Matalonis to resign from GSC

By Robert Green
Staff Writer

Graduate Student Council President Paul Matalonis announced Wednesday that he will resign effective Jan. 1.

Matalonis, who was elected to the office last spring, said he will resign "to concentrate on law school."

representatives can make nominations for the offices up to and including the Dec. 1 meeting. All full-time graduate students are eligible for candidacy. At that time candidates will speak and the election will be held under the auspices of a three-member commission of noncouncil members.

After announcing his resignation, Matalonis said, "I've enjoyed working with the council. I began getting involved in student government over two years ago, but now I have to study. I really want to become a lawyer."

A new president and vice president will be elected at the GSC's Dec. 1 meeting. GSC Vice President Ann Greeley, graduate student in psychology, was nominated for president at the meeting Wednesday.

Law student Dan Venturi was also nominated for president, and law student Carl Kosierowski was nominated for vice president.

student bills and the University's consideration of a policy change to correct the problem. Swinburne said that the current installment billing system did not exist prior to fiscal year 1981 except for housing fees. Because of increasing tuition and fees, the University developed the monthly fee payment system, but since implementation of the system "there has been a significant increase in accounts receivable."

He said that the University is now faced with over $750,000 in past due student bills because students either have not paid bills or have requested payment deadline extensions.

"It's a very serious problem," Swinburne said. "The external auditors are very concerned and we are feeling the pressure."

Swinburne said that the University is considering a monthly service charge of 1 to 1.5 percent on accounts 30 days past due. He said other steps may also be taken to remind students of bills owed including withholding transcripts, grades and diplomas, sending letters to students and the use of collection agencies.

"I would like to see the University take reasonable measures to reduce the deficit and to protect the installment system," Swinburne said. He said abolishing the system would have a negative effect on enrollment and students' personal cash flow.

Buffum said that over 2,700 students enrolled this semester have past due accounts, and that about 1,500 students enrolled in the spring and summer semesters of 1982 still owe the University money.

Trustees OK plan to boost local economy

By Ginny Lee
Staff Writer

A $175,000 plan, which proposes to boost the Southern Illinois economy by enhancing teaching and research programs in agriculture, business, economics and engineering and strengthening ties between the University and regional business and industry was approved Thursday by the Board of Trustees.

The plan was proposed as an addition to the University's fiscal year 1984 budget requests.

The plan is included in the University's total budget request package, which is currently being considered by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

About 42 percent of SIU's total 1984 budget requests are for programs and equipment directly related to the economic development of the region, Chancellor Kenneth Shaw said.

Similar economic development project requests were requested by SIU-E - totaling $125,000 - and approved by the board.

SIU-E's request would be used to conduct two analytical studies of economic development in the East St. Louis area.

One study, developed through the SIU-E Office of Area Development, requests $50,000 to focus on general economic development of the area, while the other, for $75,000, proposes to expand SIU-E's teaching programs in East St. Louis and was developed through the university's School of Business.

In other action, the Board approved an amendment to the SIU System's bidding procedures which raised the ceiling above which bidding is required for University purchases from $2,500 to $5,000.

The amendment also raised the bidding ceiling for repair, remodeling and maintenance

Reagan asks peace after Brezhnev death

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan assured the Soviet Union Thursday night that he hopes for a better superpower relationship "in a dangerous time" following the death of President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

In a nationally broadcast news conference, Reagan declared "our goal is and will remain a search for peace."

Brezhnev, 75, died at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday (11:30 a.m. CST) of an apparent heart attack, but the official announcement was withheld until 11 a.m. Thursday (2 a.m. CST) while maneuvering for a successor began in the Kremlin.

No new party chief or president was immediately named to fill Brezhnev's posts. But Western experts believe the power vacuum may be filled in the short run by a collective leadership including former KGB chief Yuri Andropov and long-time Brezhnev associate Konstantin Chernenko, the two men most often touted as likely successors.

Reagan said he intends to keep pushing for a treaty to reduce strategic nuclear weapons. But "we should not delude ourselves," he said. "Peace is a product of strength, not weakness."

The president indicated that Vice President George Bush probably would head the U.S. delegation to Brezhnev's funeral. As for why he wouldn't do so himself, Reagan said "it was a plain case of looking at the schedule. It was felt it would be better for George to head that delegation."

Mixing an attitude of conciliation with one of resolve, the president told the emerging Soviet leadership that the United States faces the future with confidence. And, he said, "we as a free people must always be prepared for change so when it comes we are ready

Tuition may rise 10 percent in '83

By Andrew Herrmann
Staff Writer

Tuition may increase by as much as 10 percent for fiscal year 1984. Chancellor Kenneth Shaw said Thursday. The tuition increase would take place beginning with the fall 1983 semester.

Shaw's statement came after a report to the Board of Trustees by Chairman William Norwood that the Illinois Board of Higher Education "probably will come forth with a tuition increase of 10 percent."

Shaw said that it has been the policy of SIU to follow the IBHE's recommendations. However, he said that "constituency groups will be considered before any definite action is taken."

Shaw said the IBHE bases its recommendations on a "higher education price index," which is tied to the previous year's inflation rate. He also said that the trustees would conduct formal hearings at the beginning of next year before a tuition increase decision would be made.

The board also considered a proposal to raise the revenue bond fee from $46.20 to $52.80 a semester for full-time students. Part-time students would pay proportionately less.

The board will make a decision on the revenue bond fee at its December meeting. The decision was delayed to "give an opportunity to see what the fee is all about," Norwood said.

"Everyone who is interested will have an additional month to bring concerns to the board or contact the people who are proposing the fee," he said.

The fee helps support residence halls and the Student Center.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said a fee increase would raise $264,000 during fiscal year 1984. A proposal allowing $72,421 of that amount to clear up a deficit in Evergreen Terrace Apartments will also be considered by the board.

The apartments are owned by the SIU Foundation and managed by the University. The proposal would eliminate the need for a rent increase in fiscal year 1984, Swinburne said.

The revenue bond fee was installed in 1979 after the IBHE instructed state universities to stop using tuition fees to subsidize money-losing operations such as housing facilities and the Student Center.

Norwood also addressed the issue of a reduced work week for University employees. While the topic was not on the formal agenda or in a board committee, Norwood said he has "received some inquiries about it and rather than ignore the inquiries we felt it was time to respond."

He said that because of the tight money situations a reduction in the work week could affect the "credibility" of the University.

Thompson 'likely' to counter Stevenson's partial recount

By T. Lee Hughes
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Republican Gov. James R. Thompson won't "roll over and play dead" for Democratic challenger Adlai Stevenson, a top Thompson aide said Thursday as the Thompson campaign geared up to blunt Stevenson's bid for a statewide recount in the Illinois governor's race.

Philip R. O'Connor, Thompson's political director, said the governor would "very likely" seek a partial recount of his own in selected Illinois precincts if Stevenson proceeds with plans for a partial recount.

Stevenson wants a partial recount to show that errors in vote counting deprived him of votes. That partial recount would be used to try to convince a three-judge panel to order a statewide recount in the governor's race, where returns show Stevenson trailing by 5,561 votes of 3.6 million cast.

A separate, Thompson-backed partial recount that showed the governor picking up votes could be submitted to the same panel for its use in reaching a decision on a whether to order a statewide recount, O'Connor said.

O'Connor said that on election day "more people voted for Thompson than for Stevenson. We're certainly not going to roll over and play dead on that score."

John Schmidt, an attorney for the Stevenson campaign, said Wednesday that if Thompson would agree to seek a statewide recount "we would be delighted to move more quickly and simply go right now to the statewide recount."

But O'Connor responded that "I don't think anyone should be surprised that we should look askance at that suggestion."

He said that "if Senator Stevenson is suggesting that the governor throw his hands up and say 'I didn't win the election,' then they have a long wait. Thompson won the election."

Stevenson trails Thompson by a margin of less than one quarter of 1 percent, according to an Associated Press survey of the state's 102 counties.

Stevenson said Wednesday that the results were too close for him to concede and that "the only way to deal with inevitable error in the vote counting process is to recount."

Schmidt said the first step would be to seek a partial recount of vote returns. Under state law, a challenger can ask for an initial recount in up to a quarter of the precincts in any county.

Stevenson indicated his staff would be selecting counties where he might be likely to pick up votes. He specifically cited heavily Republican DuPage County, where he said returns were very late in being reported.

"There are other places in which to squeeze votes too," Stevenson said.

Under state law, Thompson also can seek a similar partial recount in districts that might produce more votes for him, and O'Connor said preparations were being made for such a possibility.

"We are prepared to be able to take any step that's required at a moment's notice," he said.

Stevenson's recount would have no impact on official results announced by the state Board of Elections on Nov. 22, but it could be used to challenge the results with the Illinois Supreme Court. The court would appoint a three-judge panel to rule on that challenge.

The panel presumably would consider any similar recount conducted by the Thompson campaign.

A recount would be an expensive proposition. Schmidt estimated that even with a lot of volunteer legal help, the recount and related legal challenges would cost the Stevenson campaign $350,000.

Statewide vote totals were 1,815,428 for Thompson to 1,809,867 for Stevenson, a margin of 5,561 votes, according to the AP survey.

USO votes to reduce senate size to 38

By William Jason Yong
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization passed a bill Wednesday to reduce the senate size from 51 to 38 seats. The seats would represent four geographic and nine academic districts.

John H. Dunning, chairman of the Committee on Internal Affairs, said that a reduction in the senate size will facilitate greater efficiency, better information flow and better service to undergraduates.

The senate had recently passed a bill establishing Dec. 8 as the date for fall senatorial elections, as well as a bill recognizing John Strem, a political science major, as elections commissioner.

The senate also passed three other bills and three resolutions. A bill to impeach Michael Olowu, interim chairman of the finance commission, was rejected by the senate.

The bills passed by the senate included one to fund the Black Affairs Council, one to establish the election guidelines and another to provide additional funds for the BAC.

The three resolutions included one in support of fasting for World Harvest Day on Nov. 18, a resolution in recognition of Ricky Robbins, executive chairman of Student Programming Council who will resign this fall to do an internship with Glenview Park District, and a resolution in recognition of Mary Lavender, USO secretary who resigned Wednesday to move to Oklahoma.

Although the earlier session of the meeting went smoothly, the latter part of it was characterized by personal attacks and names-calling between some of the senators as a result of a bill to impeach Olowu.

Steve Brucki, submitter of the bill, said "as interim chairman of the finance commission, Olowu knowingly refused to surrender public information upon request from a superior and did not accurately record and file the public records required of his position."

"At a senate meeting Oct. 13, he failed to report the commission's viewpoint, but instead interjected his personal opinion," Brucki said.

He said the USO constitution states that an oral report of each commission's activities must be delivered by the legislative spokesperson at each regularly scheduled senate meeting.

Olowu said that "it is ridiculous and annoying to use the senate floor to assassinate the character and integrity of fellow senators."

"After I had given the commission's report regarding the commission's action on funding of the director of public relations, I specifically said that I had given my opinions on the funding," Olowu said. "I did not violate any rules."

A bill to fund the director of public relations was rejected by the senate in a previous meeting.

Olowu said that the action taken by Brucki to impeach him was "a display of emotional immaturity" and that the bill was "nothing but a joke."

Joe Ferrero, a senator representing Thompson Point, requested that Olowu and Brucki either apologize to each other or withdraw their statements because their addresses to the senate were personal attacks. Both senators refused to apologize and were refrained from further addressing the senate on this matter.

Ronald D. Banks, a senator representing West Side, said the bill was "garbage" and he encouraged that the senate get rid of it.

After the meeting adjourned, arguments about senatorial behavior continued between Olowu and Fritz Levenhagen, USO vice president.

Olowu told Levenhagen that he "behaved like a woman." During the meeting, Levenhagen had encouraged that Olowu be impeached.

Karen Wolf, senate pro tempore, said the accusation of Levenhagen behaving like a woman was an insult to the female race.

Levenhagen would be lucky if the accusation was true, Wolf said.

A bill to fund BAC took longer for discussion and voting than had been anticipated. The bill which allotted $100 to the council for its hosting of a Camp Southern Summit Nov. 13, was amended four times before it was finally passed. A separate bill, submitted without prior notice, allocated an additional $111.25 for the BAC, making the total $211.25.

Levenhagen also announced the resignation of two senators, Karen Singer and Mike Harmon.

Altogether, 15 senators have resigned and two were impeached this semester.

USO President Jerry Cook said a student directory will be put out after Thanksgiving and a book co-op will also be conducted later this fall.

to meet new opportunities and challenges."

Asked whether he plans any new initiative to lessen tensions, the president sighed slightly and said "we have been trying to do that in the area of quiet diplomacy." But, he said, "it is going to require actions and not words."

Calling on the Soviet Union for peaceful moves, Reagan said with a smile: "It takes two to tango."

On the domestic front, Reagan acknowledged there is "under discussion" a Cabinet proposal to boost gasoline taxes by five cents per gallon in order to rebuild the nation's decaying bridges and highways and create jobs in the face of 10.4 percent unemployment. But no decision has been made, he said.

"We think we are on the right course," the president said of his economic program.

In an obvious reference to Democratic calls for a multibillion-dollar public works program, Reagan declared "We are doing those things that we think are proper. We are not going to go down the dead-end street that just leaves us set for another recession."

He hinted that he might trim defense spending, but said "you've got to remember the great share of the defense budget is for humanity, for the men and women of the armed forces" in the form of higher pay.

Reagan said "we are looking at everything" but was determined to close "the window of vulnerability."

At one point, Reagan lectured Democrats and others who had "frightened to death" older Americans by suggestions that he would cut Social Security benefits.

Harassment policy was long overdue

Sexual harassment has been with us a long time but now more cognizance is being taken of the problem.

SIU-C policy, published in July 1980, provided that existing grievance procedures be used to resolve any complaints alleging sexual harassment. But in October, 1980, the Graduate Student Council passed a proposal that a separate policy be drawn up to deal with sexual harassment.

University Affirmative Action Officer, Mary Helen Gasser, and the university's chief trial attorney, Shari Rhode, have drafted a sexual harassment policy and grievance procedure to provide timely resolution of charges of sexual harassment while protecting the rights of all persons involved.

The provisions for confidentiality and for informal resolution of complaints are two features of the draft worthy of mention. Instead of cumbersome formal hearings, the draft proposes that the university affirmative action officer first meet informally with the person or persons involved upon receipt of a complaint.

These are fair ways of dealing with a delicate issue like sexual harassment. However, in the interest of being fair to all parties concerned, the policy should perhaps provide for more protection of persons who may be falsely accused, too.

Recognition of women's rights in this area has long been overdue in our male dominated society. A separate University policy providing for confidentiality to deal with sexual harassment is essential if women are to be protected from unscrupulous males.

Maverick Party is to blame for USO'S lack of cohesiveness

There has been a recent flood of articles in the DE concerning the Undergraduate Student Organization, primarily delving into this year's rash of firings, resignations and political improprieties.

From an outsider's perspective, it would appear that most of USO's efforts are aimed at resolving internal upheavals rather than accomplishing some task for the good of the students.

Unprecedented numbers of senators and members of the executive branch have resigned or been fired during Jerry Cook's administration. From this, one might conclude that there is a lack of cohesiveness and leadership in USO.

During his tenure, Cook has managed to create animosity between the executive and legislative branches of USO, causing their working relationship to come to a grinding halt.

Cook has sought to reduce the number of seats in the Senate and has succeeded in restructuring the USO Constitution to give himself a voice in the Senate (the branch of government that theoretically acts as a check upon the Executive branch) and simultaneously diminished the authority of the Senate by removing their power to pass a mandate.

Ultimately, what we are left with is a near unitary form of student government with the only check upon executive power being a highly inactive and weak Campus Judicial Board.

Jerry Cook, who receives a $3,000 grant-in-aid for his role as USO president, is riding on one of Bruce Swinburne's non-need, non-academic scholarships. Might this pertain to Mr. Cook's support for the Bracy purchase and the cutback in library hours? Jerry Cook is a Maverick. In fact, he has a statuette of a Maverick horse displayed on his office desk. I suppose Jerry might be trying to tell us that the Mavericks represent the student body, not USO. USO has been dominated by Maverick presidents and Maverick majority Senates for three years. Perhaps it is time for a change.

Students once interested in serving their fellow students have been turned off by the incessant politicizing of every issue before USO. I have recently seen numerous Maverick supporters and party members break their ties with student government and with Jerry Cook. As the end of the Maverick Party draws near there becomes hope that student government will again resume its responsibilities of serving students and end its days of internal political antics. -Joseph M. Dietzler, Junior, Political Science.

Capitalism, altruism are incompatible

From Kant to Hegel to Marx, collectivists have hidden their fear and hatred of man's reason and ability by preaching total selfishness: i.e., an action is moral only if it is performed out of a sense of duty to others with no personal benefit considered. This is why people are afraid to state that they seek their own happiness.

And yet, Mr. Varecha (DE, Oct. 12) asserts that "we must adopt an altruistic, selfless mode of cognitive awareness."

However, I would like to point out that capitalism and altruism are wholly incompatible. Capitalism has made America the most free and rich country in the history of the world; its basis is that man has the right to exist for his own sake, not as a sacrificial animal serving anyone's need. It does not and cannot work on the principles of selflessness and sacrifice.

The only altruistic societies in existence today are those where "serve the people" is the motto: The People's Republic of China, the Soviet Union and the countries of the Soviet bloc. These nations demonstrate that the only way altruism can be practiced and enforced is through the threat of a gun.

"A selfless mode of cognitive awareness," Mr. Varecha? With no self, what is there that can be cognitive? What, indeed, is there to be cognitive of? A consciousness cannot be shared, nor can a man's mind.

Mr. Varecha also states that imparities must be corrected. Imparities of what? Of ability? Of mind? If not for men of ability being able to exercise their "talent" in life, would we have ever heard of Thomas Edison, Abraham Lincoln or the Wright Brothers? If such imparities were corrected at birth, we would have to reduce every newborn to the mental capacity of the most inferior retardate in order to insure the inferior the same "opportunity" as the superior.

Or does he mean the imparities of national wealth? How does he think that America has become the most prosperous and most opportunity-oriented society on earth? By some mystical method or "right"? No, productivity and achievement have spurred this country above those in Eastern Asian poverty or the jungles of Africa. In short, we earned it.

Capitalism, individualism and the right to live one's life in search of personal happiness are the true meanings of America. We are not a country of irony, but one of opportunity. And yet, sniveling collectivists like Mr. Varecha seek to destroy these values. Is it any wonder that, with this sort of moral bankruptcy, we are in the position we now find ourselves in? - James Gilbert, Senior, Computer Science.

Solidarity leader Walesa is freed

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Interned Solidarity leader Lech Walesa has offered to help "find a solution" to Poland's problems and will be freed without conditions in a few days, the martial law regime said Thursday.

The announcement came a day after the failure of a general strike called by underground leaders of the outlawed independent labor union and several hours after the announcement of the death of Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

"If it is true, I will be happy," Walesa's wife Danuta told The Associated Press by telephone from the couple's home in the northern port city of Gdansk. "I'm full of joy and fear, because I cannot imagine the crowds of people who will want to see him."

Government spokesman Jerzy Urban told foreign reporters at a hurriedly called news conference Thursday that Walesa's release would be delayed until sometime in "the next few days because of technical reasons such as different formalities, his luggage and so forth."

"No conditions were put to Walesa concerning his release," he added.

The 39-year-old Solidarity leader was interned when martial law was declared Dec. 13, and for some time has been held in a government villa in extreme southeast Poland near the Soviet border.

His release, coupled with Monday's announcement that Polish-born Pope John Paul II can visit here next June suggested Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski feels in full control after 11 months of military rule law aimed at crushing dissent.

Despite this, the regime ordered police to disperse the estimated 6,000 people in Warsaw and 2,000 in Krakow who demonstrated Thursday to mark the anniversary of Poland's re-emergence as an independent state after World War I. Police fired tear gas at demonstrators chanting "Solidarity, Solidarity!"

About 800 people were arrested Wednesday night during labor unrest at 24 factories in the two cities.

Walesa in the past refused to come to terms with the government despite the banning of his 10-million-member union, and his wife said after visiting him last month he was still defiant.

But Urban said Walesa wrote Jaruzelski, the premier, Communist Party chief and head of the martial law regime, three days ago offering to come to terms with the government from $5,000 to $10,000, and exempted contracts for duplicating and word processing equipment of over $15,000 per fiscal year from the bidding requirements.

The board also discussed possible changes in executive officer searches and agreed that, if any changes are needed in the structure of the searches, they should be made at a time when no search is in process.

Chairman William Norwood said that searches for presidents and chancellors should be structured differently.

Herbert Donow, president of the Faculty Senate, said that it is important that any search be a joint effort, using input from administrators, faculty and staff.

When a problem arises between faculty or staff and administrators, Donow said, it is the "institution that suffers in a variety of aspects."

New location meets fire codes

Bigger is better for Hill House

By Teresa Muller
Student Writer

Bigger is better, according to Hill House Director Gary Graham, concerning the drug rehabilitation center's new location.

Hill House residents moved from two houses located at 308 W. Cherry St. and 312 S. Beveridge St. to a new location at 308 W. Mill St. Hill House, Inc., purchased the building, a former dormitory, in August.

An advantage of the new building, Graham said, is that residents can live in a "solid structure" of steel and concrete that meets city fire codes.

Jamie Gunther, Hill House business director, said city fire codes would have required Hill House to install a sprinkler system in the old facilities, which are mainly wood.

The new building is being renovated by contractors to make facilities such as plumbing and heating eligible to meet various agencies' requirements. Hill House is also adding heat and smoke detectors.

"Agencies think of us as more of a hosp... although that's only one piece of what we offer," Graham said.

"The move was evaluated by everybody," Graham said, referring to local code enforcement agencies and funding institutions such as the United Way.

Graham said one thing was lost by moving Hill House into its new facility—a home-like atmosphere. "The atmosphere is more that of a dormitory the environment doesn't seem like a house," he said.

Gunther said Hill House has 31 residents and the new building has a capacity of 40, but the new building's ability to house more residents was a minor consideration when the facility was purchased.

Graham said the new neighbors on Mill Street were initially "a bit hesitant" about having Hill House in the neighborhood, but now are "very supportive."

Peter Gabriel slates Arena concert

Peter Gabriel, the elusive singer who formerly fronted the now top-selling group Genesis, will appear in concert at 8 p.m. Dec. 7 at the Arena.

The distribution point for line reservation cards will be announced about 9:30 a.m. Monday over WIDB, 104 cable FM and 600 AM, WTAO, 105 FM and WCIL, 101.5 FM. Tickets will go on sale at 8 a.m. Tuesday at the Arena, and are $8 and $10. Gabriel first gained recognition as leader and founding member of Genesis, one of the first "art-rock" bands to reach commercial success. Genesis did not at first fare as well commercially as did other bands, like Yes and Emerson, Lake and Palmer, but they carved out a cult following which eventually rivaled that of King Crimson.

Gabriel stayed with Genesis for seven albums, developing a reputation as a showman for the band's theatrical concerts, which featured complex props, costumes and lighting effects — they set the stage of the Auditorium Theater in Chicago on fire at the climax of a show in 1974.

The band's most ambitious album, "The Lamb Lies Down On Broadway," and the tour that followed it, showed Genesis at their peak in theatrics and melodramatic music. Gabriel, like Robert Fripp of King Crimson and other British musicians who were reaching commercial success at the time, opted for scaled-down music and production, and he left the band in mid-1975 to pursue a solo career.

He has made four solo albums since, one each for Atco, Atlantic, Mercury and Geffen Records. All have been titled "Peter Gabriel," though his latest release is subtitled

"Security."

He reached his first solo commercial success with his third album, as "Games Without Frontiers," achieved moderate FM radio airplay in 1980. His latest single, "Shock the Monkey," is now receiving extended airplay on AM and FM stations alike.

Children's rights unclear, dean says

By Jack Wallace
Staff Writer

A father had real control over his children in the old days.

Assaulting a child was not against the law and a father was entitled to the services of a child and could sell those services, back in 1810.

"Even today, if my son goes to work I can demand that his wages be paid directly to me," said Dan Hopson, dean of the SIU-C Law School. Hopson discussed "Do Children Have Civil Rights?" Wednesday as part of a program sponsored by the Southern Illinois chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union.

"Probably the best way to get into this is to go into the background of how children were viewed in 1810," Hopson said. They were seen as inherently evil and needing to be strongly and even cruelly curbed of their natural propensity toward idleness.

"There was a strong moral duty on the part of parents, especially the father, to raise moral and productive citizens," he said. It wasn't until the beginning of this century that women were also recognized as legal guardians.

Once a child became an adult, the father lost the right to their wages, and lost custody and control of the child. "So when the child became an adult became a very important issue," Hopson said.

In time this became tied to the child's ability to perform military service. As armor became heavier the age of majority was raised, said Hopson, "because you had to be older just to carry it." Around the 17th century the age of adulthood was set at 21. Until that time a father had total control.

A major change in the concept of family control came in the middle of the 19th century when the state passed compulsory child education laws. Hopson said this broke the power of the father to control the child's education. The laws were upheld in the Supreme Court of the United States.

"You could say this gave the child a right to an education," Hopson said, "but you could also say it took away his right to be ignorant. When you talk about children, a three-way conflict comes into play:

"Civil liberty issues of the child versus the state, the child with the state's help versus the guardian and the family as a unit versus the state." With the establishment of juvenile courts, the state took the position that it had a positive responsibility to aid children when the family unit failed.

According to Hopson, proof of failure was shown by the fact that children engaged in criminal acts or the child was dependent or neglected.

He said some radical changes took place in the 1960s and 70s, evidenced by a radical shift in adoption. "We found the psychological value of children to us as adults. Adoption was no longer something people did for poor little orphans in order to be good Christians. People were fighting to adopt children children's rights.

because they wanted them."

In the 1967 Gault case, the U.S. Supreme Court said a child was a person entitled to due process under the 14th Amendment.

In 1971 came "probably the most radical act we ever had in this area," said Hopson. Congress and the states adopted a constitutional amendment lowering the voting age to 18.

"This was the biggest civil rights act ever passed and certainly freed more people than the Emancipation Proclamation," he said. The civil rights acts of the 1960s also had a great impact on the children's rights movement, Hopson said.

"Many young, idealistic, perhaps radical people, depending on your point of view, started saying that the people with the least rights were children and that they should be protected," he said.

In 1968, the courts recognized the rights of illegitimate children. In a 1969 Supreme Court case, Tinker v. Des Moines Independent School District, the court held that children had First Amendment free speech that could not be prevented.

The Supreme Court also held, in 1968, that children do not have the right to read the same things as adults, such as pornography. In 1976 the court held it to be unconstitutional for a girl child to be required to have parental consent for an abortion.

R.E.M. debut simple, honest

By Michael Seck
Student Writer

R.E.M. happens to be one of the few new rock bands that perform their harsh energetic pop songs with pure honest integrity. There are a few studio gimmicks that appear on their recently released Extended Play entitled "Chronic Town," but no overabundance of recording trickery.

Any overproduction would suffocate the simple yet perceptive musical expressions contained within. R.E.M.'s debut has definite references to the early years of the British Rock invasion.

This is probably due most to guitarist Peter Buck's rampant Rickenbacker chording and Bill Berry's fluid, intense drumming. Michael Stipe's vocals display more than a trace of angry cynicism and Mike Mills' steady bass riffs prove that he is the anchor of the foursome.

Opening with "Wolves, Lower," Buck's clean guitar runs pave the way for Stipe's lyrical lashings. The song has an early Dire Straits feel to it, with Stipe's vocals comparatively competing with Mark Knopfler's nasal narrative interpretations.

R.E.M. to give concert of 'power pop' Saturday

The Student Center Roman Room will play host to the guitar-charged power pop of R.E.M., at 9 p.m. Saturday. Tickets are $3.50 at the Student Center Central Ticket Office. Persons with ticket stubs from the English Beat concert Nov. 5 will receive a dollar off the R.E.M. ticket price. Two discount tickets can be purchased with each English Beat stub.

The Athens, Ga., foursome has garnered an extensive following throughout the United States as a result of constant fact, much of R.E.M.'s instrumental breaks seem to take a path the Police may have taken had they not explored into the reggae-oriented rock that has now become the trademark. More than one does the intensity of "Outlando d'Amour" (The Police's debut album) creep into R.E.M.'s performances.

Upon hearing the first few verses of "Gardening at Night," one is pleasantly fulfilled to hear a song that brings back the youthful essence of the pre-psychedelic '60s without plagiarizing its predecessors.

The wonderful blend of clean electric guitars amongst the acoustical guitars is a definite Byrds trademark, but instead of infringing, R.E.M. expands and builds upon the foundations set by their musical inspirations.

"Carnival of Sorts (Box Cars)" has a Police-esque introduction featuring Mills' and Buck's kinetic convergence of the respective instruments. In Opening side two is "1,000,000," with Buck's rhythmic chord beating and Mills' pounding bass dominating the song. Closing the EP is "Stumble," which is bound to become R.E.M.'s "I Can See For Miles." The mid-break narration is subtly balanced against backward guitar effects.

As stated before, R.E.M.'s "Chronic Town" is an EP built on honest energy and little hope. Their stage presence is also represented by positive musical interaction between all four members, making R.E.M. a truly solid rock band.

Society designed to produce rape, professor says

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — U.S. culture promotes male dominance so much that "the question is not why some men rape, but why don't all men rape," a University of Illinois professor says.

"Male dominance is eroticized," said Pauline B. Bart, professor of sociology and psychiatry at the school's College of Medicine and an expert on rape's effect on mental health. "There is no question that our society, as well as other societies, is designed to produce rape."

In lectures at the University of Arizona here and Arizona State University in Tempe, Bart said the culture had a lot to do with economics.

"The single most important factor in the rape-free society is that women produce useful goods and they control the economic fruits of that production," she said here Wednesday. "In such societies, women are neither battered nor raped."

Ms. Bart cited a survey of several hundred "normal" men in the Chicago area, 35 percent of whom reported that they might or would rape if they knew they would not be caught.

Many of those men claimed they were entitled to force sex on a woman who "invited" rape by her dress or manners, she said.

Anonymous telephone interviews with men who said they had raped without being caught, brought such explanations for the act as "it's an easy way to do it," or "I can do whatever I want with the woman," she said.

"Basically, the men said they raped because they had wanted sex with a certain woman, or they wanted to dominate or control a woman," she added.

William Kunstler, civil rights lawyer, to speak Monday

William Kunstler, acclaimed civil rights lawyer, will be the guest speaker at a luncheon at 3 p.m. Monday in Cristaudo's Flight Restaurant at the Southern Illinois Airport. Tickets for the luncheon are $10 and obtainable by calling 529-2417 by noon Friday.

Kunstler is currently defending American Indian movement leader Leonard Peltier, who is incarcerated at Maricao Federal Penitentiary. He has received worldwide recognition for defending major civil rights cases in the United States, including the Black Panthers, the Chicago Seven and various other American Indian movement leaders.

Brezhnev death no surprise

By Charles Victor
Staff Writer

Leonid Illyich Brezhnev, the man who has led the Soviet Union for 18 years, is dead.

Brezhnev, 75, who outlasted four American presidents since his ouster of Nikita S. Khrushchev in 1964, died of a heart attack Wednesday, leaving behind many problems and many more questions.

In a letter of condolence, President Reagan called Brezhnev "one of the world's most important figures for nearly two decades."

Brezhnev gave the Soviet Union some measure of stability and consistency of policy. At his death he was both president and secretary general of the Soviet Communist party.

Brezhnev's death leaves behind a power vacuum in Soviet leadership. No one has been named to succeed him as president, nor to the more important post of chief of the Communist Party.

According to Stephen Fritz, history faculty member at SIUC, the post of the head of the Communist Party is where the real power lies in Russia.

Associated Press reports indicate that Moscow Communist Party boss Viktor V. Grishin, Defense Minister Dimitri F. Ustinov, Premier Nikolai A. Tikhonov and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko are expected to play key roles in the collective leadership.

Typically the Soviet press has been slow in reporting Brezhnev's death. Tass, the official Soviet news agency made the announcement of his death 26 hours after he died.

According to Stuart Bullion, faculty member in journalism at SIUC and specialist in international communications, this delay gives time for the inevitable behind-the-scenes power struggles.

Traditionally, a collective leadership has filled a temporary power vacuum in the Soviet Union, but Fritz, an expert on Russian history, said the interim period of collective leadership this time will be short.

"The Russians have had time to prepare for Brezhnev's death," he said. "Much of the power struggle has already taken place."

Fritz said he believes the struggle for power will be between the older ideologues like Konstantin Chernenko, a long-time Brezhnev aide, and the younger technocrats.

"Technocrats are the white-collar professionals with roots in industry and technology," Fritz said. "The power of the die-hard ideologues has been on the wane."

However, Fritz said the current leadership vacuum will finally be filled by the former KGB head Yuri K. Andropov. "Normally a head of the KGB has no chance at Soviet leadership. He knows too much about too many people. But Andropov is a bridge between the ideologues and technocrats and will be a strong contender."

The appointing of Andropov by Soviet leaders as head of the committee planning Brezhnev's funeral makes him the strongest candidate, Fritz said.

The general opinion among experts is that no matter who replaces Brezhnev, the Soviet Union will probably be more conciliatory in its foreign relations in the near future.

"The Russians have too many problems with their economy at home and with Poland, Afghanistan and Vietnam outside to embark on any new adventures," Fritz said.

Roles of black student unions to be discussed at conference

By Eric Larson
Staff Writer

Delegates from 15 colleges and universities in Illinois, Ohio, Kentucky, Missouri and Iowa will attend the first annual Camp Southern Summit at the Student Center Saturday. The summit is a regional conference for black student unions in the Midwest, said Karriem Shari'ati, coordinator of the Black Affairs Council.

"The main purpose of the summit is to focus attention on the role of black student unions and discuss the problems they are facing," Shari'ati said.

Camp Southern Summit includes a set of workshops and discussions focusing on various issues relevant to black college students, Shari'ati said.

Among the topics are black involvement in student media, black student leadership, black student unions in predominantly white institutions, and the relationship between black student unions and campus-wide student governments, Shari'ati said.

Registration for the summit is at 8 a.m. Saturday in the International Lounge of the Student Center. The day's activities begin at 9 a.m. in the Student Center Auditorium.

Alauddin Shabazz will present the keynote address, "Survival in the '80s," at the closing session at 4 p.m. in the Auditorium, Shari'ati said. Shabazz will focus on cooperation, organization and mobilization of black students in the 1980s, he said.

Shabazz, a minister with the American Muslim Mission, is a former student and assistant of civil rights leader Malcolm X.

Campus Briefs

K.S. SITARAM, professor of radio-television, will present a seminar on "High Technology Television in International Development," at 2 p.m. Friday in the Agriculture Building Room 209. The seminar is sponsored by the office of International Food and Agriculture Development.

THE PAKISTAN Student Association will present "Pakizah," an Urdu (Hindi) film subtitled in English, starring Nadeem and Shabnam, at 7 p.m. Sunday in the Fourth Floor Video Lounge. Admission is free.

Shari'ati said.

Organizing and hosting the conference cost the BAC $600, Shari'ati said. The money came primarily from the BAC's operating budget, which consists of money from student fees allocated by the Undergraduate Student Organization.

The USO did allocate $211 to help offset BAC's expenses for the conference, which was originally denied, Shari'ati said.

Student delegates from other schools are required to pay a registration fee, he said. SIC-C students may attend the summit free with a valid student ID, he said.

Although this is the first conference of its type in the Midwest, Shari'ati said he hopes it develops into an annual event.

"I'd like to keep it here at Southern because many of the other schools don't have the facilities we have here," he said.

Before We Put You In Charge Of The World's Most Sophisticated Nuclear Equipment, We Put You Through The World's Most Sophisticated Nuclear Training.

It takes more than 16 months of intensive training to become a fully qualified officer in the Nuclear Navy. You begin with four months of leadership training. Then as a Navy officer you get a full year of graduate-level training unavailable anywhere else at any price.

Navy training is based on more than 1900 reactor-years of experience. Right now the Navy operates over half the nuclear reactors in America. And the Navy's nuclear equipment is the most sophisticated in the world. That's why your Navy training is and must be the most sophisticated in the world.

As an officer in the Nuclear Navy, you have decision-making authority immediately. You get important management responsibility fast. Because in the Navy, as your knowledge grows, so does your responsibility.

Your training and experience place you among the country's most qualified professionals. (No surprise that most of the men who operate the reactors in private industry started in the Nuclear Navy.)

It takes more time and more effort to become an officer in the Nuclear Navy. But the rewards are greater, too.

The rewards can begin as early as your junior year in college. Qualify, and the Navy will pay you approximately $1000/month while you finish school.

After four years, with regular promotions and salary increases, you can be earning as much as $37,400. That's on top of a benefits package that includes medical and dental care, and 30 days' vacation earned every year. More responsibility, more money, more future. So, if you're majoring in math, engineering or the physical sciences, and you want to know more about a future in nuclear power, fill in the coupon.

Today's Nuclear Navy is an opportunity like no other in the world.

Grad's painting chosen for 'Art and Law' show

Ramesh Loganathan
Student Writer

A painting by an SIUC graduate was among 100 selected for an exhibition entitled "Art and the Law." The exhibition closed recently in St. Paul, Minn., and is touring Tallahassee, Fla.

The painting, by Mikel Mirakel, a spring 1982 graduate, was among 1,400 entered in a competition sponsored by the West Publishing Co. of St. Paul, which publishes law references and texts.

Entries were required to focus on some aspect of the law. Paintings entered included ones on abortion, prostitution, blind justice and hypocrisy in bureaucracy.

Mirakel's work, entitled "Contaminated Cow," dealt with chemical waste that has contaminated some cows, and killed them by swelling their udders. The cows depicted in Mirakel's painting are being chopped up, and put into empty oil drums, to be dumped later. It took Mirakel about two months to complete the piece.

The exhibition will tour nationally, but details are still being worked out.

Many of Mirakel's works are strong social commentaries on the world. He said paintings should shock at first glance and then provoke deeper thoughts by having to "read into them."

Originally from Belleville, Mirakel has done other acrylic works, including a piece dedicated to Vietnam War soldiers, entitled "When It Rains, I Smell Death." His other works deal with the effects of acid rain, chemical waste, the Mideast massacres and abuse of atomic power.

"It's not the artist's job to answer questions, just to ask them," Mirakel said.

In order to get his message across, Mirakel said at times he attaches toy soldiers, plastic sculptures and the limbs of dolls onto his paintings.

In one painting, he depicts chemical waste pouring from an oil drum onto a child, who is almost totally covered, except for hands and feet, which literally stick out from the art work.

Mirakel has adopted a difficult new wave technique by using bold, dark colors. He said he was influenced by early German expressionists like Ernst Kirchner and Max Beckman.

Large cities not aiding teens, study says

(CHICAGO (AP)) — Large cities do not meet pregnant teen-agers' needs for health services and education, according to a recent study.

Teen-age mothers and their infants lack services from urban private and public agencies like day care, training in parenting and medical services, the study reported.

The survey was made of local health and education departments in 153 cities with populations of 100,000 or more, according to the report. It was the third in a series of studies made by Dr. Helen M. Wallace and colleagues at San Diego State University's Graduate School of Public Health.

The report appeared in the Nov. 12 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Wallace said the latest survey turned up a "continued high prevalence of unintended teen-age pregnancies, of illegitimate births and of retention of these babies by their unwed mothers."

She also reported that the survey showed the infant mortality rate of babies born to teen-age mothers is almost twice that of babies born to mothers in their 20s.

The study said nearly 40 percent of the cities had programs for pregnant teen-agers sponsored by voluntary agencies in 1970, but by 1979-80 the number had fallen to just 20 percent.

'Missionary' is worth seeing twice

By Jay Small
Staff Writer

It's a film you can sink your teeth into without fear of losing them.

"The Missionary," starring Michael Palin of "Monty Python" fame in the title role, is a film which requires no commitment. One doesn't leave the theater crying or rolling up the aisles with laughter. One also doesn't fall asleep in the process of seeing the film; it is short (one hour, 25 minutes) and keeps your attention.

There is no deep social value in "The Missionary." It is strictly entertainment, but that's why most people go to the movies anyway.

The setting is early 20th-century England. Palin plays a missionary of the Church of England who is beset by an unusual assignment — a mission to "fallen women" after returning from 10 years in the jungles of Africa.

Palin plays the role with tact and charm. His facial expressions — especially when propositioned by a London harlot — often speak up for him when the lines themselves are not so strong.

Usually, however, the lines are strong. Palin's screenplay is not devastating, intense or even riotously funny — it is mild, cheerful and subtle.

One has to listen carefully to catch all the lines between the fast pace of British accents and the almost-cruel subtlety of the humor. The funny lines are there, but it is worth it to see the film twice just to find out which ones you missed.

Then again, it might be worth it to see the film twice even with no soundtrack at all! The cinematography is a subtle-but-powerful counterpart to the subtle-but-powerful screenplay. The camera work, amid scenes of turn-of-the-century London and the ever-present rolling hills of the English and Scottish countryside, is beautiful at times.

Even the closeups of Palin and co-star Maggie Smith command attention to the intricacies of their expressions — Palin's nervousness and vigor and Smith's quiet inner longings.

The film falls perhaps a bit short at the end, making the viewer wonder how things got sewn up so quickly. It is not a dissatisfying ending, just abrupt. One is not left hanging, just wondering why more time wasn't spent in wrapping up the plot.

But the genre of this film is such that one is not supposed to wonder. Entertainment is, after all, an absolute — either you are entertained or you aren't.

When seeing "The Missionary," you will be entertained.

Administrator is a poet, too

VP presents poetry reading

By Cynthia Rector
Staff Writer

Poets aren't always the poor and dejected of society, nor are they always English majors. Sometimes they're university administrators who majored in social science.

Bruce Swinburne, SIU-C's vice president for student affairs, shared his poetry with members of the New English Organization and others Tuesday evening in the Student Center. The small room was crammed with students and a few faculty members. In the audience was Undergraduate Student Organization president and vice president, Jerry Cook and Fritz Levenhagen, who looked on open-mouthed during much of the reading.

This was the first time Swinburne had read for an audience gathered specifically to hear his poetry. Those who heard him present his poetry usually had come together for a housing meeting or some special campus event and in the process would hear one of Swinburne's literary creations.

The first poem he shared was the first he remembers writing and it still remains his favorite. "I looked into their eyes" was written 15 years ago when Swinburne and his wife, Mary Lou, returned to the site in California where he had undergone Marine training.

"I was never a stereotypical Marine," he said. "I'm not a hunter. I wouldn't shoot a deer."

At the training site in Oceanside, Calif., he looked into the eyes of those preparing for war and felt his spirit quenched when he saw not hardened men but children. The poem opened the reading on a solemn note using rhythm through repetition.

"You Wouldn't Want Your Daughter to Marry One" was a powerful stab at racial prejudice and the departure from harmony since man's discovery of black and white.

"Mary Lou, My Wife," a short simple poem of praise for Swinburne's marital companion, made couples in the room blush and hug each other.

"To Those Who Teach," like most of Swinburne's poems, evolved out of his own experience — in this instance, teaching. The poem reflected the compassion Swinburne feels for those who choose to help others develop innate potential.

Likewise, "Caring" is a poem about building what sounds like the utopian school, creating an environment where an individual's character is more important than his or her grade point average. It was written to inspire SIU-C faculty members and administration.

The other side of the utopian wish is shown through a poem dealing with his sorrow at wasted potential. It showed the concern he felt when driving and seeing a young man walking along the road, shoulders drooped and head hanging. "More and more people are taking to walking the streets, and how often do we stop to ask why?" he said

The spark igniting Swinburne's creativity is a few summer days in Estes Park, Colo. He writes his yearly housing poem there, to be read at the introductory meeting for resident advisers and the like.

At the onset of his yearly reading, he said he can look forward to a groan coming from the back of the room where Joe Gasser, housing administrator, is inevitably seated. He shared his last two housing poems, which played on the idea of Mork and E.T., respectively, coming to Carbondale.

Swinburne said he enjoyed reading his poetry and found it "humbling," because he doesn't consider himself a great poet. However, his audience took him seriously, laughing and feeling with him, and none will ever doubt that poetry is outside the realm of university administrators.

Facts sought on sex disease

By Michele Inman
Staff Writer

Chlamydia, a newly recognized sexually transmitted disease, will be studied at SIU-C.

It is a common disease found in women after they seek treatment for gynecological problems or sexually transmitted diseases.

The disease, which is caused by the micro-organism Chlamydia trachomatis, affects about three million persons in the United States yearly, according to Silvana Richardson, a nurse and graduate student in health education.

Rich Haberberger, doctoral student in Health Education Department, will conduct the study of the incidence of Chlamydia in healthy SIU-C women, Richardson said.

Since women rarely have symptoms except for a slight discharge, they often have the disease without knowing it, she said. If the disease is untreated, it could lead to inflammation of the cervix or pelvic inflammatory disease in women and inflammation of the urethra in men.

But, she said, "men more often have symptoms, so they are more likely to come in for treatment." The symptoms in men are a burning sensation with urination and a clearish, white or mucous-like discharge, which appears one to three weeks after exposure to the organism.

The study is to be conducted in cooperation with the Health Service, Richardson said. Women who are scheduled for Pap smears Monday through Wednesday each week until the end of the semester will participate in the study. She said participants will answer a questionnaire developed by Haberberger, which asks specific questions on birth control methods, other health practices and feminine hygiene.

"He's trying to find a correlation between birth control methods and health practices in the incidence of Chlamydia," Richardson said. "What he is looking at is the fact that some studies found that 5 percent of women coming in for a routine Pap smear and who had the culture done had positive results, but had no symptoms."

An infected woman may infect her sex partner. The organism may also travel up the fallopian tubes and cause pelvic inflammatory disease or inflammation of the cervix. Only then, do symptoms appear, and the woman seeks treatment, Richardson said.

Symptoms of pelvic inflammation are abdominal pain, fever, nausea, vomiting, chills and possibly burning during urination. If the inflammation is not treated, sterility may result. In men, the organism may travel up the epididymis, the ducts from the testicles, Richardson said, and may also cause sterility.

"In the last couple of years, Chlamydia has been recognized as a common cause of urethritis and cervicitis," Richardson said. In 1982, the Center for Disease Control, according to Richardson, reported the infections caused by Chlamydia are the most prevalent sexually transmitted diseases in the United States today.

Chlamydia also has been known to cause eye infections known as trachoma, which are transmitted by direct contact of mucous membranes, Richardson said. The disease may be transmitted to a baby in childbirth because of contact with mucous membranes in the cervix. But, the only way to get the genital disease is by sexual intercourse, she said.

Women using birth control pills are at a higher risk for developing this infection, ac-ording to studies, Richardson said, and a newly released study conducted at the University of California-San Francisco suggests that cervical cancer may be related to Chlamydia infections.

The testing of Chlamydia, which only requires two additional swabs of the cervix along with the Pap smear, is not a routine procedure, Richardson said. The diagnosis is made through tissue cultures which require transportation on dry ice at minus 70 degrees.

"The process is not a difficult one," Haberberger said in a news release, "but it does require specialized techniques. It is a slow and expensive process."

Mary Lavender, USO secretary, got farewell wishes from friends in the USO office.

USO says good-bye to secretary

By William Jason Yong
Staff Writer

The nicest thing about working as Undergraduate Student Organization secretary was an opportunity to meet students.

The worst thing? Having to do work at the last minute.

Those were the opinions of Mary Lavender, whose last day as USO secretary was Wednesday.

Lavender, 43, will soon move to Poteau, Okla., a town of about 8,000 people. Her husband, Dick, a minister, has secured a job in a Presbyterian church in Poteau.

Lavender said she has served as secretary at USO for 14 months since May 1981. She had served under two USO administrations - that of Todd Rogers in 1981 and the current administration under Jerry Cook.

She said her responsibilities included answering phone calls, arranging appointments for students wanting to talk to executive staff members, typing and supervising two secretarial student workers.

"My job enabled me to meet students and sometimes lasting friendship were established in the process," Lavender said.

"At times, though, the job was frustrating but I overcame it usually.

"The rewards outweighed the pressures and frustrations," she said.

Whenever anything had to be done in the last minute all at the same time, she handled those that were considered top priority first, she said.

Lavender said she has no immediate plans for herself in Oklahoma.

"Later on, I might look for a secretarial job in a junior college or a teaching job in an elementary school."

She said an additional full-time secretary ought to be hired to lessen the burden handled by one secretary.

She said making a comparison between Roger's and Cook's administrations was difficult.

"Both have their own merits and both are unique in their own way," she said.

The Lavenders have two sons, Kevin, 18 and Jeffrey, 20. Kevin is a freshman at SIUC majoring in electronic technology.

performances from Tony Byrne, Jim Griffith, Doug Rusk and Chris Shaw," Steele said. "We know what Porta, Armstrong, Restrepo and Henao can do, but the other four can determine the success more than anything."

The divers have the potential to contribute a high number of points and form the strongest team ever at SIU-C, according to Coach Denny Golden.

Johnny Consenui, Jim Watson and Tom Wentland return with more confidence and a bigger and stronger repertoire of dives. They will be joined by freshman Eric Schmitter, who participated in a Saluki diving camp, and Nigel Stanton, a world-class diver from Great Britain who will join the team in January.

The rapid and great improvement the returning divers have shown is encouraging, according to Golden. They begin working on the high degree of difficulty dives in mid-October and will use them at the start of the season. "They haven't been performing them that long, and they're working on making them consistent now," Golden said. "But their attitude is better, and they're enjoying themselves more. They've added a new element of excitement to their diving with those dives and they're finding out they're not as difficult as they thought."

Hart to join Saluki broadcast

EX-Saluki quarterback Jim Hart will move into the broadcast booth for the SIU-C-Southwest Missouri football game on Saturday.

Hart, now a St. Louis Cardinal quarterback, will do the color commentary alongside play-by-play announcer Tim Ryther for the game, which will be broadcast by Phoenix VI to cable stations in Illinois, Missouri and Kentucky.

Hart has some idle time on his hands since the NFL Players football strike seven weeks ago. Former Saluki punter Tom Striegel, who handled the color chores during the last football telecast, will provide commentary from the sidelines.

Carbondale viewers may see the game on a tape-delay basis on WSIL TV, channel 3.

Convict gets USFL tryout

By Bob Springer
Associated Press Writer
LINCOLN, Ill. (AP) — Mike Sifford faces a unique obstacle to proving he can play for George Allen's Chicago Blitz in the new United States Football League.

He has to get out of prison first. Sifford, serving a 12-year sentence for armed robbery, Thursday got the opportunity of his dreams. He was given a tryout for the USFL team in the prison yard of the medium-security Logan Correctional Center, under the hopeful gaze of his parents and the watchful eye of Allen — and a half-dozen guards.

"I've tested (free agents) all over, but never under these circumstances," said Allen. "Oh, man, this is great," said Sifford, 23, after the hour-long tryout in the rain-soaked yard. "I feel if I'm given the opportunity to play, I can do it," he said. "I've always admired George Allen and figured if anybody would give me an opportunity, he would."

Allen said he was impressed by Sifford's speed. "The thing I liked the most about him is he's got real quick feet. That's not something you can teach someone," Allen said. "He looks better than I thought he would. He moves well, picks up his feet real well."

The 6-foot, 225-pound former college tackle from suburban Chicago ran the 40-yard dash in 4.9 seconds, a feat Allen said was equal to about 4.7 seconds if done in short, dry grass.

Allen said if he decides he wants Sifford — and Sifford can be released from prison — the sandy-haired 1981 Most Valuable Player for the maximum-security Stateville Prison team would join a Blitz training camp in February to try out for a defensive linebacker position. Allen said he'll decide within 10 days whether to offer Sifford a $20,000 to $22,000 a year contract for the season that begins in March.

Sifford has been behind bars for nearly 4½ years. He's due for parole at the end of 1983, but hopes his football prowess — and the fledgling USFL — will be his ticket to an early release in mid-January. That's when he becomes eligible for a work-release program, under which he could live at a minimum-security center in the Chicago area, a State Corrections Department official said.

Sifford could come and go nearly as he pleased under the program, so long as center officials always knew where he was and always would be able to reach him within a two-hour period, said Nic Howell, department spokesman.

Allen said he would argue

Sifford's case before prison officials if that would help him get into the work-release program.

"I think the fact that we're here today looking at him, though, is pretty good for his case," said Allen.

Sifford's chance to impress Allen came after letters the inmate wrote to the Blitz and from recommendations by his prison football coaches and other coaches who had seen him play.

Stateville Prison Coach Willie Raines recommended Sifford, who was sent to the maximum-security prison, near Joliet, on his 19th birthday, July 31, 1978.

Sifford had decided not to return to the University of Dubuque (Iowa) after his freshman year, where he was a tackle on a football scholarship.

After the prison's football coach heard he had played ball at West Leyden High School in Northlake, Ill., and in college at Dubuque, Sifford joined the Stateville team.

Inconsistent Bears may give Salukis a lift

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

Southwest Missouri won't waste its time trying to batter the Saluki defensive front Saturday at 1:30. With an offensive line averaging only 229 pounds, it wouldn't make much sense, and anyway, Bear coach Rich Johanningmeier is from the technicians' school of coaching.

Johanningmeier employs the forgotten Delaware T formation, filling his backfield with three runners and an option quarterback, and tries to spread confusion amongst enemy defenders.

"It's not caveman at all," said the SMS coach.

The Bears run traps, counters, draws, sweeps, counter-counters and misdirection plays. They pass, too, a healthy 18 to 20 times a game, but they even disguise that.

"We don't drop back pass at all," said Johanningmeier. "Everything we do is off play action."

Still, intricate as the Bear offense is, it might just get smashed to pieces by the more powerful Salukis.

The 5-5 Bears have had some field days this year, mainly by violating tiny schools like Lincoln, Harding, and Southeast Missouri State. Lately they've had sterner opposition, and have been filled three straight times, losing 21-17 to Murray State, 30-19 to Nicholls State, and 36-7 to Eastern Illinois.

"There's no question who has the decided edge," said Johanningmeier. "We would be lucky to win, and would have to capitalize on any mistakes, and not make any mistakes ourselves."

Saluki Coach Rey Dempsey doesn't make elaborate predictions about any game. In this case though, he admits that anything less than a sound victory would be a disappointment.

SMS was a Division II school

until this year, and until recently its football program had been a shoestring operation. Four years ago the Bears could only offer 35 scholarships a season, and perhaps as a consequence, the team is woefully short on veteran players. Four freshmen start on offense, four sophomores start on defense.

"We're trying to run before we can crawl — or walk," said Johanningmeier. "We're trying to catch up. I'm embarrassed to tell you what our recruiting budget was a few years ago."

The Bears might be closer to Division I-AA respectability than he might be willing to concede, though. SMS evenly battled Eastern Illinois last week, and only trailed 16-7 in the third quarter before EIU blew them out. Against Nicholls State, the Bears held a 3-1 advantage in total yards but destroyed themselves with bad special teams play.

And despite Johanningmeier's grim words, the team has managed to rank in the top 15 in Division I-AA offense and defense.

The Bear offense revolves around freshman quarterback Greg Arterburn, a reevaluation after being shunned by recruiters a year ago.

"A lot of people overlooked him because of his size," said Johanningmeier of the 5-10, 175-pound passer.

Arterburn has thrown for over 1,000 yards, added 425 on the ground, and has flawlessly directed the intricate Bear offense.

More than half of his completions and much of his yardage has gone to wide receiver Lynn May. With 41 receptions for 729 yards, May has rewritten the SMS record book.

Fullback John Finders leads the Bears with 495 yards rushing, and three other backs have more than 245 yards. The speed of Keith Williams, 51 rushes for 294 yards, is what Dempsey worries about. Also, the Salukis haven't contained many running quarterbacks this year.

SIU-C's leading rusher, tailback Derrick Taylor, has fallen out of favor again, and sophomore Tony Anderson will team with Corky Field in the Saluki backfield.

Anderson is coming off one of the best games by a Saluki back all year. He gained 69 yards on 12 carries, and had the longest run — a 33-yarder — since the Saluki opener.

"He seems to be the better combination as far as being a runner and a pass receiver," said Dempsey.

On the year, Anderson has 206 yards rushing, and has 17 receptions for 170 yards.

Field was one of several injured Salukis aided by the team's week off. Greg Shipp will be back in the lineup, and Fabray Collins might return also. John Harper needed the week off as much as anybody, to rest up a nagging ankle injury.

"I think he's going to be 80 percent, which is better than he's been," said Dempsey.

Harriers eye NCAA District 5 meet title

By Dean Kirk
Staff Writer

So far this season, the SIU-C men's cross country team has made winning meets seem as easy as falling off the proverbial log.

This weekend, however, Coach Bill Cornell's harriers will meet their toughest competition when they compete in the NCAA District Five meet in Columbia, Mo.

Cornell views the competition for the top spot as a contest between SIU-C, Oral Roberts, Iowa State and the meet favorite, Colorado. He is more concerned about Colorado than he is with the Titans and the Cyclones.

"If we run as well as we did in the Conference meet, we shouldn't have any trouble with those two," Cornell said. "I think we've run awfully tough all year."

But the Saluki coach still isn't counting out Oral Roberts or Iowa State, particularly since the Cyclones won the 1981 meet, finishing ahead of SIU-C by 10 points. "They could still be tough," Cornell said.

Missouri cross country Coach Roger Grooters predicts Iowa State will finish third behind Colorado and Oral Roberts, but ahead of SIU-C. He's also picking Colorado's Mark Scrutton to make it two consecutive individual titles.

Colorado Coach David Troy, whose team finished seventh in 1981, explained that his team has essentially the same personnel running this year as last, but that there has been some changes.

"There's been a major attitude change," Troy said. "We just sort of floundered last year."

This year's Colorado top five features Dan Reese and his older brother Sam. The elder Reese, a junior, finished fifth in the Big Eight Conference and the District Five meet his freshman year, but sat out all last year because of injuries. A freshman, Dan Reese has been the fifth or sixth runner for the Buffaloes.

Troy is also counting on the services of seniors Jerry Maris, Orly Waller and Scrutton. Scrutton, Troy said, has been running well all year. He was also this year's Big Eight Conference champion. Like Grooters, Troy is "pretty confident" that Scrutton will win this weekend's meet.

To Troy, the Salukis are a "big question mark" since Colorado has already competed against and defeated all the other teams that could be factor in this weekend's meet — Oral Roberts, Iowa State and Kansas. Kansas has been the only team of the three SIU-C has faced this season. The Salukis beat the Jayhawks 22-35.

The same Saluki lineup for the Missouri Valley Conference meet — Mike Keane, Tom Ross, Gary Munson, Tom Breen, Kevin Sturman, Dave Behm and Mike Gonzalez — will once again represent the Salukis.

The field of 112 runners will run on the Gustin Golf Course on the Missouri campus. Cornell said that the hilly course might be advantageous to the Salukis who are used to running on their predominantly hilly home course of Midland Hills.

Depth is swimmers' key for successful season

By JoAnn Marciszewski
Associate Sports Editor

When an athlete who contributes more than half of a team's NCAA point total graduates, he leaves behind a lot of gaps.

For the men's swimming and diving team, the ability to fill those gaps left by the absence of All-American Roger Von-Jouanne is the key to a successful season.

Some will be more easily filled than others. This season, the team should break again into the top 15 after finishing 12th last year, according to Coach Bob Steele.

Although the Salukis are without a versatile and powerful swimmer in the mode of Von-Jouanne, the team does have individuals who stand out.

"We have three fine returning swimmers who are capable of qualifying for Nationals," said Steele. "Conrado Porta, Pablo Restrepo and Keith Armstrong will form the nucleus of the NCAA group, and we'll have to surround them with people who have potential but have to do it. Doing it is what it comes down to."

Porta, a senior from Argentina and this year's captain, tops the list of the backstrokers. He qualified for last year's NAAs in the 50 and 100-meter and also as a member of the 400-meter medley relay team.

Armstrong will provide some of the Salukis' best times. The junior holds SIU-C records in the 50 and 100-meter freestyle, and should break the :20 and :44 marks, according to Steele. Armstrong also competes in the relays and is capable of reaching 1:36 and 1:37 for his leg of the 200-meter free.

Restrepo is the backbone of the breaststroke line-up holding records in the 100-meter with a time of 55.91, 200 in 2:01.0, and a 50 relay split in 55.42.

Carlos Henao can be counted on to do well in backstroke events, as can Mike Brown in distance free. Distance races, a troublesome area for the Salukis last year because of lack of depth, should be one of the most improved this season.

The butterfly is the only event without solid strength, and there could be some weakness in individual medley, according to Steele.

SIU-C has one of its toughest schedules ever, with teams such as Southern California, Auburn and Alabama, on its slate. All finished ahead of the Salukis at the NAAs.

Tough competition will also come from Iowa, and a battle for revenge against Miami will highlight the National Independent Conference meet in early March.

"The key to a successful dual-meet season will be to get much more consistency and better
