Two-thirds in USO race are 'mavericks'

By Lovell Caldwell
Staff Writer

Two of the three candidates in the election Wednesday for Undergraduate Student Organization president have presented conventional campaigns. The other could be termed a maverick.

That candidate, Kurt Boyle, who is not on the Maverick slate but on the Big O Party ticket, is a student senator who says, "I've never considered myself a part of student government. Boyle, at 23, is a junior in marketing, says he's done his best to "live the party image that SIU has."

"I don't think it's negative. I think the party image draws creative people. It's what attracted me to the school," he said.

Boyle has been a USO presidential candidate the past two years.

THE CANDIDATES of the only campaign, Jerry Cook, Maverick Party, and Glenn Stolar, Sting Party, seem to be more serious than Boyle's. Both stress their experience in student government and talk about the issues as if they were running for office in the "real world."

In his third year of student government, Cook, 29, and a junior in physiology planning to study medicine, serves as Undergraduate Student Organization chief of staff.

As a freshman at SIU-C, Cook was a student member of the Student Government Board for Governance and Representation. As a sophomore he served as student representative to the Illinois Student Association and worked to combine the student ID and fee statement, distributed the student directory and began research for a book on campus.

Last fall, Cook was elected president of the Illinois Student Association, which represents the interests of two- and four-year private universities in the Illinois Legislature and to other agencies that affect higher education.

COOK also has served on committees, boards and task forces which he said have given him broad inside information on many programs at SIU-C.

Glen Stolar, whose name must be written in because he is one of the four candidates, has been active in student government during each of his three years at SIU-C. This year, USO President Todd Rogers appointed Stolar to the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee and Student Advisory Committee to the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

As a freshman, Stolar served as chairman of the Housing and Fees Commission and was a student senator his sophomore year. He has also served as a student life advisor for two years, as well as on numerous other committees, councils and boards on campus.

STOLAR, 29, studies economics and sociology. He said he hopes to get an assistantship which would enable him to afford to attend graduate school at SIU-C, and to eventually study law.

Boyle was appointed student advocate by the USO president as a sophomore. He has worked at the Recreation Center for three years.

He also has worked in sheet metal construction, with a carpenter and as a waiter in a Chicago bank. He is licensed to sell real estate in Illinois. Boyle said he is not worried about "finding a job and will probably have public relations after graduation."

As for his campaign, Boyle said, "I've refrained from making promises, letting my record speak for itself. If students are willing to take a chance, they're in for some good results."

HOWEVER, BOYLE said he does have stands on all the issues. A book co-op run by students would save money, he says, as opposed to reselling of used books through 700 and University bookstores.

He also said he can't decide how to police students. He says it worries about shutting down parties when murders are going unsolved. He said it appears the police are interested

'Best shot' budget reviewed by council

By Bob Bondurant

Staff Writers

Carbondale's "best shot" $247.4 million budget for fiscal year 1982-83 was reviewed with approval by the City Council Monday.

The budget is slightly less than this year's $253.3 million, according to City Manager Carroll Fry, represents the collective best judgment by the city administration. Jerry Cook, No citizens spoke at a public hearing on the budget, but the council discussed the details item by item, and indicated it would formally adopt May 1. However, in reviewing the budget as a whole, Fry said and that the future financially for the city is "very bright.

Special projects will make up a small portion of the city's budget, totaling $9.6 million in expenditures. $8.7 million over the fiscal year of $7.4 million will be spent on the Railroad Relocation Project, $1.5 million on construction of a new public library on West Main Street, and $1.7 million on construction of the downtown parking garage.

Fry said the city will find it difficult to continue funding special services programs once Community Development Block Grant monies run out. Carbondale is in the first year of a three-year, $7 million CDBG grant from the federal government.

Council member Helen Westberg approvingly noted that social service funding will be continued, and that there will be no layoffs of city employees. "There doesn't seem to be anything extra to take out," Westberg said, "and nothing extra to put in."

Although Fry said that the city should not be funding outside agencies, the budget includes $76,000 for the same four agencies the city funded last year — the Youth Services Bureau, the Artisans Community Services Board, the Senior Citizen program and the SIU-C, Cook

900 pay respects to Morris

By Mike Anthony
and Rod Farlow
Staff Writers

More than 900 people attended the funeral service for former SIU President Delyte W. Morris Tuesday, hearing Morris described as a "statesman president — full of tact, ideas and wisdom," by Paul Morrill, former assistant to the governor, who delivered the eulogy.

The SIU student body president, died Saturday after a lengthy illness, at the Enone County Nursing Home in Anna, one day before his 75th birthday.

Morris became president in 1963 and retired in 1979. During his years as president, the University expanded dramatically, developing from a small teachers' college into an urban university offering many diverse degree programs.

When I first heard of Dr. Morris' death, I said that he's done more for our region than anyone in this century," U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-24th District, said after the service.

Then I went back through the news, and I found that he's done more than anyone ever thought he could.

Morris was a man of unusual vision, who looked for people he could work with and ideas to work. Simon said.

Both state Sen. Kenneth Bubbe, who succeeded Morris during the service that, "Dr. Morris was a leader committed to education and to improving conditions for our young people.

It's important that Illinois have great leaders. Illinois has lost a great one this morning," Bubbe said.

Describing the impact of Morris' dynamic leadership, Morris said, "We who are assembled here are only a small part of the legions of people touched by this man. Like a wave of water whose action is physically impossible to measure, we are moved inevitably forward by the quality of Dr. Morris' work."

Morris was a "tireless worker, an energetic builder, a visionary leader and politician," said U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon, Illinois' junior senator, who delivered the eulogy.

Faculty Senate elects officers, plans to honor Morris yearly

By Doug Ledinger
Staff Writer

Herbert Donow, an English professor and William Graczyk, a law professor, were elected Tuesday by acclamation to the Senate by the presiding officer of the 1982-83 Faculty Senate.

Donow was senate president during the 1975-76 school year and was chairman of the Faculty Status and Welfare Committee, the Senate Rules, and the Budget Committee, three groups that are part of the Senate.

Prior to electing new officers and committee members, the old senate passed several resolutions.

It resolved to present a yearly memorial scholarship honoring the contributions the late SIU president Loytce Morris made in the school.

A resolution to accept an alternative to a task force report which recommends to minimize and some forms of monetary compensation be used as rewards for achievement by faculty was passed.

The Faculty Status and Welfare Committee recommended several measures it was suggested by the task force on rewards.

Women's Center

The Youth Services Bureau will receive $47,766, the same amount as last year, as will the Attack Awareness Service Board, which will receive $45,766.

The Women's Center will receive the $10,000 it requested, $2,500 less than last year's appropriation. The sole funding increase was for the Citizens program — $27,255, compared to last year's $29,350.

It had been approved.

The council shared Fry's pessimism concerning future funding of social service agencies. Mayor Hans Fischer said the administration, "through good management, has managed to push the inevitable a little bit further down the road."

Fischler credited the administration's "internal blood-letting" as the reason for not cutting back the funds, but Fry said it "can't go on forever."

Although there will be no increase in property taxes, Fry said a slight lighting levy may be included in future budgets.

This year's cost for street, school and police work is $60,890, and could increase to $96,600 as a result of the Central Illinois Public Service rate hike, Fry said.

Currently, the city uses sales tax revenue to help pay its street-lighting bill, but Fry said that situation cannot continue.

The city plans to borrow $500,000 to pay for construction of a new Public Works Garage on West Willow Street. Another $501,000 may be borrowed to pay water and sewer improvements for the new Wal-Mart shopping center on the city's east side, and the West Park Plaza, as well as new lines on Freeman Street.

The funds would be raised by selling short-term notes, payable in five years.

A half-time tax collector of the revenue generated by the city's 1 percent tax on eating and drinking establishments and 4 percent tax on hotels and motels income will be hired in this year's budget.

The city's lake management budget has been increased to $94,840 to pay for new part-time lifeguards to be hired, since the Cedar Lake Beach will be opening in May.

And in the CDSC fund, the Welfare Committee report on preventative health care and day care programs at the Eumira for Cashier, $323,150 and $474,722 respectively.

Haig: Falklands situation dangerous

LONDON (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. broke off a six-day diplomatic shuttle Tuesday and flew home to tell President Reagan about so-called "new ideas" for averting a British-Argentine war over the Falkland Islands.

Haig said he would resume his peace mission soon, returning to the Argentine capital of Buenos Aires. He said he had sounded a note of growing anxiety as Britain and Argentina remained in apparent deadlock over which country's flag will fly in the South Atlantic archipelago.

In the Atlantic, a British naval force of some 40 ships continued its southward course toward the disputed islands, now just a week's sail away. Argentinians made no effort to challenge the British 200-mile exclusion block of the islands.

U.S. Air Force crash kills 27

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — All 27 Americans aboard a U.S. Air Force transport were killed Tuesday when the plane exploded in the air, burst into flames and crashed in mountainous eastern Turkey, a Turkish military spokesman said.

The cause of the crash, some 265 miles west of the Soviet border, was not immediately known.

The spokesman said the C-130 crashed 15 miles west of the city of Erzincan, near the village of Geverese, and that there were no survivors.

All the victims were believed to military personnel, he reported.

derprivileged," Morrill said. "Most of us were caught up in the challenges he presented. We were involved. We are better than we are because of him," Morrill said.

The Rev. Donald Carlson, pastor of Carbondale's First United Methodist Church, conducted the service.

"This great university president was a man of faith. He was a president whose vision and leadership gave rise to a major university, created out of his democratic spirit and educational philosophy, that provided opportunity for minority students, handicapped students and students from the state and international community" to achieve an education, Carlson said.

Morrill said that Morris' educational philosophy was based on the motto "Fides et Labor" of Park College, in Missouri, where he received his undergraduate degree.

The motto means "faith and work," Morrill said. "Deity exemplified both of these attributes" and believed "that anyone can learn anything, given the opportunity."

The attributes that contributed to Morris' greatest abilities were his honesty, toughness, persistence, gentleness, "and above all, his greatest attribute was "the energy -- energy to spare. It kept the thing rolling." After Morris' body was transported to Collinsville for burial at St. John's Cemetery,

I.P. Brackett, Charles C. Feirich, John G. Gilber, Archie Stroup, Joseph N. Gozman, and John E. King were pallbearers at the service. Butch Brown, there were 16 honorary pallbearers.

Brackett is chairman of Speech Pathology and Audiology at SIUC. and was once the president of the Speech and Hearing Association, a national organization which Morrill also served as president.

Feirich was special assistant to Morrill in 1969 and field representative of the SIUC Department of Agronomy.

The 12 honorary pallbearers at the service were: Don Anderson, coordinator of the Clinical Center; Leo Blache, former chairman of the SIU Board of Trustees; Martin Van Brown, member of the board from 1961 to 1973.

Oliver Caldwell, who retired as a professor of higher education in 1972; Roland Keeke, assistant to the dean in Higher Education; Earl Laxersem, president of SIUE; William Marberry, who retired as bursar professor in 1974, after holding the position for 34 years, William Norwood, chairman of the SIU Board of Trustees; Shove Albert Somit, president of SIUC.

Clarence W. Stephens, who resigned in 1971 as chairman of the University Administrative Council, and who served as special assistant to Morris and later as special assistant to the Edwardsville campus during his 1970 election to the SIU System, and John Page Wham, a Centralia attorney, a member of the Board of Trustees from 1961 to 1965, and the board's chairman for 13 years. The Wham building on the SIUC campus is named for Wham's father, George, who was named acting president in 1935, after the death of Henry Shyrock.

The senate also voted on a resolution approving a policy proposed by Guynn changing from four to five years the maximum time a visiting instructor can remain at the university without being promoted. The policy also states that faculty in cost-recovery programs such as the SIU-C military program will no longer have the title of visiting professors. Instead these appointments will be non-tenurable and non-use accruing post-doctoral lecturers or assistant instructors.

"People already in visiting instructors' may be given the opportunity to stay for five years," Guynn said.

The senate also passed a resolution that would change the university policy of making a student declare a major in an appropriate course from the beginning of the semester to the end of the third week.

201 S. Illinois
CSBO is slow but sure

I WOULD LIKE to respond to the letter from Ruth Perk. It is my understanding that Southern Illinois University looked out for me before the Civil Service Bargaining Organization election. I started working for the University in 1967 with 15 years of secretarial experience but started at the base salary of a secretary. I believe that my experience is valued.

The CSBO recognizes the Civil Service Statutes and Rules. The Personnel Services Office has a handbook that clarifies the rules in the Civil Service Statutes and Rules. Personnel can change the handbook at any time.

I have just read an article regarding the Student Trustee election on the Daily Egyptian Opinion & Commentary page. I realize that the writer is a constant source of amusement to me.

Mr. Hester, CSBO is amazing.

Irvin is the best choice for student trustee post

The campaign for the office of student trustee has centered on the issue of access to education. The two candidates, Jeff Neuger and Stan Irvin, are both students who are the incumbent, have taken similar positions on this crucial issue.

Both agree that the primary mission of SIUC is to find the means to provide access to all who desire higher education, regardles of income level. Both are united in their desire to help students and reduce costs. Based on the job he has done thus far, especially his efforts to get students involved in decision making, we believe Irvin is the candidate who can best advance student interests to the Board of Trustees.

The issue of access to education is one that is close to the heart of all students. He held a hearing at Neely Hall where students could testify before a panel of six legislators. He has worked with other students under the leadership of a large group of student leaders to foster a student stronger political voice.

In the last year, the entire board has been dealt a number of issues urging opposition to cuts in educational aid and asking students to write administrators. He has tirelessly promoted student attendance at crucial board meetings and. The board has been known not sit by while the cost of education rises.

More importantly, Irvin has acted consistently as a loud, dissenting voice of the student at board meetings. He has inveighed against tuition hikes, the lack of student representatives, and the Board of Trustees' decisions to cut educational aid. The important fact is not that costs rose anyway. Nothing short of a nuclear attack, perhaps, could have prevented the board from raising tuition; the important fact is that Irvin has consistently let the board know that these decisions are against the interests of students who will be hurt by the constant rise in educational prices.

The campaign for the trustee post has been low key. There has been no campaign in a political sense, as such that which marked the contest for Undergraduate Student Organization President. That should not lead students to believe that Irvin is not interested in the issues. All students should participate to make sure their interests are represented.

Irvin has the vote in that he has earned the right to continue representing student interests to the board.

Letters

Hester, CSBO are amazing.

I agree with Mr. Neuger that the CSBO has been a massive improvement over previous university publications. I am very happy with the CSBO's efforts to improve student representation and keep us informed on campus affairs.

Some criticism of the CSBO has been that it is not doing enough to help students understand the issues around tuition increases. I believe that the CSBO is doing an excellent job of informing students about these issues, and it is up to individual students to take the time to learn more about these important topics.

In conclusion, I feel that the CSBO is doing an extraordinary job of serving the students of our university. I urge all students to support the CSBO and to continue to work towards a better future for our campus.

Joann Marks in her efforts to give the money back to the students and to avoid the cuts that would have been made is truly amazing. She cares more about protecting and keeping a good name for SIUC than any other group.

Deborah Reardon, Secretary III Transcriber, Department of Political Science

CSBO not aiding interests

As a secretary III transcriber employed by SIUC, I strongly disagree with the CSBO's actions to sidestep the campus to vote against further representation on the University Senate by the Civil Service Bargaining Organization Wednesday. The CSBO has been a constant source of amusement to me.

The CSBO is not doing its job to protect our interests as a student employee. The CSBO is the Daily Egyptian. Let us join Ruth Perk and

In memoriam — Delyte W. Morris

Editor's Note: This is an excerpt from a December 1992 column written by Delyte W. Morris, former president of SIU-C, that appeared in the spring 1992 edition of the Carbondale Review. In the piece, Morris paid tribute to his wife, Delyte Welley Morris, who died on May 15, 1992. Jools Holland makes variety palatable

By Joe Walter
Staff Writer

"Jools Holland and his Millennium," the debut album by the former keyboardist from the British pop group Squeeze, would be very impressive if it were not for Holland's voice. I don't mean that his voice stinks, but it sounds like a cross between Neil Sedaka and Elton John, only with a narrower range. He sounds better than a few of the local bar band singers, but that's not saying much.

However, the tunes that Holland and his Millennium recorded on the album are still very catchy and they offer us--ah! --variety.

The selections on the album encompass such music genres as rockabilly, some bebop jazz, Motownish rhythm and blues, and gospel.

The lyrics are sometimes funny, but they are subtle--hardly candidates for the "Goody Gold" compilation album. Cuts like "Goodbye World," "Drivin' To Drunk," and "First Drink of the Day" resemble Corky Singer's witty, light and upbeat lyrical style.

In "Goodbye World," Holland says he is going to kill himself, and when he does, "they'll be crying when I'm gone." In the gospel selection "Let Me In," Holland asks the Lord to let him in, even though he has spent his whole life as a funlover and booser.

For dance fanatics, tunes like "Dreamflow" (a rockabilly tune about a pink Buick) and "One More Time" could drive doo-wop flags and swing dancers into a state of hyperkinesis.

Aside from being a good dance tune, "Bumble Boogie" is also a good jazz instrumental with some fine piano by Holland that brings to mind smoke-filled clubs filled with finger-snaping patrons in zoot suits and shoulder-padded dresses.

Although Holland's keyboard work is featured in most of the cuts, he doesn't overwhelm it like some lead guitarists, such as Ritchie Blackmore in his Deep Purple days, have tended to do on their albums. If anything, it's subtle and, on the slower tunes, soothing.

"Jools Holland and his Millennium" should appeal to a wide variety of tastes, from fans of listenable blues to those who like happy, popish music.

Neil Sedaka and Elton John fans—who know how to dance—should like Jools a lot. Since a few of the songs on the album deal with heavy drinking, it might make a nice gift to a honker on W.C. Fields' birthday.

And although it may not be a great work of art, it is fun, happy-sounding and at times danceable. And unlike a lot of the mawkish crud one hears on the radio, it is not trite.

Basically, it's just a good time and what's wrong with that?

Proposed bill may help rape victims

State Rep. Jim Rea, D-Chicago, is co-sponsoring a bill in the Illinois House of Representatives permitting rape victims to have a friend or family member present during police questioning. House Bill 3195, submitted last week to the Legislature, is "aimed at easing the trauma of rape," according to a press release.

"We need to do everything we possibly can to help the victims of this vicious, appalling crime," Rea said. Rape victims need the support of a friend or relative when questioned about the crime, he added.

Rea said many rape victims are "too traumatized" to help police capture their assailant.

"It's important that someone who has been raped can give the police as much accurate information about the attack as possible," Rea said. "Having a friend or relative present during questioning will help not only the victim, but the police as well."

Rea believes the measure will be most useful in areas of Illinois where few victims assistance programs exist.

Art lecture planned for U. Museum

Internationally recognized artist Robert Sennhauser will give a public lecture and performance at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the University Museum Auditorium in the north wing of Paeur Hall.

Sennhauser's expertise includes printmaking (silkscreen), performance and drawing.

He is visiting the School of Art as a guest faculty member for the last two weeks of April.

Moot court finals set for Saturday

The final rounds of moot court competition will begin at 3:30 p.m. Saturday at the Lesar Law Building. The final round will be argued in three cases.

Federal judges J. Waldo Ackerman, Thomas Capshaw, James L. Foreman and Kenneth J. Meyers will be present to preside. Illinois judges Charles C. Jones, Loren P. Lewis, Harold F. Trapp and Richard E. Richman will also be present as well as state Chief Justice Howard C. Ryan.

Sennhauser has been a visiting artist at the University of Oklahoma and a faculty member at the Art Institute of Chicago. Currently, he is on the faculty of the Hartford School of Art in Connecticut.

He has been exhibited widely in national and international exhibitions and was a 1980 recipient of a $10,000 photographic fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts.

"It's important that someone who has been raped can give the police as much accurate information about the attack as possible," Rea said. "Having a friend or relative present during questioning will help not only the victim, but the police as well."

Trustee candidates differ in style

By Lyndall Caldwell
Staff Writer

The race for student trustee is between two candidates. Jeff Neigel is one of them, and he says he disagrees with the incumbent Stan Irvin on the issues and his past voting record, but feels Irvin is not aggressive enough in dealing with the administration.

"After looking at what Stan has accomplished in his term, I got a sense of futility," Neigel said. "It's time for students to have more active leaders,", he said. "I have many votes to take the first step.

Irvin, however, said, "The chancellor has criticized me for being too representative of the students and a couple of board members feel that I've been too outspoken."

"I will continue to be outspoken because there are a lot of issues on which the students are right and the chancellor is wrong."

Irvin has been working with the Undergraduate Student Organization and Graduate Student Council to mobilize students in educational and political efforts. "We have held hearings, rallies, letter-writing campaigns, voter-registration efforts, lobbied legislators in Springfield, and worked to organize students on the Carbondale campus," Irvin said.

"The next step will be to get students politically involved in the election next fall," he said. "Not only do students have to register to vote, but there are a lot of people who are not registered."

Neigel, 22, is a graduate student in economics and received a bachelor's degree in political science from SIUC. He has been involved in local politics in his hometown of Canton.

Having attended SIUC for several years, Neigel said he questions past University actions, such as the creation of the chancellor position and the hiring of an ex-basketball coach, Joe Gutfriend.

Neigel said administrative positions must be evaluated as superfluous or essential. "I think that many of them are superfluous. One high-level position is unnecessary is vice chancellor. We didn't even use to have a chancellor, now we have to have a vice chancellor? These people tend to build fiefs."

Irvin, 26, is a graduate of the SIUC School of Law and is working on a master's degree in public affairs, specializing in legislative financing of higher education. He received a bachelor's degree in political science and religion from Emory University in Atlanta, Ga. There he was in student government as president, vice president, senator, and student representative to the board of trustees.

Irvin said before the chancellor position was created, an administrator with the title "general secretary," performed the same function.

When the Board of Trustees voted last fall to incorporate the chancellor's living allowance into his salary, Irvin was the only one who voted "no."

"It's totally unfair to ask students to continue paying higher tuition at a time when financial aid is being cut, faculty are getting no salary hikes, and then continue to pay the chancellor $50,000 and the president $60,000."

Those two positions are paid more than the governor of Illinois. Irvin said, "That's simply a case of having our priorities mixed up. The amazing thing is that students are continually having to pay a higher proportion of administrative salaries, yet, are given no say on how much these salaries should be."

Irvin said he plans to propose putting a cap on these administrative salaries before the Illinois legislature during the April 27 appropriations hearings.

A bill to give the student trustee a vote has been introduced to the House by Rep. Glenn Schneider, D-41. It was co-authored by Irvin.

Guide lists Reagan as fine communicator

By Deborah Goldstein
Student Writer

A guide to political communication lists why Ronald Reagan is one of the most effective past and present public communicators ever to live in the White House, and why Jimmy Carter lost people's confidence.

The recently published "Handbook of Political Communication" is an informative reference guide on political communication. According to co-editor, Keith R. Sanders, the study of political communication in all its varieties and ramifications is just beginning. People have begun to understand the importance of political communication only within the last 15 years, he said.

"The role of communication in politics has been so understated by almost all of the formal academic disciplines," Sanders said. "I don't really understand why that happened.

"Sanders is governmental relations officer for SIU, as well as a professor in the Department of Speech Communication.

Day D. Nimmo, a political science and communications professor at the University of Tennessee at Knoxville, also was co-editor. He is a former chairman of the International Communications Association. The book contains 22 essays and research reports by scholars in communication, political science, journalism, psychology, sociology, marketing and political speech, exploring the role of communication in the political process.

Essays by SIU-C faculty include "Communication and Political Socialization" by Erwin L. Atwood, journalism professor; "A Critical Theory Approach to Communication" by Richard L. Lanigan, instructor in the departments of speech communication, philosophy and linguistics; and "Experimental Studies by Roy E. Miller, political science professor.

The publishers used the book last spring, but according to Sanders, the book was primarily written for reference use by professors and graduate students.

The book discusses theories, modes and means of persuasive communication in politics, communication settings and methods of study. According to Sanders, Reagan is "one of the most effective uses of television there ever has been in the presidency."

"John Kennedy was good," he said. "Lyndon Johnson was terrible. Richard Nixon was a little better. But not since Kennedy has there been a person in the White House who understood the power of television and knew how to use it as well as Ronald Reagan." Sanders attributes Reagan's effectiveness as a political communicator to his acting career.

Carter was an ineffective communicator, Sanders said. "I think he forgot somehow that we want a person of firm and consistent leadership in the White House," Sanders said. "There was a sense of uncertainty and a lack of decisiveness on his part."

Local leaders to learn new funding

By University News Service

An all-day workshop planned for Monday at the University for local leaders of government, education, and community services the opportunity to learn about one type of funding program will receive under President Reagan's economic plan.

The "New Federalism" emphasizes the use of lump sums directly to states. Each state then decides what programs or agencies wil be funded and how much money they will receive. John Jackson, acting dean of the graduate school, said the workshop is being offered as an early warning on the new rules of the game.

Featured speakers will be Illinois officials in charge of the new program, an economist, assistant to the governor for the Illinois Plan, and Paul Gavel, director of appropriate programs at the University. Two of the main speakers.

Jackson said the seminar will bring the officials who are making the rules together with those who will be affected.

"We're trying to help local officials keep up with the changes and make the same mistakes that leaders [are using]. If the doubts and apprehensions that exist at the community level," he said.

Answering questions now means local leaders will understand procedures for getting money when the program goes into effect. Jackson said the workshop will help make the local people responsible and able to get their fair share of funds, because there's not going to be enough to go around."

The registration deadline is Wednesday. The workshop fee, including lunch, is $7.50. Interested persons should call or write Malinakask at 1-617-751 to register.

This program is being made possible through combined efforts of the President's Office, Graduate School, Office of Public Affairs, Office of Continuing Education, Office of Regional Research and Service, and Office of Research Development and Administration.

Civil War weekend is slated

Members of Company C of the 31st Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry will dust off Civil War era weaponry, don the blue and gray and reenact the Battle of Belmont. No flag raising ceremony will open the weekend. The battlefield will be the intersection of U.S. 51 and Makanda Road.

Events Saturday include a Civil War fair, with demonstrations of period weapons and the sale of Civil War memorabilia. A flag raising ceremony will open the festivities at 8 a.m. Saturday.

There will be a $1 charge per car for parking.
MEG funding sought by Alstat

State Rep. Wayne Alstat, R-Vergennes, is attempting to restore some $1.56 million of funds for the Metropolitan Enforcement Group, part of which would go to the Southern Illinois Enforcement Group.

Alstat said Tuesday that he'd like to think it was a mistake by state budget planners in severing the MEG appropriation out of the budget.

Alstat said the funds for the drug agents, especially in this area, "are important to effectively curbed drug traffic."

Alstat feared that a drug traffic decrease would increase the "trouble area, it's a prime target for drug traffickers and drug pushers," Alstat added.

Alstat was joined in sponsoring the bill by Reps. Frank Watson of Greenville and Steve Miller of Galtin.

Alstat pushed for MEG funding when several agents came to him after the appropriation for the drug agency was left out of the governor's budget.

"They just reminded me of the days they've made and the arrests they've made, and they have had an impact. They've saved lives and saved a lot of people," Alstat said. The bill is now in Appropriations Committee. Alstat said he expected the committee to handle the measure within the next two or three weeks. It then would come up for a vote in the House.

Sieg would get about 15 to 20 percent of the funds if the MEG budget is restored, Alstat said.

Brady allowed to take money
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan signed legislation Tuesday to permit White House press secretary James S. Brady to accept charitable contributions.

Brady, a native of Centralia, Ill., is undergoing extensive rehabilitative treatment after being shot in the brain a year ago during the attempt on Reagan's life.

He currently is in George Washington University Hospital recuperating from plieonea.

Sanders wrote a study on the image of Carter from his presidency to his re-election. He found it difficult to evaluate his presidency.

The plastic case of presidential popularity did not apply to Jimmy Carter," Sanders said. Carter never regained the amount of personality most presidents typically receive at the end of their term, Sanders said.

Sanders also said that presidential candidate John Anderson was "one of the most effective orators on the stump" that he'd ever heard.

He called Anderson a "bright, articulate, thoughtful" advocate of some positions which do not yet occupy the center of the American political spectrum.

Sanders believes that Anderson mobilized supporters, although many people were not yet ready for him.

Sanders also discussed the first amendment right of freedom of speech, but in the end, he made our own judgements," Sanders said.

An electorate can not make up its mind about for whom it will vote until it has some information, Sanders said.

"The information is typically supplied by the mass media and interpersonal channels of communication," he added.

Sanders said the texture of American democracy is different with the presence of an electronic media.

"Political parties have changed, political conventions are now shows put on for the television audience," Sanders said. "Candidates we choose, are different because we want people who look good on the tube."

The "Communication and Election Campaigns" essay discusses this type of image formation. According to Sanders, people are "likely to draw different conclusions" about a person once they see him talk and behave on television as opposed to reading about what he said.

Madinson doesn't plan to use Jefty Paul Kiljens, 3-2 and a 2.43 ERA, or freshman Jay Bay, 3-6, in relief.

In contrast to the unreliable pitching, the Wildcats have been the beneficiaries of consistent hitting, Madison said.

"Our hitters aren't too bad, they're our one strong point," he said.

"Catch-designation hitter Jeffery Hyatt is the 'Can with a 422 average. He's followed by center fielder Mike Botkin at .303 and right fielder-first baseman Bill Sandry at .344." The Salukis, fresh off their double-header sweep of David Lipcombe at Abe Martin Field Monday, carry a 15-5 record into the Kentucky twinhull.

SIU-C Coach Itch Jones called Madison "a good coach" who has improved Kentucky's baseball program.

Jones said after the twinhull Monday that the Wildcats "are in the same shape we are," referring to their lakas' recent inability to get the clutch hit when they need it most.

He hoped the Salukis, who have lost four of their last seven games after winning eight in a row, were able to "steal a little momentum" after sweeping David Lipcombe.

"We've got to beat Ken­ tucky and win four from Bradley," he said. SIU-C plays Bradley in a four-game series this weekend in Car­ bondale.

Freshman Jay Bellisimo, 0-0, and junior Jeff Irvin, 1-1, will start against the Wild­ cats.

Reboulet said, "We go as often as we can." Reboulet said his secret to becoming a better hitter is to arrow simply watching the pitcher.

"At noon I know he's going here. I take off. I don't have any problems with righties. Lefties are tough; for me. Assistant Coach Jerry Green helps him and the other Saluki speedsters, " Reboulet said, showing them what kind of pickoff move a postage stamp would use. I said if he doesn't see what Green showed him when he's on base during a game, he "takes off." Jones said Reboulet "uses his good enough defensively." "He's very steady in the field and turns the double play well," he said.

Reboulet is not a stranger to turning the double play, only this year he's seeing it from a new perspective.

"This is my first year at second base. I used to be a shortstop. I had to get used to the ball coming off the bat on the right side of the infield.

"Coach Jones, Mike (Mesh) and I worked hour after hour in the field. I'm still not perfect, and I've got to get better," he said.

Reboulet credits Mesh for much of his improvement at second base.

"Mike is super-accurate. I could close my eyes and know where to go. Three times he said, 'There,'" he said. "We holler at each other and use hand signals to communicate. If we don't communicate well, things that should get baked would go wrong."

"Reboulet, besides playing a key role in the Saluki defense also is trying to fill the shoes of former second baseman Bobby Doerrer, a first-team member of the Sporting News 1961 All-American College Baseball Team who is now in the Mon­ tana State "Expo" organization.

"Coach Jones has a knack for getting middle infielders," Reboulet said, pointing out Doerrer and San Francisco's Doc Kaiser. "I think it's an honor to play in the footsteps of those guys. I just hope to con­tinue the tradition and keep improving."

Jones said he "hates to compare the two," but admitted that Reboulet is playing better this year than Doerrer did his junior year.

The fact that Reboulet is at second this season is the result of a "tough decision" he faced a year ago. While trying to decide to where continue his education, the administrative sciences major narrowed his choices to South Alabama and Nebraska before choosing SIU-C.

"The main reason I came here was Coach Jones," said Reboulet. "He's the best in the business. He impressed me with his knowledge of the game."

The junior first met Jones during the 1960 season. Reboulet wasn't disappointed.

"I chose Triton because I thought he would use a lot of techniques Coach Jones used," Reboulet said.

Reboulet wasn't disap­ pointed Symmonds led the Trojans to the junior college World Series during Reboulet's freshman year. Jones teams have been in the NCAA Division II World Series five times.

About this year's edition of the Salukis, Reboulet feels the sky's the limit.

"I know we can win the division, the Missouri Valley, and get to Omaha. We just haven't peaked yet. Right now we're not playing good ball, but on paper and physically we know we're better," he said of the 15-11 Salukis. "We're just not jelling yet."

In his post-Sluki years, Reboulet hopes to play in the major leagues, a hope he's harbored as long as he can remember.

"The goal of any kid in college is to make the pros," he said. "I don't know many who don't have this goal." He said that Reboulet is at "the young man, who said he's been playing ball ever since "my dad put a bat into my hands before I could walk," said if he doesn't make the pros, "it won't be the end of my life."

"That's why I'm getting an education, so I can have something to fall back on." He concluded that he "loves it" in Carbondale, really enjoys the "hill gang" and has no regrets about his decision to attend SIU-C.

If the first 26 games are any indication, chances are the "hill gang" and the rest of the Salukis fans won't regret his decision, either.

Softballers get timely hitting, win twinbill

The softball team broke a season habit of splitting doubleheaders, and instead began splitting the seams off the ball while taking games from St. Louis Tuesday.

The Salukis pounded 14 hits in the 8-3 opener, including four after two were out in a four-run fifth inning. The nightcap was closer, going 10 innings before SIU-C pulled out a 12 victory.

Coach Ray Brechtelbauser hopes the good luck stays with the team when the Salukis continue their homestand with a double-header against Illinois State at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

Brechtelbauser was pleased with the double victory, especially the high-scoring opener. Lack of clutch hitting has plagued the Salukis this season, and the offensive attack was good to see, the coach said.

"We hit hard, and they dropped in," she said. "We made something happen.

The ladies victory in game two should be good for the team's attitude, as the win put them above .500 in extra-inning games. And after two were out in a four-run fifth inning, came an infield hit by "Al" Frazzini and both advanced on a wild pitch.

Pitching, consistently strong throughout the season, again was a key factor for the Salukis. With righthander Valli taking the rotation because of nerve damage in her pitching arm, junior Daper and sophomore Meredith Stilleman have alternated pitching duties over the last six games. The numerous interviews have not hindered the two, as both continue to come through, according to Brechtelbauser.

"With the number of close games we've had, plus all the extra innings, it can be a strain on everyone," the Saluki coach said. "They have to be constantly up and thinking. But it's not as much a strain for the others as for the pitchers, and catchers, too. Other players may go an inning without a chance to bat, but the pitchers are working all the time. So, I wait a few more days for her to get the runs needed for the win.

Saluki third baseman Diane Bright lined the first pitch of the inning deep into the rightfield for a triple, and scored the tying run when Sue Wagner singled. Donna Daper followed with a single and both runners advanced on a wild throw. Wagner scored the go-ahead run on an infield hit by Val Uphurse.

Hitting came together again in the sixth, starting with a two-out double by Uphurse. jim Satterly followed with a triple, scoring Uphurse to give the Salukis a 3-run lead. After Gena Valli walked, righthfielder Laura Walsh doubled down the first-base line. With a 6-3 edge, the Saluki drove in another, when Nancy McAuley singled to bring in the final two runs of the game.

Second baseman Reboulet a hit at the plate, between the bases

By Steve Metzch

About the only person not happy with Saluki second baseman Reboulet's second performance at the plate this season is Reboulet himself.

"I'm not pleased at all with my hitting," said Reboulet. "Personally, I think it's weak." With all respect to the junior's self-evaluation, it would be hard to find many people who would agree with him. In fact, he calls a "weak" performance "a form of strenuous ballplayers.

Reboulet is hitting .317 after playing in all but one of SIU-C's 26 games. His 26 hits are second to teammate Kurt Edle's 34. He has struck out just six times and has batted .392 to pass to first base. He leads the team in runs scored with 26, has hit five doubles, socked four home runs and even has a homer to his credit.

"I think everyone has stats aren't bad for a guy who describes himself as an "in-between hitter,"" Reboulet said. "I'm not a Punch-and-Judy hitter or a power hitter," he said. "I guess I'd call myself a doubles, line-drive, hit-the-out-field type of hitter."

Whatever type of hitter he is, one thing is for certain, that is he's the spark to the Saluki rallies. Reboulet is the Salukis' leadoff man, and according to Coach Itchy Jones, the second baseman has performed admirably in the top spot.

"He's an excellent leadoff man," said Jones. "He hits the ball well and has good eyes and has done everything we've asked him to do. He's a big asset to our batting." Reboulet said he doesn't feel any pressure being the leadoff man. Actually, he prefers to bat near the top of the lineup.

"I enjoy batting first or second. I've been doing it all my life," said the 26-year-old. "I feel comfortable there."

Jones has just one request of whoever his leadoff man happens to be — get on base. Reboulet often fulfills his coach's request. When he does, opposing pitchers better beware. The speedster is 17-2 in the stolen base department.

"I've always been fast," said Reboulet. "But stealing depends on what kind of jump you get, not on your speed. A guy could have good speed but not a good jump.

Reboulet said he and fellow basestealer Jeff Zawadski, 18 thefts, and Mike Megh, 14 thefts, always have the green light once they get to first. "Coach Jones wipes it off with a "Go!"

"I guess no man is perfect, but it's nice when you do something right."
