Few problems predicted for student group funding

By Bonnie Gamble
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Even though SIU's internal budget was not approved at Thursday's Board of Trustees meeting, student organizations should have no problem getting money allocated to them by Student Government Activities Council. Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said Friday that student groups could receive money based on last year's budget, but groups that did not receive allocations last year may also receive money.

Student groups which have requested a greater allocation this year than last year may use up to the amount awarded last year. Groups not previously allocated money may receive money based on their allocation requests for this year, Swinburne said. Student group allocations will be approved when the internal budget is approved, Swinburne said.

The budget was not ready to be submitted to the board Thursday. It will be approved by the board in executive session after President Warren Brandt mails copies of the budget to board members. Formal approval will probably come at the October board meeting, Swinburne said.

At its meeting, the board expressed concern over the administration's inability to submit the budget. Trustee A.D. Van Meter Jr., Springfield, said he was disappointed that Brandt had missed the schedule.

Honors role touted for scholars unit

By Jim Wisuri
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The University needs an honors program, Clifford Harper, dean of General Academic Programs told a group of President's Scholars Thursday night, asserting that as long as he is dean there will be one.

The meeting with Harper was set up by two President's Scholars, John Pirmann and Mark Leone, in response to student fears that Harper was going to substantially alter the program.

Some of the President's Scholars' fears stemmed from the removal of John Dotson as director of the program, and changes in the personnel and location of the President's Scholars office.

Harper would not discuss Dotson's transfer back to teaching duties in the history department with the President's Scholars. "I don't feel comfortable talking about John's position without John being present," he said.

Dotson said Friday that he is no longer with the President's Scholars Program, "because I was asked to leave."

Dotson said Harper did not give him a reason for his dismissal. Dotson added that he did not ask Harper for a reason either.

"It's fairly obvious that we... I don't know how to put this... we had different views on things. I don't think I was fired," Dotson, an assistant professor in history, said.

Dotson said the two had disagreed on whether the President's Scholars office needed a secretary.

"President's Scholars has had a secretary since it moved away from Academic Affairs. I personally thought one was essential to the operation of the program," he said.

John Pirmann said President's Scholars former secretary is now employed in Harper's office.

Harper, reached at his office Friday, agreed that Dotson had not been fired.

Harper, the former director of Black American Studies, said an "uncomfortable atmosphere" arose between him and President's Scholars student workers after he took over his post on July 1.

Dotson said he feels that the fact both he and Harper were under consideration for the dean's position had little bearing upon his transfer.

"I really don't want to get into a hassle about what happened in the paper," Harper said. The dean repeated Friday that he is willing to meet with interested President's Scholars and Dotson to discuss the transfer.

"John and I understand what happened," Harper said. Both Dotson and Harper see the move as a common administrative move—a new administrator replacing old staff with personal choices, much like the President selecting a cabinet.

Students in the President's Scholars programs expressed concern about the effect Dotson's transfer would have on seminars for the spring semester.

Dotson said that a schedule of seminars has already been set up for the spring and summer semesters.

Pirmann and former student government vice-president Jim Wire, were elected by the President's Scholars to fill two spaces on a search committee looking for a director of Special Programs.

Clifford Harper, dean of General Academic Programs, reassures an attentive group of President's Scholars that their honor program would continue operating. Harper spoke to the group Thursday evening in a lecture hall of the Neckers Building. (Staff photo by Chuck Fishman)

Professor sees no change by Mao's death

"A revolution is not a dinner party, or writing an essay, or painting a picture, or doing embroidery; it cannot be so refined, so leisurely and gentle, so temperate, kind, courteous, restrained and magnanimous. A revolution is an insurrection, an act of violence by which one class overthrows another" — Mao Tse-tung, 1927.

By Scott Singleton
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Mao's death Wednesday at the age of 82 brought tributes from world leaders along with uncertainty over what course China will now take. Chinese-born SIU political science professor Ikuo Chou believes there will be no radical change in Chinese policies because Mao began planning 14 years ago for his death.

"He believed that China should not fight a civil war or drift after he was gone," Chou said, so Mao began to purge the Chinese Communist Party hierarchy of those who favored the Soviet system of gradual revolution.

In 1964 Mao started to rejuvenate the aging party ranks by recruiting young people to join the party and to staff the government, Chou said. In 1973 the government claimed that those three million recruits made up one third of the national government.

By a series of campaigns and purges of close associates and by the cultural revolution in 1968, Mao worked towards maintaining a state of continuous revolution in the belief that "China would be moved forward by group conflicts," Chou said.

Mao also installed a mechanism to screen everything China borrowed from Russia. This continual process was designed, Chou said, "for a complete re-examination of the Chinese system. Anything suspected of revisionism is dropped."

Mao's fear of revisionism was based on his belief that the Soviets betrayed the cause of communism and subverted their revolution by concentrating on industrialization and modernization, Chou said. The split between the two superpowers became virtually permanent in 1962.

The people of China realized that Mao was irreplaceable and had instituted a system of collective leadership long before he died, Chou said. He believes that China will continue to be ruled in the same way for the next three to five years and pointed out that it was three years after Stalin's death before a single leader emerged in the Soviet Union.

Currently "in" are the radicals known as the Shanghai mafia, a group that includes Mao's widow. Chou said this group probably will control the government for awhile as it has the support of the People's Liberation Army and the young recruits.

But Chou does not discount the possibility that purged leaders, such as former prime minister Teng Hsioping, will re-emerge and try to move China along a less ideological path, one which would re-establish ties with Russia.

If the thousands who have been purged since 1973 do make a play for leadership, Chou said there will be some disruptions but he doubted there would be any bloodshed. "The demonstrations will be carefully controlled and orchestrated," he said.

"He succeeded in pulling a large country with a huge population up by their bootstraps," Chou said of Mao. "He moved China from a traditional, semi-colonial status to a full scale independent country working towards industrialization."

Chou noted that China is the only country in the world that does not owe money to another country.

"Mao will also be remembered as a man who believed in the strength of the common man in checking the power of leaders," Chou added, and "may be the last of the great revolutionary giants."

Chou was last in China in 1944. Two of his brothers remain there.

Kissinger to meet with African leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has ordered Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to Africa on a challenging new mission aimed at heading off perils of a black-white war in the turbulent continent. The White House announced Friday that Kissinger would set off Monday on a journey that would take him through at least three capitals:

—To Dar Es Salaam in Tanzania for talks with President Julius Nyerere.

—To Lusaka in Zambia for a conference with President Kenneth Kaunda.

—To Pretoria in South Africa for a renewal of his dialogue with Prime Minister John Vorster.

The secretary's visit to South Africa, set for Sept. 17 to 19, will be the first ever undertaken by a United States cabinet officer to the country whose apartheid, or separation of the races, policies have been condemned almost universally.

Aviation's worst crash leaves 176 dead

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A British airliner and a Yugoslav chartered jet met head-on at nearly 33,000 feet Friday in a busy air crossroads near Zagreb, killing 176 persons in aviation's worst collision. There were no survivors. A German pilot in a third plane flying at 29,000 feet witnessed the collision, British Airways said. The pilot reported that there was an explosion, apparently when the two craft hit, then the British jet lost a wing and both craft tumbled to the ground.

Senate adjourns without passing Walker's bills

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The school financing plan backed by Gov. Daniel Walker and his fellow Democrats fizzled Friday in the Illinois Senate, but the House now gets its turn. Roll calls on two key bills failed to produce the 36 votes needed for Senate passage. The action came in the third day of the legislative special session called by Walker to consider legislation providing $50 million more to local schools this year and changing the way it's distributed.

Former NARCO director charged with theft

CARBONDALE — A second defendant has been arrested in connection with Grand Jury indictments alleging misuse of funds in NARCO, a defunct drug rehabilitation program in Carbondale.

Darryl Tipton, a former director of NARCO, was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Carbondale police at his residence, Brookside Manor, building 13, apartment 2-A, in Carbondale. Tipton was released under a $5,000 bond pending a hearing Sept. 20 at the Jackson County Circuit Court in Murphysboro. Tipton was charged with theft over $100. Sam Clark of Carbondale was arrested earlier Wednesday under the same charge. Clark, a former NARCO employee, was also released under a $5,000 bond pending a Sept. 20 court appearance.

Faculty union visited by national organizer

By Bonnie Gamble
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Robert R. Jensen, national representative for the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) visited campus Thursday at the request of Herbert Donow, president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT).

CFUT, which is affiliated with the AFT, is working to establish collective bargaining for the SIU faculty.

Jensen said he came to SIU to "make an assessment of the degree of faculty interest, efficiency of the operation, and the realistic expectations.

"It's a very positive picture here. I'll recommend to the AFT that they provide assistance; money, backing or whatever to help the faculty here," Jensen said.

Jensen said, "Collective bargaining is an idea whose time has come. The place is Carbondale."

Faculty members have a "right to have more meaningful control of their destinies," Jensen said.

A rival union, United Faculty Association of Carbondale (UFAC), has begun moves to organize Carbondale faculty members for the Illinois Education Association (IEA), with

ISSC deadline reduced due to shortage of funds

By Mark Edgar
Student Writer

The Illinois State Scholarship Commission (ISSC) announced Friday that applications for awards postmarked later than Sept. 7 will not be accepted, despite earlier establishment of an Oct. 1 deadline.

Jim Eanes, director of the scholarship and grant program for ISSC, said that the commission had hoped to keep the Oct. 1 cutoff date, but "we don't have any more money."

Eanes said the ISSC changed the deadline after estimates showed that funds would not be available for a large number of students who applied.

The unexpected rise in the number of qualified applicants put the original figures "out of whack," Eanes said.

"Obviously, if we don't get the budget requested, there have to be cut backs," Eanes said. "It comes down to a matter of priorities."

Although the commission's $69.67 million budget represents an increase from $68.4 million of last year, Eanes said they can only "guess" at how much the ISSC will actually receive after the politicians "get their hands on it."

"It's the politics of the thing. When there is a financial crisis, something has to be sliced," he said. "But it's not right to pick on any one person or group."

Eanes also cited Gov. Daniel Walker's veto of $1.2 million of the ISSC budget as having an "indirect" effect on the number of applicants the commission could accept.

"We just try to live and work with what the legislature and governor appropriate," Eanes said. "With more money we could, of course, award more scholarships."

The director added that with a larger appropriation, the ISSC could start a year-round screening process. "That way we could have accepted applications until February 1977."

Eanes said that all the ISSC can do for students who failed to meet the deadline is to send an "I'm sorry" letter.

School board examines possibility of state suit

By Linda Henson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale Elementary School Board of Education District 95, instructed Superintendent George Edwards to seek legal advice on a possible court suit against the state.

The board said at a meeting Thursday night that the Carbondale Special Education Coop cost the district $93,000 last year. If the state does not reimburse the district for 100 per cent of the operating cost legal action, may be taken.

The cooperative program includes about 80 children between the ages of three and 18, residents of the Styrest Nursing Home in Carbondale. Classes for the severely mentally and physically handicapped children are supposed to be funded by the Illinois Office of Education.

Edwards told the board that the Illinois Office of Education had sent a statement saying that the office would fully fund last year's program and would try to get legislation passed to assume full funding for the 1976 coop.

The district is scheduled to receive 85 per cent of the reimbursement some time this year. Edwards said there is no way of knowing when the money will arrive.

Edwards said the district has received verbal assurance from the Illinois Office of Education that the district will be reimbursed the remaining 15 per cent next spring. Edwards said any legal effort the district might consider would have to come after the money arrives.

District 95 and Carbondale Community High School District 165 are required by law to provide for the cooperative. The board said it is reluctant to open the Styrest program until the state can guarantee full funding. Edwards said some department in the legislature cut the budget for such programs from 15 million to 6 million.

The program, which is in its second year of operation, was set for 50 per cent reimbursement this summer by state officials. Edwards said the reimbursement was increased to 85 per cent last week.

whom they are affiliated.

John McCluskey of the IEA in Edwardsville, charged that AFT was "hard-line, industrial style unionism." McCluskey also said AFT had gotten "very much like a monolithic union."

Jensen said AFT had never perceived itself as monolithic. "The locals run the national," he said. "It's not the other way around."

Jensen emphasized that he was here only at the request of CFUT. "No AFT officer or representative has any right to come into a local unless invited," he said.

"We're unabashedly union, however, professional," Donow said.

Donow said at this point he takes any kind of opposition seriously but feels that over the last five years CFUT has merited a level of credibility.

"The faculty has confidence in CFUT. Our opposition has not gotten that credibility," Donow said.

Both groups, CFUT and UFAC, are working toward collective bargaining as their primary goal.

Jensen said, "Obviously if the status quo were panacea, this activity wouldn't be going on."

Liquor license appeal stalled

An appeal of the liquor license suspensions of five Carbondale liquor store owners will not be heard by the Illinois Liquor Control Commission (ILCC) as scheduled, an ILCC official said Friday.

Tom Murphy, executive director of the ILCC said the appeal, scheduled for Monday, will not be heard by the commission because a fire in a court reporter's home has delayed the preparation of the Carbondale Liquor Control Commission's hearing transcripts.

The Carbondale commission suspended the liquor licenses of W. Stephen, Thomas and Philip Hoffmann and Robert and Thomas Palmier in hearings July 28.

W. Stephen and Thomas Hoffmann own Eastgate Liquor Mart, Philip Hoffmann owns ABC Liquor Store and the Palmiers own Leo's Westown Liquor Mart. The license suspensions were scheduled to take effect in August, but the pending appeal has allowed the stores to remain open.

Murphy said he did not know when the appeal would be heard.

Thompson Woods bears new trees

By Ann Schottman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

In 1940, when SIU purchased Thompson Woods, a verbal agreement was made that the woods would be kept in their natural condition. But keeping them in their natural condition has not meant hands-off treatment.

Under the direction of the Forestry Department, seedlings have been planted and dead trees cut and cleared.

The SIU honorary forestry society, Xi Sigma Pi, has planted about 350 seedlings, all native to Southern Illinois, as openings occur because of the death of a tree.

This is part of a "step by step" long-term plan "to preserve the integrity of Thompson Woods", said Paul Roth, associate professor in forestry and member of the honorary society.

Roth said the verbal agreement with Lavinia Thompson to maintain the wood's natural condition would not be binding now even if it had been written, because of the statute of limitations.

Roth said that despite the difficulties, the forestry society does try to maintain Thompson Woods' natural setting as much as possible.

Regeneration of Thompson Woods at this time, is necessary because it is comprised mainly of an even-aged stand of black oak trees. This means they are all dying at the same time, said Roth.

The honorary society has planted mostly oak and hickory trees. They have also planted some native flowering trees, including redbud and dogwood.

Roth said, "There is a severe lack of good oak regeneration even though Thompson Woods is on an upland site that is usually occupied by oak and hickory. The large campus squirrel population carries the acorns away. It is also hard for acorns to sprout in ground that is compacted by footpaths."

Many new trees that grow naturally, such as winged elm and sassafras, are shorter-lived and smaller. Their seeds are carried in by birds, Roth said.

The white oak, red oak and hickory trees, which the society is planting, live two to three times longer than the black oak which is currently dying out, Roth said. There were more of these species, in Thompson Woods, however, during World War I, some of the hardier species were used to make stave bolts.

The forestry society tries to keep down the Japanese honeysuckle which has invaded the woods and which threatens to smother young seedlings and other plants.

"Japanese honeysuckle is not native. It was brought into this country as an ornamental and to use as erosion control. Birds and winds carry the seeds," Roth said.

The society has also recommended to the University that some dead or decaying trees be removed. The actual work was done by an outside contractor.

Roth said the Forestry Department got some "static" from "a few people who felt they were environmentally concerned but had no ecological training. The trees had to be removed because they were about to fall down, and they were close to the pathways."

Of the almost 2,000 trees in Thompson Woods, less than 35 were removed, Roth said. Several of those cut were already dead.

The forestry society has no plans to recommend the removal of any additional trees except for those that die, Roth said.

The trees the forestry society is now planting are of varied longevity to eliminate having so many trees dying at about the same time, Roth said.

"To my knowledge, no one has ever cut a tree in Thompson Woods to get wood since SIU purchased it in 1940. We do remove some of the trees that have died and sell the wood for firewood to pay for the two annual forestry scholarships we award," Roth said.

There have been several small surface fires in Thompson Woods but they have all been easily controlled, Roth added, partly because of the absence of dead trees.

"These woods have been here for over 100 years," Roth said. "We are trying to manage the woods so people 100 years from now will have a woods to look at."

"We can't undo the damage that has been done to the root systems of the oaks by people who take shortcuts, but we can try to keep it from getting worse," Roth said.

While oaks are generally considered to be tough, durable trees, it is not too difficult to injure their root systems which ultimately means their death," said Roth.

Younger trees usually recover faster, but most of the black oaks in Thompson Woods are old. For them, the constant disturbance of people walking over their roots may mean the difference between death and survival for seven more years, Roth said.

While direct management of the woods is charged to the Forestry Department, the Physical Plant does most of the actual work. Major work is done by a commercial arborist.

When such major changes as cutting trees or destroying harmful weeds are contemplated, the Zoology and Botany Department, the Physical Plant and the planning office are consulted.

The forestry honorary society is comprised of faculty, graduate and undergraduate students who have been chosen for their ability.

Everything the forestry society has done, including obtaining and planning sites for seedlings, donating equipment for use in the woods and providing herbicides, has been voluntary.

A 3-year-old white ash planted by Xi Sigma Pi, honorary forestry grows in Thompson Woods. 90 per cent of the trees planted were white and red oaks. The trees were planted to replace the dying black oak trees in Thompson Woods.

Paul Roth, associate professor in forestry, picks up a severed piece of young tree which had been broken by vandals along a path in Thompson Woods.

Students using barren footpaths instead of asphalt sidewalks are unaware that they are destroying ground vegetation and shallow tree roots.

Dole qualified as campaigner, not vice-president

By H. B. Koplowitz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

When Republican vice-presidential candidate Robert Dole talks, people listen. Not because he has anything to say on the issues, but because the Senator from Kansas is an engaging, witty after-dinner speaker.

Senator Dole is a classic case in point why the process of selecting the vice-presidential candidates in both parties must be changed.

When Dole appeared at the pre-Hambletonian dinner for the state Republican slate last week, he was introduced by Sen. Charles Percy as a man with "a sense of humor and wit" which will endear him to the American people.

Dole began his speech with a series of jokes about the Republican convention; how he learned about being named vice-president and a bear-in-a-bar joke which was completely unrelated to politics.

Dole said he was recently in Kansas City and learned that four uncommitted delegates and Harold Stassen were still there. He said he had talked to Alf Landon about the upcoming campaign. "It was a short talk," quipped Dole. The morning he was selected veep, Dole said he had gotten out all the buttons of the other possible candidates. "I had so many buttons on I looked like a general," laughed Dole.

And on Watergate, he said that no one in the Republican party was involved. "It was my night off. I had another job in Chicago that night," he admitted.

It wasn't until 20 minutes into his speech that Dole got around saying, "well, seriously folks."

At a press conference before the dinner, a reporter had asked the aspirant to the second highest office in the land what he planned to do if elected. In a surprisingly frank answer, Dole said, "I don't know. I haven't sat around and thought about what I would do in the administration after the election. Right now all I think about is winning."

The point is, Dole was selected to run with Ford because of his ability as a campaigner, not what kind of a President he would make.

Dole is everything Ford is not. Ford is somber and humorless, Dole is fiery and a barrel of laughs; Ford is diplomatic, Dole a scrapper; Ford is stately and presidential, Dole chases Carter down race car tracks and picks away, hoping to get the patented smile to turn downward.

Maybe another, more serious side of Dole will emerge, possibly during the debates. Maybe it is too soon to wonder whether it isn't a good idea to force the candidates to unveil their running mates before they have been nominated. Maybe it's too soon to consider Dole a clown. But there was little else one could conclude from Dole's appearance at the Student Center last week.

'True facts' still not clear in Howlett controversy

By Robert Wren
Assistant Editorial Page Editor

A circuit judge this week dismissed a conflict-of-interest accusation against Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett in the Sun Steel case, and said that Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, a Republican, had improperly interfered with the race between Howlett and Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson.

Judge Raymond K. Berg issued the ruling in a civil suit filed as a result of a report released by a former Illinois Supreme Court Justice acting on behalf of Scott stating that Howlett was in a "posture of conflict" resulting from his position as chairman of the Illinois Recycling Board while drawing $15,000 a year from the Sun Steel Co. as a consultant. Howlett resigned his consultant's job February of this year. He was appointed chairman of the recycling board Sept. 24, 1973.

The Illinois Recycling Board has regulatory powers over the scrap metal industry. Sun Steel is owned by the M.S. Kaplan Co., one of the largest scrap metal dealers in the country.

Atty. Gen. Scott said the decision will be appealed.

Labeling the Sun Steel case political is an understatement. The issue was brought forth by Gov. Daniel Walker while he was engaged in a primary battle with Howlett. Scott, in his position as the state's highest legal officer, merely caught the pitch Walker threw.

But let's get back to Judge Berg's decision. He further stated "if a posture of conflict were held to be the standard, all public officials would have been, are or will be, in conflict."

While you ponder that one for awhile, let's consider just who Judge Berg is.

In 1972, Raymond K. Berg was the Daley machine's candidate for Cook County State's Attorney in the primary election, opposing Donald Page-Moore and incumbent Edward Hanrahan. In that awesome display of Democratic clout in Chicago that year, the St. Patrick's Day Parade down State Street, there was Berg, A Norwegian, right up front with all those Irish Democratic dignitaries.

So it follows that Judge Berg would have a tolerant attitude toward a 'possible' conflict-of-interest posture. This is not to accuse Michael Howlett of any sort of dishonesty. Howlett has shown himself over the years to be one of the more honest politicians in the state, in spite of the Daley machine's backing. Until this year, scandal has never touched him. But it has now come to light that the possibility exists for, if not dishonesty, a conflict of interest.

Keeping in mind that the issue is very much political, Thompson raised some good questions.

"There remain two important facts here,"

Thompson said. "One, that his relationship was concealed from the voters and, two, that we still don't know why they (Sun Steel) gave him $15,000 a year."

Howlett was a vice-president of Sun Steel from 1952 until 1961, when he became state auditor. Officially, his $15,000 salary as a consultant was future services and past obligations.

"I think it's unfortunate in American politics that things like this are raised and you have to take a long time to get things out in the open and get the true facts," Howlett said.

Yes, Mr. Howlett, it is unfortunate. But the "true facts" you refer to still haven't been uncovered. For example, just what were the "future services" you agreed to provide Sun Steel with in 1961? And was Sun Steel satisfied with said services?

Hopefully, the true facts can be arrived at before the November election. Should Howlett be vindicated completely before then, voters can go to the polls and vote for either candidate on their perceived ability, minus the cloud of scandal hanging over the Democratic candidate. And if he's not vindicated, the voters can also take that into consideration.

Or does it make a difference? Chances are, whether Howlett is cleared or not, Illinois voters, especially those in Cook County, probably won't be too concerned with it one way or the other. It's just politics, isn't it?

Or is it?

Nationally Known Speed Reading Course To Be Taught Here In The Carbondale Area

United States Reading Lab will offer a 4 week course in speed reading to a limited number of qualified people in Carbondale.

This recently developed method of instruction is the most innovative and effective program available in the United States.

Not only does this famous course reduce your time in the classroom to just one class per week for 4 short weeks but it also includes an advanced speed reading course on cassette tape so that you can continue to improve for the rest of your life. In just 4 weeks the average student should be reading 4-5 times faster. In a few months some students are reading 20-30 times faster attaining speeds that approach 6000 words per minute. In rare instances speeds of up to 13,000 wpm have been documented. Our average graduate should read 7-10 times faster upon completion of the course with marked improvement in comprehension and concentration.

For those who would like additional information, a series of free, one hour orientation lectures have been scheduled. At these free lectures the course will be explained in complete detail, including classroom procedures, instruction methods, class schedule and a special 1 time only introductory tuition that is less than one-half the cost of similar courses. You must attend any of the meetings for information about Carbondale classes.

These orientations are open to the public, above age 14, (persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent if possible).

If you have always wanted to be a speed reader but found the cost prohibitive or the course too time consuming...now you can! Just by attending 1 evening per week for 4 short weeks you can read 7 to 10 times faster, concentrate better and comprehend more.

If you are a student who would like to make A's instead of B's or C's or if you are a business person who wants to stay abreast of today's everchanging accelerating world then this course is an absolute necessity.

These special one-hour lectures will be held at the following times and places.

Student Center Illinois Room
Monday: Sept. 13, at 6:30 p.m. and again at 8:30 p.m.
Tuesday: Sept. 14, Missouri & Kaskaskia Rooms at 6:30 p.m. and again at 8:30 p.m.
Wednesday: Sept. 15, at 6:30 p.m. and again at 8:30 p.m.
Thursday: Sept. 16, at 6:30 p.m. and again at 8:30 p.m.
Friday: Sept. 17, at 6:30 p.m. and again at 8:30 p.m.
Sunday/Sept. 19, at 3:00 p.m. and again at 5:00 p.m.
Monday: Sept. 20, at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.

If you are a businessman, student, housewife or executive this course which took 5 years of intensive research to develop, is a must. You can read 7-10 times faster, comprehend more, concentrate better, and remember longer. Students are offered an additional discount. This course can be taught to industry or civic groups at "Group Rates" upon request. Be sure to attend whichever free orientation that fits best in your schedule.

Everest summit goal of researcher

By Jerrold Kanichas
Associated Press Writer
EVEREST BASE CAMP, Nepal (AP)—Arlene Blum hopes to be the first American woman to climb Mt. Everest, but she says cancer research is more important to her.

"My research is very important to me, more important than mountaineering," said the 31-year-old biochemist from Berkeley, Calif., one of the two women in the 11-member American Bicentennial Everest Expedition.

Huddled in a tent as the snow fell on the base camp 11,500 feet below the peak of the world's highest mountain, Ms. Blum was reading over an advance copy of her article "Flame Retardant Additives as Possible Cancer Hazards." A runner had just brought it with the mail. "My research on chemicals in the environment that may cause cancer is so satisfying," she said. "I think I can really help people this way. We spend so much money on trying to find cures for cancer but very little on the prevention of it. I really was reluctant to leave my work to come to Everest."

Earlier that day, draped with crampons, ice axe and a rope, and wearing a floppy zebra-striped sun hat, she returned delightedly from several hours of work in the Khumbu ice fall, the treacherous icy gateway to the world's highest peak.

"I love being there," she said, tired but smiling. "I'm really getting excited about climbing."

On the three-week march from Katmandu to the base camp, as she trudged up the slippery trails, Ms.

Blum could be heard championing her favorite causes: legislation requiring that cigarettes extinguish quickly to reduce fire risk; regulation of chemicals in hair dyes and fabrics that may cause cancer; population control in developing countries where she has traveled and climbed.

And equality for women climbers. Ms. Blum is a strong believer in equal rights high up in the mountains, and daily there have been incidents that rankle the feminist in her.

Shortly after arriving at the base camp, the Sherpa guides asked for some climbers to accompany them to the base of the ice fall for a ceremony to the mountain deities. Ms. Blum was pointedly ignored when she offered to go.

Ragtime pianist's long layoff doesn't dim his homecoming

J. Hamilton Douglas made his homecoming to SIU a little brighter while enticing ragtime piano fans with a touch of the past in the Home Economics Auditorium Thursday afternoon.

Douglas, who left SIU a year and a half ago, almost had to cancel his performance due to a recent illness.

The audience didn't know the difference as he played old tunes from Scott Joplin, the King of Ragtime, Artie Mathews, and other bigtime rag composers.

Douglas, poised in a blue denim jacket, gave the audience a brief history or description of each song before he played it.

One of the songs reborn in the 1970's was "The Entertainer," a popular theme from "The Sting," which was also written by Joplin.

Ragtime has a brief, 20-year history that began around the turn of the century. One interpretation of the origin of rag is from the songs rag collectors used to sing in city streets.

Conventional musicians looked down on rag. It was associated with "red light districts" and "jig music," according to Douglas. But many performers continue to play this distinct style of music that charms away the worries and relaxes the soul. "Gladious Rag" was the most relaxing of all. Its smooth transitions provided a calm, mellow atmosphere in the intimate auditorium.

Douglas treated the rag lovers with ten tunes in all, and even one backstage for a few friends after the concert ended.

In his first performance in a year and a half, Douglas still demonstrated his musical sharpness. When hearing that he did play ten songs, he replied, "I lost track." The only thing that disrupted his concrete concentration were the constant flashes from photographers. When asked afterwards if it bothered him, he said, "It sure does. It does a number on my eyes." He said he wanted to say something, but restrained himself.

Douglas is no stranger to Carbondale. He was once a supervisor of music for the SIU Broadcasting Service for eight years.

SIU seeks first opening win since 1971

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

LAKES CHARLES, La.—The Salukis arrived in this city of 80,000 people at 5 p.m. Friday, and before the day was out, Coach Rey Dempsey had sent the team through one practice and two team meetings.

The Salukis will open the season at 7:30 p.m. Saturday against McNeese State.

More than seventy people made the trip in seven different vehicles. The coaches, assistant coaches, and 49 players came down in two DC-3 planes and two smaller planes. The equipment managers, graduate assistant coaches, photographers, trainers and the press drove down in two vans—a trip of about 14 hours non-stop.

SIU President Warren Brandt will fly in on a commercial flight Saturday.

Making the trip will be the largest group of the season, including Athletic Director Gale Sayers, Assistant Athletic Director John Novotny, George Mace, vice president of University Relations, Athletic Business Manager

Jim Barret, and Sports Information Director Tom Simons.

For a game more than 700 miles from Carbondale, there would be a fairly good size Saluki crowd, as six Salukis will be playing on their home soil in front of families and friends.

Six players are from nearby New Orleans. The freshmen are cornerback Oyd Craddock, middle guard Percy Gibson, guard Byron Honore, fullback Bernell Quinn, and safety Alvin Reed. Linebacker Carlton Spain is from Baton Rouge.

Both Craddock and Honore will start in their first collegiate game, and the others also figure in Dempsey's game plan.

Altogether, there are ten players who will be new at their positions at kick-off time—six on offense, four on defense.

The game will mark the opening of the 61st SIU football season, under their eleventh head coach, and things look promising for the Salukis.

SIU has been rated from 13 to 20 point underdogs, but the majority of the people making the trip see the game in the Salukis favor if they can keep their mistakes to a minimum.

SIU and McNeese State have never faced each other before, and only know each other through last year's game films. A new NCAA rule prohibits teams from scouting each other, so now they trade films with last year's opponents of the teams they will face.

Since the Salukis have a new head coach and a new offense they have an advantage over McNeese because the Cowboys can't get much use from last year's SIU films.

"It's hard to look at anything except the spring game," McNeese Head Coach Jack Doland conceded earlier in the week.

Doland has been coaching at McNeese for seven years and Dempsey and his staff almost know what to expect from them.

The Cowboys possess probably the best running attack the Salukis will face this year. Junior tailback Mike McArthur rushed for 825 yards last year, while the Cowboys fullback duo of Bobby Wilson and Joe Crawford accounted for 1,046 yards between them.

Junior Terry McFarland will start at quarterback after playing defensive back his first two years. He has not played quarterback in a game since high school.

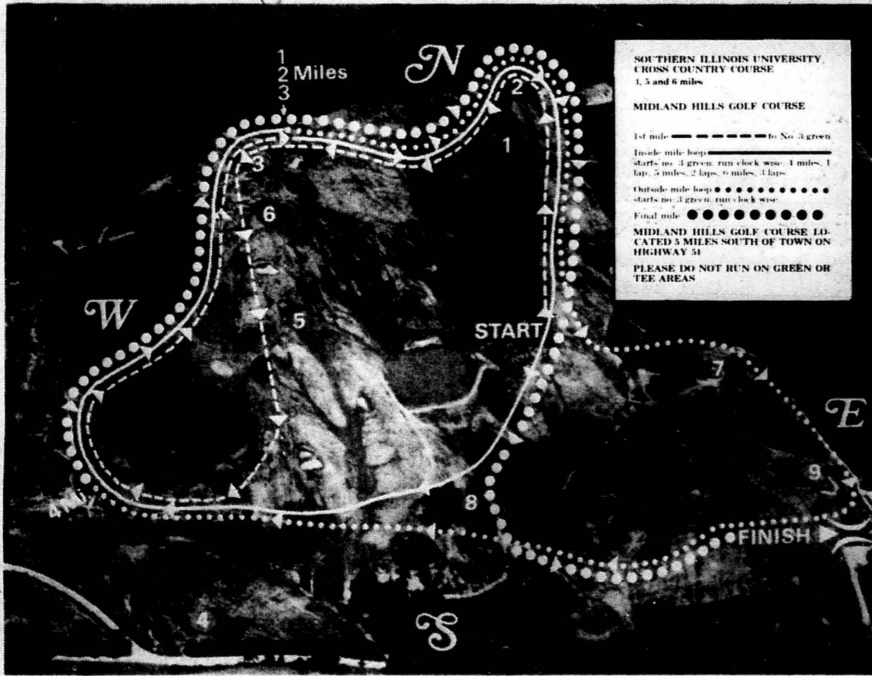

Several McNeese players are questionable starters for the game, notably linebacker Bob Howell, who led the team in tackles last year.

McNeese lost their first three games last year, but came back to win seven of their last eight, the only team in the country to do so.

For the Salukis, the only position not set is at quarterback. Both Bob Collins and Jim Kelly will play a lot, but Dempsey has yet to decide on his starter.

The Salukis will be looking for their first season opener victory since 1971 when they defeated Dayton 31-14. Last year, SIU lost to Southwest Louisiana in nearby Lafayette, 27-10.

Win or lose, the Salukis will leave Lake Charles immediately after the game and arrive in Carbondale about 3:30 a.m. Sunday.

Cross country course

Saturday at 10 a.m. SIU opens their cross country season against the University of Illinois over a 4-mile course laid out over Midland Hills Golf Course. Midland Hills is located five miles south of Carbondale on Illinois 51. Illinois is led by Craig Virgin, the NCAA individual cross country champ for 1975. Admission is free to the course, known for its hills which can drain a runner but provide excellent vantage points for spectators.

CCHS opens against Murphysboro

The eight head coaches in the South Seven Conference have picked Carbondale as a solid favorite to repeat as conference champions. Carbondale won the title in 1975 with a 6-1 conference record.

Last year Carbondale allowed only 14 points to conference opponents during the entire season. However, only one starter, Mark Klasek, returns from last year's defense.

The Terrier's starting offensive backfield does not have a single player with a full season of varsity experience.

Last season's starting fullback, Bret Dougherty, may miss the first game or two because of a burst eardrum suffered in a water skiing accident during the summer. Tom Striegel, a 180-pound senior, has moved into the fullback slot during Dougherty's absence.

Carbondale Head Coach Tom O'Boyle rates quarterback Tim Hawkins as a good passer but only an average runner. Hawkins has two games of playing experience.

There is speed in the halfback position, with junior Roger Ollie and sophomore Jim Andrew. Andrew was the South Seven track champion in the 220-yard dash.

The offensive line is small but quick, according to O'Boyle. The defensive line is of mediocre size for high school, averaging 189 pounds per man.

Because of the 10 new faces on defense, the lack of size on the line and the inexperience of the offensive backfield, O'Boyle thinks the notion is "ridiculous" that his team be a strong pick for conference champs.

"It's not a rebuilding year, 'cause we're going to try to win it," O'Boyle said, "but dammit, it's going to be difficult."

O'Boyle has 14 lettermen on a 34 man squad. Carbondale was 9-2 overall last season while advancing to the 4A state playoff quarter-finals.

Carbondale will open their season this Saturday night when Murphysboro comes to Carbondale in one of the South's oldest rivalries.

Murphysboro and Carbondale first met in 1921, and over the years have played 36 times. Murphysboro holds an overall series edge of 29-25-2, but Carbondale has been dominant in recent years, winning 13 of the past 16 games.

Southwest Egyptian Conference coaches picked Murphysboro third in the conference this year behind Sparta and Pinckneyville. New Head Coach Tim Mash takes over a squad that was 7-2 last year.

Finley ready to suit up

OAKLAND (AP) — Charlie Finley a designated hitter? The tempestuous owner of the Oakland A's, in a statement released Friday by the team, said he was considering making himself the club's designated hitter.

"I'm in great shape. I have kept this way the past five years fighting with my players," said Finley, 58, in another obvious try at one-upmanship against Chicago White Sox owner Bill Veck.

The White Sox have activated coach Minnie Minoso and Finley said, "Since Bill Veck has seen fit to activate Minoso at 53, I certainly feel I can swing for the A's at 58."

The release, which referred to Finley as "hard-hitting," "dynamic" and "colorful," said the owner wanted to help the A's win the American League West title, and it concluded: "He knows he can come to their aid because he is in better shape than most of the A's."

Hambo winner on recovery trail

OYSTER BAY, N.Y. (AP) — Steve Lobell, the colt who won last Saturday's Hambletonian in four heats and later collapsed from exhaustion, is recovering well in a paddock on the grounds of his trainer Billy Haughton.

The 3-year-old trotter is expected to compete Saturday, Sept. 18, in the $100,000 Colonial at Liberty Bell Park in Philadelphia and the following Friday at Meadowlands, N.J. in the $100,000 Beacon Course trot.

Haughton's colt equalled the world record for 3-year-old trotters in the second heat at the Hambletonian with a time of 1:56.
