Enrollment higher; fewer students on campus

By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer

This summer there are 11,411 students enrolled at SIU-C but fewer of them are on campus than last summer.

That is an increase of 21 students, or .02 percent, over last summer, according to information from the Office of Admissions and Records.

Figures include on- and off-campus students enrolled through the 10th day of summer classes.

Summer enrollment is kind of flexible, said B. Kirby Browning, director of Office of Admissions and Records, in that the enrollment depends on the class offerings.

During the summer 1985 term, there were 11,390 SIU-C students: 8,603 on-campus students and 2,787 off-campus.

The number of on-campus students this summer - 8,249 - decreased by 354 from last year. The number of off-campus students increased by 13.4 percent, or 375, to 3,162.

This is the first summer since 1983 that there has been an increase in the number of off-campus students enrolled at SIU-C. However, the number of on-campus students is the lowest it has been since the 1983 summer term, according to the information.

Browning said the summer enrollment is usually about half the enrollment of the fall and spring semesters. Last year, he said, the number of on-campus students decreased in both semesters and the decreases are reflected in the number of students enrolled this summer.

Students enrolled in military programs account for 2,574 of the off-campus students. The students are enrolled in programs at 61 military bases in 23 states, West Germany and England.

The 8,081 undergraduates enrolled in classes this summer account for the largest portion of the students. Students working toward master's and doctoral degrees number 3,045 and 265 students are enrolled in law and medicine.

This year the program or unit with the largest enrollment is the School of Technical Careers' bachelor's program with 1,426 students.

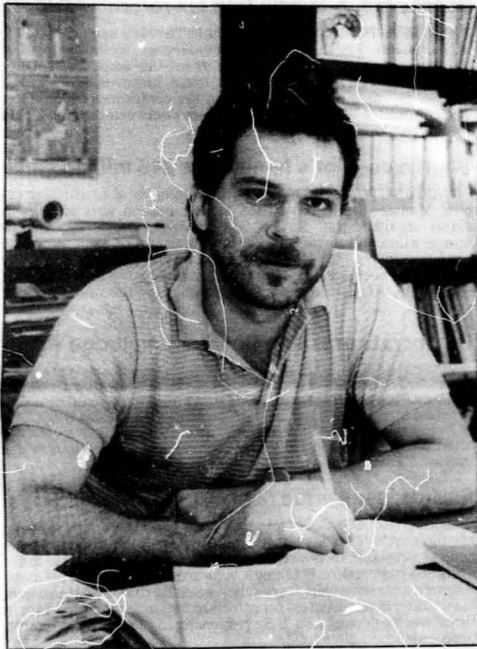

For undergraduates, the College of Engineering and Technology has the second largest enrollment with 1,415 students. Third is the College of Education with 1,217.

These three areas have consistently had the largest summer enrollment.

SDI research grant brings rally in fall

By Nola J. Cowser
Staff Writer

SIU-C's Mid-America Peace Project is planning a rally during the first two weeks of the fall semester to protest the University's acceptance of research grants for the Strategic Defense Initiative.

MAPP member John Hughel said, "We were planning a rally anyway, but now we have a cause." Hughel expects a lot more involvement and energy at the rally because of SDI's unpopularity.

Hughel said that 60 percent of the faculties of chemistry and physics departments from universities across the country have joined an anti-pledge movement to refuse SDI grants. These universities include Cornell, Washington and Princeton Universities and the University of Illinois.

Hughel added, "Acceptance of the research grant will hurt the University's reputation when you have all these prestigious universities denying it on a theoretical stand."

"Because first rate departments from these

Controversy is over SDI funding, profs say

By Lisa Eisenhauer

Two electrical engineering professors who were granted $362,000 to study radar systems say the source of the funds, not the research itself, is the only controversial aspect of the project. University officials agree.

Funding for the unclassified project is coming from money earmarked for research on the Strategic Defense Initiative, President Reagan's controversial plan for a spacebound laser defense system. SDI is commonly known as "Star Wars."

Ramanara Viswanathan and Stelios Thomopoulos said their grant is for a three-year study to determine the most efficient way to integrate data from different radar and detection devices.

Both professors said the project deals with theoretical research that will have use beyond SDI.

"It might have immediate applications to SDI problems, but it's going to have applications elsewhere," Viswanathan said.

Thomopoulos said, for example, the research may be useful to airlines in improving air traffic control. "It's going to be available to anybody," he said. "It relates to non-destructive projects."

The researchers said they have no reservations about using SDI funds for the project because its usefulness will not be limited to "Star Wars" research and because the project is not directly tied to any offensive weapons system.

"The controversy, I'm sure, is that the money is coming from SDI," Viswanathan said.

He said even if plans for the SDI were scrapped, funding for this type of project would likely continue.

Six blacks killed during S. Africa protests

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The government said Tuesday six people were killed by black radicals during a nationwide protest against the month-old state of emergency and warned it was "absolutely determined" to halt the violence.

One black was burned to death by radicals near Port Elizabeth, the traditional center of resistance to white rule, and five people, including a 66-year-old woman, were killed near Johannesburg, the government said.

The deaths, all of which occurred Monday, brought to 156 the number of people killed since President Pieter Botha declared the state of emergency June 12 in an attempt to quell intensifying racial unrest.

More than 2,000 people, the overwhelming majority of them black, have been killed since a wave of violence over the white-minority government's policies of racial separation, known as apartheid, erupted in September 1984.

Reflecting the nation's continued racial and political turmoil, the financial rand, a discounted unit used for capital transfers by foreigners, dipped below 20 U.S. cents for the first time Monday and opened Tuesday at 19.90 cents.

Dealers said the drop was probably caused by pessimism about British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's ability to stave off economic sanctions by the European Community against Pretoria.

In Durban, lawyers representing the black-led Metal and Allied Workers Union continued a Supreme Court challenge to the state of emergency, South Africa's second in less than a year.

Reagan seeks new stance to end S. Africa apartheid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, under pressure from Congress, asked GOP lawmakers Tuesday for their ideas on how to shift U.S. policy toward South Africa without forsaking his "constructive engagement" stance. However a White House spokesman said the President remains opposed to further economic sanctions. Secretary of State George Shultz is preparing testimony for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee next week that is expected to unveil a different U.S. approach toward pushing South Africa to end apartheid.

Senate approves bill to increase national debt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee voted Tuesday to increase the government's borrowing authority to a record $2.3 trillion and slapped a ban on using Social Security trust funds for interim federal financing. The debt bill now goes to the Senate floor, where it is likely to become a vehicle for changes in the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law.

Senate group to help iron tax reform versions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Tuesday approved an 11-man delegation to the tax reform conference, including most of the key members who helped resurrect the issue when it appeared dead two months ago. The House however, put off until Wednesday naming its members to the conference committee. The committee will work out differences between the House and Senate versions of tax reform Thursday.

NASA spokesman David Garrett said the claim was received July 3 at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, ALA., the center responsible for the failed booster rocket.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democrats pressured Republican Leader Robert Dole to call a showdown vote on conservative Daniel Manion, warning Tuesday it would be unfair to make him an appeals court judge on the 7th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago "by the back door." "Let's have a vote. We must not cheapen the judicial system or the U.S. Senate in this fashion," Democratic Leader Robert Byrd said.

Soviets issue arms control plan worldwide

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev ordered his diplomats Tuesday to deliver a message on his new arms control proposal to governments around the world in a move designed to pressure Washington on arms limitation. The move followed a statement by Gorbachev warning that the extension of his unilateral nuclear test moratorium beyond the expiry date in three weeks depends on U.S. response to Soviet arms control proposals.

Soviet's express interest for 2nd summit

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze ended two days of talks with British officials Tuesday, leaving the impression Moscow wants progress on a second superpower summit with President Reagan. A British official said Shevardnadze expressed hope that a future meeting between he and Secretary of State George Shultz would "be as productive as possible" in arranging a second summit.

Petition backers close goal; pushing for election reform

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Harold Washington's opponents are pushing for a non-partisan election and reportedly have nearly enough signatures to put the referendum issue on the fall ballot. Democratic sources said backers of the measure are close to having the 143,000 names needed, the Sun-Times reported Tuesday. The proposal would create a free-for-all non-partisan primary among all contenders and a runoff between the two top vote-getters.

Council gives Crystal fresh reins on project

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

The city has entered into a new preliminary agreement for development of the downtown hotel-convention center.

In a 4-1 vote Monday night, the City Council gave Crystal Development Corp. of Boulder, Colo., another shot at developing the project. The company has until Oct. 31 to come up with a final proposal.

A similar agreement between the city and developer Bob Joblin, of Little Rock, Ark., expired June 30, allowing the city to accept other bids for the project. With the agreement Monday, Crystal became the third developer of intent signed on by the city in less than a year.

CRYSTAL'S $15.7 million proposal calls for a 230-room, hotel-convention center with 20,000 square feet of conference space and 25,000 square feet of retail space.

The proposal would eliminate the need for the city to acquire the Nutrition Headquarters building on Monroe Street, a fact City Manager Bill Dixon believes is a real plus for the project.

In all, Crystal's proposal is much more streamlined than a previous development proposal submitted by the firm in December 1985. In addition to eliminating 20 rooms from the previous proposal, the new proposal eliminates a 25,000-square-foot health club and 12,000 square feet of office space.

CRYSTAL PRESIDENT Wallace Palmer said the revised proposal was "a little closer in line with the market. We feel that the costs of the project — from a preliminary standpoint — are agreeable."

Palmer added that the appearance of the new structure would not differ greatly from the appearance of the structure envisioned in the original proposal. The structure would still consist of three 200-foot towers, he said. The retail area would bridge Walnut Street, linking the hotel to a parking garage on the other side.

"I LIKE THE changes you have made," Mayor Helen Westberg told Palmer. "Although they probably might not be classified as major changes, nevertheless I think you've presented a more attractive project."

Councilman Keith Tuxhorn, a longtime critic of the convention center project, cast the sole dissenting vote on the agreement. Tuxhorn questioned the feasibility of the proposed 25,000 square feet of retail space in the complex, saying he was concerned about where the retailers would come from.

HE SAID THE space may lure businesses away from the University Mall, Murgale Shopping Center and downtown locations where space demand has been lagging.

"We have had difficulty in the past getting companies to come into this town," Tuxhorn said. Tuxhorn called the retail space proposal "risky," and said a health club at the complex "would be more attractive to the people."

Palmer said the retail space was needed for the convenience of hotel guests and the health club was dropped from the revised proposal because "it was more risky than retail space. It could be a trend situation that is strong for a while and then goes down hill. We'd like to monitor that situation further. At this time, we think that it's wise to drop that portion" of the project.

TUXHORN ALSO raised questions about the aesthetics of the project. Palmer answered by stressing the preliminary nature of the development proposal and said Crystal would be willing to work with the city on any question involving aesthetics.

Finally, Tuxhorn asked the city to postpone action on the Crystal proposal for one week in order to allow Joblin more time to present information to the city on the status of his project.

City Manager Bill Dixon, noting that a preliminary agreement between the city and Crystal would not preclude further city involvement with Joblin, stood by his recommendation that the City Council approve the agreement.

COUNCILMAN Patrick Kelley said Tuxhorn's concerns "are real concerns, but we need to look forward. I think this proposal at this point is an excellent proposal. For the city, it does essentially what we've been looking to do for some time."

Palmer said after the meeting that Crystal officials hoped to break ground on the convention center project by spring. He added that there should be no overlap problems between the Carbondale project and a similar Crystal project underway in Boulder.

Ford says abandon 'pork barrel' ways of Gray

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

Former President Gerald Ford said Tuesday the "tired old pork barrel politics of Ken Gray" need to be abandoned in light of the nation's $220 billion deficit.

Ford, 73, held a brief press conference at the Harrisburg-Raleigh airport before attending a $100-a-plate fundraising event for Gray's opponent, U.S. representative candidate Randy Patchett, where the ex-president was the guest of honor.

He said he was endorsing Patchett over Gray, D-West Frankfort, because of Gray's "rather poor showing a congressman" and because he knows Patchett to be an outstanding former state's attorney and a practicing local lawyer with a good background.

"I think this congressional district, the 22nd, deserves the kind of representation that Randy can give and not the tired old pork barrel politics of Ken Gray," Ford said.

Gray served with Ford in the House of Representatives from 1954 to 1974.

"He was a hardened advocate of any and all public works," Ford said. "The net result was it had a very adverse impact on our federal deficit and federal fiscal problems."

When Gray returned to Congress by defeating Patchett by 1,100 votes in 1984, he promised to obtain funding for public works projects for his district, Ford said, but "he hasn't produced."

"That's another reason why Randy Patchett ought to be elected," he said, "because in the long run government-paid-for projects are not the way you really get jobs over a long period of time. The private sector is basically the way to get jobs over the long pull."

Ford downplayed any connection between the Reagan administration and the federal deficit.

He said the administration has made an honest effort to submit budgets to Congress that would have reduced the deficit. "Unfortunately, the House of Representatives, which is the part of the legislative branch which initiates all spending, has been controlled by Democrats."

"The president, in my judgment, ought to have been maybe tougher, might have vetoed more legislation, but the truth is the House of Representatives has been the biggest roadblock to responsible fiscal policy for the past six years," he said.

Ford said that he and Gray's voting records would indicate that they in general did not support the same type of policies. "Philosophically we had big differences and I'm sort of amused that he thinks I'm displaying a lack of gratitude," Ford said.

Patchett said Ford campaigned on his behalf because he realizes major national issues, big spending and the federal deficit, are major issues in the 22nd District.

The issue Patchett singled out as most important is improving the economic outlook in Southern Illinois, which he said jobs generated by Gray's public works projects have not changed.

"They were temporary jobs. They were great to have and we need our share of federal revenue," he said. "But what we need even more is permanent factories, permanent jobs. We need recovery in the coal industry, we need recovery in agriculture and some permanent economic development in Southern Illinois."

To improve the economy, Patchett said it will take "just plain hard work."

"I think that basically the pork barrel is empty," he said. Patchett stressed that there is a difference between the public works projects pushed by Gray and those included in Build Illinois, Gov. James Thompson's massive public works program.

"The difference is that there's an idea behind Jim Thompson's Build Illinois program. We're building sewer projects — not just dams and bridges and lakes that will employ people during the construction period but perhaps not employ people directly afterwards," Patchett said.

Tax reform bills not what they seem

WHILE CONGRESS IS BUSY HAGGLING over the final version of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, it would seem that most of America remains apathetic to the outcome of the overhaul.

During the recent break that Congress took, most congressmen reported that there was little talk of the tax overhaul bills from their constituents because of confusion over which bill will really be the "best" in the long run.

The confusion over which bill has the most advantages is understandable. The sheer verbosity of the two bills is staggering.

Supposedly, the bill provided by the Democratic-controlled House gives larger average tax cuts to all income groups than the bill passed by the Republican-controlled Senate. But a computer analysis prepared for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch shows that taxes for middle-class taxpayers would actually be lower under the Senate bill.

THE HOUSE BILL SHIFTS ABOUT $140 billion of taxes over the next five years from individuals to corporations. The Senate bill would shift about $100 billion.

The House bill keeps more of the traditional tax rate structure, with four steps: 15, 25, 33 and 38 percent. The Senate bill has two individual rates: 15 and 27 percent. The Senate bill, however, phases out the personal exemption and standard deduction for the upper-income group.

The highest corporate tax rate in the Senate bill is 33 percent, compared to 36 percent for the House bill.

While both bills will lower tax rates, the Senate bill would limit or eliminate deductions for medical expenses, interest payments, political contributions, personal business expenses and charitable contributions. The House bill would either expand or maintain such deductions as they now stand.

MANY OF THE PROPOSED TAX changes would be phased in over a two year period. Some deductions would be taken away in 1987, but the lower tax rates wouldn't hit until 1988. The effect for some taxpayers would be unusually high taxes for a year.

The tax reform bill has made it even more obvious that some groups with enough power can get special favors from Congress. The 1,489-page Senate bill included a clause that provided a special tax break on corporate debts "if such indebtedness was originally incurred before May 30, 1985, by a domestic corporation which was incorporated on March 18, 1983, in Delaware, and which indebtedness was subsequently transferred to a domestic affiliate which was incorporated on October 17, 1890, and whose principal place of business is in California."

THAT CLAUSE, WHICH WAS defeated by the full Senate, made certain that the tax favor would go to only one company, Unocal, the oil giant. Unocal wanted to escape $50 million in taxes by getting credits for interest payments on a $4.4 billion debt it incurred last year fighting off a takeover attempt. Perhaps if the general public knew of the bill's corporate leanings, there would be more interest shown.

What it comes down to is that everybody will be affected differently. Individual circumstances vary widely, so what may be good for one family may nail another family to the wall. Let's hope someone will be able to figure it out.

My country, right or wrong?

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

AN ARTICLE appearing in this space recently purported to clear up some of the "misinformation" spawned by a recent Daily Egyptian article on local opposition to U.S. aid to the Nicaraguan Contras. Unfortunately the article only helped to muddle matters worse.

The article, written by Martin Harry, an SIU-C law student, was short on facts and long on conservative sentiment. It gushed with the sort of Yankee pride and "my country right or wrong" attitude that the Reagan administration has been trying to instill in the American people for the last six years.

From the outset, the author falls into the familiar conservative rhetoric of comparison. For the conservative, everything is black or white, or, perhaps more precisely, red or white. Thus he has no trouble comparing the situation in Nicaragua to the situations in Afghanistan and South Africa.

HARRY STATES that given the logic of one local Contra aid opponent, "the Soviet-installed government" in Afghanistan "poses no threat to the government of the United States and therefore the Afghan rebels are unworthy of support." I doubt seriously if anyone would really use that sort of argument to oppose aid to the Afghan rebels.

"Soviet-installed" is the key word here. It is the fact that the Soviets used armed force to impose their will on another country that makes the Soviet Union a direct threat to the United States, or at least to U.S. interests abroad. But the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua was not Soviet-installed. No matter how much the Reagan administration and its supporters hate to admit it, the Sandinista movement was a revolution of, by and for the Nicaraguan people.

WHAT MAKES THE Sandinista government a "threat" to the U.S. is not the fact that it is dominated by a Marxist faction. The U.S. has normal diplomatic relations and carries out trade with many avowed Marxist-Leninist states, such as mainland China, Hungary and the Soviet Union. What makes Nicaragua a threat is that it's "in our own back yard." In short, it lies in an area of land that has been traditionally looked upon as the sovereign territory of the United States.

When the Sandinistas came to power in Nicaragua, it marked a turning point in the history of Central America. A government had finally come into power in the region that would not willfully bow down to American economic and military interests. The Sandinistas made that policy apparent from the outset, and in so doing won the respect and admiration of other Latin American countries that wished they could do the same.

THE IMPORTANCE of this development was not lost on the Carter administration, who had maintained a healthy distance between the United States and the Somoza regime ever since it became apparent the Nicaraguan government would eventually fall to the Sandinistas. When the fall finally came, Carter was quick to rush millions of dollars in aid to the Sandinistas in an attempt to shore up any misconceptions they may have had about U.S. support of Somoza.

The picture painted by Mr. Harry of the Sandinistas begging for U.S. aid is just not true. The Sandinistas were understandably wary of a nation that had supplied its enemy with military and economic aid and was now willing to switch allegiances.

THE AUTHOR ADDS insult to injury when he states that "more U.S. aid was given the Sandinistas than was ever given to Somoza." The United States supported the Somoza family for over 50 years. Could one year of aid to the Sandinistas actually exceed five decades of aid given the Somoza dynasty?

While the Sandinista government was certainly a concern in the last days of the Carter presidency, it was not an obsession. The consensus in the administration was that, given time, the Sandinistas would make good on their promise of establishing a democratic state in Nicaragua. But when Reagan and his right-wing cronies entered the White House, the Sandinistas suddenly became an unbearable thorn in the side of the nation.

IT WAS THEN THAT CIA Director William Casey hatched the bright idea of setting up an "indigenous" rebel movement to oppose the Sandinistas. The movement would be based in neighboring Honduras and would be headed by those good ol' stalwarts of pluralism, the former leaders of Somoza's National Guard.

While it is certainly becoming easier to criticize the Sandinista regime — for instance, the recent closing of La Prensa, the only opposition newspaper in the country, should be roundly condemned — U.S.-supported military action can only make matters worse. It provides a convenient excuse for further government repression and precludes any diplomatic solution to the problem.

Animal concert rights

I am outraged at all these self-righteous people saying that dogs do not belong at the Sunset Concerts. Dogs have the right to rock and roll, too! All of that talk about a dog having sensitive hearing is just a nasty rumor. Dogs love loud noises and crowds. Just ask a dog. They like choke collars, too. They love being called Shep, Spot and Marmaduke, too. It is the nature of the dog.

My dog likes music so much that on steamy summer days I often let him stay in the car listening to the radio while I do my grocery shopping. He also likes having a large red bandanna tied around his neck. My dog brings me a great deal of pride. Imagine being seen anywhere without your Schnauzer? Come on now, my dog is one-half of my self-esteem.

Dogs give an owner life-long memories. Some people cannot remember what happened yesterday, but ask them to recall their dog's first rubber pork chop. They will reply, "Yes, I picked it out just for him." Isn't it great that people know what is best for their dogs? My dog violated his curfew and has been grounded from any further Sunset Concerts. He also lost his set of car keys. Oh well, it's a dog's life.

For those bozos who feel dogs don't belong, let me ask you a few questions. Did you now that dogs are a part of rock and roll history? Elvis would have been just another unknown without his hit, "Hound Dog." The Everly Brothers would have been the Nobody Brothers without their hit, "Bird Dog." And what about Three Dog Night?

These people saying dogs do not belong at the concerts probably think Mr. Ed was just another horse, of course. I encourage all horse owners to bring horses to the next Sunset Concert. In fact, why don't all people with pets bring them to the next concert.

There are plenty of trees for the birds and primates, and a fountain for the fish. I'm sure that all the people who usually play in the fountain can refrain for a week. There is plenty of grass for all the animals to graze on.

Well, this should make for a fun-filled family evening. I'll see you at the concert. — Chris Briddick, senior, Psychology.

Home away from home

Thank you very much for the nice article on July 10, Page 12 with the title "Group seeks home for foreign students."

I would like to clarify that International Friends Club does not seek homes to house international students, but to help them meet American citizens once a month or more often and stay in contact on a regular basis.

As an introduction the hosts invite the students to a home cooked meal without any extra arrangements. Thereafter they include them in recreational activities, e.g., sports, hiking, camping.

On special occasions, American hosts invite students at holidays (Thanksgiving, Christmas or at breaks) as a lesser commitment.

When hosts and students are matched, letters with pamphlets and information are sent to both parties. For more information about the program please contact International Programs and Services, phone 453-5774. — Inga Sollberger, coordinator of the Host Family program, International Programs and Services at SIU.

Sexual fascism in America

The 1970 Commission on Obscenity, which found pornography not to be harmful, was made up of social scientists of unquestionable scholastic integrity, and its conclusions were based on over 50 independent studies conducted over a two-year period. The Meese Commission did not conduct one single study, and its membership included Father Bruce Ritter, a Catholic priest, who views sex conducted for any purpose other than procreation to be a "waste of seed" and claimed the source of his belief that pornography was immoral to be "God, not social science," even though there is no record of "God" ever testifying at the hearings.

The Meese Commission, in a move that amounted to governmental blackmail and sexual McCarthyism, threatened to issue a blacklist of corporations that sold Playboy, Penthouse and Forum, a move that was instrumental in forcing Southland Corp., the operators of 7-11 stores, to drop them from their newsstands. One member of the commission, Diane Cusack, a recently defeated councilwoman from Scottsdale, Ariz., has advocated taking photographs of license plate numbers of people attending adult movie theaters.

The Judaic-Christian-Muslim male monolithic god religions have been prone to develop groupings which try to impose their prejudices in the form of law; laws based on their books of oppression, the Torah, the Bible and the Koran. The fundamentalist Christians, through the electronic ministry, and the Catholic hierarchy, through its vast holdings, have large amounts of money and a broad power base of unthinking sheep with which to try to impose a system of sexual tyranny.

With the exception of a group of anti-male feminist advocates of reverse sexism, the anti-pornography movement's constituency is the same as the anti-abortion movement's, and though its profile is kept lower, the anti-contraceptive movement. It should be remembered that the Comstock Laws of 1877, which were the basis of suppressing pornography, were once used to persecute the feminist Margaret Sanger for dispensing contraceptive information, and that it was only in the era that pornography became legal that the last laws regulating the availability of contraceptives were repealed.

Politicians such as Reagan, Meese and Jesse Helms show their contempt for human life by gutting programs to give the disadvantaged a decent life as they sing the songs dictated by religious bigotry.

It is time to wake up to the fact that not only are our social advances in danger, but our freedom as well. Soon, the eyes of religious bigots may be watching every bedroom and sexual fascism will be the law of the land.

You see, we do have our own Ayatollahs waiting in the wings. — Robert T. Phillips, alumnus.

Botany prof says coco leaf has many uses

By Lysette Kappel
Student Writer

An SIU-C botany professor has found what may be one of the oldest coco seeds in existence.

While Donald Ugent and his professional associates were excavating a site in Casma Valley, Peru, he discovered the seed, estimated to be 1,000 years old.

The coco seed is grown primarily in Andean countries such as Peru, said Ugent. Even though cocaine is a derivative of the coco leaf, the Indians of this area have found other uses for this plant, he said.

Many Indians use the leaves for making tea, Ugent said. Others use the leaves as a pot herb or for something to chew, as in the case of gum.

Ugent, who has taste-tested the coco leaf during the course of his scientific studies, says it has a pleasant flavor.

"It tastes very similar to the synthetic Coca Cola," he said. When Coca Cola was first introduced to the market, it contained coco as one of its major ingredients, he added. When the leaf is crushed and consumed orally, psychological effects are not experienced, Ugent said, although it does relieve minor pains and may even suppress hunger.

One of the main reasons Ugent excavates in countries like Peru is to study the cultural history of its original inhabitants. The chewing of the coco leaf by the Indians dates as far back as 2,000 years, Ugent said. Anthropologists have found pottery artifacts depicting Indians using the coco leaf, he added.

To utilize the leaves of the coco plant for tea or food is not illegal in countries like Peru because it is not addictive when used in that manner.

The coco leaf can become the powdered drug cocaine only if the alkaloid is extracted from the leaf, chemically treated and then purified, said Ugent. Even then one would have to process a great many coco leaves to make a small amount of cocaine, he added.

Men's track recruit should make contribution

By Steve Koutra
Sports Editor

Because of budget cuts, Saluki men's track coach Bill Cornell signed only two recruits for the 1987 track season.

But in James Duhart, a transfer from Middle Tennessee State University, Cornell has an athlete who can make an immediate contribution.

The 6-foot-4, 170-pound Duhart was an NCAA indoor qualifier as a freshman in the 500-meter run and has solid personal bests of 47.4 seconds in the open 400, 45.7 in the 400 split and 1:02.73 in the 500.

"You're always happy to sign someone who has the ability to qualify for nationals," Cornell said.

When Duhart learned that Middle Tennessee State was dropping its track program after the 1986 season, he started looking at other schools. Duhart visited Clemson, Auburn, Alabama, SIU-C and Tennessee before selecting SIU-C.

In a telephone interview from his home in Daytona Beach, Fla., Duhart said one of the main reasons he signed with SIU-C was the reputation of its track program and sprinters.

"Michael Franks and Elvis Forde (ex-Saluki athletes) were good quartermilers and I admire them for what they accomplished," he said.

Duhart said he wasn't that upset when he found out that Middle Tennessee was dropping its track program.

"I was a little upset because of the friends that I would be leaving there," he said, "but I was sort of glad because I wanted to go to a school that faces tougher competition."

Duhart has never won a conference title but twice finished as a runner-up in the Ohio Valley Conference Championships. As a freshman, Duhart finished second in the 500 and in his sophomore season was second in the 400.

Middle Tennessee coach Dean Haves said there is no question that Duhart will help SIU-C.

"James doesn't have super leg speed but he has long legs and is strong," Haves said. "He is a hard worker and there is no question in my mind that he'll get better."

Haves thinks one of the reasons Duhart didn't repeat his national qualifying performance in 1986 was the budget cuts at Middle Tennessee.

"When you know your program is being cut, it's harder for a team indoors to concentrate," Haves said. "Another reason, though to a lesser extent, why James didn't qualify for nationals in the 500 is because the NCAA toughened the qualifying standards."

But Haves thinks Duhart put it together near the end of the season when he ran his personal best of 47.4 in the 400 at the conference meet.

Even though Duhart's strongest event is the 500, Haves feels he has the potential to qualify for nationals in the 400.

"James is a tall one, he's 6-foot-4 and doesn't have to fight for lanes outdoors and that makes a difference," Haves said. "I think he has a decent shot at it — but it's hard to say because they toughened the qualifying standards."

Haves said he recommended Duhart to Cornell.

"Bill is a good coach and I feel James will be in good hands," he said. "I think Bill will work well with him, like he did with Elvis when he transferred from Murray State."

The addition of Duhart and the return of Kevin Steele and Tom Adams should give the Salukis a strong group of sprinters for the 1987 season. Steele and Adams were ineligible for the 1986 outdoor season but both have regained their eligibility.

Cornell said he plans on running Duhart in two events in the indoor season, the 500 and the 1600 relay, and in three outdoor events, the 200, 400 and the 1600 relay.

Casillas inks contract with the Falcons

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Nose tackle Tony Casillas, the No. 2 pick overall in the NFL draft, Tuesday signed a four-year, $2.35 million contract with the Atlanta Falcons, ending a 2-month-long bidding war between the Falcons and the Arizona Outlaws of the USFL.

The Lombardi Trophy winner from the University of Oklahoma rebuffed a two-year $1.5 million offer from the Outlaws, the team he had threatened to join as late as Monday after talks with the Falcons reached an impasse.

Casillas would not disclose the terms of the contract but United Press International has learned he received a $1.425 million signing bonus and escalating salaries of $175,000, $200,000, $250,000 and $300,000.

Casillas said the NFL contract came close to matching Arizona's offer.

"I think it had an effect on Atlanta to come in and negotiate with us and give us their best offer."

Clubhouse facility should benefit Abe Martin Field

By Steve Merritt
Assistant Sports Editor

Plans for the proposed baseball facility at Abe Martin Field have received the final okay from the SIU Board of Trustees and the building should be complete and ready to use next season.

The $140,000 facility has been in the planning stages for two and one-half years. Saluki baseball coach Richard "Richy" Jones raised $65,000 for the project, with $40,000 in labor expenses being donated by the Egyptian Building and Construction Trades Council. The remaining $35,000 will come from the University's repair and replacement fund.

Even though the plan was first announced by Jones over two and one-half years ago, the University was reluctant to begin the project until the entire cost of construction was obtained. Only $35,000 of the entire cost had been acquired at that time.

"I'm real glad the project is now something real instead of something just proposed," Jones said. "It'll be a real boost to our program in more ways than one."

Contributions of $10,000 each to the project came from former Salukis' Dave Stieb of the Toronto Blue Jays and George Vukovich, who recently signed an estimated $667,000 contract with the Seibu Lions of the Japanese baseball league. Over 40 contributions of $100 or more were received, as well as a pair of $5,000 contributions by Jones and former Saluki teammate Bob Hardcastle.

Jones said both Stieb and Vukovich will have rooms named after them, while another room is being planned to be named for the former Jones-Hardcastle combination.

The new facility will overlap the present third base dugout and the old dugout will be removed. The new building will include two offices, a dressing room area and an open area for weight training equipment. With no facilities presently located on the field, players have had to walk to and from the dressing and training facilities located at the Arena.

Athletics statement includes education

By Steve Merritt
Assistant Sports Editor

The Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee approved a statement of philosophy for athletics Tuesday.

The statement of philosophy will be based on the premise that intercollegiate athletics are always for the educational benefits of the student athletes first and foremost. It will include the long-term goals, purposes and attitudes about intercollegiate athletics at SIU-C and a definition of the student athletes' rights as well as the rights held by the University.

The statement, which has been under discussion at several IAAC meetings, was written by Roger Robinson, Medical School faculty, who serves the IAAC as a faculty appointee. Robinson worked with three other IAAC members on a subcommittee headed by Ruth Bauner, Library Services.

Robinson told the committee that several models from the past were used in forming the statement, which will be prepared in its final form for the next meeting.

Athletics Director Jim Livengood has said that the athletics department needs a statement of philosophy like "a ship needs a rudder."

"It's something we really should have for direction," Livengood said. "It can tell us where we're going and how we're going to get there."

Robinson said he felt the statement should serve as "a standard by which we can be judged."

"I know that if I'm around in a couple of years, I'll be asking if we're keeping within the parameters of our philosophy statement," Robinson said. He added that any major deviation from the statement, once completed, would call for an immediate restructuring of the athletics departments.

"I would think the statement would be a document that is used on a pretty frequent basis that will be broad enough to allow for some interpretation," Robinson added.

The committee also heard presentations from Nancy Bandy and Bruce McCutcheon, assistant directors in the newly structured athletics department, on the NCAA current issues forum held in Chicago last month, about NCAA legislative changes and pending legislation.

McCutcheon said the seminars were an expansion of the rules seminar, which has been held for a number of years.

In what will now be called the NCAA's compliance services, McCutcheon defined institutional self-study to help schools determine if they are violating NCAA guidelines, academic reporting requirements, and the independent financial audit requiring an outside auditor to report on an athletics department's spending.

"The NCAA is beginning to focus on prevention," McCutcheon said.

Although members of the committee asked questions about some of the pending legislation, including specific information about the drug testing program and the gambling situation, a detailed discussion did not evolve.

"It is a whole area plagued by controversy that really doesn't have a lot of specific answers," Charlotte West, associate athletic director, said of the drug and gambling problem.

Bandy told the committee of some of the changes — changes in NCAA rules had made compliance more difficult because of confusing or arbitrary wording.

In a lighter message, West told the committee that the good news was that the NCAA is appointing a committee to rewrite the NCAA handbook and rules manual.

U.S. defeats Yugoslavia in basketball

OVIEDO, Spain (UPI) — David Robinson scored 21 points and grabbed 17 rebounds to lead the United States to a 69-60 victory Tuesday night over previously undefeated Yugoslavia at the World Basketball Cham-ionships.

The U.S. team entered the final day of semifinal play needing a victory or a loss by Argentina to gain a spot among the four teams to play for the gold medal in Madrid.

Intramural sports entering season-end tournaments

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

Associate Professor Doug Smith took first place in the A flight division of intramural 18-hole golf, which was held July 9 at Midland Hills Golf Course in Makanda. Smith's scratch score of 71 was one shot over par, said intramural coordinator Buddy Goldammer.

Second place in A flight went to Woody Young with a scratch score of 77. Smith and Young tied for second place in handicapped scores with a 72. The top handicapped score of 69 went to Andy Cole, who shot a scratch 83 to take first place in the B flight.

Harvey Welch, dean of Student Life, shot a scratch 85 to take second place in B flight. Welch's handicapped score was a 74. The 18 participants were broken into flights by scratch scores, according to Goldammer.

A contest for closest-to-the-pin was held and Smith finished in first place in this event, driving a ball to within 23 feet of the pin. Goldammer noted that the 18-hole golf tournament usually attracts more faculty and staff members than any other intramural sport.

Rain caused putt-putt golf to be delayed until Monday night, said Goldammer. The miniature golf tournament, held at the Carbondale Bogie Hole, was originally scheduled for July 10.

The best intramural tournament held so far was this weekend's soccer tournament, Goldammer said. A team from the Malaysian Student Association, SIU-MSA B team, beat the United Nations 2-1 to take what was called the "Intramural World Cup."

Goldammer said that the 10 teams that participated were more than he anticipated. Countries represented included Great Britain, Palestine, Malaysia, India and Pakistan, as well as countries in Latin America and Africa.

"Soccer is such a popular sport and they play it so often, their skill level tends to be higher and as a result their quality of play" is higher, said Goldammer of the international student teams.

Three-on-three basketball and 12-inch and 16-inch softball seasons will end Thursday with playoffs scheduled to begin July 21, Goldammer said.

Men's advanced badminton singles, Rocson Chang took first place. In the women's novice badminton singles, Jenny Yeow was the first-place finisher.

Men's advanced and women's intermediate racquetball singles are both in the finals and no results are available yet, Goldammer said. Doubles competition in both racquetball sports began Monday.

The winner of the table tennis singles was Bill Opolch. In men's intermediate tennis singles, Alan Knuckey was the first-place finisher and Jenny Yeow was the champion in the novice division of women's tennis singles. Women's intermediate and men's advanced tennis singles are in the finals and results are pending.

Entries for racquetball and tennis mixed doubles closed Tuesday with competition slated to begin July 21. Entries for badminton mixed doubles closes on Wednesday and play starts July 22. A disc-golf tournament will be held on Thursday with entries closing at 4 p.m. that day.

Dent agrees to be at camp in Platteville later in week

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (UPI) — Defensive end Richard Dent brightened the opening of the Super Bowl champion Chicago Bears' training camp Tuesday by agreeing to report later in the week.

Dent and first-round draft pick Neal Anderson were not expected to be among the roughly 50 returning veterans and 40 newcomers who were to meet Tuesday night with coach Mike Ditka and his revamped coaching staff.

In an interview from his Oakland, Calif., office, Dent's agent, Everett Glenn, said the two sides involved in renegotiating the contract of the Super Bowl most valuable player agreed Dent would arrive in Platteville Thursday to "get in the best shape possible" for the Bears' quest to become the first repeating NFL champion in seven years.

Glenn said contract talks picked up when he and Bears general manager Jerry Vainisi agreed not to let "personalities" interfere with the effort to renegotiate Dent's $99,000 contract.

The sides were working on possible deals spanning three, four or five years, Glenn said. The agent also said a player with Dent's All-Pro credentials should be earning at least five times what he currently is paid.

"He won't be playing for $99,000, you can take that to the bank," said Glenn, who expected the contract discussions to continue into August.

Vainisi said Tuesday the Bears had made "sufficient progress" with Dent, but he was less enthusiastic over reaching an agreement with Anderson.

Vainisi said he hoped to sign veteran players Gary Fencik, Matt Suhey, Dave Duerson, Leslie Frazier, Jimbo Covert and Tim Wrightman, and he anticipated that all but the Bears' top two draft picks — Anderson and defensive back Vestee Jackson — will be in camp, although not all will have signed contracts. An announcement on those players was expected sometime Tuesday, he said.

Vainisi also expressed "cautious optimism" over talks with free agents Todd Bell and Al Harris, both of whom sat out the 1985 season over contract disputes. Vainisi said both players "have some wounds to overcome from last year," which may affect the outcome of the current talks.

Meanwhile, the blue-and-orange blocking squad were in place along the five practice fields on the Wisconsin-Platteville campus where the Bears begin two-a-day practice sessions Wednesday morning.

Players are not officially holdouts until Saturday because under union rules only quarterbacks, receivers, injured players and rookies are required to report earlier than 15 days before a team's first preseason game. The Bears will train in Platteville through July 27 before departing to London for their Aug. 3 preseason opener against the Dallas Cowboys at Wembley Stadium.

Man escorted from All-Star Game

HOUSTON (UPI) — A Southfield, Mich., man who makes a habit of showing up uninvited to major sporting events crashed the All-Star game — briefly.

Barry Bremen was escorted from the Astrodome by National League official Blake Cullen after reaching the outfield while the team was taking batting practice.

NL coach Tom Lasorda, manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers during the regular season, went out shouting that the man was supposed to get off the field.

He was wearing a New York Mets uniform with the number 13 on the back.

Mitchell signs with St. Louis; goes to camp

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Running back Stump Mitchell, who had threatened to bolt to the U.S. Football League Arizona Outlaws, signed a contract with the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday and headed to the NFL team's training camp.

"He signed this morning," said a spokeswoman for the club. "He's on his way to camp in Charleston and should be there shortly."

Mitchell was in Phoenix, Ariz., Monday prepared to sign with the Outlaws when he changed his decision. Mitchell agreed to a three-year contract worth $1.2 million during a telephone conversation with Cardinals attorney Bob Wallace.

Wallace met Mitchell and his agent, Harold Lewis, at the airport on their return to St. Louis and the contract was signed.

"I'm glad to be staying with the Cardinals, because that's where my heart is, and I never wanted to leave," Mitchell said. "Tell the guys at training camp that I'm on my way."

Mitchell apparently helped the Cardinals rush for his return by comments he made in an airport interview shortly before leaving for Phoenix. Asked if he felt bitter toward Bill Bidwill, Mitchell emphatically thanked the Cardinal owner for giving him the opportunity to play.

"Nobody else wanted to take a chance," said Mitchell, who at 5-foot-9 and 188 pounds was considered a risk. "I don't burn any bridges."

Summer Playhouse to close with 'Carousel'

By Debra Keen-Cooper
Staff Writer

"Carousel," one of the most beloved Rogers and Hammerstein musicals, will bring Summer Playhouse '86 to a close.

Directed by Theresa Larkin, visiting lecturer in the Department of Theater, the musical classic tells the tale of Billy Bigelow, a quick-tempered carnival barker whose bad luck and immaturity land him in heaven—before he is ready to enter.

CAROUSEL WILL be presented July 18 to 20 and July 24 to 27 at McLeod Theater. All performances begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are $6 for Thursday and Sunday shows and $7 for Friday and Saturday shows.

Discounts are available for senior citizens, SIU alumni and groups of 10 or more. Rush tickets for $3 are available at the door to students with a valid I.D. from 7:30 p.m. to curtain.

Billy, played by Kenneth Lee of Dyersburg, Tenn., is given a second chance to do a good deed which, of course, will gain him entry into heaven.

LEE GRADUATED from Austin Peay State University this spring with a bachelor's degree in music education. He has been granted a graduate assistantship with the Department of Music and will start work toward a master's in music performance this fall.

"As far as musical experience, most of my experience has been in opera," Lee said. "About five years ago I did 'My Fair Lady,' so this is a return to musical theater for me," he said.

LEE HAS appeared in opera productions of "Falstaff," "Gianni Schicchi" and "La Bohème," and was seen earlier this summer as Johann Kilian Von Strack in "Amadeus."

The story opens with the Starkeeper at the rear gates of heaven. "Billy," is there anything on your mind that is unfinished?" The Starkeeper is played by veteran actor Joe Bowman, who portrayed Salieri in "Amadeus" and Jerry Cohan in "George M!"

THE ORIGINAL Broadway production set "Carousel" from 1873 to 1888. Larkin has moved the time period to the early 20th century, setting it between 1909 and 1924.

"The directorial concept of this production is based on Billy's journey to his self," Larkin said. "It is Billy's learning how to love and to be loved."

Larkin said all the scenes take place from the backyard of heaven.

AFTER BILLY'S meeting with the Starkeeper, the set unfolds into a mystical array of movement, using mime to portray a carnival. It is there Julie Jordan meets her future husband.

Jordan is played by Laura Reinhardt of Chicago.

Reinhardt received a bachelor's degree in musical performance from Western Illinois University and is working toward a Master of Fine Arts.

She has appeared in many musical productions including "Guys and Dolls," "Cinderella," "Annie" and "Fiddler on the Roof." She was seen earlier this summer as Constanze in "Amadeus" and Ethel in "George M!"

CARRIE IS played by Kelly Wilmoth of Columbia, Mo. Wilmoth has performed in such shows as "Anything Goes," "The Robber Bridegroom" and "The Unsinkable Molly Brown." She also appeared as Josie Cohan in "George M!" this summer.

Carrie's betrothed, Mr. Snow, is portrayed by Brian Gaston of Germantown, Tenn. Gaston says that he is enjoying the part of Mr. Snow because he has always played the lead.

"IT'S A BIG enough part to fully develop the character, but I am playing behind other stronger characters, which makes it a learning experience," Gaston said.

Another mainstay of this production, Nettie Fowler, is played by Karen Driver of Carbondale. Fowler is Julie's aunt and a mother hen to everyone else in town. Nettie delivers the Muscular Distrophy telethon theme, "You'll Never Walk Alone," to a distraught Julie after Billy's untimely death.

DRIVER GRADUATED from SIU-C last August with a degree in music education. She has appeared in many operas and this is her third season with the Summer Playhouse. Most recently, she appeared as Rose in "George M!"

"The dance numbers are going to be hot in this one," Reinhardt said. Under the direction of George Pinney, the dance company is led by Tim Veach of Glenarm and Danene Debellis of Mount Juliet, Tenn.

Veach and Debellis have performed with professional dance troupes. During scene changes and breaks, they can be observed off stage, stretching muscles, practicing pirouettes and leaps or running through steps to perfect timing.

THE SHOW, typical of Rogers and Hammerstein musicals, is full of music, which provides a wonderful medium for grand production numbers. The choreography is brilliant and by opening night, the rough edges will be polished to a shining luster, ready to entertain.

The Summer Playhouse work schedule is hectic, from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m., for six out of eight weeks and the creative work flow is very strenuous.

"One good thing about the time frame of summer stock theater is that it really gets people to galvanize their process," Larkin said. "The pressure forces everyone to work faster and to realize that they can get a lot done in a short period of time," she added.

The show runs about two and one-half hours.

LARKIN SAID the cast, as a group musically, is very strong.

"Sprinkled in that group we have some lovely dancers, but mostly, they're terrific singers. And, they're also pretty good actors," Larkin said.

"There really is a nice mixture of people," Lee said. "There are those on the stage whose forte is acting, yet they can sing well and then we have the singers who can also act. It creates a nice blend," he said.

actual hardware," Viswanathan said. "We're dealing with the communication aspect of the project or you can call it navigation."

He said the project was approved by the Office of Naval Research in November.

The office, which is administering part of the funds appropriated by the federal government for "Star Wars" research, hopes to use the radar system to track targets, Tomopoulos said.

Larry Hawse, assistant director of the Office of Research Development and Administration, said research on the project began in April. The grant for the project was the biggest military grant the University has ever received, headed. Of the $9.3 million the University received for research between July 1, 1984, and June 30, 1985, Hawse said $144,000 was for projects funded by the military. That figure excludes environmental projects by the Corps of Engineers.

Hawse said the type of research the radar study involves is typical of the type funded by units of the Department of Defense. The only thing unusual about the project is that its funds are coming directly from SDI appropriations, he said.

President Albert Somit said the project involves "good science," the results of which will be published at the discretion of the researchers, not the federal government.

Somit said the grant is for research that scientists at the University regularly conduct with military funding. "I find it very hard to distinguish between defense research and "Star Wars" research," he said.

Compared to other universities, Somit said SIU-C ranks low in the total amount of grant money it receives from the military. Nonetheless, he said he expects protests from some sectors of the SIU-C community because of the source of the grant.

Hawse said University policy forbids researchers to accept grants for classified projects. He said this policy, and similar ones at other universities, grew out of public concern about the amount of military research being done on college campuses during the Vietnam War.

prestigious universities refused the grants, the government has come to a second-rate universit."

Those opposing SDI on a moral stand see the whole issue as wrong, Hughel said, while those opposing it on a theoretical stand do not think the SDI program will work.

The universities refusing the grant money "are putting their universities on the line by turning down all this money," he said. "They are not doing it just on a moral stand, they honestly don't believe SDI will work."

Hughel said he is not sure what kind of impact MAPP's rally will have regarding the University's acceptance of the grant money or if it will change President Albert Somit's mind.

"I think President Somit's low-key response to the original idea of SDI on campus was a way of testing professor's and student's opinions," he said.

Faithful blood donor paid back with 37 pints

By Nola J. Cowsert
Staff Writer

The Biblical quote, "As ye give, so shall ye receive" hit home for Richard Tyner, Physical Plant employee.

Tyner began donating blood when he came to SIU-C in 1977 and recently received 34 pints after suffering massive hemorrhaging.

Tyner collapsed while working on May 29. He was rushed to Carbondale Memorial Hospital where exploratory surgery was performed to determine the cause of the hemorrhaging. Doctors were unable to do so, and Tyner received 27 pints of blood to keep him alive while he was there.

He was later flown by helicopter to Springfield where doctors found an abnormal growth of blood vessels in his small intestine. Tyner said this was a birth defect unknown until then and might never have been found.

He asked the doctors if he somehow could have injured the vessels with a blow to the stomach or if something similar could have caused the rupture, but was told there was no reason.

Tyner received seven more pints of blood while in Springfield.

Tyner said he never thought he would be on the receiving end when he donated blood.

"Who expects it? You can't really anticipate something like that," he said.

Tyner and his wife, Pamela, were at the faculty-staff blood drive June 26 to thank all the donors for giving blood.

"There were a lot of people who donated the blood that kept me alive," Tyner said. He said he plans to continue returning the favor.

"As soon as I can, I'll be there," he said.

Tyner said the people from the Red Cross told him surgery patients must wait at least six months after surgery before donating blood.

It will be another six weeks before Tyner is able to return to his job and his position as a volunteer with the Hurst Ambulance Service.

Vivian Ugent, area director for Red Cross Blood Services, said Tyner was very symbolic for the donors at the June blood drive. The whole concept of a donor who became a receiver thanking other donors was very special, she added.

"He is certainly an inspiration to all of us," she said.
