Power, water holding up despite heat

Despite the continued spell of hot weather hitting Southern Illinois, the power companies say they can handle the record electric output required to keep their customers cool.

Also, local water officials say there is no danger of a shortage of water in the area.

CIPS spokesman Jim Goos reported Monday's record kilowat demand peaked at 1,915,000 shortly before 3 p.m. The previous record, which was only six days old, was 1,866,000 kilowatts. Reg Ankrom, spokesman for Central Illinois Public Service Co. in Springfield, said CIPS was having no trouble in providing service to its customers.

"We have an adequate supply of power to last as long as the heat does," Ankrom said. "We had some minor problems due to overheated transformers in Herrin and Carterville on Sunday, but nothing major." In order to remain comfortable during this hot spell and still keep electric costs low, Ankrom urges customers to free the area around their air conditioning units of trees and shrubs, but to still keep the units shaded if possible. A clean air filter would help by preventing the cool air backup often caused by a dirty filter. He also suggested keeping windows that are in direct sunlight shaded with a light fitting such as a sheet to reflect heat.

"Setting the thermostat to about 80 degrees instead of 65 can help save a lot of energy," Ankrom said.

Merle Fuhrbab, office manager at Egyptian Electric Co-op Association, said the company had an adequate electric capacity to last through any period of unusually hot weather.

The Southern Illinois Airport Weather Service reported that Monday's high temperature was 101, making it the seventh day in July where the temperature has equaled or risen over 100 degrees. The mark sets a record for days over 100 in July, according to the weather service. The service also said they expected the heat wave to continue for at least two or three more days but predicted a 30 percent chance of rain for Tuesday night.

But the water supply doesn't need rain for relief, local water supply officials report.

Bob Chapman, manager of Kinsaid Lake Conservancy District, said the water level is relatively good and he sees no threat of running into a shortage.

At Rend Lake, another area water supply, the water level poses no immediate problem.

Harry Foster, Rend Lake Superintendent, says there has been no significant drop in the lake level as a result of the recent sweltering temperatures.

The water level at Cedar Lake, which is a supply source for the city, is also holding up against the high temperatures, according to Scott Rater of the Carbonale City Manager's office.

Ratter said that the lake level was expected to drop 2 feet when a beach was built there this year, but despite that the lake is higher now than it was this time a year ago.

Sayers tells men's coaches to cut back

By Ed Dougherty and Jacquie Kowseuck

Once again Men's Athletics Director Gale Sayers is the bearer of bad tidings to his coaches, and once again the problem is money.

Sayers met Monday with about half of the head coaches, informing them of possible cutbacks in their fiscal year 1981 budgets. Sayers held similar sessions last fiscal year when the financial exigency in athletics made heavy cuts in recruiting budgets necessary.

Sayers said specifics of the budget would not be released until he told all the coaches how the possible cutback would affect their sports.

Reactions from coaches who could be reached after meeting with Sayers Monday ranged from pessimistic to dismal.

"We've hit rock bottom," said gymnastics coach Bill Meade, "but it's not just SIU. Other coaches I've talked to are having the same problem. It's just part of the game."

Track coach Lew Hartzog said his budget was cut by 15 percent.

"This same budget I'm working with right now is the same one I worked with four years ago," Hartzog said. "It keeps getting hard to keep the program going. There has to be some relief somewhere."

Wrestling coach Linn Long agreed with Meade and Hartzog that Sayers is not to blame. They say it's a part of the national economic situation.

"It all comes back to the green stuff," Long said. "After a while, you can only pick up so many pieces so many times."

Judge sentences three of four in Grand Central Stereo heist

By Diana Penner
Staff Writer

Two defendants in the $26,000 heist at Grand Central Stereo last fall entered negotiated pleas of guilty Monday, and a third was found guilty by Judge Richard Richman after a bench trial. The fourth defendant was found guilty by Richman after a stipulated bench trial in which no witnesses were called, but the attorneys told the judge what evidence and testimony would have been presented in a trial.

Sanford is scheduled to be sentenced Tuesday. A fourth defendant, Albert Davis, pleaded guilty to the charges last week. He was sentenced to 30 months probation and ordered to pay a $500 fine.

Shortly after opening on Dec. 1, Grand Central was robbed by four men of a truckload of stereo equipment valued at between $20,000 and $30,000. An employee of the store was also robbed of $60. Four employees and nine customers were held hostage during the robbery.

Four days after the incident, a yellow rental truck was found in Chicago. The stolen property was never recovered.

The four defendants were stopped for speeding by state police on Dec. 6, near the site of the robbery, on Interstate 57 just south of the Benton interchange. They were taken to the Franklin County Sheriff's Department, and during a search of the car they were traveling in, police found weapons and stereo equipment.

Several motions to dismiss the arrests of the defendants, search of the vehicle and evidence found had been entered prior to the plea and sentenced.

Matalonis, who was tentatively scheduled for a focus group guilty to the charges, was for their three-year, 11-month sentence.

The event, which is one of Matalonis' campaign promises, is also aimed at improving student and citizen relations by encouraging the mutual involvement in a common goal. The University Student Council, Carbondale, SIU-C, brought in the most mutual citizen relations by encouraging the mutual involvement in a common goal. He

The Undergraduate Student Organization is planning a day to clean up Carbondale. Waste that can be recycled will be the focus of the Carbondale Clean-Up day '80, tentatively scheduled for Sept. 26, is an attempt to rid the city of trash and replace it with community pride, said Paul Matalonis, USO president.

The event, which is one of Matalonis' campaign promises, is also aimed at improving student and citizen relations by encouraging the mutual involvement in a common goal, he said.

Matalonis said the day-long event will include local organizations, demonstrating food stands and music provided by local talent.

Involving individual and campus and community groups also is planned, Matalonis said. "Whoever brings in the most trash will win!"

Content categories will be set up for individual effort and group effort, he said.

An emergency research committee appointed by Matalonis is studying the city for areas that need the most clean-up.

Trustees approve tuition hike for flight training programs

SIU-C students enrolled in flight training programs at Southern Illinois Airport will pay from $225 to $390 more for tuition this fall.

The decision to raise the tuition for programs offered at SIU-C's Air Institute in Carbondale was made during a recent meeting of the Board of Trustees.

The board approved the $78,674 contract to Hannin Roofing Co. of Paducah, Ky., for roofing work on Grinnell Hall, Grinnell Housing and administrative facilities for the 17-story Macie Smith and Schneider residence halls.

The increasing cost of maintaining the 15-year-old roof made its complete replacement necessary, officials said.

Also, David F. Grobe, acting director of the Facilities Planning Office, has been confirmed in that job on a permanent basis. Grobe's appointment took effect June 1 and was ratified by the board Thursday.

In other personnel actions Tuesday, the board:

—ratified the appointment of Elsa A. McMullen as director of the Division of Human Resources in the College of Human Resources. McMullen comes to SIUC from Central Michigan University, where she was chairperson of the Department of Home Economics, Family Life and Consumer Education.

—ratified the appointment of Robert Cerchio as director of Stryock Auditorium. Cerchio had been acting director of the 1,200-seat facility.
Air conditioner, ice, fan sales bring cool cash in Carbondale

By Andy Strang

If the demand for ice, fans and air conditioners keeps at the present level, there may soon be no way to cool off Carbondale. "We can't keep up with the demand for ice," said Joe Reames, co-owner of the Murphyboro Ice and Cold Storage Co. "People have called for ice from as far away as St. Louis and we've been hauling in ice from as far as Terre Haute, Ind."

Neither can Old Town Liquors make enough ice to satisfy their customers, supervisor Dennis Krans said. They make their own ice and have not been able to keep up with their stocks since a power failure during the second storm temporarily stopped their ice machines.

Boren's IGA-East has "probably doubled on sales of ice in the past month," Store Manager Arvel Nance said. "Fan and air conditioner sales are also way up at many local department stores. Fan sales have doubled and air conditioner sales have tripled compared to last year's sales at Sears of the University Mall. Merchandise Manager Dan Erewey said."

Penny's of the Mall has experienced similar increases in fan sales, according to Merchandise Manager Gene Fischer. Fan sales were up at the beginning of the heat wave, but air conditioning sales are now going up "as people realize that the heat wave is longer in duration," Fischer said. Many of the local taverns have experienced minor sales increases because of the heat wave. Booby's has had "about a 10 percent increase" in beer sales, according to manager Bob Feld, who also reported the same increase in sandwich sales. "That's been a rewarding month," Field said. "The heat makes people more hungry and we're the place to eat."

That is what the Carbondale City Council is trying to buck in its attempt to eliminate the Halloween celebration. They argue that the city’s Halloween party doesn’t have the tradition of the Rose Bowl parade or Mardi Gras, the events that are known in the downtown. It’s not really about in Carbondale on more people’s maps than the University does.

But at last year’s bash, for the second year in a row, violence and vandalism marred the event due to attempts at organization. The city fathers rightly thought they should try to tame this monster Halloween.

So the council, after input from a City Advisory Committee, the Undergraduate Student Organization, Towne Central, and the city police, came up with some bright and not-so-bright ideas for handling Halloween.

The bright:

- USO President Paul Malanoski’s suggestion for a concert on the outskirts of the city to draw away some of the revelers. Unfortunately, what happens when the concert ends is everybody has nowhere to go but downtown.

- The city suggested that “special” downtown Halloween promotional events be discouraged. Fine. But the bars don’t need to serve emotional gimmicks for Halloween—they’ve already got enough business anyway.

A truly good idea was to stop serving alcohol at the regular 2 a.m. closing time. That should get some of the drunks out of downtown and home early.

The dark:

- No 1 is utter uselessness is the decision not to close Illinois Avenue. It’s a nice thought, but will it work if 8,000 people ignore the council and crowd into the street anyway? That’s what the ban on alcohol for a "period" before Halloween surely city councils in the surrounding communities won’t cut off liquor retailers from this lucrative revenue. And all the tax dollars to clean up Carbondale’s downtown will be lost.

- A more mischievous move by the council is the decision not to issue any "no-class cards." In the Proctor community it’s probably that area. It’s hard to see how this will stem any Halloween revelers. And this is a move by the City Council to eventually kill off the School and the City of the whole Halloween bar and drunken student hassle.

- Good idea, University. To schedule any events like home football games or concerts seems silly when one realizes that the majority of out-of-towners in Carbondale that weekend are here for the party. Other events are nice but secondary.

- It’s not to seem as to offer just destructive criticism for handling Halloween, here are some semi-serious constructive suggestions:

- Call off Halloween altogether. Have the Illinois legislature declare Halloween a "no-drink day" in Carbondale and/or advertise the fact in every major newspaper in the Midwest.

- Get the National Guard, the Army, and the state police to guard Illinois Avenue with guns drawn against the costumed crazies. Ania Bryant could head this campaign.

- Tell Carbondale University to schedule all events like football games or concerts to be on campus.

- Get the City Council members drunk and have them party with the out-of-town revelers.

- Stick your head in the sand and forget about it.

Jobless rates reflect misery

By Rep. Paul Simon

24th District

"Unemployment!" is a word which seems even more remote when it hits your home or your neighbor’s home. Probably no one has ever seen a more complete unemployment rate than the one in the state of Illinois in 1980.

We have three counties where unemployment has gone down from a year ago (Jackson, Union, and Hancock counties where it has gone up. In some counties the increase in unemployment is clear. In Hardin and Pope counties, the problem is that the fluorospar mining industry has a major cause and in counties like Franklin, unemployment in the coal industry is a major factor.

But we have many counties where there appears to be no point in the major factor, the sagging national economy is now reflected in local unemployment.

And all of this relates to efforts to balance the budget, because the current unemployment rate is important. If unemployment costs the federal treasury somewhere around $32 billion in other words, if we had 2 percent less unemployment, there would be no question about the budget being clearly in the black.

A question I am asked occasionally is, "How can we have so much unemployment when there are all of these jobs and only a few people seeking someone to work?"

Interestingly, in the height of the depression, there were people seeking someone to work. The difficulty is matching the skill (or lack of it) of the job seeker with the need of the person looking for someone. They often don’t mesh.

In addition, this nation—just about to say—has some new unemployed between 10 and 20 percent our population which is functionally illiterate, or 1 to 2 percent in Japan and these people are hard to read. One of the problems is to speak Spanish and not English, you’re just as hard to find, if you are or are yourself, when your job is too hard and you are not too many people are eager to hire you.

The problems are real and the—statistics from the nation and from Southern Illinois reflect some real human misery.

Oldes Kennedy is a true Rose

Colman McCarthy

Even more cataclysmic, if children are in the way and keeping you from law school or writing your novel, pass on the job.

To the off-our-backs contingent within modern feminism, Mrs. Kennedy never would have qualified for that role, only to be seen as "fulfilled." In truth, though, she was acting on the belief that whatever the passing stage in a marriage may be or whatever the sacrifices child- raising may call for, infinitely more is to be had from the abiding loyalties and the seren- and the present. "To me," she has said, "I am truly, loyal and devoted family is a work of art."

The Kennedy on husband and children dominating most of the first 70 years of her life, it was predictable that a different kind of flowering would mark the past 20. She took up the pen, wrote a licence, an autobiography, became a dedicated walker (three miles a day) and took to the stump in the political campaigns of her sons. And now, in a few days, it’s to the streets of Boston for a miles and a half of happy remembering.

If it seems that Mrs. Kennedy is old-fashioned—what with her ideas about service or her fidelity to religion—then one more of her serves. Mrs. Kennedy is out of step. At 90, she refuses to accept her days of O’Connor’s Women’s rights. She has been turned to the stump in the political campaigns of her sons. Police aid elderly in clean up

Members of the Carbondale Police Officers Association have volunteered to assist the city’s senior citizens in clearing their property of the damage done by recent wind storms. Work through the Carbondale Senior Citizens program, CPOA members began helping with the cleanup last week. CPOA president Joe Coughlin said the volunteers have been aiding with clearing fallen trees and limbs from the property of seniors who have requested help from the city program at 606 E. College. Coughlin said the union members are concentrating their efforts on storm damage, and are unable to do any other repair or property maintenance work at this time. The off-duty police officers are working with two chain saws donated by EZ Rentals, 1817 W. Scenic in Carbondale.

Senior Citizens, who need help clearing damage done by the storms should contact the Carbondale Senior Citizens Program at 457-4151 to arrange for assistance.

Suspects sought in shooting melee that wounded four

JOLIET (AP)—Four young men remained hospitalized Monday as police continued their search for the two men who fired shotgun blasts into a party in unincorporated Will County.

Richard A. Sylvester, 18, and Jerry Schult, 17, both of Midlothian, and Richard P. Moore, 18, of Oak Forest were in stable condition and Carl Schoen, 18, of Joliet was listed in good condition.

Will County sheriff's police said they had no suspects in the shootings, which occurred during a party Sunday night at a farm about seven miles northeast of Joliet. Police said two men became involved in an argument as they left the party in a car, spinning its wheels and hitting bystanders with gravel. The two got out of the car and threatened bystanders with baseball bats, then returned later with shotguns, police said.

Two men who police said hosted the party, Clayton Schoen, 26, and Carl Hawkins, 26, were charged with selling alcoholic beverages to minors. Hawkins also was charged with criminal damage to property and obstructing a police officer.

Sarcophagus recordings are proof of a visit from the stars or whether they have some earthbound explanations.

Among the evidence that von Daniken bases his theories on are: mysterious lines on the Nazca desert in Peru, the stone sarcophagus lid at Palenque in Mexico, The Great Pyramid of Egypt and the giant statues on Easter Island.

Did astronauts from other worlds help build the pyramids of Egypt? Author Erich von Daniken says yes, and the WGBH series NOVA will take a hard look at his bold claims.

NOVA to study ancient spacemen

Is it possible that astronauts from other worlds visited earth?

"The Case of the Ancient Astronauts." a NOVA special produced for public television that will air at 7 p.m. Tuesday on Channel 6, will examine the examples of other human intelligence which have been presented for scientific investigation by Swiss author Erich von Daniken.

Von Daniken, who wrote the best seller "Chariots of the Gods," claims that "tens of thousands of years ago, space crafts from other worlds landed on earth." He theorizes that ancient astronauts mated with humans, created what we call pets that would be prohibited by the city's animal control ordinance.

A special investigation by the city's animal control officers, who will examine the examples of other human intelligence, will be presented on the NOVA special.

Prosecutors may seek indictments on mob infiltration of Vegas casinos

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal investigators probing Cosa Nostra's role in mob infiltration of three Las Vegas casinos must decide within weeks whether they have enough evidence to seek charges.

One of them, the Stardust, is among the largest on the razzle-dazzle Strip while its corporate sister, the Fremont, has long been a fixture among downtown casinos.

The third is the Tropicana, financed by Bugsy Siegal to syndicate for years and, like the other, sporadically noted for reputed mob control.

All three were sold last year after court disclosures provoked state authorities to press for changes. No allegations have been made against the new owners.

For two years, Justice Department investigators have traced the intricate financial network allegedly showing crime syndicate control of the three casinos during the latter half of the 1970s.

The probe led through Las Vegas and into Kansas City, Chicago and Milwaukee, as investigators traced the dealings of reputed mobsters. In Kansas City, hub of several aspects of the federal attack, prosecutors face a deadline Aug. 15, the end of the term for the grand jury handling the case.

Michael DeFeo, chief of the federal organized crime strike force there, noted that prosecutors could seek indictments by then or could continue the investigation with a new grand jury. He declined to discuss the deliberations.

Prosecutors usually prefer to wrap up an investigation with one grand jury because of the time lost while new jurors learn the case.

Court records reviewed by The Associated Press suggest that any Kansas City indictments would center on financial troubles for years and illegal enterprises, and easily concealed from tax agents.

So when the Justice Department and FBI in the mid-1970s launched Mafia investigations as high in priority, it was only natural that the mob's Vegas connections would be a chief target.

The crime syndicate, popularly known as the Mafia or La Cosa Nostra has kept its finger in the rich Las Vegas pie since the 1950s when Bugsy Siegal built the Flamingo Hotel with backing from East Coast mobsters, chiefly Meyer Lansky.

As the desert turned into a boom town, Mafia bosses settled on "open city" status for Vegas with no mob family having exclusive territorial rights.

There was big money for all. It came in cash, regularly smuggled from casino counting rooms, carried East in briefcases, funneled into other legal and illegal enterprises, and easily concealed from tax agents.

Hospital closer to expansion; project approval in final phase

By Dave Powers
Carbondale Memorial Hospital's proposed expansion project has cleared the third step in a four-step process necessary to gain state approval before construction can begin.

The executive committee of Comprehensive Planning in Southern Illinois Inc. Thursday unanimously endorsed the favorable recommendations of its review committee, according to Hospital Administrator George Maroney.

The recommendations of CHPSI's executive committee will now be forwarded to the Illinois Health Facilities Planning Board, a division of the state Department of Public Health, which must give final approval.

The planning board is scheduled to meet Aug. 7 and 8 in Chicago. Although HIPPP is a separate governing body from CHPSI, Maroney said he viewed the final hearing as a formality, "judging from the positive response" the project has gained.

Maroney said that the extended process necessary to gain approval of the expansion is intended to eliminate poorly documented projects. The ease with which the Carbondale proposal has cleared these hurdles is evidence of its soundness, Maroney said.

Approval of the project will pave the way for a $6.7 million addition to the hospital. The expansion will include two wings on the hospital's west side, which will house expanded intensive care and post-intensive care units, an obstetrics ward, high-risk nursery, dietary department, cafeteria and dining room.

The project's approval process also included two public hearings in early June where no public opposition was voiced.

Workshop for high school teachers wants to give students the business

By Kathy Shubski
Student Writer
A one-day workshop to bring high school teachers to date in consumer economics will be offered next summer at SIUC. Vaughn, assistant dean of the College of Business, said a goal will be to familiarize teachers in existing courses or use to develop new courses. He said Vaughn will begin the project this fall by submitting a questionnaire to regional high school counselors to find out how much interest there is in the workshop.

The workshop will concentrate on courses such as consumer economics, taxation, insurance planning and business law, personal finance skills. Vaughn said the workshop will present new and changing concepts which teachers can either incorporate into existing courses or use to develop new courses, he said.

Vaughn said the courses suggested to the teachers would familiarize their students with business and economic concepts and help students better adjust to the world outside the classroom.

"The courses are designed to help with work or personal money-related problems," he said.

Vaughn said he will try to reach as many regional high schools as possible and expects between 25-35 teachers involved in the workshop. If there is enough interest generated by the project, Vaughn said he anticipates a larger grant in the next two to three years to increase the number of workshops, increase specialization and possibly offer a larger credit for the workshops.

Police investigate robbery behind Carbondale Memorial Hospital

By Kathy Shubski
Student Writer
Carbondale police are investigating the robbery of a woman who was forced into a car in a parking lot at the University Mall.

Police said the woman, who they would not identify, was walking her car in the parking lot behind the J.C. Penney store at the mall about 6 p.m. Saturday. She was approached by two men who forced her into a car she identified as a 1966-67 full-size, four-door model.

She told police that the men, who did not display a weapon, then drove the car out of the lot and into a rural area where they took the money from her purse. She was returned to the lot at about 8 p.m. Saturday, police said.

Also Friday, police said a woman was forced into a car by two men who tried to rob her. She was wearing a light green T-shirt, blue and white plaid pants and brown shoes at the time of the robbery. Police said the other man was described to them as being in his late 20s and heavy-set.

Summer planning conference to be conducted in Carbondale

By Randy Rodgski Staff Writer

More than 40 city and county planners from Illinois will attend the summer conference of the American Planning Association's Greater Illinois Section Thursday and Friday in the Banquet Room at the Carbondale Americana. Speakers will discuss local government and energy programs and funding, and surface mined lands reclamation.

The American Planning Association set the theme for "AMA of the planning world," according to James Rush of the Greater Illinois Association's Greater Illinois planning conference at 11 a.m. with a presentation on energy projects being undertaken by Carbondale and funding potential from state and federal agencies, Rush said. Randall will discuss conservation measures, alternative fuels and possible conversion of city vehicles to the use of alcohol fuel, Rush said.

Mayor Hans Fischer will speak at noon about the Carbondale Federal Building, which he designed, in addition to providing a mayor's perspective of what's going on in the city," Rush said.

At 1 p.m., Alan Grosboll, executive director of the Illinois Abandoned Mine Lands Reclamation Council, will explain state plans to restore strip mines which were abandoned prior to the enactment of the current, more stringent reclamation law.

Thursday's session will conclude after Don Raiazeen, from the Consolidation Coal Company, and Dan Lowry and Rich Hiller, of the Illinois Department of Mines and Minerals, describe current reclamation law and techniques at 2 p.m. Rush said planners Friday will "see what they heard about." Friday's activities include tours of the Federal Building and Consolidation Coal Co.'s Burning Star No. 5 surface mine in De Soto.

Sessions are open to anyone wishing to attend. The conference fee is $12 for the Thursday session and $8 for Friday.

Workers submit Anderson ballot petition in Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — John Anderson's campaign workers submitted 89,057 petition signatures to the Texas Secretary of State's office in an attempt to get the Illinois congressman on the Texas ballot as an independent presidential candidate.

The signatures represent the number needed, but Texas Secretary of State George Strake said 20,000 names not accompanied by a voter registration number would be eliminated.

He said his office would begin immediately verifying whether the other signatures were registered voters who did not take part in the GOP presidential primary.

Strake said this would be done by checking a sample of 1 percent of signatures against voter registration records and poll lists of those who voted in the GOP primary. Anderson needs the signatures of 111,785 registered voters to get on the Texas ballot.

Democrats are expected to use Strake's in an attempt to block Anderson's certification. They contend that not only Republican primary voters but also those who voted in the Democrats' non-binding May 3 presidential "beauty contest" are prohibited from signing an Anderson petition.

Anderson coordinator Clyde Fowler said the signatures were collected during a two-month drive by more than 4,000 volunteers "in spite of the unbearable heat and the difficult verification procedure."

Campus Briefs

SOAR will meet to discuss a Kiskaid Lake canoe and backpack trip at 4 p.m. Thursday in the Recreation Center Room 46. The trip will run from July 25 to July 27. For more information call Clem Debruwski at 508-2457.

The Recreation Center will be renting lockers and selling annual and semester use permits for fall semester beginning Monday, July 21. Lockers and use permits may be purchased at the information center. Call 536-5351 for further information.

Moses wins hurdles; Lee a close second

LONDON (AP)—For Edwin Moses, there seems to be few challenges or obstacles that he cannot overcome. Moses, the American who holds the all-time world record of 48.53 seconds in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles, will be competing in this year's 147-pound event for the third time in 47.13 seconds for the event, placed second in the 1980 Olympic Games. Moses finished 24.88 time Friday, behind Moses and James Walker. But the continued success of Lee doesn't faze Moses, who won five races not missed in the 1976 Montreal Games. All Moses possibly can do now is continue his amazing winning streak and lower his world record, but neither appears of much significance to him.

The Olympics are out of the question for this year, and possibly for 1984. "With the Olympics, this seems like any other year," the usual reply. But Moses said Sunday after posting his 400-meter hurdles victory in an international meet at rainy Crystal Palace.

There are no Olympics for Moses or any other American athletes this year because of the U.S.-led boycott. "There is no climax to the track and field season," added the tall, bespectacled Moses after the event.

"Even a lot of Western athletes, it's the same way. "There is nothing I can do about it, nothing anybody can do about it." Perhaps the only further satisfaction Moses will gain this year will be to beat the Olympic gold medalist after the Games in competitions throughout Europe. He plans to race twice more before the Moscow Games, which begin July 19. His next race will be Tuesday in Oslo, Norway—the third stop of Phase One of the U.S. Olympic team's swing through Europe—and in Paris Thursday. He will skip an international meet in Philadelphia Wednesday and Thursday, and possibly repeat the team in August for meets in Rome Aug. 3, Berlin Aug. 8, and Zurich, Switzerland Aug. 13.

Moses, however, is thinking about the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles. But he is uncertain whether he still will be running then.

Moses, unbeaten since August, 1977, has an overall winning streak of 50.

Yanks find British Open expensive

MURFIELD, Scotland (AP)—Soaring costs and an unfavorable rate of exchange for the dollar have cut deeply into profits of the 147-pound British Open Golf Championship.

Eleven American touring pros have withdrawn from the tournament that begins Thursday on the wind-swept 7,430-yard, par 71 Muirfield Golf Links on Scotland's east coast. Among the latest to pull out are Tom Purzer, Ed Sneed, Lee Elder, John Schroeder, John Fought and former PGA champion Lanny Wadkins.

Hale Irwin, twice a U.S. Open champion and the leader through three rounds of the 1979 British Open, former Masters and PGA title-holder Ray Floyd and Howard Twitty were among those who did not compete Monday and there was the possibility of further American casualties.

Tom Watson and Jack Nicklaus cited rising costs as a probable reason for some of the defections.

"It is very high for an American to come to Europe now," said Nicklaus. "It sounds funny for me to say it, because I make a lot of money, but the costs over here—goodness gracious. Hotel prices are higher than anything in the United States."

He and wife Barbara were in Switzerland last week. "She and a friend went to lunch one day and the bill went to $80. Goodness," Nicklaus said.

Watson estimated his expenses for the trip would be about $10,000.

"Air fare is almost double what it was last year," Watson said. His friend and teacher, Hall of Fame member Byron Nelson, also planned to come this year but changed his mind at the last minute because of the expense, Watson said.

"It's just too much money," said Mrs. Watson. "I checked one hotel near the course and it was about $200 a night for two people.

While the list of American absences continued to grow, U.S. stars remained as the outstanding favorites. Each has won titles this year but now that offers a total purse of more than $460,000. Chief among them were Watson, Nicklaus and Lee Trevino, who have combined to win six of the last 10 British Open titles. All arrived over the weekend. For Nicklaus and Trevino, it was a return to a familiar scene. Each has won here before. But it was Watson's first look at Muirfield's links—and he felt in love immediately.

"It's probably the most enjoyable course I have played over here. Just a pleasure to play," said Watson, a two-time Open champion and the outstanding player in the game for the last 3-4 seasons. He leads the American money-winning list with $467,725 and has collected five titles this year.

"But I haven't won in two months," Watson said in mock demay. "I was really getting kind of worn out." He then took last weekend off and in more than not have been in quite awhile. One thing the weather. Coming in 11 degrees in Kansas City to sweater weather in Scotland is relaxing."
