Revolutionary plan draws mixed review

By Christiann Baxter
Administration Writer

A faculty committee's 21st Century Plan, which calls to streamline the general education curriculum and to cut some degrees, programs and tenured faculty and staff positions, hinges on the need to keep the financially strapped University offering opportunity and excellence.

The plan, which is designed to guide SIUC into the 21st century, was made public to about 550 faculty members Monday at the annual faculty meeting.

Donald Paige, president of the Faculty Senate, said he is pleased with the report but it will face resistance by certain people.

"I think it's a superior report," he said. "It's going to make SIUC a unique university within the limited funds we're going to have."

But there will be disagreements over what areas should be cut, Paige said.

"There's some people who don't want to give up their deanships," he said. "Administrators don't want to lose jobs."

Don Garner, the former faculty senate president who came up with the idea of the 21st Century Plan, said the most important aspect of the plan is that the faculty has a voice through it.

"I think only the faculty can lead

Core curriculum envisioned as part of one supercollege

By Christiann Baxter
Administration Writer

The faculty's 21st Century Plan was made public today at the annual faculty meeting in a flurry of speculation about the actual content of the eight-page document.

The plan, which was created by a five-member faculty committee, is designed to guide SIUC into the next century.

The plan calls for the replacement of current general education classes with a more limited core curriculum. This curriculum would be under a new department called the College of Arts and Sciences. This college, which would head the undergraduate curriculum, would combine liberal arts and science colleges with the fine arts.

One or 2 percent of the University's budget during the next five years should be used to study what programs should have resources taken away or added, according to the plan.

The report combines two years of work by the Faculty Senate Task Force for the 21st Century.

The five-member committee includes Harris Deller, Patricia Elmore, John A. McKillip, Gola

Waters and George Gumenman. Unlike former Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit's 21st Century plan, the faculty plan eliminates a goal to move SIUC from a Carnegie Research II institution to a Research I university.

Other parts of the plan include:

- Charging juniors and seniors more than first and second year students and varying tuition from each college based on costs of programs.

- Filling administrative positions internally on a rotating basis. Faculty would move into an administrative position for a certain number of years and then return to their teaching positions.

- Creating a new position, vice

Kidnappers release American, British hostages

DAMASCUS, Syria (UPI) — Briton Terry Waite and American Thomas Sutherland were freed Monday by the Islamic Jihad, brought to Damascus and handed over to British and U.S. officials in the latest success for a United Nations initiative to end the 9-year-old hostage stalemate.

Waite, 52, a British church envoy, said at a news conference in the Syrian capital that when he and Sutherland, 60, were set free, their captors apologized for having kidnapped them, saying they realized only later that "it served no constructive purpose."

Three Americans and two Germans are still being held in Lebanon. Waite said his captors promised that the remaining three American hostages, including the longest-held, Associated Press reporter Terry Anderson, would be freed by the end of the month, but could give no details about the captive Germans.

Sutherland and Waite said they were both "chained to the wall" throughout their captivity, being freed for only 10 minutes a day to attend to personal hygiene. Sutherland said Anderson was no longer being held in chains but was still confined in a room with little fresh air and light.

And in an appeal apparently directed at Israel, Waite said, "In the last years we've lived through some of the sufferings of the people of Lebanon. We've been under shell fire constantly. To be under shellfire when you're chained to the wall is not pleasant.

But we've lived through that suffering.

"And all hostages would plead with those who are holding the people of south Lebanon as hostages, to release them soon, to put an end to this problem, to put an end to terrorism and to find peaceful, humane and civilized

Proposal to reduce expected deficit includes increase in city sales tax

By Annette Holder
City Writer

A proposed city plan that calls for raising the Carbondale sales tax to 7 percent and reducing employee benefits is designed to help reduce the city's expected $4 million deficit by 1997.

The Carbondale City Council will review the plan that offers suggestions on decreasing the projected five-year budget deficit at 7 tonight at its council meeting.

The plan was developed by some city officials and employees in response to a projected budget deficit of more than $1 million by 1994, and a projected deficit of more than $4 million by 1997, according to a Nov. 5 report by the city finance department.

The plan was developed by the Innovation Team, a group of 25 city employees. The plan considers raising

Jackson County unemployed eligible for additional benefits

By Doug Toole
Politics Writer

Additional federal relief could be on the way by Thanksgiving for eligible members of Jackson County's 1,843 unemployed residents.

Illinois residents who have received the maximum unemployment benefits of 26 weeks now are eligible to get an additional 13 weeks of benefits to help them until they find jobs.

Statistics from the Illinois Department of Employment Security's most recent survey shows that 548 Carbondale residents are unemployed—about 5.8 percent of the city's population.

Jackson County has about 1,843 residents out of work, which is about 7.3 percent of the population.

President George Bush signed the $5.2 billion benefit extension bill into law late last week, reversing his previous position that extended benefits were unnecessary because of

Divers' dominance helps men's team to 3-0 start

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

The SIUC men's diving team already is making a positive contribution to the 1991 swim team, said swim coach Doug Ingram.

Ingram said the swim team expects a lot from the divers this season.

"The divers are a subset like any other group," Ingram said. "The men's squad is fairly deep. We can go into meets knowing we have all the bases covered. Diving is one of our stronger areas. I think our program is as good as any program in the Midwest and the nation."

The men's swim team is 3-0 in dual meet competition partially thanks to the divers' dominance.

As an example of individual dominance, sophomore Rob Siracusano already has qualified for his second chance at the NCAAs on the 3-meter boards. He qualified with 377.05 points in the men's victory Friday against the University of Kentucky.

Siracusano said he wanted to qualify early and get it out of the way. Last season he finished 16th on the 3-meter boards in the NCAA finals.

"For the rest of the season I want to become more consistent on the dives I'm doing now and try to put other dives into my list," Siracusano said. "I expected to qualify, but my goal is to finish in the top five at the NCAA championships."

Siracusano has finished first in all the diving events but one this season. He finished second on the 1-meter boards against the University of Missouri Nov. 9.

Diving coach Dave Ardrey said he also expects Siracusano to qualify on the 1-meter boards.

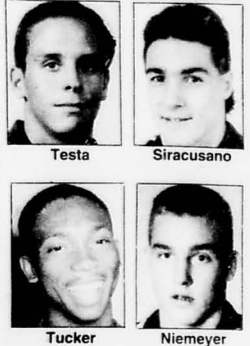

"Rob's physical strength is one of his advantages," he said. "His strength gives him height off the board. It allows him to do more difficult dives."

In the summer, Siracusano went to the Olympic Festival in Los Angeles. He said the festival taught him a lot about himself.

"It gave me a perspective on my goals that were attainable," he said. "It made me more focused on my diving."

Siracusano said his goal for the year is to make it to the Olympic trials in July 1992, so he can compete in the 1996 Olympics. To make it to the trials he has to finish in the top 12 at the senior nationals in April. Last season he finished 24th.

Ardrey said all of his divers are capable of qualifying for the NCAA championships. Senior Greg Testa has made preliminary zone qualification for the NCAA the past two seasons. He qualified

Dawgs hope for at-large bid

By Todd Eschman
Sports Writer

It has been two weeks since the Salukis finished their regular season schedule, but they still are holding on to slim postseason hopes.

The Dawgs could finish in a tie for first place in the Gateway Conference if Eastern Illinois defeats Northern Iowa Saturday.

Northern Iowa, 9-1, handed Western Illinois its second conference loss of the season Saturday to knock them out of first place and into a tie for second with SIUC. UNI suffered its only Gateway loss to the Salukis Sept. 21 at McAndrew Stadium. A loss to Eastern would cause the three-way tie.

Northern Iowa ranks No. 4 in the NCAA Division I-AA poll and will make the playoffs as Gateway champion regardless of the outcome Saturday. Eastern Illinois is in fifth place in the Gateway with a 2-3 record (4-6 overall).

But even if the Salukis do not take a share of first place, the NCAA Division I-AA football committee could select them for one of eight at-large playoff bids. The at-large selections will be announced next week.

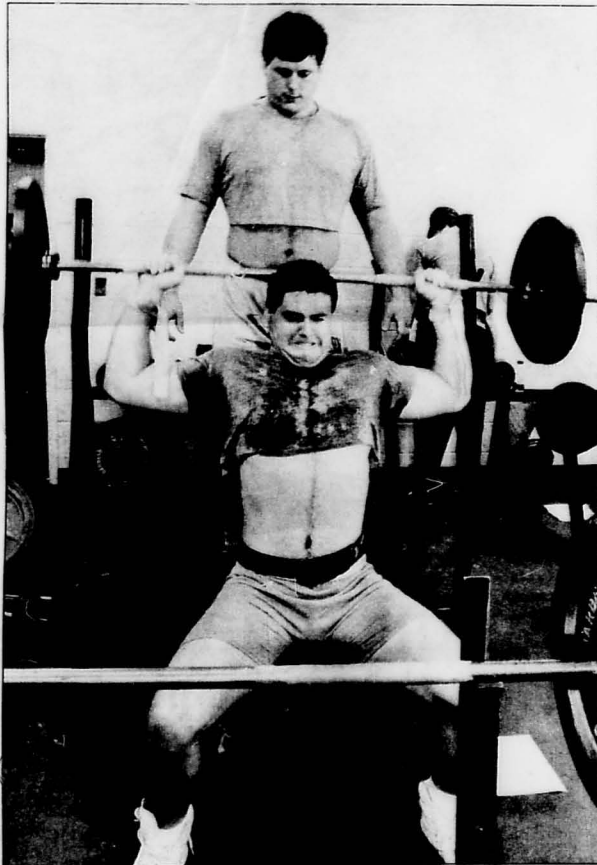

Head coach Bob Smith has said the chances of the Dawgs getting selected are "slim, slim, slim."

"Unless the people who vote (on playoff teams) notice that we beat Northern Iowa, I don't think our chances of getting into post-season play are very good," Smith said after the Salukis loss to Louisiana Tech ten days ago.

NCAA spokeswoman Debbie Wilkerson said the Division I-AA committee selects at-large playoff participants based on the teams record and the difficulty of its schedule.

"We want to make sure the best teams are selected," Wilkerson said. "There may be some teams that don't have as good of records as others but they may have had a much more difficult schedule."

Smith said the Salukis will continue to condition and participate in individual drills but the team will hold no formal practice unless it receives one of the postseason spots.

C. Michigan to consider ban of game

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (UPI) — Central Michigan University is considering banning its annual football game against rival Western Michigan in the aftermath of Saturday's riot near campus.

Public Safety Director Martin Trombley said 33 people were arrested by early Sunday morning after fires, rock throwing and a looting rampage caused at least $100,000 in damage.

The melee, which Trombley called the "worst riot" in the city's history, followed Central Michigan's 27-17 victory over Western Michigan Saturday. It was the third straight year of street violence after the game.

Trombley had his force of 22 officers on duty for Saturday night, but the large crowd overwhelmed his department by 9 p.m., when the call went out to other agencies for help.

Some 80 police officers from surrounding areas joined Mount Pleasant officers, but it was 3 a.m. Sunday before the streets were quiet.

During the melee, people overturned and set on fire at least four cars, looted buildings and attacked onlookers and police, Trombley said.

Those arrested were charged with offenses ranging from drunken and disorderly behavior to arson and assault. Six police officers were injured as were an unknown number of students.

Trombley said the game between the schools should be canceled for a few years.

Detroit lineman paralyzed; neck requires surgery

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit Lions lineman Mike Utley is paralyzed from the chest down as a result of a broken neck vertebrae suffered in Sunday's game against the Los Angeles Rams.

The 25-year-old offensive guard underwent surgery Monday at Henry Ford Hospital to relieve tissue and fragment pressure on the spinal cord.

"If you can relieve that pressure as soon as possible that's always hopeful that it may result in some return of function," said Dr. David Collon, the team physician.

Collon said the 6-foot-6, 279-pound lineman will undergo a spinal fusion in a few days and will require immobilization, which "will take a number of months."

Utley was injured on the opening play of the fourth quarter in the 21-10 Detroit victory. As quarterback Erik Kramer was completing an 11-yard touchdown pass to Robert Clark to make the score 14-10, Utley was trying to block lineman David Rocker when the injury was sustained.

Women hoopsters sign two in early period

By Scott Wuerz
Sports Writer

The SIUC women's basketball program has taken two steps toward the future.

A pair of offensive-minded guards inked scholarship offers Nov. 13—the first day of the one-week NCAA early signing period—to join coach Cindy Scott's program. The regular signing period is in April.

Nikki Gilmore, a 5-4 guard from Bishop DuBourg High in St. Louis, is the latest addition in a long stream of Saluki prospects from the Missouri city, Scott said.

As a junior point guard last season Gilmore averaged 18 points and six assists a game as she led DuBourg to a 20-7 record. She averaged 43 percent from the field and 69 percent from the charity stripe.

Scott said she hopes Gilmore can follow in the footsteps of former St. Louis-area standouts Dana Fitzpatrick, SIUC Hall of Famer Petra Jackson and all-time Saluki leading scorer Amy Rakers.

For us St. Louis has been a pipeline for success," Scott said. "We've generally gotten the pick of the litter there."

"Nikki is cut out of the same mold as junior guard Anita [Scott]. She's so quick and such a great passer. She has the ability to be one of our very best."

Gilmore, a prospective major in radio-telecommunications, visited Villanova and South Florida before committing to SIUC.

WHITE HOUSE TAKES DUKE BID LIGHTLY — The White House brushed off suggestions Monday by David Duke that the former Klan leader and Nazi sympathizer may challenge President Bush for the 1992 GOP presidential nomination. "I think it's pretty hard for somebody who lost in a landslide in his own state, to extend his own ambitions beyond the state," said press secretary Marlin Fitzwater.

BUSH CONCERNED ABOUT STOCK MARKET — President Bush, his popularity being eroded by the ailing economy, anxiously monitored the stock market Monday while his spokesman predicted defeat for credit card legislation opposed by banks. HOUSE STOPS CREDIT CARD CAP COLD — Concerns about the stock market reaction and a possible credit crunch prompted the House Monday to put the brakes on legislation imposing a limit on credit card rates. A House Banking subcommittee had been scheduled to vote on an interest cap bill similar to one passed last week by the Senate, but the meeting was abruptly called off. "We're going to slow down the credit card bill," House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., told reporters.

Champaign woman returns after three-month kidnapping

By Rob Neff
Police Writer

A Champaign woman, missing since August, was abandoned by her kidnapers unharmed Saturday in Florida, ending a 3-month long search.

Nandhini Subbiah, a junior at the University of Illinois, walked into the Lakeland, Fla., police station Saturday night and told police she had freed herself after her captors tied her to a tree and abandoned her.

Her return came two days after her car was discovered on a county road near Tampa.

The police still have no motive for the abduction. Master Sgt. Charles Schwarting, spokesman for the Illinois State Police, said there was no ransom demand and Subbiah said she was not abused by her captors.

"We haven't found a motive yet," he said. "We're not giving out specific details of the abduction, but she said she was well treated and not physically harmed."

Schwarting said, however, that bruises on her face indicated she had been struck on the forehead and face around the time she was tied to the tree.

Subbiah had been missing since Aug. 9, when two men allegedly kidnapped her on Interstate 74 after her car broke down.

According to police, the men held her in a number of locations during the past three months, traveling in both a pick-up truck with a white top and her 1988 Ford Escort.

One man is described as a white male 25-28 years old, 5' 8" tall and weighing 160 pounds. He has a medium but athletic build and brown hair, is clean shaven and talks with a slight southern accent.

The other man is described as a male with a dark complexion and Middle Eastern features, 30 years old, 6-feet tall and weighing 150 pounds. He has a thin build, short straight black hair and talks with a slight Middle East accent.

Subbiah is at home with her parents, recovering from her ordeal and will not return to school at least until the spring semester.

Jidendra Solanki, president of the India Association of Greater Rockford and friend of the family, said the entire community is excited over her return.

"Everyone's so excited and glad," he said. "We're all really pleased that she's back safely. It's probably the best news we've heard all year."

"I think what she needs now is to settle down with the family. She's been through quite a lot," Solanki said.

Weather triggers heat wave in some University buildings

By Sarah Anderson
General Assignment Writer

Temperatures in some SIUC classrooms soared into the mid to upper 80s Monday, as temperatures outside remained unseasonably warm.

Students, faculty and administrative staff sweated through the day in campus buildings, including Pulliam and Faneer halls, Morris Library and the Student Center.

Chuck Williams, mechanical engineer at the Physical Plant, said heating the University is done in stages.

"Every building is different. It depends on the design of the building and certain buildings are easier to switch (heating and cooling) on," Williams said.

Jay Starratt, assistant director of Morris Library, said changing temperatures outside make it difficult to keep up with temperatures inside.

"This is a big building and it takes a while to change inside," Starratt said.

University buildings are either in a summer position or a winter position. If the air conditioning is not on, the building is in its winter position.

Trade should cease until China reforms

EVERYONE IS BORN with basic human rights. These rights as our forefathers so courageously noted in the Declaration of Independence are the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

These rights are valuable to the people of the United States.

Two years ago, the people of China were trying to obtain recognition of these rights by their government. The government replied by shooting down college students and citizens of China in the streets.

Yet, the United States is considering returning favored trade status to China, a country that has repeatedly suppressed human rights, and delivered the blood bath of Chinese students in Tianamen Square in June 1989.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III and China's leaders ended talks Sunday with very little progress toward easing China's suppression of human rights.

THE UNITED STATES should not ignore other countries, but it also should not compromise what this country and its people stand for just because it means lucrative trade dollars.

After the talks, China promised to give the United States some details on each of about 800 political prisoners. In the same breath China refused to free any of the prisoners or allow the Red Cross to visit them.

How can such inhumane and torturous treatment be rewarded by resuming trade with China. Baker said he did not expect a "dramatic breakthrough," but before negotiations should continue at least some kind of reformation should be made on the part of China.

UNTIL SUCH TIME when China shows the United States that it is serious about treating its people in a humane manner, the United States should refuse to discuss lifting trade sanctions.

Tianamen Square should not be an example of China's domestic policy. If it is, it should not be the United States' foreign policy.

The government should not compromise basic human values for money. If it continues to, the people of this country may one day find that their freedoms have been sold and this country possesses the same morals and values that we currently find distasteful in China.

SIU faculty should watch talks in BOG collective bargaining

Your Nov. 14 front-page story on the strike authorization vote in the Board of Governors system prompts me to write with some additional information.

First, the 974-402 vote to authorize a strike does not necessarily mean a strike; it merely authorizes the legal bargaining representative of the faculty members at the five institutions to call a strike if and when collective bargaining breaks down completely.

This may occur at a time that would throw final exams and semester grades into disarray (that might be quite a good tactic, actually); but it may not occur until the beginning of the Spring 1992 semester, and it may not ever occur at all.

Second, while it may be true that the Board of Governors has offered $1.8 million for wage increases, that is not as much money as it may seem to be. Remember that there are five institutions involved, and consider how much each faculty member would receive as a percentage of his or her salary.

Further, this amount has been offered over a period of several years, not all at once. One percent per year for three years, or even two percent per year for three years is not a sufficient salary increase, especially when Board of Governors faculty members are 15 percent below comparable midwestern institutions.

At the end of three years, with this offer, the faculty will be even further behind than they are now.

Third, no matter what salary increase is ultimately agreed upon (and there is no question that there will be some increase, unlike in the SIU system where we have no collective bargaining), the system administration in the BOG will pick up the increases in health insurance that faculty in the SIU system have to pay themselves.

Fourth, the contract will call for these increases in addition to whatever increases are allocated by the legislature; the BOG faculty will get their negotiated raises over and above the across-the-board money that the SIU faculty will get.

SIU faculty should watch the BOG negotiations very carefully; this can show us exactly what collective bargaining can achieve in this state in hard economic times.

The results might be surprising, and we might very well want to reconsider our rejection of collective bargaining on this campus.—David Stevens, associate professor of theater, member of IEA/NEA.

Insurance needs to cover all options of reproduction

We believe that SIUC student health insurance should cover all reproductive options. Given recent letters to the editor, it appears that carrying a pregnancy to term is NOT viewed as a choice.

At the same time, terminating that pregnancy IS viewed as a choice. In Illinois, carrying a pregnancy to term is a choice that every pregnant woman makes because there is another safe and legal option available. Therefore, both a full-term pregnancy and abortion can be considered elective.

Why does SIUC provide its students with insurance coverage of only one of these options? If it is indeed the policy of this university not to cover elective health care, then we could argue that pregnancy should not be covered. This is, obviously, a ludicrous suggestion, but not to cover all reproductive options is just as illogical.

We urge you to support a woman's freedom to choose.—Ann Robinson and Ann Maree Norris, members of Voice for Choice.

Artist should use talent to make 'joyful' painting

I believe that the SIUC College of Art and Design has gone too far.

It is not unusual for their so-called "artists" to attack the sacred beliefs of the Christian religion, but this time their work is beyond blasphemy and is entirely intolerable.

The exhibit appearing in the Vergette Gallery in the Allyn Building is by a Mr. Greg Binder and is entitled "I Have Lost My Mind."

I fear, Mr. Binder, it is your soul that has been lost.

The exhibit features irreverent paintings of the Lord Jesus Christ. One, entitled "Green Nazarene," vulgarly depicts Him with an erect penis. Another is called "Mother Messiah" and features an effeminate, pregnant Jesus with his/her breasts and pubic hair exposed. A third, "Jesus Salad," seems to promote cannibalism.

I am appalled that the University supports such "art" and that my tuition money and my parents' tax dollars go to fund these paintings.

I am all for freedom of expression, but these paintings are intolerable.

All practicing Christians are obliged to let the administration know that we will not accept this treatment of our beliefs. I ask that all those who share my feelings let them be known to the faculty of the University.

In Jude, verse 10, the Bible says about people such as Mr. Binder: "these men mock and curse at anything they do not understand."

I wish that Mr. Binder would use his God-given talents to make a joyful painting unto the Lord, rather than to ridicule what he obviously does not understand.—Kevin Teaff, junior in political science.

the recession was over.

Danny Bender, an unemployed Carbondale resident, was at the Carbondale unemployment office Monday to see if he is eligible for the additional benefits.

Bender was laid off from the Marion Holiday Inn in April, where he worked as a security officer.

His final benefit check came last week.

The additional 13 weeks he could receive under the benefits extension will be enough for now, Bender said, but he wishes the extension was longer.

"I've got a wife and a newborn child, and this would help out until I find (work) around here," Bender said.

Richard Morris, manager of the unemployment office in Carbondale, said the new benefit plan will not add much additional paperwork to his office.

The central office in Chicago has sent notification of eligibility to 62,000 Illinois residents, who will complete a certification form and return it to one of the 64 field offices in Illinois, he said. The field offices enter the information into their computer system, and the Chicago office sends out the checks.

"It's the same program, except the federal government provides the funding instead of the state," Morris said.

ways of resolving the very complex problems that face the people of the Middle East."

Israel controls a 12-mile-wide stretch of Lebanon along the northern border of the Jewish state and directs an Arab militia, the South Lebanon Army, which patrols the region, known in Israel as a "security zone" to prevent cross-border terrorist attacks.

Both former hostages thanked the United Nations and the governments of Lebanon, Syria and Iran for interceding on the captives' behalf.

Waite was kidnapped in 1987 during a mission to Lebanon for the Archbishop of Canterbury to negotiate the release of other hostages. Sutherland, the dean of the agriculture department of the American University of Beirut, was kidnapped two years earlier, making him the second longest-held captive.

Their release formed part of a swap of Western hostages held in Lebanon for Arabs held by Israel in a deal brokered by the United Nations that intensified on Aug. 8, when Briton John McCarthy was freed to deliver a letter on the plight of the hostages to U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

The announcement came, accompanied by a photograph of Anderson, that was delivered to a Western news agency in Beirut.

taxes, eliminating some committees and reducing employee benefits to help decrease the projected deficit.

In its plan, the I-Team considered the city's five-year budget projection, a decrease in state and federal money, census bureau reports, SIUC budget cutbacks and services offered to residents.

City Manager Steve Hoffner said no decisions, such as accepting a tax increase, will be made tonight, but the plan will be used for consideration by the council for ways to reduce costs.

Mayor Neil Dillard said the study was well-done and the suggestions will assist the councilmembers in reducing the projected deficit by stimulating discussion.

"We're a long way from making any decisions," Dillard said. "There's nothing I want to make comments about because that will make it seem like I've already made up my mind, and I haven't."

Capital improvements, such as the freight depot building on Town Square and the water treatment plant, have contributed to the projected deficit, said Paul Sorgen, Carbondale finance director.

The plan proposes increasing the sales tax on consumer purchases from 6.25 percent to 7 percent and repealing the 1 percent tax on food and beverages. It also calls for a 5 percent sewer and utility tax.

City Councilman Keith Tuxhorn said the plan places too much emphasis on sales as a way to raise money to offset the deficit.

"This is not as predictable a source of income as I would like to have," Tuxhorn said. "We have to consider the economy going down. This makes me wonder how solid (the plan) is."

Other alternatives need to be considered, but Tuxhorn said he did not want to comment on what they could be.

Carbondale has received more than $100,000 less a year because of a reduction in state and federal money given to city governments since the mid-1980s, according to the report.

Sixty-one percent of U.S. cities have expenses exceeding revenues, according to a 1991 survey conducted by the National League of Cities.

Census bureau figures show an increase in the number of people who will need services provided by the city, according to the plan.

"There are more people in the city, and this is the main reason we need more services," Hoffner said. "But there are also more children and lower and moderately lower income people living in Carbondale, although this is a preliminary observation."

City officials are anticipating that proposals by SIUC administrators and faculty would reduce SIUC faculty positions, eliminate programs and place a cap on University enrollment.

All of this could negatively affect economic growth of Carbondale, Hoffner said.

"Fewer students means fewer people living in Carbondale," Hoffner said. "This will affect the housing market and sales tax revenue."

A reduction in services would reduce costs, according to the plan. Councilman Richard Morris said cutting services would be a necessary but tough decision for the council to make.

"If you look at the trend, governments are cutting back," Morris said. "But if we run the city with a balanced budget, we'll have to make some hard decisions. This includes reducing social programs."

Larry Mills, chairman of the organizational structure task force that formulated ideas on restructuring departments for efficiency, said the committee recommended ideas that could save the city money.

City employees would not lose their jobs but might be placed in another office, Mills said.

"Relocating employees could save money and make the city run more efficiently," Mills said. "We may not realize it until we're down the road. We may not realize it immediately."

this University out of the wilderness," he said.

The plan calls for cost containment through retirements, resignations and terminations of faculty and a recommended two-year hiring freeze on tenure track positions.

Larry Briggs, professor in art and design, said parts of the plan will be difficult for the faculty to accept.

"I feel it's going to be scary for the faculty," he said. "I think the bottom line they heard was 'there's going to be a lot of us getting fired.'"

But James Quisenberry, director of International Programs and Services, said some areas of the plan depend on legislation concerning the budget, not faculty decisions.

"I think there are a lot of very difficult areas spelled out in the part which the faculty really has no control over," he said.

The current general education system would be replaced with a more limited core curriculum, according to the plan. A proposed College of Arts and Sciences would contain the combined curriculum of liberal arts, sciences and fine arts.

James Orr, associate professor in engineering and technology, said it will be difficult to decide what programs to cut.

"With the financial situation, some action must take place," he said. "Some programs will have to go."

Glenn Gilbert, professor in the linguistics department, said the plan is long overdue.

"I think SIU is like a plant that's grown all over the landscape without trimming," he said. "I see only positive things coming out of it. Our task now is to not let it fall into a black hole."

Gola Waters, acting president of the SIU Foundation and a member of the 21st Century Task Force, said the University's financial situation is critical to the success of the institution.

"If we don't do something about it, we will drown in a sea of mediocrity," he said. "Money is a crucial factor."

Paige said the plan will be examined by the SIUC Faculty Senate and the Graduate Council. Sections of the plan then will be presented to the administration, who will decide what parts to present to the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Annual event displays Thai folk traditions

By Fatima Janvekar
General Assignment Writer

Students from Thailand bring a tradition of deeply-rooted values and a pattern of life that stands in stark contrast to the boldness of the West.

Thai students brought together the pieces of their culture last weekend for Thai Nite, an annual event sponsored by the Thai Student Association.

"Thai Nite was organized as a social event to allow the people of Thailand to show their culture and tradition and share a good relationship with people of all nations," said Sence Suwandee, president of the TSA.

"The Thai students on campus wanted to have more interaction with the local people and also help them understand our culture and the way we live," he said.

About 300 people attended Thai Nite, an event packed with exhibits of arts and crafts, a slide show on the history and development of Thailand, musical and cultural performances and a buffet serving a traditional Thai dinner and delicacies.

"Thai means free, and Thailand means Freeland," said Captain Heckler, assistant Thai student adviser.

"The heart of Thailand is Bangkok, its capital city. With its multitude of temples and age-old monuments," Heckler said. "Thailand has an abundance of architectural beauty."

Thailand's economy has been developing in quantum leaps in the last few decades. Previously, rice was the country's main export commodity with a huge worldwide demand.

Today, Thailand has opened its doors to travelers, and tourism now is a booming industry, bringing in the maximum amount of foreign exchange.

Rich in historical splendor, it is equally abundant in fruits and agriculture crops.

"In a good season, pineapples of the best kind will cost you only 25 cents a kilo," said Vejay Setthapurn, a Thai graduate in curriculum instruction.

"Thailand also produces 20 different kinds of mangoes and a variety of other fresh fruits and vegetables," Setthapurn said.

The Thai people are experts in agricultural products, as the majority were and still are farmers, he said.

Farmers, hawkers, and traders sell their wares at the "floating market," a congregation of hundreds of boats, called sampans, that are piled with goods from which buyers can choose.

Artistic of mind and soul, the natives make artifacts and hand-paint exquisite dolls out of cloth, clay or porcelain to sell to tourists. Most of the dolls are part of traditional stories, originating from Hindu theology.

Although 90 percent of Thailand people are Buddhist, traces of Hindu philosophy and culture can be found in most of Thai ceremonial activities, especially their dances.

Dances in Thailand are performed solely by women, said Ratchaneekorn Tongsookdee, graduate in higher education.

"For example, the Thep Ban Tong dance is in celebration of the Hindu god, Indra, and can only be performed by girls or women. The movements of the women symbolize the power of Indra," Tongsookdee said.

"This night is a wonderful opportunity for the entire Thai community of 70 students, faculty and family members to come together and let the world know about their country," said Emil Spees, faculty adviser to the TSA.

"We try to plan this event once every year, and it is extremely informative for people interested in Far East culture," he said.

Pam Lacey, an attorney from Benton, said Thai people are always smiling and hospitable, which is why she wants to travel to the country for a second time.

"The unique aspect of Thailand is, despite Western ideas and culture, Thais maintain their age-old traditions," Heckler said.

History woven into ceremonial dancers' outfits

By Fatima Janvekar
General Assignment Writer

Patcharavalai Sompohm, a graduate in dance from Thailand, danced as a heaven's angel this weekend at the annual Thai Nite in Carbondale.

Sompohm wore a gold network jakhri, an off-the-shoulder ceremonial dress draped in a single wrap around the body and intricately-designed gold jewelry traditionally worn for dance occasions. Other dancers donned long blouse-skirts called jitrathda.

"The name for this dress comes from the Jitrathda Palace in Bangkok," said Vipaporn Poovatanakul, doctoral student in education administration. "Generally, it is people who serve the king and queen who wear this dress."

"The salong, a shirt-skirt outfit for Thai ladies, is the modern version of the jitrathda, and can be worn on a daily basis," he said.

Retired prof remembered as energetic

Obituary

By Teri Lynn Carlock
General Assignment Writer

D. Lincoln Canfield, retired SIUC professor of foreign languages and literatures, who faculty members remember as energetic, died.

Canfield, 87, died Nov. 12 at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale. Visitation and memorial services were at Huffman-Harker Funeral Home with burial at White Haven Memorial Park in Rochester, N.Y.

Canfield earned his undergraduate degree in 1926 from the University of Texas. He received his master's and doctoral degrees from Columbia University in 1927 and 1934.

He started teaching in 1927 and became a long-time professor at the University of Rochester. Canfield twice served as chair of the foreign languages department at Rochester.

During the course of his career, Canfield taught at universities and colleges in seven different states and Mexico.

Between 1946 and 1952 Canfield was head of the modern languages department at Florida State University.

Canfield, a specialist in Spanish, came to SIUC in 1970 as a visiting professor. He retired in 1975.

In the early 1980s, he taught at the University part time while directing SIUC's Elderhostel, an educational experience for older Americans, in Oaxaca, Mexico and Guatemala.

Lee Hartman, associate professor of Spanish, said Canfield took on the role of a tour guide for groups of senior citizens and helped them study Spanish language and culture.

"He was an ideal guide for those people—he had a great ear for dialect," he said.

Hartman said he was impressed with Canfield's energy and ability to be a colorful lecturer.

"He always had interesting anecdotes about the experiences he had while in foreign countries," Hartman said.

Margaret Winters, chairwoman of the foreign languages department, said Canfield was a fantastic teacher, who was loved by his students.

"He had a high-energy, wonderful way of presenting material to his students," she said.

Along with his teaching career, Canfield wrote seven books, 37 articles and several series of radio and television Spanish lessons.

He was a member of the Modern Language Association and the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese, among others.

Canfield is survived by his second wife, Muriel Nixon, five children, one brother, two sisters, 10 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

His first wife, Mary Walker, preceded him in death.

Emergency visits to hospitals up, other usage down

CHICAGO (UPI) — The growing number of people who have no health insurance is pushing up the number of people being treated in hospital emergency rooms, the American Hospital Association reported Monday.

While emergency room visits were up, other hospital usage was down.

In its annual "AHA Hospital Statistics," AHA found the increase in emergency room cases highest in inner-city areas.

The Salukis' other acquisition was Tracy Holscher, a 5-8 guard/forward who hails from Benton Central High School in West LaFayette, Ind.

Holscher is expected to help offset the loss of three graduating starters and add offensive versatility to the Salukis' game, Scott said.

Although she lost much of her junior season to mononucleosis, Holscher still averaged 12 points and six rebounds as Benton Central compiled a 16-4 record.

Scott said she expects Holscher to be an offensive catalyst in her SUC career.

"Tracy is an exceptional athlete with a great shot," she said. "She loves to run the floor and should have an immediate impact on our program."

Benton Central coach Jan Conner describes Holscher as having "The best jump shot I've ever seen."

"She is the best athlete I've ever had in my program," Conner said.

for 1-meter and 3-meter boards his sophomore season and the 3-meter boards his junior season.

Ardrey said Testa is more of a finesse diver. He is very tall and thin, and he uses his build instead of muscle to win, he said.

Testa said one of his goals is to make it to the NCAA finals in the spring.

He said he needs to keep his head straight and not lose it in competition.

Testa has had one first and two third place finishes on the 1-meter boards this season.

He has finished second once and fourth twice on the 3-meter boards.

Freshman Travis Niemyer has made an immediate contribution to the team finishing second once and third twice on the 3-meter boards and second, third and fourth on the 1-meter boards.

Niemyer said he expected to come in as an underdog.

"I didn't expect to do as well as I have," Niemyer said.

"I need to improve on board work and basic skills. I've improved on my skills in the air and my entries. I need to get harder dives on my list to help me get to the NCAAs."

Ardrey said SIUC recruited Niemyer for his physical strength and his teachability.

"When you tell him to do something, he makes the correction," Ardrey said. "The difference between a good dive and a great dive is a fraction of a second."

Senior Carlos Tucker will compete in his first full season on the diving squad. Ardrey said Tucker has the talent and skills, but he'll have to do a lot of diving, 20 to 30 dives a day, to improve.

"He is capable of qualifying for NCAA," Ardrey said.

"He came from a poor high school program, so he had a lot to work on."

Tucker said he needs to work on technique.

"I need to be more consistent at workout and in competition," he said.

"I'm more team motivated this year. I think I'm more consistent on the 1-meter, but I have a better list of dives on the 3-meter."

The swimmers next compete in a tournament at the University of Illinois Saturday.
