Officer shoots knife-wielding man

JUSTIFIED: Chief says patrolman had reason to fire; man remains in stable condition.

KENDRA HELMER
DE EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

A Carbondale Police officer shot a knife-wielding man in the chest Sunday morning after the man allegedly made a threatening movement toward the officer at a local sports complex.

The man is in stable condition, and charges are expected to be filed against him Tuesday. No one else was injured.

The shooting occurred at about 4:30 a.m. Sunday, when employees of the Sports Center, 1215 E. Walnut St., called police to report they were being threatened by a man who had a knife and possibly a gun.

Two officers arrived on the scene, entered the bowling area of the building and located the suspect. Police said the man approached the officers with a large knife and ignored their repeated orders to drop the weapon.

The man then came closer to one of the officers and dropped the knife. Police said the man reached down, picked up the knife and made a threatening movement toward the nearest officer, who then fired one shot from his handgun.

Carbondale Police Chief Don

Strom said the man did not have a gun as first thought by Sports Center employees.

Strom said the suspect was a "very short distance" from the patrol officer when he was shot. Based on interviews and physical evidence collected thus far, Strom said the shooting was justifiable.

"We use a use-of-force scale that responds to the force displayed by the subject," Strom said. "In this case, the individual was displaying deadly force and posed a threat to the safety of the officer and others. And based on that, the officer would be empowered to use deadly force."

The suspect identified himself as Norman Moore. Moore, 24, was arrested by police in 1995 for retail theft and at that time listed an address in the 400 block of East Hester Street. Moore also lists a Chicago address.

Renowned ballet troupe to dance at Shryock

TAMEKA L. HICKS
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The pure, uplifting classical ballet of the St. Petersburg Ballet is sure to "knock the socks off its audience" Tuesday at Shryock Auditorium, choreographer Peggy Willis-Aarnio says.

As the first American to choreograph the Russian company, Aarnio said she is living her life's dream. In 1992, Aarnio became the first American certified to teach the methods of classical ballet.

"It's so interesting because they can do anything you want them to do," Aarnio, a professor at Texas Tech University, said. "It's a wish come true in my life."

For six weeks, Aarnio and the St. Petersburg Ballet rehearsed their performance piece, "Rhapsody on a Love Theme," which Aarnio said is about unconditional love. The piece is inspired by the music of Russian composer Sergei Rachmaninoff.

To compose an adequate performance, Aarnio listened to the music extensively.

"Others (dance companies) have performed with this music, but it did not work for them," she said. "It's because of the intricacy of the music. It's difficult. I've been listening to it for 20 years."

Before Aarnio began working with St. Petersburg Ballet, she said finding dancers to follow her style of ballet was difficult. Classical ballet is what Aarnio wants from dancers and she gets it when working with one of Russia's most internationally toured ensembles.

The St. Petersburg Ballet has toured more than 110 cities in the last four years.

"All my life I wanted to choreograph a professional dance group," Aarnio said. "St. Petersburg style is technically correct and artistically pure."

Citizens protest plutonium probe

WORRIED: Protestors fear millions of casualties if rocket to Saturn fails.

BRIAN EBERS
DE CAMPUS LIFE EDITOR

Concerned citizens of the 12th Congressional District publicly disclosed an impassioned request to cease the launching of today's international Cassini probe to Saturn.

A group of about 15 citizens brandished signs and spoke out against the voyage in front of the Federal Building, 250 W. Cherry St., Friday. The group proceeded to march toward Town Square.

The Cassini spacecraft has met with strong opposition because the vessel is using 72.3 pounds of plutonium-238 as a fuel source.

In an open letter to Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Ill., the group stated that the Cassini probe will be launched on a Titan IV/Centaur rocket, which has a one in 25 chance of failure.

E.G. Huges, a Carbondale resident and member of the Peace Coalition of Southern Illinois and the Shawnee Green Party, said the environmental effects of a failed launch will result in thousands of deaths.

"Our part in this protest is not the mission (to Saturn)," he said. "It is the means (of the power source)."

"The American people weren't asked if this is what they wanted. NASA said because Saturn is so far away from the Sun, solar power would not be effective, so it said a plutonium generator was necessary."

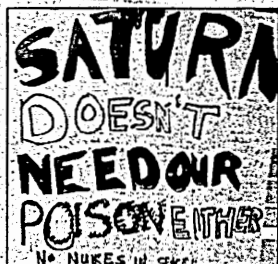

The group's letter to Costello stated that when the probe travels around the Earth in August 1999, en route to Saturn via Jupiter, even a slight miscalculation could send the probe back into the Earth's atmosphere.

The letter also stated if the probe entered the Earth's atmosphere on the return trip it would burn up on re-entry and disperse vaporized plutonium dust around the globe, causing 10 million to 20 million deaths.

The Final Environmental Impact Statement issued by NASA estimated that a worst case scenario would result in 2,300 cancer fatalities over a 50-year period.

The impact statement was prepared to estimate casualties in case something should go wrong with the launch. In April

Tangle leads to arrest of one

CRUNCH: Campus collision pits bicyclist against motorist.

CHAD ANDERSON
DE MANAGING EDITOR

An SIUC student bicyclist is awaiting a court date after a Friday dispute with a motorist resulted in thrown punches and a damaged car.

Cale Eakins, a junior in art from Rockford, was charged with criminal damage to property for kicking and denting the car of a 22-year-old SIUC student.

"My view on it is that I was run off the road," Eakins said. SIUC Police said that at about 1 p.m., Eakins and the motorist attempted to simultaneously maneuver around a vehicle parked on Douglas Drive. Eakins said he thought the motorist came too close to him, so he reached out with his left foot while riding his bike, kicked and dented the vehicle above the passenger-side rear wheel well.

A damage estimate was not available as of press time Sunday.

Eakins flipped over his handlebars when he attempted to stop abruptly. The car came to a stop, and police said Eakins then jumped on the car's hood and yelled at the driver. The driver stepped out of the car, and Eakins jumped off the car. Eakins said the driver then forced him to the ground and punched him.

"I was pretty hyped up," Eakins said. "He's a lot bigger than I am. He forced me to the ground, and I got hit in the eye and maybe the ear."

Eakins said he did not attempt to fight back.

The motorist refused to comment on the incident. Police arrested Eakins for criminal damage to property. He was released on his own recognizance and is awaiting an Oct. 30 court date at the Jackson County Courthouse.

No charges were filed against the motorist for striking Eakins. "This is just a bad situation," SIUC Police Lt. Andrew Smith said at the scene. "They'll probably end-up battling in the courts."

Journalism school celebrates 50th birthday

KNOWLEDGE:

Students can discuss career objectives with noted panel experts.

DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

A former editor of the Chicago Tribune and other journalists are on campus this week as part of the 50th anniversary of the School of Journalism, and the school's director hopes students will seek career advice from the media professionals.

Throughout this week, distinguished professionals will speak to journalism classes and participate in panel discussions regarding various topics in the field. Career counseling also will be available to students interested in journalism.

Donald Jugenheimer, director of the School of Journalism, said the school wants to recognize the contributions of alumni and former faculty of the school, as well as express its appreciation to the students and present faculty.

"We are hoping to tap the expertise of our many successful alumni and provide this knowledge to our students," Jugenheimer said.

Workshop offers ways of reducing stress

WELLNESS: Focus is on methods for self-stress assessment.

NICOLE CASHAW
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Headaches, a lack of motivation and muscle aches prompted a stressed-out Rio McWilliams to attend the Body-Mind Connection Workshop Thursday. The workshop was sponsored by the Wellness Center.

McWilliams, a junior in health care management from Chicago, attends such events for guidance direction.

"I feel pensive a lot," McWilliams said. "Generally concerning what direction I'm going in, I get confused on what direction to follow, which is going to benefit me in the long run. So, I attend things like this for advice."

The Wellness Center is sponsoring a free two-series workshop for SIUC students suffering from anxiety, sleep deprivation and relaxation problems. The first part on stress assessment began Sept. 11, and meets every Thursday until this week. Other topics in part one included time management, self-esteem and self-talk and healthy relationships.

The second part of the program will begin Oct. 23 with a reiteration of the previous series and ends Dec. 11.

Barb Fijolek, a counselor and coordinator for the Wellness Center, said the main purpose of the series is to inform people of ways to manage stress.

There were six people at Thursday's discussion, but attendance can vary depending on the location of the workshop. Fijolek said the attendance can number from three to five people in a small group to about 100 people in lecture halls.

Fijolek discussed the physical and emotional aspects of stress at the workshop. The mental symptoms of stress are depression, irritability, lack of motivation, negativity and unexplained urges to cry.

"How we feel mentally and physically is connected," Fijolek said. "Researchers are presently trying to find that connection."

Fijolek said the mind and body are connected about how a person feels as a whole. "If you feel that you are looking good physically, then mentally you can feel good," she said.

Some ways for people to deal with stress are talking to a supportive friend, taking several deep breaths, working out, meditating, praying or confronting the situation.

"Paying attention to what is going on in both the mind and body are all interventions of stress and can make a big difference in your life," Fijolek said.

McWilliams said that because he has a hectic schedule, the workshops help to give his life balance.

"I work 27 hours a week, I'm taking 13 hours this semester and I volunteer in a hospital," he said. "If there is something free like this that will help me, I will attend."

For more information about the workshops, call 536-4411.

Trust fund established for Carbondale murder victim

Friends and relatives of the 29-year-old Carbondale woman who was murdered Wednesday have established a trust fund to assist in funeral expenses.

People interested in making donations should make their contributions out to the Pamela A. Travis trust fund at the First National Bank of Carbondale, 509 S. University Ave.

The Hopewell Baptist Church, 400 E. Jackson St., is accepting donations of clothes for Travis' 22-month-old twin daughters. Their current size is 3T. Clothes in size 4T also are needed. The twins are in need of winter coats. They also wear size 5 shoes.

Travis was found in her apartment at The Fields, 700 S. Lewis Lane, at about 11 a.m. Wednesday. Police said Travis was asphyxiated and suffered burns to her body from a small fire that was deliberately set after her death.

The twins were treated at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale for smoke-related injuries and remain in the custody of Travis' mother in Murphysboro until the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services determines a proper future.

Police had not identified any suspects in the case as of press time Sunday.

USG representatives clarify adviser issue

Dear Editor,
 Although we appreciate the Daily Egyptian's obvious concern and support for our efforts to improve academic advisement at SIUC, we would like to clarify some things that were incorrectly stated in the editorial "Not enough," which ran Thursday.

First of all, our project does not suggest or in any way call for the hiring or firing of academic advisers. Rather, our suggestion is for a gradual move to a decentralized advisement process that would involve moving advisement to departmental levels so that advisers (be they faculty members or staff hired specifically to advise) can have a more detailed, focused bank of knowledge that will inevitably result in better student services.

Also, a statement was attributed to vice president Megan Moore that she simply did not make and that is in direct conflict with the goals and philosophy of the project. It is not our intention to "put the power of shaping students' college careers in the advisers' hands," but rather to put this power in the hands of the students themselves by providing them with a higher level of service and with the least amount of bureaucracy.

The other facets of our plan support this concept. We feel that students should be mailed a degree progress report each semester that will show students exactly how far they have come and exactly how far they have to go to complete their particular degree program. In addition, we would like to see students provided with a sort of "survival guide" that they can refer to for information about advisement, financial aid, internship/co-op/work experience and any other pertinent facts that all of this vital information is compiled in one easily accessible place. In the end, implementation of these ideas will, we believe, result in a virtual elimination of the bureaucratic mess that many of us call "the Woody Hall Shuffle."

We will be meeting with Chancellor Don Beggs to discuss establishing focus groups regarding these issues.

We are also researching current career services offered on campus and how those might better be tailored to student needs and desires.

This project is in no way an attempt to criticize or demean any current department or services. It is an attempt to respond to student needs and concerns in a way that will not only boost students' confidence in their chosen institution, but will also serve as a positive marketing tool directed at those outside the University looking to come in.

Thank you for allowing us to clarify this important project. We look forward to working with the entire SIUC community in making the goals of this project a reality.

NAACP seeks donations for Million Woman March in D.C.

Dear Editor,
 On Oct. 16, 1995, the world watched as history was made when 1 million black men marched in Washington, D.C., in what began as a date of atonement. Two years later, 1 million women of African descent from all religious, political and organizational affiliations will come together to address the numerous problems that plague our people and begin a healing process with the Million Woman March. The Million Woman March is set for Saturday, Oct. 25, in Philadelphia at the Benjamin Franklin Parkway. The keynote speaker will be Winnie Mandela. This march will address the numerous circumstances that resulted in the deterioration of our communities under 12 platforms, ranging from the issue of reparations and reclaiming rights for the elderly to combating hopelessness. The NAACP's SIUC chapter is sponsoring this historical event for female SIUC students. Unfortunately, the financial burden exceeds the finances of our organization. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is seeking donations from businesses, organizations or individuals for transportation and hotel expenses. The NAACP encourages interested parties who would like to attend the march to contact the coordinators, Lekiewa Rasberry at 529-1854, Paula Muhammad at 529-8093 and Ebonye Tolbert at 536-6432. Our Word

Students not taking advantage of volunteer escort service

THE CONCERNED VOICES OF STUDENTS afraid to walk alone at campus on night finally were heard this year by the University. In August, SIUC created an escort service called Saluki Safe, a joint effort by SIUC Police, Student Affairs and Saluki Volunteer Corps.

But since its inception in August, a mere nine students have utilized Saluki Safe. The University has tried to answer students' complaints about safety with this program, but no one seems willing to use it.

Year after year, students complain about safety on campus. In 1996, there were 24 cases of assault reported to SIUC Police. Police reports in local newspapers typically list assault or battery among the reported crimes.

It is unfortunate that only nine students have utilized such a beneficial service, especially when it is funded by a yearly student safety fee.

It took five years to implement the program. Now the University needs to examine how to increase use of Saluki Safe.

Perhaps posting more fliers around campus would improve student use of the program. Because the service is not readily seen, posting these signs with the Saluki Safe phone number near the exits of campus buildings would increase usage.

MAYBE IT IS STUDENTS' EGOS THAT prevent them from using the service. Students may say "I can handle myself" or "Those services are just for women" because they do not feel the need for such a service.

It is disheartening that some people would rather take risks than to admit they might need some assistance.

With the arrival of autumn, nightfall will come more quickly and many students who had the luxury of late-evening daylight in which to walk home may now find themselves wandering in the dark, alone. Saluki Safe provides an effective way to ensure students a safe trip to the dormitories, a night class or anywhere they may need to go on-campus.

If students do not begin to use the service, the University should seriously consider disbanding the operation. Why make people sit around on volunteer time with nothing to do? It would be a shame to cancel an inexpensive service, but why continue something students do not bother to use? It just would not make sense to keep the operation functioning.

With Saluki Safe, which is available to all students for escort to on-campus buildings, and the Women's Night Safety Transit Service—both readily available for students—there is no reason why students should endanger themselves when trying to cross campus.

UTILIZING THESE SERVICES COULD reduce the number of assaults this year by removing the predator's target. Both men and women should take advantage of the service and avoid the possibility of becoming an unnecessary victim to crime or violence.

"Our Word" represents the consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Board.

"This summer, we played in one and we said, 'Hey let's play in another one.' We just play for fun, and it's a good mix with the normal partying weekend."

SIUC senior Sean Wilhelm, on his participation in the Gus Macker 3-on-3 basketball tournament.

"It's really a sick and twisted plot."
 Carbondale resident Mary McDermott, on "Deathtrap," a production by the Stage Company.

why the man entered the sports complex, witnesses reported he was behaving erratically.

"There were statements from people about him shouting — almost as if he were talking to people who weren't present," Stroza said.

At the request of Carbondale Police, the Illinois State Police are conducting an investigation of the officer involved in the shooting. The results of the investigation will be forwarded for review to the Jackson County State's Attorney's Office. The Carbondale Police Department also will be conducting its own internal review.

In accordance with standard procedure, the officer who shot the man will not be on patrol until the investigation is completed.

"That is in no form or fashion disciplinary action," Strom said. "Once we're done with our investigation, we'll put him back [in his position]."

The last time local police used deadly force was in March 1995, when an East St. Louis man was shot and killed by officers who entered a local residence to serve an arrest warrant for another man. The man who was killed was armed with a loaded sawed-off shotgun.

"Certainly anytime an officer goes through this, it's a difficult time," Strom said. "Nobody looks forward to having this occur. It is one of the risks that goes with the job."

Strom said police believe that 45 minutes prior to Sunday's shooting, the suspect was involved in an incident at Jim Pearl's auto dealership, 1015 E. Walnut St.

At 3:45 a.m., several passersby called police about a man using a knife to damage a vehicle in the used-car parking lot. The witnesses reported they approached the man and he verbally threatened them. The man fled the area before police arrived.

Then, after 4 a.m., Sports Center employees said that they saw a man in the parking area north of the complex shouting and talking as if he were going to kill someone. The employees went into the business and called police. Strom said the suspect followed the employees into the complex.

As officers arrived on the scene, the employees fled the building.

"There had been some sort of event there that had a lot of set-up involved," Strom said of why employees were in the building. "(The employees) were involved in taking it down."

Sports Center employees would not comment on the incident.

Strom said police spoke with Moore's former girlfriend and a woman who they believe to be the suspect's mother.

"We're pretty certain at this point in time [that Moore is the suspect's name]," Strom said.

Mark Hamrock, assistant state's attorney, said charges will be filed against Moore early Tuesday morning. He said several charges, including an attempted murder charge, are being considered.

As of press time, Moore was in stable condition at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale. Strom did not know when Moore would be released from the hospital.

the new millennium.

"The world of journalism today is much different than the one that I worked in — it is more electronic, emotional and fast-paced," Squires said. "However, the old values and ethics of journalism should not be abandoned."

A panel discussion, titled "Pursuing Careers in Advertising: What Do I Do After Graduation?" brings together distinguished individuals from the School of Journalism and abroad to provide information to students about advertising careers. This discussion will take place 3 to 4:30 p.m. today in room 1032 of the Communications Building.

Another panel discussion, "Newspaper and Readers in the '90s," is scheduled for 3 to 4:45 p.m. Wednesday in the Lesar Law School Auditorium. The panel is made up of members of the School of Journalism and journalism professionals. Cole Campbell, editor of St. Louis Post-Dispatch, will provide the opening remarks, and Carl Rexroad, editor of the Southern Illinoisan, will serve as moderator for the event.

The panel's members include Squires; Paul Simon, former U.S. senator and director of Public Policy Institute; Michael Lawrence, associate director Public Policy Institute and former press secretary to Gov. Jim Edgar; Lenore Sobota, editorial page editor for the Bloomington Pantagraph; Lorraine Kee, public affairs reporter and former sports writer for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch; and Jackie Koszczuk, editor of Congressional Quarterly.

An outstanding alumnus of the School of Journalism, Judith Roales, will be presented with the Best of 50 Award. Roales, a 1965 graduate of the SIUC School of Journalism, is the publisher and executive vice president of the St. Petersburg Times. Roales was awarded the SIUC Distinguished Alumni award this year.

"Judith Roales is one of the most successful, top-ranking professionals in the country," Jugenheimer said. "A vote was made for Roales by a committee in the School of Journalism and was unanimously held up by the faculty."

Jugenheimer noted that two of the 10 recipients of the SIUC Distinguished Alumni honored this year are alumni of the School of Journalism.

The Department of Journalism was established at SIU on Oct. 15, 1947, with Robert Steffes as acting chairman. The department was headed by an acting chairman until Howard Rusk Long was named permanent chairman in 1953. Long served as chairman of the journalism unit for 19 years.

The department gained accreditation in 1961, one of 43 in the United States at that time. One year later, the Ph.D. degree in journalism was first offered.

Jugenheimer said he is not aware of any rankings of journalism programs across the country, but the school has received several letters from alumni who praised the school for its ability to prepare them for the professional field.

Robert Spellman, a professor of journalism and member of the journalism week committee, said the week offers students a chance to gain insight into the professional field ahead of them.

"We hope the students will take advantage of the visiting professionals — some of whom have reached the apex in their field — and try to learn from them," Spellman said.

1997, a Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement was revised to estimate the number of cancer fatalities from 2,300 to 120.

The Cassini spacecraft will spend about seven years traveling from Earth to Saturn. It will follow a complex trajectory that uses four gravity assists: two with Venus and one each with Earth and Jupiter.

These gravity assists will allow the spacecraft to build enough velocity to travel the 7.94 million miles to Saturn.

Richard Whitney, member of the National Lawyers Guild and

“Our part in this protest is not the mission (to Saturn). It is the means (of the power source).”

CARBONDALE RESIDENT

Shawnee Green Party, said the Titan IV rocket has a 5-percent failure rate and an accident would cause an environmental catastrophe.

“We’re trying to raise public awareness,” he said. “The Cassini mission is the most foolish of NASA’s plans.”

Alan Bradshaw, a California native who attended the protest, likened the mission to his wartime experience in Guam during World War II.

“I can remember when the bomb was dropped, and it seemed like nuclear energy was going to be a good thing,” Bradshaw said. “But it turned out that it wasn’t that way.”

Huges said the protest was effective because people who drove by and saw the march became aware of the launch.

“NASA didn’t let people know about this until about six months ago,” he said. “NASA should stand for Never A Straight Answer.”

for Shryock Auditorium, said that in previous years, international dance troupes from France, Japan and Canada have performed at Shryock, but none possessed the stature of the St. Petersburg Ballet.

“It’s important that they perform because it’s a taste of cultural life in Russia that we normally don’t see in this area,” she said.

Aarnio said the difference between classical ballet in Russia and the United States is its level of expansion. The doors of classical ballet in Russia have opened in recent years, whereas in the United States many mistake that branch of the art for another.

“You’ll see a lot of companies doing modern dance and not too many doing classical,” she said. “St. Petersburg is the birth place of classical ballet.”

Jakubowski said the St.

Petersburg Ballet is traditional, classical ballet.

“They perform out of the respect to the history of ballet,” she said. “The audience will enjoy it. Any type of dance ensemble helps promote the arts in the area.”

Perfection will grace Shryock Auditorium as the St. Petersburg Ballet take the stage, Aarnio said.

“The audience should expect to be uplifting,” she said. “And when they leave, they will feel excited because that’s what true classical ballet should do.”

one-point losses.

The attendance numbered 3,000 people Saturday, and without the Marching Salukis, the student section would have been virtually empty. In comparison, there was a crowd of about 12,000 at the Oct. 4 Homecoming game against Southwest Missouri State University. At SIUC's home opener Sept. 13 against Murray State University, 8,000 people attended the game.

O'Brien said he believes one reason students do not go to games is a feeling of apathy.

"Everybody comes in during the first half and if we are down, they just forget about them," he said. "Plus, they haven't been that good in the last few seasons anyway."

Rob Kirm, a junior in accounting from Naperville, said another reason it is hard to get students to come to the games is the fact that students have no confidence in the team.

"I think people are going on (the Salukis') past performances," Kirm said. "The fundamentals need to be improved on the team."

But the Salukis have won two of the three home games played this season. The one loss came at the hands of Southwest Missouri, and the Salukis lost that game by just

I would rather watch us lose than watch anyone else play.

KEN O'BRIEN

one point.

Saluki fan Mike Hohnecker, a junior in information system technology from Dubuque, Iowa, said attending the games is important because it will help the Salukis recruit players.

"When new recruits come, the first thing they see is the fans," Hohnecker said. "When nobody is here, they are going to go somewhere else where they come to a game and there is a full crowd."

It bothers Hohnecker that there are not more students at the game.

"It makes me look bad to my friends back home," Hohnecker said. "It gives them something to make fun of. You'd like to come home and say, 'We beat Northern Iowa,' but that hasn't happened since I have been here."

SIUC head football coach Jan Quarless said the fact that the team won shows that the players were able to play well despite the disappointing fan turnout.

"We told ourselves that we were going to come out on this football field and look at a hundred yards squared," Quarless said. "We weren't going to look at the stands at either side. I said 'Prepare yourselves for that.' We will look at everyone on the field. And I think they did that."

VICTORY

Redbird lineman after the throw.

"I didn't see it," Skornia said. "I got hit as I threw it, so all I heard was the crowd roar."

"Basically, what we tried to do was get first downs on every play. We just moved the chains every time and the clock stopped, and that just helped us so much. The linemen did a great job of giving us some time to get open and throw the ball. It was fun."

After losing by a total of seven points in its last three games, the Salukis broke their longest losing streak since dropping five in a row last year.

The Salukis put themselves in a familiar position Saturday — trailing in the fourth quarter. Illinois State overcame an early 18-3 deficit to close to within 18-16 at halftime. The Redbirds controlled the ball offensively in the first half, ending the half with a time of possession of 22:20, while SIUC had the ball for 7:40.

In the second half, Illinois State controlled the ball and the clock again. The Redbirds took the lead

I got hit as I threw it, so all I heard was the crowd roar.

KENT SKORNIA

on a 1-yard run by quarterback Kevin Glenn, and they added another score on a 15-yard run by Darnell Jones for a 29-18 lead.

But SIUC grabbed the momentum early in the fourth quarter, as the Salukis rebounded 99 yards from their own 1-yard line in seven plays and scored on a 13-yard catch by Craig.

Illinois State had one last shot to take an eight-point lead as the Redbirds drove down to the Saluki 17-yard line, but place-kicker Jake Strader missed a 34-yard field goal attempt to set up the Salukis' winning drive.

Skornia finished the game with 276 yards passing and three touchdowns. Karlton Carpenter led the Salukis on the ground with 84 yards rushing.

Glenn completed 23 of 42 pass attempts for 314 yards and a touchdown for the Redbirds. Centralia native Rick Garrett caught eight passes for 115 yards, while the Redbirds' leading receiver, Marquis Mosely, caught six passes for 65 yards.

While the final statistics favored Illinois State, Craig said the win justified Quarless' emphasis on hard work and perseverance.

"It feels good to be on this end," Craig said. "The last two weeks, we've come up short at the end. It's good to play back."

SIUC CROSS COUNTRY

Saluki women take first at Washington University

The SIUC women's cross country team took first place Saturday at the All-Missouri Border's States Cross Country Championship at Washington University in St. Louis.

Sophomore Jenny Monaco finished third out of 176 runners with a time of 18 minutes and 21 seconds.

Other Salukis in the top 10 were Leah Steele, with a seventh-place finish, and Raina Larsen, with an eighth-place effort.

SIUC VOLLEYBALL

Salukis beat Drake, lose to Creighton on the road

The SIUC volleyball team reached a season-high four-match winning streak by defeating Drake University Friday.

The Salukis, who won for the first time on the road, defeated the Bulldogs in four games, 15-7, 15-3, 3-15, 15-10.

Junior outside hitter Marlo Moreland paced the Salukis with 14 kills and 18 digs, while junior middle blocker Laura Pier chipped in 12 kills.

SIUC's winning streak came to a halt Saturday with a loss to Creighton University in five games, 15-7, 13-15, 15-9, 8-15, 11-15.

The Salukis had a two-game-to-one advantage over the Lady Jays, but dropped the final two games of the match. Moreland led the Salukis again with 17 kills and 17 digs.

With the loss, SIUC's record fell to 8-8 overall and 5-4 in the Missouri Valley Conference.

SIUC SWIMMING

Women's swimmers lose first meet of the season

University of Notre Dame defeated the Saluki swimming and diving teams 167.5-126.5 Saturday at the Recreation Center Pool.

Katie Burns finished first in the 200-meter and 100-meter butterfly with times of two minutes and 11.06 seconds and 58.42 seconds, respectively.

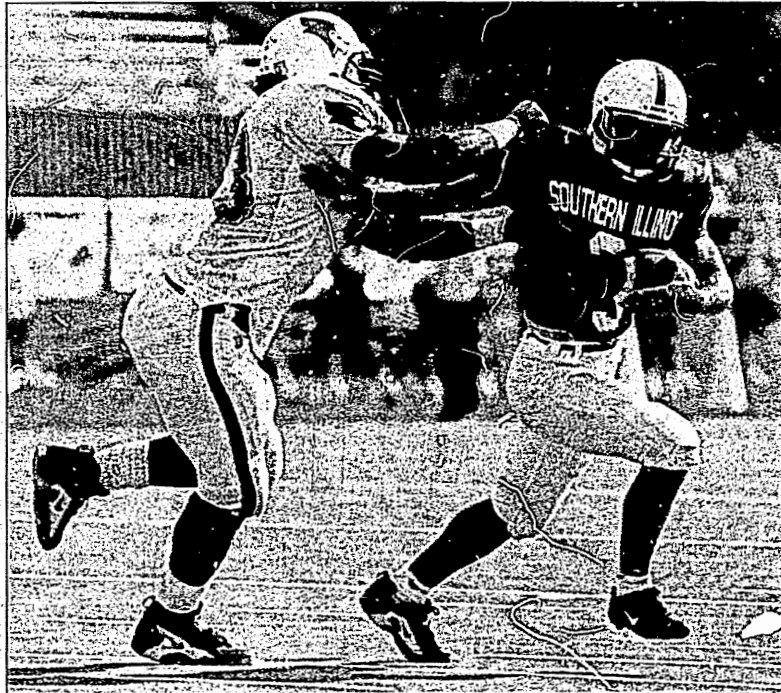

In diving, Karla Gerzema took first place in the one-meter and three-meter competition with scores of 221.40 and 243.45, respectively.

NCAA BASKETBALL

Wolverines fire head coach

The University of Michigan fired men's basketball coach Steve Fisher Saturday. The announcement came less than a week before college teams are allowed to have their first practices, and two days after a report was returned to the university that found three minor NCAA rules violations.

New athletic director Tom Goss had met with Fisher Friday and decided then that a change was needed.

ON THE RUN:

Saluki place-kicker Matt Simonon, a junior from Ridge, N.Y., attempts to score on a botched extra point during the first half of the game against Illinois State Saturday at McAndrew Stadium. The Salukis won 31-29.

COMEBACK: QB Skornia finds receiver Barnes in back of end zone on game's final play.

RYAN KEITH
DE SPORTS EDITOR

SIUC football coach Jan Quarless knew his team had faith in his system, and the first-year head coach found out Saturday just how much his Salukis believe.

Trailing 29-18 to Illinois State University heading into the fourth quarter, the Salukis scored twice in the game's final quarter. But for the first time in three weeks, the Salukis came out on top.

SIUC capped an 80-yard drive with five seconds left on a 26-yard pass from quarterback Kent Skornia to wide receiver Ray Barnes to give the Salukis their second comeback win of the season; 31-29, in front of 3,000 people at McAndrew Stadium.

The win boosts SIUC's record to 2-4 overall and 1-3 in the Gateway Football Conference. Illinois State falls to 2-5 overall and 0-2 in conference play.

"All the credit is due to them (the players)," Quarless said. "They keep battling back. They find a way. Unfortunately, we've come up short the last two weeks. I guess it was our turn. It evens out, they say."

With ISU leading 29-24 with 56 seconds left in the game, Skornia and the Saluki offense needed to drive 80 yards for the win. The team showed its faith in Quarless' system as the Salukis took advantage of a porous Illinois State defense to drive down to the ISU 26-yard line.

The drive included three passes to wide receiver Cornell Craig, who set a school record with 219 yards receiving on 11 catches and two touchdowns.

Quarless saw Illinois State's cautious defensive play as the perfect opportunity to complete short passes.

"We felt we could get four vertical routes on them," Quarless said. "We saw what they were playing. Someone has got to be open."

On the game's final play, Skornia scrambled to avoid a Redbird pass rush before finding Barnes in the back of the end zone for the game-winning score. Barnes, who narrowly missed falling out of the back of the end zone, said the final play was one that was not expected.

"I just wanted to make sure and catch the ball," Barnes said. "I was hoping for Kent to see me. It feels really good."

Skornia said he knew the play was successful, even though he was tackled by a

As a Saluki faithful, Ken O'Brien makes it a point to attend the SIUC football games as often as he can, but there were few people like him at Saturday's game at McAndrew Stadium.

"I would rather watch us lose than watch anyone else play," said O'Brien, a senior in administration of justice from Marengo. "At least I am staying past halftime."

Despite the many empty seats at McAndrew Stadium Saturday, the Salukis pulled off a 31-29 victory over Illinois State University after two tough
