The Daily Egyptian, May 11, 1968

Daily Egyptian Staff

Follow this and additional works at: http://opensiuc.lib.siu.edu/de_May1968
Volume 49, Issue 144

Recommended Citation

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Daily Egyptian 1968 at OpenSIUC. It has been accepted for inclusion in May 1968 by an authorized administrator of OpenSIUC. For more information, please contact opensiuc@lib.siu.edu.
Carl Milles:

Splendor Is The Form

Photo by Ken Winn of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat

Carl Milles' "The Meeting of the Waters Fountain" at the Aloe Plaza in St. Louis. The fountain group is located in front of Union Station on Market Street.
"Angel With A Flute": On the lower terrace of Millesgarden in Stockholm, Sweden, this figure is one of a large group of sculptured "angel musicians."

Landmark Artist

For Two Continents
small group of St. Louis art enthusiasts, was completed in 1940. Milles died in 1955.

His work had been collected and acquired by the Cranbrook Academy Foundation in 1934. It had always been the artist’s wish, however, that it should be returned to his native Sweden. The collection was bought by the Swedish Government, and handed over to a committee in 1948. A state-supported committee now manages Millesgarden, and the museum is the property of the Swedish nation.

Millesgarden is actually the joint creation of the sculptor and his brother, the architect Evert Milles. As a whole, Millesgarden has taken five decades to complete, from the time when the sculptor had his home and studio on the island until the present.

In its present form, Millesgarden consists of two main parts: The upper, older part with its terraces, courtyards and flights of steps, and the newer part, situated further down on the edge of the sea. The lower terrace, which has several of the artist’s most important works, is connected with the upper part by large flights of granite steps. Between the two main terraces lies a smaller one where a small shrine marks the last resting place of Carl Milles.

The “middle terrace” also contains, in honor of Milles’ Austrian-born wife, the painter Olga Graner, an area called “Little Austria.” “Little Austria” contains works which give it a distinctively Southern European atmosphere.

On the main terraces are pools surrounded by many replicas of Milles’ works which now grace several American cities. Figures from the fountain in the Metropolitan Museum in New York, a replica of the “St. Martin Monument” in Kansas City, Kan., and figures from “The Fountain of Faith” in Washington, D.C. are displayed. Also located in the garden grounds is the big studio which now houses Milles’ collection of classical sculptures.

Millesgarden is today a favorite sightseeing area for Swedes and foreign visitors. The garden also has a very special value as a museum in that there is preserved there a large collection of fragments of historical Swedish architecture which Milles saved from destruction.
Most Americans feel they know something about Canada. They know Canada had a world's fair last year, they know that nearly all good hockey players come from there, and they know that Canadians look, talk, and act pretty much like Americans. Many Americans are even aware that there is a part of Canada where French is spoken, but few understand the Canadian government and how it is dealing with those problems. A disturbing fact is that Americans know so little about Canadian government that many are not sure what the city is the national capital.

In recent years, Americans have been puzzled and surprised by reports of a new phenomenon—Quebec nationalism. Probably, most Americans have thought of this as rather absurd, something like Basque nationalism or Puerto Rican nationalism. Even when President De Gaulle visited Quebec last year and made himself ridiculous with his democratic gestures, no call for a free Quebec, few Americans understood the full implications.

In view of this almost boundless ignorance of our friendly neighbor to the north, most Americans would benefit greatly from a careful reading of Dustyjacket, by David E. Conrad. In his book, the author Ed M. Corbett, a former professor of French at the University of Pennsylvania, has written a thoughtfully comprehensive and nearly exhaustive study of the problems presented by Quebec to Canada. It is clear that he has studied extensively the standard sources for such a work—newspapers, books, pamphlets, government documents—a major part of what he has written comes from his own perceptive observation and wide knowledge of Quebec.

The problems of Quebec, like most human problems, have their origins in history. The French-speaking people of Canada still live in the shadow of the conquest of their ancestors by British and American colonial armies in the 1750's. French Canadians have struggled since then to maintain their respect, their identity, and, symbolically, their language.

For many years they hoped, because of their Catholic religion and perhaps because of their Latin blood in Canada, that the French-Canadian civilization would gradually assimilate itself to English-speaking Canada. Author Ed M. Corbett, a former professor of French at the University of Pennsylvania, has written articulate, comprehensive, and nearly exhaustive studies of the problems presented by Quebec to Canada. It is clear that he has studied extensively the standard sources for such a work—newspapers, books, pamphlets, government documents—a major part of what he has written comes from his own perceptive observation and wide knowledge of Quebec.

For many years they hoped, because of their Catholic religion and perhaps because of their Latin blood in Canada, that the French-Canadian civilization would gradually assimilate itself to English-speaking Canada. Author Ed M. Corbett, a former professor of French at the University of Pennsylvania, has written articulate, comprehensive, and nearly exhaustive studies of the problems presented by Quebec to Canada. It is clear that he has studied extensively the standard sources for such a work—newspapers, books, pamphlets, government documents—a major part of what he has written comes from his own perceptive observation and wide knowledge of Quebec.

The French words now find themselves learning French.

Corbett, an authority on French Quebec, believes that the dialect is not as bad as purported, and that it sounds to most Frenchmen like a provincial dialect of their own country. He also points out that Quebec is the leading center of French culture in the world outside of France.

Reviewed by David E. Conrad

Individually, nearly every French Canadian, according to Corbett, desires and increasingly demands a Canada in which he no longer feels like a foreigner in his own country. He demands that his rights to speak French, to have equal economic opportunities, and to conserve his cultural heritage be guaranteed from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

Corbett makes some interesting but possible limited conclusions about the reaction of English Canadians to the "fact" of Quebec. Many English Canadians and New Canadians (other immigrant groups, most of whom have adopted English) are willing to make concessions to French Canadian demands, especially in the area of bilingualism, but the author feels that significant numbers of English Canadians find it impossible to shake off the "essential bilinguals" they have always had to French Canadian. The memory of the Conquest is as soul-satisfying to them as it is painful to the French Canadians, especially in the prairie provinces the reaction "To Hell with Quebec!" comes spontaneously to the lips of Canadians.

Corbett feels the main obstacle to the solution of the Quebec question will be English Canadian acceptance of the idea of a dual majority. He admits he does not know whether they will accept it or not. He thinks that if they do not, Quebec will separate.

One question which Corbett does not answer, and perhaps it is outside the pale of his book, is what would happen if Quebec elects to leave the Confederation? Would this be permitted by the national government? Or could it lead to a civil war or some lesser type of economic and social conflict? Corbett does not think many Quebecers want secession because they are convinced it would mean lower standards of living for them, but he sincerely believes they will take this drastic step eventually if they have to.

Quebec Confronts Canada is a significant book. Each page is packed with important facts and ideas. Reading it will open the door to a whole new area of knowledge for many Americans. It is not an easy book to read or comprehend, but it is extremely worthwhile.
Not Without Thy Wondrous Glory

Essays in Illinois History (In honor of the University's Bicentennial), Edited by Donald F. Tingley, Southern Illinois University Press, 1966, pp. 136

This volume is a Postscript consisting of seven essays soundly researched and conscientiously written by members of the History-Department of Eastern Illinois University. The first of these essays, "Anti-Intellectualism on the Illinois Frontier," stresses the pioneers' emphasis upon economic survival, the wilderness was tough and must be conquered and exploited before it would yield a better day. Unfortunately, education was neglected. Intellectually were often thought to be James Hall, of literary fame, removed from Illinois. In Cincinnati, where the intellectual climate was better, The distinguished Edward Colles returned East to Philadelphia, Lawren M. Hammond's essay, "Lincoln's Particular Friend," is better than the typical superficial review. Here one meets Allan Pinkerton, the great Chicago detective, and Ward Hill Lamon, who became Marshal of the District of Columbia, April 1861. For four years, with tenacious devotion, Lamon would guard the life of the President, if not happily, Lamon was not in Washington until April 1865. He was sent by President Lincoln on a special mission to Richmond, and relationship of characters and events

Nell Thorton's essay, "John P. Altgeld: Promoter of Higher Education in Illinois," emphasized an important contribution to state-supported education in Illinois. Too often Altgeld is considered only in the light of his famous pardons and back with fellow Democrat President Cleveland, Altgeld's early years had been hard. He accepted adversity as a challenge. He was quick to see the advantages to the people of public universities. He accepted the private colleges and universities but did not believe these institutions could reach the masses. He recognized that the state universities in Illinois were not keeping pace with some of the neighboring states. He regretted the fact that the University of Illinois was not even well known in Illinois. Something was done. By 1895 the University's budgetary position was substantially improved. Altgeld also insisted upon greater state support for the schools at Normal and at Carbon

Reviewed by William A. Pitkin

Robert E. Hennings discusses "Harold Ickes and Hiram Johnson in the Presidential Primary of 1924." This account highlights the well-known limitations of the Californian. However, this piece is a careful study of political cross-currents and loyalties. The last in the series is "Unemployment in Illinois during the Great Depression," which should be required reading for those who may believe that our post-World War II prosperity has always been with us, Professor Tingley's volume is an excellent contribution to the literature of the Illinois Sesquicentennial Celebration.

The Price -- A Play Built On The Past

Discussion of Ibsen's influence on Arthur Miller have been so fashionable recently that one hesitates to offer one more, critical comment on so shopworn a bromide. However, if we assume that truth is the best law for being obvious, Ibsen's methods as a dramatist can shed light on the technique and structure of Miller's most recent play, The Price.

Henrik Ibsen was dedicated to the idea that linear plot development (i.e., characters enter at a certain place and period in time, participate in a progressive series of events, and end up at a further point) is artificial and restrictive and dramatic construction because the form demands that, except for minor exposition, all action take place in the present—at least whatever "present" the playwright chooses to give his characters.

That method, Ibsen believed, is false not only to the way man experiences time but to the complex ways in which Chicago's present-day race-representative behavior; T. S. Elliot (in a different context) used the phrase "the present moment being empty." Ibsen instilled on making actions and relationships in the past a domino dramatic force for his presentation of characters and events in the present.

Thus, a play like Ghosts gains its power from regressive, not progressive, dramatic incidents, from hearing revelations about the past instead of present on-stage developments.

Yet Ibsen made the past and the present partners; all action which proceeds before the audience is motivated by revelations about the past.

The trick is to keep the action moving on two planes of temporality at once. The playwright must, as in A Doll's House, continue action in the

Reviewed by Paul J. Hurley

in total recall of events which are over but hardly done with.

In The Price, however, nothing of dramatic interest concerns the present; everything resides in the past. No thematic parallel is considered.

In Miller's new play, a man and his wife (Vic and Esther Fran) come to the upper floor of a building about to be torn down in order to sell the furniture which had once belonged to Vic's father.

An appraiser who intends to buy the furniture shows up; he and Vic tuble about the value of the old furniture (the past), but the appraiser, who notifies everyone that he is 89 years of age, has even more reason to dwell on the past.

Vic's brother, Walter, arrives; the two men have not seen each other in several years so nothing more normal than reminiscences of things past.

Vic is fifty-ish and an ill-paid policeman (he had left college to help support his father after the "crash of 29"). Walter went off to medical school and is now a wealthy, successful surgeon.

Therein lies the dramatically speaking, entirely a product of continuous revelations about incidents in the brothers' past, about motives and reasons for actions in the past, about past causes for present resentments, about past misunderstandings that the present can not resolve.

Miller fails—or refuses—to allow the past its rightful power; his play is only revelation of the past.

In short, the play's technique is dramatically spurious: under the guise of showing us how the past creates the present, how the dancer is not separated from the dance, Miller simply says, "Look, this is what happened! An audience can only react, "Oh, believe me. But what has that to do with today and tomorrow?"

Ibsen made it clear that Oswald would die and that Nora would leave her doll's house, that the dead past refuses to bury its dead. But Arthur Miller seems uncertain that the past has a continuing meaning or influence on our lives.

The point is perfectly acceptable philosophically and dramatically—except that Miller chose to offer his play as a comment on present and past.

Clearly, nothing prevented him from placing his drama in the 1930's and offering the conflict between Victor and Walter in immediate, "present" terms.

Arthur Miller chooses, in The Price, to say that what we are is what we were, that last year is not separate from this year, that Tuesday really is next Wednesday.

I accept his conclusion, but it's an abstraction. The job drama faces, like all literature, is to tell us in specific, human terms just what aberrations mean to us as individuals, how the general becomes concrete reality. Miller often shows that he knows the secret, but in The Price he fails to share it with us.
Academic Freedom

By Victor Bryant

Member of the Consolidated University Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina.

(a university exists not only for imparting knowledge so as to quicken the intelligence and imagination of the young, but also for the truth. In addition it must insist upon the extension of the limits of knowledge by a relentless search for truth. The heart of any university is its faculty. The faculty must be free to seek and teach the truth it must follow that it is its obligation to differentiate the truth from the false and the false from the fallacious, regardless of how firmly entrenched it may be. The faculty has no right to seek the comfort and complaisance of silence through fear of opposition or persecution.

Let us now examine some of the rights of academic freedom as they pertain to the student. Students in our universities have the right to expect excellence in the caliber of faculty and the right to be protected by the highest standards of integrity in the quality of their instruction.

Under no circumstances should a student be barred from attending a course or institution on a particular institution on the basis of his race.

Freedom to teach and freedom to learn are inseparable facets of academic freedom. A professor in the classroom and in conference should be free to encourage free discussion, Inquiry and the exchange of ideas. In the academic community the students should be encouraged to develop the ability to form critical judgments and to engage in a sustained and independent effort towards the development of knowledge.

However, they must be responsible for the learning of any course for which they are enrolled.

Students and student organizations should be free to discuss and investigate all questions of interest. They must be free to form voluntary associations and to assign them as research projects.

In the first place, they must be free to express in writing or orally any questions they may have on the basis of any course of study for which they are enrolled.

Students and faculty members have attempted to take over the fuctions of the trustees and the administration. Students and faculty members may conclude that the trustees and the administration are guilty of inertia or they may lose confidence in their decisions. For these and other reasons they may deliberately choose to invade and take over the areas of operation of the other groups. Under these circumstances should there be restraints upon the students or faculty members who have decided to operate in areas customarily reserved for others?

Neither student nor faculty member shall attempt to take over the budgetary powers of the university. In advance of the beginning of the school year the university administrative authorities are advised the amount of money available for operating the university. These amounts usually bear a close relationship to carefully thought out budgetary requests. There has to be some group to study and evaluate the total needs of the university and the comparative needs of the various departments.

Most students come to a university with several purposes in mind: appreciative of the sacrifices, often cronic, made by their parents in order to furnish them an education. They are eager to study and attend classes. They have every right to expect that they will not be deprived of these rights by a human barricade at the classroom door or a boycott by protesting students which makes holding classes an impossibility. Nor should they expect to find the classroom boycotted by a faculty member who, while drawing a salary from the university, prefers protesting to teaching.

A student has no right to expect that his absence from the classroom while being protested, will not be held against him. He must not fail to expect a teacher to pass him as proficient in a course when, by reason of outside activities he has not taken the course adequate preparation.

Neither faculty members nor students should arbitrarily attempt to take over the activities of the policy-making groups of the university unless they know they can do a better job. Decorum, sound and intelligent thinking, high, self-respect and a proper view to characterize the conduct of any student or faculty member when he feels tempted to perform voluntarily duties assigned to others.

Finally I would observe that a scrupulous respect for the rights of others constitutes the best means of preserving one's own rights.

A university exists not only for imparting knowledge so as to quicken the intelligence and imagination of the young, but also for the truth. In addition it must insist upon the extension of the limits of knowledge by a relentless search for truth. The heart of any university is its faculty. The faculty must be free to seek and teach the truth it must follow that it is its obligation to differentiate the truth from the false and the false from the fallacious, regardless of how firmly entrenched it may be. The faculty has no right to seek the comfort and complaisance of silence through fear of opposition or persecution.

Let us now examine some of the rights of academic freedom as they pertain to the student. Students in our universities have the right to expect excellence in the caliber of faculty and the right to be protected by the highest standards of integrity in the quality of their instruction.

Under no circumstances should a student be barred from attending a course or institution on a particular institution on the basis of his race.

Freedom to teach and freedom to learn are inseparable facets of academic freedom. A professor in the classroom and in conference should be free to encourage free discussion, Inquiry and the exchange of ideas. In the academic community the students should be encouraged to develop the ability to form critical judgments and to engage in a sustained and independent effort towards the development of knowledge.

However, they must be responsible for the learning of any course for which they are enrolled.

Students and student organizations should be free to discuss and investigate all questions of interest. They must be free to form voluntary associations and to assign them as research projects.

In the first place, they must be free to express in writing or orally any questions they may have on the basis of any course of study for which they are enrolled.

Students and faculty members have attempted to take over the fuctions of the trustees and the administration. Students and faculty members may conclude that the trustees and the administration are guilty of inertia or they may lose confidence in their decisions. For these and other reasons they may deliberately choose to invade and take over the areas of operation of the other groups. Under these circumstances should there be restraints upon the students or faculty members who have decided to operate in areas customarily reserved for others?

Neither student nor faculty member shall attempt to take over the budgetary powers of the university. In advance of the beginning of the school year the university administrative authorities are advised the amount of money available for operating the university. These amounts usually bear a close relationship to carefully thought out budgetary requests. There has to be some group to study and evaluate the total needs of the university and the comparative needs of the various departments.

Most students come to a university with several purposes in mind: appreciative of the sacrifices, often cronic, made by their parents in order to furnish them an education. They are eager to study and attend classes. They have every right to expect that they will not be deprived of these rights by a human barricade at the classroom door or a boycott by protesting students which makes holding classes an impossibility. Nor should they expect to find the classroom boycotted by a faculty member who, while drawing a salary from the university, prefers protesting to teaching.

A student has no right to expect that his absence from the classroom while being protested, will not be held against him. He must not fail to expect a teacher to pass him as proficient in a course when, by reason of outside activities he has not taken the course adequate preparation.

Neither faculty members nor students should arbitrarily attempt to take over the activities of the policy-making groups of the university unless they know they can do a better job. Decorum, sound and intelligent thinking, high, self-respect and a proper view to characterize the conduct of any student or faculty member when he feels tempted to perform voluntarily duties assigned to others.

Finally I would observe that a scrupulous respect for the rights of others constitutes the best means of preserving one's own rights.
The famed metropolis that is London, England, would seem, at first mention, to have relatively little in common with Carbondale, Illinois. There is a definite relationship between the two, however, as it has been formed through the personage of Fredda Brilliant, internationally-known sculptress.

Miss Brilliant, the wife of Herbert Marshall, distinguished visiting professor at SIU, has created the "bond" between the British capital and the home of SIU. And the bond has been created through art, the international language.

Her art, which has won her acclaim in such nations as India, Australia, and the Soviet Union, has taken on a new dimension in London. On May 17 the unveiling of her monumental statue of Mahatma Gandhi will be held in London’s Tavistock Square. Participating in the event will be such distinguished individuals as British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and the Archbishop of Canterbury.

The unveiling of the statue, a memorial to Gandhi and in testimony to Indo-British friendship, will climax over 16 years of intensive work and study for the artist. The project had its beginnings through the efforts of a group of eminent British philanthropists to erect a memorial to the great Indian leader.

The group, the Mahatma Gandhi Memorial Committee, chose Miss Brilliant to be the memorial’s sculptress; a selection based not only on her wide fame as an artist, but also because of her past work on statues of Indian leaders, including those of the late Jawaharlal Nehru and Krishna Menon. She had visited India many times, and her husband, who knew Gandhi personally, did the official Indian government documentary film on Gandhi’s life. For Miss Brilliant, the selection came as a most welcome opportunity.

"I had always been fascinated by Gandhi," Miss Brilliant said recently in Carbondale, prior to her departure for London. "He was a man with a very placid face, yet the fire, the philosopher, were just beneath the surface."

She prepared for her task by reading "a large number" of books on the Indian leader. Working from over a hundred photographs of Gandhi, she prepared models of her plans, and was commissioned for the final monument in 1964. The actual work on the statue took over nine months—nine months of long days spent in her London studio. The finished work, in bronze, is one which depicts the Indian leader "contemplating his nation’s future." Standing over nine feet high, it is mounted on a base of English Portland stone, and sits on a special high pedestal.

"I want it to be for the future," Miss Brilliant said. "I want people in the future to know not only what Gandhi looked like, but also to know what he was like. I’m pleased with what I have achieved, but I’m afraid I can’t see the forest for all the trees after such a long period of work."

The "forest" should meet the expectations of its British viewers. The unique personality of Mahatma Gandhi should make its presence felt in London’s Tavistock Square.
Poor Cow: Visual Diary Of A Futile Existence

By Phil Buroff

Carol White and Terence Stamp

Televising Highlights

TODAY
The Singers spotlight Arena Franklin and Gloria Loring in a musical special aired 10:30 p.m., Ch. 3.

SUNDAY
On Meet the Press, Louis Harris, director of the Harris Survey, and Richard Scammron, director of the Election Research Center, will discuss public opinion and polling. Noon, Ch. 6.

A close look at the 500-year-old Vienna Choir Boys will be presented on this special, 3 p.m., Ch. 3.

WEDNESDAY
Arthur Hill and Barbara Del Greco star in a soap opera about the sounds of silence in "Secrets," 8:30 p.m., Ch. 12.

FRIDAY
"Man, Beast and the Land" is presented as a study in the importance and function of the balance of nature. 6:30 p.m., Ch. 6.
Chicagoland Elected by Grant Group

Philip DeSang, Chicago area businessman and philanthropist, has been elected to the board of directors of the Ulster County Association, which has headquarters at Morris Library.

A resident of River Forest and a collector of historical art and literature, Sang has made several contributions to Morris Library, including a collection of 300 original letters and documents of Civil War significance. He was awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters Degree by SIU in 1963.

At the Grant Association's recent board meeting other directors who were re-elected to three-year terms are Bruce Anderson, Philip Sang, and Carol Whitman, SIU directors of Humane Letters Degree by D.D. War signification. He was to three-year terms are Bruce Anderson, Philip Sang, and Carol Whitman, SIU directors of Humane Letters Degree by D.D. War signification. He was elected Morris Library, including a recent board meeting other directors who were re-elected to three-year terms are Bruce Anderson, Philip Sang, and Carol Whitman, SIU directors of Humane Library.

Two Republican candidates for state office told members of the SIU Young Republicans this week that "involvement" in governmental matters is an "essential attitude to getting anything done."

John Henry Altorf, 47-year-old Porrirua businessman and gubernatorial candidate, said he felt that as a "Concerned citizen" the time had come to apply "business practices to government."

Brian Duff, candidate for Secretary of State, said that traditionally the 21-25 age group of people has been "the most apathetic" at the voting polls.

"This is no longer true," said the 37-year-old Wilmette attorney.

Altorf said, "No longer is the younger generation the generation of the future. The younger generation is the generation of the "now."

Altorf urged young people to get interested and involved, saying they were "better trained, smarter and had better advantages than the people of his own generation.

Altorf, Republican nominee for lieutenant governor in 1964, said he viewed the governorship not as a political but as an executive office. He said a number of the serious urban problems facing the city had not been watched as executives in the state legislature had failed to come to apply "business practices to government."

Altorf, Republican nominee for lieutenant governor in 1964, said he viewed the governorship not as a political but as an executive office. He said a number of the serious urban problems facing the city had not been watched as executives in the state legislature had failed to come to apply "business practices to government."

Inorganic Seminar Set

Ismail Ahmed will speak on "Abnormal C-N Frequency Shift in Complexed Aromatic Compounds" at an inorganic seminar 4 p.m. Wednesday in Room 204 of Parkinson Laboratory.

"Involvement" at the voting polls. He said he felt that as a "Concerned citizen" the time had come to apply "business practices to government."

"This is no longer true," said the 37-year-old Wilmette attorney.

Altorf said, "No longer is the younger generation the generation of the future. The younger generation is the generation of the "now."

Altorf urged young people to get interested and involved, saying they were "better trained, smarter and had better advantages than the people of his own generation.

Altorf, Republican nominee for lieutenant governor in 1964, said he viewed the governorship not as a political but as an executive office. He said a number of the serious urban problems fac ing the city had not been watched as executives in the state legislature had failed to come to apply "business practices to government."

Inorganic Seminar Set

Ismail Ahmed will speak on "Abnormal C-N Frequency Shift in Complexed Aromatic Compounds" at an inorganic seminar 4 p.m. Wednesday in Room 204 of Parkinson Laboratory.

"Involvement" at the voting polls. He said he felt that as a "Concerned citizen" the time had come to apply "business practices to government."

"This is no longer true," said the 37-year-old Wilmette attorney.

Altorf said, "No longer is the younger generation the generation of the future. The younger generation is the generation of the "now."

Altorf urged young people to get interested and involved, saying they were "better trained, smarter and had better advantages than the people of his own generation.

Altorf, Republican nominee for lieutenant governor in 1964, said he viewed the governorship not as a political but as an executive office. He said a number of the serious urban problems facing the city had not been watched as executives in the state legislature had failed to come to apply "business practices to government."

Inorganic Seminar Set

Ismail Ahmed will speak on "Abnormal C-N Frequency Shift in Complexed Aromatic Compounds" at an inorganic seminar 4 p.m. Wednesday in Room 204 of Parkinson Laboratory.
Autopsy Fails
To Determine
Cause of Death

An autopsy report on the death of Eldon Maurice Har­ris, former SIU student found dead Feb. 24 in a creek bed in east Carbondale, has failed to establish the cause of death.

A four-page report made by pathologists in East St. Louis and filed with Jackson County Coroner Harry Flynn concluded that death was due to "unexplainable and undeter­minable cause."

Dr. R.H. Supier, pathologist in charge, said several pathologists reviewed the case but were unable to establish the cause of death.

Harris' body was found in Pyles Fork Creek about 100 yards from the 600 block of East College St. Harris was believed to have been dead 10 to 12 hours when found.

Graduate Wives Meet for Election of Officers

The Graduate Wives Club will elect officers at 8 p.m., Monday in Morris Library Lounge.

Plans for the meeting include inviting a speaker to talk on "sex education in the public schools" and discussing pre­parations for the annual Exodus Dinner June 2.

Concert Sunday

Henry Brant, will conduct his own works Sunday at 4 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium. Three faculty instrumental ensem­bles and selected student musicians will comprise the orchestra. For some numbers, sections of the orchestra will be stationed in various parts of the auditorium. There is no charge. Brant will hold seminars for students and faculty members.

FROM INDIA ON CULTURAL TOUR OF THE UNITED STATES

CHAKRABORTTY, sitarist and PANDA, tabla player

9INDIAN Sitar Musical Concert

8P.M., Mon., May 20. Furr Auditorium

Tickets on sale at University Center Information Desk.
Sponsored by INDIAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION.

Forest Product Talks Planned

A series of three dis­cussions on the economics and application of new tech­nologies in the forest products industry will take place Mon­day and Tuesday.

Speaking at the three semi­nars will be H. Dale Turner, director of research and development for Dierks Forests, Inc., of Hot Springs, Ark. Turner formerly was a U.S. Forest Service scientist at the Forest Products Laboratory in Madison, Wisc., and was a director of research for Masonite Corporation. Sponsoring the seminars are the National Science Foundation, the Society of Wood Sci­ence and Technology and the Department of Forestry.

TIRED

Of Paying for meals you don't eat looking at the same four walls everyday, standing in lines?

THE QUADS

Has the answer
Applications for Summer & Fall
now being accepted.
155. Summer Quarter
1207 S. Wall
7-4123

Get your bumblebee degree

Chrysler

Dodge Charger R/T

To add some color to campus, get your Official Dodge Scat Pack Jacket in the official "Dodge Red" Color—with the authentic embri­dered "bumblebee" design on front and back. Send for yours today.

Dodge Dart GTSport

All three members of the Scat Pack offer distinct­ive sporty style, but all three have a lot in com­mon. Like automatic transmissions, wide-tread red line tires, special handling packages, and a long list of other standard and optional features.

Enroll in one of three exciting classes. Charger R.T., Coronet R.T. or Dart GT Sport. Each has its own dis­tinctive sporty style, but all three have a lot in com­mon. Like automatic transmissions, wide treads red line tires, special handling packages, and a long list of other standard and optional features.

Your kind of place

McDonald's

Entrance to Murdale Shopping Center

Your kind of place.

Your choice.
Campus Reaction Continues

(Continued from Page 1)

Jerry. The date will be announced later. Charged along with Hughes and Walker are Theodore Dawson, Lorenzo Bell and Edward G. Singleton, all of Chicago, and John Foster, of Aurora.

The campus remained quiet Friday, but Security Police reported they were prepared in the event of trouble.

State police were scheduled to be on campus again Friday night and throughout the weekend. The University is providing accomodations for 50 policemen in Snider Hall and they are being fed at University Park.

State Police Captain Elza Bramley confirmed that state patrolmen are on campus, but he neither confirmed nor denied that the University had requested them. Bramley said he had "adequate men to take care of the situation."

Ray Lenz, student body president, criticized the administration for being "more caught up in proving its own authority than in meeting the problems that have created the crisis."

"It is my honest feeling that if this University doesn't meet the demands of the students that it is only inviting more unrest and potential violence," he said.

"The tension has not been caused by any radical students. Rather, it is because the administration has continued to administer archaic and absurd restrictions to students. We're supposed to be here to learn how to run our lives. The whole situation is artificial and childish. The University should be the freest community in society but it is in fact the most oppressive and unfree."

A different reaction, however, came from the Inter-Greek Council which issued a statement in support of Morris' actions. The statement said the group recognized the right of protest and dissent, but not "the right to mob action or the right to destroy personal property, nor the right to hinder the normal operation of the University."

"It is for this reason that we must commend President Morris' decision not to tolerate the interference of the rights of others in the normal operation of the education process as was established in his In interim Policy Statement of May 8, 1968."

Loans Could be Lost by Expulsion

(Continued from Page 1)

ents have been dropped by some institutions, such action has been taken in previous years.

"There has been a variation in the number of students involved in the decision whether or not a student on academic probation should be discontinued," Adams said.

"But if Congress and the President pass this bill the variations will no longer exist."

Adams said the new bill would instruct these loan institutions to discontinue immediately any students involved in disrupting University operations.

Other programs which are included under the proposed bill are work-study programs, scholarship grants for needy students and the federally guaranteed private loan program.

The bill explained that the decision of whether a student was involved in a campus demonstration would be left to the college authorities under the provision.

Rep. Louis C. Wyman, R-N.H., said that the intent of the bill is not to limit in any way a student's right to verbally protest or express dissent.

The Student Work and Financial Assistance Office reported there are 1,080 students receiving Illinois State Guaranteed Loans. Do Your Clothes

Meet At The Moo

Open til 2

Friday & Saturday

other days til 12:30

"Best Job I ever had"

\[Image\]

Plan Now For

SPRING FESTIVAL

CARBONDALE'S BEST PIZZA

Pizza Bar Here!

MOO & CACKLE

100% Pure Lean Beef.

The Moo's Manager

Jack Baird

SIU Alumnus

Interested

in going to Washington and offering...

... your services to the Poor People's Campaign?

Clip out and Send

Faculty-Students Supporting the S.C.L.C. Poor Peoples Campaign

NAME: Phone:

Department: Position:

Please indicate your ability:

____ Teaching ______ Story telling

____ Nurse's aid ______ Medical aid

Cut out and mail to:

Steve Lewis

322 Wabam Building

Chicago
Salk, Sabin Vaccines Fight Polio

There are two effective vaccines to protect against paralysis from polio according to Max Waldron, chapter chairman of the Jackson County national foundation of March of Dimes.

One is the Salk vaccine and it has been in use since 1955. This vaccine, he said has reduced the rate of polio in the country approximately 97 per cent.

According to Waldron, the other vaccine is the Sabin polio vaccine, which is taken orally. A separate vaccine is made against each form of the three viruses. Each dose provides protection only against the type of virus it contains.

According to the foundation there are three types of polio and it is possible to have polio three times Waldron said. The three types of polio are nonparalytic, a mild form of polio, spinal, and bulbar spinal, the worst form of polio that often paralyzes the trunk and affects the breathing.

For full protection, three doses of vaccine are necessary in types I, III and II orders. Each dosage should be consumed approximately six weeks apart, he added, and a booster dose containing all three types should be at the physician's suggestion.

Waldron said that the students and faculty members should know that booster shots are available at the University Health Service and at the Jackson County Health Department. There is only a nominal fee for these services.

Mathematics Honorary Plans

Spring Banquet for May 19

The Delta chapter of Pi Mu Epsilon, national honorary mathematics fraternity, will hold its annual spring initiation banquet at 6 p.m. May 19 at Collect's Restaurant.

The speaker this year will be John Werzel, professor of mathematics at the University of Illinois. Officers will be installed.

Cost is $3 per person payable at the Department of Mathematics in the Technology Building by Monday.

Robert Kingsbury

Robert Kingsbury, conductor of choirs, has been invited to serve as the guest choir director at the Governor's Honors Program in the State of Georgia June 10-Aug. 3.

Kingsbury will direct two choirs. He also will conduct informal seminars "on any subject they want to talk about" for two small groups of students.

The 400 students accepted in the program will be chosen from 3,700 applicants from the state's high schools.

Chemistry Majors

Attended Meeting

Six undergraduate chemistry majors attended the central regional meeting of the American Chemical Society at Akron, Ohio on Thursday and Friday. They attended under the auspices of Chem- eka, affiliate chapter of the American Chemical Society, and the Department of Chemistry.

Those participating will be Peter Shenkin, president of the society; David Coleman, secretary-treasurer; Frank Jarke, Jerry White and Sherrill Puckett. D.W. Slocum, assistant professor of chemistry and chapter advisor, will accompany the group.

Chemistry Talk Slated

Charles B. Muchmore, an instructor in the School of Technology, will discuss "Oxidative Processes" at the biochemistry seminar, 4 p.m. Tuesday in room 204 of Parkinson Laboratory.

Martin Oil is always a winner (savings - wise)

Ask anyone who saves at Martin Oil.

Three convenient locations:

.315 N. Illinois
.421 E. Main
.912 W. Main

The Sacrifice of the Coke

FREE COKE WITH ANY FOOD PURCHASE
FRIDAY, SATURDAY, & SUNDAY
Enjoy Our: Roast Beef Sandwiches Spaghetti Pizza Salad

549-4024
CAMPUS SHOPPING CENTER
Campus Activities

New Student Activities Planned

MONDAY
Advanced registration and activities for new students and parents will be held from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. in Room C of the University Center.

Meetings for the Activities Programming Board will meet as follows: Dance Committee, 7 to 8 p.m.; University Center Room D; Recreation Committee, 7:30 to 8:30 Room C; Education Cultural Committee, 8 to 9 p.m.; Room D; Communication Services, 6 to 7 p.m.; Room D; Special Events Committee, 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.; Room C. All meetings are in the University Center.

Free School All will meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Main 201.

Cosmetology K will meet from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. in Agriculture Seminar 209.

Alpha Phi Omega will meet from 9 to 10:30 p.m. in the Home Economics Family Living Laboratory.

Alpha Kappa Psi will hold a pledge meeting from 9 to 11 p.m. in Home Economics Room 202.

“Research and Corrections,” a public lecture, will be given by Elmer H. Johnson, sponsored by the Department of Sociology, at 2 p.m. in Room 301 of Home Economics Building.

Room 17 of Pallium Hall will be open from 2 to 10 p.m. for weight lifting for male students.

Pallium Hall Gym will be open for recreation from 4 to 10 p.m.

The Department of Music is sponsoring a student piano recital by Susan McClary at 8 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium.

Phi Mu Alpha is holding an exhibit May 13 to 15 in the Roman Room of the University Center.

Presidents Scholar Program luncheon will be held at 12 noon in the Missouri Room of the University Center.

The Learning Resources Service luncheon is scheduled from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Kaskaskia Room of the University Center.

Student time cards will be distributed by the Payroll Division from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Mississippi Room of the University Center.

FREE Orchid for Mother.

If you have tired eyes or need a new pair of glasses, check out our Special Programs.

* dries up pimples * removes blackheads * gets rid of blemish-causing oil * fights germs

Only Fostex contains 6 special ingredients to treat complexion problems. And, it’s so easy to use—simply wash with Fostex instead of soap. You’ll feel the difference with the first washing and see the difference with the second.

Available at drugstores in 3½ oz. or 3 oz. bars.

For serious skin problems, see your doctor.

Would You Believe?

* single, air-conditioned room for only-

$125 Summer Quarter section B (Room Only)

$145 Summer Quarter section A (Room Only)

Contact: Mrs. C. Pitchford, Resident Manager

Only Fostex contains 6 special ingredients to treat complexion problems. And, it’s so easy to use—simply wash with Fostex instead of soap. You’ll feel the difference with the first washing and see the difference with the second.

Available at drugstores in 3½ oz. or 3 oz. bars.

For serious skin problems, see your doctor.

Campus Activities

WSIU-TV to Present Show On

Negro Conflicts in the City

"Still a Brother" tells the story of Negroes torn between white goals and Negro needs, set in the New York City riots, as seen by two Teach-in on Draft

Subject for Talk

On Radio Sunday

Williams S. Coon, Yale University chaplain, will talk about the teach-in on the draft on the Special of the Week at 5 p.m. Sunday on WSIU-FM.

Television on Radio Sunday

Williams S. Coon, Yale University chaplain, will talk about the teach-in on the draft on the Special of the Week at 5 p.m. Sunday on WSIU-FM.

Television on Radio Sunday

Williams S. Coon, Yale University chaplain, will talk about the teach-in on the draft on the Special of the Week at 5 p.m. Sunday on WSIU-FM.

Television on Radio Sunday

Williams S. Coon, Yale University chaplain, will talk about the teach-in on the draft on the Special of the Week at 5 p.m. Sunday on WSIU-FM.

Television on Radio Sunday

Williams S. Coon, Yale University chaplain, will talk about the teach-in on the draft on the Special of the Week at 5 p.m. Sunday on WSIU-FM.

Television on Radio Sunday

Williams S. Coon, Yale University chaplain, will talk about the teach-in on the draft on the Special of the Week at 5 p.m. Sunday on WSIU-FM.

Television on Radio Sunday

Williams S. Coon, Yale University chaplain, will talk about the teach-in on the draft on the Special of the Week at 5 p.m. Sunday on WSIU-FM.

Television on Radio Sunday

Williams S. Coon, Yale University chaplain, will talk about the teach-in on the draft on the Special of the Week at 5 p.m. Sunday on WSIU-FM.
Salukis Compete Today In Home Track Meet

SIU's track and field team will open and close its home meet schedule today when Western Kentucky and Lincoln travel to McAndrew Stadium for a 1:30 p.m. triangular meet.

Coach Lew Hartzog is hopeful of duplicating last year's triangular victory over the same two clubs but says that his team "is not hurt". Hartzog is referring to recent injuries to Chuck Benson and All-American Kitty MacKenzie.

Both MacKenzie and Benson were initially hurt in last Saturday's loss to Kansas and the latter also pulled a leg muscle in the opening event of Tuesday's dual meet against the University of Illinois. Neither is being counted on today.

Bright spots in the one-sided loss to the Illini were John Vernon's long jump of 24-4, a new SIU record, Mel Lohman's win in the three-mile and Jeff Duxbury's five triple which included blue ribbons in the 880 and mile run and a come-from-behind anchor leg victory in the mile relay.

Vernon was also a double winner as he claimed a first in his specialty, the triple jump, by leaping 51-1/4, for a new Memorial Stadium record.

The meet today will be Vernon's last opportunity to set McAndrew Stadium records. The senior from Aspley, England will be competing against the present record, held by Western Kentucky's Henry Jackson, who last year long-jumped 24-3/2. Vernon also won the triple jump at 52-1/2. Both marks are within Vernon's reach.

In addition to the SIU-Western Kentucky-Lincoln triangular, junior college representatives from Vincennes, Ind., and Florissant, Mo., will challenge members of the Saluki track club in a separate meet.

Salukis Routed Off Friday Games

A doubleheader between SIU and David Lipscomb College was rained out Friday. The Salukis will try to climb today in a pair of games with Kentucky Wesleyan scheduled to get underway at 1 p.m.

The abbreviated home stand will end Sunday on the SIU field with a single game against the St. Louis Billikens at 2 p.m.

 coached by Joe Lutz, this year's edition of the baseball team owns a 28-12 record.

Home Season Ends For SIU Golfers

SIU's golf team finishes the home schedule today against Southern University at the Orchard Course in Carbondale.

The Salukis with 19 wins against no defeats will play only one more match before the golfers compete in the NCAA championships in Los Cruces, N.M., SIU will travel to South Bend, Ind., May 18 for a meet.

FROM THE HALLS OF PROTOZOA

This column, normally a treasure house of twigly quips and slapdash jaspery, has now been appearing in your campus newspaper for fourteen years, and in this I have learned one thing in these fourteen long years, it is not to try to be funny. To try to be funny is like putting on a mask. With final exams looming obscenely close, you don't want jokes: you want the lovely insect poems of William Collins Sigafoss--Tumbling Along, with the Flapping Tumblebug, and Fig Gently, Sweet Aphid and Gnats My Mother Called, and Sigafoss has even been a co-author of the invention of IIDT.

Our current category is the mollusca--lobsters, shrimp, and the like. Lobsters are generally found under rocky projections. Shrimp look for a hole and are generally found in a circle around a small bowl containing cocktail sauce.

Persona Super Stainless Steel Blades are generally found at any counter where Persona Super Stainless Steel Blades are sold.

Another popular class of animals is the periphera--a sphenoglycy category that does not fit into the categories above. Take, for example, the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. Distinctions--clearly defined. But what if you run into next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people generally find insects unsatisfactory. But try to find beauty in the insect world if you trouble to look. Take, for instance, the love-ly insect poems of William Collins Sigafoss--Tumbling Along, with the Flapping Tumblebug, and Fig Gently, Sweet Aphid and Gnats My Mother Called, and Sigafoss has even been a co-author of the invention of IIDT.

One other category is the mollusca--lobsters, shrimp, and the like. Lobsters are generally found under rocky projections. Shrimp look for a hole and are generally found in a circle around a small bowl containing cocktail sauce.

Persona Super Stainless Steel Blades are generally found at any counter where Persona Super Stainless Steel Blades are sold.

I mention Persona Blades because the makers of Persona Blades gave me this column, and they are inclined to get edgy if I neglect to mention their product. Some get dog edgy and some single, for Persona Blades come in both double edge style and Injector style.

Mind you, it is no burden for me to mention Persona, for it is a blade that shaves quickly and cleanly, sickly and keenly, ear-ticklingly and matchlessly. It is a distinct pleasure to share with Persona Blades and to write about them but sometimes, I confess, I find it difficult to work the commercial into a column. Some years ago, for ex ample, I had the devil's own time working a Persona plug into a column about Alexander the Great. The way I finally managed it was to have Alexander say to the Oracle at Delphi, "Oracle, I have tasted all the world's pleasures, yet I am not content. Socrates I have, and there is a thing I have missed." To which the Oracle replied, "Yes, Alexander, there is a thing you have missed. And when you have Persona Blades--but I advise you, they will not be invented for another 2500 years." But what if you run into next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people generally find insects unsatisfactory. But try to find beauty in the insect world if you trouble to look. Take, for instance, the love-ly insect poems of William Collins Sigafoss--Tumbling Along, with the Flapping Tumblebug, and Fig Gently, Sweet Aphid and Gnats My Mother Called, and Sigafoss has even been a co-author of the invention of IIDT.

Another popular class of animals is the periphera--a sphenoglycy category that does not fit into the categories above. Take, for example, the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. Distinctions--clearly defined. But what if you run into next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people generally find insects unsatisfactory. But try to find beauty in the insect world if you trouble to look. Take, for instance, the love-ly insect poems of William Collins Sigafoss--Tumbling Along, with the Flapping Tumblebug, and Fig Gently, Sweet Aphid and Gnats My Mother Called, and Sigafoss has even been a co-author of the invention of IIDT.

Another popular class of animals is the periphera--a sphenoglycy category that does not fit into the categories above. Take, for example, the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. Distinctions--clearly defined. But what if you run into next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people generally find insects unsatisfactory. But try to find beauty in the insect world if you trouble to look. Take, for instance, the love-ly insect poems of William Collins Sigafoss--Tumbling Along, with the Flapping Tumblebug, and Fig Gently, Sweet Aphid and Gnats My Mother Called, and Sigafoss has even been a co-author of the invention of IIDT.

Another popular class of animals is the periphera--a sphenoglycy category that does not fit into the categories above. Take, for example, the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. Distinctions--clearly defined. But what if you run into next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people generally find insects unsatisfactory. But try to find beauty in the insect world if you trouble to look. Take, for instance, the love-ly insect poems of William Collins Sigafoss--Tumbling Along, with the Flapping Tumblebug, and Fig Gently, Sweet Aphid and Gnats My Mother Called, and Sigafoss has even been a co-author of the invention of IIDT.

Another popular class of animals is the periphera--a sphenoglycy category that does not fit into the categories above. Take, for example, the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. Distinctions--clearly defined. But what if you run into next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people generally find insects unsatisfactory. But try to find beauty in the insect world if you trouble to look. Take, for instance, the love-ly insect poems of William Collins Sigafoss--Tumbling Along, with the Flapping Tumblebug, and Fig Gently, Sweet Aphid and Gnats My Mother Called, and Sigafoss has even been a co-author of the invention of IIDT.

Another popular class of animals is the periphera--a sphenoglycy category that does not fit into the categories above. Take, for example, the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. Distinctions--clearly defined. But what if you run into next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people generally find insects unsatisfactory. But try to find beauty in the insect world if you trouble to look. Take, for instance, the love-ly insect poems of William Collins Sigafoss--Tumbling Along, with the Flapping Tumblebug, and Fig Gently, Sweet Aphid and Gnats My Mother Called, and Sigafoss has even been a co-author of the invention of IIDT.

Another popular class of animals is the periphera--a sphenoglycy category that does not fit into the categories above. Take, for example, the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. Distinctions--clearly defined. But what if you run into next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people generally find insects unsatisfactory. But try to find beauty in the insect world if you trouble to look. Take, for instance, the love-ly insect poems of William Collins Sigafoss--Tumbling Along, with the Flapping Tumblebug, and Fig Gently, Sweet Aphid and Gnats My Mother Called, and Sigafoss has even been a co-author of the invention of IIDT.

Another popular class of animals is the periphera--a sphenoglycy category that does not fit into the categories above. Take, for example, the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. Distinctions--clearly defined. But what if you run into next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people generally find insects unsatisfactory. But try to find beauty in the insect world if you trouble to look. Take, for instance, the love-ly insect poems of William Collins Sigafoss--Tumbling Along, with the Flapping Tumblebug, and Fig Gently, Sweet Aphid and Gnats My Mother Called, and Sigafoss has even been a co-author of the invention of IIDT.

Another popular class of animals is the periphera--a sphenoglycy category that does not fit into the categories above. Take, for example, the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. Distinctions--clearly defined. But what if you run into next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people generally find insects unsatisfactory. But try to find beauty in the insect world if you trouble to look. Take, for instance, the love-ly insect poems of William Collins Sigafoss--Tumbling Along, with the Flapping Tumblebug, and Fig Gently, Sweet Aphid and Gnats My Mother Called, and Sigafoss has even been a co-author of the invention of IIDT.

Another popular class of animals is the periphera--a sphenoglycy category that does not fit into the categories above. Take, for example, the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. Distinctions--clearly defined. But what if you run into next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people generally find insects unsatisfactory. But try to find beauty in the insect world if you trouble to look. Take, for instance, the love-ly insect poems of William Collins Sigafoss--Tumbling Along, with the Flapping Tumblebug, and Fig Gently, Sweet Aphid and Gnats My Mother Called, and Sigafoss has even been a co-author of the invention of IIDT.

Netters to Compete in Tri-Meet Today

With the best record in the school's history, the Sandies will travel to Columbia, Mo., to meet Oklahoma State and Missouri in a tri-meet. St. Louis will enter the meet with a 1-1-1 record. The meet is the first defeat suffered at the hands of Oklahoma City, 3-4. Johnson Yang is undefeated in single's competition and is aiming at a 14 match win streak. Macky Dominguez and Paul Croy were undefeated in doubles competition.

The highlight of the season will be the NCAA championship which will take place here a year from now. Southern California won the number one spot with UCLA taking the number two spot. St. Louis placed eighteenth in last year's competition.

"We are lucky this year to have a well-rounded team. We are in the top 10 of the NCAA finals in eight of our events, which gives us an exceptional chance," Coach Dick LeFevre said.

"Most of the teams that place in the top 10 are from the South or from areas which are not as hot and are not bothered by weather conditions," LeFevre added.

LeFevre said that he had no type of facilities for winter practice, which might have been a problem at the title. The way it is now, most of the players have been placed in rooms to move our team and are more in shape to play exceptional tennis. Our most important point will be to try to understand how to win the NCAA title," LeFevre said.

All the Sandies have been defeated. LeFevre will have no sympathy if they are defeated next year, the only team in the Southern Indoor doubles title with Jose Villarreal.

In last year's final, Johnson, a senior, and John Philippi National Junior Champion and Asian Junior Champion, and a 13-8 slate as a sophomore. As a Junior, St. Louis won the Southern Indoor doubles title with Jose Villarreal.

LeFevre feared that he would have nothing more to say if he were defeated. "This is the only year we will have a chance at the title. The way it is now, most of the players have been placed in rooms to move our team and are more in shape to play exceptional tennis. Our most important point will be to try to understand how to win the NCAA title," LeFevre said.

Johnny Yang

Johnny Yang is a 1-3 record at number four position as a junior. As a sophomore he managed a 19-2 mark.

LeFevre said there was no more to say, or a contract you want to make. Let the students do the talking. We're not interested in be the superior. The Daily Egyptian, (T-49) is 4-2, 5-0, place your ad now and win the results.

Classified Ads

FOR SALE

Dell computer, Brand new, never used. $480.00. Call: 7-4534. 61B

FOR RENT

UCLA taking the number two spot. St. Louis placed eighteenth in last year's competition. "We are lucky this year to have a well-rounded team, LeFevre said. St. Louis will enter the meet with a 1-1-1 record. The meet is the first defeat suffered at the hands of Oklahoma City, 3-4. Johnson Yang is undefeated in single's competition and is aiming at a 14 match win streak. Macky Dominguez and Paul Croy were undefeated in doubles competition.

The highlight of the season will be the NCAA championship which will take place here a year from now. Southern California won the number one spot with UCLA taking the number two spot. St. Louis placed eighteenth in last year's competition. "We are lucky this year to have a well-rounded team, LeFevre said. St. Louis will enter the meet with a 1-1-1 record. The meet is the first defeat suffered at the hands of Oklahoma City, 3-4. Johnson Yang is undefeated in single's competition and is aiming at a 14 match win streak. Macky Dominguez and Paul Croy were undefeated in doubles competition.

The highlight of the season will be the NCAA championship which will take place here a year from now. Southern California won the number one spot with UCLA taking the number two spot. St. Louis will enter the meet with a 1-1-1 record. The meet is the first defeat suffered at the hands of Oklahoma City, 3-4. Johnson Yang is undefeated in single's competition and is aiming at a 14 match win streak. Macky Dominguez and Paul Croy were undefeated in doubles competition.

The highlight of the season will be the NCAA championship which will take place here a year from now. Southern California won the number one spot with UCLA taking the number two spot. St. Louis will enter the meet with a 1-1-1 record. The meet is the first defeat suffered at the hands of Oklahoma City, 3-4. Johnson Yang is undefeated in single's competition and is aiming at a 14 match win streak. Macky Dominguez and Paul Croy were undefeated in doubles competition.

The highlight of the season will be the NCAA championship which will take place here a year from now. Southern California won the number one spot with UCLA taking the number two spot. St. Louis will enter the meet with a 1-1-1 record. The meet is the first defeat suffered at the hands of Oklahoma City, 3-4. Johnson Yang is undefeated in single's competition and is aiming at a 14 match win streak. Macky Dominguez and Paul Croy were undefeated in doubles competition.

The highlight of the season will be the NCAA championship which will take place here a year from now. Southern California won the number one spot with UCLA taking the number two spot. St. Louis will enter the meet with a 1-1-1 record. The meet is the first defeat suffered at the hands of Oklahoma City, 3-4. Johnson Yang is undefeated in single's competition and is aiming at a 14 match win streak. Macky Dominguez and Paul Croy were undefeated in doubles competition.
Dissidents Told to Go Through Channels

By John Eppeheimer

All student groups, recognized or unofficial, must take their demands to the Student Senate as a first step in accomplishing change, SIU vice president Ralph Ruffner said Friday.

Ruffner, vice president for student and area services, applied the statement to the Southern Illinois Peace Committee and to the United Front.

From the Senate, the proposal will go to Wilbur Moulton, dean of students, then to Ruffner and then to President Dolby W. Morris. Ruffner said that if any or all of the lower levels do not agree with the proposal, it will still be taken higher.

Consideration of proposals does not mean acceptance, Ruffner noted, but consideration will not be given if channels are not followed.

Groups which claim the Senate is ineffective must try working through the Senate before that claim can be reasonably made, Ruffner noted.

Ruffner and Moulton cited the women's hours bill and subsequent agreement with the administration as a model for initiating future change.

Ruffner noted that the agreement doesn't please all students, but that the issue is not negotiable until the legislature has acted.

He warned that demonstrations and protest could have only a negative effect when the decision on a permanent policy is being made after July 1.

Ruffner and Moulton also noted that all rules and regulations will be strictly enforced until they are changed. Ruffner said a student would be treated as defined by Morris' statement earlier in the week, that disruption of the University will not be tolerated.

Other issues were discussed and here are comments of Ruffner and Moulton:

Moor vehicle regulations—Sample of student opinion and thorough preparation by the Senate will bring complete consideration.

Housing rules—Thorough possibility for change was presented by the Edwardsville Student Senate, but not by the Carbondale Senate.

Stokely Carmichael—Will not be identified by the administration, and what will be done if other groups attempt to secure space for him on campus will be considered later.

Student control over social conduct—The Senate-passed bylaws change establishing a full system of social boards would be acceptable to Moulton as an advisory system.

Remaining General Classroom Building after Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.—The Senate proposal should go to the committee which recommends names for buildings, which has student representatives.

Amnesty for students engaged in attempts to secure legal rights—All lawful and peaceful protests will not be interfered with, if they do interfere with the workings of the University. A sleep-out would interfere, Ruffner said.

Peace Committee Presents Morris Seven Demands

Four members of the Southern Illinois Peace Committee met Friday with President Morris to discuss the role of the military on campus and were told that unless the tension on the campus diminishes, there will be no changes in any administrative policies.

The members of the Peace Committee presented Morris a list of seven demands that they wished to have instituted by the Trustees of SIU. The demands were:

1. The permanent removal of all military recruiters from the campus.
2. Restriction of the ROTC department from using campus facilities.
3. Revision of the draft information pamphlet issued by the Registrar’s Office.
4. No information about an student should be sent to the Draft Boards unless specifically requested by the student.
5. All students should be provided with complete information about draft alternatives and the consequences of each alternative.
6. The University should not punish student who refuses to cooperate with the draft.
7. All military-subsidized research, tuition fees, building etc., should be published by the University.

According to members of the Peace Committee, Morris said he was not sure of his own position on any of the demands, and that the presentation of these demands should have been made through the Student Senate. They said Morris told them they were "out of order to come to him directly," and that they should have gone through the "proper channels."

The meeting, which lasted for over an hour, was also attended by SIU Vice President Ralph W. Ruffner and Paul Morrill, assistant to the President. The four members of the Peace Committee were Harry Goldman, graduate student in history; Ron Haning, graduate assistant in microbiology; Barry Sanders, instructor in English, and Michael Harty, undergraduate in Speech.

A heavy security guard was present at Morris' office, and all students entering the office were required to show their ID cards.

Gus Bode

Gus says the worst thing about an all-day rain is that it makes magic butt hard to light.

Daily

Southern Illinois University
Carbondale, Illinois
Volume 49
Saturday, May 11, 1968
Number 144

Peace Committee Presents Morris Seven Demands

Four members of the Southern Illinois Peace Committee met Friday with President Morris to discuss the role of the military on campus and were told that unless the tension on the campus diminishes, there will be no changes in any administrative policies.

The members of the Peace Committee presented Morris a list of seven demands that they wished to have instituted by the Trustees of SIU. The demands were:

1. The permanent removal of all military recruiters from the campus.
2. Restriction of the ROTC department from using campus facilities.
3. Revision of the draft information pamphlet issued by the Registrar’s Office.
4. No information about an student should be sent to the Draft Boards unless specifically requested by the student.
5. All students should be provided with complete information about draft alternatives and the consequences of each alternative.
6. The University should not punish student who refuses to cooperate with the draft.
7. All military-subsidized research, tuition fees, building etc., should be published by the University.

According to members of the Peace Committee, Morris said he was not sure of his own position on any of the demands, and that the presentation of these demands should have been made through the Student Senate. They said Morris told them they were "out of order to come to him directly," and that they should have gone through the "proper channels."

The meeting, which lasted for over an hour, was also attended by SIU Vice President Ralph W. Ruffner and Paul Morrill, assistant to the President. The four members of the Peace Committee were Harry Goldman, graduate student in history; Ron Haning, graduate assistant in microbiology; Barry Sanders, instructor in English, and Michael Harty, undergraduate in Speech.

A heavy security guard was present at Morris' office, and all students entering the office were required to show their ID cards.

Gus Bode

Gus says the worst thing about an all-day rain is that it makes magic butt hard to light.