Two running in trustee race

By Carol Knowles

Staff Writer

Along with student government elections, those of Tuesday, students also will be voting for another important representative to the Board of Trustees.

The Morris problem holds the position in the liaison between students and board members and to lobby for the support of legislation that would give student trustees power to vote on the Board of Trustees.

Irvin is a third year law student, says a top priority for him is to get more student involvement in University actions and to lobby for the support of legislation that would give student trustees the power to vote on the Board of Trustees.

Irvin said a third vote on the board would not only give the student trustee more bargaining power but would "force him to become more credible and back up his vote with facts and good rationale."

After going door-to-door campaigning, Irvin said he found many students didn't even know that a student trustee existed. One of his goals is to increase student awareness by having meetings with students in all areas of the campus, letting them know what's going on and finding out how they feel about issues that affect them.

There are 23,000 students here," Irvin said. "It may sound like an impossible task, but I intend to speak to as many as I can. The effort will be worth the time it takes."

Irvin cited statistics as an example of the lack of representation in administration to listen to students. He said he would try to meet with the Graduate Student Council and that students should have a strong say in how athletics are run because they pay 46 percent of the funds supporting them.

"The board gave one concession by allowing the student referendum next fall, but it was approved reluctantly," Irvin said.

Irvin said the relationship between the board and the student trustee is improving because of the professionalism shown by the last two trustees.

In order to maintain that position-student trustee is improving the undergraduate student and vice president, said.

"It's not that libraries have been singled out, but they are caught in the general squeeze," McCoy said. "Libraries reflect the problems that universities generally have. The universities reflect statewide problems, particularly as they arise supported by state funds because they get their money from taxes."

"The appropriations to universities have not gone up as fast as the cost of operations, so there have to be cutbacks in universities generally and libraries have been affected by that."

A study of 75 members of the 111 libraries, published in 1979-80 ARL statistics and told the story. The ARL is a select group of libraries that must meet financial, staff and collection standards.

According to Richard Austin, chief of financial management for the Library of Congress, about $6 million has been cut from the Library's base budget over the last three years. While the workload has increased, 130 staff positions have been terminated in the last year, and the Library has been operating on a budget that has not kept up with the rate of inflation estimated for Library materials—about 12 percent.

USO, GSC representatives to be picked in Wednesday vote

By Carol Knowles

Staff Writer

Wednesday's student government elections will include the election of two presidents, two vice presidents and more than two dozen student representatives to the board.

In several races, student voters will choose an Undergraduate Student Government representative and a Graduate Student Council representative and vice president running, as teams of president and vice president respectively, for the USO top positions. Gary Shadid and Steve Hatter and Chris Lehman, Todd Rogers and Gregg Larson and Chip Anderson and Jeffie Jefferson.

The USO elections are campus-wide, and all undergraduate students are eligible to vote. For the GSC positions, which are elected by the council itself, Debbie Brown is running unopposed for re-election as GSC president, and Laura Nelson and Laura Nelson are vying for the GSC vice presidency.

Only 56 of the 74 possible representatives on the Graduate Student Council are eligible to vote in the election Wednesday night, according to figures from the GSC office.

In order to vote, attendance at one of three meetings prior to the poll is necessary for each representative.
For astronauts Young and Robert Crippen, the scheduled landing would be a relief after two flawless days in orbit, the spectacular ascent of a spaceship's ability to survive a re-entry and land like an airliner.

Questions about the integrity of heat-shield tiles on Columbia's underbelly added extra tension to the mission's end.

The launch and flight have been "very smooth sailing."

"The only thing bad is we're going to have to come down," said Commander John Young, making a record fifth space flight.

During a space-to-white House conversation, Young told Vice President George Bush that the "spaceship is just performing beautifully."

---About the USO candidates---

Anderson promises good administration

By David Murphy
Staff Writer

Student needs can not be served when the student government is disorganized, and disorganization is the major problem facing the Undergraduate Student Organization at SIU-C this year according to Chip Anderson.

"They have chaos again up there this year. I've noticed," Anderson said. "I think the key to USO is good administration. It has to be organized well."

Anderson, a senior in accounting, is running for student body president on the Cobra Party ticket. He thinks his background in business and administration will help him make USO more efficient and responsive to student needs.

Anderson, 22, is a member of the College of Business and Administration's Student Council. His running mate, Jaleigh Jeffers, 20, is also an accounting student.

Anderson said, "I've learned a lot about getting things done right, both in business courses and in outside activities."

Rogers wants improved academics

By David Murphy
Staff Writer

The reason universities exists is to help students learn, according to Todd Rogers. Consequently, he feels the quality of the learning experience should be the primary concern of the student body president.

"The areas of greatest specific interest to me are those dealing with academic affairs," said Rogers, the Maverick Party candidate for president. "That's the most important reason for us being here."

Rogers, a 21-year-old psychology major, thinks one way to improve teaching at SIU-C is to form a student-faculty grievance board. The board, which would be comprised of faculty and students, would help mediate and resolve misunderstandings that arise in the classroom.

"Many times students have complaints about classes and they have no place to take the complaints," he said. "I think this would provide a place to hear, and maybe solve, some of their problems."

Nelson, Nielsen vie for GSC VP position

By Carol Knowles
Staff Writer

The recent budgeting crisis in the Graduate Student Council could prove to make the vice presidential race a close one. There are two candidates vying for the position, Laura Lyn Nelson, 28, a doctoral student in speech communication and Laura Jean Nielsen, 28, a master's student in business administration.

The primary responsibility of the vice president is to chair the Fee Allocation Board. Other responsibilities of the post include formulation of the GSC budget for approval by the council, maintaining the financial records and reporting the financial situation to the council.

LAURA LYN NELSON

She said it was her interest in giving something to other graduate students that encouraged her to run for vice president of GSC, not the recent budgeting crisis.

"I have been around this university for years, letting everyone else do the work. Now that I have the time, I would like to do something for someone else," said Nelson, a write-in candidate.

Nelson said she had considered running for president of the council, but decided to

Shadid is best choice for USO president

UNTIL THIS YEAR, student government was justifiably looked upon as a corny-wide joke. SUU-C’s president didn’t listen to student opinions, which was understandable, since the so-called student leaders seldom had an opinion. Ac-accomplishments were few and far between.

Things began to change this year. With the election of Paul

M. Shadid of the Student United Organization, finally a student leader with the resolve to carry through on some of his promises (the student directory, Carbondale Clean Up Day, establishing student-city relations to name a few). While hardly earth-shattering, these are real accomplishments. The jokes weren’t heard as often.

And with the appointment of Albert Somit in August, students finally got a campus president who is receptive to student opinion. For instance, when Somit found out earlier this year that a proposed student identification-fee statement can had been designed without student input, he told the appropriate University officials to get student input. Somit has called for a referendum in the fall on the 90 increase in the student athletics fee.

IN OTHER WORDS, SUU-C students finally have a president who will give them a fair hearing, and who will act when ideas have merit.

With a president who listens, and after a year in which USO has accomplished something (and has started work on many other problems), it is vitally important that a competent, experienced candidate for USO president be elected this Wednesday. Students have too much to lose and too much to gain. We’re backing the Universal Party ticket of Gary Shadid

Shadid, a 21-year-old junior majoring in accounting and finance, possesses the right mix of experience, creativeness and leadership ability to do the job. A student senator from the Carbondale Student Senate, Shadid was chairman of the student affairs and community service committee this year. He is familiar with the major issues.

But 1980 is an important year. Shadid is familiar with the athletics fee issue and says that he intends to make the fall referendum his major priority for the first weeks this fall. He wants students to be informed about the consequences of their choice and he wants a big student turnout to his credit.

Shadid's program on athletics is furthered athletics boycott early this year!

SHADID HAS OTHER GOOD IDEAS. He wants to form a student tenant union made up of students, landlords, senators and landlords to start a book co-op where students would sell their books and eliminate the middleman’s profit.

He wants to get American foreign students and handicapped students more involved in student government. He wants to continue Carbondale Clean Up Day and the student directory.

While we are endorsing Shadid, we cannot overlook the outstanding qualifications of Todd Rogers, the Maverick Party candidate. Rogers has served as a junior executive assistant this year and was a student senator last year. As chairman of the USO task force on athletics, he is intimately familiar with this issue. He, too, supports a book co-op and continuing the Carbondale Clean-Up Day and the student directory.

We have called for a referendum this year on the student grievance board to mediate grade disputes. He would also make a fine president.

Letters

Handgun ban not the answer

This is an open letter addressed to Mr. Ron Gavillet, the USO president, and all other concerned to handguns and handgun control.

In Mr. Gavillet’s letter (D.E. April 1), he refers to handguns as a “slimy handgun,” and the national gun-business as being “the lowest type of business, made possible by the willingness of American government, and the slow-mindedness of American legislatures.”

Mr. Gavillet, are you also going to put a ban on automobiles? After all, we take it for granted that we can drive our own hands everyday we get our automobile. This is especially holds true after we are someone else has consumes alcohol. Now, we should also place a ban on the sale of alcohol.

Maybe you have heard that prohibition was tried from 1920 to 1933. And you should also know that alcohol was still manufactured, sold, consumed, and transported illegally in those years. Therefore, if the ban on handguns was initiated, it would be obvious to any clear thinking, unbiased person that handguns would still be available to criminals. As the law-abiding citizen, wanting to conform with the laws, would not own a handgun. Depressing them for whatever purpose be or she may want to own one—competition, collection purposes, protection or self-assurance.

Please Mr. Gavillet, don’t get me wrong. this country does need gun laws, and I emphasize control, not complete abolishment. And we do have gun control to a certain extent right now. In a certain under 21-years-old can legally own a handgun, parolees can not own a gun, it is illegal to carry a concealed weapon and so forth. Management should be to make one out of a carrying case when not in use.

Of course, some or most of these laws are hard to enforce. But if any more strict and adopted, they would be favoring the criminal instead of the law-abiding citizen.

—Kevin Rollins, freshman, Law Enforcement.

The crowded parking situation on campus could be solved relatively easily, with the application of some organization, Anderson said. "The problem gets away with ideas for transit systems," he said. "I don't just want a simple transit system. If you had a bus that went from the arena parking lots to the Student Center, that would solve a lot of our traffic problems."

Anderson said he does support the formation of a limited transit system of one or two buses, to take students who live on campus to the University Mall.

Making student government more open is one of Anderson's chief goals, but, unlike some of the other candidates, he does not favor the formation of a minority affairs commission to deal with the problems of minority students.

"Our administration would be open to any and all students," he said. "But I don't think there's really a need for a minority affairs commission.

Anderson said he would like to see some steps taken to improve security on campus, but he thinks there is only a limited number of steps that can be taken.

"There's only so much you can do to help each individual student," he said. "But What we need are more cops on the beat at night."

Improved organization is a major feature of Anderson's plans for involving the USO in Carbondale's famous Halloween celebration. "I want to create a Halloween festival, and it should be controlled by the USO," he said. "We could have a festival with a name band, beer tents, and all the food and things that go with a festival."

Carbondale Clean-Up Day, one of this year's largest student government projects, would be continued next year if Anderson is elected. He said there would be some changes, however.

"For one thing, I would have it the week after Halloween," he said. "That's when you really need it. I would also spend less money promoting it. They spent $4,000 on it this year, and I think that's unnecessary."

SPC honors work of Huston in five-day film celebration

By Bill Cowen
San Francisco Chronicle

If there ever was some kind of marathon competition for filmmakers in which career longevity is the key to victory, John Huston would certainly be a long-shot competitor, for not only is he an outright world champ, but a veteran director-screenwriter as well. Huston's career spans nearly 50 years of Hollywood filmmaking.

In honor of the 74-year-old master director of such classics as "The Maltese Falcon," "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre" and "Fat City," the Student Programming Council Film Committee will present a five-day film festival to run from Thursday through Saturday. All films will be shown at the Student Center Auditorium with admission being $1 for Tuesday's show and $1.50 for all other screenings.

According to a committee schedule, nearly every facet of Huston's lengthy career, the film festival will include both double features and single films. Those scheduled for the opening night (Tuesday) are "The Maltese Falcon" and "San Pietro" (1944); and "The Maltese Falcon" and "The Maltese Falcon," respectively, at 7 and 9 p.m. on Sunday, respectively.

"The Maltese Falcon," directorial debut with Humphrey Bogart, "Jezebel," "The Asphalt Jungle," "The Maltese Falcon," "Beyond the Forest," "The Maltese Falcon," all directed by Huston, were his constant personal combat in world war II.

"The Maltese Falcon" (1943) and "Reflections in a Golden Eye" (1967), 7 p.m. Thursday—The former, a story of aPretty Boy Ford and his young protege, "The Maltese Falcon" (1941), and "San Pietro" (1944). and "San Pietro" (1944). and "San Pietro" (1944)."San Pietro" (1944). and "San Pietro" (1944), respectively.

"The Maltese Falcon" (1943) and "Reflections in a Golden Eye" (1967), 7 p.m. Thursday—The first film, a story of a disillusions divorcee and her by now is finaly being released to the public after years of suppression by the government.

"San Pietro" (1944), respectively. and "Reflections in a Golden Eye" (1967), 7 p.m. Thursday—The latter of which, Arguably Huston's best film in 90 years, Stacey Keach and Jeff Bridges star in a story of a tough boxer and his young protégé, "The Maltese Falcon" (1941), and "San Pietro" (1944). and "San Pietro" (1944). and "San Pietro" (1944). respectively.

"The Man Who Would Be King" (1975), 7 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday—The former, "San Pietro," respectively. and "Reflections in a Golden Eye" (1967), 7 p.m. Thursday—The latter of which, Arguably Huston's best film in 90 years, Stacey Keach and Jeff Bridges star in a story of a tough boxer and his young protégé, "The Maltese Falcon" (1941), and "San Pietro" (1944). and "San Pietro" (1944). and "San Pietro" (1944). respectively.

"The Man Who Would Be King" (1975), 7 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday—Film adaptation of a novel by Flannery O'Connor stars Ned Beatty, Brad Dourif and Harry Dean Stanton.

Here's a brief summary of each film in the festival:

"Fat City" (1972), 7 and 9 p.m. Tuesday—Arguably Huston's best film in 90 years, Stacey Keach and Jeff Bridges star in a story of a tough boxer and his young protégé, "The Maltese Falcon" (1941), and "San Pietro" (1944). and "San Pietro" (1944). and "San Pietro" (1944). respectively. and "Reflections in a Golden Eye" (1967), 7 p.m. Thursday—The first film, a story of a disillusions divorcee and her cowboy friends, has the curious value of being the last film of both Clark Gable and Marilyn Monroe. The second stars Marlon Brando and Elizabeth Taylor in Carson McCullers's story of a homosexual army officer in the South.

"The Man Who Would Be King" (1975), 7 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday—Film adaptation of a novel by Flannery O'Connor stars Ned Beatty, Brad Dourif and Harry Dean Stanton.
Harry T. Moore, research professor emeritus of English, died Saturday in Memorial Hospital in Carbondale, after suffering a severe stroke earlier in the week.

Moore, 72, was one of SIU's most renowned faculty members. He was considered a world authority on author and poet D.H. Lawrence. He came to SIU-C in 1951 and taught there until his retirement in 1976.

After retiring, Moore continued to teach at SIU-C occasionally, including a class last semester on the life of D.H. Lawrence. He was considered a master's student of Lawrence, and a doctoral degree from the University of Chicago in 1951. He also helped SIU-C through his efforts with the students. He was always very helpful, especially with the graduate students.

Moore was born Aug. 2, 1908, in Oakland, Calif. He graduated from the University of Chicago in 1951. He received his master's degree from Northwestern University in 1942 and a doctoral degree from Boston University in 1961.

Moore authored, co-authored and edited over 26 books. He was one of the few Americans ever elected to a fellowship in the Royal Society of the United Kingdom.

Moore, who lived in Carbondale, is survived by his wife, Beatrice; a son, Lt. Col Brian Moore, the U.S. Marines, of Schaumburg, a daughter, Sharon Porter, of Vero Beach, Fla., and two grandchildren: Scott and Cathleen, of Vero Beach, Fla.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. at the Ragoz-Pillatsch Funeral Home in Carbondale. Visitation will be Tuesday from 6 to 9 p.m. at the funeral home. Burial will be in the Hilcrest Cemetery in Carbondale.

The book, published in 1954 under the title of "The Intelligent Heart," was republished in 1974 under its current title. William Simeone, chairman of the English department, said that though Moore was best known for his expertise on Lawrence, his talent extended far beyond any one subject.

"While he was without question regarded the foremost authority on Lawrence, he was also a person with a tremendous compassion for literature that is easily felt by anyone who reads his many written works," Simeone said. "He knew an enormous amount about all types of American literature."
The Psychology Department will sponsor a symposium from 9 a.m. to noon Tuesday in the Quigley lounge. Nationally-known researchers will discuss psychological and behavioral aspects of migraine headaches, hypertension, cancer and kidney disorders. Admission is free.

The Environmental Workshops at Touch of Nature will sponsor a day hike into Lusk Creek Canyon from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, April 25. For advanced registration call 529-4161, extension 46.

support Debbie Brown instead, saying that Brown "was tough enough to take." She described her original intention of the vice presidential position as a "shallow analysis" based on an evaluation of her qualifications, and confirmed her interest in running for the position.

Although she said any action she takes as vice president would be based on mandates from the council, she has a few ideas of her own.

Nelson said she felt the allocation of funds beyond the budget by the fee board was a serious problem that could be resolved if the method of keeping records and reporting to the council was changed.

In her reports to the council, Nelson said she would separate the two budgets so the council would have a better grip on where it stands on allocations. She had both an administrative and an events budget. This year the financial report was given with a total dollar amount remaining in the account, leading council members to think they had more money to allocate than they actually had. She said she would examine past funding requests instead of two.

Function is to serve students to one funding request graduate students. She said she would consider limiting cost funding but increase for graduate students. She described the current year’s action as a "shallow analysis" based on an evaluation of the student council on an even keel when Nelson said she would also cut the number of fee board meetings to once a month, instead of the current twice-a-month policy.

In an attempt to keep the council on an even keel financially, Nelson said she would not advocate an activity fee increase for graduate students.

Achoo! It’s Hayfever Time Again
BY DR. ROY S. WHITE
Doctor of Chiropractic

To understand what hayfever is, you must first know something about the immune system of the body. The immune system is simply your army against intruders, such as germs or other foreign matters. Part of your immune system is made up of the mucus membranes which line your nose, sinuses, Eustachian tubes, and conjunctiva. The Eustachian tube is a small canal which connects the ear with the nose. The conjunctiva is a mucous membrane that covers the eye.

One of the functions of the mucus membrane is to keep all harmful material out of the body. Thus, when germs enter through the nose, the mucus membranes of the nasal passage respond by secreting mucus which kills the germs and washes them away. We realize the situation as a runny nose and we say we have a cold. A cold is the body’s appropriate response to invasions of the mucus membranes by germs. However, hayfever represents a situation in which the immune system is overly sensitive. The mucus membranes are regarding harmless substances, for example, grass, feathers, or pollen, as dangerous invaders and respond by secreting mucus to try to wash these harmless substances away. This creates a condition in which the nose is almost always secreting mucus and the unfortunate sufferer thinks he has a chronic cold until finally he is diagnosed as having HAYFEVER.

ALLERGIC RHINITIS is a natural condition, an allergy induced by a sensitization of the body to certain stimuli.

To restore the correct interpretation of these “harmless substances” you must restore the integrity of your spine. This is not always going to be a "ZAP-INSTANT CURE." It is more likely a long term correction process and one where you must determine if you’re going to stick with the corrective process until you get the clean bill of health and then maintain that condition or, just as sure as the sun rises, you’ll be running around with a “runny nose.”

Music School will sponsor free concerts

The School of Music is sponsoring several free concerts with a variety of different instruments and styles in the next two weeks.

The SIU Symphony Orchestra will perform at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Shryock Auditorium. The concert will feature violinist Jacques Israelievitch, concertmaster of the St. Louis Symphony, who will perform Mozart’s “D Major Violin Concerto.” Conducted by Daniel Mellado, assistant professor in the School of Music, the orchestra will perform Weber’s “Overture to Der Freischütz,” Liadov’s “Eight Russian Folk Songs” and Smetana’s tone poem, “The Moldau.”

A piano concerto concert will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in Shryock Auditorium. Graduate and undergraduate students will perform compositions by Mozart, Grieg, Beethoven and Ravel. William Choat, Daniel Faltus, Richard Gardner, Diana Molls and Shelli Pierce will be the featured soloists, assisted on second piano by David Anderson, Anita Ashbaker and Joan Cain.

An evening of French and German Baroque cantatas for voice, oboe and continuo will be presented by members of the School of Music at 8 p.m. Monday at the University House.

Although admission to this show is also free, tickets are required and only 100 are available. Tickets can be obtained from the School of Music. Harpsichordist Margaret Simmons, cellist Daniel Mellado, obbligato Nora Post, wife of SIU President Albert Somit and vocalists Jeanne Wagner and Renwick Hester will perform.

Admission to all performances is free and the public is invited.

respect, the trustee must be well versed in all areas of the college so that he may attack the job seriously and with strong determination, according to Lee Peterson.

The job of student trustee is not new to Irvin. He served as director of the school of business at University in Atlanta, Ga., where he received his bachelor's degree. He also was student government president and vice president there.

He will finish his law degree in May and also be working on his master's degree in public administration. Currently, Irvin is a member of the executive board of the student advisory committee to the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

KEVIN JANS

The student trustee does not need a binding vote on the board to do his job, according to Kevin Jans. That is why advising members of the board of trustees on important issues, he said.

The big issue in this campaign is the study of peopling up whether or not the student trustee should have a vote, and I don't think it will happen, said Jans.

The real power of the trustee is not in his vote, but in the student affairs, he said. The student trustee represents some 23,000 students, not in or not as whether or not he has a vote.

Jans, 27, a senior in history, thinks that being a student trustee is one of the most exciting student affairs, he said. He gained some awareness of student option.

"I have been a student senator for the past three years, and I've been with a lot of students," Jans said. "That's how you find out how they feel.

Jans thinks students have been treated unfairly by the state, especially in being forced to accept a 13 percent hike in tuition. He said that the cost of faculty salaries.

"We need to get a big turnover on the referendum on the athletic program," he said. "We should also try to get people in our team and get more games that are closer to home.

Getting changes in the athletics programs and the student trustees also is important to Jans.

"Our needs are the same," he said. "That's why they are so confused on what we are doing.

"Students are consumers of education and the more smarter, more active consumers."
First-round slump dooms golf team

The Saluki men's golf team finished 13th with a score of 854 in the Colonel Classic held Saturday and Sunday at Eastern Kentucky University. First place was the 24-team tournament went to last year's winner, Ohio State, with a score of 835. Eastern Kentucky finished second with 877. Purdue, Kentucky and Western Kentucky place third, fourth and fifth, respectively.

Originally, the teams were scheduled to play 36 holes Saturday and 18 holes Sunday, but due to bad weather and darkness, they played 27 holes each day, which is not the usual format for a tournament.

According to Saluki Coach Jim Reburn, the Salukis were in eighth place Saturday after the first 18 holes, but in the last nine holes they shot a 139. "We played terrible for those nine holes. We were at least 10 strokes worse then we should have been," Reburn said. "That 139 cost us the tourney. It was one of the highest scores in the tournament."

Sunday, the Salukis came back and shot a 147 for the next nine holes, and finished with a low 219 for the last 18 holes. "We played real well on Sunday," Reburn said. "We had the fifth lowest score that day. I was glad to see everybody getting their games together. If we can play at that intensity for a whole tournament, we'll be getting down to where we want to be."

Rich Jarrett shot a 225, the low score for the Salukis, in the twoday tournament. Jarrett had a solid game. Reburn said. "SIU-C's Butch Potshard had a 229 score, with a low round of 73. Butch's mental game was improved," Reburn said. "I felt that he was concentrating better."

Salukis Rob Hammond and John Schaefer had scores of 230 and 231, respectively. The high scorer for the Salukis was Doug Clemens, who shot a 234. This was the second outing for Schaefer this season. He was sidelined with a broken finger and missed the Salukis' opener in Texas.

"I felt that Schaefer played better last week at Alabama," Reburn said. "He didn't progress as quickly as I thought he would this week, but he could break loose any time—he's capable of it—he's a hard worker."
Lady netters challenge Murray State

By Scott Stahmer

If she wanted to, SIUC Coach Judy Auld could schedule the Roosevelts and Valley View's college teams, and she probably will. But she doesn't.

"We only get better with better competition," Auld said of her team's scheduling philosophy. "And we try to think extra hard.

"I think we can play with them." Auld said. "For us to beat them, we have to win in those crucial points. When it's a free-for-all, we have to keep the pressure on them."

"If we're going into this match as the underdogs and we have nothing to lose, we have to play our ball." Auld said.

Auld said she was considering switching her singles lineup for Tuesday's match with No. 4 player Becky Ingram tucked in for the No. 4 spot and No. 3 player Stacy Sherman moving up to the No. 4 position.

"In the past two or three years, they had good teams." Auld, whose Salukis are 10-5 said. "Every time we played, the matches were close. There was a pretty good rivalry going on and this probably is the start of another.

"Murray State's like a new team," Auld said. "Their coach (Nita Hold) is a real good recruiting year. They have added a couple good players from Florida."

The Racers' top two players are Sarah French and Harrisburg native April Horning. Auld said, both have impressive individual ranking records.
