years the Duchess has done it all. Her style of no intimidation and straightforwardness is one that should be envied and copied by today's journalism hopefuls.

Despite her accomplishments, Marmaduke is always willing to help a young reporter with a story, or speak to journalism classes. Her giving, like her kindness, seems infinite. It is only fitting she continue to get awards. The Daily Egyptian would like to congratulate Marmaduke on her latest trophy and thank her for her contributions to the University. May the Duchess' reign continue.

Slats on Bush's State of Union: what was all the cheering for?

Staring up at the TV set, Slat Grobnik said: "Did I miss something?"

No, the President has just arrived and has not yet begun to speak.

"Then if he didn't say nothin', how come all those congressmen are standing up and cheering like he said he's gonna put a new highway in their districts?"

I suppose it is an attempt to show unity in these trying times. And to raise the sagging spirit of the nation.

"I think the sagging spirit of the nation would go up if these bozos would all stop clapping and announce that they are resigning and finding honest work. I think they're all clapping so hard because they're scared."

Of what?

"Of what? Because the country is goin' down the tubes and they don't know what to do, and they're hoping he comes up with something, but they know that he won't because he don't know what to do, either. I mean, there they are, the leaders of this country, and they ain't got the foggiest about solving the problems."

That's not entirely true. Many of them have programs to stimulate the economy.

"Yeah, I know. They're gonna give it a jump start, like we got a dead battery. Or give it a shot in the arm, like it's got diabetes. I think it's all a con and they ain't got any ideas because we're in too deep a mess. And you know why they're clapping so long?"

Why?

"They're afraid of what he's gonna say when he starts talking, so they figure if they clap long enough, we'll all go to bed or switch to a basketball game, and we won't wise up that they don't know what to do."

Well, there are economists who say that the best thing Bush and Congress could do is absolutely nothing.

"Then why don't he just say:

Mike Royko
Tribune Media Services

"My fellow Americans, at a time like this, with so many people goofed up, the worst thing that could happen is that this Congress and me do anything more, because we're one of the reasons it's goofed up, and all we'll do is take a real mess and turn it into a complete disaster. So I'm asking all the congressmen to help the American people by going home and pulling down the shades and staying out of sight. And that's what I'm gonna do. So God bless America and all the brave boys who fought in Desert Storm, with me as their commander-in-chief. So thank you very much and good night, and remember, if things get too tough you can always go into Chapter 11 bankruptcy and ask the court to protect you from your creditors."

He can't say that. This is going to be a State of the Union address. He is supposed to tell us what the state of the union is.

"What for? Everybody knows what the state of the union is. We're up to our ears in hock, we're buying more than we're selling, the Japanese are laughing at us, and Dan Quayle is standing there banging his hands together like he wants Bush to throw him a peanut. So why don't he just give it to us straight?"

Such as?

"He should say: 'My fellow Americans, I am here tonight to try to say stuff that will make you vote for me next November. So I'm going to say something that don't mean much, then all these congressmen are going to jump up and cheer. Then I'll say something else that don't mean much, and they'll jump up and cheer again. What we're hoping is that by putting on this happy act, you won't notice that I'm really not saying anything and that when you go to bed tonight you won't be any better off than when you got up this morning and you'll probably be worse off tomorrow, if you're lucky."

He can't say that. "Why not? People always say that they want politicians to tell them the truth."

Yes, but truth in small doses and phrased in such a way so as not to create panic and alarm, and to raise our hopes for the future.

"I get it. Something like, 'My fellow Americans. These are dark times. But we have faced dark times before. And then the sun came up and it wasn't dark no more. And we will raise our heads, and the sun will shine right in our faces.' Something like that?"

Yes, very good, you could be a speechwriter.

"And how about this: 'And when you raise your faces to the sun, the sun will shine on you, and then you will get little dark spots and the doc will tell you that too much sunlight is dangerous and you got to have surgery, but you can't afford the surgery and so you wipe out all your savings to pay for it, and then you lose your job, and your house gets repossessed and when you look for a job they tell you you're too old or overqualified, so you're better off when it's dark.'"

Well, thank goodness you are not giving the State of the Union address.

"Yeah, and thank goodness the bartender just switched to the basketball game, where they know what they're cheering about."

Sun sets on Gateway

Conference to follow trend, merge with men's association

By Cyndi Oberle
Sports Writer

It began as an idea, an idea at a time when women athletes were not offered the opportunity to play on the same level as men.

What dawned a decade ago to enable women to compete on the NCAA level will end July 1 when the Gateway Conference merges with the Missouri Valley Conference.

The Gateway will become the Gateway Football Conference, and all other sports will be members of the Valley.

Charlotte West, SIUC associate athletic director and one of eight founders of the Gateway, said a national trend has emerged of men's conferences taking over their women counterparts.

"THE GATEWAY IS definitely one of the last conferences to do this," she said.

Within the last five years the Big 10, Big Eight, Atlantic Coast Conference, Pac 10 and Southwestern Conference have included women's sports in their programs, West said.

"Most recently the WAC (Western Athletic Conference) has adopted this approach," West said, "and this is a justified reason for the Gateway losing its women's sports."

Missouri Valley Commissioner Doug Elgin said of 33 Division I conferences that participate in men's basketball, the Valley was only one of three conferences that did not have a women's program.

"WE WANT TO BEGIN immediately by enhancing the women's and men's programs by being a unified conference," he said.

He expects the conferences to go through some growing pains in the transition period, but a committee is working on rewriting the by-laws and constitution, Elgin said.

"We want the women administrators to have real authority in the decision-making process and in governing the new league," he said.

Patty Viverito, commissioner of the Gateway, said during the past few years some schools in the Gateway were looking for other options to expand.

"The MVC has always been an all-male conference, so we saw it as a feasible option," Viverito said. "It is a big desire of the universities to have a single conference

If the decision were up to the women...we would still have a Gateway.

—Charlotte West

on their campus."

The Valley also offers a long-standing tradition of name recognition and respectability, Viverito said.

"The Gateway has earned a good reputation in its 10 years," she said. "But we don't have the name recognition that the Valley has. We tried to achieve it for 10 years, but it doesn't happen overnight."

Elgin said he is proud of the progressive nature of the people who are working to bring the two groups together.

"THIS IS A HISTORICAL moment for the MVC," he said. "We have been in existence for 85 years, and this is the first time we have had women's and men's sports under the same conference umbrella."

Gateway officials also wanted to incorporate with the MVC for the leverage the Valley will give women's sports, Viverito said.

"There has been a mini-explosion of women's sports on television lately, and when we look at what is happening, being in a men's conference will give us opportunities we wouldn't have had as the Gateway," Viverito said.

Elgin said the merger will eliminate the confusion of recruiting and gain better funding.

But West said not everyone is satisfied with the merger.

"THE GATEWAY WAS a very stable conference, and if something is not broken there is no need to fix it," she said. "If the decision were up to the women administrators, we would still have a Gateway Conference."

Viverito said she also believes membership in the Gateway is a better fit competitively and geographically, but it was hardly discussed by the transition committee as an option for the Gateway incorporating the Valley.

Mary Jo Wynn, director of women's athletics for Southwest Missouri State, said she is wary of the MVC take-over.

"If they have commitment to house both men's and women's sports, I see it as a positive thing," Wynn said. "I see it as a negative if it is at the expense of the women's programs. It is still open as to whether it will be a good move."

West said a women's conference could take over a men's conference and some male administrators even prefer it.

"WE THOUGHT THIS was a better way to go," she said. "The Gateway incorporating the MVC would have been a feasible approach, but it would not have been financially wise. If you play in Division I, you get a share of the TV money."

If the Gateway and the MVC wanted to combine sports without eliminating one conference, they could have kept the same schools and kept the NCAA Division I money, but the conference would have had to suffer a name change, West said.

The Gateway currently consists of SIUC, Bradley, Drake, Eastern Illinois, Western Illinois, Illinois State, Indiana State, Northern Iowa, Southwest Missouri State and Wichita, but only eight of the 10 will be under the Missouri Valley.

Western and Eastern will join the Mid-Continent Conference.

Viverito said even though the Gateway did not survive the test of time, she does not take it as a vote of no confidence.

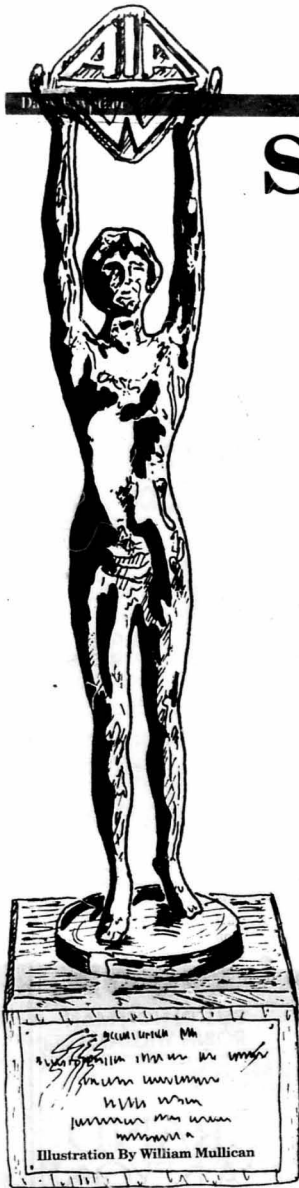

"WE HAVE OUR HEADS held high for the great things we have done in 10 years," she said. "But this is a new era. We will be walking in the same direction along a different path."

Elgin said he shares in the sadness of those who have built a great conference and are now seeing it absorbed into another.

The Gateway will have its 10-year anniversary dinner June 3, and West has been selected to give the final speech.

"It will be a great challenge for me to make it light," West said.

"But I will still and always feel a tinge of sadness at closing the doors to a great conference."

Symbol of eternity: Anniversary marks origin, end; conference pioneers hope MVC continues strength of women's programs

By Cyndi Oberle
Sports Writer

This year's 10th anniversary, marking the beginning of the Gateway Conference as well as its end, represents a symbol of eternity — a circle.

The conference began its odyssey in 1982 when a group of women administrators anticipated the future.

Charlotte West and Mary Jo Wynn were two of these founding women. West, the SIUC associate athletic director and Wynn, Southwest Missouri State's director of women's athletics, were two of eight Gateway pioneers who saw the dream of the conference rise and fall.

The NCAA traditionally existed as an all-male association, but in the early 1980s, it began to make overtures to incorporate women's sports, West said.

"We had a preliminary meeting here at SIUC to discuss the possibility of that happening," she said, "and we thought if that happens, a conference affiliation would be important."

BEFORE THIS TIME, all women's sports were part of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women, and women's membership to the NCAA was prohibited.

In 1967 a group of women leaders went to the NCAA and petitioned it to include women's sports in its program, West said.

"They were told 'no' — the NCAA was an association for men done by men," West said. "So we developed a program outside of the NCAA. It was an organization for women done by women."

The AIAW spanned the years 1971 to 1982, and West, a former president of the association, said it grew larger in membership than the NCAA.

"We started receiving television contracts for millions of dollars, and we also had 41 national championships," she said. "It was at this point the NCAA wanted to take us over."

The NCAA offered women's championships in its program. If the team was a part of their organization, the NCAA would fund its expenses to the national championships.

TO GET TO A NATIONAL championship with the AIAW, a team had to win its state and regionals, West said.

"We also could not fund that kind of money," she said. "We feared we would lose the association because of these factors."

And her fears soon became a reality, West said. The NCAA filed a trust suit against the AIAW, and history can tell the rest.

"WE CLOSED OUR DOORS gracefully and the NCAA became a monopoly," she said. "We then knew it would be a great asset to be in a conference if we were to be in the NCAA."

After a few early meetings, the group of women administrators formed the idea for the Gateway Conference.

Universities such as Michigan State and Indiana State, now in the Big 10, approached the Gateway founders, West said.

"At the time there were few, if any, all-women's conferences," she said, "and they wanted to be a part of it."

Eight schools sent representatives to the meetings who planned the groundwork for a women's conference.

BEFORE LONG, TWO more schools, Wichita State and Northern Iowa, petitioned for entrance into the Gateway, and the eight school conference became 10.

"We chose schools that were geographically close and whose women's programs resembled ours," West said. "Basketball, volleyball and softball were mandatory sports for admittance, but all the other schools also had tennis and track."

Wynn said the women administrators wanted a strong conference right from the beginning.

"We said we want a strong conference or we don't want one at all," Wynn said. "I think that was the key to making the Gateway as strong as it was."

Flu outbreaks for winter peak promptly, wane

ATLANTA (UPI) — Federal health officials said Thursday there were indications this winter's influenza epidemic has peaked, despite reported outbreaks in virtually every state.

"It's pretty clearly coming down now; we're over the peak. It's not totally over but we're coming down," said Larry Schonberger of the federal Centers for Disease Control.

If the epidemic has peaked, the 1991-92 flu season will be remembered not only for its early beginning but for its early waning. In the past, influenza seasons have peaked in February or even March.

Since influenza outbreaks began in October, 46 state health departments have reported regional or widespread outbreaks, with the remaining states listing sporadic flu activity.

The CDC continued to urge high risk oldsters and everyone with a chronic, underlying disease to get vaccinations against the respiratory ailment. If influenza has already broken out in a community, the health agency said taking the drug amantadine "is a reasonable option" during the two-week period required after vaccination for immunity to build up. Amantadine, a prescription drug, has been shown to be effective in warding off the flu or lessening its impact.

On July 1 the Missouri Valley Conference will absorb the Gateway. The Gateway will become the Gateway Football Conference, and eight of its 10 schools will become part of the MVC.

West said the Gateway was a strong, stable conference that kept the same schools throughout its history.

Wynn agrees it was one of the leading women's conferences in the country.

"We were pleased to be in the Gateway," she said, "and if the Valley can offer us the same kind of commitment to women's programs we will benefit. Right now, it is too early to tell."

Gateway Conference Commissioner Patty Viverito said the MVC offers the Gateway greater name recognition and respectability.

"The MVC has been in existence for 85 years, and the Gateway only 10," she said. "The MVC can offer us many opportunities that we would not have on our own."

SIUC women's basketball coach Cindy Scott, whose teams have captured three of nine Gateway Championships, said she is concentrating on this season rather than the take-over.

"It is important to our team to win this last championship," she said. "If we did, we would have won the most Gateway titles of any team in its history." The Gateway was brought into existence because the NCAA took over the AIAW, and now it will see its death through the MVC incorporation.

What looks to the future also must look to the past, and in doing so it creates a symbol of eternity, a circle.

FRED'S
A True Confession
 I don't know how it happened... at first, I was going to SIU, living at Thompson Point, and doing what SIU students normally do on the weekends: going uptown to the strip and standing around with the rest of the people pretending to have fun. Then, one time I went to FRED'S. I couldn't believe it! Everybody was dancing, well maybe 75%, but when was the last time you've seen more than 10% of the crowd dancing uptown? Even my friends who said they didn't like country music were dancing up a storm. You know, all those places say they are "the place to party", well they don't even know the meaning of the word. Well anyway, now I'm hooked on FRED'S. I confess... FRED'S has really spoiled me!

percent and wine-imbibing down 6.8 percent.

But drinkers still quaffed 2.59 billion cases of beer and 202.8 million cases of wine in 1991.

Nicolas Furlotte, editorial director of the group, said the decline in hard liquor drinking began in 1979.

"This decline is largely a result of change in American lifestyle with increased emphasis on diet, fitness and health," Furlotte said.

He added, however, that 1991's drop also could be attributed to the 8 percent increase in federal taxes, hikes in supplier prices and the recession in general.

Consumption of all types of whiskey was down 7.9 percent, with Scotch dropping 11.3 percent.

Even though it is the most popular hard liquor, with a 22.5 percent share of the market, vodka sales dropped 5.6 percent — almost 2 million cases, Jobson reported.

Some universities such as the University of Miami are using their own facilities to treat employees; SIUC is not.

"The only employees treated at Health Service are those injured while on the job and employees who are also students," said Health Service Administrator Jake Baggott.

SIUC's primary insurance plan is the State of Illinois Quality Care plan. In Illinois, either this plan or a local Health Maintenance Organization handles the cost of health care.

Although the SIU School of Medicine in Springfield offers an HMO package, no HMO is available to SIUC employees.

At the School of Medicine, some of the doctors in its affiliated hospitals participate as doctors in the HMO, said School of Medicine Assistant Provost Ray Robertson.

"Some clinical employees do participate in a number of programs including health education classes and the HMO plan. The majority of the HMO participants have their own private practice which enables them to participate," Robertson said.

spouses and dependents rose from $104.42 to $120 for two or more dependents.

The State of Illinois also is trying to address the rising cost of prescription drugs.

"The state is collecting information to figure out a way to increase benefits and lower costs of such things as prescription drugs that are becoming very costly," said Insurance Officer JoAnne Pitz.

The insurance plan covers 80 percent of hospitalization costs with a maximum expenditure stop loss. That means there is a ceiling on how much people can pay for a certain service.

"Preferred providers" in the plan have a contract with the state. If an employee incurs treatment from a preferred provider, the state insurance plan will cover 90 percent of the cost.

12.2 percent. Gin, whose popularity has declined over the years to less than 9 percent of hard liquor drinkers, was hit by a 3.2 percent drop.

Only tequila, braced by its margarita-lovers, stayed almost unchanged, with only a 0.3 percent drop in sales and holding on to its 3 percent of the market, the group said.

Beer consumption's 2.7 percent slip amounted to 340 million cases. In 1991, premium beer grabbed 37 percent of the market, light beer 23 percent and popular beer 21.6 percent, the report said.

Anheuser-Busch continued to dominate the domestic market, grabbing off 44 percent.

Second was Miller with 22.5 percent, followed by Coors with 10.2 percent, Stroh with 7.7 percent, Heileman with 5.5 percent and Pabst with 3.7 percent.

Wine drinking's 6.8 percent drop in 1991 translates into almost 15 million cases, the group said.

The biggest drop was a 16.2 percent in wine coolers, followed by a 15.9 percent slump in dessert and fortified wines, an 8.5 percent drop in champagne and sparkling burgundy and an 8.1 percent drop in v. smooth.

Table wines, which dominated the market with a share of 68.6 percent, slipped only 2.7 percent in sales.

E&J Gallo Winery held the major share of the domestic market with 45 percent, followed by Heublein with 12 percent, the Wine Group with 6.5 percent, Vintners International with 6 percent, Bronco Wine with 3.3 percent, Sebastiani Vineyards with 3.2 percent, Sutter Home with 2.8 percent, Canandaigua with 2.5 percent, Glen Ellen with 2.4 percent and Robert Mondavi with 2.2 percent.

college," Barton said.

Mary Wright, undergraduate program director for mathematics, said SIUC is acting as a community college, at least, with respect to the GE math courses.

GED 107 is the first level math course that is not considered remedial, although it should be, Wright said.

The equivalent to this course is a second-year high school algebra class, she said.

"We should not be offering high school level math at a University," Wright said.

But David Kammler, SIUC mathematics professor, said the University cannot eliminate altogether the GE curriculum.

"The idea that we can do away with specially tailored courses and take introductory courses required by majors is absolutely unworkable," he said.

Only one student out of 10 successfully could complete the introductory chemistry course if it were the first level course offered, he said.

Patricia Elmore, professor in the Department of Education Psychology, said somewhere down the line, students will need remedial-type course if they are not prepared in their earliest college courses.

"We can't admit people and not give them the tools to excellence," she said.

SIUC will have to complete four years of English, three years of math, science and social science, and two years of electives. All of the courses must be at a college preparatory level, said Jerry Pfaff, associate director of admissions and records.

Arnold Barton, SIUC history professor, said as it is, the general education curriculum offers students nothing more than a community college education.

"We are trying to run a community college as an integral part of the University," he said.

"If we are going to achieve excellence in research and undergraduate programs we can't continue to be a super community

THE EPICUREANS are here! Southern Illinois' Best Places to Dine

They're housewives, secretaries, business executives, and professional people. You'll see them every night at the finest restaurants. What all Epicureans have in common is their "GOOD TASTE".

It all began back in 306, B.C. Athens, Greece, that's when Epicurus founded a school of philosophy which made an impact that would earn him a place in world history. Along with Epicurus teachings of the value of high moral and ethical standards he believed and taught the importance of the relationship to a healthy body and a healthy soul. Epicurus believed that good food in moderation was good for the body, therefore, good for the soul.

Epicurus students were called EPICUREANS. In later years the word Epicure was adapted to the English language to mean, "to dine well" therefore an Epicurean is one who dines well.

June 1977 A.D. in Pensacola, Florida a modern EPICUREAN Movement was launched under the direction of W.F. Johns, a native Floridian known to his friends as Bud.

The Epicurean Club would provide a recommended list of Pensacola's best places to dine and discount dining privileges for card carrying members referred to as Epicureans.

As club popularity grew, membership increased to 5,000 in the first year.

Not to be confused with dining discount punch cards nor coupon books, the EPICUREANS Club is America's ONLY true discount dining club. Records of members names, addresses, and telephone numbers are kept on a computer "confidential" file for member correspondence, restaurant updating renewal notification etc. EPICUREANS pay a nominal fee for a one year membership. Proof of membership is a prestigious plastic identification card.

When a member and guest dine at an EPICUREAN sponsored restaurant they may each select any entree from the regular menu, they identify themselves to the waiter or waitress as EPICUREANS and when the meal ticket is presented for payment one of the entrees will be "paid for by the restaurant." The meal entree that is paid for is the lowest priced, or equal if both entrees are the same. When more than two parties are dining only one meal is deducted for each membership card. Members receive a list of local restaurants with a daily schedule (7 day week) of restaurant participation. Several restaurants will honor a member's card each night of the week allowing members a choice of restaurants every night. The schedule is repeated each week.

Along with local restaurant information, members receive lists and schedules of participation restaurants in other cities. All restaurants honor valid member cards of local and traveling EPICUREANS.

Local residents will be happy to note that EPICUREAN endorsed restaurants are Tom's Place, Mugsy McGuire's, Oriental Foods, Ferris Steakhouse, Grand China, Antonettes-airport Restaurant, Fiddlers Restaurant & Lounge, Stuarts Restaurant & Lounge, Southernaire (Holiday Inn), and Prime Time. There are also many fine restaurants in Paducah, Cape Girardeau and many other cities.

EPICUREANS are always proud to show their card because it "Shows Their Taste." Through this program the EPICUREAN Club had developed an image of growth and vitality which attracts people who enjoy fine dining, good company, and special customer treatment.

EPICUREAN member enrollment since 1977 numbers more than 500,000 most of whom were contacted by telephone about joining after being recommended by a friend who was a happy EPICUREAN.

Police agents arrest woman for drug role

By Scott Wuerz
Police Writer

A Florida woman was arrested Tuesday for her alleged role in a Southern Illinois-based marijuana distribution ring. Maria De La Luz Maggi, 30, of Pembroke Pines, Fla., the wife of convicted marijuana distributor Randy Thomas Lanier, was arrested by FBI agents in South Florida on an indictment returned in November 1991. Maggi allegedly was managing Lanier's marijuana operation in his absence, said Capt. Richard Barrett of the Illinois State Police Division of Criminal Investigation. Lanier became the first person convicted under the principal administrators of continued criminal administration law, enacted in 1988, when his conviction was affirmed Thursday. The law mandates life imprisonment without the possibility of parole for principal administrators of drug rings. Lanier also received a $60-million fine. Lanier, who is named as a co-conspirator in the indictment, allegedly began the marijuana operation in 1986, Barrett said. The indictment alleges that Maggi attempted to impede a grand jury investigation by conducting financial transactions designed to hide assets and cash linking her to the marijuana distributorship.

SIUC researchers experiment with soybean protein

By Kara Grover
General Assignment Writer

SIUC researchers in the College of Agriculture are working on a soybean protein for dairy animals that will eventually replace the conventional milk protein. Sandy Stokes, assistant professor of Animal Science, in the college of agriculture, has been researching an alternative protein for calves since fall 1991. Soybean protein began in Europe in the 1950's, but the protein used then was crudely processed and not easily digestible by dairy animals.

Because the milk replacer that is conventionally used for cows is expensive for farmers, researchers have been trying to perfect soybean protein. But the calves have not been able to digest it. Soybean proteins may cause damage to the calves' intestinal lining, Stokes said. "Since they've found the problem, different soybean industries have been developing process techniques to remove those properties that are causing the calves problems," Stokes said.

Stokes said that there are three diets that calves use: diet one is milk protein, which is what calves traditionally use after three days of nursing, diet two which is 50 percent soybean protein and milk protein and diet three which is 50 percent soybean protein with amino acids. "We're measuring those three diets and trying to measure amino acid digestibility. In addition, we'll be monitoring the blood."

Stokes said that monitoring the blood is a sensitivity test to see how the calves are reacting to the soybean proteins. The big factor for using soybean protein rather than milk protein is the cost, Stokes said. "Calves are fed their mother's milk for the first couple of days. After that, the milk is available for human consumption. It's more economical for the farmers to sell the milk," Stokes said.

After three days of the mother's milk, farmers then put the calf on milk replacer. If the soybean protein is refined to the point that the calf will remain strong and healthy, then it will replace milk proteins. "What we are trying to do is get the same performance," Stokes said.

Tony Young, associate dean for instruction at the College of Agriculture, said that while the results of the research at SIUC are not exact yet, soybean protein will be an alternative source in the future. "We're looking down the road about 5-10 years," Young said. In addition to Stokes, researchers also include Lewis Strack, veterinarian in Animal Science, and graduate students Mary McMurtry and Joy Kirkpatrick.

Funding for the research is from the Illinois Soybean Program Operating Board.

Americans believe infidelity unrelated to candidacy—poll

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A majority of Americans do not believe marital infidelity is important in considering a political candidate but agree that the news media are right to report the issue, a new poll showed Thursday.

But there was a large minority who did not agree and there were major differences of opinion based on the political preference of those responding to the poll conducted by the Time Mirror Center for The People & The Press.

Fifty-two percent to 40 percent of those polled said they did not believe marital infidelity should be a major consideration in evaluating how candidates might perform their jobs.

But Republicans, by a 54 percent to 39 percent majority, said the issue is one that should be considered when deciding how to vote.

However, only 33 percent of the Democrats and 35 percent of independents said it should be a factor.

A total of 1,008 adults were polled from last Friday to Tuesday. The pollsters said the margin of error was 3 percentage points.

There were major differences of opinion based on the political preference of those responding to the poll.

Almost two-thirds of the interviews were conducted before Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton appeared on CBS's "60 Minutes" Sunday night to deny he had a 12-year affair with a state employee and before his accuser repeated her allegations about the Democratic presidential candidate Monday afternoon.

The rest came afterward, but pollsters said there was no significant difference in the responses of the two groups except that more people were aware of the allegations against Clinton after he appeared on television.

Fifty-two percent of the respondents said if they ran a news organization they would report the allegations against Clinton and 43 percent said they would not.

Again party affiliation affected the response. Republicans by a 61 percent to 34 percent margin said they would carry the story, while only 39 percent of the Democrats said they would and 56 percent said they would not.

Independents agreed with the Republicans 57 percent to 38 percent.

As to whether the press had been covering the Clinton story responsibly, 44 percent said the coverage was very or fairly responsible, while 41 percent said the media was not too responsible or not at all responsible.

However, by a 73 percent to 21 percent margin the respondents said they believed the press ran the story because it would attract readers rather than as a way of letting the public know about the candidate's character.

The pollsters said the results parallel a poll four years ago that asked about a similar situation arising over Democratic presidential candidate Gary Hart.

In that poll, 43 percent said marital infidelity should be taken into account and 50 percent disagreed.

Three collegiate executives get extra retirement benefits

NORMAL, (UPI) — The head of the Illinois Board of Regents and the presidents of Northern Illinois and Illinois State universities received an extra year of retirement benefits Thursday as a bonus for their job performance.

After outside consultants gave them a glowing review, the board paid for an additional year of retirement pay for Regents Chancellor Roderick Groves, ISU President Thomas Wallace and NIU President John LaTourette. The bonuses are each valued at about $8,000 to $10,000.

The only chief executive of a Regency University not to receive a raise was Sangamon State University President Naomi Lynn. Lynn has not received a review because she has served less than a year in her current position.

The announcement of the bonus came at the Regents' monthly meeting held at ISU. The session included a protest from a dozen faculty members at SSU.

Alumni offering scholarships for four top students

By Christy Gutowski
General Assignment Writer

The Student Alumni Council will award four scholarships worth $200 each to qualifying students who can demonstrate excellence in academic and extracurricular fields.

Students who have an overall grade point average of 3.2, are employed, have a letter of recommendation and are involved in two registered student organizations are eligible for the awards.

The scholarships reward students who are able to balance their time between school, work and extracurricular activities, said Laura Zaremba, president of the Student Alumni Council.

"All the money comes from fund-raisers that we were involved in throughout the year," Zaremba said.

The council had a Bowl-A-Thon earlier this year with Pi Sigma Epsilon, a marketing fraternity, to raise money.

"We also held a telethon in an attempt to get graduating seniors involved with the association," Zaremba said.

Last year the council received only six applications, so students have an excellent chance of being awarded one of the scholarships, she said.

Many students did not know the awards were offered, Zaremba said.

The council also offers a program that features the 25 most distinguished students at SIUC.

Students qualifying for the award receive a one-year membership worth $20 and a certificate, Zaremba said.

"The program is mostly about recognizing the most significant contributions these students have offered SIUC," she said.

The names of those students chosen will be displayed in a showcase window at the Student Center.

Applications for both awards can be obtained at the Alumni Student office.

Deadline to apply is March 6.

Singer addresses today's issues in mild manner

By William Ragan
Entertainment Writer

A country-western bar seems an unlikely place for folk singer Anne Chamberlain to perform her music. But then again, her singing career has never taken the usual route.

Chamberlain, a graduate student in cinema and photography, made her Carbondale debut Wednesday night at Levi's, 215 N. Illinois, riveting the small crowd's attention with her intensely personal and sometimes shocking songs.

She immediately established her sexual preference as well as her stand on homophobia with the song "Gay in America," which evoked nervous giggles from some members of the crowd with its speak-and-spell-take on gay rights: "I'm a L-E-S-B-I-A-N."

Chamberlain transferred to SIUC from her home town of Bloomington, Ind., where she attracted a large audience that was responsive to her music.

"Gays were predominant in my audiences, but a lot of other people would come," Chamberlain said. "There's a real strong women's community (in Bloomington) and they were very supportive."

After Chamberlain came out of the closet with her homosexuality, she performed to audiences, an experience she admits was frightening.

"It came to the point where I couldn't keep quiet about it anymore," she said. "It wasn't easy the first time to get up and sing some controversial stuff."

Through her songs, she tackles serious subjects such as AIDS, war, drug abuse, rape and racism, but she does so with a charm and balance that does not alienate those with opposing viewpoints.

"I'm singing to the people who think the same way, but I also want to be heard by the people who hold different opinions," Chamberlain said.

"I try to bear in mind the other sides and find some common ground," she said.

Her approach to touchy issues is evident in the song "Welcome Home," which deals with the Persian Gulf War in a way that both pacifists and veterans can relate.

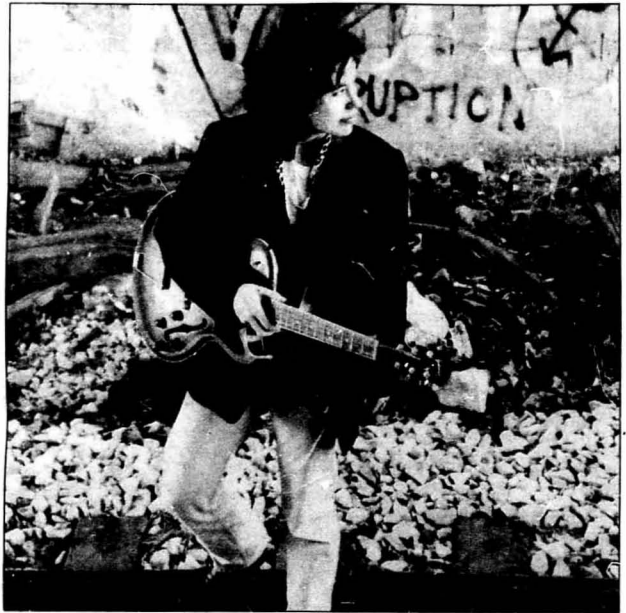

"We have some bad habits as a nation," she said. "We think we have a monopoly on truth and freedom. We think we have a right to go and mess with people's business. And we think that violence solves things, when it doesn't."

Another of her songs, "Ken Mann Doesn't Teach Anymore," tells the story of a Bloomington, Ind., school teacher who died of AIDS. The song criticizes the government for not dealing with the AIDS crisis adequately.

The United States has a long way to go in giving homosexuals equal rights, Chamberlain said.

"We need to be protected under the law. We need our marriages recognized. We need protection from violence. We need to have positive images in the media," she said.

"The population at large needs to be educated," Chamberlain said. "The truth needs to be told."

Fashion experts name America's top-dressed men

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wisconsin businessman Vito Pascucci captured top honors as America's best dressed man, the Men's Fashion Guild of America announced Thursday.

Pascucci, CEO of the Kenosha, Wis., and Paris-based G. LeBlanc Corp., topped the list of the 10 best-dressed men, followed by Ronald Reagan and Frank Sinatra.

"These gentlemen represent what American men should dress like, the epitome of tastefulness in their respective fields," said Alfonso Caprio of the House of Duro.

Three Chicagoans also made the list — Stanton Cook, chairman of the Tribune Co., No. 9; Chicago Sun-Times columnist Irv Kupcinet, No. 7, and Flair Communications President Lee Flaherty, No. 4.

Kemps said besides SIUC's dominance in diving, he is looking for a struggle with seniors Deryl Leubner and Todd Edison and freshman Robert Weger.

Even though Kansas beat the Dawgs in their last confrontation, SIUC is ranked higher, Kemps said. "SIUC is No. 23 and we are No. 25," he said. "I think competition-wise, we are even teams. We have a good balance of people in events, but so does SIUC."

Kemps said a winning aspect of his team is its positive attitude.

"At this point in the year, balance and attitude are the two most important things a team could have," he said.

The Salukis may have lost to Kansas last semester, but they did not have the home-pool advantage. Mahaira said SIUC is excited to be swimming the meet at home.

"There is no doubt they will give us a tough time," Mahaira said. "It will give us a little leverage to be competing against them at home."

Kemps said he has tremendous respect for SIUC head coach Doug Ingram and his program.

"Doug knows how to get his swimmers to swim fast," he said. "But what I don't like about him is he does it against us."

"I expect it to be an evenly balanced meet. The characters of both teams are good, and we always have a lot of fun swimming against each other."

The women Salukis post a 6-6 mark and the men stand at 7-5. The meet begins at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Recreation Center pool.

After falling at Northern Iowa on Monday night 80-69, the Dawgs are looking to get back in the win column.

Despite Southwestern Missouri's tempo-controlling game plan, Herrin has no intention of altering his own game plan.

"What we need to do is to make sure that every possession we concentrate on getting a good shot in and continue to do the things that we do well," Herrin said. "They are a patient team, but they also have the capacity to push it up the floor too."

Although the Bears had a slow start this season shooting the ball, averaging just under 40 percent during an 11-game streak, they have showed improvement as of late. In the past five games the Bears have posted a .504 from the field including three games at more than 50 percent.

The Bears also started slow from 3-point range but recently have heated up. The team went through a 10-game streak early in which they averaged more than 13 3-point attempts while only converting less than 30 percent of those attempts.

The SMSU game will give Herrin a chance to see how his team performs in the morning. Tipoff is at 11 a.m.

"I know we have performed well in the morning before, but I'm still not sure what to expect," Herrin said. "It will be different."

"There is no question Mr. Tyson and (the accuser) engaged in sex," Fuller said. "And it is crucial in considering this case that the sex was consensual."

Fuller characterized the accuser as a woman scorned. He said she was incensed because Tyson would not walk her out of the hotel after they had sex.

"It is our contention (the woman) was not victimized but compromised ... At this point she begins to formulate a plan," he said. "She found herself treated as a one-night stand."

Courier primed to take No. 1 in tennis world from Edberg

NEW YORK (UPI) — Only one obstacle remains before Jim Courier can take his place in tennis history.

Fresh from his victory over Stefan Edberg in the Australian Open final a week ago, Courier now has it in his own hands to complete the climb to No. 1.

Courier will be competing in San Francisco starting Monday, and he is assured of overtaking Edberg at the top by reaching the final. He also can do it by making it to the semifinals if he picks up 15 bonus points along the way. Bonus points are awarded for victories over players ranked among the top 200.

Since the ATP computer was put into effect in 1973, the only American men to rank No. 1 were Jimmy Connors and John McEnroe. No American has been on top since McEnroe was dethroned the week of Aug. 26, 1985.

On the surface, at least, Courier appears matter-of-fact about the possibilities.

"If it does come to fruition, it would be really significant to think that the last guy to be there from this country was McEnroe," Courier said Thursday on a telephone hookup from a car as he was en route to Los Angeles to tape a "Johnny Carson" show. "To follow him would be quite an honor."

"This is a goal every tennis player or any athlete, would like to achieve. I'm on the verge of achieving it, and if I do so I would be very happy."

Connors will be in the field at San Francisco, along with Michael Chang, Derrick Rostagno, Richey Reneberg and Brad Gilbert.

At the age of 21, Courier already has won two Grand Slam championships, capturing the French Open last year and following that up in Melbourne. In addition, he reached the final of the 1991 U.S. Open before losing to Edberg.

Courier, a confirmed baseliner, constantly is working on his game, placing emphasis at this time on his slice backhand and volleys. As he says, "I'm always looking to move forward because if you stay still everyone will pass you."

But he doesn't expect anything else to change if and when he becomes No. 1.

"My off court life I don't think will change," he said. "I'm very happy the way things are now. It's obviously working for me, so I don't see any reason to make changes. It's not a foregone conclusion by any means, but maybe there will be a little more recognition out there and a few more people will be aware of me."

"For me, playing tennis is what it's all about, not rankings. It's all about winning titles."

Capriati upset; Shriver, Sabatini win in tourney

TOKYO (UPI) — Unseeded Magdalena Maleeva of Bulgaria overwhelmed erratic 15-year-old fourth seed Jennifer Capriati, 6-1, 6-2 in a second-round battle of teenagers at the $350,000 Toray Pan Pacific Open.

In a mild upset, unseeded American Pam Shriver knocked out compatriot sixth seed Lori McNeil, 6-4, 6-1, for a quarterfinal berth.

In other second-round matches, top seed and defending champion Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina eliminated Japan's Mana Endo, 6-2, 7-5; third seed Arantxa Sanchez Vicario of Spain rallied to a 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 victory over hard-serving Australian Rachel McQuillan; and fifth-seeded Czechoslovakian Helena Sukova outgunned Chinese wild-card entry Shi-Ting Wang, 7-5, 6-4.

Maleeva, 16, kept Capriati off balance with aggressive play and groundstrokes throughout the match. Usually a consistent baseline player, Capriati seemed unable to control her powerful groundstrokes.

"I took advantage of her mistakes and just played better," Maleeva said. "All the previous times we played she started off slow, and I didn't take advantage of it."

The win was Maleeva's first against Capriati in three meetings.

"I just wasn't there," Capriati said. "She was on me the whole match and she didn't let me in it from the beginning. She just played extremely well."

After reeling off the first set in 25 minutes, Maleeva proceeded to a 4-2 lead in the second before she was ever challenged.
