Invitations to attend and participate in the SIU Forum were sent this week to presidents and leaders of each living group, departmental organization, honorary and professional, religious and special interest groups, and social fraternities and sororities.

of Commerce, will be discussion leader at the Forum, which is scheduled for the afternoon of May 19.

The SIU Forum is a program for discussion of the needs of the University and the city of Carbondale in regard to the student body and student organizations. It is sponsored by the SIU Student Government and under the direction of Terry Cook, Student Government communications officer.

The Forum will be held in the University Center Ballroom. Cook said the Forum will be similar to the Carbondale Forums held last spring and this fall by the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce.

In addition to Miss Dallas, Music Under The Stars will feature four guest conductors, piano and voice contest winners, elementary and high school choruses and bands, and the traditional fireworks display.

Tennis Anyone?

SIU vs. Western Michigan Today

Hoping to keep its unbeaten string of six on the line, Southern's tennis team hosts powerful Western Michigan this afternoon at 2 p.m. at the University courts.

The Broncos, who have claimed the Mid-America Conference championship for the past 9 years, hope to knock SIU from the unbeaten ranks. The Broncos gave the Salukis a good working over last year by beating coach Dick LeFevre's squad, 7-2.

The Salukis have already shutout five of their six opponents that they have faced, whipping Ohio State 9-0, Iowa State 9-0, Minnesota 9-0, Wheaton College 9-0, and a strong Notre Dame squad 9-0. SIU has only yielded one match point and that was to Tulsa in a 5-1 victory.

Lance Lumsden, a Kingston,

Jamaican ace, posts a season's record of 6 singles wins against no setbacks. The Sprenglemyer brothers, Bob and Roy, also post fine 6-0 season singles records.

Also undefeated are Wilson Burge and George Domenech with identical 5-0 records. The only player to lose a match is captain Pacho Castillo.

Council Wants Proof Of Athletes' Complaints

Student President Bill Fenwick was directed by the Student Council Thursday night to present whatever evidence or documented statements he may have on complaints made by athletes.

The Council decided that Fenwick must present whatever he has at the next Council meeting, which will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 18, in the University Center.

There is some speculation that Fenwick will call for a closed meeting. He has indicated he would prefer a closed session.

Thursday's meeting, attended by a number of coaches and athletes, ended at 11:30 p.m. when Council Advisor Irving Kovarsky persuaded the group to postpone queries into the complaints because "we're all tired and it's late."

Kovarsky's move to end the meeting followed questions directed at Fenwick to reveal whatever statements or evidence he may have.

Athletic Director Donald Boydston and four coaches protested because it was their understanding complaints would be brought out in the open at the meeting.

"I had the impression this was going to be handled tonight," Boydston said, "You can see this (the controversy centering around alleged complaints by athletes) is giving the department a bad advertisement."

"We send the campus newspaper to prospective students," Boydston continued. "We know that we have already lost several prospective athletes because of this."

Boydston accused Fenwick of saying "things that are not true." Tempers flared in an exchange between the two, and Kovarsky and Council Chairman Ted Hutton immediately brought the meeting to a close.

Outside the meeting, Football Coach Carmen Piccone and Kovarsky engaged in discussion which several times almost erupted into anger while a dozen Council members gathered around.

Piccone emphasized that the publicity was damaging the Athletic Department and that all complaints should be brought out in the open so they could be answered.

"It's a simple matter," Piccone said. "The athlete complains and the coach answers him."

"It's not that simple," Kovarsky said, indicating there was always a possibility that a valid complaint might exist.

Both agreed that the situation was unfortunate and damaging to all parties concerned.

Kovarsky told Piccone that although he was advisor, he did not have complete control over the Council. He said it was only that night he learned anything at all of what the issue involved.

Earlier in the meeting, the

Filling Student Council Seat Proves To Be A Difficult Feat

To fill a Council seat, sometimes is not an easy feat.

This fact was brought home at the Student Council meeting Thursday night when members debated the legal replacement for Ray Brandt, sophomore class president injured last weekend in an accident and unable to continue in his Council post.

Brandt was seriously injured in an auto-truck crash while returning from the Texas Relays last weekend. He remains in serious condition at a hospital in Red Bud, Ill. While his condition is improving, hospital officials said he is not permitted visitors except for his immediate family.

The replacing of Brandt comes on the heels of disputes of two other persons chosen to fill vacancies on the Council at a recent election.

John Burnette was removed as fraternity senator as a result of a Judicial Board decision and the election of Bruno Klaus as senior class president has been protested on charges that an election for the vacated position should not have been held.

Section Four, Article one of the Student Government constitution states that if a class president shall not be able to serve on the Student Council, the officers of that class shall appoint a representative from among themselves, officials said.

So when Brandt's position was declared vacant, it was proposed that Trudy Kulesa, sophomore secretary-treasurer fill the post. There were objections. The vice-president was Ann Werner. But at the end of fall quarter she withdrew from Southern and entered the University of Illinois. However, recently she was married to an SIU graduate student Mike Beatty, withdrew from the U. of I., and returned to Southern.

During the winter quarter, when Miss Werner was away from SIU, her post as sophomore vice-president had never been declared vacant. A messenger left the Council meeting and went to Mrs. (Werner) Beatty's home.

In a few minutes Mrs. (Werner) Beatty arrived at the meeting and was seated on the Council.

SIU's Ken Miller Has Briefcase Full Of Ideas For Park Board

When the Carbondale Park Board begins its new session April 24, there will be three new members and many new ideas.

Kenneth R. Miller, administrative assistant to the president at SIU, is one of the new members who will be installed on the 24th, and he is full of plans.

Miller's greatest effort will be in pushing for an advisory committee of local people to work with the Park Board.

"I feel that the more citizens we have working with the Park Board, the stronger our system will be," Miller said.

He added that in the past the people didn't know what the Board was doing "until bond issues came up and then it was too late."

There are many specialists around town who are experts in their own fields and Miller feels that it would be good to get as much of this professional talent involved and interested in the city problems as possible.

One of the most important parts of the first meeting will be the election of officers. With the addition of three new members to the remaining two from the past group, there should be a major change in Board leadership.

Such problems as revenue and income will face the new group.

Miller said he is in favor of starting an educational campaign to encourage those people outside of the city limits to annex and thus expand the park district. This would bring in additional revenue with which to work, he explained.

A new swimming pool for the city of Carbondale will also be considered. Robert E. Allen, one of the new members, will propose a plan for building the pool with revenue bonds so that no tax money is needed. If this passes, the city should have the new pool by the summer of 1964, he estimated.

Another suggestion by Miller is the expanding and improving of Teen Town which he said is highly inadequate at the present time. He feels that the neighborhood parks need expansion and improvement too. Miller is also considering the possibility of laying out riding trails around this area. This would require working with the state, city, university and private landowners and would offer further recreation for the area.

Miller said that the Park Board members are important in formulating the policies, but that the key man is Superintendent Jerry W. Lottmann. He said Lottmann is a very good man and he needs more support and attention.

Fenwick Told To Show Proof Of Mistreatment

The policy statement was thrown out of the athletics program recommendation of the Student Activity Fee Study at an earlier meeting.

Thursday night Junior Class President Gerry Howe moved that the Council accept the program recommendation exactly as submitted.

When Ron Hunt, Thompson Point Senator, amended Howe's motion to include the 12-point policy statement, Howe threw up his hands and said, "Are we going to go through that again?"

The Council moved through the policy statements one paragraph at a time, amending it as it went along.

Early in the process, there was a clear division in Council which resulted once in a tie-vote over a policy statement. Later the division shifted into mixed voting. At the end, a large majority approved the entire recommendation.

Tension alternating with lighter moments was apparent throughout. Chairman Ted Hutton called members out of order a total of fifteen times during the meeting.

Laos Fighting Flares; Control Team Barred

VIENTIANE, Laos

Fighting flared again Friday between neutral and pro-Communist soldiers in east-central Laos after an uneasy lull, authoritative sources reported. The International Control Commission was barred from flying to the area to investigate.

The informants could not say which side launched the attack or give other details. Gen. Kong Lo's small neutralist force has been trying to cling to the Plaine des Jarres after being driven from its headquarters at Xieng Khouang by the Pathet Lao.

Commission movements, under terms of the Geneva settlement setting up a neutralist coalition government in Laos, must get the approval of all factions. It was not disclosed who barred the commission investigation, but Deputy Premier Prince Souphanouvong's Pathet Lao faction in the coalition has been restricting the commission's operations.

"The man, he say, 'I got me a dream, honey,' and the woman, she say, 'Eat yere eggs.'"

In these words, the character of Walter Younger perhaps expresses the entire message of the play, "Raisin In The Sun," the current production of the Southern Players which opened last night at the playhouse.

"Raisin In The Sun," winner of the Drama Critics Circle Award and long-running Broadway hit, portrays the life of the Negro in the slums of Chicago's South Side.

A former visiting professor in government at SIU, Dr. Abnul Majid Abbass, is a native of Iraq. He earned B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Chicago.

Dr. Abbass taught international law and jurisprudence at the University of Baghdad from 1939 to 1947, then served as a member of Parliament and held several major cabinet positions in the government of Iraq before being appointed Iraq's permanent representative to the UN.

Dr. Abbass was visiting professor of government at Southern Illinois University last year. He joined the University of Libya, at Benghazi in September.

Libya, an "emergent nation" in North Africa, has been an independent kingdom since 1951. Before World War II it was controlled by Italy; earlier, between 1551 and 1912, Libya was one of the Barbary States in the vast domain of the Turkish Ottoman Empire.

Until 1951 Libya's foreign rulers kept the natives in a state of virtual economic slavery and at an extremely low level of literacy. At the end of World War II, for example, a Libyan population of over a million included less than fifty who had any higher education.

To the average western individual in the eighteenth and nineteenth century, the name Libya was practically incomprehensible. Some of the better educated had a vague idea of its ancient connection with the old Roman province of Tripolitania and its adjunct province of Cyrenaica. The two provinces occupied an extensive and indefinite stretch of land in the center of the North African coast and made one of the Barbary States which were under nominal suzerainty of the Ottoman Turks. They figured prominently in the tales of turmoil and terror which dominated the struggle for the mastery of the Mediterranean. Daring adventures, sharp clashes of interest and romantic fiction combined to add to the flavor which marked the spectacular feats of the Corsairs and the cruel treatment of the prisoners, especially during the rule of the Karamanly dynasty.

To many Africans and Asians, this land was the cradle of the Senussi movement. It was one of the revivalist movements of the Muslim world which set out to purge Islam of extraneous accretions and innovations, to push its faith to new frontiers, and, rather deliberately, to incite it to resist colonial attack and domination. It might be interesting also to note, by the way, that many people throughout the world derived their impressions about this country from the events of the Second World War. They were aroused by the exciting story of the "Desert War" which included, among other things, the rise and fall of Marshal Rommel and the interminable march of Marshal Montgomery and his Eighth Army.

The dawn of the twentieth century witnessed a fierce struggle to extend colonial rule to this Arabic-speaking part of the tottering Ottoman Empire. Italy was the chief bidder and she succeeded after a great deal of diplomatic maneuvering and bloody fighting. As fate would have it, it was to this Italian enterprise that the country owed its modern name and its present boundaries.

The period of colonization lasted nearly forty years. It was marked, especially after the advent of Fascist rule in Italy, by a deliberate and massive effort to denationalize the native population or to overwhelm them. The restriction of education and its rigid manipulation was the main instrument of this policy. It was indeed one of the successful attempts for the spread of ignorance! Except for very elementary religious teaching, no place was left for the native language. Formerly, a great deal of education was carried out through Senussi schools and seminaries. But as the Senussi movement was also the spearhead of resistance to Fascist rule it was suppressed ruthlessly and all its educational institutions were closed and confiscated. For all practical purposes, education of any advanced kind was limited to foreign settlers and to the very few individuals who seemed to be assimilable by them.

When the wave of colonialism began to recede in the wake of the Second World War, education in Libya was in a deplorable state indeed. In a population of over a million, there were less than two scores of persons who had any sort of higher education. The number of elementary schools was less than a hundred and the whole school population around ten thousand. There were no secondary, technical, or high institutions for the natives. The mere possession of books was a crime punishable by law!

Then came independence in 1951. With it came a clamor for education of all sorts.

Between the surrender of Italy and the independence of Libya, considerable expansion of education below the higher level took place. This trend continued with accelerated pace after independence, but it was not until 1956 that the University of Libya opened its gates. It started with the College of Literature and Education, followed in 1957 by the College of Commerce and the College of Science. Then a Law College was founded in 1962.

The University was founded to fulfill a variety of purposes. Like many emerging countries, Libya needed qualified personnel to staff its administration and other public services. The achievement of independence deprived it ipso facto of its former administrative and expert class which was entirely foreign. It had no choice except to improvise, to hire temporary help from abroad and to fall back on education to provide the required staff. The University loomed as the main source of such help.

The advent of "development" added still another factor. The discovery of huge oil resources in the country made possible the initiation of a more ambitious and extensive program of development. And, like many developing countries, Libya found its main bottlenecks in the human element. Native personnel have to be trained rapidly in large numbers in order to administer development projects, to replace foreign experts, to receive and maintain finished projects, and to continue the accelerated pace of progress.

Finally, there was the question of raising the cultural level of the country and the creation of a cultural elite who would revive and safeguard the cultural heritage.

These and other considerations motivated the establishment of the Libyan University only five years after the achievement of independence. It was a bold step which had to overlook certain drawbacks in the hope of overcoming them later. First, there was the level of pre-college education which did not provide an adequate base for university training. Although I found the Libyan student as intelligent and earnest as any in the Middle East, I had the feeling sometimes that he was handicapped by inadequate preparation. This, however, I feel is a rapidly passing phase.

Another important factor is what may be called the "span of expectation" and the economic traditions of the people. Extended periods of educational preparation were largely unknown to the people for a long time. In addition, people looked at their children as a source of economic income as soon as they reached maturity. It takes some new incentives to induce the deferment or working time and the prolongation of the span of expectation. To bring this about, the State has resorted to subsidizing every student to the amount of covering his or her cost of living in addition to free books and tuition. The subsidies are liberal enough to allow some of the poorer students to help their families along from them. I have heard it said that, with rare exceptions, college students in Libya and are among the luckiest in the world today.

A difficulty which is shared with practically all other emerging countries is the problem of adequate faculty. Professors cannot be trained very quickly and it will be a long time before Libya can obtain and retain in the teaching profession a reasonable nucleus of faculty personnel. For the time being, it has to rely on friendly and Arab countries to provide hired or subsidized professors. This raises many delicate questions of continuity, competence, and mutual understanding and accommodation. It also poses the problem of differential pay since non-Libyans have to be paid considerably higher than their Libyan colleagues.

A remarkable feature of the Libyan University is its co-educational character. For a country like Libya, this is revolutionary indeed and everyone on the campus seems to be conscious of the fact. Although the number of girl students is still very small, yet they are there and they seem all the more conspicuous because of that. There is a look of determination in their eyes and a tacit awareness of their pioneering role. In order to appreciate the significance of this initiative, one has to contrast it with the fact that there are as yet no feminine employees on the secretarial and clerical staff or in the library.

In St. Louis:

Baseball Team Takes On Washington Bears

SIU's undefeated baseball team takes to the road today for the first time this season for a double-header at Washington University in St. Louis.

Following today's twin-bill, which will be the third in seven days for the Salukis, Southern returns home for another double-header Monday.

Central Michigan will be the opponent with the first game to get underway at 1 p.m. on the Chautauqua baseball field.

Washington University is regarded as one of the strongest NCAA college-division baseball teams and will be trying to halt the Salukis four-game winning skein.

Ed Walter and Doug Edwards have been named by Glenn Martin, SIU baseball coach, to pitch the twin-bill today. Both are 1-0 for the season after last week's victories over St. Louis University.

SIU in the past has managed to squeak past the growling Washington Bears. This year figures to be no exception.

Last year Washington lost to the Salukis in extra innings on an error by its third baseman. This should provide the Bears with the meat to try for revenge.

Martin is expected to stick with the same starting lineup which has been responsible for the consecutive winning streak.

The second game lineup will find Edwards replacing Walter, Dave Harris in place of Burda, Snyder takes over for Landreth and Glen Bischof in place of captain Leonard.

Saluki Tennis Squad Finally Whips Irish Of Notre Dame

Southern's tennis team added its sixth win of the season against no setbacks, by downing Notre Dame, 9-0, here Thursday afternoon. It marked the first time that the Salukis have beaten the Irish in 6 outings.

The Salukis, who are in a current 6 match home stand, met Iowa yesterday afternoon and take on Mid-America Conference member, Western Michigan this afternoon at the University Courts at 2 p.m. Notre Dame faced Iowa here yesterday morning at 9:30.

But Southern has been brilliant in its first six starts by giving up only one match point to the likes of Ohio State, Tulsa, Minnesota, Iowa State, Wheaton and Notre Dame. The point lost was to Tulsa, at Tulsa.

Results of Thursday's match:

Singles:
1-Lumsden, SIU, beat Brown, ND, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.
2-Castillo, SIU, beat Katt-hain, ND, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

3-B, Sprengelmeyer, SIU, over Goetz, ND, 6-1, 8-6.

4-R, Sprengelmeyer, SIU, over Vosburg, ND, 6-3, 6-3.

5-Burge, SIU, defeated Davidson, ND, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2.

6-Domenech, SIU, beat Clancy, ND, 6-1, 6-2.

Doubles:

Castillo-R, Sprengelmeyer defeated Brown-Goetz, 8-6, 6-1.

Lumsden-B, Sprengelmeyer over Kattlain-Clancy, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4.

Domenech-Burge beat Vosburg-Davidson, 6-4, 6-2.

Alton Team Is Heavy Favorite In Mineral Area Track Meet

Alton, last year's champion, is the heavy favorite for today's 22nd annual Mineral Area track meet which is expected to attract some 30 southern Illinois high schools.

Preliminaries will get underway in McAndrew Stadium this morning at 9 o'clock. The finals are scheduled to begin at 1 p.m., according to Lew Hartzog, SIU track coach, who is in charge of the meet.

Alton already this season has won the Oak Park Relays and Decatur Open championships. Some people expect them to have strength enough to win the Illinois High School track championship next month at the University of Illinois.

The southwestern Illinois high school waltzed to the Mineral Area title last year with 79 1/2 points. It won 10 of the 15 events and set six records in the process.

Two Alton athletes will be trying for new marks today while defending their titles. Paul Economides will attempt to extend his shot put mark of 54 feet 3 inches set last year.

Half-miler George Hunt, who ran the 880 in a record 1:57 a year ago, already has a 1:54 clocking this season and rules as the favorite in the event this year.

SIU Netmen Lead

SIU netmen, on the way to their seventh victory of the season, lead Iowa 5-1 at the end of singles play yesterday. SIU won all singles matches but one.

Economides also threatens the meet's oldest standard, John Bauer's 159-1 1/2 discus heave, set in 1950. Economides has topped 160 feet in practice.

State low hurdles champ Andrew Johnson, whose best time is :19.2 seconds, is favored in the event. Johnson also is a 22-foot broad jumper, and could set a pair of records Saturday.

Mineral Area records are: 100--Jim Colvis, Chester (:10.5); 220--James Harris, East St. Louis and Colvis, Chester (:22.4); 440--Ed Randolph, East St. Louis (:50.5); Mile--John Trowbridge, Alton (4:33.3); High Hurdles--Ed Randolph, (:14.8); Low Hurdles--Jim Jackson, Alton (:19.8).

High Jump--Leroy Mitchell, East St. Louis (6-21/2); Broad Jump--Dewey Glegghorn, Sparta (21-9); Pole Vault--Gary Wolff, Centralia (12-18 1/2); Shot Put--Economides, Alton (54-3); Discus--John Bauer, Benton (159-1 1/2); Freshman Relay--Belleville (1:40.5); Varsity Relay--Alton (1:30.5); Mile Relay--Alton (3:29.3).
