Board accepts report limiting Brown

By Bob Springer
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A controversial report stripping Chief of Board Staff James Brown of most of his powers was accepted Thursday by the SIU Board of Trustees at its October meeting in Edwardsville.

The 10-page report, submitted by the 20-member ad hoc committee reviewing the administrative structure of the SIU system, limits Brown's authority to an advisory and clerical nature.

Board Chairman Ivan A. Elliott Jr., in accepting the report, expressed reservations about some of its recommendations and scheduled a meeting between the board and the committee for sometime in early November.

Elliott issued a statement with the release of the report which said, "Some of the solutions suggested in the review raise questions on how to implement them."

The report recommends that the Chief of Board Staff be removed from the System Council (which now includes that office and the two campus presidents), and be replaced by a three-man executive committee of the board.

Elliott said replacement of the board staff chief by the executive committee would be "almost impossible in practice" because he, as member of the board's executive committee, "could not attend every meeting." The council now meets every other week.

Elliott's statement also criticized the report for substituting the board staff chief with the executive committee on the grounds that "mixing administrators and board members on such a system seems to me to infringe on the administrator's prerogatives."

A source close to the 20-member review committee's work who wished to remain anonymous said Elliott's arguments were unfounded in that under the recommended model, the System Council would have no need to meet so often. "And Elliott could send a representative in his place," the source added.

The source said, "The essence of the report is the idea that the campus presidents are not only capable, but should be the ones to run the operations of their respective campuses."

He said the report's recommendations are an attempt to restrict the board's delving into operational matters of the two universities. The board should leave those areas to the presidents, "where it rightfully belongs," he said.

James Brown

The source said Elliott's argument against mixing administrators and board members was fallacious because, as of now, James Brown is neither a board member nor an administrator, but "He has executive power."

"All the report is really asking," he said, "is that the board express some confidence in the presidents."

The review committee was composed of 10 members from the SIU-C campus and 10 members from the SIU-E campus. The Board of Trustees charged the committee in June with the task of reviewing the governance report approved by the trustees in January, with the aim of allowing "maximum autonomy for both campuses" within the SIU System.

"Elliott took the gloves off" in criticizing the report on such grounds, the source said. He said that Elliott's negative reaction to the report is what prompted him to talk.

A board, made up of lay people appointed to their position, has "no qualifications" to deal in operational procedures of a university, and should stick to policy decisions, he said.

"A board really ought to have only one important function, and that is to hire and fire the chief executive officer," he said.

The recommendations presented before the board Thursday are an attempt to halt a process which has been developing since former SIU President Delyte Morris began decentralizing the SIU system, in 1968, the source said.

By Wes Smith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A proposal, which could have ended a four-year struggle to bring advertising revenue to campus radio station WIDB, was deferred for further study by the SIU Board of Trustees at Thursday's monthly meeting in Edwardsville.

Because of objections by SIU-E President John E. Rendleman and the desire of the board for a proposal broad enough for both SIU campuses, the matter was deferred to the SIU Systems Council.

Trustee William Allen and Rendleman formed the main opposition to the proposal at Thursday's meeting.

Allen said he was concerned about the "University entering programs that could have questionable educational benefits," and said he wanted a framework applicable for both universities.

William Allen

Ivan Elliott Jr.

"If we pass this, the state legislature may slap us down," Allen said.

Rendleman argued that the proposal was "not appropriate" for SIU-E because, "You have a radio station which wants advertising and this is not a concern for us, and you have a daily aimed at the entire community while we have a student oriented newspaper."

When a suggestion was made to table the matter for further study, Matthew Rich, student trustee, recommended that the matter be "discussed here" and decided upon.

There was a brief silence.

Allen broke the silence by moving that the matter be referred to the Systems Council and studied until the November board meeting.

Board Chairman Ivan A. Elliott Jr. said the matter would be deferred to the Systems Council if there were no objections. There were none.

Bruce Swinburne, dean of students, said he was "real disappointed" with the board's decision but he would work with his committee to have another proposal ready for the November board meeting.

"I won't say I hadn't thought this might happen," Swinburne said. "In our July board meeting the proposal failed because the Systems Council was asked to prepare a media policy and the Edwardsville campus expressed very little interest. They told us to go ahead and keep their campus informed."

"I feel bad for the crew at WIDB. They, and a lot of other people, have been through a lot and they've been a lot more patient than we have the right to ask them to be," Swinburne said.

"We are going to get this thing squared away. I feel very positive that we're going to have it ready for the next board meeting," he said.

C. Thomas Busch, assistant dean of students and chairman of the ad hoc Media Advertising Policy Committee which drew up the proposal, said he was "a little upset and disappointed" after the board deferred the matter.

"We've been working on this a long time. We tried to develop a compromise between private business and the need for educational benefits which WIDB fulfills. With less student activity funds available, this is a way students devised to keep this going," he said.

"Mr. Rendleman said there was not a pressing need for this policy at his university. Obviously, we felt a pressing need here. We will try to get together with representatives from SIU-E and determine what their objections are. We hope to be ready for the November board meeting with an acceptable proposal," Busch said.

Joel Preston, WIDB general manager, described how he felt by first comparing Thursday's meeting to previous board meetings in which WIDB proposals have failed.

"I've walked away from that table three times," he said. "After the first time in September of '72, I felt hopeful.

He said he was mad the second time. "After today I feel like I've been kicked in the stomach."

Preston said the first hint he had that the proposal might be in trouble came from Swinburne Thursday morning.

"He said he hoped it would go through" and then he added, "if it doesn't pass, we aren't going to yell, are we?"

Preston said Swinburne talked to Trustee William Allen about a half hour later and then said to Preston, "Joel, there is a problem."

"I don't think they (the board) are screwing us," Preston said. "I believe deep down in their hearts they believe they are slowly, methodically resolving the problem."

"But," he added, "yes, the end result is that they are screwing us."

Board continues president search

By Wes Smith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees announced that "further information is needed" in the search for a permanent president for SIU-C at their monthly board meeting Thursday in Edwardsville.

Board Chairman Ivan A. Elliott said the Presidential Search Committee and the board had determined, in a four-hour special meeting Wednesday night, that the committee should continue its search process.

Elliott would not comment on what type of information was being sought but he said, "In matters like this you move as fast as you can but until you're finished, you don't know you're through."

A proposal to provide advertising policies for University media was deferred for further study to the SIU Systems Committee. (See story on page 1).

The board approved a resolution which authorizes establishment of a Residence Center at Great Lakes Naval Training Center. The resolution enables those stationed at Great Lakes to complete an associate degree in Applied Sciences through the School of Technical Careers. The degree is in clinical health training.

A half-million dollars worth of building remodeling and a major plumbing job at Neely Hall are included in a list of projects approved by the board for forwarding to the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

A $500,000 remodeling program for relocation of eight departments including the campus security office and many of the offices in Washington Square was also approved. Renovations are scheduled at Woody Hall, Washington Square, Neely and Small Group Housing.

Complete replacement of the nine-year-old galvanized water piping in Neely Hall is estimated at $400,000. SIU's Facilities Planning Office said corrosion and mineral buildup has almost ruined the plumbing, which drips, seeps and sometimes explodes.

Altogether, improvements totaling $922,000 are on the project list. Other items include remodeling and equipment installation at the University laundry, air-conditioning for Small Group Housing, dining rooms and parking lot improvements near campus service shops.

Also in Thursday's board meeting a revised vacation time policy for faculty-administrative staff was passed.

The new policy permits vacation time to be accrued up to two years, and provides that holidays recognized by the University are not chargeable against vacation time.

It also clarifies the policy that has been in effect since 1951 with regard to accrued vacation pay in the event of a leave of absence or termination of employment.

The new policy will become effective July 1, 1975.

A revised policy for naming buildings and other physical components at SIU-C was also adopted.

The new policy designates all buildings, structures and facilities, streets, drives and other areas as "physical components."

It reserves to the board the right to name or rename facilities but permits the president to appoint an advisory committee to assist him in making recommendations.

Components may be named for "former notable members of the University faculty and staff, for distinguished former members of the board, for donors of substantial funds or for public persons deceased or for students of SIU-C."

The revised policy was recommended by an ad hoc subcommittee of the University Senate and by an ad hoc subcommittee for Development and Services T. Richard Mager.

A revised medical service and research plan for SIU-C's School of Medicine was also approved in Thursday's meeting.

The plan was originally approved by the Board of Trustees on Feb. 9, 1973. Since that time several procedural problems and restrictive definitions were observed and at least one medical practice situation exists which has not been provided for in the plan.

The resolution was intended to correct the faults which were discovered without deviating from the original intent of the plan and to further enhance its applicability to the school of medicine.

The resolution provides for establishment of specialty clinics, revision of mechanism used to compute fixed practice income, deletion of the term Vice-President for Academic Affairs, deletion of signature charge tickets, formula distribution of practice income, a revision of policy relative to payment of overhead and clarification of computing fixed practice income.

The board also approved a resolution stating the Board's contention that any law school which may be established in Springfield should be operated by SIU-C.

The next scheduled board meeting is Nov. 14 in Carbondale.

English chairman takes new post

Howard W. Webb Jr., professor of English, and English department chairman from 1968-72, has been named Academic Affairs officer in the Office of the Board of Trustees.

His appointment was approved at the October meeting of the SIU Board of Trustees held Thursday at SIU-E. Webb, who received his Ph.D. degree from State University of Iowa in 1953, came to SIU in 1956. The appointment was effective Sept. 1.

The board also approved appointment of John F.H. Lonergan, an architect on the Carbondale campus, as chairman of the department of design, effective Sept. 1.

Approved as a visiting professor of family economics and management for the fall semester was Cleo Fitzsimmons, who has Ph.D. from the University of Illinois.

Dr. Robert C. Parlett, associate dean and professor in the School of Medicine, to become vice president and dean of the School of Medicine, Marshall University, Huntington, West Virginia.

Arthur D. Cohen, assistant professor of geology, to accept a position with the U.S. Geological Survey;

Michael Luck, assistant director in the development office, to join the staff at Massachusetts Institute of Technology;

Carl Planinc, assistant professor of instructional materials, to become associate dean of Continuing Education at John A. Logan College.

Improved GI education benefits passed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House approved 388 to 0 a compromise package of improved GI education benefits Thursday that would increase most payments to veterans by 23 per cent.

Passage sent the $1.48 billion measure to the Senate, where quick approval is expected to rush it to President Ford after a year of wrangling over the legislation.

If the bill becomes law, the 23 per cent would be retroactive to those already enrolled in the new school term.

Ford, however, indicated several weeks ago that he would veto a 23 per cent increase as inflationary. That resulted in House rejection of an original compromise and watering down of three major provisions in the new version.

Rep. Olin E. Teague, D-Tex., leader of House conferees, predicted that if Ford "vetoes this thing, he'll get run over."

One changed provision would create a $600-a-year loan program for veterans starting next Jan. 1. The money would come from general funds rather than the Veterans Administration's National Life Insurance Fund, as in the original compromise.

Another provision would still extend maximum GI benefits from the current 36 months to 45 months, but the extra nine months could now be used only to complete undergraduate study.

The third provision compromised would limit to 18.2 per cent the increases for vocational rehabilitation, apprentice and on-the-job allowances.

The 23 per cent increase for others would mean a single veteran in college would be raised from $220 a month to $270 and a veteran with a wife would get $321 instead of $261. A veteran with a wife and one child would get $336 instead of $298. The allowance for each dependent over two would be raised from $18 to $22.

Agreement could not be reached on providing tuition grants sought by most veterans groups. Instead the VA was directed to make a study and report within 12 months on the opportunities for abuse and administrative difficulties arising from such grants if Congress approved them. A similar program after World War II was halted after widespread abuses.

Other major provisions in the bill would:

—Liberalize the circumstances under which service-connected disabled veterans training under the vocational rehabilitation program could qualify for individual tutorial assistance.

—Permit the initial six-months active duty for training by reservists and National Guardsmen to count for education benefits if the servicemen subsequently serve on active duty for 12 or more consecutive months.

—Write into law the present VA program of providing on-campus advisers to help veterans with their problems in getting their benefits.

Students will study lower drinking age

By Dave Iбата
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Students may soon launch a drive to lower the age for beer and wine consumption to 18, according to Cheryl Coe, president of the Thompson Point Executive Council.

A student committee set up Tuesday will investigate the feasibility of the drive. Coe, a junior in public relations, said Thursday.

"We're not saying right now we're going to go gung-ho on passage on this," Coe said. "We're doing research." If research provides a strategy for change, students of east and west campus may petition the city and state to lower the drinking age, Coe said.

Dennis Sullivan, student body president, Samuel Rinella, director of housing business services, and Barbara Tally, student member of the Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board, endorsed a lowered drinking age.

"I'd be for it because in the world, citizenship seems to be connected with being allowed to drink and being allowed to vote," Sullivan said Wednesday. "Why can't we lower the age to 18 for beer and wine?"

"I support 18-year-old consumption of beer and wine," Rinella said Thursday. "Eighteen seems a more logical age to me. About 55 per cent of all students on campus are freshmen under 19."

A lower drinking age will "eliminate a lot of conflict in campus supervision and security," Tally said Thursday in support of the idea.

SIU may be the first state university in Illinois to set a lower drinking age, Tally said. "It's not a light issue at all," she pointed out. "It's going to take a lot of planning and a lot of initiative to get it done at all."

Students should first seek to lower Carbondale's drinking age for beer and wine to 18, Coe said. This would be possible through the city's home rule privilege, she said. "As far as we interpret the law now, Carbondale has the power to do this."

City Attorney John Womick and Mayor and Liquor Commissioner Neal

Eckert could not be reached for comment.

Students should then petition the state legislature to lower the on-campus drinking age, Coe added.

Students should first petition directly to the legislature, Rinella said. He continued, "They are 18 years of age, they are voters and they should petition the legislature directly, either as individuals or through petitions from individuals."

The student committee will soon distribute its own petitions, according to Tally. "I feel that unless the students have a petition drive, they won't know how everyone stands in the community," she said. "Also, it gives a clear-cut indication of support."

Students must first petition, research and organize lobbyists, Tally said.

Unlimited consumption of beer in dormitories may result in on-campus keggers, Coe said. "If it's legal to allow 18-year-olds to drink beer and wine, it will ease the legal aspects of having an unlimited quantity of beer and wine," she said.

Campus liquor policies now allow beer and wine for personal consumption only. No individual may bring in more liquor than he can consume, according to housing regulations.

Coe said Rinella is very adamant about no kegs in dorms at all. "His feeling in liquor policy supports personal consumption."

"I think if the drinking age was dropped to 18, we would reconsider the kegger policy," Rinella said. "This is for individual rooms. I'm not talking about specific areas for drinking."

Rinella is fairly representing the administration's position, Coe said.

Previous critics of a law allowing 18-year-olds to purchase beer and wine said underage high school students could then obtain liquor through older friends.

Drinking problems in high schools will exist whether the drinking age is 18, 19 or 21, Coe said.

"I think 18 is the transition period between high school and college," she said. "It's just going to have to be self-regulated," Coe said.

Coe said she did not want barriers between high school and University students. "There is more of a maturing process when you have more rights and legalities within a state or country," she said.

The student committee includes Coe; Bill Haley, president of Free School and junior in the president's degree program; Ted Mach, senior in journalism; and Joe Dotson, graduate assistant of activities on Thompson Point. A law student will serve as resource person for the committee, Coe said.

Sheriff predicts arrest in Licos murder case

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Jackson County Sheriff John J. Hoffman said Thursday that new information obtained in the John Steven Licos murder case could result in an arrest within a week.

Licos was found dead on a county road, south of Murphysboro, Tuesday. His death resulted from three gunshot wounds.

"We've had about 10 to 12 drug world people in for questioning since the murder and some of the information we got today (Thursday) could be helpful," said Hoffman.

Hoffman said, "We're gathering information right now on a day-to-day basis. We hope to have an arrest within the week."

"There have been three or four drug rip-offs lately, along with the murder. Persons in the drug world are beginning to feel threatened. Some of these people have come in here to volunteer information on their own," said Hoffman.

Hoffman added, "I wouldn't be surprised if more drug murders didn't develop out of this. I hope that's not the case. Some of the pushers probably got scared and have left the county by now."

According to Hoffman there are three full-time investigators working on the case. The sheriff is coordinating the information uncovered with the different law enforcement agencies involved.

IBHE report misses primary problems

EPA vs. Shell

By Gary Marx
Student Writer

Many Midwest inorganic farmers will have to find a different way to kill insects next year unless the U.S. Court of Appeals overturns an Environmental Protection Agency ban on the pesticide Aldrin.

The EPA ruling was not good news to Shell Chemical Company which produces Aldrin, but the American public has been told that they have been exposed to a chemical which "poses an extremely high cancer risk."

Aldrin gradually breaks down into Dieldrin, a durable chlorinated hydrocarbon. Mice have developed cancer in experiments. Reproduction in birds has been hampered by the chemical and it has caused birth defects and mental impairment in monkeys. Shell claims that the findings of such experiments does not apply to humans. What does Shell want? How many deaths will it take? By the first death it may be too late.

Dieldrin can already be found in 99.5 per cent of the U.S. population with an average residue level of 0.3 parts per million.

The chemical gets to humans through the food chain. It is picked up from the soil by corn and soybeans which is fed to farm animals where it is concentrated and passed on for human consumption. Dieldrin is also washed into streams to contaminate fish. A 1973 market-basket sampling by the Food and Drug Administration showed 96 per cent of the meat, fish and poultry to be contaminated. Millions of Mississippi chickens had to be destroyed last March because of high levels of Dieldrin in their feed.

But Shell Chemical, backed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, says that the chemical is essential to control insects in the Midwest corn belt, and will appeal the EPA decision to federal court.

This reasoning is a prime example of nearsighted thinking. To kill a million bugs tomorrow, ignore the fact that you may be killing a million human beings next week.

The EPA is applauded for its decision and the Federal Court of Appeals is urged to abide by the Agency's ruling.

It seems that high plateau of "academic excellence" which was vehemently sought by former SIU President David R. Derge may finally come to pass at this university. In a report on higher education in state universities, the Illinois Board of Higher Education has urged SIU to expand its adult education programs, work closely with community colleges in the area, and plan new graduate programs based on a demonstrated need.

Although this report is an early draft of the findings and conclusions of the IBHE hearings which examined the goals of higher education, some of the issues discussed at the hearings were not even footnoted in the draft. Can it be presumed that the present problems of enrollment decline, particularly by minority students, doesn't rank as a underrated priority at SIU by IBHE members?

Though new regulations along with additional funds for the Illinois State Scholarship Commission by the IBHE will decrease the financial burden of the minority student, an effective recruitment program must be established to coincide with the financial aids program to increase the motivational factor needed to continue onto the university level.

The expansion of a state-wide Affirmative Action Program to promote the advancement of minorities and to act as a forum for discrimination complaints should be taken as a positive action toward solving the minority enrollment problem at SIU as well as in other state universities.

The expansion of the Affirmative Action Program, along with replenishing the present Developmental Skills Program at SIU, should be done on a serious note. Now that SIU has been allocated $41 million in non-appropriated funds by the Illinois Supreme Court, a "financial crisis" should not be an excuse.

But in the quest for "academic excellence," the Affirmative Action program was seemingly tossed aside after the second IBHE hearings, but the minority quest for "academic excellence" remains aloft.

The right of reply

By Mark Reid
Student Writer

A free flow of information is a basic requirement for a democratic society to function properly. The First Amendment was enacted to guarantee a free flow of information by providing for freedom of speech and freedom of the press. Unfortunately, the Founding Fathers did not foresee a time when these two freedoms might come into conflict.

Critics of the news media say ownership is becoming increasingly monopolistic and no longer provides adequate coverage of differing opinions.

These critics fear the consolidation of media ownership will deny the public their freedom of expression, so vital to informed decision making.

Critics feel their right to equal access is guaranteed by the first amendment's provision of freedom of speech. Without the aid of the media, they say, mass communication is severely curtailed.

Newspaper owners received a severe shock when the Florida Supreme Court ruled a "right-to-reply" law did not violate the First Amendment guarantee of press freedom because it was not prohibitive, but rather required additional information, "in the interest of full and fair discussion."

The decision was reversed by the U.S. Supreme Court but the case demonstrates a growing intolerance of a non-responsive press.

Opponents of equal access laws say forced publication constitutes an unlawful regulation of the press. They argue that forced publication and direct censorship are equally repressive in nature.

Newspaper owners feel they are already providing the public with a legitimate means of access through letters-to-the-editor.

Although not every letter can be published, the intention is not to suppress opposing ideas. Newspaper owners say it would be financially impossible to supply unlimited free space for every opposing opinion.

Equal access laws could provide more opportunity for public input on important issues but they might also lead to a suppression of news coverage.

Newspapers may become reluctant to report on controversial issues for fear of having to give equal access for rebuttal. Taken to an extreme, a law that stipulates free access could make it financially unfeasible for the coverage of anything but the most mundane of subjects.

The answer to the equal access issue seems to lie somewhere between the two opposing poles of thought.

From a constitutional point of view, the two freedoms must be balanced. The news media can not continue to claim total protection while denying others the right of access.

The first amendment's chief purpose is to promote a free exchange of ideas and not to insure a monopoly of the news media.

The objection to equal access for monetary reasons can be overcome by providing access in the form of a paid opinion. Opposing speakers could express their views by buying ad space. If space were paid for, newspapers would not suffer financially and speakers would always be assured of access to the media.

Such a provision would not completely rectify the situation, but it would be a step in the right direction.

"HE'S DEFINITELY TAKEN A TURN FOR THE HORSE."

More funding needed for minority housing

By Leonard Sykes
Student Writer

President Ford's meeting with 16 members of the congressional black caucus produced no immediate solution to the problem of minority housing.

Although the President signed a bill authorizing $11.9 billion dollars to house low-income citizens there still is not any relief in sight for low-income blacks.

All of the programs provided for by the bill, which includes urban renewal and nine other federal aid programs, are long-term in range. The bill's provisions will not give immediate assistance to low-income families desiring to buy homes. And, there is a slight possibility that with an ever decreasing job market there will be hardly any low-income families with enough money to qualify for the program.

What should have been included in the bill is an emergency package which will at least take care of funding more projects to build more homes for low-income blacks. This seems to be the only immediate solution for the low-income housing market.

Wants reimbursed for Current raft rip-off

To the Daily Egyptian:

A three-day raft trip, laced with beautiful weather and outdoor adventure, ended with a sour twist last Sunday evening.

Design students and friends, 120 in all, landed their craft in Doniphan, Mo., after a successful 36-mile float down the Current River.

When the 50 craft arrived their crews discovered that their cars, 21 total, had been towed to the local sheriff's property.

The irate rafters were forced to pay a $12 towing fee and had to delay their return to Carbondale two or three hours before finding the sheriff's house to retrieve their confiscated vehicles.

It was learned that the gravel pit on which the cars were parked over the weekend belonged to the sheriff.

When we questioned the leader of the excursion,

Larry Busch, he seemed less than concerned and said simply that his Design 201 class would discuss it on Monday.

Veteran rafters talked of instances in previous years when locals circled SIU rafts until the rafts became swamped with water and sank, causing students to lose their equipment and forcing them into the icy, swift-moving current.

Yet Busch is quoted in last Friday's D.E. as saying, "We get along great with the rangers and local people."

Before we left Doniphan, Busch warned us against stopping in the town to eat, gas up, or bar hop.

"Don't mix with the locals, just be polite and smile as you drive out of town," he said.

I feel some precautions against this type of redneck harassment must be made for future raft trips. I also strongly feel that, regardless of who is to blame: Doniphan's Sheriff, Larry Busch, or the Design Dept., it is only just that the victimized students be reimbursed by SIU, or by Larry Busch who should negotiate our refunds from the Doniphan's Sheriff's Office.

Suggestions for the dog problem

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to congratulate Carroll Fry on the kind of "redneck" policy statement which he expressed that has so often come from the lips of Southern Illinois officials: To increase respect for the license ordinance, "We can shoot dogs" (Daily Egyptian, October 9, page 8) Bravo, Carroll Fry. I am quite sure you will have no difficulty in finding plenty of volunteers from the surrounding area for the task.

Unfortunately, I don't quite understand how shooting a dog is going to increase "respect" for the license ordinance. A licensed dog is just as likely to be running loose and to be picked up by the dog catcher as an unlicensed one. It would seem that the real problem is not to simply increase the number of dogs that are licensed, but to convince their owners to keep them off the streets. Now of course we could simply resort to the old "redneck" solution of simply shooting every animal that appears to be running loose. This would certainly punish the animal and might even induce some guilt on the part of their owners. But perhaps you have heard of something called humanism and civilization. Instead of picking up a gun whenever we don't like something, we discuss it first, trying to come up with a reasonable solution.

May I suggest that you keep your pistols in your holsters and instead embark on a massive campaign to educate the public as to why they must keep their dogs on a leash or tied at home. Secondly, because the high fines the city imposes on an owner that has the misfortune to have his animal picked up often have the effect of preventing the owner from being able to claim his animal from the Humane Shelter (I know what I'm talking about—I used to work there), unless he can manage to "steal" the dog from his cage (which used to happen), I would propose that you impose no penalty for first offenders, but simply warn them of future consequences. Thirdly, I would suggest that you ask the present caretakers of the Humane Shelter to cooperate with you. I adopted a dog recently and was given no information about the Carbondale license law. Finally, I would suggest that you will get more cooperation from the public at large if you express a more genuine concern for the animals who do, after all, bear the brunt of whatever policy you might enact.

Parking play pleasing

To the Daily Egyptian:

I found Jon Kartman's description of the 1974-75 SIU Parking Contest in the October 8 Daily Egyptian very funny!

C. Arnold Fatwater, director, has a great sense of humor. This is something which all of us must have if we are to survive the frustrations of wasting time and burning up expensive gas looking for a parking place, and of getting a ticket for some nonsensical reason.

What happened to the plans for the parking garage that was to be built in a strategic location? When I saw the start of our most recently completed building, I was over-joyed because I felt certain that it would be the long-awaited parking garage.

Much to my dismay, it turned out to be the gigantic 900 ft. long blob known as the "Concrete Zeppelin", complete with leaky roof. (It's FANER to those of you who do not have classes there.)

Incidentally, Mr. Kartman, here is a bit of "info" I want you to pass on to jolly Mr. Fatwater. That Edsel he's driving could not possibly be a 1950 model. According to my son, the first Edsel made its appearance on the automotive scene in 1958.

Board member clarifies statements

To the Daily Egyptian:

I had meant to allow to go unnoted the inaccurate reporting of my remarks about extra pay for extra duties made at the October 3 meeting of the Board of Education, Carbondale Community High School, and reported in the October 5 edition of the Daily Egyptian. But apparently there are some teachers at the high school who are upset with words put in my mouth. And rightly they should be.

I did not "denounce" the board policy on extra pay. I expressed concern over the increasing costs for extra pay for extra assignments. I specifically commented on a related concern, and that is, if the costs continue to rise, it may be necessary to curtail some of the activities, to the detriment of the students. In calling for a philosophical statement of the board's position on this matter, I said that the board cannot afford to pay for these people's professional services at the rate they deserve. Therefore, the most that we can call extra pay is an honorarium. (I would not have said, "At best it seems like this is an honorarium" because, in spite of its widespread acceptance, I do not use like as a conjunction.)

I did not say, "It should be an honor for teachers to participate in after school activities such as class plays." But I did say that there are some activities on the list that a teacher should consider it an honor to do, but I did not specify which ones I meant. And I stand by that statement.

My remarks about grading papers at home after school hours was gratuitous, I'll admit. The point I was making was that grading papers is also an involvement in the students' growth. I can't believe that I would even comment on the time factor. Nor would I make grading papers and extracurricular activities co-equal, since, by implication, extracurricular means complementary activities, while grading papers is an extension of classroom activities.

The hiring of Ms. Catchings as choreographer for the school musical was and is only tangentially related to my remarks about extra pay, and they came at the time the board accepted a listing of every employe in District 165 and his salary.

Jobs abounding

To the Daily Egyptian:

Many students are, or will soon, be looking for employment. You may be interested to know that there are nearly 14,000 Christian service opportunities in the files of Intercristo. Intercristo cooperates with over 235 evangelical Christian agencies in the U.S., Canada, and overseas in providing a computer-based system which matches an applicant with the jobs his interests, background, and qualifications best fill. These jobs include vacation, short-term and career openings.

If you are interested write Intercristo, Box 9323, Seattle, Washington 98109, for the application form.

If you're looking for high pay, comfortable hours, and an easy assignment, check out another source. The 14,000 jobs in the Intercristo files are mostly hard work, long hours, and real sacrifice. But the rewards?—God provides them as you invest your life in others. The jobs are open only to those who have received Christ as their personal Savior and who want to serve Him.

'Extra pay' for teachers defined

To the Daily Egyptian:

It is my concern for the overall program of CCHS (including athletics, student council, etc.)—not just the area I am presently teaching in, that I respond to recent, published comments by Roy Weshinsky, Board Member, Carbondale Community High School.

Weshinsky says in the Oct. 5 Daily Egyptian that "I don't understand the philosophy of extra pay. At best it seems like this is an honorarium." The Daily Egyptian quotes him further as believing that it "should be an honor for teachers to participate in after school activities such as class plays" and that "other teachers are not paid to grade papers at home, even though it may involve more time" and "We need someone to come up with a statement of what extra pay is and what it is for." As a teacher receiving "extra pay" I respectfully offer the following explanations and comments triggered by this "alarm" over "extra pay."

1) As I understand it, "extra pay" is given to teachers for time spent in directing, coaching, chaperoning, etc. students in activities which extend beyond the "school day" over and above the necessary home work that is inherent in the teaching job, whether one teaches in elementary, secondary, or college classes. Teachers with "extra pay" are not exempt from that "Inevitable" homework. They have simply made an extra, contractual commitment of time, energy, and talent over and above the basic contract, for which they receive "extra" pay. Their motivations vary.

2) Teachers with "extra pay" are not automatically more "honorable" than the teacher who does not elect to assume extra duties. He may be honored by the achievement of his students and he may feel honored to be given the option of extra duties since this deems him capable, but all this is irrelevant to the "philosophy" and rationale for extra pay.

3) Classroom teachers' home work varies widely for a multitude of reasons. Furthermore, all teachers, with or without "extra" pay accept the inherent possibility when they contract for their jobs. However, beyond this inherency, there are special assignments that can be more objectively defined. For these special assignments there is "extra pay."

4) It appears to me that it is the philosophy of CCHS, and not the philosophy of "extra pay" that is crucially important. It seems to me that the citizens of Carbondale have supported a high school that offers the broadest curriculum possible within its financial means to meet the academic, creative, vocational, personal and social needs of all of its students. With all the implications of that commitment, I ask the citizen to question whether "honor" alone is adequate reward for a teacher's professional, creative, friendly response to student interest in school related activities that do not end with the 3:25 bell.

Auction, yard sale in Arena Saturday

The Carbondale Chamber of Commerce will hold its fourth annual auction and individual-booth yard sale Saturday at the SIU Arena.

Booths will open at 8 a.m. and the auction will begin at 10 a.m.

Proceeds from the event will finance special chamber projects. Marvin E. Van Metre, chamber executive vice president, said, this year the money will pay for an industrial developer to aid the Carbondale industries and attract new industries.

Auction items have been donated by business groups and chamber members. Carbondale banks and saving and loan companies donated a new motorcycle. Other auction items include a 1965 automobile, television sets, lake tours, airplane rides, and membership in the new Southern Illinois Racquet Club, Van Metre said. The Chamber of Commerce has leased 150 booths and plans to lease 175 or more by Saturday, he said. Booths have been rented to political candidates, church groups, clubs and organizations and individuals.

Richard Hunter, Hunter Sales Corp. owner, will be auctioneer.

Co-chairmen for the event are chamber members Jack Hanley and Steve Hoffman.

Auditions will be held

Auditions for the Calipre Stage production of "Hunting the Last Whale" will be held from 7 to 9 p.m., Monday and Tuesday, in the first-floor lounge of the Communications Building.

Ten to 12 parts are available for the production. No previous experience is necessary for the audition and no preparation of audition material is required.

"Hunting the Last Whale" will combine prose and poetry, fiction and nonfiction to make a dramatic statement concerning whales as an endangered species. The show will incorporate slides, film and music.

The production will be directed by Assistant Professor in Speech Robert Fish. The informal performer-audience relationship of his last Calipre production, "Ashes and Asphalt," will also be used in this production.

"Hunting the Last Whale" is scheduled for performance sometime in late November.

Stevenson explains subsidies

CHICAGO (AP)—Current export subsidies make selling grain to the Soviet Union more profitable than domestic sales, Democratic Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson said Thursday.

Stevenson, appearing with George Burditt, his Republican challenger in the November election, said government subsidies totaling $400 million a year make foreign sales far more attractive to grain dealers than the American market place.

"Cook and Continental have a big incentive to sell to the Soviet Union," Stevenson said. "It's more profitable." He referred to the two grain exporting firms who planned a $400 million grain transaction with the Soviet Union last week, but halted the sale at President Ford's request.

Burditt, however, said Illinois is the largest single grain exporting state and "we ought to do everything we can to boost production..."

The two appeared in a question and answer program sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

Stevenson termed nuclear proliferation not the nation's economic situation—the most pressing problem facing Americans.

"It's the greatest threat to our species," said Stevenson. He made the remark in response to a question concerning voter apathy.

"It's not just apathy...it is a feeling of futility," said Stevenson, adding the feeling stems from lack of communication between government and the people. He said the press falls down in communicating such complicated issues as nuclear proliferation.

Burditt said he believes the apathy arises from "a complete breakdown in ethics in government," which resulted from Congress giving the executive branch too much power.

The two candidates split generally along party lines over President Ford's anti-inflation plan, and clashed over the role of energy costs in the inflation spiral.

"I'm delighted with the President's proposals," said Burditt, adding that he supports 26 of 32 Ford suggestions.

Stevenson, however, said, "There is not a respectable economist in the country, outside of the administration, that thinks cutting spending will stop inflation."

He said the single greatest cause of inflation is increased energy costs which "ripple throughout the economy."

Stevenson argued for more government control of the domestic petroleum prices and for U.S. control of world oil prices.

Burditt countered that instead of further regulating free enterprise, Congress should cut its spending and eliminate deficit spending.

"If oil price goes down, so does production," Burditt said.

"The oil cartel is not in the business of making oil...they're in the business of making money," Stevenson said.

The senator charged the oil industry is making profits "far in excess of its ability to reinvest" in production.

Burditt also voiced support of federal revenue sharing, saying it puts the money in the hands of the right people to make local decisions.

But Stevenson countered that the federal government "has no money to share" and that by giving revenue to other governmental units, it weakens itself.

WSIU-FM awards contract

By Annette Pagels
Student Writer

A $90,500 contract for WSIU-FM's new stereo broadcasting equipment has been awarded to RCA, according to Ken Garry, station manager.

Because of supply problems in the market, RCA and Gates-Harris Intertype were the only companies who presented equipment bids to WSIU-FM, Garry said.

No firm date has been set for the completion of the stereo equipment installation, Garry said.

"I hope all of us at Southern Illinois have a Valentine's Day present," he said.

According to Garry, the Gates-Harris Intertype bid was $1,500 lower than RCA's, but the equipment lacked almost half the required inputs in the audio console, substituted a stacked cartridge machine for three separate units and would cause impedance problems, Garry said.

Gates contested the loss of the contract, but their bid did not satisfy the requirements of the radio station, Garry said. In accordance with state statutes, the contract was awarded to the next lowest bidder, RCA.

"With changing prices right now, it's a difficult game to play," Garry said.

WSIU-FM is now broadcasting in mono. The new stereo equipment will simulate the three dimensional effect of the physical presence of sound. The broadcasts will also be received clearer by listeners, according to Garry.

Club seeks new members

The Sphinx Club, SIU's oldest undergraduate honorary organization, is seeking applications from students to be chosen as members of the club.

Members are "tapped" into the organization twice a year, according to Bob Saieg, faculty advisor. Students are chosen on the basis of participation in areas of student activities including living areas, student government, campus activities, community activities, special interests, and academic achievement. Students who are chosen are listed in Who's Who Among American Universities and Colleges.

Students who would like to apply for membership or nominate someone may obtain an application from the student activities office on the third floor of the Student Center. Deadline for application is November 1.

To be eligible a student must have a minimum of 56 semester hours or 28 semester hours if a transfer student.

Phone cards available soon

The Health Service, in cooperation with the Human Sexuality Service, has announced the distribution of the important phone numbers card.

The card lists phone numbers of services that cope with social, psychological or physical needs. These are services open to the SIU and Carbondale community. Shirley Hjort, coordinator of prevention programs at SIU said the cards created a tremendous response last year complementing the idea itself, and the handiness of having the card by your telephone.

It cost less than $300 to print up the 15,000 cards this year and "if the card helps one person during a crisis it will be well worth the money."

Important phone numbers cards will be available at every office on campus, all on-campus housing and the Student Center. The cards will reach these distribution points by the beginning of next week.

Beg your pardon

The Daily Egyptian reported Tuesday that according to Dennis Sullivan, student body president, the city excluded the Community Development Department when selecting members of a citizens participation group.

Sullivan referred to the University's Community Development Department, not Carbondale's.

Scientists win '74 Nobel Prize

By Dick Soderlund
Associated Press Writer

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Three scientists whose pioneering work in the United States contributed to research on cancer, hardening of the arteries and mysterious hereditary diseases were awarded the 1974 Nobel Prize for physiology or medicine on Thursday.

The $124,000 prize was shared equally by naturalized American Albert Claude, a 75-year old native of Belgium who directs the Institute Jules Bordet at Brussels University; British-born Christian de Duve, 57, who works at Rockefeller University in New York; and Romanian-born George Palade, 62, who heads the cell biology section at Yale University's School of Medicine.

The three, whose major work was done at the Rockefeller Institute in New York, now known as Rockefeller University, were cited for being "largely responsible for the creation of modern cell biology" through "their discoveries concerning the structural and functional organization of the cell."

Their work showed how cells secrete substances essential to life, and how specialized cell units dispose of worn out parts and defend against foreign organisms like bacteria, the Royal Caroline Institute, which awards the Nobel Prize, said.

Claude went to the United States in 1929 and for the next two decades worked mainly in the Department of Pathology and Bacteriology at the Rockefeller Institute.

He was a pioneer in electronic microscopy and the biochemical study of cell structure, making a breakthrough in the relatively new discipline of cell biology, which in the past 30 years has become one of the most important areas of scientific research.

Palade, Claude's pupil at the Rockefeller Institute, followed up his teacher's methods and combined them to become what a Swedish colleague called "the world's leading electron microscopist."

De Duve is a biochemist who has made predictions about new structural components of the cell. He discovered the aggressive cell enzyme called lysosome which works within the cell, breaking down worn-out components.

The cell is normally protected from aggressive enzymes by membranes, but these can break down and the lysosomes get out of control and turn on the cell itself, devouring it.

A Swedish professor said De Duve's discovery of the "Jekyll and Hyde" lysosomes is "of particular importance in understanding the so-called storage diseases, caused by defects in the cell enzyme."

Claude and Palade both contributed to cancer research, showing how substances harmless in themselves could become toxic within the cell and cause cancer.

The prize winners also have contributed to knowledge about the causes of atherosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries.

Thanksgiving holiday invites theft

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Thanksgiving is only one month away, signaling the start of the winter holidays. It is welcomed by both semester-weary students and wide-eyed burglars.

Students are often an easy target for burglars, both the novice and professional, especially when the student moves off campus. For the first time many of these new tenants are taking over the responsibilities of home or apartment security.

Great swingers, these new apartment dwellers and home renters welcome all visitors to their bashes with open arms. Some of these visitors use these opportunities for scouting out potential targets for later, illegal visits.

Knowing all their party guests is just one of the many tactics students can use to protect property and valuables without spending much money.

Experts say there's no way to prevent a professional burglar from gaining access to a house, but unfortunately many people make it easy.

Many favorite burglar tips are simply gained from observing deviances from regular household routines. Stopping the mail and newspapers at break-time is obvious, but the burglar also looks for mail in the box at night time, hours after normal delivery times.

Another well-known tip-off is garbage cans left outside days after normal pick-up. Burglars know these schedules so should the student resident.

Student residents often fail to become acquainted with their older, more conservative neighbors, who not only could be great friends, but could also watch a house or apartment when it's vacated.

Other outside tip-offs is the silent, air conditioner in the dog days of summer or notes on the door informing Bob and other people you're down at Morris Library studying.

Winter brings more obvious signs of temporary vacancy. Lack of tracks in the snow for a couple of days tell of an empty house. A cold, vacant house with the heat turned down to save dollars won't melt snow on window ledges.

Leaving for breaks and weekends, student should also avoid that locked-in, closed-up look when they leave the house. Only one light on is too much of a sign, when just a few more lights in other rooms might save potential grief.

Noise in another room away from the visible areas could suggest to a professional someone is home.

Its also a good idea to notify the local police of vacation intentions, since most departments will make extra checks of houses left vacant if they know about them. Many departments have initiated an identification program and will either engrave your serial number on valuable property or loan the engraver out for a few days.

One other reason students are a favorite burglar target is because they buy so many portable expensive items such as tape recorders, record players and television sets.

Not only are these portables easy to carry away from the scene of a crime, but students are always selling them. Advertisements in the newspapers or on a bulletin board of a laundry business are almost like a neon sign for burglars.

Perhaps one of the easiest but not recommended, things to do is to leave the door open. The burglars won't have to break down the door or smash a window and one professional thief when confronted with an unlocked door was afraid to enter for the fear of someone in the house.

New policy proclaimed by Mayor

In a proclamation signed Tuesday, Mayor Neal Eckert designated Oct. 31 as "Meet 'N Treat" night in Carbondale. The proclamation suggests parents accompany their children on treat-gathering campaigns through the neighborhood. "Now we can put family fun in Halloween by making this traditional event a time for our citizens to get acquainted," said Eckert.

Besides neighborliness, safety is an important consideration in the mayor's announcement. It also suggests that children visit only in daylight or early evening hours. Children are requested to wear light colored costumes with reflective tape.

Residents participating in the "Meet 'N Treat" program should leave a porch or other external light on said Eckert.

Judicial Board gains members

By Jim Murphy
Student Writer

The Student Senate appointed five students to the campus Judicial Board Wednesday night. The five, all nominated by student body President Dennis Sullivan are: Terry Dayna, a senior in political science; William Sullivan, a senior in linguistics; Phillip Grosshenrich, a junior in political science; Peter Alison, a sophomore in social welfare; and Larry Ladd, a freshman in political science.

President Sullivan said he had expected to present the name of his appointee for election commissioner to the Senate but the student changed his mind. "When he realized what was involved with being election commissioner, he split," said Sullivan. He added that he hopes to have another nominee to present to the Senate at its next meeting.

In other action, the Senate named four members to serve on the proposed joint committee with the Graduate Student Council.

Named to the committee were: Mike Baker, Brush Towers; Greer Knopf, west side non-dorm; Duncan Koch, Commuter; and Jim Wire, Thompson Point.

The joint committee is charged with the responsibility of drawing up a plan to place graduate and undergraduate students on a new board similar to the campus Judicial Board.

The Senate also gave approval for an allocation of $50 to help fund transportation costs to a national convention for members of the Society of Professional Journalists (SDX).

S-Senate, GSC plan to renovate J-Board

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

While the Student Senate was approving the resolution to form a joint committee with the Graduate Student Council to discuss a new Judicial Board, the GSC was doing the same at its meeting Wednesday night.

The two student groups will now work together to form a J-Board comprised of two graduate and four undergraduate students. The resolution states need to develop a working relationship between the two student organizations.

According to the resolution, the proposed board will function at a level comparable to the discipline function of the campus J-Board. Officers of GSC said the resolution has the support of the administration.

Kathy Jones, president of GSC, announced at the two and a half hour meeting, that she and Dick Mullendore are traveling to Champaign this weekend for the monthly meeting of the Association Government (AIG).

Jones said the purpose of their attendance at the meeting is to place a GSC representative in the AIG. She said SIU is currently represented by the Student Government, but since GSC has the money to join the organization, and because of SIU's enrollment, she feels another representative is appropriate.

Mullendore said some schools in AIGS have enrollments of under 10,000, and it is not fair for SIU to have equal representation with those schools.

Two revised articles of the GSC constitution were passed Wednesday night. Mullendore said they will try to study the whole constitution, two articles at a time because it would be too much to handle as a whole. After the articles are studied, the bylaws will be studied, he said.

"We are trying to build a strong organization and to do that we must have a strong constitution," Mullendore added.

Lobbying group seeks reforms

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Common Cause, a citizens' lobbying group, has begun campaign reform efforts, local members were told Monday night in the Student Center.

Speaking to an estimated 200 persons, Nan Waterman, Common Cause national board member said the organization was organized four years ago by John Gardner, a Johnson administration cabinet member.

"In the past four years, our membership has grown to 330,000 nationally. This is phenomenal growth and demonstrates the widespread interest in our group," Waterman said.

With the Watergate nightmare over, Americans can either take a "business as usual attitude" and risk it happening again or, they can have reforms legislation to prevent future abuses, she said.

"Common Cause is working to have all lobbying in both the legislative and executive branch reported.

"This way the public will know who wants what and how much they are spending to get it," Waterman said.

Political reform may not be as important as inflation to most people but the increase in milk, oil and wheat prices can be attributed to behind-the-scenes lobbying, she said.

Paul Simon, also speaking at the meeting, said complete and detailed income disclosures of all candidates is needed.

"The only way we can eliminate conflict-of-interest voting is to make total income known. Then the public can see if a legislator is casting a vote for personal or private interest," Simon said.

Simon is the Democratic candidate for Congress from the 24th district. His opponent, Val Oshel, R-Harrisburg, was unable to attend but sent a spokesman.

Folk dance class offered Mondays

The Israeli folk dance course ofered by Free School is picking up steam.

Between 30 and 50 people are attending each week. The course is taught by Audrey Zellan and Sharon Fischmar on Monday nights at 7:30 p.m. in the Hillel House.

Zellan, a professional dancer and dance coach, said Israeli dancing is an emotional and physical release.

Both Jews and Gentiles are taking the course for recreation and exercise. Some Jewish students want to learn how to dance at family parties, Zellan said.

The Israeli folk dances are done at weddings, bar mitzvahs and after sabbath services. The Hora, Mayim and Harmonica are some of the most popular dances.

Although the steps are fairly intricate, anyone can learn them with concentration and practice, Zellan said.

When the steps are mastered, the dancers begin to loosen up and cover a lot of ground. Most of the dances are done in a circle. Eventually the dance picks up velocity and the circle gets bigger.

The class is looking for a larger place to meet because Hillel's small size is restrictive.

The Monday night class has been meeting for a month. Zellan is offering a special makeup session from 7 to 7:30 p.m. on Monday for people who missed the first few meetings but want to catch up with the class. Also, students may come for individual coaching at that time.

The Hillel House is located on the island at the corner of Mill and University.

Nostalgia, praise featured in MGM's 'Entertainment'

By Deborah Singer
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"That's Entertainment" is like opening up a Valentine from a third grade sweetheart. Sickly sweet and sentimental, but beautiful in its nostalgic sincerity.

However, the Metro Goldwyn Mayer Golden Anniversary salute to itself is self-indulgent and bloated with praise. It is an anthology of the "glorious MGM musicals," from 1929 to the late '50s. Spotlighting one spectacular after another with "more stars than there are in the heavens," "MGM-IS what Hollywood was all about."

Hollywood was a pinnacle of the American Dream during the years following the Depression. But even more than this, Hollywood and the major film studios created that dream.

It was the place where little girls like Frances Gumm could turn into famous stars like Judy Garland. Where an Archibald Leach could become a Cary Grant. This is the stuff that dreams were made of, and during those years the American people wanted dreams more than anything else.

While America was starving, MGM was creating million dollar fantasies on its backlot. In those days a million dollars could create more fantasy than it can now. MGM, using thousands of technicians, artists, designers and stage hands, really put that money to work.

MGM's motto was, "Do it big, do it right and give it class." When they made a film in the '30s starring Bing Crosby, which had a scene set in New York's Grand Central Station, the backlot became the place. The adaptability of the backlot did not stop at New York. Whether Paris was needed for the '50s musical "An American in Paris," or the Land of Oz for that Garland classic, the technicians at MGM could build to suit.

For years, Esther Williams had her own swimming pools on the backlot. One of the stars narrating the film said, "As her game grew so did the size and shape of her swimming pool." When she was at her peak, Williams' pool was big enough to accommodate what appeared to be a cast of thousands.

MGM had a hot property with Williams and they tried to insure that none of the other studios contracted another swimmer of her magnitude. Magnificent scenes of Williams erupting from her pool adorned with sparklers made the most extravagant offerings from other studios weak by comparison.

But perhaps even more than Williams, MGM was infatuated with Shirley Temple. But alas, she was under contract to Twentieth Century

O'Connor alongside shots of the films that made them famous, destroys whatever is left of the fantasies created by the "glorious MGM musicals."

But it is nice to know that the film was written, directed and produced by Jack Haley Jr., whose famous father was the Tinman in "The Wizard of Oz." One of the film's narrators is Liza Minelli.

"That's Entertainment" is currently playing at the Fox Eastgate theater in Carbondale.

A Review

Fox Liza Minelli explained that they wanted Temple so desperately they offered to trade both Clark Gable and Jean Harlow for her. The film they wanted her for was "The Wizard of Oz." They never got her. The rest is history.

Another favorite at the MGM studios was Gene Kelly. He not only danced, he also sang and acted his way into America's theaters. He turns up in so many of the musicals in this anthology that your head twirls just trying to watch his fantastic feat.

Not only did Kelly dance, but MGM also had Fred Astaire and Eleanor Powell, who could twirl with the best of them. There was even a shot of a very young Joan Crawford dancing—or at least trying to dance.

Possibly the most touching aspect of this film is the narration. To see Frank Sinatra, Elizabeth Taylor, Peter Lawford, Mickey Rooney, Fred Astaire, Bing Crosby, Gene Kelly, Debbie Reynolds and Donald

Harriers hosting Kansas in drive to top .500 mark

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

For all the fame that Jim Ryan brought to Kansas' track program—and distance running in general, the Jayhawks have not had all that much success in cross country.

However, the team has been nothing to sneeze at, either, so the Salukis could find themselves with a headache if junior Tom Fulton misses the meet as expected.

"It looks like we're going to have to sit him out for a week," SIU Coach Lew Hartzog said a couple of days ago, after viewing Fulton's showing Saturday in the Indiana Invitational. "The blister on his foot has caused other problems. By favoring it, he has hurt his legs, so we're going to have to lay him off for a week."

With Fulton missing, a lot of the steam from the Saluki balance could be missing. Hartzog would then face the problem of finding two good performances to back up John St. John, Bill Britten and Jerry George, his remaining big three.

Freshman Bruce Paterson has finished strong in his last two meets, so one more strong job could do the job.

The Jayhawks, themselves, have made some impressive showings, although their dual meet record is only 0-1. The Iowa State Cyclones ripped Kansas, despite a strong 24:47 clocking by Jayhawk star Tom Koppes.

He was followed—as he has been all season—by junior Bill Lundberg, whose best showing is a 25:38 for 17th place in the Oklahoma State Jamboree. Koppes, a senior, finished in 24:59 for eighth place in that meet.

"They're the two primary threats we have," said Jayhawk Sports Information Director Don Baker. "We haven't fared that well in cross country through the years."

In a relative sense, that is. Two years as number one in the Big Eight out of ten under Coach Bob Timmons isn't bad, until compared with his eight straight Big Eight track titles.

"Our power is in the field events," Baker explained. "We do well in the weights, too, but our distance running has never been that strong. Well, there was Ryan."

The Jayhawk times on down the line are not very impressive. Junior Tim Tobin shows third best at 25:54, that against the field at Oklahoma State, while freshman Joel Cambron is next at 26:16.

Sophomore Barrie Williams owns a 26:36, another sophomore George Mason, a 26:41, and junior Joe Wornack, a 27:30.

While the scores are high, the team's most recent outing should have its spirits the same. The Jayhawks battled to a third place finish in the Oklahoma State meet, behind Eastern New Mexico and host Oklahoma State.

"Wichita State was sixth in that meet," emphasized Baker. "And you know what they have."

Yes, the Salukis know. The Wheatshockers blazed to a second place finish in the Indiana Invitational, where SIU was back in the pack in eleven.

"They're going to be rough four us," said Hartzog, whose team stands at 2-2 in dual meets. "We could be in a lot of trouble without Fulton."

Upset-minded Salukis eye Temple

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

SIU will attempt to pull off one of the biggest upsets in college football when they meet talented Temple University Saturday at 12 noon in Philadelphia, Pa.

"Temple is one of the top three or four teams SIU has ever faced," commented coach Doug Weaver. "We will have to play just about perfect to pull off an upset."

Temple's credentials are staggering. Presently they have the second longest winning streak in college football with 11 consecutive victories. The Owls moved ahead of Pittsburgh in this week's Lambert Trophy rankings. The Lambert Trophy is traditionally given to the number one team in the East at the conclusion of the season.

Quarterback Steve Joachim, a senior from Newton Square, Pa. is the nation's total offense leader with 258.7 yards per game. Temple coach Wayne Hardin has called Joachim "the best quarterback in the United States."

Joachim has completed 45 of 75 passes for 653 yards this season, leading Temple to three straight victories over Rhode Island, Boston College and Marshall University this year.

"Joachim is the type of quarterback who can do many things to beat you," said Weaver.

As a team Temple is ranked on the top ten in seven of eight NCAA team statistical categories. The Owls have averaged 34.3 points per game, while averaging 417 offensive yards per game.

The Owl defense has allowed their opponents an average of 190 yards per game. Temple's defense has given up 24 points this season, allowing only their opponents one TD per game.

To compliment Joachim's offensive Henry Hynosky can run with the ball when he's called upon. Hynosky has rushed for 98.7 yards per game.

Hardin, in this fifth year at Temple has accumulated an impressive 30-10-1 record.

"If we can find a way to pull off an upset this weekend, it will do more for our football program than anything I can imagine," said Weaver Thursday, as his team went through their final workout before leaving for Philadelphia Friday morning.

"Temple's offense is quite similar to ours," explained Weaver. "They run a lot of options. The only real difference between their offense and our's is that they may throw more passes than we do and Joachim will drop back to pass where our quarterback will roll out."

If SIU has any hopes of winning, quarterback Fred McAlley and the offensive unit will have to display the power they showed at Dayton last week. McAlley completed nine of 18 passes against Dayton, while rushing for 104 yards.

SIU had the ball for 86 plays against the Flyers, two plays short of the school record set against Central Michigan in 1960.

Weaver is counting on his defense to come up with several turnovers this weekend. "In order for us to be successful against Temple we're going to have to intercept Joachim two or three times," explained Weaver.

SIU will send the same team against Temple as they did last week. Joining McAlley is the backfield will be Lawrence Boyd at fullback and tailback Joe Laws.

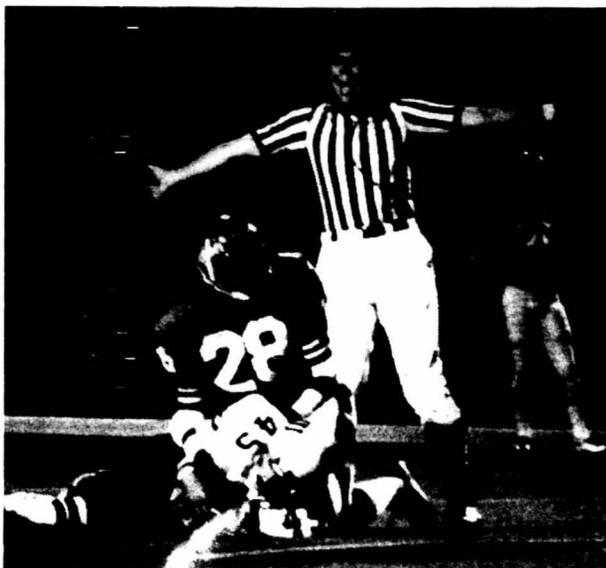

Last week Boyd rushed 102 yards after having his finest week in practice. "Lawrence ran real hard against Dayton," remarked Weaver. "He didn't fumble and made tough yardage. Every time he ran with the ball he drew a crowd."

Laws will try to give the Salukis an added punch at tailback. So far this season the tailback position has only averaged 41 yards per game. Laws has started the last two games.

Injury wise the Salukis are in good shape. Only Matory Bailey and Martin DeVolder have serious enough injuries to keep them from seeing action.

WJPF will broadcast the SIU-Temple game beginning at 11:35 a.m. with the "Doug Weaver Show." WIDB will pick up the WJPF broadcast.

Bruce Puh, 45, is singled safe by the referee after holding on to one of five passes he caught in last weekend's victory over Dayton. SIU will try to make it two in a row Saturday when they take on Temple University. (Staff photo by Chuck Fishman)

Sutton Death

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Richie "Call Me Dick" Allen is tired of the hounding press. He wants to be traded to New York.

That's right, the communication center of America. Ted Savage would have been a household name if he'd played there.

How contradictory it all must seem to the White Sox players who were told in a tearful clubhouse farewell how hard it was for Call Me Dick to leave the game he had played since he was knee-high.

How contradictory it must seem to the White Sox fans who were told Chicago was where Call Me Dick wanted to stay the rest of his career.

How contradictory it must seem to Chuck "Dick, You Can Call Me Lefty" Tanner, the manager for whom the superstar would do "anything" — and vice-versa.

Darn! Every time I actually start to feel sorry for the guy, he gets his head stuck in another part of his anatomy.

Call Me Dick has contacted both the Mets and Yankees about guarding first base at Shea Stadium next year. The Mets, to put it bluntly, are uninterested. So the Sox can count on Jon Matlack or Jerry Koosman wearing a red cap next season.

The Yankees have not reacted publicly yet. Bill Virdon would rather enjoy his Manager of the Year Award he received a couple of days ago from the Sporting News for a little while first.

He might take a shot at a second one by trying to keep Call Me Dick on the field from April to October next season. That would call for an award, since the burly slugger has missed one-fourth his games in five of the last eight seasons. Mike Marshall almost has a better track record than that.

The Red Sox are interested, too, but since they probably couldn't lease Shea Stadium for Call Me Dick, he might not buy that bag. What Call Me Dick doesn't want to do, he doesn't do.

So, the situation will sit for awhile. And, until the Allen move is made, a number of other trades will probably hang in limbo.

The reported offer of thirdbaseman Bill Melton, centerfielder Ken Henderson and catcher Ed Herrman or relief pitcher Rich Gossage for Angel hurler Nolan Ryan will wait for Allen.

In that case, the Giant offer of outfielder Bobby Bonds and firstbaseman-outfielder Dave Kingman for the Ryan Express will have to wait. The Dodgers, with more surplus to offer than anyone else, will hold Bill Buckner and Company a little longer.

Also waiting in the wings will be the Astros with their reported offer of firstbaseman Lee May, thirdbaseman Doug Rader and starting pitcher Don Wilson for Ryan.

If that happens, the Astros, who are trying to break up a disenchanted ballclub, must bid time before reacting to Cincinnati's offer of outfielder Ken Griffey, thirdbaseman Dan Driessen and relief pitcher Clay Carroll for Rader.

The wheels are turning, the midnight fires burning at baseball's post season playoffs and World Series. Perhaps that's why they call the sport's off-season trading period the Hot Stove League.

It's more exciting than the World Series—especially for Cub and Sox fans and the like. It's controversial, too. That's probably why Call Me Dick is in the middle of it all.

Call him Dick. As in "sick."

Bonaparte's and Olympians meet in championship game

By David Hamburg
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

It will be Bonaparte's and Pierce Olympians squaring off in the championship game of the men's intramural softball tournament Friday at 4:15 p.m.

Pierce Olympians proved too meaty for Chuck Steaks, hitting their opponents for three-spots in the second and fifth innings — then icing their victory with four in the sixth — overpowering the Chuck Steaks 12-6.

After allowing a single run by Chuck Steaks in the top of the fourth, the Olympians struck back in the fifth.

Battaglin opened the frame with a base hit and went to third on a two-bagger by Ron Sutton. Larry Meeske followed with a line drive to right, scoring both Battaglin and Sutton — M

Battaglin opened the frame with a base hit and went to third on a two-bagger by Ron Sutton. Larry Meeske followed with a line drive to the right, scoring both Battaglin and Sutton — Meeske racing to third on the play at the plate. He then scored on a smash single by Steve Hanson.

Chuck Steaks countered with a couple in the sixth, but Pierce Olympians put the game out of reach with a four-run barrage in the last half of the inning.

Battaglia drove across his third run of the game as did Meeske.

Realizing his team faces an uphill fight against Bonaparte's, Olympian pitcher Steve Hanson said, "They are a good team and we look for a good game."

In the other semi-final contest, Bonaparte's exploded for nine runs in the second inning, blowing Canadian Club out of the race with a 15-5 drubbing.

Jack Stein walloped his second three-run homer in as many days, while Jim Burke and Jon Crispin each tripled. Jim Kohrig added a double to Bonaparte's lopsided victory.

B-ball tryouts

Practice begins Tuesday for the SIU basketball team. Coach Paul Lambert will welcome back nine lettermen from last year's 19-7 squad.

Any student who would like to try out for this year's squad are expected to report to the Arena at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday ready to practice.

Lambert said that a student must have a physical examination from the health center and be in good standing academically in order to be eligible. Students who have transferred to SIU, except junior college students, are not eligible until they have completed one year at SIU.

"There will be two or three days of tryouts so we can see how the kids compete," Lambert said.

SIU opens the 1974-75 home season November 14, when they play an exhibition game against the Brazilian national team.
