Leading nations discuss economy

Aid for Soviets undecided after one day

LONDON (UPI) — Leaders of the world's most powerful industrial nations ended the first session of their annual economic summit Monday with broad agreement on a range of world issues, but continued to differ on how to help the Soviet Union.

French President Francois Mitterrand was reported by senior French sources saying, "I say yes to the Soviet Union," urging the leaders of the Group of Seven industrial powers in their closed-door meeting to fully support Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's plea for help in boosting the Soviet economy.

But other leaders continued to reject suggestions that any major aid package could be agreed during the G-7 summit.

The prime ministers and presidents convened in the ornate 17th-century Lancaster House after passing between two splendidly dressed royal Horse Guards who stood motionless with swords on either side of the red carpeted entrance.

At briefings after Monday's opening session, senior delegation sources said there had been little actual discussion of individual topics. "This was the leaders stating their positions, and on most issues there was agreement," a Canadian source said.

Foreign and finance ministers met separately as the leaders discussed overall policy.

Delegations said several leaders, notably British Prime Minister John Major and Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, had expressed serious reservations over the prospect of an immediate aid package to the Soviet Union.

Bill would warn patient of AIDS-infected doctor

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The General Assembly sent to the governor's desk Monday controversial legislation that allows the state to notify people treated by AIDS-infected medical personnel.

The measure is designed to get around a current state law that gives health care workers immunity from notification. The bill was sponsored because a dentist from the town of Nokomis died of AIDS but never told his patients they were at risk.

Illinois is one of the first states to pass legislation that addresses the growing concern of people treated by HIV-infected doctors. The worry began when a Florida dentist infected some of his patients.

"This was an issue that came from the people, not from interest groups," said Rep. Karen Hasara, R-Springfield, a major proponent of notification who fought for the bill.

If Gov. Jim Edgar signs the measure, it would require the records of all people who test positive for AIDS in Illinois to be checked to see if they went through any "invasive" procedures that exposed them to the deadly virus.

If the state Public Health Department also finds out about doctors, nurses or dentists who had the virus, they would be able to inform all patients who might have been exposed through a surgical procedure about the illness.

Proposed bill to cure anemic rural health care

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

Proposed legislation may remedy some rural health care problems in downstate Illinois if signed by the governor.

Illinois Rep. David Phelps, D-Eldorado, called the passage of these programs, which will focus on assisting medically underserved areas, a major benefit to the region.

Phelps, who is also the chairman of the House Health Care Committee, said he has been looking for creative solutions to the health care crisis in rural Illinois that would have minimal costs to the state.

"In Southern Illinois we have a serious shortage of medical services and staff," Phelps said. "We have been branded as the largest underserved area in the state. This program is one step toward increased medical care services."

Joanne Chezem, director of the Center of Rural Health and Social Service Development, said the need for health care in Southern Illinois is desperate.

"I believe there is a critical need for attention with the health care in this area," Chezem said. "We have to put the energy and effort into giving the residents at least the primary care they need. With current health care, children cannot get immunizations they need and are suffering from the very beginning of their lives."

Phelps said this package has many different programs, and one

1,700 SIU civil servants can't collect

By John Patterson

Wallets and purses at SIU will be noticeably lighter today as the battle continues between the General Assembly and Gov. Jim Edgar in Springfield.

When fiscal year 1992 began July 1, the lack of a budget made the release of paychecks for state employees impossible. The first impact of the missing budget was felt today as 1,700 employees at SIU went without checks.

William Capie, acting vice president for financial affairs, said the payroll is for July 1 through July 15 and because that is the beginning of the new fiscal year, civil service employees scheduled to be paid will not receive checks.

"There will be 800 people (at SIUC) who will not receive paychecks," Capie said. "Obviously we plan on paying people for services, but at this point it's when will the state give us money?" The outlook for the situation only gets darker as the July payroll dates draw closer. Including today's payroll, SIU has seven payrolls to meet within the next 30 days. By that time the total owed to employees would reach upwards of $15 million, said Vice Chancellor for Financial Affairs Don Wilson.

Friday 1,500 student employees will not receive complete pay.

Capie said not all student employees will feel the full brunt because about two-thirds of students are partially paid through college work study backed by federal funds or through local funds. Also the last week in June was held back under University pay periods. Therefore students who worked up to June 30 will receive paychecks, but only for the time before July 1.

Although the possibility remains that a resolution to the budget

Bears camp

Chicago starts training in Wisconsin

CHICAGO (UPI) — When the Illinois State troopers gear up along Interstate 90 near the Wisconsin border with radar in hand, it's a good indication the Bears are about to make their annual migration north.

The Chicago Bears, for the eighth straight year, head to Platteville, Wis., for the start of training camp Tuesday at the branch campus of the University of Wisconsin. Veterans and rookies are to report for an evening meeting, with two-a-day practices beginning the following day.

This is the Bears' earliest start to training camp. After only 10 days in Platteville, the team heads to Miami for their first of five exhibition games, against the Dolphins July 26. Two days later, the Bears leave Chicago for Berlin and an exhibition game against the San Francisco 49ers.

Now, if the Bears could only get their passing game in the air as well.

With one of the most complete running backs in the game in Neal Anderson, the Bears again won the NFC Central in 1990, their sixth division title in seven years. But after an 11-5 regular season and a wild-card victory over New Orleans, Chicago's season came to a crashing halt, with a 31-3 loss to the eventual Super Bowl champion New York Giants.

The old theory on how to beat Chicago worked for the Giants: stop the run, stop the Bears.

"I think this year we'll go out to put pressure on people," said Coach Mike Ditka said, starting his 10th season in Chicago. "We can't be predictable. If we had a weakness, it's that we probably became predictable."

One thing that's also usually predictable about the Bears is a quarterback controversy. Ditka insists Jim Harbaugh, entering his fifth season, is the No. 1. With Mike Tomczak gone to Green Bay as a Plan B free agent, second-year quarterback Peter Tom Willis will be the backup. Willis could get a better look if Harbaugh misses any camp because of his contract negotiations.

"I don't want to sound too cocky, but I don't mind competition," Willis said. "I really wish Jim will be there, honestly. Every time I get to play, I feel I get a chance to prove myself."

The Bears can enjoy some peace on at least one front: Defensive tackle Steve McMichael for the first time in three years appears headed for a training camp without a contract squabble.

McMichael walked out of camp in 1989 after the team refused to renegotiate the contract he signed the previous year. The Bears reworked that deal, but McMichael held out again in 1990, that holdout lasting into the exhibition schedule.

At last word, he was satisfied with his current contract.

Former runner-up wins first SIGA tournament

By John Sommerhot

The president of the Southern Illinois Golf Association broke his string of second place finishes this weekend to win the oldest golf tournament in Southern Illinois.

Bob Tierney, 37, had been runner-up at the championship four times and played in his first SIGA Championship Tournament when he was 15.

Tierney overcame former Saluki golfer Britt Pavelonis' three-shot lead on Sunday to win the 67th annual SIGA Championship Tournament with an even-par 140 at Crab Orchard Golf Club.

Tierney's foursome included the leader Pavelonis, John Given and Brad Ragain.

Tierney won by two strokes over Given, by three over Pavelonis and Randy Lewis Jr., and by four over Ragain.

Tierney said he had a feeling he was going to win the tournament.

"I had a lump in my throat a couple of times out there because I just felt I was going to win the tournament this time," he said.

Tierney said he really was focused for this tournament and wasn't concerned about what the other golfers were shooting or the overall standings.

American LeMond leads Tour after 10th stage

QUIMPER, France (UPI) — Phil Anderson of Australia broke away from the lead pack with 18 miles to go Monday to win the 10th stage of the Tour de France.

Greg LeMond, the three-time winner and defending champion, finished six seconds behind and retains the overall lead.

Anderson took off during the final sprint in the 128.6-mile stage from Rennes to Quimper through the Brittany countryside. He overtook Belgium's Nico Emonds and Denmark's Brian Holm, who finished second and third. Michel Dermies of Belgium was fourth.

"This is a great win for me," Anderson said. "There have been times since my last win when I thought something like this would never happen again."

Anderson is competing in his ninth Tour de France. The only other time he won a stage was in his first Tour in 1982. His best Tours were in 1982 and 1985, when he finished fifth.

Djamolidine Abdoujaparov of the Soviet Union won the pack sprint and the bonus points that come with the fifth place finish were enough to propel him to second place overall, 1 minute, 9 seconds behind LeMond. Holland's Erik Breukink dropped from second to third overall.

Breukink's team, P-D-M, was struck by a stomach virus overnight that forced three of its riders to drop out. Two dropped out before the start, Holland's Nico Verhoeven and Germany's Uwe Raab. During the race, Holland's Jean-Paul Van Poppel, the winner of the stage Friday from Le Havre to Argentan, was forced to retire.

According to Irish sprinter Sean Kelly, the only P-D-M rider not afflicted by the virus, is Mexico's Raul Alcalá.

The loss of three riders is a disaster for the team, four days before the first mountain stage Thursday in the Pyrenees.

The team nonetheless maintains its overall lead in the team standings.

On Tuesday, the Tour de France stays near the coast of Brittany as the riders go 153 miles between Quimper and Saint-Herblain.

It is one of the longest stages and the last before the riders fly to the south of France for the stage Thursday.

Mauro Ribeiro became the first Brazilian to win a stage of the Tour de France cycling classic, edging Frenchman Laurent Jalabert by a wheel's length Sunday after a daring sprint over the last 500 yards.

Allies threaten renewed war against Saddam Hussein

United Press International

As the last allied troops left northern Iraq, Britain joined the United States and France Monday in threatening renewed war against Saddam Hussein, if necessary, to keep his nation from becoming a nuclear power. Several Arab states were said to be trying to ease the rising tensions in the Persian Gulf region, Libya urged "a popular war" against foreign forces in the area, and a special U.N. commission urged a partial lifting of sanctions against Baghdad to ease the suffering of the Iraqi people.

Secretary of State James Baker will return to the Middle East this week in an attempt to arrange a peace conference following a favorable response from Syria to President Bush's letter calling for negotiations between Israelis and Arabs, administration officials said Monday. The officials said Baker, upon conclusion Wednesday of the Group of Seven economic summit, will visit Syria, Egypt, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Israel. Baker's first stop is expected to be Damascus.

Croatian security fights federal troops, one dead

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Croatian security units battled armor-backed federal troops at a mountainside village Monday in fighting that left at least one combatant dead and another injured, officials and news reports said. The fighting came as the ruling communist party of Serbia issued a new warning against rival Croatia attacking rebels of its 600,000-strong Serbian minority opposed to the republic's secession from Yugoslavia. The clashes between the Croatian security units and federal troops erupted before dawn in the village of Kraljevci, about 45 miles southeast of the Croatian capital of Zagreb.

Census not adjusted despite error of 5 million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Robert Moshbacher, overruling a recommendation of the director of the Census Bureau, said Monday he will not adjust the 1990 census that missed more than 5 million people. Moshbacher, acting under court order, said he found the evidence in support of an adjustment "inconclusive and unconvincing." But Barbara Bryant, who as director of the Census Bureau and oversaw the constitutionally required census, said she had recommended Moshbacher agree to a statistical adjustment to the census to make the count "more accurate for a majority of states.

Activist Jewish group opposes court nominee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An activist Jewish group Monday announced it would oppose the nomination of Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court because of two 1983 speeches in which Thomas may have praised Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan. "We are opposing Thomas because of his links to and support of Louis Farrakhan," said Mordechai Levy, head of the 3,500-member Jewish Defense Organization, based in New York. "We're going to put tremendous pressure" on senators to vote against Thomas's confirmation, said Levy. "No holds barred, all bets are off."

Chemical spill from train kills fish, closes highway

DUNSMUIR, Calif. (UPI) — A chemical spill from a train that derailed in northern California killed thousands of fish in the Sacramento River and prompted the evacuation Monday of hundreds of people and forced the closure of a major highway. At least four people were treated for eye injuries after they were exposed to fumes from the 19,000-gallon spill. Biologists feared the chemical, a highly toxic weed-killer, would be carried downstream as far south as Lake Shasta and create an ecological disaster. There were no immediate estimates of wildlife losses, but thousands of dead fish were found floating in the river.

Store owner continues battle for liquor license

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Carbondale commission stands by previous permit denials

A local businessman says he will keep fighting the Local Liquor Control Commission even if he does not receive a liquor license.

John Ham, who owned Saluki Laundromat on U.S. Highway 51 south of Pleasant Hill Road, wants to turn the building into a liquor store.

But months of conflict with the Carbondale City Council, Local Liquor Control Commission and the courts have kept the business from opening.

Ham applied for and was refused a license from the liquor commission last summer. He then appealed to the Illinois State Liquor Commission, which reversed the city's decision.

The city liquor commission refused to grant the licenses despite the state liquor commission's ruling and petitioned for a rehearing.

The state denied the city's petition in September.

The City Council passed an ordinance Sept. 18 prohibiting the sale of alcohol in Carbondale south of Pleasant Hill Road because, according to the ordinance, Carbondale wants to preserve "the dignity and tranquility of certain areas."

Jan. 22, Circuit Court Judge J. Phil Gilbert ruled the city had no reason to deny the license.

Ham said despite the ruling, he was never issued a license and is still waiting to open his liquor store.

"I don't understand," he said. "The councilman and commissioners have personal interests. They are not fulfilling their responsibilities as elected officials."

The Local Liquor Control Commission and the Carbondale City Council are separate bodies, but are composed of the same people.

City Attorney Michael Wepsiec said Ham was not eligible for a permit for a liquor license because the building was not ready for operation, but the permit was not granted because "(Ham) never physically came in and asked for one."

The commission upheld the limit of eight liquor store licenses for the city.

Ham will go before the liquor commission tonight following the City Council meeting which begins at 7.

Soviets see economy in rapid decline

MOSCOW (UPI) — The government released figures Monday showing a continued sharp decline in the country's economy as President Mikhail Gorbachev prepared to state his case for Western assistance at the London G-7 meeting.

Overall production in the vast country dropped 6.2 percent for the first six months of 1991 compared to the same period last year, with the decline in the energy, chemical and machinery industries even worse, the Soviet State Statistics Committee said.

The fall in production continues a downward spiral in the Soviet economy that sent Gorbachev to London looking for what he calls "new forms of cooperation" in the form of economic assistance to support his perestroika reforms.

The leaders of the Group of Seven major industrialized nations have cautioned that Gorbachev is unlikely to come away from his meeting with them Wednesday with large amounts of direct aid, but rather should expect more promises of technical assistance and advice on moving to a market economy.

While the statistics released Monday reflect a serious economic problem, the 6.2 percent fall in production reported by the statistics committee was less than some independent forecasts that said Soviet output could fall as much as 10 percent or 15 percent this year.

The figures released Monday and carried by the official government newspaper Izvestia seemed to indicate the decline was worsening, with the one-month output for June 9 percent less than last year.

U.S. supply plan aids poor Iraqis despite Hussein

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration said Monday it is prepared to work with the international community to get food and other vital supplies to the Iraqi people without lifting sanctions against Saddam Hussein's regime.

"We think that any mechanism developed to provide essential supplies to the Iraqi people must include strict control and close monitoring," State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said. "We are closely consulting with members of the (U.N.) Security Council, and with our coalition partners."

Boucher said at the department's daily briefing the United States has never opposed feeding "vulnerable groups" in Iraq. He said the administration has been supporting international relief agencies operating inside Iraq to bring food, medicine and water to needy people.

But Boucher said the United States does not favor lifting strict U.N. sanctions against Iraq that prohibit the country from selling its oil or trading with other nations. These sanctions were put into effect because of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

"Our view has always been that humanitarian needs can be met within the existing sanctions regime," Boucher said.

"At the same time, we're cognizant of the fact that Saddam Hussein has proven that he can't be trusted," he said.

Boucher said that since food shipments were permitted by the sanctions committee on March 22, shipments of more than 1.1 million tons of food have been reported — an amount equal to 1 ton of food for every 18 Iraqis.

"We are prepared to work with international support, other members of the Security Council, to move rapidly to support humanitarian assistance under a regime that ensures that food, medicine, and other humanitarian items get to needy people and are not diverted by Saddam Hussein," Boucher said.

FBI agent reports terrorist threats against Bush

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A FBI official said Monday agents thwarted assorted domestic terrorist threats against President Bush during the Persian Gulf crisis, including one by a New Orleans biochemist who planned an assassination using a deadly nerve gas.

In testimony before the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee hearing on the threat of international terrorism in the wake of the Gulf War, Neil Gallagher, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's counter-terrorism section, described two cases involving U.S. citizens who attempted to contact the Iraqi Embassy in Washington about taking the president's life.

Gallagher labeled cases as involving "individual zealots" who were not believed to be connected with international terrorist groups or the Iraqis.

In an interview after the hearing, Gallagher said the two cases were "illustrative" of the type of domestic threat posed during the crisis. He said "a number" of other potential domestic terrorists were "reaching out to official Iraqi presence in the United States by various means" during the crisis.

Steve Ashburn, a New Orleans biochemist, pleaded guilty on Feb. 22 in U.S. District Court in Orleans for making a threat against the president. Ashburn was "quite capable," Gallagher said, of developing the potent nerve gas, known as Sarin, which would have used an aerosol delivery system to attack Bush.

Ashburn, who made his threat in January, unsuccessfully reached out to Iraqi Embassy officials, Gallagher said.

In the second example, Jamal Warrayat, a Palestinian from Jordan who is a naturalized American citizen, was convicted in U.S. District Court in Newark, N.J., on April 16 of making a threat to the president.

He phoned the Iraqi Embassy and offered to kill Bush, but Gallagher said the embassy was unresponsive and "in severe turmoil" after U.S. officials expelled dozens of Iraqi diplomats.

Instead, Warrayat met with an FBI agent posing as an Iraqi intelligence officer, who determined that Warrayat was acting alone and not as part of a terrorist network, Gallagher said.

Students' role in city cannot be ignored

CARBONDALE'S GOVERNMENT AND city boards are helping SIUC students take steps towards a more active role in the community activities. Now it is up to the students to show the city SIUC cares about changes to the city and students can help present thoughtful ideas and debate in city government.

The Undergraduate Student Government has been given a recognized voice with the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce. Although the chamber does not give USG a vote, it is a step in the right direction. Students have to use this opportunity to communicate thoughtful ideas to the chamber. If students do not take advantage of these opportunities, it would be unlikely that students will get a chance to play an even greater role in city government.

SIUC STUDENTS ALREADY have shown their apathy time after time in city elections. In the April 1991 elections for mayor, two City Council seats and park commissioner, less than 4 percent of the students who were registered in the Brush Towers and Thompson Point precincts voted. Had all eligible students in those two precincts cast a ballot, students would have comprised about one-third of the total number of voters. The candidates said they did not campaign much in student areas because of a tradition of apathy toward city government. Students have to stop rearing their heads only when a major issue like the Halloween party pops up. There are positions for students on committees like the citizens advisory committee and the downtown redevelopment committee. Most importantly they can show their interest in places called voting booths. In 1989, about 13,000 University students were eligible to vote. Only 41 students in the Brush Towers and Thompson Point precincts voted in the city election that year. For the 1988 presidential election, 698 ballots were cast from those two precincts.

GIVEN RECOGNITION ON the Chamber of Commerce is not any drastic change. All Carbondale citizens are welcome to attend its meetings. But a recognized voice shows that the city is willing to listen to the voice of the students. And in the future maybe students can have a voting representative. If students can first show that they care, the city will not have reason to say no to a request for a greater role.

Letters

Area wilderness seeks refuge

The Forest Service is accepting comments on an amended Shawnee Forest Plan until August 15. Recent newspaper articles and letters to the editor have focused attention on the need for comments supporting no hardwood cutting in Shawnee National Forest.

Public comment favoring no cutting could mean a new mandate for forest management in Southern Illinois. This is an important opportunity for those supporting preservation of natural heritage to impact forest management over the next ten years.

This is also our opportunity to begin the process to secure permanent protection for three Shawnee areas by inclusion in the National Wilderness Preservation System. Such protection would prevent timber harvest forever as well as prohibit motorized vehicles in the areas. Activities such as hiking, horseback riding, and hunting are allowed and ideally suited to wilderness.

Wilderness is designated by an act of Congress but ordinarily an important prerequisite to wilderness legislation is a recommendation by the Forest Service. That is why public comment supporting Camp Hutchins as wilderness is important.

Two areas, Burke Branch (7,335 acres) and Ripple Hollow (4,357 acres) already have Forest Service recommendation for wilderness, but Camp Hutchins (2,900 acres) does not. This area is adjacent to LaRue-Pine Hills Ecological area and Bald Knob-Clear Springs Wilderness areas is beautiful, undisturbed Ozark Hill habitat.

If Camp Hutchins is protected as wilderness over 20,000 acres of essentially unfragmented forest will be preserved. Such habitat is rare in Illinois, where most forest was cleared and plowed in the last century. Only the steep terrain, and inaccessible ravines have protected Camp Hutchins from ax and plow.

Some in the timber industry would like to change that and have insisted that Camp Hutchins be studied not just for its wilderness qualities, but for its timber production as well. This ominous statement is included in the proposed forest plan. To not protect and preserve such a forest would be a tragedy. It should not be logged now or ever.

Last year almost 30,000 acres of Shawnee Forest was added to the National Wilderness Preservation System by the 1990 Illinois Wilderness Act. We now have the opportunity to demonstrate support for three additional areas deserving permanent protection.

These three areas are the last remnants of Illinois' wild lands that qualify for federal wilderness status. No other areas are eligible for consideration.

It is essential that the public comment on the ecological importance of Camp Hutchins, Burke Branch, and Ripple Hollow. They should be protected permanently for future generations by inclusion in the National Wilderness Preservation System.—Laurel Toussaint, Conservation Chair.

Student killed in car crash remembered

By Christine Leninger
Staff Writer

Members of the Japanese Student Organization, friends, family and professors said their goodbyes to Sadao Kanamori Monday night.

The 28-year-old SIUC journalism major from Japan was killed in a car crash Wednesday morning during a rain storm near Columbia, Mo., according to the Boone County coroner's office.

He was remembered with a memorial service and cremated in Columbia Monday afternoon.

Obituary

Japanese Student Organization members held a service to pay last respects according to Japanese tradition at the home of the deceased Monday evening.

Kanamori was part of the first group of students involved in the liaison with Nakajo, Japan's SIU campus, said Beverly Walker, campus coordinator for programs at SIUN. He arrived in Carbondale in spring of 1989.

"He was a reserved man,"

Genichiro Kosagi, president of the Japanese Student Organization, said.

Kanamori studied for two years at Aichi Gakuin University in Japan prior to coming to SIUC.

Kanamori's parents live in Toyota, Japan, and came to the United States along with Kanamori's brother to mourn their departed son and brother, Walker said.

He was traveling alone through Missouri during a morning rain storm, apparently lost control of the vehicle and veered into the oncoming traffic of state Highway D, Kosagi said.

The delay is keeping about 1,200 civil service employees at SIUC and the School of Medicine from being paid today. These employees are expecting a combined payroll of nearly $1.1 million.

Dale Schumacher, president of the SIUC Credit Union, said his institution is beginning a program to help state employees:

Members with direct deposit will receive a credit in the amount of their pay check to their accounts without delay, interest-free. This will be done automatically without a request from the member.

Members without direct deposit can receive an interest-free loan in the amount of their last paycheck. The check stub and driver's license are needed for verification.

SIUC employees and other state agencies eligible for membership can apply for loans with an interest rate of 9 percent up to 60 days.

"We feel an obligation to the people who have supported us over the years," Schumacher said.

Schumacher said he expects between 300 to 500 of the Credit Union's 8,500 members to use the special services.

Other Carbondale banks, including the First National Bank and Trust Company of Carbondale, Charter Bank, First Bank, the Bank of Carbondale and Landmark Bank of Carbondale are offering help.

The First National Bank and Trust Company of Carbondale, 504 S. University, also is offering special services.

Teresa Rust, assistant vice president and cashier at First National, said account holders with direct deposit will have money deposited just as before. Those without direct deposit will be allowed to overdraw their accounts to the amount of their prior paycheck.

"We will trust in good faith they will make the deposit," she said. "We want them to count on their bank even if they can't count on the state."

Rust said considerations will be made for those who do not have accounts and wish to take out a loan, but the bank's first obligation will be with its customers.

Charter Bank, 500 W. Main, also is providing direct deposit customers with a credit to their accounts in the amount of their previous pay.

Linda Johnson, senior vice president of Charter, said there will not be special loans, however. Loans for state employees will be treated the same as other loans.

First Bank, 1500 W. Main, also will not offer special loans but will help state employees in other ways.

Dona Spring, assistant cashier at First Bank, said her bank will cover customer overdrafts for those with or without direct deposit. Those with direct deposit do not need to ask for the service; those without must bring a check stub for verification.

The Bank of Carbondale, 216 E. Main, will allow customers to overdraft their accounts for the amount of their last pay check.

Bob Bleyer, president of the Bank of Carbondale, said direct deposit customers will automatically receive this service, but customers without direct deposit must bring in a check stub.

"In essence (overdraft) is a no-interest loan," Bleyer said.

Landmark Bank of Carbondale, 100 N. Illinois Ave., also will cover overdrafts of its customers for the amount of previous pay checks.

Melvin Lipe, senior vice president of Landmark, said direct deposit customers do not have to act to have overdrafts covered, but customers without direct deposit must tell him they want the same service.

Students are scheduled to be paid July 19 for the pay period of June 23 to July 6. Checks will be issued for hours worked before June 30, but the rest hinges on the budget.

would result in full paychecks on Friday, Rich Davis, spokesman for state Comptroller Dawn Clark Netchs, said any on-time payment for services after June 30 will be "virtually impossible."

"There would have to be a budget miracle and an angel in our computer," Davis said.

Although the Comptroller's Office has been able to print and hold paychecks due for today's pay date, the computer system used to process the payroll has experienced overload problems.

"Our system is not designed to handle the burden we will ask it to handle," Netchs said in a prepared statement. "By attempting to expedite the processing of warrants, we have stretched our hardware to the limits and beyond. From here on out, I cannot guarantee how quickly the paychecks can be released."

Paychecks have already been written and are being held in a vault, but they cannot be posted because there are no appropriations to back them until a budget is finalized.

The state has gone 16 days without a budget, as compromises are still being argued in Springfield.

Netchs said today's lack of payroll "marked the first time in modern history that Illinois state government failed to issue checks to a full schedule of state employees."

component creates the Nurses in Medicine Advancement Law that offers scholarships to nurses who wish to become doctors. He said the scholarship funds are voluntarily collected from private funds and distributed to eligible participants, and when nurses graduate from medical school, they are required to practice in underserved areas one year for every year they received scholarship money.

The bill also requires the Center for Rural Health to hire physicians for temporary service in communities where doctors were called to active duty with the armed forces.

Phelps said some counties were completely without medical services when their only doctor was called to the Persian Gulf.

Chezem said if rural areas wish to attract medical professionals, they must recruit from rural areas and have doctors do their residency and training in these areas.

"We have to provide the opportunity of recruiting from rural areas," Chezem said. "We can't expect to get doctors from urban areas because there is always the chance they will not enjoy the area and leave after a few years."

Soviets seek monetary aid from summit

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet officials said Monday President Mikhail Gorbachev was not seeking huge amounts of cash at the London Economic Summit, and warned of social upheaval if the world's leading industrialized nations refused to help restructure their ailing economy.

"If we do not achieve close cooperation between the U.S.S.R. and the other nations, there could be turmoil not only in the Soviet Union but elsewhere," Soviet Deputy Prime Minister Vladimir Shcherbakov said.

Earlier, Soviet presidential adviser Yevgeny Primakov told the British Broadcasting Corp. that unless G-7 nations gave Gorbachev some commitment, the Soviet Union faced upheaval.

"Without some form of understanding (with the G-7) there is a real risk from opposition conservative forces and of serious social uprising," Primakov said.

Primakov said privatization, liberalizing prices, and convertibility of the ruble had begun, but that Gorbachev needed a strong commitment from the G-7 nations.

Arms treaty stalling on missile talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators became deadlocked over technical issues holding up a strategic arms treaty, but President Bush's national security adviser was optimistic Monday an agreement could be reached by Wednesday.

Emerging from four days of intensive talks, Secretary of State

James Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Aleksandr Bessmertnykh said Sunday they had reached agreement on nearly every aspect of the remaining components.

"We have now reached agreement on almost all the outstanding issues that remained when Minister Bessmertnykh arrived in Washington," Baker said.

The one issue on which they did not agree involved determining what types of new missiles would be permitted under the treaty, one of the three components the two delegations convened their meetings to resolve.

Groups: Superpowers failed environmental commitments

LONDON (UPI) — Governments attending the summit meeting of the Group of Seven industrial powers have failed a test of their own environmental policies, conservation groups said Monday.

Friends of the Earth International, the World Wide Fund for Nature and the Environmental Defense Fund issued an Enviro-Summit Scorecard that scoffed at "much green rhetoric" from the G-7 countries.

"This is a ranked table of failures," said Andrew Lees from Friends of the Earth. "They're all dirty. No one is best."

The scorecard covered nine environmental issues including atmosphere and energy, species and habitats, water and oceans, transport, land use, agriculture, waste, global relations and the public right to know.

Environmentalists studied 10 questions on each issue in each of the countries. Each nation was rated between 1 and 100 on each question. The highest score was 67, won by the United States under the category of public's right to know about environmental issues.

On most issues surveyed, the G-7 countries, which were described as the "world's biggest polluters," rated less than 40 points, sometimes as low as 10 points, on their efforts toward cleaning up and protecting the environment.

Germany scored 12 points on waste management, Japan received 15 for species protection and the United States, the world's largest energy consumer and responsible for 23 percent of carbon dioxide emissions, rated 27 for cleaning up the atmosphere. The G-7 governments were accused of turning their attention away from the environment although they had made commitments to green issues during the 1989 and 1990 summits.

"Interspersed in the silky words of the previous G-7 communique, there were lots of action points," Lees said.

Serbs in Croatia threatening uprising over military buffer

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Serbs in Croatia could stage a "general uprising" if the Yugoslav army does not disarm the breakaway republic's paramilitary contingents by July 18, the most prominent extreme Serbian nationalist leader warned Monday.

Vojislav Seselj, a self-styled "duke" and head of the Serbian Radical Party, said that his group would force an alliance with four other ultra-nationalist Serbian organizations and dispatch "volunteers to areas where Serbs are threatened."

"If the Yugoslav Peoples Army does not disarm (Croatian) paramilitary formations at the latest by July 18, a general uprising of the Serbian people in Croatia can be expected," said Seselj, who recently won a seat in the Serbian Assembly.

Seselj advocates the conquest by Serbia of the enclaves in Croatia that are home to the republic's 600,000 Serbs, and the annexation of the republics of Macedonia and Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Serbs, Croats warring in border communities

TENJA, Yugoslavia (UPI) — War already has broken out between the Serbs and Croats of Tenja and other communities along southeastern Croatia's pastoral border with Serbia.

Pawns of their leaders' ambitions and victims of a history of hatred, they spy on each other through binoculars, exchange rockets and mortar rounds over barricades.

Their villages are divided, roads devoid of traffic, factories closed, neighborhoods turned into shooting galleries and no-man's lands.

Bullet-riddled livestock rot beneath a blistering summer sun. Sprawling fields lie awash with record, ripening crops.

There has been talk of arranging a cease-fire to allow a harvest, but nothing has come of it.

Some villages are totally cut off, telephone lines severed, electricity and water supplies unreliable.

An estimated 12,000 Serbian women and children have been sent to stay with relatives in Serbia.

Spouses and offspring of mixed marriages have been forced to choose sides.

The hamlet of Celije was abandoned July 8 by its 200 Croatian occupants, who accused the Serbs of the adjacent village of Bobota of driving them out under a shower of mortar rounds, then looting and torching several homes.

Two pro-democracy activists flee China, seek U.S. asylum

SEATTLE (UPI) — Two Chinese women involved in the 1989 pro-democracy movement and underground efforts opposing the communist government's crackdown sought political asylum in the United States Monday after arriving as stowaways aboard a container ship from Hong Kong.

The two were to be taken off the ship under guard to a downtown Seattle hotel to meet with a U.S. Immigration and Naturalization political asylum officer from San Francisco, who under new regulations could issue a determination on the merits of their appeal on the spot.

China human rights activists identified the women as Ma Yuan, 27, who participated in pro-democracy demonstrations outside Beijing in May 1989, and Hua Xiabi, 37, who organized student hunger strikes during the Tiananmen Square protests.

Amnesty group urges abuses monitor

LONDON (UPI) — Amnesty International, warning of a human-rights crisis in Iraq, Tuesday urged the United Nations to set up special operations inside the country to "prevent torture, killing and other abuses by government forces."

Amnesty said its call for an on-site human-rights monitoring operation in Iraq stems partly from fear of vengeance against opponents of Saddam Hussein.

"The Iraqi government's record of massive reprisals ... leaves no doubt about the serious risk of human-rights violations," Amnesty said. "The United Nations must take far-reaching measures if the international community is to prevent another human-rights crisis in Iraq."

The London human-rights group said it would present a proposal this week to the United Nations and the Iraqi government calling for a special operation empowered to investigate alleged abuses, protect victims and help enforce international standards. The proposal urges that the U.N. be empowered to investigate abuses.

Summit aimed to foster economic cooperation

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — The presidents of the five Central American nations met Monday in El Salvador to begin a three-day summit aimed at fostering economic cooperation in the sub-region.

In preparatory meetings, Cabinet members from the six countries have focused on proposals for a Central American trade block.

Other proposals include bringing Panama in on the move towards economic integration and establishing a Central American security treaty.

Political sources said the presidents would sign a trade agreement calling for a coordinated system of tariffs and payments in 1992.

Establishing free trade within the region may be overshadowed by efforts to present a common economic front in trade negotiations.

Honduran President Angel Calderon said the most interesting proposal before the Central American summit had come from the outside. Also on the agenda are proposals for joint trade negotiations with the United States and Mexico.

Volcano still creates problems

Pinatubo eruption may force U.S. to give up Clark Air Base

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Special U.S. negotiator Richard Armitage said Monday the eruption of Mount Pinatubo volcano may force Washington to give up Clark Air Base and that Manila has to accept "new realities" if U.S. military presence is to continue.

Armitage arrived for the seventh round of talks on arrangements at the expiration Sept. 16 of the leases on Clark and on Subic Bay Naval Station, and he spoke in private with chief Philippine negotiator Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus.

"There are some new realities concerning the bases in the aftermath of Mount Pinatubo that have to be addressed," Armitage said in a statement.

Manglapus gave some insight into the talks Monday, saying the United States indicated it would withdraw from Clark, citing damage caused by the eruption of Pinatubo.

"They are no longer going to occupy Clark," Manglapus said. "All the indications are now they are no longer going to continue occupying Clark although we do have to arrive at an arrangement for their withdrawal."

Manglapus added that he expected an agreement on Clark and Subic to be forged "within the next 48 hours."

Armitage was not available for comment on Manglapus's remarks. The U.S. negotiator said earlier that Clark and Subic — the oldest and largest overseas U.S. military facilities — have sustained substantial damage and repairs in cost and time would be considerable.

Armitage said the potential for further damage from mudflows and floods remained. He said Clark is flanked by concentrations of ash and continuing ash emissions pose a "serious hazard to aviation."

"I have already indicated to Secretary Manglapus, unfortunately, that the future of Clark is questionable," he said.

The 5,725-foot Pinatubo erupted June 9 after a 611-year slumber. Officials said at least 279 people had died in the eruption.

Experimental drug for Alzheimer's studied for safety, effectiveness

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a move that would make an experimental drug for Alzheimer's disease much more widely available, a pharmaceutical company Monday proposed a large study to gather more data about the drug's safety and effectiveness.

The Parke-Davis Pharmaceutical Research Division of Warner-Lambert Co. of Morris Plains, N.J., asked the Food and Drug Administration's Peripheral and Central Nervous System Drugs Advisory Committee to back the study of the drug Cognex.

During a day-long hearing, the panel endorsed the concept of the study but asked the company to redesign the program to focus on testing the drug's effectiveness.

Arguing the drug's effectiveness had already been established, the company's proposal was aimed primarily at determining safety. But the panel voted that there was still not enough evidence of the drug's effectiveness.

After the hearing, a Warner-Lambert spokesman said the company would meet with FDA officials to discuss the committee's recommendations.

The same panel in April rejected a request by the company to approve the drug for sale, saying there was insufficient evidence of the drug's effectiveness.

The decision was disappointing to families of Alzheimer's patients who are desperate for anything that might battle the incurable, devastating brain disease.

The FDA subsequently proposed the company make the drug available more widely by conducting a large study of its effectiveness. Positive results could then be used to seek approval to sell the drug widely.

The approach has become more common recently to allow AIDS patients to get access to promising drugs before they have received final approval.

Some Alzheimer's groups Monday criticized the FDA for failing to approve the drug — also known as tacrine.

But FDA Commissioner David Kessler assured the groups of the agency's commitment to finding Alzheimer's treatments.

Male students go on rampage in Kenya leaving 19 girls dead

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A school whose male students went on a weekend rampage that left 19 girls dead canceled classes Monday, urging all pupils to stay home until an inquiry is completed.

The unrest grew out of a strike against the headmaster by boys at the Saint Kisoto School in Meru District, 130 miles north of Nairobi, the Nation newspaper said.

The 306 boys attending the school were denied access to an athletics meeting because of non-payment of fees. They decided to strike and, angered by the non-participation of the school's 207 girls in their protest, raided the female dormitories after fusing the lights.

The girls barricaded themselves in part of one building, but the marauding boys knocked down a door and rushed in. The ensuing crush killed 19 girls and injured 67, the newspaper said.

The boys, realizing what they had done, fled into the thick bush surrounding the school, leaving the injured girls to their fate. Due to lack of telephones, police did not arrive on the scene for hours.

Only three boys were caught and arrested.

A number of girls told the Nation that they had been raped, but there was no medical confirmation of the charge, the newspaper said.

An investigation continued Monday under the supervision of Meru Division Senior Superintendent Julius Mbogo.

$925 million paid to Polaroid for patent lawsuit

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Eastman Kodak paid Polaroid Corp. $925 million Monday to settle a patent infringement lawsuit and end a 15-year legal battle that ousted Kodak from the instant photography business.

In an agreement announced by both companies, Eastman Kodak of Rochester, N.Y., said it paid Cambridge-based Polaroid an $873 million award ordered by a U.S. District Court Judge in January, plus $52 million in post-judgment interest. Polaroid had first sued Kodak in 1976.

Movie star Betty expecting baby by early next year

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Warren Beatty, Hollywood's leading bachelor, announced Monday that he and actress Annette Bening are expecting a child early next year.

"We are happy to confirm that we are looking forward to the birth of a child," the couple said in a statement.

Beatty's publicist, Andrea Jaffe, said there was no word on whether Beatty, 55, and Bening, 33, planned to wed. The couple met while working together on a new Beatty film based on the life of Ben "Bugsy" Siegel, the gangster who "invented" Las Vegas.

Beatty has had relationships with a number of leading ladies, including Diane Keaton, Leslie Caron and Julie Christie.

Man struck from pulpit as church feud erupts

PEORIA (UPI) — A long-running feud between members of the New Morning Star Missionary Baptist Church in Peoria erupted into violence when one person punched a member who was preaching in the pulpit.

The episode Sunday in the largest black church in the city was another in a continuing battle between two congregational factions for control of the church. However, this was the first time that blows were exchanged.

Police reports said Oliver Nickolas was preaching when two men turned off the power to the amplifying equipment. At the same time, police said four women attempted to pull Nickolas away from the microphone. When he refused, he was allegedly punched on the right side of the head by Jesse Byrd.

"I don't know who I hit and I don't care," Byrd told the Peoria Journal-Star in Monday's editions. "I went to church to hear the pastor pray or preach and they had a jackass up there preaching about hog guts. I'm sorry, but I got offended."

Several other punches were thrown and the melee was videotaped by a member of the congregation.

"Everybody was hitting today. They were piling up on me and yes, I hit," said Bernice Byrd, Jesse Byrd's wife.

The church's pastor, Cleveland Thomas, could not immediately be reached Monday to comment on the incident.

Phone company restricts usage to deter drug dealing

CHICAGO (UPI) — Illinois Bell Telephone Co. Monday began restricting usage on some phones on a trial basis to make it more difficult for drug dealers and other criminals to carry on business.

Bell turned about 50 phones in two wards on the West and Southeast sides into operator-assisted or emergency call only from about 6 p.m. to 5 a.m.

"Illinois Bell is trying to take the phones out of the hands of criminals and make them available to our customers when they need them," Bell spokesman Sam Foster said.

Bell identified 50 public phones allegedly used for drug transactions.

400-person riot at carnival leads to arrest of 10

WEST CHICAGO (UPI) — 10 people were arrested after a riot Sunday night at the Carnival of the Railroad Days Festival.

The incident began as officers were escorting a disorderly conduct suspect from the festival, and the suspect allegedly began to struggle and struck an officer, West Chicago Police said. A second person ran out of the crowd and attacked the officers, with the situation escalating until a mob of about 400 people had surrounded the police, throwing rocks.

New program concerned with parents, kids needs

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sears, Roebuck and Co. introduced two merchandising programs Monday aimed at parents who want to keep up with their kids' clothing needs without busting the family budget.

A wear-out warranty pledges the company will replace at no cost children's clothing purchased at Sears if it wears out while the child is in the same size, and a frequent-purchase program offers discounts on future purchases of children's clothing at Sears.

The so-called KidVantage wear-out warranty is printed on the back of all Sears cash register receipts.

If clothing purchased at Sears wears out while the child wears the same size, the customer can return the merchandise and Sears will replace it free of charge with the identical item in the same size or a similar item of equal value in the same size.

Gary Ramsey, national merchandising manager for children's apparel, said the KidVantage warranty applies to all of the more than 70 national brands carried by Sears as well as Sears' house brands.

The warranty covers all sizes from newborn through 20 for boys and 16 for girls.

Under the KidVantage frequent-purchase program, customers will receive a special card on which the amount of their purchases at Sears Kids & More departments will be recorded.

When customers accumulate $50 in purchases, they earn a 10 percent discount on a future Kids & More purchase.

When purchases total $100, the customer is entitled to a 15 percent discount on a future purchase.

Fast food chains competing for seaweed burger market

By Leon Daniel
United Press International

WASHINGTON — When I was posted to Japan in 1967 as a news correspondent, I rashly wrote that there was no future for a people who threw away turnip greens and ate seaweed.

I was wrong about the Japanese. But McDonald's restaurant may have been asking for trouble by substituting seaweed for fat in its hamburgers.

In what is shaping up as The Great Hamburger War, The Wall Street Journal reported Monday that Hardee's, the nation's No. 3 burger chain, will challenge Mc-Donald's new low-fat sandwich in an all-out advertising attack. Hardee's commercials will disclose that McDonald's McLean Deluxe contains carrageenan, a seaweed derivative that substitutes for fat in holding the hamburger together.

Hardee's will introduce a competing hamburger called the Real Lean Deluxe.

The Hardee's version has slightly more fat — 13.6 grams vs. 10.2 grams for Mc-Donald's.

In the first commercial, an actor posing as a manager of a Hardee's restaurant, says, "We would never consider using fillers, flavor enhancers — seaweed."
