College seeks tougher guidelines

By Dennis Schulze
Staff Writer

Increasing enrollment has prompted the College of Education to raise its enrollment standards. The University has about 450 education majors this year, an increase of about 120 over previous years. Nancy Quinlan directs the College for academic affairs. She said the more stringent requirements are expected to eliminate a glut of education majors who are having problems finding teaching jobs in Illinois, she said. The state has a low employment rate for new teachers because there are fewer jobs than graduates. She said that of the 200 first-time teachers hired in Southern Illinois last year, 30 were graduates of SIUC.

Bill G. Dixon, chairman of the College, said the new criteria for students in the program are being developed. He said the criteria should be finished and approved before November. It will limit enrollment by "design," Dixon said. "We only want to turn out so many teachers a year," he said. "We feel we have a professional responsibility to turn out the best students we can and not plug the market with people who just want to get the most education they can in the least amount of time.

The new guidelines also may ease some of the college's problems caused by the overabundance of education students. Two part-time employees were added this year to ease the burden on staff members. "We work with 18 full time students teachers to a coordinator," Quinlan said. "This year we are above that formula. The higher number means there are more students who need to start teaching."

Annual decisions to increase the enrollment are expected to continue. "We expect to increase the enrollment by 10 to 15 percent each year for the next three years," Dixon said. The increased enrollment will lead to a larger budget for education. Dixon said he hopes to increase the number of education majors next year to about 500.

An SIUC employee asked the City Council Monday to take action today on improving traffic safety at the intersection of University Avenue and Mill Street. Linda Nelson, civil service worker at Woodly Hall, said she was "concerned about the city's inaction" regarding the intersection.

City Manager William C. Dixon said the council shares Nelson's concerns and welcomes her suggestions. However, traffic signals have been approved for the intersection and will be installed by next spring, he said.

Nelson said the intersection "is a dangerous area," and that as a pedestrian she "keeps away from the traffic.

The City Council will consider the suggestions today to see if:

Poshard's future lies in gray area

State Sen. Glenn Poshard, D-Carbondale, will run for U.S. Rep. Ken Gray's 22nd District seat in Congress. Poshard said although an election is coming up next year, he is not concerned about a one-half percent Illinois state tax increase. State legislators may choose to invoke the increase to restore funds lost by Gov. James R. Thompson's budget cuts.

"If the minds of people, the tax increase is a waste of money," Poshard said. "You have to think precisely hard before you offend your constituents."

Women golfers battle with weather, injuries

Adverse weather conditions and a lack of determination left the women’s golf team in a second-place tie in the Huskie Classic Tournament at Dekalb, Ill. Sunday.

The University of Illinois’ Justi Rae finished first individually with a 72 and 74 for a 146 two-round total.

Julie Shumaker led the Saluki in scoring. She carded 80 and 78 for a 158 two-round total. Tina Rutkowski followed six strokes behind with 83 and 94 for 176. three games of the ALCS. After Gibson went down the opening day with a 72, fell back to a third-place tie on the twelfth hole, Mulligan’s driver landed in a bush. Mulligan was unsure if the bush was the 200-yard marker and if he was allowed a free ruling. A free ruling allows the player to play the ball outside of the bush without adding a stroke to his score. “It just ruined me for the rest of the day,” Mulligan said. His concern over the ruling broke the comeback attempt, he said.

“Sometimes athletes get to go out of the starting lineup without a second thought, but when you’re in the World Series, it’s a different story,” Mulligan said.

Giant Giants will test Cardinal's comeback abilities

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - The San Francisco Giants are the only division winners with fewer than 90 victories to advance to a World Series.

The Giants will open the Series at home, having won nine games in a row against the National League champion. Third baseman Gary Gaetti of the Twins, who hit two homers in Game 1, was named Most Valuable Player of the AL playoffs.

women, they beat up on us in every direction,” Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said.

The remarkable one-year turnaround continued Monday behind a Giants crowd of 47,446 as Bert Blyeveln pitched six innings for his second victory of the playoffs. He gave up five hits before Dan Schatzeder came on to start the seventh.

Ex-Tiger Juan Berenguer, making his fourth appearance of the playoffs, yielded Chet Lemon’s two-out solo homer in the eighth to make it 4-4 before Jeff Reardon finished for his second save. Johnny Grubbs singled to bring the tying run in the eighth before Pat Sheridan, who won Game 3 with a two-run homer off Reaction in the eighth, lined out to left fielder Dan Gladden.

Brumansky, whose two-run double triggered a four-run second, homered in the ninth to put the Tigers ahead 7-4. Brumansky’s ninth RBI of the major-league playoff record set by California’s Don Baylor against Milwaukee in 1982. Baylor currently plays for the Twins.

Violinist to play at Shryock

Violin virtuoso Yehudi Menuhin will perform in a Southern Illinois Concert Series recital at 8 tonight in Shryock Auditorium.

The program includes works by Arcangelo Corelli, Ludwig Van Beethoven, Camille Saint-Saëns and Josef Strauss.

Menuhin was first brought to national attention in 1973, when at the age of 18 he carried off the first prize at the Yehudi Menuhin International Violin competition. As a result, violin master-teacher Yehudi Menuhin honored Chen by inviting him to become his pupil in Europe.

In his recital, Chen will play seven works including Beethoven's "Sonata No. 5 in F major," subtitled, "Spring," the six-movement work, "Suite of Spanish Folk Songs," by contemporary Spanish composer Manuel de Falla, and "Tambourin Chinois," by violinist-composer Fritz Kreisler.

Accompanying Chen will be American pianist Jeffrey Gilliam, who is a faculty member at the International Menuhin Music Academy in Gstaad, Switzerland.

Tickets are $2 for students and are available at the Student Center ticket office and the Shryock Box Office before the performance.

Poshad holds asbestos hearing

State Senator Glenn Poshard, D-Carterville, will have a public hearing at 7 tonight to answer questions on statewide reductions of asbestos. The hearing will be in the Statteoom Room at John A. Logan College.

"Asbestos in SIU-C buildings is a very serious problem," Poshard said Monday to a political science class in the Communications Building.

He said it will cost an estimated $1 billion to clean up asbestos statewide.

Since the Department of Health told him asbestos is not a problem until it is released into the air.

Poshord said there are only two ways for government to raise money—borrow money or raise taxes.

For every $1 government borrows, it must pay $5 back, he said.

Last fiscal year, which ended June 30, Illinois paid $328 million in interest on borrowed monies, Poshard said.

"That money goes in the pocket of some big Northeasterner banker who didn't build one road or pay one teacher's salary," he said.

"We better think twice before we force our children to pay the bill we've incurred."

Poshord said politicians are being dishonest in not telling people that a tax increase is the only option.

"Politicians don't have the courage to tell people the truth for fear that they won't vote for us," he said. "We can't continue to run government the way we're doing it.

"My hope and faith is that I can make my case (for the tax increase) logically," Poshard said.

Greek system has much to offer

After reading Adam Broid's letter on "Accumulations of the non-frat system" which appeared in the Oct. 6 issue of the Daily Egyptian, I was, to say the least, disappointed. I sensed a touch of disillusionment in his letter. As a member of the Greek system I would like to expand on it and give a more informed interpretation of Greek life.

Yes, SIUC offers a wide variety of activities for its students. The Greek system is a chance to go one step further with the college experience. The fraternity system has existed for more than 200 years. More than 5 million men and women have found brothers and sisters in more than 10,000 chapters of Greek letter societies across the United States and Canada. Out of these Greeks have come presidents, actors, senators, Supreme Court justices, Nobel Prize winners, sports Hall of Famers, and Miss Americas.

The 1990s is a time of growth for Greek life. Tradition, the values we hold so near and dear with similar interests and the chance to use Greek life to get involved on the outside is what makes it all so popular. There are unending benefits of going Greek. It is a large university, living in a Greek house is like having a home away from home. Living in a fraternity means getting close to 40 to 50 guys or gals from all kinds of backgrounds and being part of a crowd that enjoys working together, socializing, and getting involved in school activities. It's about making great friends, studying, competing, playing and working toward common causes like lifetime friendships, individual and group achievement and overall chapter pride.

Leadership skills used in the chapter, or as a member of campus clubs and activities the house is involved in, are useful in many ways even after college.

Academically, Greek life can aid students by providing older actives with many of the same courses to tutor their peers and also some extra socializing. Fraternal organizations stress scholarship and usually have minimum standards for their members to meet. On the whole, Greek GPAs surpass non-Greeks.

Alfred Landon dies at age 100

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Alfred M. Landon, the unsuccessful 1936 Republican presidential candidate who became the first Protestant leader of Republican politics in the United States, died today in his home. He was 100.

Landon, a 97-year-old former Kansas governor, was in his home when he died, said Mike Harper, a spokesman for Landon’s daughter, Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan.

Kassebaum was in Topeka from Christmas night to Monday night, Harper said.

Landon was hospitalized Sept. 28 in Topeka for abdominal pain and general weakness.

In February, the Undergraduate Student Organization asked the council to pass an ordinance that would hold owners responsible for violations of the new law rather than just the tenants.

The proposed ordinance applies to the southwest side of the city and other high-density areas. The council will send a recommendation to county jail of non-controversial, low-alcohol campuses and residential areas.

The council also approved a joint resolution to conduct the national governance commission, which the University is required by the state to have and common courtesy to allow students to observe religious holidays.

The budget committee will recommend a joint resolution with the faculty status and welfare committee to allow students to observe religious holidays.

The president also may approve exceptions to these regulations to allow possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages by people of legal drinking age at designated events and locations on campus, according to the resolution.

Consecutive RBI doubles by Gladden and Greg Gagne capped Minnesota's three-run ninth. The Tigers added a run in the ninth on an RBI single by Kirk Gibson.

Minnesota had won just nine of 31 road games since the All-Star break until Sunday night's 5-4 triumph, when they overcame a 3-1 game deficit with eight games remaining, clinching the AL East by edging Toronto 1-0 on the final day.

The Twins batted around while scoring four runs in the second and knocking out Doyle Alexander. Gaetti led off with a single and scored on a Bush walk. Brunansky lined an opposite-field double but was thrown out trying for third as the Twins went ahead 2-0.

Steve Lombardozzi singled and reached second on a groundout. Gladden's RBI single made it 3-0, and Gagne hit a two-run single before Kirby Puckett's single brought the Twins ahead 5-0.

Alexander, who pitched at least six innings in each of his previous 28 starts this season, was replaced by Eric King. In yielding six hits and four runs over just 2 1/3 innings, Alexander raised the ERA of Detroit's playoff starters to 7.94.

The Twins added a seventh-inning run against King, who retired nine consecutive batters before Kent Hrbek ended a 1-for-18 playoff slump with a single. Gaetti set a playoff record when he became the eighth batter of the series to be hit by a pitch. After a wild pitch, moved Hrbek to third, Bush's sacrifice fly put the Twins ahead 6-0.

Gladden doubled against rookie Jim Henneman in the eighth and scored when Lou Whitaker's relay throw got past first baseman Darrell Evans following a forceout. Evans was charged with an error for allowing the run to score.

After Matt Nokes grounded back to Henneman for the final out, the Twins burst from the dugout in celebration. As a teapot-crowned crowd filed out of Tiger Stadium, Minnesota players rolled across the infield dirt and doused each other with buckets of water.

The Tigers scored three runs in the fourth before Blyleven could record an out. Gibson lined a leadoff double and scored on Alan Trammell's single. Nokes sent Blyleven's fastball over the right-field fence to draw the Tigers within 4-3.

used in venting his anger and frustration. One sportscaster quipped to "hide the women and children."

Before game four, Gibson, taking the ever-focused cameras in stride, jokingly asked NBC commentators if they could improve a seven-second delay that would allow editors time to clip out his outburst.

Were the cameras in game five, when Gibson, who was presumably aware his decision had derailed the Twins' World Series hopes, dashed off the wall or his catch that robbed the Twins of a home run? He wasn't cursing then but his jubilation must not have been as "newsworthy" in NBC's definition of the word.

In any case, the comments and attention were turned toward Evans, who was charged with two crucial errors and was picked off third base with his team trailing by just one run. The ever-present cameras found Evans after the game, first staring out into space, and later getting a long drink at the water fountain. As if the verbal tongue-lashing applied by Bob Costas, nationally recognized as one of the better sportscasters in the profession, wasn't enough. "Undoubtedly the most awful night of a honest baseball player's career," Costas told the TV audience.

And he didn't stop there.

What was NBC trying to prove? Did network officials feel that such coverage was good journalism? Granted, the visual display of the emotions involved in such a big game can be good journalism. It can paint a picture in a way words would not allow. But so can the ingested faces of survivors of a plane crash. However, in the latter situation, our journalists have been taught to use taste and common sense.

What NBC did does not give the audience a better understanding of the game or the man.

In his recent book, "Costas told the audience a story that he didn't want to tell."

The fans sitting in the first row can't see the actions taking place in the dugout.

The fans sitting in the first row can't see the actions taking place in the dugout. Why should the fan at home?

As a fan of baseball and good media coverage, I hope ABC, the network which will air the World Series, will opt to focus on the game. After all, that's what they are there to cover.

time. When you hit a good one you take credit for it and so when you hit a bad one, you also have to take credit for it," Hartog said.

Hartog said he plans to make international golf an annual event. "It will be much better next year," he said.
