Excited for what's next

STEVE MATZKER | DAILY EGYPTIAN

Matt Snouffer, left, a graduate in cinema and photography from Chicago, and Tom Kwiat, also a graduate in cinema and photography from Lansing, show their excitement Saturday at the end of the first commencement ceremony at the SIU Arena. Kwiat said he looks forward to what his future holds. "I want to move to Florida and make movies on the beach," he said.

SIU moves forward in recycling initiative

ASHLEY ZBOREK
Daily Egyptian

Southern Illinois University Carbondale has joined 32 other universities around the nation in expanding its recycling program by distributing new recycling bins around campus.

Plant and Service Operations, The Center for Environmental Health and Safety, and the Sustainability Council have all joined efforts to improve the university's recycling program. Throughout the week workers from grounds and the physical plant will place new recycling bins awarded to the university by The Alcoa Foundation in eight buildings on campus.

The Alcoa Foundation is part of a national recycling program designed to improve and expand recycling efforts on college campuses nation wide.

“We all have the same goal, and that is to reduce the amount of trash the university sends to the landfill.”

New outdoor garbage and recycling can duos are also being distributed throughout campus by Physical Plant Workers and should be finished by the end of the week.

Brad Dillard and David Tippy of Physical Plant were not available for comment as of press time on Tuesday.

Students prepare for summer dig

AUSTIN FLYNN
Daily Egyptian

While many SIU students go home for summer, a group of anthropology students prepare for a hands-on class that features the digging of land where a large group of Native Americans once lived.

The class, titled “Field Methods in Archaeology,” will teach students the ins and outs of excavation, a process of carefully digging up artifacts in the ground and determining their relevance in accordance to the Native Americans that once lived there. The class, which starts Monday, will station students at the Kincaid Mounds in Brookport, a location owned by the Illinois Preservation Society.

This stretch of land was once home to a large group of Native Americans and many homes and other objects have been discovered in past field schools. The site has been researched by SIUC students since 2005 and was also excavated by the University of Chicago in the 1930's.

The goal is also to prepare students for life as an archaeologist and give them the skills and field experience needed to land a job in archaeology. Both sessions consist of a four week time period where the students live near the site and dig everyday.

Paul Welch, field school director and associate professor of anthropology, said the course is designed to train future archaeologists on how to properly dig and recognize characteristics in the ground that would determine if and how a spot should be excavated.

“A lot of people as a result of looking at Hollywood movies or TV shows think ‘Oh, I can be an archaeologist, all I need is a shovel and I’ll go out and dig something up,’ but it turns out that in order to do excavation well, you have to be able to recognize things in the ground that ordinarily people wouldn’t even notice,” Welch said.

Maddie Hall, a senior from Champaign studying anthropology, said when she went to field school last summer she left with more knowledge of archaeology and the kind of work goes into excavation.

“It was the excitement, the connection that we were making towards the first inhabitants, the people that were here so long ago,” Hall said.

Hall said while she does have her reservations about her major, field school put everything into perspective for her and made her hopeful for the future.

"We all have the same goal, and that is to reduce the amount of trash the university sends to the landfill," she said.

Pulliam said during the 2011 fall semester, student workers went to every building on campus to take inventory and inspect the recycling and garbage can situation. She said they found that in the absence of either, people disposed their trash into whatever type of bin was available, but when the two bins were side by side the recyclables and non-recyclables were mostly separated correctly.

"Coincidentally after we inspected the buildings The Alcoa Foundation granted us 150 new recycling bins," she said.

Those bins are now being distributed to the Mass Communications Building, Lawson Hall, Rehn Hall, Pulliam Hall, Altgeld Hall, Wham, Quigley and the Agriculture Building. The bins will collect both plastic and glass bottles and aluminum cans. In addition to that there will now be recycling bins designated just to paper products.

She said two weeks ago staff members removed garbage cans from every room in Lawson Hall.

Pulliam said students were using them to throw away mostly papers and plastic bottles. She said she had heard of other universities having the same problem and finding success with the removal method.

Since the trash cans were removed, Pulliam said she has seen a decrease in the amount of mixed waste.

The university measures the amount of waste recycled by weight. Pulliam compares the weight of recycled materials to the weight of waste materials to determine the percentage of recycled products.

Pulliam said she hopes to see the amount of non-recyclable waste decrease by five to 10 percent.

According to the Plant and Service Operations website, recyclables are collected by custodial staff and grounds crew throughout the week and then they are taken to a collection point once a week.

Pulliam said the next step of the recycling initiative is consistency. She said she thinks the different signs on the bins confuses people because they are not sure what some bins accept and others do not.

"The recycling bins have come in several phases and my goal now is to make them all identical," she said.

Pulliam said if the Lawson experiment is successful she will continue to remove single trash bins from classrooms in other building.

"After going out of field school I was like 'yes, I want to be an archaeologist, this is what I want to do, I'm going to buy a whip and a hat just like Indiana Jones,'" Hall said.

Welch, whose first excavation was in 1972 when he was a high school student, said the course has trained aspiring archaeologists on the specifics of modern field work for more than 30 years.

At the site, there will be a graduate student and two teaching assistants to aid Welch in retaining a higher level of work from the 16 students that may never have taken part in an excavation before.

Welch said most of his students leave the class with a broader understanding of how excavation works and gain some modern methods of excavating that are less destructive to the ground.

He said using less destructive methods of excavation is important because it aids in preservation of the land, as well as items that may be buried in it.

Geophysical survey is one of the newer, safer techniques the class will use. This method of excavating employs the use of remote machines that survey the land from the surface and display readings of what's below the ground.

"These instruments record physical characteristics of the near surface deposits.

What these instruments can tell you is that something in the ground here is different from what's in the ground around it without actually disturbing the ground surface, so it's non-destructive," Welch said.

While the field school is optional, the sessions go towards a total of four excavations that are required of archaeology students before they enter a professional career after graduation.

There are eight archaeology courses offered as a part of the Anthropology major, only two of which are below 400 level classes.

Both four week sessions offer two separate classes within them, the first being a 400 level course that teaches students how to excavate, and the second is offered to only graduate students and teaches students how to manage and be in administrative roles on an excavation site.

However, as popularity for these courses have grown, the classes have filled up quicker during the last four years.

Welch said the course has gained popularity among students and enrollment is the highest it's been in the past 10 years.

Andrew Lambert, a senior from St. Louis studying anthropology, said he is excited to get out onto the field and start excavating this summer because he's never had the chance to before.

"Field work is basically a lot different from anything in the classroom," Lambert said.

After winning two of three games against Illinois State March 31-April 1, Saturday's championship game seemed to whiplash the Salukis as the Redbirds gained an early lead. The Redbirds hit three three-run homeruns in the first three innings while the Salukis managed one run in the second, giving Illinois State a 9-1 lead by the top of the fourth.

The Salukis cycled through all three pitchers by the bottom of the third in an effort to break through the Redbirds' offense. Blaylock said she felt some regret for taking Lang out so early instead of allowing her to settle in for a few innings.

Lang earned the loss, ending the season with an 11-7 record.

"I think you have to give a lot of credit to Illinois State and the way they came out today," Blaylock said.

"They were swinging right off the bat and they outplayed us in that aspect."

The Salukis had 10 hits in the game including two hits each from VadeBoncouer, freshman outfielder Meredith Wilson and sophomore infielder Jayna Spivey.

While finishing second was not the goal, VadeBoncouer said it was still something to be proud of.

"The thing I'm most proud of is that our kids fought until the very end and did not quit," Blaylock said. "Every inning we tried to put people on and do something so I was proud of them for that."

Blaylock said as the fourth seed, they had to fight their way through the first two games against quality opponents and she was proud they made it to the championship.

The 13 runs scored by the Redbirds is the record for the most runs ever in a championship game and put a cap on the Salukis' 2012 season.

Missouri Valley Conference Player of the Year Mallory Duran-Sellers went 1-for-3 with a walk in her final game for the Salukis, bringing her total drawn walks to 45, which ties Katie Jordan for SIU's single season record.

VadeBoncouer, Spivey, and junior outfielder Michelle Bradley were also named to the All-Tournament team for their performances.

Overall the Saluki women finished with 135.5 points, 57 points behind first-place Wichita State University.

The Saluki men added three event wins during the championships. Senior Cody Doerflein won the pole vault with a 17-06.5 clearance, which set a new career best for his second career title. Sophomore Doug Palacios also set a career best with his triple jump of 51-09 to claim the title. Senior Zach Dahleen won the 1,500-meter 3:49.46 for his second career title.

Other top performers on the men's side were senior Neal Anderson who placed third in the 1000-meter run with a time of 31:33.01 and second in the 5000-meter run with a time of 14:39.6. Junior Lucas Cherry placed third in the steeplechase with a 9:06.94 time.

The men finished with 127.50 total points, 60 points behind MVC champion Indiana State University.

The Salukis will send 13 athletes to the west regional of the NCAA Championships, which start May 24-26 in Austin, Tex.

Duran-Sellers named MVC Player of the Year

CALEB MOTSINGER
Daily Egyptian

Despite finishing second place in the Missouri Valley Conference Tournament, the Salukis house the most highly regarded player in the league.

Senior outfielder Mallory Duran-Sellers received the MVC Player of the Year honors May 9 at the annual league banquet at the SIU Arena. Duran-Sellers was one of the six Salukis to garner all-conference honors, tied with Creighton for the most selections this season.

SIU hasn't had a softball player distinguished as MVC Player of the Year since 2008.

"It's a huge honor, but I was definitely surprised when I got it," Duran-Sellers said. "There are a lot of well deserving girls with a lot of talent in our conference. It's a huge honor that really topped the years I've spent here at SIU."

In addition to her honors, Duran-Sellers also earned the MVC's Elite 18 award for having the highest GPA in any conference championship.

The senior was also a 2011 Academic All-American.

LYNNETTE OOSTMEYER | DAILY EGYPTIAN

Senior outfielder Mallory Duran-Sellers warms up before a game Thursday at Charlotte West Stadium. Duran-Sellers was named the Missouri Valley Conference Player of the Year on May 9 during the annual league banquet.

"She's just a good kid," said coach Kerri Blaylock. "She deserved this award, and I think its great that the league coaches thought she deserved it too because I get to see how hard she works everyday and they only get to see it three times a year."

Duran-Sellers' teammates and coaches are not the only ones impressed by her play.

"I don't know Mallory personally but I feel like I do," said Jaye Hutcheson, a senior pitcher and first baseman from Northern Iowa. "I've definitely heard her name used by our coach more than any other opposing player in the conference. She's a smart girl and you can definitely tell by the way she plays softball."

In a loss Saturday to Illinois State in the MVC Championship game at Charlotte West Stadium, Duran-Sellers went 1-for-3 with a walk in her final game for the Salukis. Despite the end to her final season, Duran-Sellers will stay at SIU as a student until December when she is expected to graduate with a bachelor's degree in English education.

During the 2011 season, Duran-Sellers hit .398, the fifth-highest single season batting average in SIU history. This season, Duran-Sellers hit .382 with four home runs, 22 RBIs and a team-high 41 walks, all while maintaining a 4.0 GPA.

Aries — Today is a 9 — You're in control now. Use your power wisely. Be careful not to become so self-absorbed that you forget about the important things. It's not a good time to gamble.

Taurus — Today is a 6 — Talk about an upcoming joint purchase later. Counsel caution. Build up your resources first, and put together a convincing case for your point of view.

Gemini — Today is a 7 — Things are not what they seem. It's wise to be willing to revise one's opinion. Continue your studies, and with encouragement, your career takes off.

Cancer — Today is a 7 — Take on more work, even if it complicates things. Schedule rigorously. Stick to your budget. Negotiation goes further than declarations. Leave risks for tomorrow.

Leo — Today is an 8 — Deep thinking comes easy now, but also take time for action. Don't fall for every great story that comes along. Getting lost in work could be practical.

Virgo — Today is an 8 — Changes at the top open new opportunities. Sidestep an argument to keep the peace. Practice leads to perfection, and there's a joy in it.

Libra — Today is an 8 — Don't forget what you've learned. Challenge your own preconceptions. Fix something that doesn't work by trying up the integrity. Keep the goal in sight.

Scorpio — Today is a 7 — Put the pedal to the metal, and be extra productive. Don't worry about the money now, but don't waste it either. Finish a job before it's due. Gold stars all around!

Sagittarius — Today is a 7 — Immerse yourself in two days of romance. There may be a startling revelation. Do what worked before. Abandon a judgment. Respect boundaries. Take action.

Capricorn — Today is a 6 — Add extra effort to keep your home in order. Give away the things that weigh your spirit down. You'll save time and energy in the long run and money in the upkeep.

Aquarius — Today is a 7 — Your capacity to retain new information expands. Use your new skills to plan your next steps and take action. A female has a lot to offer.

Pisces — Today is a 9 — Entering a time of financial exploration. Examine your priorities. Don't take unnecessary short cuts or it may come back to bite you.

Softball places second in MVC

TIFFANY BLANCHETTE
Daily Egyptian

Any hope the Salukis had of winning the Missouri Valley Conference championship was quickly crushed by the Redbirds as they jumped to an early eight-run lead.

SIU (36-20, 16-10 MVC) fell 13-3 to Illinois State (35-21, 18-18 MVC) in the championship game Saturday after upsetting top-seed Northern Iowa (38-16, 21-4 MVC) 1-0 in the semifinal game Friday during the Missouri Valley Conference Tournament at Charlotte West Stadium.

With the score tied at 0 in the top of the fifth, sophomore catcher Allie VadeBoncouer hit her eighth homerun of the season, which would carry the Salukis to the championship game.

Junior pitcher Brittney Lang went six innings and threw her fourth shutout this season for her 11th win. She allowed two hits and two walks with three strikeouts. Freshman pitcher Katie Bertelsen pitched a scoreless seventh inning and recorded her fifth save of the season.

Lang said she knows she had a great defense behind her and that they came out for a win.

"Brittney threw a great game and (Bertelsen) did a great job of coming in to close the game," said coach Kerri Blaylock. "I thought we had really good at-bats off of (UNI pitcher Jamie) Fisher all day long and Allie came up with a big hit, so it was a really positive day."

Lang battled against Fisher, the MVC Pitcher of the Year, who shutout the Salukis twice April 28-29. Bradley's homerun was one of three given up by Fisher, whose record dropped to 20-4.

The win advanced the Salukis to the championship game for the second time in three years and the fifth time in SIU history after advancing in 1990, 2004, 2007 and 2010.

"We're just going to take it one game at a time like we've done all year and we're not done yet," Blaylock said. "We just want to live to play another day."

Seniors Alicia Junker, left, Haley Gorman, center, and Mallory Duran-Sellers react emotionally Saturday as their senior season ends after a 13-3 loss to Illinois State University in the Missouri Valley Conference Championship game at Charlotte West Stadium. Gorman was named to the second MVC All-Conference team and Duran-Sellers was named to the first All-Conference team and awarded MVC Player of the Year.

Track and field finishes third, fourth during championships

AKEEM GLASPIE

Several Salukis may have ended their careers with event wins, but the SIU track and field program did not add another conference title to its mantle with the Missouri Valley Outdoor Championship.

The Saluki women and men placed third and fourth overall respectively in the MVC outdoor championships Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Wichita, Kan.

Senior thrower Jeneva McCall earned Most Valuable Athlete and her third straight Most Outstanding Athlete honors as she led the field in total points. McCall placed first in the discus with a throw of 183-08, the shot put with a throw of 58-08.50 and the hammer throw with a 225-09.

McCall has earned six indoor and nine outdoor MVC titles during her career at SIU.

Senior jumper Malaikah Love set an SIU record in the triple jump with a 43-03.25 leap, a mark that won her the title in the event. Love placed second in the long jump with a distance of 20-02.5 and sixth in the 100-meter hurdles with a time of 14.23.

Love said she was thankful to be able to set the triple jump record in her final MVC competition.

Sophomore Kenya Culmer added an event win in the high jump with a clearance of 5-11.25.

Other top performers on the women's side were junior Kim Fortney and freshman Deanna Price who placed third and fourth in the hammer throw with 194-10 and 194-09 throws respectively. Senior Mallory Dreyer placed third in the javelin throw 129-05 throw. Freshman Lacey Gibson placed third in the 1000-meter run with a time of 36:20.96 and freshman Mobola Rotibi placed third in the 800-meter run with a time of 2:11.00.

Baseball swept by Sycamores Salukis finish 9-12 in conference

JOE RAGUSA
Daily Egyptian

The Salukis were already in a 5-1 when the second out was made in the top of the fifth inning Sunday, but the Indiana State Sycamores were able to drive in four more runs before the inning ended to pull ahead of the Salukis.

SIU (25-26, 9-12 Missouri Valley Conference) was swept in their last conference series of the season against Indiana State (40-12, 13-5 MVC). Sunday's 10-4 loss was the sixth in a row for the Salukis, which dropped them to sixth in the Valley standings.

"Everybody is still going out there, giving their best," said junior first baseman Austin Montgomery. "It's just not falling into place right now."

The Salukis couldn't overcome early deficits in their 6-3 loss Friday and 7-5 loss Saturday.

Junior left-hander Cody Forsythe went seven innings Friday, but a three-run top of the first for Indiana State was too much to overcome for the Salukis. He gave up four runs, one earned on seven hits in the loss.

"I was able to settle down; throw up some zeros," Forsythe said. "But our offense never really got going, they kept us off balance and we could never get over that hump."

The Salukis almost got over an early six-run deficit in Saturday's match, but SIU stranded the tying run at first base when senior outfielder Jordan Sivertsen lined out to center field for the final out of the game.
