Kelley, Poshard set to debate tonight

By Scott Perry
Staff Writer

Voters in the 22nd Congressional District have the opportunity tonight to see congressional candidates Patrick Kelley and Glenn Poshard discuss the issues in the first of three public debates.

Kelley and Poshard will meet face to face, taking questions from a four-member panel and the public at 7:30 p.m. at Shawnee College in Ulin.

Both candidates are seeking the seat to be vacated by Rep. Kenneth Gray (D-West Frankfort), who is retiring because of health problems. Gray has held the position from 1955 to 1975 and again from 1984 to the present.

Both have been campaigning for the congressional spot since late last year.

Glenn Poshard

Patrick Kelley said the debate will be a good opportunity for the public to get involved and hear how each candidate stands on issues that concern the region and the nation, and to know the differences between the candidates.

"It's important to find the differences," Kelley said.

People haven't had the opportunity to hear both candidates speak at the same time and to see how they differ on particular issues, he said. Kelley said he wants to present an alternative to the approach taken by those who have represented the area in the past.

"The policies of the past haven't worked," he said.

Democratic candidate Glenn Poshard said he was ready to debate but said no special preparations have been made.

"I think there is such a thing as over-preparation," Poshard said.

Poshard, who has represented the 59th District in the Illinois Senate, said his stance on the issues are clear.

"I've had the same stance on the issues for several years and I don't think it would do me a whole lot of good to go back now and try to struggle with that (changing his stance)."

Kelley, on the other hand, only has become known throughout the district since beginning his bid for Congress. His "grassroots" campaign relies heavily on getting out and meeting the people.

Among the issues expected to be debated are the economy of Southern Illinois, ways of creating jobs for the region, education, taxes, defense spending, abortion, drug policies and the deficit.

The panelists for tonight's debate are: Tim Landis, Southern Illinoisian, representing newspaper; Bill Cromer, WEBQ, representing radio; Bonnie Wheeler, WSIL, representing television; and Jason Edwards, of the Shawnee College newspaper TEMPO, representing the hosting school. Barry Gowin, president of Shawnee College, will moderate the activities.

The public will be invited to ask questions of the candidates after the formal discussion is through.

Testifier: Nitz told of killing

By Nora Bentley
and Kimberly Clarke
Staff Writers

Witnesses gave testimony Tuesday that Richard Nitz had confided in them that he had committed a murder.

Daniel Walker and Michael Stearns, who both testified they were acquaintances of Nitz, said Nitz told them he had murdered a man.

Nitz is charged with the April 6 murder of Michael Miley, whose decapitated body was found in the trunk of his car April 9 near Rocky Comfort Road in Union County southeast of Carbondale.

Walker, who said he had known Nitz for eight months, testified that he had attended a party at Nitz's trailer, where Nitz told him of a murder he had committed.

Walker testified that Nitz said he had shot a man in the head, and then decapitated him to get rid of the ballistic's evidence.

Nitz then put the body in the trunk of the victim's car and tried to burn the car, Walker said. Nitz also said that he hid the head and gun, but didn't Robert Hogue with his backyard garden could build a street that would cut the shed, off West Walnut Street. The city corner of his garden and level the shed.

Long-time resident fearing demise of retirement estate to progress

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

Robert Hogue built his house 34 years ago on the edge of town for he and his wife Mildred to retire in.

But the former University carpenter isn't sure he is going to be able to do that because he lives on Brook Lane, and progress may be coming to him — literally — through his back yard.

If the proposed east-west couple is constructed, a street from the intersection of Brook Lane and West Main Street to the intersection of West Walnut Street and South Oakland Avenue would cut a swath through Hogue's back yard.

His garden would be clipped and a shed, which is 20 feet from his house, would be leveled.

"We're not a bit happy about this," Hogue said.

Hogue, who came to Carbondale in 1949, said he doesn't want to sell his house, but if the couple goes in he doesn't know how he'll be able to live there.

Hogue said the Illinois Department of Transportation has bought and leveled six houses in the immediate vicinity.

Larry Meyer, planning and program engineer for IDOT, said "We've (IDOT) bought homes in that area for several years because of the possibility that the couple would go in."

Since 1969, Meyer said, IDOT has purchased six properties in the Brook Lane area and two behind National Food store, was the most recent of which was in June 1988.

IDOT does not need to buy the Hogue's entire property to construct the street, Meyer said.

The City Council is aware of the Hogue's plight.

Mayor Neil Dillard said: "If the couple is approved a lot of effort would go to see how his (Hogue's) situation could be mitigated."

Councilman John Yow said the Hagues would be the people "most impacted" by construction of the couple.

The council is scheduled to vote on the couple Sept. 27.

Dukakis takes offensive

By United Press International

Michael Dukakis and George Bush swiped at each other in the Midwest Tuesday, with the Democrat trying to turn the tables on Bush by suggesting he was not tough enough to deal with the Soviets and the Republican lashing out at Dukakis for economic pessimism he said could spark a recession.

Starting with separate appearances in Chicago, the two presidential candidates had different goals as they threw the verbal punches — the GOP vice president trying to expand the edge his campaign believes it has won recently and the Massachusetts governor hoping to strike a theme that will spark new life into his flagging effort.

Dukakis took the most unique tack Tuesday as he tried to battle the Bush argument that he is too inexperienced and weak to lead the United States in the international arena.

Sounding a tough call for the Soviet Union to match its words with deeds, Dukakis suggested that it was the vice president, and not himself, who was unprepared to deal with Kremlin leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

"George Bush has been around Washington for a long time," Dukakis told the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. "But if he couldn't stand up to the ayatollah or say no to Noriega, how will he measure up to Gorbachev?"

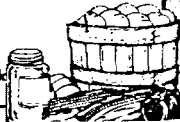

Dukakis, amidst a campaign swing aimed at showing he is tough and knowledgeable on foreign policy and defense, has frequently attacked Bush for his role in the Iran-Contra scandal and questioned the

Political detainees escape to refuge of U.S. Consulate

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Three prominent political detainees escaped from a hospital Tuesday and sought refuge in the U.S. Consulate in Johannesburg, handing Ambassador Edward Perkins his first major crisis since assuming office in 1986, officials said. An activist lawyer who had been in contact with the men detained under sweeping emergency detention laws said the three had demanded a meeting with the black American diplomat.

South Africans allowed to attend papal mass

GABORONE, Botswana (UPI) — President Quett Masire Tuesday appealed to Pope John Paul II to help end apartheid in South Africa, and allowed Catholics from the white-ruled country to enter Botswana for a papal mass. John Paul arrived on an Air Zimbabwe Boeing 707 in Botswana's capital just 15 miles from South Africa on the second stop of his 10-day tour of five southern African nations. He flew in from Harare, Zimbabwe.

China to stop exhibiting giant pandas in U.S.

BEIJING (UPI) — China said Tuesday it will no longer allow giant pandas to be exported for exhibition in the United States in an apparent response to mounting criticism that the practice was further endangering the species. A spokesman for the Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora Import and Export Administrative Office said his agency would not issue export permits for giant pandas and snub-nosed monkeys.

Informal poll shows Bush favored by Soviets

MOSCOW (UPI) — An informal mini-poll conducted in the streets of Moscow shows that the average Soviet citizen favors George Bush over Michael Dukakis to win the presidential election. The unscientific survey of 50 people was conducted by United Press International at an outdoor market, a downtown shopping arcade and a bus stop. It included married couples, young people, elderly people, three policemen and an artist. Most were ordinary folk.

Reagan signs Fair Housing extension into law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan signed an extension of federal fair housing law Tuesday that covers the handicapped and families with children and gives victims of bias easier-to-use legal tools to fight discrimination. Reagan hailed the measure, which plugs gaps in the 1968 Fair Housing Act, as the "most important civil rights legislation in 20 years."

Abortion funds rejected for sex crime victims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, in a wholesale switch of support, caved in to President Reagan's veto threat and adamant opposition in the House Tuesday and voted to bar federally financed abortions for poor victims of rape or incest. The Senate, which voted 73-19 on July 27 to permit government money to be used for such abortions, rejected the exact same provision 47-43 on a procedural vote, warned by Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., "We're not going to win this battle on this bill."

Marines landing in Yellowstone disaster zone

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — A battalion of Marines was sent into the Yellowstone National Park area Tuesday to assist firefighters taking advantage of favorable weather conditions in their war against vast wildfires which have been on a rampage all summer. Meanwhile, the Salvation Army put out a call for coats needed by the firefighters because a sudden dip of the thermometer — in the 20s during the night — was bothering the crews while at the same time helping them in their efforts.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — More than 200 top NASA managers and engineers began an exhaustive, two-day flight readiness review Tuesday to clear the shuttle Discovery for blastoff around Sept. 26 on the first post-Challenger flight. NASA engineers, meanwhile, were trying to track down the source of another apparent hydrogen fuel leak in Discovery's engine compartment and it was not known what impact that might have, if any, on the agency's launch plans.

Credit transfer policy to continue

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

The faculty senate decided Tuesday to continue the present credit transfer policy between SIU-E and SIU-C.

"My impression of the committee's recommendation was that the overall effect of a policy change would not be that significant," Thomas Jefferson, Undergraduate Education Policy Committee chairman, said.

Under the present system,

SIU-E students moving to SIU-C have all the Edwardsville grades and courses counted toward retention and graduation at Carbondale.

SIU-C students moving to Edwardsville, however, are dealt with like transfers from other institutions. Retention and graduation is based solely on SIU-E grades.

Students bringing better records with them from SIU-E than they later accumulate at SIU-C benefit from the present policy, Thomas Jefferson, UEPC chairman, said.

"On the other hand, SIU-E students who bring poorer grades than they later establish must carry those poor grades with them at SIU-C," he added.

In other business, Vice President for Academic Affairs Benjamin Shepherd announced that talks with the Department of Corrections over mandatory drug testing have produced no results.

2 local businesses given liquor fines

Youth's death traced back to bars

By Scott Perry
Staff Writer

The November 1987 death of a Herrin High School student has led to the fining of two Carbondale establishments for serving alcohol to a minor.

Kevin T. Bennett, 18, died from injuries sustained in a November 26, 1987, automobile accident when his car ran off the south side of Herrin Culp Road and into a guard rail.

An investigation by Illinois State Police turned up evidence that prior to his trip home, Bennett had been drinking at both Prime Time Restaurant and Lounge, E. Route 13, and at Alexander Coles, 519 S. Illinois Ave., in Carbondale.

The Local Liquor Control Commission brought up charges against the two establishments Tuesday, saying they violated Carbondale ordinance 2-5-10a — serving alcohol to a minor.

Representatives of Prime Time Restaurant and Lounge pleaded guilty to the charge and were fined $250.

Joe Leberman, attorney for the city, pointed out Prime Time has had no liquor violations during its five years in business and said this is why a stricter fine wasn't sought by the city.

Representatives of Alexander Coles — recently renamed Coles — pleaded not guilty to the charge. Michael Maurizio, representing Alexander Coles, pointed to inconsistencies in the January 28 statement made to police and the testimony given today by one of the city's witnesses.

During her testimony, Rita Galloway, 23, said an agent of Alexander Coles had applied a stamp to both Bennett's and her hand and that Bennett had purchased the drinks.

In her statement to police in January, Galloway said they had not been stamped and that she had bought her own drink.

The city asked that a fine of $2,500 be inflicted against the establishment, but the Council approved a fine of $2,000.

Illinois State Police turned up evidence that Bennett had been drinking prior to his trip home at both Prime Time Restaurant and Alexander Coles Leberman said the city couldn't go for a suspension of license against the Carbondale bar because of a change in ownership and its directors.

Alexander Coles had two violations — not related to underage drinking — on its record prior to the change.

Leberman said he was satisfied with the $2,000 fine, saying it would have just as much effect on the business as would a suspension.

Forest fires prompt look at forest policy

MORE THAN half of the Yellowstone National Park is expected to be ravaged by forest fires by the end of the week. Already, more than 900,000 of the park's 2.2 million acres have been charred.

As the fires continue to sweep through the park, controversy is heating up about the Park Service's fire fighting policy. For years, the Park Service has adopted a natural management plan for fighting forest fires, a plan that allows nature to run its course.

THIS MEANS Park Service officials will not fight fires in Yellowstone if they occur naturally. Instead, they allow the fire to burn out on its own. At the crux of their argument is that Yellowstone is preserved as a primitive forest and should be treated with a hands-off policy, allowing the forest to thrive without intervention by man.

THE POLICY makes sense, but officials need to keep in mind that Yellowstone is one of the most splendid national parks in the world. Although it will survive, the effects of the recent fires on Yellowstone will not be known for some time. Officials need to take a closer look at forest management.

The dry conditions caused by the drought should have been a factor in the Park Service's decision whether or not to fight the fires. At first, officials seemed to have taken the effects of the drought lightly. But, when the fires turned into raging infernos, everyone was pointing fingers and no one was taking the blame.

ONLY WHEN it was too late did Park Service officials take action. Although credit must be given to those who are fighting the fires, their task is monumental and it seems all they can do is hope for rain.

Tourists and forest lovers will be saddened and angry when the fires finally die down, but the wildlife that suffer most. The worst effects of the fire could be the loss of habitat that have sustained various plants and animals in the past.

Opinions from elsewhere

Taking the hazards from toxic wastes

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

There's little doubt that society is creating more refuse than it can safely dispose of and that conservation and the use of biodegradable materials are a must. But there are some scientific fixes that should permit us to continue to use some modern materials we prize, which until now have been difficult to handle. Common plastic and PCBs — polychlorinated biphenyls widely used for insulation — are two encouraging examples.

Plastic doesn't degrade, because its molecules are too big for microorganisms to eat. Until recently, only starch had been known to break plastic into small enough bites for germ consumption. Unfortunately, starch also weakens plastic's structure, making it possible for microorganisms to begin eating the plastic when it is still on the retailers' shelves, rather than waiting until it reaches the landfill.

Now researchers at Purdue University have found that cellulose acetate, which is derived from wood pulp, breaks down plastic molecules into the proper size for microorganisms to consume, but only after it has first interacted with the soil. Binding cellulose acetate to plastic should make that ubiquitous material completely biodegradable.

PCBs have been a problem because when burned they give off dioxin, a deadly poison. So they are stored, not always effectively, in expensive sealed containers. But researchers at Texas A&M University have found that when two oxygen atoms are added to an electron, a "superoxide ion" is produced, which breaks down PCBs into bicarbonate of soda and table salt.

Promising as these developments are, they don't imply scientific fixes are available for all our environmental problems. For instance, it would be dangerous to continue building nuclear power plants on the theory that eventually a way will be found to make their wastes harmless.

Pettit, Guyon should put their money where their more affluent mouths are

I would like to address this letter to our fine administration. To make up for the lack of federal and state funds, you have decided that a tuition increase is the solution to SIU-C's financial problems. However, at the same time you want to increase your salaries by 7 percent. This is a slap in the face!

Although I believe that a 7 percent increase in faculty salaries is essential to the quality of our increasingly expensive education, there seems to be no justification in increasing executive salaries. It seems to me that charity starts at home and you also must give up something to help cut costs.

Just how will the students benefit by paying the administration more money. It would really impress me if you would take a 2 percent deduction in your salary just as every college and department on campus took 2 percent budget cuts across the board.

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit, you will receive the lowest salary raise of only 6.1 percent. You currently earn $107,004, plus the use of the Stone House. After the salary increase, you will receive $6,527 more per year to the total sum of more than $113,500. While you receive more than $6,500 more next year, I will be forced to pay $158.25 more if the 12 percent tuition increase is approved.

At the same time, I will be going another $4,000 in debt. Since this is the maximum amount of money available to me, I do not know where I will get the money to pay for the additional expenses incurred when your proposed tuition increase goes into effect.

Perhaps the administration doesn't realize the financial burden students have placed on them. After all, Chancellor Pettit, you don't even pay rent. When was the last time you received a notice of disconnection in the mail because you couldn't afford to make ends meet? When was the last time you ate Ramen noodles and called it a meal?

Illinois legislators seem to think the university system can get by on less money each year. Tuition goes up and the quality of education goes down.

After a previous tuition increase, I was forced to drop out of school for a semester so I could work full time. After living on my own for four years, and earning more than $4,000 last year, I'm still considered dependent on my parents, even though they don't claim me on their tax returns. It seems the federal and state governments want education to be for only the privileged rich. But I attend a public school, not a private one.

Illinois students are caught between a rock and a hard place. We are forced to attend an Illinois university because it offers the lowest cost for education. However, Illinois legislators seem to think the university system can get by on less money each year.

Tuition goes up and the quality of our education goes down.

Chancellor Pettit, although you try to deny it, it is true that the students are paying more and receiving less for their money. Tell me why departments can no longer afford to give students hand outs. Instead, students are forced to shell out an additional $10 or so to purchase them from a copy store. At the same time, excessive money is being spent on unnecessary things. For example, last June the physical plant spent $20,000 on a sidewalk sweeper. Then they pay a physical plant worker more than $15 an hour to drive the thing. Do we really need to spend so much money to walk on a clean sidewalk?

I would also like to ask the board to consider the 12 percent increase over an 18.3 percent increase. That would be more than a $240 additional cost to the student. Although the 27 percent of SIU-C students involved in the Monetary Award Program definitely need the money, I wish you could find the funding from another source other than a tuition increase. I'm having a hard enough time paying for my own tuition without paying for part of someone else's at the same time.

When I leave SIU-C, I will be well over $10,000 in debt. I'm glad I'm getting out soon. I feel sorry for the freshmen who only have an even larger debt to look forward to. I can only hope that the state government wises up and sends money where it is much needed, in education. — Tim Svetz, senior, cinema and photography.

Despite opinion, DE fuels SIU-C party image

more than rehash the conventional wisdom that if your party is too loud, the police will come and break it up. This is a fact of life that I'm sure exists on every campus in the U.S., and one that every college-age person is aware of by now. In any other college newspaper, this article would barely warrant a mention in the police section.

While I agree with Chancellor Lawrence Pettit, and most University faculty and administrators, that SIU-C's party image is largely undeserved, I feel that if the editors of the DE are going to chide others for promoting that image, they should start by cleaning their own house. — Gregory Eaton, graduate, Business Administration.

Let foresters manage forests; satisfy diverse group of users

There seems to be a lot of debating going on about harvesting timber on the Shawnee National Forest. With a bachelor's in Forest Resource Management and 10 years working in the woods buying, selling, planting and harvesting, I hope I am qualified to shed some light on the subject.

Keep in mind that in Southern Illinois there are no areas of land that have not suffered from the impact of man. Every stand of timber has been cut over at least once or twice, and yet we have an abundance of forest land to enjoy.

Trees are a renewable resource. You cut one mature tree and ten grow back. Even after more than a century of fires, grazing and timber harvesting, our forests have bounced back to where they can provide us with an abundance of wildlife, quality timber and aesthetics.

For those who disapprove of the short-lived unsightliness of recently harvested areas, the Forest Service provides thousands of acres of wilderness areas, natural areas, riparian areas, archeological areas, wild and scenic river corridors and other such areas where timber harvest is prohibited.

On the remaining acreage, the Forest Service enforces a 120-year rotation for timber harvest.

To simplify this for all non-foresters, imagine a tract of land divided into 120 pieces. Every year, cut one piece. It would take 120 years to cut the entire tract and, during that time span, the previously cut timber is growing back into maturity. The timber cut during year one is 120 years old, year two is 119 years old, and so on. This creates a diversity of age classes of the overstory trees, which provides a diversity of food and shelter for wildlife and a variety of scenic areas for the public to enjoy.

Trees are a renewable resource. You cut one mature tree, and ten grow back.

Granted, a recent clear-cut is ugly, but after a year or two the regeneration grows so thick that it hides man's scars upon the land. Recent research shows that the new regeneration is providing adequate oak stocking in most areas. Though for the first 10 or 20 years, it is so thick that it is difficult for man to walk through, it provides excellent shelter and food for many forms of wildlife.

Members of RACE white about the Forest Service cutting all of their favorite hiking and riding areas. What an outlandish distortion of the truth. First of all, most of the trails they hike on are old logging roads. Secondly, because of the abundance of areas where logging is prohibited and the 120 year rotation, less than one percent of the Shawnee National Forest is harvested yearly.

Everywhere you go in the Shawnee, you are looking at a previously harvested area, and it still maintains its beautiful appearance.

Concerning endangered species, the Forest Service may have mistakenly overlooked a few cases, but they are working on rectifying the situation. With proper timber sale lay out, you can manage for timber harvest and endangered species. For example, in Cave Valley, the relocation of the road will protect the cane habitat of the endangered Swainson's warbler.

Managing public lands is a complicated job. You must try to satisfy the needs of many diverse groups of people, including hunters, bird watchers, hikers and the timber industry, not just environmentalists. Let's let foresters manage our nation's forests. All preservationists will preserve is unemployment. — Brian Unnerstall, Altenburg, Mo.

Scientific community supports Cave Valley

This letter is in response to Mr. Clark Ashby's letter, published in the Sept. 1 issue of the Daily Egyptian.

Cave Valley has long been recognized by the scientific community as a unique ecosystem where a great deal of research has been conducted. Evidence of the concern of the scientific community includes:

— 1972 — Professor William George proposed Cave Creek Warbler sanctuary, and US Forest Service recognized his proposal by posting a sign designating the area as such.

— 1977 — The US Forest Service contracted with William Eddleman, a masters student at the university of Missouri-Columbia, to study the Cave Valley area. His recommendation was to make Cave Valley a non-game management area.

— 1988 — Scott Robinson of the Illinois Department of Conservation (IDOC) wrote in a letter to a Forest Supervisor of the Shawnee National Forest: "The Creek area contains one of the richest wildlife habitats in the state of Illinois. Wet, muddy stream bottoms are rare in the Shawnee and in the state of Illinois. For this reason, the Illinois DOC has long recommended that this area be set aside as a non-game bird management unit."

Many other natural science professionals too numerous to mention have voiced their concern in this area.

The people of Illinois are at risk of losing a unique environment, which is easily accessible by all sectors of the public, for enjoying the rich plant and bird diversity. In addition, the University stands to lose this beautiful outdoor laboratory if clear-cutting is permitted.

The economics of the situation is this: It will cost the taxpayers more in road and bridge construction than they will receive for the sale of the timber. The timber will go to Missouri and support the Missouri job market. Also because of the nature of clear-cutting, hunters will not be able to use these areas for years, consequently confining more hunters in a smaller space. This could result in a hunter-safety factor.

Finally, there were three clear-cuts done in 1972. The stated objective of the US Forest Service for these areas is the regeneration of an oak and hickory forest. All three of these areas have failed miserably. The regenerated forest is dominated by the less valued species of yellow poplar and maple. This will most certainly change the forest ecology and its rich biodiversity.

I urge the Forest Service not to leave a legacy of mismanagement when the results of their past experiments have failed.

Clear-cutting is an extremely complex process that will only work when all the right components are present or not present. Obviously, these requisite conditions are not present in Cave Valley for a successful clear-cut. — David Nadolski, R.R. 4, Carbondale.

Clear-cutting forum provides diverse views

I am writing with regard to the controversial issue of clear-cutting of timber in the Cave Valley area in the Shawnee National Forest, which was addressed in an article in the Aug. 3 Daily Egyptian and in several subsequent letters to the editor.

For the sake of clarification, I would like to point out that, contrary to impressions which may have been left by some previous writers, the Southern Illinois Audubon Society — the local chapter of the Illinois Audubon Society — has adopted no official position relative to this clear-cutting issue.

As an organization, we have attempted to focus attention on issues of environmental concern, such as the possible destruction of habitat uniquely suited to the Swainson's warbler and other state and federally endangered species, and have encouraged the identification and consideration of alternative courses of action at Cave Valley.

Recognizing that the management of our national forests is indeed a complex and important issue which ultimately affects the quality of life for all of us, I hope that the Daily Egyptian will continue to provide a forum for the expression of various views on this subject. — Andrew Earnest, president, Southern Illinois Audubon Society.

LOUIS FREITAG, Murphysboro, swimming pool tender at the Recreation Center, with 12 years of service. Freitag first worked at Touch of Nature Environmental Center as a program coordinator from 1968 to 1973. He holds a bachelor's degree from Wesleyan (Iowa) University (1953) and a master's degree in forestry from SIU-C (1970). During the 1970s he was a probation officer for the state's First Judicial Circuit in Marion. He returned to the University in 1981 and retired Nov. 30, 1987. He considers Jacksonville and Burlington, Iowa, his hometowns.

HELEN M. GARRETT, Marion, first cook with Central Food Service, with 12 years of service. Garrett was hired as a cook's helper in 1965 and was promoted to first cook in 1970. She went on disability leave in 1981 and retired Feb. 25.

LOUIS E. GIBSON, Carbondale, a computer engineer, with 29 years of service. Gibson held the same job in Computing Affairs from July, 1966, until he retired April 30.

CLIFFORD R. GROSVENOR, Murphysboro, a plumber, with 29 years of service. Grosvenor signed on with the Physical Plant in 1958. He retired May 31.

JAMES F. HOWELL, Carbondale, building service worker, with 27 years of service. In December 1960, Howell started working at the Southern Illinois Airport as an aircraft maintenance mechanic helper with SIU-C's Airport Operations. He became a building service worker in 1982.

JAMES W. HUBBARD, Carbondale, an agronomist in the Department of Plant and Soil Science, with 30 years of service. Hubbard worked variously as a temporary construction laborer and field worker before being promoted to farm foreman in 1973. He became an agronomist in 1983. He retired Dec. 31, 1987.

DAULFORD JACKSON JR., Murphysboro, building custodian with 35 years of service. Jackson was hired as a building service worker in 1952 and was promoted to custodian in 1956. He retired Oct. 31, 1987.

WILLIE M. JAMISON, Carbondale, audio visual technician in Learning Resources Service, with 17 years of service. She signed on as a clerk in that office and was promoted in 1977.

BENNY F. JENKINS, Murphysboro, building service worker, with 17 years of service. Jenkins worked both for the Physical Plant and for University Housing at SIU-C. He retired Oct. 31, 1987.

BOBBY R. JONES, Carbondale, grounds foreman, with 33 years of service. Jones started as a grounds foreman in 1967. Before that he was a maintenance laborer for the University. He retired Feb. 29.

ARCHIE L. KELLEY, Carbondale, building service worker, with 17 years of service. Kelley worked for University Housing and the Physical Plant during his years at SIU-C. He retired Nov. 30, 1987.

USG to discuss Carbondale mass transit system

By Brad Bushue
Staff Writer

The proposed mass transit system, a plan to examine the University's spending of tuition and fees and the higher education tax increase will be discussed by members of the Undergraduate Student Government.

In the first meeting of the semester, the USG will hear individual commission reports in Student Center Ballroom B at 7 tonight.

The Mass Transit Commission will present an updated report on the Carbondale transit proposal's status and announce that USG is cooperating with the city to set the scope of a feasibility study, President Bill Hall said.

The study was requested by the Illinois Department of Transportation, the University

Board of Trustees, and the city of Carbondale to answer questions concerning the proposed project's feasibility, Hall said.

Housing, Tuition and Fees Commissioner John Lim will initiate a project that will attempt to explain how the University spends tuition and fees by examining University records and documents, Fall said.

The continuing push for a state tax increase for higher education will be discussed by the Governmental Relations Commission.

The USG Senate will nominate representatives for the Internal Affairs and Finance Committees, and the Pro-temp of the Senate, who would be third in line to the USG president.

The senate also will select one of two candidates to fill an open seat as a representative of the College of Technical Careers.

The USG also will discuss recommendations by an ad hoc finance committee to provide $1,000 in funding for various Registered Student Organizations and a request for $1,350 by the Pan-Hellenic Council, an RSO umbrella group, Hall said.

MILEY, from Page 1

reveal the location, Walker said.

When Walker showed disbelief in Nitz's story, Nitz offered to show him the car and body, Walker testified. Nitz and Walker proceeded to the location, but turned back when they saw police cars in the area.

Walker testified that Nitz said "they had found him."

Walker said he asked Nitz why he "did it" and Nitz replied that the man he had murdered followed him to Grassy Bottoms, an area around Crab Orchard Lake.

After stopping, the man approached Nitz, asking him if he wanted to "have a good time," which prompted Nitz to shoot the man, Walker testified.

Stearns gave a similar testimony to Walker's. Stearns said Nitz told him that the man he murdered was "the guy in the papers."

Stearns, who said he has known Nitz for about five years, also testified that Nitz told him of a murder he had committed.

While police were searching Nitz's trailer on April 28, Nitz and Stearns were at a Carbondale tavern, Stearns said.

Stearns said he asked Nitz in jest: "Did you kill somebody?" Nitz replied: "Yes," Stearns testified.

Testimony also was given by a police official who said Nitz had denied killing Miley and that he knew whom Miley's killer was.

Jackson County Sheriff's Lt. Michael Teas testified that when Nitz was arrested May 1, he told Teas that he didn't kill Miley and if the charges were dropped against him, he would take the police to the murderer.

vice president's ties to Panama's leader, Gen. Manuel Noriega.

Trying to persuade moderate voters he would not pursue a weak foreign policy, Dukakis, who later rode an M-1 tank in Michigan, said it would be "naive" to take Gorbachev at his word about changes in the Soviet Union.

"To deal successfully with Gorbachev, the next president must be tough. He must be realistic. He must have good judgment and he must be committed to building a strong defense," he said. "As president, I intend to provide that leadership."

The governor also criticized Bush's choice of a running mate, Sen. Dan Quayle of Indiana, pointedly referring to him by his full name, J. Danforth Quayle and belittling his ability to deal with the Soviets.

Noting that three post-war vice presidents have been forced into the Oval Office, he argued: "Dan Quayle is no Gerald Ford. He's no Lyndon Johnson and he sure ain't Harry Truman. Can we stake our future on the hope that he is a match for Mikhail Gorbachev?"

While attacking the Republican ticket, Dukakis, however, did not specify how he would use economic leverage to force changes in Soviet behavior — a mainstay of U.S. policy for some time.

Bush's Chicago speech on the economy to the Executive Club was much more familiar, saying that deviations from the course set by President Reagan with a tax increase — a possibility Dukakis has left open — would "invite" recession.

"Tremendous opportunities for greater economic growth are coming our way and tremendous risks if our policies are wrong," Bush told the business leaders. "The United States — with the largest and freest market, the greatest concentration of talent and capital — can and must seize the future. We will determine our own economic destiny, through action or inaction."

Attacking Dukakis as a "pessimist," determined to retreat, the vice president attacked the governor's refusal to rule out a tax hike, as Bush has done.

"The surest way to kill the recovery is to raise taxes. That will stifle everything from investment and personal savings to consumer spending. It will clamp down on growth. It will invite a recession."

Meanwhile, Bush campaign

headquarters said a sixth person had been added to the list of five who resigned Monday from Bush's 170-member American Nationalities Coalition amid allegations from Jewish groups of anti-Semitism.

Quitting Tuesday was Radi Slavov, national co-chairman of Bulgarians for Bush, accused as a former member of the Bulgarian National Front, formed after World War II by members of the Nazi Bulgarian Legion.

Bush also got another boost from President Reagan, who at a Rose Garden ceremony where he signed an Hispanic Heritage Week proclamation pushed his vice president and attacked a Democratic bill supported by Dukakis.

Alcohol, drugs hurt grades

Survey correlates drinking with skipping classes

By Barb Fijolek
Wellness Center

Alcohol and drug abuse significantly affect academic success.

The latest survey taken at SIU-C on drinking and taking drugs showed a significant correlation between drinking and missed classes.

This same study indicated that SIU-C students who are heavier drinkers have a greater possibility for a lower grade point average and more problems related to academic performance.

A University of Minnesota study found that students with lower grades tended to be heavier drinkers than higher achievers.

To Your Health

Forty percent of 20-year-old students miss classes, work, or appointments because of drinking; nine percent said they got lower grades because of drinking.

Alcohol affects memory and concentration, so it makes studying and understanding lectures more difficult.

Students who drink a lot may skip class or studying, not just when drunk, but also when sleeping it off or suffering from a hangover.

Some students miss academic work because of injuries sustained while drinking or because of increased illnesses that result from the effect of alcohol on the immune system.

Of course, socializing is an aspect of college life as important to most students as academic success. For many students, that means drinking alcohol. To help sort their priorities, students should list ten goals, including academic and life goals.

After listing as many goals as they can, students should number their goals, number one being the most important and number 10 being the least. Students then should decide how drinking alcohol affects achieving their goals.

Students need to decide what they want most and if their behavior matches what they want.

Anyone with an alcohol or drug-related concern, can call the Wellness Center at 536-4441.

Beginning the week of September 19, The Wellness Center will offer an Adult Child Assistance class for anyone who feels that past family patterns adversely affect their relationships now.

New Philosophy head named

Matthew J. Kelly, associate professor of philosophy, has been named chairperson of the SIU-C philosophy department. He succeeds Elizabeth R. Eames, who will resume full-time teaching. Kelly's appointment, effective Aug. 15, is subject to the approval of Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit and ratification by the Board of Trustees.

Kelly previously headed the philosophy department.

Centerfest attendance down

Attendance at Centerfest this year was 1,167, which is lower than previous years, when the event was called E-NIGHT, according to Tom Corry, of the Student Programming Council.

The highest attendance was reached in 1985, when admission was $2 and 4,500 people attended, Corry said.

Corry said the attendance drop was a result of several factors.

The $3 admission fee this year contributed, he said. Also, because the event is held on Fridays and alcohol is not allowed, it competes with parties in the area.

Corry said a large amount of freshmen and new students were expected, but didn't show up.

"We had a lack of budget to work with," he said, giving reason for the $3 admission fee.

He said the Adrian Belew and the Bears concert probably had the biggest attendance.

"Everything was pretty much well-attended," he said. "We just didn't get enough people in the door."

Suspected murderer could be in Wisconsin

WOODSTOCK, Ill. (UPI) — Authorities believe Richard J. Church, the Northern Illinois University student suspected of killing his ex-girlfriend's parents, is hiding in the area — possibly Wisconsin, the FBI reported Tuesday.

It is only a matter of time before Church is apprehended, FBI spokesman Bob Long said. Long speculated Church was hiding out in a small Wisconsin community, where residents probably were not aware of his criminal status.

"In Wisconsin, people have little connection with the Chicago media. The only way he'd be known is by a published photograph," Long said.

Church was last sighted in the Wisconsin Dells area on Aug. 20, the same day Raymond Ritter, 43, and his wife, Ruth Ann, 43, were beaten to death at their home in Woodstock, just south of the Illinois-Wisconsin border.

Two of the Ritter children, Colleen, 17, and Matthew, 10, were also injured in the attack.

Police have said Colleen — a Maroon Central Catholic High School cheerleader — had recently ended a 2½ year relationship with Church, a former high school football star, at the apparent urging of her parents.

Church, in his freshman year at Northern Illinois, was a starting center for Marion Catholic's 1986-87 championship football team. He was described by friends as disraught and angry over the breakup of the relationship.

Arrest warrants were issued the day of the killings charging Church with two counts of murder, two counts of attempted murder and one count of home invasion.

Witnesses who told police they saw Church stabbing and beating Colleen in the street in front of her home, said he fled in a light blue Dodge pickup truck.

Both the Ritter children have recovered from their injuries and are reportedly now living with relatives.

Balloons will signal workshop's 20th year

The Jackson Community Workshop will celebrate its 20th anniversary by releasing hundreds of helium filled balloons at the beginning of the Apple Festival parade on Sept. 17.

The action also will kick off Rehabilitation Facilities week, Sept. 18-24, which was established by Gov. James R. Thompson to highlight services to persons with disabilities.

The workshop serves persons with disabilities from Jackson County in programs for developmental training, evaluation, counseling, work adjustment, placement, community living and sheltered work programs.

The parade begins at 11 a.m.

Ensemble will debut march Oct. 1

The University Wind Ensemble, directed by Michael D. Hanes, will debut a new fanfare and march to open the Arts in Celebration '88 festival Oct. 1 at Turley Park.

The march is called "Hoye's Tribute" in honor of Stan and Eileen Hoye, who underwrote the composition costs. The work was commissioned by the festival to be played in children's parade.

The march was composed by Frank Stemper, composer-in-residence in the School of Music. Stemper, whose music has been performed around the world, has been preparing with the group since August.

REGULATIONS GOVERNING ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale

The use of alcoholic beverages on property owned or controlled by Southern Illinois University at Carbondale is restricted by the laws of the State of Illinois, and the regulations of the University. Pursuant to Policies of the Board of Trustees C-3, the following regulations have been approved by the President and the Chancellor, and shall apply to the use of alcoholic beverages at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

1. The use, including sale, delivery, possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages in or on any property owned or controlled by the University is strictly prohibited, except as otherwise provided in these regulations. Where permitted under these regulations, the use of alcoholic beverages on University premises shall be considered a privilege and may be allowed only if consistent with State laws and University regulations, and only when it will not interfere with the decorum and academic atmosphere of the campus.

2. Definitions

a. For the purpose of these regulations the term "alcoholic beverages" includes only legally produced, commercially available beverages having alcoholic content shall be strictly prohibited and excluded from the permissible uses under these regulations.

b. The term "legal drinking" refers to the legal age for use of the alcoholic beverages in Illinois, which is 21 years. (The Illinois Liquor Control Act provides, among other things, that anyone who sells, gives, or delivers an alcoholic beverage to an individual under the age of 21 years commits a Class A misdemeanor, and that any person under the age of 21 years who possesses any alcoholic beverage in any public place or any place open to the public commits a Class B misdemeanor).

3. The possession and alcoholic consumption beverages on campus by persons of legal drinking age may be permitted in the following living areas in accordance with administrative guidelines developed by University Housing and approved by the President:

a. In designated upper-class, graduate, or professional residence halls owned or controlled by the University. Such possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages shall be confined to the individual room of the resident.

b. By individuals associated with a fraternity or sorority housed in the Greek Row living area in the housing chapter room and/or in a private study room. The chapter room is that room which is closed to general public and used for fraternal activities.

c. In faculty or family housing owned or controlled by the University.

4. The President or his/her designee, may approve exceptions to these regulations to allow possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages by persons of legal drinking age at designated events and locations on campus. These exceptions may take place only at times and places which will not interfere with the academic functions of the University, and only if all applicable requirements of Sections 8 and 9 of these regulations are met by the events sponsor.

5. The sale, direct or indirect, of alcohol beverages on campus is prohibited by State Law and these regulations, except as follows:

a. The President or his/her designee, pursuant to Ill. Rev. Stat. Ch. 43, Par. 130, may approve the sale, delivery, possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages by and to persons of legal drinking age who are attending "conference and/or convention-type activities" or "cultural, political, or educational activities" at designated locations on campus. A conference or convention, or an educational, cultural, or political activity, for purposes of these regulations means and includes (1) gatherings organized and developed principally for persons other than students and employees of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, or (2) inter-organizational conferences or activities of two or more internal or University-related organizations. Further, the activity must have a principal purpose which is clearly and directly relates to the educational, public service, or research functions of the University, or which directly relates to fulfilling officially assigned responsibilities of a line officer of the University on matters of institutional advancement, support, or improvement.

b. The President or an appropriate designee may approve the sale, delivery, possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages by and to persons of legal drinking age at an established faculty center, as permitted by State law.

No sales of alcoholic beverages will be permitted unless a license has been issued pursuant to State law authorizing such sales in the facility where alcoholic beverages are to be sold.

6. The University will not authorize the use of general student fees or other funds collected and administered by a University office or agency for the purchase of any alcoholic beverage (except as provided in Section 5) or to either partially or totally support off-campus events where alcoholic beverages are served or provided to participants part of the event.

7. The University assumes no responsibility for any liability incurred as a result of an organization's or individual's violation of these regulations or any applicable laws governing the use and consumption of alcoholic beverages. All student and other organizations while using University facilities or premises shall be required to abide by State laws and University regulations governing alcoholic beverages; members of the organization are responsible for conducting themselves in accordance with the State laws and University regulations.

8. For all events on Campus where use of alcoholic beverages is planned or anticipated, the event sponsor must submit through appropriate administrative channels a form either requesting approval of such use of alcoholic beverages pursuant to these regulations, or requesting permission to conduct an event where unauthorized use of alcoholic beverages is expected. When use of alcoholic beverages is not approved for such an event, publicity for the event, if conducted, should clearly state that the use of alcoholic beverages is not permitted.

9. For all events involving use of alcoholic beverages on campus, the event sponsor will be responsible for assuring that:

a. Non-alcoholic beverages and food are made available at the event.

b. Provisions are made to regulate portions of alcoholic beverages served per individual and that the event shall not include any form of "drinking contest" in its activities or promotion.

c. Adequate supervision and security are available for the event as necessary to provide for a safe atmosphere and to permit enforcement of the law concerning underage consumption of alcoholic beverages and other State laws and University regulations.

d. Promotion of the event includes a statement concerning the legal age for consumption of alcoholic beverages and the intent to enforce State laws and University regulations.

10. Responsibility for compliance with these regulations and with all applicable laws will be incumbent upon all members of the University community. The University Security Office shall, when informed of activities and events involving alcoholic beverages, determine appropriate security measures to be taken and coordinate with the event sponsor and appropriate administrative staff of the University as may be necessary to assist with enforcement of State laws and University regulations. Persons who violate either applicable laws or these regulations may be subject to University disciplinary action and/or prosecution under State law.

Hurricane Gilbert storms toward Gulf of Mexico

United Press International

Hurricane Gilbert grew into one of the most awesome storms of the century with winds of 160 mph Tuesday after battering the tiny Cayman Islands, knocking out power and blowing the roofs off homes. The storm was headed toward the Gulf of Mexico, with Texas a likely target by week's end.

Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami said Gilbert strengthened considerably after leaving the Caymans at midday Tuesday.

The storm was upgraded to a Category 5 hurricane by 3 p.m. EDT — meaning it was capable of causing catastrophic damage.

Further strengthening was possible, the forecasters said.

At 3 p.m. EDT, Gilbert's center was located near latitude 19.3 north and longitude 82.8 west, or about 280 miles east-southeast of the resort island of Cozumel, Mexico. It was moving to the west-northwest at 15 mph.

Gilbert's ranking as a Category 5 hurricane on the 1-to-5 Saffir-Simpson scale made it one of the most dangerous storms ever to threaten the continental United States.

Only two Category 5 hurricanes — an unnamed 1935 storm and Hurricane Camille in 1969 — have struck land in this century. Both caused massive damage and loss of life, with the 1935 hurricane striking the Florida Keys and killing 408 people and Camille hitting Louisiana and Mississippi, killing 256.

"If it were actually to hit land with this magnitude, the degree of destruction is incomprehensible, just as it was with Camille," Hurricane Center Director Bob Sheets said. "We are hopeful this will not take place."

The massive storm system — Gilbert was 500 miles across — forced the evacuation of thousands of people from western Cuba and Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula, the only remaining land obstacles on Gilbert's relentless march to the Gulf of Mexico.

Gilbert left a path of destruction across the Caribbean since Sunday, killing at least nine people in the Dominican Republic and Jamaica.

An amateur radio operator, broadcasting from the police station on Little Cayman and monitored in Tampa, Fla., reported at 1:16 p.m. EDT Tuesday that "all citizens are accounted for" on that island.

"It's too early for detailed damage reports," he said. But he said both Grand Cayman and Cayman-Brac reported no casualties from Gilbert.

academic coordinator, Callahan was a full-time assistant coach for the SIU-C baseball team. He has a master's degree in educational administration from SIU-C.

A native of Springfield, Callahan played college baseball for the University of New Orleans and Quincy College. He also played professional ball with the San Diego Padres and Seattle Mariners organizations. For two seasons he was the head baseball coach at Springfield High School, which was the Class AA state runner-up in 1985.

In other action: West said she and Athletics

Director Jim Hart, who was not present because he was attending a Missouri Valley Conference meeting, are evaluating SIU-C's recruitment process.

"We have met with each individual team to welcome them and answer any questions they may have regarding academic and eligibility requirements," West said. "In each case we have been stressing the importance of academics first, and being athletes second."

"In some cases these athletes were recruited by 50 or 60 schools. We were fortunate to get these athletes. That speaks very highly of our program and the outstanding reputation we have developed over the years in both academics and sports."

But West said the biggest reasons for athletes choosing SIU-C over the competition was the scenic campus and the help and encouragement they received when visiting here.

"We try to give the athletes all the help we can when they visit the campus, and after talking with the them and seeing the fine group of athletes we've recruited, it appears what we're doing is working," West said.

West also announced that the women's softball champion of the Gateway Conference — of which SIU-C is a charter member — will receive an automatic berth in the NCAA World Series tournament.

set her apart from most of the U.S. team and closer to the style that international judges score well.

As her mother Shirley, who was Wendy's high school diving coach, says, "Americans admire guts. Europeans admire that gracefulness that Wendy has."

To watch Lucero dive is to watch a dancer whose partner is a springboard. Her moves are balletic, choreographed and executed with the same illusion of ease that marks the strongest, most fluid dancers. Lucero earned a college diving scholarship, first at the University of Nebraska, again at SIU-C where she transferred and was graduated in 1986 with a degree in television sales and management.

After college, she focused on trying to make an Olympic team, supporting herself through occasional work with television stations and less glamorous, 40-hour-a-week jobs at health clubs and sporting good stores.

If she wins a medal, Lucero can be expected to handle that success as she has her other achievements: "without any bragging," says Jennifer Hess, a childhood friend of Lucero's. "She underestimates her abilities, really.

"She's not laid back though.

She's extremely hardworking and pushes towards goals, but her goals go beyond diving to her family and friendships and academics. That's the way she's always been. I can't imagine she would change."

fill in so many places and just find out where our depth was.

"I hope we have a better sense of what it takes to win. All the aspects of the game will be expected of them. We'll incorporate more complexity, more sophistication in pitchouts and pickoff plays."

In another comparison with last fall, Brechtelsbauer was forced to choose her ever-changing lineup by evaluating a small number of practice sessions. This time she already has her starters picked.

Heading the infield is junior second baseman Shelly Gibbs, whose .323 batting average was second only to the .357 produced by Theresa Smugala, a redshirt senior shortstop who left the team after getting married in August.

"I don't think anybody can replace Theresa," Brechtelsbauer said. "But I think we can still fare well offensively with Shelly in the lineup."

The infield returns two sophomores in third baseman Mary Jo Firnbach and first baseman Angie LeMonnier. The newcomer is Cheryl Venorsky, a freshman from Belleville who will step at shortstop.

Four players are in contention for the three outfield spots. They are freshman Kim Johannsen, also from Belleville, and sophomores Kim Tummins, Shannon Taylor and Karen Major.

Sophomore Michele Davidovich and junior Jan Agnich are Nos. 1 and 2 at catcher.

The returning pitchers are Traci Furlow, 9-7 in the spring with a 1.10 earned run average, and Lisa Robinson, out for the fall with an arm injury. Rounding out the staff are junior transfer Jennifer Brown of Herrin and freshman Dede Darnell of Carbondale.

game," he said.

"It's tedious work, but if you don't do it, the finished product doesn't look as good," he said. "That's what an off week is like.

Crouse said the off weekend hurt a bit.

IAAC looks for Callahan replacement

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

The Intercollegiate Athletic Advisory Committee said the University is searching for a new academic coordinator after the departure of Dan Callahan, who was named head coach of the Eastern Illinois University baseball team.

Charlotte West, associate athletics director, said the University sent out an advertisement describing the job vacancy in The NCAA News, and a deadline for accepting applications has been set for Sept. 19.

The announcement came at a meeting of the IAAC on Tuesday afternoon at Anthony Hall.

"I am a little apprehensive about taking the new position," the 29-year-old Callahan said, "I've grown to really like the people I've met and worked with here at SIU for the past three years."

West said Callahan had been looking for an opportunity to be a Division I baseball coach.

In addition to his job as

Open weekend benefits squad

By David Gallanetti
Staff Writer

After an idle weekend, the football team is hungry to hit the turf in its home opener against Murray State at McAndrew Stadium.

Game time is 1:30 p.m.

"We felt we should have won at Western and some of us felt we did," senior nose tackle Brad Crouse said of the Salukis' 17-13 loss on Sept. 3. "This game is like the Super Bowl to us."

Head coach Rick Rhoades said he would have preferred to play last weekend.

"I really don't like the open weekend, but it hasn't been bad to have one," he said. "Last week was pretty good, but we still need to lock in on some things."

Rhoades said among the Salukis' bigger problems is the kicking game.

"We gave up a lot of big returns against Western and one of them set up a scoring opportunity," he said.

"Our offense needs to be more consistent. Too many times it was three downs and out," he said.

Defensively the Salukis need to contain big plays by their opponents.

"We let Western (Illinois) have several 20-plus yard plays," Rhoades said. "It's hard to win when you let that happen."

The time between the first and second games of the season is when the team usually sees the most improvement, Rhoades said.

"More concrete things that are new and fresh appear after the first game," he said. "We have a visual stimulus."

Rhoades said because the team did not play Saturday game could have been a reason for a poor practice late last week.

"They are human just like anyone else," he said. "The coach has got things every day he wants to get accomplished and it's hard to get this across sometimes."

"We need to be more mature and not just put in time. We have to lock in on those skills we use and try and perfect our

Softball team opens at Eastern

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The softball team opens its fall exhibition season today with a doubleheader at Eastern Illinois, and Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer is content in at least knowing the extent of her team's potential.

The Salukis set a school record 30 victories in the spring and return nearly the entire starting lineup from that squad.

One year ago at this time, though, Brechtelsbauer had to ink that the lineup of 10 untested freshmen and a sprinkling of sophomores and upperclassmen would eventually break 13 school batting records and finish with a .30-20 mark.

"Certainly we're further along at this point than last year," Brechtelsbauer said. "Last year we were so new. We were trying to

Diving champ keeps Olympic bid in perspective

Lucero says quadrennial event isn't 'the be all and end all'

A day after making the U.S. diving team, Wendy Lucero reflected on what it means to be an Olympian with a detachment that might be more expected from an athlete who's already heard the closing strains of the national anthem and watched the torch doused.

Other first-time, outside-chance Olympians might gush and bubble and never blink their starry eyes as they stare at the wondrous events ahead of them. But not Lucero. At 25, in a sport fast becoming the playground of teenagers, the former SIU-C athlete is enough of a realist to know that though she is headed towards amateur athletics' pinnacle, it is not "the be all and end all."

"How many people can name the 1976 diving team or the '80 team or even '84? You might remember a few of the people who won medals, but their time passes and things move on. Diving never has been my whole life. I don't want it to be. I figure I will enjoy the attention while I can because it's not always going to be there."

Her pragmatism may stem from the fact that Lucero was a long shot to make the women's 3-meter springboard team.

Her best finish as a high school diver was second in the state on the one-meter board and Lucero did not even put together a list of dives for the 3-meter until she entered the University of Nebraska — a very late start.

Twice, she was national champion on the one-meter, once was NCAA champ on the one-meter and last year took the gold medal in 3-meter at the U.S. Olympic Festival — all in all, a modest resume compared to the rest of the U.S. diving team, which includes three Olympic medal winners.

Lucero won her Olympic spot by a scant eight-tenths of a point and was considered such an outside contender even by experts that her name doesn't appear in the media guide printed by the U.S. Olympic Committee. The guide went to press before the diving trials had been held, forcing U.S. Diving to send advance biographies to the USOC on the men and women it thought most likely would make the Olympic teams.

Lucero wasn't on the list. Mary Fischbach, the woman who suffered the heart-breaking loss to her, was.

It's Lucero's form that may distinguish her in Seoul, says U.S. Olympic Diving coach Ron O'Brien. Her high lifts off the board and her elegant lines
