Further illegal liquor transfers alleged

By Steve Hahn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Further allegations of illegal liquor transfer operations between all six liquor stores owned by W. Stephen, Thomas and Philip Hoffmann were leveled Wednesday by two former Hoffmann employees. Both employees asked to remain anonymous.

According to both sources, records of the transfers were kept by the Hoffmanns, with one copy going to each store involved.

At a Carbondale Liquor Control Commission meeting Tuesday, five area liquor store owners were named in charges concerning the transfers, violations in filling liquor license application forms, and of concealing the true ownership of their stores.

Besides the Hoffmann brothers, Robert L. and Thomas P. Palmer were named in the charges.

The Palermers have filed suit against city officials, including the Liquor Commission, contending that the city is illegally delaying the renewal of their liquor license for Leo's Westown Liquor Mart, located in the Westown Mall in Carbondale.

At the meeting, City Atty. John Womick said he was receiving complete cooperation from the Hoffmann's attorney in the city's investigation of the alleged violations.

One of the sources said he doubts that the transfer slips still exist. "I don't think there is any evidence left," the source said. "It would be just like admitting guilt."

According to one of the sources, the transfers occurred because the Hoffmann stores purchased all their liquor together. Under Illinois Liquor Control Commission rule 25, the holder of a retail liquor license is not permitted to sell or transfer liquor to any other licensed premise.

The source said the Hoffmanns would purchase 50 to 100 cases of various kinds of liquor and receive one free case for every purchase. The free cases would then go to the Hoffmann's store with the largest sales volume, the source said.

Both sources said they participated in the transfers which they said generally occurred during the day, when the stores were less busy. One of the sources said he transferred liquor at least 10 times and saw at least 25 transfers occur.

The other source said that while he worked at ABC Liquor Store, 109 N. Washington St., owned by Philip Hoffmann, he and other employees transferred liquor "at least three times a week" to Bonaparte's Retreat, a bar which has since closed.

Both sources said several transfers came to ABC from the Hoffmann-owned Eastgate Liquor Mart, located in the Eastgate Shopping Center in Carbondale. One of the sources said Eastgate was a "central distributor" for all of the other Hoffmann stores because of its large sales volume.

One of the sources said he participated in or saw at least five transfers from Carbondale to Hoffmann-owned businesses in Mount Vernon and Marion. The source said most of the transfers went to either ABC Liquor Store or the Westmore Liquor Mart, both in Marion.

The source said the Marion store did low-volume business and by participating in the Hoffmann group buying, they received lower-priced liquor than other stores selling equal volume.

The source said the Mount Vernon, Plaza Liquor Mart, did a large volume business and did not need the group buying advantage used by the other stores.

Terrace residents resisting rent increase

By Diane Pintorri
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Evergreen Terrace residents are organizing to resist a proposed rent increase. Art Skogsbert, chairman of the Evergreen Terrace Rent Increase Committee, said they plan to rebut the proposed increase with documented evidence that they can save money.

Robert Wenc, family housing supervisor, said the main reason for the rent increase, which would be $15 per month for a two-bedroom and $37 per month for a three-bedroom apartment, is the increase in utility rates, especially electricity.

Skogsbert said tenants were given notice May 7 alerting them to the increase, scheduled to go into effect in October. The residents asked for and were given until July 7 to show cause why the rent increase should not go into effect.

Residents object to three sections of the proposed rent schedule notice: increase in utility rates and consumption, increase in wages, and potential lost maintenance.

"We can understand insurance costs and inflation being part of the reason, but we believe we can save money by energy conservation and self-help activities," Skogsbert said.

The rent committee met May 5 with the Conservation Committee set up by the University to study cost-saving methods that might be implemented at Evergreen Terrace. The committee consisted of Wenc, Skogsbert, the Southern Hills council, housing officials, CIPS representatives and faculty members knowledgeable in the field of energy conservation.

Some of the conservation efforts implemented since the meeting are lowered hallway wattage, an air conditioning shut off from November through March and a three-month interval furnace filter change.

Wenc said family housing is in the process of changing the outdoor light fixtures from mechanical to electronic and has more energy-saving changes planned for next year.

Wenc said that self-help maintenance would not be possible.

"We have been able to lower maintenance costs this year. For example, we have a self-decorating program for the tenants which saves money on labor. But we must abide by union rules; we have contracts with unions and private operators--off-campus," Wenc said.

"The University has understood our problems...they probably can't help us avoid the union issue, but they are helping us with the energy conservation," Skogsbert said.

Skogsbert said University Housing alone cannot approve the housing increase because Evergreen Terrace is owned by the Federal Housing Authority (FHA).

FHA guaranteed the mortgage for the area, but did not subsidize it. Skogsbert said that rent is the area's only revenue. Without the rent increase a $50,000 deficit is projected for next year.
Recommended cinema group budget may not cover deficit

By Matt Coulter
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The 1976-77 budget recommended for the Expanded Cinema Group may not cover the group's deficits for the year. "Nancy Harris, Acting Assistant Dean of Student Affairs, said it is conceivable that the budget recommended for the group may not cover the deficit for the year," Harris said.

Harris is the fiscal officer in charge of Expanded Cinema Group funds.

"All the vouchers are not in yet," Harris said in an apparent printout from General Accounting which showed a "real close estimate" of the final deficit.

Press panel to discuss charge

By Ron Morgan
Student Writer

The University Community Press Council will discuss a charge by "Professor Mike Belchak" the Daily Egyptian and the University as a whole by the end of the week.

The council will meet Thursday at 3 p.m. in General classrooms Room 287.

Belchak lodged the complaint at the press council meeting on May 6. Belchak said the Daily Egyptian's article was "unfair and absurd." He had submitted three letters on different occasions.

William Harmon, Daily Egyptian managing editor, responded to Belchak by letter, at the council's meeting.

If Belchak is not satisfied with the Daily Egyptian's response, he can request a grievance hearing at which the press council will discuss his charges further. At the May 6 meeting, the Daily Egyptian editors responded to an inquiry about a news story and classified ads concerning "hit men" who used pens as ammunition.

The press council questioned whether the Daily Egyptian had become a party to an illegal act or had violated journalistic ethics by reporting in the story that "hit men" could be setup through classified ads.

One woman, who was reported to have been knocked to the ground by a pit-wielding hit man, filed a complaint with the police as a result.

Harmon replied in a letter to the council, "We simply goofed on the cream pie-hitman episode. I'm not sure this was a violation of journalistic ethics, but I would agree there was a lapse of judgment in quoting an anonymous source about how to contact the 'hit men' via classified ads. The novelty of the story blinded them (student reporters/editors) to the serious implications."
Police to aid ambulance calls

By Les Chodik
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The emergency ambulance service, as provided by the SIU Health Service, will receive temporary dispatch assistance from the Carbondale Police Department after Aug. 1, Samuel E. McCoy, Health Service director, said Wednesday.

McVay met Tuesday with City Manager Carroll Rend and Police Chief George Kennedy, Fire Chief Charles McLaughlin and an administrative coordinator Dennis Morgan to decide where the dispatch station should be relocated.

Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, which has operated the ambulance dispatch station since 1973, notified McVay in May that it would eliminate the station Aug. 1.

The hospital, along with the hospital, will eventually relocate the ambulance dispatch station to the Jackson County Sheriff's Office. New equipment to update the sheriff's present facilities will not be ready until February at the earliest and July, 1977 at the latest, McVay said.

He said Kennedy was "very receptive to the idea of using the police dispatcher for ambulance dispatching during the interim period."

McVay said that he and Fry plan to meet July 7 to finalize the agreement.

McVay said the ambulance dispatch assistance will not put a severe burden on the police dispatcher because "we have on the average only four calls a day."

He said the ambulance services will continue to be stationed at Memorial Hospital and will maintain radio communication with the hospital's trauma network.

McVay said the ambulance service has a verbal agreement that it will receive a state grant of $43,000 to purchase new equipment for a countywide dispatch station to be located at the Sheriff's Office.

At present Memorial Hospital is providing dispatch services for calls in Carbondale and the eastern section of the county. Dispatch service for the western section of the county is provided by the Murphysboro fire and police departments.

McVay said the Federal Communications Commission prohibits ambulance dispatching by fire and police departments in a rural area that has only four ambulance calls a day, "it isn't worth having a separate ambulance dispatch station."

Italy’s Communists seek key jobs

ROME (AP) — The Italian Communist party apparently put aside demands for a role in the national government Wednesday but sought a voice in making government policy and key leadership jobs in parliament.

The party was strengthened by gains in weekend general elections and by a majority in the City of Rome but failed to oust the dominant Christian Democrats nationwide.

Michelotto Aldo Moro’s Christian Democrats renewed their offer for a coalition government with the Socialists to run the country through its worst economic and social crisis in decades. But the Socialists, troubled by a poor showing in the elections, postponed any decision until a meeting Thursday morning.

Communist leader Enrico Berlinguer summoned a party directors’ meeting for Thursday to work out strategy aimed at winning some of the top positions in parliament for his party.

"When the new parliament convenes in July it will have to face the problems of electing chairmen of both houses and of parliamentary commissions," Berlinguer said in an interview with the Communist newspaper Paese Sera.

He branded as discrimination the past assignment of such posts to members of government parties.

Berlinguer said his party “has no anxiety, has no hurry to be in the government.” But he added no future government can afford to ignore Democracy.

"Nothing good can be achieved without a positive relationship with the Communists," Berlinguer said.

The Communists appeared willing to settle for a deal that would keep them out of government but grant them a role in shaping the government.

Giovanni Agnelli, chairman of the Fiat auto firm and Italy's leading private industrialist, called on the Christian Democrats to be flexible in dealing with the Communists.

He said in an interview the Communists must be left out of the government but should be consulted regularly on ways to cope with the economic crisis.

There was no immediate indication whether the Christian Democrats might agree to such a role for the Communists.

Communists are the dominant force in the trade unions. They are also the only party which gained seats in both houses of parliament. The Socialists added 33 seats for a total of 315 in the Senate and 48 new seats in the Chamber of Deputies for a total of 677.

The Christian Democrats kept 135 senators in the 315-seat Senate and dropped from 266 to 263 in the 630-seat Chamber.

All anti-Communist parties lost seats, with the most seats dropped by the Neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement, the most vehemently anti-Communist party. They went from 26 to 13 seats in the Senate and from 56 to 35 in the Chamber.

Italy's leading anti-communist Mediterranean quotidiano daily "La Stampa" has warned that the government of Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti could "disappear into a government of the Socialists, Christian Democrats and the neo-fascist Italian Social Movement "

Peace, tranquility handicaps Ford

By Arthur Hoppe

I dropped into The Ford-for-President Headquarters the other day to see how the campaign was going.

"Good-bye," said the receptionist politely. "May you help me?"

"I'm a newsman," I said. "And I have some questions."

A man walked by backwards on his hands with his feet in his pockets. "That's not Morton Rogers, I say to our campaign manager who turned the receptionist.

"Why don't you ask him?"

"Yes,"

"How's the campaign going?"

"Well, it goes off to a slow start," he said. "And if I time it, I will have a down hill struggle ever since."

"Do you see a crushing defeat?"

"No, it's going to a squeaker at best," he said. "The country is at peace. Prosperity is blossoming forth. The campuses and ghettos are set."

"Peace, prosperity and domestic tranquility are handicaps."

"Certainly. When people have nothing to complain about they get restless and demand a change. The big trouble they're worried about is political. And we're stuck with a candidate who everyone agrees is honest and decent."

"That's a drawback."

"How can he win?"

"How can he can? I am not a crook if no one has accused him of being one."

"And he can't be Carte," he said. "They're as likable and attractive as he is."

"How does that hurt?"

"The whole thing. But we figure that's what must consecrate him North Carolina and Texas. But being President has been his biggest stumbling block."

"And you're concerned about it?"

"We can't trust him. He's a tough opponent. Take it as an opportunity to squelch the Dass Fass and it's patrons for the past couple of weeks. As a fifteen year resident of Carbondale and son of city councilman and his office who claim."

"We've found these things never work, and the backers of the Spirit of 76 Invest in America Plan? who ask, "If it doesn't work, why did the banks run out of bonds?"

"Attorney J. Lewis Wingate said the issue will probably never get to court because no complaint has been filed. He said one way for the plan to be made illegal is if the legislature passed a law prohibiting the scheme."

"Then the citizens of Southern Illinois can go back to trying to grab a dream through the Illinois lottery."

"I could spend $1,000 on lottery tickets and you know damn well that would be a gamble too," said an area man who made about $60 on the scheme."

"It brought us what we all need down here. A little hope in the future," said the man. Sure it sounds corny, but it sure doesn't sound like a criminal."

Festival to star Julie Harris
in show on Emily Dickinson

Southern Illinoisans will be getting a one-time only chance when Julie Harris performs in "The Belle of Amherst" at the Mississippi River Festival Sunday.

"We were very fortunate to arrange for Miss Harris to perform "Belle," said Vicky Holt, concert manager for MRF. "We've been told this will be the only performance of "Belle" in the area."

The production, a one-star show that features Harris in the role of poetess Emily Dickinson, is directed by Charles F. Pullen. Retiree, perhaps best known for his comedy work, is also considered one of the best drama teachers in New York and Los Angeles. He had directed showcase productions in New York, as well as the highly successful revival of "Private Lives," starring Elaine Stritch. "Belle" is his Broadway directorial debut.

Dickinson, considered by many critics Broadway's premier actress, portrays the eccentricity of Emily Dickinson in the surroundings of Dickinson's home in Amherst, Mass.

Guilty plea brings fine
in public aid fraud case

A 22-year-old Carbondale woman pleaded guilty Tuesday to fraudulently obtaining $3,000 in public aid.

In a hearing at the Jackson County Courthouse before Judge Richard Richman, Annie Fullen of 644 E. Searing St. entered a negotiated guilty plea admitting she did not inform county public aid authorities of employment she found that would have made her ineligible for the aid.

Judge Richman ordered that she be put on five years probation and repay the $3,000 in monthly $25 installments.

Pullen pleaded guilty to receiving money from the Jackson County Department of Public Aid between August, 1977 and November, 1978, while she was working for SIU. Pullen's income during this time was reported during the hearing to be $4,300.

The 1976 Loravian Music Festival will be held here June 20-27.

The MRF production crew has had only two weeks to prepare the stage, since "Belle" is a late substitute for the rescheduled Hallbrook production of "Mark Twain Tonight." In spite of the time element, Holt said, "We should have a very faithful reproduction of the set used in the Broadway production."

Emily Dickinson was America's first great poetess. In the production, Harris portrays a woman who, from her mid-30's onward, displayed a uniqueness in her private life that was perhaps intentionally eccentric. Although Dickinson wrote more than 1700 poems in her life, her fame came only after death in 1886.

The title of the play comes from a letter Dickinson wrote to a friend when she was fifteen. "I am growing handsome, very fast indeed," she wrote. "I expect I shall be the Belle of Amherst when I reach my 17th year."

In this role, Harris is given ample opportunity to display talent that has won her four Tony Awards on Broadway.

Her most recent Tony was for her starring role in "The Last of Mrs. Lincoln." Her three other award came for her acting in "I am a Camera," as Jean of Arc in "The Lark," and in "Forty Carats."

"Miss Harris is an outstanding talent," Holt said in anticipation of the production, "and this play is a good vehicle for her skill. Since we have rescheduled the Hallbrook performance of mid-September, this addition means the festival will have two outstanding one-person shows this season. We are very fortunate to have two shows of such quality."

The best description of "Black & Blue" is that it's a first rate, finely polished collection of outtakes, kind of a commercially bent "Jamming With Edward" (a 1977 release).

Which is not to defame outtakes. Look at Dylan's "The Basement Tapes," the Who's "Odd's and Ends" and even the aforementioned "Edward"—all of them can stand up to tough criticism. But outtakes are not a good thing to have after members of a band.

The University Museum and Art Galleries, UMAC, has prepared an exhibition for display throughout the S.U. campus. Even though only one-third of the collection remains in the storage room for loan, there are several prints and originals available. Tapestries, banners, ceramic, photography and several other art forms are occasionally available at the Home Economics Building. The collection concentrates on American contemporary art although works from other periods and nationalities are included.

Annie Newcombe, secretary for Arts and Exhibits, said, "Most people want to borrow colorful two-dimensional items for hanging on walls. There is quite a waiting list for some of the pieces."

The items are not on direct loan to the students. Newcombe said the purpose of UMAC is to use as much of the campus as possible for educational purposes benefiting the scholar and staff.

Newcombe added that the aim of UMAC is experiencing art in greater depth as a normal daily occurrence. "Art, along with Music, is a major department of the university."

Several years ago two photographs from the collection were hung in the Communications Building's walls. Since then, for security reasons, fewer items are placed where the door can be locked or where someone is always present.

Providing locations are reasonably secure, away from extremes of weather, light and temperature, the various departments, offices and other centers may call UMAC for selection of art. A small fee is charged for delivery and installation.

This isn't the worst Stones album; it has much more direction and power than "Goats Head Soup," and tops several of the 60's albums because of their lack of originality. Which, as it happens, is part of the problem here. Several of the cuts here are very disco-oriented and it doesn't seem very reasonable to the instrumentation is fine, but the songs and vocal tracks areatón.

A Review

Even two of the non-disco cuts seem vague. "Melody" sounds like something any tavern band could put together in twenty minutes, and "Memory Most," as pretty as it sounds, has been done before, both by the Stones and others.

Which leaves only three cuts that seem to hold their own. "Fool To Cry" echoes also several other Stones ballads, but there's still more creativity and effective. And "Hand of Fate" and "Gypsy Queen" are the real images of the Stones—the rockier, keener beat, the soaring and spirited voice of Mick Jagger. The public can expect ever Stones album to be "Let It Bleed," after all, they're mortal, too.

Although the Stones have often turned their pieces in for an exchange or lack of display space. The storage room where frames are made and glass is cut, handles all items going out and coming in.

A detailed track of each artwork is kept in the computers in the UMAC office. Until the hiring of a student worker who delinets and installs the pieces, the collection was suffering a standstill from other pressing functions of the gallery.

For some brief history, the University Art Collection, begins with items created within the Illinois Art Projects during 1930's. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the President, released both equipment and works of art to state institutions including SU, when the Federal Art Project ended.

In 1964 the Illinois Legislature funded the SIU Architectural Arts program to provide for purchase of works to be displayed in the then planned and new erected buildings at SU-C and SU-E.

"The activism of the 60s has become the common sense of the 70s" was a slogan used by an ex-radical activist to help him gain a U.S. Senate seat. He lost.

In the basement of the Student Christian Foundation on the corner of Grand street and Illinois avenue is a group that subscribes to that slogan. They're winning.

Aeon, a non-profit, tax-exempt corporation founded in 1973 (largely by the 1960 activists who helped start Synergy), provides social services, personal growth and problem solving experiences. What might have been considered a radical alternative at the time of the "60s" is now a recognized slogan. They're Aeon, a non-profit, operated by trained professionals for anyone in need.

Aeon also plans to use methods including aerobics, bioenergetics, gestalt body awareness and yoga. Other programs include music, art and movement for women, personal growth and fantasy therapy, bioenergetics workshop and a frisbee group, the purpose of which is to use the flying disc as a tool for integrating mind, body and fun.

Recently Aeon received a $10,000 grant from the Public Health Trust Fund of the Attorney General of Illinois. For their Peer Counselor Training Program, it will help to train persons from the ages of 15-21 in counseling and providing support for their friends. The students, from Benton, Herrin, and Christopher, are being trained in areas where truancy and dropout rates are rising.

"Approximately one-half of our staff energy goes to adults programs," said Tim Weber, co-founder of Aeon, "and the other half to juvenile programs." The Aeon juvenile program provides counseling for individuals, recreation, a big brother-big sister program (for children who have lost or have never had a parent), employment assistance and a system of general social work in the child's interest. Besides their several temporary programs, Aeon maintains an individual counseling service operated by trained professionals for anyone in need.

The Museum and Art Galleries Association has a Gift Shop located in the north end of Famer Hall, beginning its fourth week of operation and is "doing well considering it just opened," said manager Sally Timpe.

MAGA promotes programs for the University Museum and its art galleries, such as Mitchell Art Gallery and the North Gallery, which consists of two new galleries next to the gift shop. The new University Museum will also be located in the north end of Farmer Hall.

According to Timpe the money from the gift shop will go back into projects that MAGA decides to do.

The gift shop, staffed by volunteers from receipt of sales to the sale, will probably be a main source of revenue outside North Gallery in Farmer Hall. The gift shop is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Sen. Richard Schweiker, D-Pa., who headed the committee's investigation, said other "interesting leads" had been left of the 160-page report in order not to prejudice further investigation.

The report said that "we hope to be able to provide interesting and reasonably priced objects from all parts of the world many of which are handcrafted and authentic reproductions of museum pieces."

Mr. Moore said many of the jewelry pieces for sale are reproductions of jewelry in leading American museums. The reproductions are of really good quality, he continued, "and enable people to enjoy in their own homes things that only museums now possess."

"From the one point of view, MAGA is searching for new importers to "find the annually interesting, inexpensive items that students and faculty would like," he said.

One of the first projects of MAGA, the daily report of sales on the new gift shop, will probably be a major source of revenue outside North Gallery in Farmer Hall. The gift shop is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Schweiker accused the CIA and FBI of "a cover-up" and "there is no longer any reason to have faith in the Warren Commission's picture of the Kennedy assassination."

But committee chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said that "whether there was a conspiracy or not has not yet been determined" and added that it was an indication of a full-scale reopening of the case and within weeks issued a report concluding that Oswald was the sole assassin.

The report said that senior government officials "wanted the investigation completed promptly and in a "conspiracy rumors dispelled." According to the report, within 15 hours of Kennedy's death, the FBI had narrowed the focus of its investigation to Oswald alone and in a "temporary, special intelligence committee which has now gone out of existence."

Noting the controversy which has surrounded the Kennedy assassination for more than 12 years, the committee said "regrettably, this report will not put the matter to rest."

The panel recommended that investigation be continued by the new, permanent Senate intelligence committee. "The assassination report was the last of a number of temporary, special intelligence committees which has now gone out of existence."

Trio demands hearing on drug charge

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)—Three Illinois residents were held on bonds up to $250,000 Wednesday after demanding hearings on charges of making an illicit drug.

Authorities said the trio were arrested in a raid Tuesday night that netted enough chemicals to make nearly $5 million worth of PCP, an hallucinogenic animal tranquilizer.

James Tatun, 43, of River Forest, Angela Menard, 34, of Elmwood Park, and 25-year-old Robert Villareal of Chicago, all were charged with making the drug.

The hearings were scheduled for July 2.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Wendel Miles set Tatum's bond at $250,000 while the others charged were set at $50,000.

Tatum is a federal drug Enforcement Administration agent from Chicago, the raid near Covert capped a six-month search into Tatun's large chemical purchases. He identified Tatum as secretary-treasurer of Universal Pool Products, a firm that makes chemical products for use in swimming pools.

Raiding agents took $3,000 cash found at Villareal's home, who they said was apparently the buyer.

Tatum was charged after January 24th.

Autopsy report on student withheld until inquest

The results of an autopsy report on the death of an SIU student, Sonja Lynn Moffett, whose nude and decomposed body was discovered in Chicago Saturday will not be released until an inquest is held in about a month, according to Ber gard Gavin of the Cook County Coroner's Office.

Moffett's body was discovered by a child in a South Side Chicago alley her father reported her missing June 13.

Sgt. William Borrezeck of the Chicago Police Dept. said there are no suspects in what he termed a probable murder.

Visitation for Moffett will be held Thursday evening at the Day-Sash Funeral Home in Chicago. Funeral services will be held Friday morning at Our Lady of Peace Catholic Church, with burial at St. Mary's Catholic Cemetery.

One day economic workshop to help businesses set goals

By Dan Hofmann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Rodney P. Dempsey, the man responsible for the total coordination of economic growth in Carbondale, said Wednesday that local businessmen should set the economic development goals for the community.

Dempsey, the newly appointed executive vice-president of the Greater Carbondale Area Chamber of Commerce, outlined a day long economic development workshop that will be held Monday. At 9 a.m. at the Ramada Inn in Carbondale. The workshop will help local businessmen determine what their goals are, said Dempsey.

"The workshop will attempt to determine why we haven't had more economic growth. There are some things that we have that will attract businesses to the area. We must identify them and choose a path for economic development," said Dempsey.

He said that local businessmen must find the assets and liabilities that would affect a business's locating in the area.

"My style of management is to tell you what you want to do," said Dempsey. He said if the businesses set attainable goals then he can act as the catalyst and promoter in achieving their goals and bringing new businesses to Carbondale.

Dempsey said that the City of Carbondale, the Chamber of Commerce, the Carbondale Industrial Corporation and the Carbondale Business and Industrial Development Association all have a financial stake in the program for economic growth.

"I want to give the people who have invested in the program a voice in the direction the program is going to take. I want to serve as a vehicle to help reach their goals without impeding my goals on them," said Dempsey.

Dempsey has invited development experts from across the state to attend the workshop. He said he will use a rifle-scope approach in identifying the kinds of businesses that should be brought to Carbondale. "We want to fine-tune in on company that would be right for Carbondale and that Carbondale would be right for," said Dempsey.

Dempsey said he didn't think Carbondale need import anymore service-oriented businesses. "That's just cutting the pie into thinner slices. They wouldn't bring new money into the community, but add to the competition for the dollar already in the community."

"We want to bring in manufacturing companies that will sell 99 per cent of their products outside the Carbondale area. The paycheck and salaries that these companies pay will bring new money into the community," said Dempsey.

He said students could provide an abundance of intelligent and highly capable employees while the cultural aspects of the University would also be appealing to industry.

He said Carbondale's close proximity to many recreational areas is a plus for the town as is its size. "Carbondale's small enough for a person to have an individual identity and large enough for services, good shopping and fine medical facilities."

"It's not a boom town. Largely because of the students," said Dempsey.

Student Center adds line of healthful foods

By Joan Pearlman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

If SIU students don't eat more healthful foods, it won't be because Student Center officials haven't made them available.

Various kinds of fish, poultry and side dishes of beans and rice are some of the new items being featured on the Student Center menu this summer to fill the nutrition gap left by hamburgers and fries.

"We are trying to switch our menu to more healthful foods," Archie Griffin, Student Center business manager said. So far only one meatless dish is featured daily, but by fall Griffin expects the Center to be in full swing with a much larger menu.

The possibility of installing a fish and chips counter in the cafeteria and a delicatessen outside the Big Muddy Room has been discussed by Student Center officials, Griffin said. "No decision has been made yet, but one that goes as far as to investigate the cost of the equipment," he added.

The new line of food in the Student Center is part of the human lifetyle experiment being launched by the Health Service. The aim of the program is to get students into a regular pattern of eating well, exercising, cutting down on stress and tuning into their natural surroundings.

The high cost of natural ingredients presents a problem in the new program Griffin said. The Student Center does not want to raise its prices, so they are in the process of trying to find a local outlet where they can buy the ingredients.

Griffin said the Student Center also plans to conduct a survey this fall to find out where the students are during meal times and what type of food they want.

If the survey shows that students don't use the Student Center cafeteria because it is too far from where they live, center officials are considering putting "University service stations" in various buildings on campus. Griffin said these stations would not mean more vending machines but would offer "personal service."

Griffin said none of the regular items will be dropped from the menu. "We only change what is not selling," he commented.
Carbondale: mecca for Dutch bikers

By Scott Bursalis
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Carbondale has never known for its tourist attractions, but this summer it's a hot spot on the Bikecentennial Trail which crosses the United States. The Carbondale Bike Inn located at Wilson Hall, is considered one of the most comfortable stops on the 4,300 mile trail.

Wilson Hall was an especially welcome stop for Finley van Slooten who and his blonde wife, Anda, arrived at the Korvers, have spent the last two nights in Carbondale resting up.

This is the final stop for Slooten since she is going to sell her bike and get off the trail.

Slooten said that she didn't train enough for the rigorous trail and it was no longer any fun. While Slooten is getting off at Carbondale, her husband, the Korvers, are pushing on to the trail's conclusion in Oregon.

The Holland trio started their journey at Williamsburg, Va., and have been riding for the past four years. The Korvers consider the national trail well worth the trip, although they suffered through rain and the rugged Appalachian Mountains during the first part of the journey.

Rob explained that biking in the United States is a bit different than in Europe and Holland. He and his wife have toured through Portugal, Ireland, and much of the United States.

"It's like this, in Europe there are so many bike paths, but here you have to go along with the traffic," Rob explained while eating breakfast Wednesday morning. Rob assured the Korvers have a fast food chain.

Despite the competition with four-wheeled vehicles, the trio said they haven't been run off the road. Rob said he wishes some of the drivers on country roads would look after their cars, alike.

Before the trip, all their friends were telling them what to watch out for in America, but most of their dark predictions haven't worked out.

"The Americans all told us to watch out for the bad guys," Rob said, but added that all their contacts have been very friendly. The trio has spent many nights in private homes along the trail.

Many of the bikers told them to watch out in "redneck" country in Eastern Kentucky. So when a truck stopped them and asked what they were doing, they were apprehensive. Their fears were unfounded. When the driver found out what they were doing, he gave them a ride for 80 miles.

Rob said people were always stopping to ask where they were going. "One man stopped his car, asked 'where are you going?' When we told him, he said 'that's really something. When he left he said 'God Bless You,'" Rob added with a smile.

So far the Korvers haven't many complaints. They were disappointed when a guide book for the trail wasn't published before they started. They also said that while traveling was cheap in the country, it got to be plenty expensive in the cities.

The Korvers are really looking forward to the West, and the joy through the Rocky Mountains doesn't worry them.

Anda said bikers have told them the Carbondale bike-inn.

Pate's wife predicts win for husband

OAK BROOK, III. (AP) - It may not be the most of what it seems to install him the favorite to win the Western Open this week in suburban Oak Brook, U.S. Open, but not to Soozi, his cute blonde wife.

"He hasn't had any letdown. He's all pumped up for this tournament. He says he's ready to win. He's my favorite, and I think he'll do it," Soozi said.

Pate, 22, became the first tour rookie to win the U.S. Open Sunday since Jack Nicklaus in 1961. Pate is right back to win the Western is bucking great expectations.

Defending champion Hale Irwin is the man most think is the one to beat when a field of 81 will tee off Thursday. Irwin decided to go back to the West as early as last week.

"He has the confidence, the strength and the know how to do that," Soozi said.

Pate, second in the Western Open to Lanny Wadkins last year and the 1977 NCAA amateur title winner, is one of the favorites to win the Western Open this week.

Soozi, a native of Des Moines, Iowa, married Pate in 1974 at Desert Inn. Since then, Soozi has had her eyes on a Western Open win, too. She has watched in frustration as Pate has struggled to make progress in his career.

"I've been watching him, and watching him struggle," Soozi said. "It's been hard for me." But now, Soozi said, the time has come. She's going to sell her bike and get off the trail.

Cleaning up her bike for a quick sale is Dutch biker Jamie van Slooten. Lack of training and the Appalachian Mountains helped her decide to discontinue her journey on the Bike-centennial trail. Slooten, key from the sides will help continue her journey through America via bus.

Some of baseball's finest players refused to sign their contracts, choosing instead to play out their options and deal for themselves next winter. A good number of the players happened to be employees of Finley and having been burned once with Hunter, can you blame the A's owner for trying to get something for his players without letting them fly the coop for free?

So Finley, the owner of the Oakland A's, bought his favorite right-handed pitcher, Dave Stieb, from the Blue Jays.

The receipts, he said, would be used to buy other players, ostensibly free agents like Bob Griese, Rick Butkus, Jim Plunkett, and Fred Lynn, all of whom are playing out their options.

"Who's to say the man isn't sincere?" Certainly, with $3.5 million to play with, Finley could purchase some of the talent that is sure to be floating around when the free-agent tree begins shedding its fruit.

One of the interesting sidelights to this whole affair was the Yankees' willingness to part with $1.5 million for Blue. That price would have gone to Finley and then New York would still be responsible for Vida's ample salary.

Blue and Messersmith are certainly comparable. Yet, when New York came to close to signing Messersmith, the deal fell through due to Visa's ample salary and other considerations—came to only about $1 million.

Kuhn-Finley fight spices sports world

NEW YORK (AP) — It is an exceedingly strange set of circumstances that has sent Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and owner Charles O. Finley into a rematch in baseball's version of the heavyweight championship.

These two have tangled before.

Kuhn scored a knockout over the Oakland boss in the 1973 World Series when he ordered suspended infielder Rollie Fingers and sent Oakland to the World Series for the first time in their history.

Last summer, Finley had Kuhn on the ropes, leading a palace revolt that came within an eyelash of costing the commissioner his job. Bowie got off the deck to win a decisive decision in that one.

This time, though, Finley may have the law in his corner. Precedent is on the side of the A's owner. Finley has in his corner the formality of signing a contract, Meine and the law in his corner.

They went through the entire 1975 season without the formality of signing a contract.

And that meant, according to Seitz, that the A's had played out their options and were not free agents. The decision can be amended only by the commissioner. The A's owner is the one to say who is free and who is not.

"It is a decision as devastating as Kuhn's order voiding Oakland's sale of three stars for $3.5 million could have made allies of Finley and Miller," Edwin D. Willis, president of the Major League Players Association, said.

The auction place was open again after a decision was made and a close of a couple of close calls, officially with the New York Yankees, Messersmith signed with Atlanta.

Now, all bets are off. A fistful of grass and the weather isn't so humid. If nothing else comes out of the trip, the Korvers say their picture of the United States has been enhanced.

Rob said, "The picture of America you get in Holland is of suburbia, leisure, tourism, crime and violence."

Since the Bikecentennial trail goes through miles of private lands, few riders such as the Korvers say they are being in contact with a more relaxed, rural life.

While the Korvers push on to the West and Oregon, Slooten is trying to sell her bike while staying at Wilson Hall. For her part, her, her vacation, she is planning to take a bus tour of the states. She has planned hitchhike, but was talked out of it.

Pate's wife predicted a win for husband.
