Board approves restructuring of international students’ fee

SPRINGFIELD — International students moving into the SIUC Student-to-Student Grant program will be helping fellow international students exclusively beginning in the fall.

The Board of Trustees on Thursday approved a restructuring of the international student fee fund for newly international students from funds paid into the STS grant fund for foreign students.

According to Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, a current system of awarding STS grants virtually excludes international students.

(S)he said the student fee fund is about $2,500 to $3,500.

Awards for international students would be determined by the Office of International Services and administered by the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance, the resolution continuing states. Awards will be no greater than the cost of non-resident tuition for a semester.

“What we’re looking at is basically an issue of equity among undergraduates, particularly,” Swinburne said.

About 2,500 international students — roughly one-tenth of the on-campus student population — are enrolled on campus 52 semesters according to the Office of International Services.

Brown: no contract for Brady buy

SPRINGFIELD — Equating progress in acquiring the Brady building in Marion with “the movement of a glacier,” Vice Chancellor James Brown said Thursday that the University has no contract to buy the building.

Brown told University trustees at the Architecture and Design Committee meeting that there is active communication going on between the Capital Development Board and the University about acquiring the Brady in an attempt to come to an understanding.

“There has been a formal release of funds, but there is apparently an understanding between the Board of the Budget and the CDB that the money will be released when a specific agreement on the amount is reached,” Brown said.

On Tuesday, Harry Melvin, owner of the Brady building, speaking through his legal representative, said he had not yet been contacted by the CDB.

At a press conference after the meeting will be holding her legal representative, said he had not yet been contacted by the CDB.

“Of course, the matter of release of funds is not the question,” Shaw said. “What is important is we are in the final stages of negotiating. We wouldn’t be asking whether there is a commitment on the part of the state government to having negotiations.”

Trustee alleges violations in election

Student Trustee Sharon McPherson has filed a complaint with the Student Trustee election commission alleging violations of five election laws, and has called for an investigation or delay in the election.

For a campaign manager for United Democrats, Student Government Organization President Bruce Stewart, the complaint doesn’t think the complaints have enough substance to delay next Wednesday’s election.

Trustee candidates Bill Goodin and John Stewart have agreed with some points of the complaint, but they withheld judging whether it was serious enough to warrant election invalidation or delay.

Electoral Commission Franco Laterza said he received Hutcherson’s complaint Thursday afternoon, and was contacting commission chairman to schedule a meeting to consider the complaint as soon as possible.

The complaint alleged that decisions were made by the commission that the complaint believed had been officially approved by the Undergraduate Student Organization and the Graduate and Professional Student Council. The decisions were“A” points made before the commission was approved on April 11 are invalid, the complaint says. Hutcherson also warned that a separate ballot must be provided to undergraduate voters for the trustee and USO elections, USO and trustee candidates’ names have been printed on a single ballot.

Hutcherson’s third complaint contended that this year’s candidates had nothing to do with violation of USO and Student Trustee election rules.

The complaint also states that this year’s candidates have nothing to do with violation of USO and Student Trustee election rules.

Reagan’s boasts of recovery meets with skepticism in Dallas

The general public was told by housing industry leaders Thursday that “time is running out” and that the recovery will be killed off by rising interest rates.

During a visit to a construction site and in a roundtable discussion with builders and bankers, Reagan expressed optimism that interest rates will come down again by summer’s end, despite what he called an upward recent “flurry.”

But in a rare public exchange of views with business leaders, Reagan was subjected to some harsh criticism by some homeowners, who expressed concern about rising prices and interest rates.

President Reagan was subjected to some harsh criticism by some homeowners, who expressed concern about rising prices and interest rates.

“Your timetable of the rest of the United States as to the comeback,” Reagan said, noting that he had come to the Dallas area to get a picture of what’s happening all over America. But even before he left the job site, Rocco Pignotti, the project manager, asked him about the future of interest rates. Reagan replied, “I have hope that we are going to see them come down.” He attributed the recent upward flurry to pessimism among bankers, who fear a return of inflation.

When he reached a nearby hotel for a discussion with industry leaders, Reagan was told by Michael Wool, publisher of The Builder magazine and sponsor of the roundtable, that 1/2 of the 12 industry participants had expressed concern about interest rates.

“But the recovery, Mr. President, has reached a critical turning point,” Smith said. He cited uncertainty in the marketplace and told Reagan, “Builders are the ones who live and die with the ups and downs in interest rates. And interest rates, Mr. President, are rising.”

Bills aimed at improving waste laws

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The Illinois Hazardous Waste Task Force proposed a series of legislative measures Thursday aimed at shap ing up what it called “a woefully lacking” regulation of hazardous waste.

The package of 17 bills, to be submitted to the General Assembly for consideration this spring, is the product of the panel’s year-long study of how hazardous waste is produced, handled and disposed of.

The thrust of the legislative agenda is to document and clean up existing dangerous sites while developing a system for avoiding such problems in the future.

The 100-member task force — made up of politicians, scientists, businessmen, environmentalists and others — heard 170 witnesses in 18 public hearings and compiled more than 2,000 pages of testimony, said Attorney General Neil Hartigan.

“I don’t think anyone in this state realized the gravity of the problem,” Hartigan said, considering the study shows hazardous wastes threaten Illinois with “the most massive environmental problem in its history.”

Illinois ranks second to New Jersey in generation of chemical refuse and industrial by-products officially listed by the federal government as hazardous waste.

The present system of laws and regulations governing the problem is “woefully lacking in almost every area,” said Hartigan, who set up the task force last year with another prominent Democrat, Senate President Philip Rock.

Low tuition for out-of-staters to continue

By Anne Flaza

SPRINGFIELD Some students from Illinois who attend SIU in its campus in Carbondale, Kansas, will continue to pay the same tuition rates, the Board of Trustees decided Thursday at its meeting at the SIU School of Medicine.

University officials notified the board last month of the request to continue two policies already implemented on a trial basis and establish two more on an annual basis.

The policies include:

— allowing residents of 14 counties in western Kentucky to attend SIU at in-state tuition rates.
— allowing residents of Missouri who register for the fall semester or nine quarter hours to attend SIU at in-state tuition rates.
— allowing the institution to the admission requirements of non-resident students can take classes at the in-state tuition rate.

The board asked Chancellor Kenneth Shaw to report the results of the policy to the Finance Committee on an annual basis.

At the Finance Committee meeting before the board took action, Shaw said the policy would not affect access for Illinois residents.

"These are additional students filling classes that are not already full," Shaw said. He added that the policy appeared to have no negative effect on revenue.

SU-C began using the first two policies in the spring of 1982 for graduate students only, but rather have functioned to fill classroom seats which might have otherwise gone vacant.

12 infant deaths attributed to vitamin E

ATLANTA (AP) — At least 12 premature babies have died after being given a new intravenous vitamin E supplement, and the product is being recalled, federal health officials said Thursday.

The Food and Drug Administration said at least 17 babies taking E-Ferol Aqueous Solution at three hospitals have become ill and 12 have died.

The national Centers for Disease Control, reporting as from two of those hospitals, said 12 infants given E-Ferol all came down with an "unusual syndrome" that included fluid in the abdominal cavity. Eight of those infants died, the CDC said.

Premature infants tend to have a deficiency of vitamin E at birth, and vitamin E "is reported to have a therapeutic benefit," the Atlanta-based CDC reported.

The company, from December, FDA spokeswoman Mary Starrer said, has begun a new intravenous vitamin E supplement, and the product is being recalled.

Repeated calls to the distributor by The Associated Press were not returned Thursday.

O’Neal, Jones & Feldman never filed papers to have E-Ferol approved as a new drug, said Ms. Peterson. "We consider it a new drug, and under new drug regulations the applicant must have satisfactory evidence of safety and effectiveness," she said.

However, she said, it would be "premature" to speak of any action against the company.

Mining operation a step toward war

The Reagan administration finally went too far in its not-so-secret war against the Sandinista government in Nicaragua. The disclosure that the CIA, with Reagan's approval, was directing the mining of Nicaraguan harbors has infuriated Congress, alienated our European allies and embarrassed the administration.

In late February, Reagan OK'd the CIA plan to mine three Nicaraguan harbors as part of continuing U.S. covert actions against the Sandinista government. Reagan had defended the unauthorized war against Nicaragua as an effort to force the Sandinistas to stop "exporting revolution" to El Salvador and other parts of Central America. Mind the Nicaraguan harbors to stop the spread of revolution in Central America is dangerously foolish.

Miners are weapons of terrorism: they don't court the favor of the friend and foe. The miners have damaged a dozen ships from several countries, including a Soviet oil tanker and a Japanese freighter. Crew members from both those ships were injured. A mine also damaged a ship carrying British sailors, although no one was injured in that incident.

Bowing holes in our allies' ships does put strain on relations. Doing the same to the Soviet Union is unconscionable during the renewed Cold War. Yet, the administration is going ahead.

Mining international waters is an act of war at least that's what Reagan told the Senate in testimony before Senator Khomeini when the Iranian leader was passed a non-binding resolution calling for an end to the use of CIA funds in the mining operation. Reagan said that as long as the resolution is non-binding, he "can live with it." But he may not be so congenial if Congress starts cutting funds for his military adventures in Central America.

House Speaker Tip O'Neill predicted that the House will reject Reagan's request for $25 million to continue aiding the anti-Sandinistas in Nicaragua and that some of the $2 million spending bill for debt incurred over the mining operation might be struck from the bill. Reagan claims that he has no intention of stopping the Nicaraguan government. In a letter to Republican Senator Leader Howard Baker, he explained that the covert action is interred "among other things" (including the Sandinistas into meaningful negotiations and constructive, verifiable agreements with their neighbors). He stated: "Our goal is to change Khomeini's thinking, to turn him toward the negotiating table and away from Vietnam. It works in Central America.

Defining the problems involved with plans for more. Some mines have already been placed in the South China Sea and in the Indian Ocean. The administration has been working closely with the Soviet Union to stop "exporting revolution" to Central America.

D.E. erred in opposing Salvador vote

A recent Daily Egyptian editorial suggested that elections in El Salvador are a meaningful cover for the Reagan administration'sbid to an "indefensible" government. This kind of thinking is not only unfair to the people of El Salvador, but it obscures the massive crimes committed by both government and private interests in our own country.

An election cannot be viewed in its historical context purely as a meaningless political or electoral victory. In achieving democratic goals, until this century, it was thought that nearly one-half of the nation's population was denied suffrage because of their gender. Can we say that in pre-1930 America the degree of freedom for political elections in El Salvador, but for political reasons would constitute a "political" situation, while elections would not be considered as part of their military credibility.

There is not the preceding stage and is a step toward El Salvador. There is a political center, which is not yet the place of the legislative or political parties. In the initial elections, central party candidates were declared nearly half the vote. Apparently, the people of El Salvador are not sufficiently free to elect a president by either the left or the right. The leftist rebels have already declared war on the military goal on their countrymen. There is a trend to join them in the fray.

New martyrs made in Central America

On their visits to Honduras and El Salvador, Carney's family learned that he became a virtual hero among the poor peasant community in 1975. He was killed and was serving as a news correspondent in El Salvador at the time. The family later visited the Sandinista government of Nicaragua.

Colman McCarthy

The Patient's desires to be on his own, his people were of such strength that he became the strongest among his people in 1975. He was called a "martyr" by his contemporaries and his brother-in-law visited one of his villager's most beloved. The family, describing it as the "memories of a man totally immersed in religion and politics, people of the poor".

For Carney, the two went together. If he was driven by a certain kind of political fervor, he was also driven by his love for the poor. He was, in a sense, a Christian. Martyrdom is the highest wage I could receive."

ON THE Washington newsletter, such questions have been posed before. The families of the four Sandinistas slain in the Central American civil war have lost loved ones. Congress and the CIA have denied it. The families have one question: Why? What is the difference between Carney's family and the other groups? The families have the answer: "How can we say that the facts so difficult to uncover?"

On the planes over Central America, with the United States sending military aid to regime that kill their own citizens, there is now a major political shift. Support is growing in the United States, and the terrible death of brave judge has suggested a shift. The family has received a letter from the mother of one of the two sandinistas, 25 priests and 26 men have been killed.

The story of Father James Carney is timely because he was killed in a peaceful manner, not by war. He was assassinated. No body has been found. The story is almost too complete. The priests' family is impatient to learn the facts. They fear the worst, that Carney was killed for official orders and not because of his personal commitment.

"Honduras is quickly becoming the militarized kind of country where serving the poor will be of less concern"

The state Department's Citizens Emergency Center, which assists families with the facts of Sandinista violence, has no firm information on Father Carney. The families say he was assassinated when he was accompanying a group of peasant rebels. Earlier, the Honduran government and the Sandinista rebels were killed in a firefight. No body has been found. The story is almost too complete. The priests' family is impatient to learn the facts. They fear the worst, that Carney was killed for official orders and not because of his personal commitment.

What must be in the minds of the Honduran poor cares for by Carney? Here was an important voice for the poor for 20 years, and now different leaders are coming in with the worst: weapons, intelligence equipment, bullets, dynamite bombs, land mines, and a foreign policy based on the premise that the Sandinista Union is the major problem in the region.

All the Hondurans will remember the memory that once they were in the streets, fighting, maybe like Jim Carney. At a memorial mass, a peasant friend recalled that he was the first priest among priests.
New course to analyze war and its alternatives

By Sarah Rohrs
Student Writer

Five SIU-C instructors who call themselves the "Gang of Five" have designed a course for the fall semester titled "War and Its Alternatives: A 20th Century Survey."

The "Gang" includes John Howie, philosophy; Lionel Bender, anthropology; David Christiansen, geography; Robert Hallissey, history; and Leland Stabler, political science.

Through interdisciplinary study, they plan to explore the causes of war and propose alternative resolutions for the conflicts that typically lead to war. Each teacher will have three weeks to approach the subject from his own academic discipline.

"We devote very little time to thinking about the issues of war and even less time thinking about alternatives," Howie said at a recent symposium on peace studies which all five instructors attended.

Howie said war is a cluster of conflicts and is a chosen way of resolving those conflicts.

"We can solve these problems as rational beings apart from organized violence," Howie said.

He said philosophy can provide a conceptual framework to think and discuss what war means, its causes and alternative resolutions.

Bender proposed studying the advantages of pre-agricultural societies, the ideas of markets, ecology, and wealth to a historical comparison with modern societies.

"It's useful to know how we got here through cultural and evolutionary processes," he said. "In turn, we should be able to determine evolutionary processes now."

Hallissey will explore six interrelated topics, including 20th century wars and the International League of Nations and United Nations that followed the world wars. Included will be a study of the Gandhian non-violent movements in relation to the American civil rights movement under Martin Luther King, Jr. Hallissey said he hopes to counteract the "pervasive fatalism" he has noticed in students when confronted with ideological conflicts and "will not propose an easy, but expose students to risks, facts and points of view to stimulate thinking." Stabler said he plans an "objective inquiry" into the Soviet-American economic and military conflict over the years. He said this is a chosen way of conflict resolution. "We should be able to determine evolutionary processes now," he said. "In turn, we should be able to determine evolutionary processes now."

New GPSC head says goals are ‘realistic and obtainable’

The president-elect of the Graduate and Professional Student Council said he hopes to increase GPSC effectiveness on committees, obtain more faculty salary, library and computer support and fight tuition and fee increases.

Sound impossible? Not to Glenn Stolar, graduate student in business, who was elected GPSC president Wednesday in an uncontested race.

Bandy, doctoral candidate in higher education, was elected vice president.

"My objectives are realistic and obtainable," Stolar said. He said he will fight tuition and fee increases at the beginning of the budgetary process, and try to work every spare hour of his term to further GPSC goals.

"I'm really excited and anxious to get to work," he said. Stolar said that he will lobby in Springfield with the Illinois Student Association April 27, and attempt to affect SIUC funding through his membership as Illinois students' representative on the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Veteran relates experiences as prisoner of Germany, Korea

By Phil Milano
Staff Writer

The only thing worse than being a prisoner of war is being a prisoner of war listed as missing in action, said Ross Blake, retired Air Force colonel and former POW.

Blake, a veteran of World War II and of the Korean and Vietnam wars, spoke in Davis Auditorium Wednesday about his POW experience. The lecture was part of POW-MIA Awareness Week at SIU-C, sponsored by the Arnold Air Society and Harper Angel Flight.

When a soldier is listed as missing in action while actually being held prisoner, his family may not hear of his plight or may take little action to discover what has happened to him, Blake said.

After flying 23 missions in World War II, Blake was captured in 1945 by the Germans and spent three years in Stalag Luft 3, a prison camp in Poland made famous by the movie "The Great Escape." He was also captured in Korea in 1951 and spent five years in the Chosen prison camp there.

"I did what I could do to survive," Blake said, adding he would take 100 days of combat over serving time in a prison camp.

Figuring out ways to make the time pass in confinement was a challenge. Blake said, "It was crucial to survival, especially in solitary confinement, was thinking of the past, home and anything that would keep your mind active."

"It was good to be in a cell next to some one who knew a foreign language, because then you could teach you, and you could learn something while in prison," he said.

He said sightings in recent years indicated there were U.S. soldiers from the Vietnam War still alive and being held captive in Indochina. About 2,500 U.S. soldiers and citizens are still unaccounted for, Blake said, and "the communists deny they have them and refuse to give out any information."

Blake appealed to the audience of about 40 to write Congress to "provide action on the POWs' behalf, and to sign petitions to be sent to the government of Hanoi asking for information about the missing Americans.

The governments in Southeast Asia, according to Blake, release remains occasionally, but only when it is politically advantageous.

Blake, a resident of O'Fallon and retired since 1974, said stress affects POWs during and after their imprisonment. During confinement, prisoners must deal on a daily basis with hunger, disease, cold and beatings, he said.

Psychologically, they experience brainwashing techniques, a lost sense of time, chronic anger, a feeling of helplessness and little news from the outside world.

Those conditions may pose long-term emotional problems, he said.

Workshop teaches creativity to kids

By Brian Hall
Student Writer

Children need to be taught how to think creatively to solve problems, says Lynn Stevenson, who was a workshop in creative drama for 9-12-year-olds.

"One problem in education today is an overemphasis on 'rote learning,'" Stevenson said. "That is, simple memorization. She said that the new service, 4-111-111, will be installed throughout the southern division.

"I'm using theater skills as tools to get the kids to think creatively on their feet," she said.

About 30 children attended the workshop. The children attending the workshops were asked to read the book "Punchbowl Wars," by Jean Merrill. For a hour-and-a-half three days a week, they worked on improvising a dramatic sketch based on the story line of the book. Stevenson said she feels that theater skills are valuable on the instruments in teaching problem solving.

Detroit journalist, music critic gives students encouragement

By Terry Levecosk
Staff Writer

Jim McFarlin, popular music critic, radio columnist and music—feature writer for The Detroit News, encouraged students to pursue careers in journalism during his visit to the Sch.A of Journalism Wednesday and Thursday.

The visit was arranged by the American Newspaper Editors as part of the Minority Professors in Journalism project, and was also a part of Journalism Week activities.

"I like to give students the idea that yes, I work in newspapers, I enjoy what I'm doing and that you can get jobs—It's not easy, but you can get jobs," the 30-year-old journalist said.

Before joining the News, McFarlin wrote for The Flint Journal, where his first assignment was to investigate the illegal numbers racket there.

"My first day on the job I came in and my editor called me into his office and said 'Jim, we've got this hot story we've been sitting on for months and we want the right person to do it and that person's you,'" McFarlin said.

The paper needed a reporter to do it because of the neighborhood involved in the scam, he said. He spent the next month wandering the streets, making contacts.

"I was scared," he said about the assignment. You may or may not know who you are," McFarlin said.

But as it turned out, the cops already knew about the numbers racket and he was able to compile a third story series without so much as a scratch. His work on the piece earned him a nomination for a United Press International award.

McFarlin's other experience includes five years with The Grand Rapids Press and working as a disc jockey in Michigan markets.

His job as a music critic for The News involves about 60 concert reviews a year, a weekly pop music column, a feature column on Detroit radio and regular record reviews.

"I got involved in entertainment or less by accident," McFarlin said.

"When you're working on a small daily you get the opportunity to do just about everything. When so one else wanted to do the concerts that came to town, I did," he said.

Maintaining an interest in the music business was all he needed to ultimately get hired as a music critic for The Detroit News, he said.

McFarlin said he accepts invitations to speak at schools any time he can work his schedule around it.

"A lot of schools have teachers that haven't been on the inside of a newspaper for 12 years. I like to act as an ambassador to the newspaper business and promote it as much as I can," McFarlin said.

"Right now we're in a newspaper war in Detroit. There are two papers with about equal circulation, and you never know when or if one of them is going to fold. I like my job and to prove pride in my paper, so I don't want the News to be the one to go. I feel that promoting the business as much as I can will help."

HOUSTON (AP) — Your chances of being the victim of violent crime increase as the temperature increases, a Rice University researcher says.

"People — just because they're hot — just don't go out and kill somebody. There's typically a lag time," says Craig A. Anderson, an assistant professor of psychology. "But given everything else is right, a hot temperature is going to increase the possibility."

Anderson's findings, based on studies in Houston from 1980-82, were published recently in the "Journal of Personality and Social Psychology."

His statistics show the number of murders and rapes reported on hot days in Houston were 24 percent greater than on cold days. The Houston results were similar to findings gathered in a similar study of aggressive crime he did in the summer of 1977 in Chicago.

"The data isn't clean enough to allow a specific prediction," Anderson said. "But if you plot it on a graph, the shape is fairly consistent. Highly aggressive crimes tend to increase as temperatures increase."

Anderson cautions, however, that the effect is "fairly small, relative to other causes of aggression."

Anderson, who moved to Houston from Indiana four years ago, said his research about crime is "something I do because I find it fun."

His main research area is what's known as attribution theory — a branch of social psychology that deals with how people explain events and how the explanation influences their behavior.

Anderson said that crime study is important to a psychologist because it relates to a theory about the relationship between negative affect — more commonly known as bad mood — and aggressive tendencies.

"There are a lot of different variables that one can manipulate," he said. "Temperature is one of these variables. And temperature influences tendencies."

Anderson speculates that uncomfortable cold could have the same effect as uncomfortable heat. "The reasoning, would be somewhat the same," he said, although he is aware of no studies in that area.

As a practical matter, he is not suggesting that people avoid going outside when the weather is hot. Instead, his advice to would-be victims is to avoid dangerous situations.

"For people who don't want to be shot at, don't do things to antagonize," Anderson said.

County group combats an ‘abortion mentality’

By Jay Schmitz
Student Writer

The purpose of the Jackson County Right to Life group is to educate and make people aware of the ‘evils of abortion’, according to the group’s president, Mrs. Nowacki.

Rose Marie Nowacki is the president of the year-old organization, and her husband, Ray, a professor in the Engineering Department at SIU-C, is the treasurer.

Mrs. Nowacki said her husband were among the original members of the local organization.

“We were interested in forming a local group,” said Mrs. Nowacki, “and as we took the initial steps, we found that there are quite a few more people interested in organizing, too.”

Mrs. Nowacki said that she feels the majority of the people in the Jackson County area are against abortion. However, many of these people have not connected with their underlying beliefs because of an “abortion mentality” created by contraceptive beliefs.

She said that the group will not campaign for abortion. “I am opposed to contraception,” she said. “It leads to a disregard for sex as creation of a life, which leads to an abortion mentality.”

The group, composed of people who believe a person kills a child before conception, the person has a tendency to regard abortion in the same light.

In an effort to publicize the group, Jackson County Right to Life sponsored a float in the Murphysboro Apple Day parade last fall, titled “Holocaust ‘83.” It featured two large posters with a picture of a belly on her back. Beneath was a banner reading, “Kill her now, it’s death,” Kill her before she’s born, it’s abortion.”

Mrs. Nowacki said the float received applause several times along the parade route. Mrs. Nowacki said support for the group’s position may not be throughout the County, Liberal areas, including the SIU-C campus, may be not as supportive. She said that other than her husband, there are no SIU faculty or students in the membership of the group, which stands at about 40.

Mrs. Nowacki said her group is not political in function, although the major goal of the group is political.

“The goal of our organization, and of the Illinois and national organizations, is a ‘human life amendment’ to the Constitution,” Mrs. Nowacki said. This amendment would state that human life is recognized from the moment of conception, she said.

To achieve this goal, some political activity is necessary, Mrs. Nowacki said. However, the group does not campaign for individual candidates. The group is trying to identity registered voters who are pro-life in sentiment. Once identified, the group will send these people information informing them of pro-life political candidates.

Though the group will not campaign for or against any particular states, this does not prevent individual members from campaigning. Mrs. Nowacki and her husband were among 15 to 25 people who picketed Paul Simon’s fund-raising dinner at the Student Center recently.

“Paul Simon claims to be against abortion, but he consistently votes for abortion funding,” Mrs. Nowacki said.

To educate the people, the Right to Life group has literature, films, and a slide presentation available to anyone who will have them. Mrs. Nowacki said. The film, “Assignment: Life,” is a political portrayal of abortion, with a strong antiabortion message, Mrs. Nowacki said. The activities of the Right to Life organization.

The group also sells Right to Life Christmas cards, which are "symbolic of the sanctity of life." Mrs. Nowacki said, On Mother's Day, the group sells "Right to Life Roses." Other funds are provided by nominal donations by the members, $2 for in-service training, and $75 for field work.

Mrs. Nowacki said the side project has been seen by such organizations as the Lion's Club in Murphysboro and a group similar to the PTA called "High School and Student" at St. Andrew's.

Mrs. Nowacki said the group will continue its voter identification program in 1984, and they hope to kick off a membership drive as well. Mrs. Nowacki said that all the Right to Life activity and Catholic church services had one major basis in common.

"The reason that I and my husband are against abortion, and why the Catholic church is against abortion, is simply because such things are contrary to the natural process," she said. "They go against the natural order of things."
‘Civilization’ appears to be contagious in South America

By Charles J. Haasley of The Associated Press

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) – Democracy has a new Latin beat, one echoing up and down a continent.

You can hear it in the clangor of pots and pans in Chile, in the same drums of young Brazilian marchers, in the chants of election crowds in Argentina and demonstrators in Uruguay.

Where only two elected governments existed five years ago, a half-dozen now debate and decide their nations’ future in the open light of parliaments and the press. And pressure is mounting on four remaining military governments to hasten their withdrawal to the barracks.

“Civilization” is contagious. Last October’s elections in Argentina inspired democrats in nearby Uruguay and Chile. And those movements now encourage others, even raucous fascist hopes in Paraguay, inbred domain of strongman Gen. Alfredo Stroessner.

“We have to unite all the opposition around a single, peaceful action plan, just as the Chileans are doing now,” Paraguayan opposition leader Juan Manuel Benitez Florentin told a reporter visiting Asuncion.

SOUTH AMERICA’S new democracies may operate in the shadow of a military that reserves a “right” to intervene again. But South American politicians, academics and others may growing public awareness, international condemnation of military repression, and the armed forces’ own weariness of greater power. Such society’s ill may slow the historic cycle of military coups.

The most bitter showdown is here in Chile, the beautiful land of 11 million people strung grappling with society’s ills here may be the most immoveable.

The Chile story shows the forces at work as South America transforms itself. A protest movement to topple the authoritarian president sprang to life a year ago in the dusty slums and on the stately boulevards of this 19th-century capital. Developments in 1984 may determine whether the Marxist left or capitalist center leads the opposition, and whether strikes and demonstrations can force the army to abandon the general.

THE BATTLE lines are clearly drawn.

“We will never have a dialogue with Pinochet,” Gabriel Valdes, leader of the center Democratic Alliance coalition, said in a recent interview.

Alonso Marquez de la Plata, government secretary general, said the regime is willing to discuss changes in Pinochet’s long-established plan for a slow return to democracy.

“But the opposition says, ‘We are the only ones who have the truth, everything we say is right.’” Marquez de la Plata said. “This is the antibiotic of dialogue.”

Not all the opposition is free to protest or make dialogue, however.

From his 17th floor office suite, Marquez de la Plata can see the grubby city prison where one key anti-Pinochet figure – Marxist opposition leader Manuel Almeyda – has been jailed since Feb. 15 for calling publicly for Pinochet’s ouster.

THE 48-YEAR-OLD president mixes repression with concession as he maneuver to maintain the power the Chilean military seized in a bloody coup Sept. 11, 1973, when they brought down the elected government of President Salvador Allende, a Marxist who was pulling Chile sharply leftward.

Skin cancer may return after removal

By Brenda C. Coleman
The Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP) — Doctors are warning of a possible increase in the number of patients who develop malignancies more than 10 years after they presumably have been cured of a certain type of skin cancer.

Malignant melanoma — the most serious type of skin cancer, starting in pigment cells and tending to spread — may be appearing more often in "cured" patients because its general incidence is on the rise, say doctors at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

In one case described, a 24-year-old woman who had a superficial skin cancer removed from her upper arm in 1963 developed a malignancy 18 years later in a lymph node under the arm.

In the second case cited, a 41-year-old woman who had a skin tumor removed from the back of her right calf developed a malignancy 14 years later in her right groin, the doctors reported in Friday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Soviet journal calls for use of video

By Andrew Roseenthal
Of the Associated Press

MOSCOW (AP) — Complaining there has been too much "chit-chat" about the evils of Western video, the Soviet Union's leading cultural publication says it's high time for the legislators of Leninism to join the video revolution.

"Video equipment opens up fantastic opportunities," said the newspaper Literary Gazette on Thursday, chiding officials for being too slow in realizing the importance and usefulness of the medium.

Changes made at Obelisk II

By Renee Rybarkczyk
Student Writer

Spring semester has brought some changes to the Obelisk II yearbook staff.

A new general manager, two new staff heads and the addition of a marketing department are the changes.

Steve Warnels, 25, was hired as the new general manager when Christ Cordogan, the all general manager, graduated in December.

"Financially speaking, we are seeing some growth in sales. Not nearly as much as a horticulturist, and a research assistant making radio production," said Warnels, 25-year-old senior majoring in marketing, is directing the marketing department, new this semester.

"I became involved with the Obelisk II because I felt I could gain first-hand experience in the field of marketing and could apply theories learned in class," Warnels said.

Todd Archer, 20, of Naperville, was promoted this semester to promotions director when Maureen Fey graduated. Archer is a sophomore accounting major who promotes the Obelisk II through various activities and functions.

"I'd like to see the Obelisk II hit and go beyond the goal of selling our quota of yearbooks by May. As of March 25 we have sold 1,500. Not bad but not as much as we would like," Archer said.

Athena Cordogan, 21, of Chicago, said she became involved with the Obelisk II because her brother, Christ, was involved with the Obelisk II when she came to SIU-C.

"I knew I had time to contribute, as opposed to help," Cordogan said. She also recently took the position of assistant director of General Operations for the remainder of this semester and the fall semester of 1984.

Carbondale police to fingerprint kids

Carbondale police will be fingerprinting children age 6 and under Saturday and Sunday as part of their Ident-a-Kid program.

Parents may bring their children to the Carbondale Police Department from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday or from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday.

"The program provides parents upon request the opportunity of identifying their children," said Carbondale police spokeswoman Tomi MacNamara.

"If their child should turn up missing, the fingerprints can be distributed nationally, and a positive identification made if their child is found," MacNamara said.

"Fingerprints don't change," MacNamara said, "but a child's appearance changes with age." MacNamara said the Ident-a-Kid program was started by the Carbondale police last spring. At that time, she said, police fingerprinted about 400 children.

Four to receive Morris fellowship awards

Two SIU graduate students, a horticulturist, and a research assistant from Greece will be awarded to Dorothy Morris Fellowship at 6 p.m. Friday during Founder's Day ceremonies.

Maria (Charles) Victor and Promotional Chemistry senior Victor Kefler of Carbondale will pursue a doctoral degree in geography.

John H. Karabetsos of Kalamata, Greece, is a research assistant in agronomy and will pursue a doctoral degree in botany.

Both students are members of the Obelisk II staff.

After one weekend of Gateway Conference play, the SIU-C softball team may already be looking forward to "the second season" — the Gateway Conference tournament.

With a 1-3 record and a difficult road trip up next, the Salukis may already be on the hunt for the regular season Gateway title.

"We’re going to take every game on this weekend very seriously and prepare for the conference championship," said Brechtelsbauer.

The Salukis may already have an idea who they will be playing against Saturday at the Blue Course in Staff alreadv Gatew::y Conference.

Lady Illinois, so we’re "the second Kentucky teams — but we’re going to take every game on this weekend very seriously and prepare for the conference championship," said Brechtelsbauer.

The men will play in the Charlie Costello Memorial tournament hosted by Murray State.

The women will play in the Illinois Invitational Friday and Purdue.

"I think we should finish in the top three without any question," McGirr said.

The Salukis play a doubleheader against Bradley on Friday and another one against Western Illinois on Saturday.

Bradley is 3-1 in the conference and leads the league in batting. Western Illinois is .23 and leads the league in pitching.

SIU-C, 4-19, lost in the league in batting with an average of .166. Brechtelsbauer said she was encouraged that the Salukis were hitting the ball harder the last time they played.

"They were hard-hit outs," she said. "We had some breaks last year that we haven’t had," McGirr said. "as well as it had last season, when it was 12-5 at this point. Brechtelsbauer said her line-up will most likely remain the same, except at second base.

State and Scott Briggs and John Schaefer performed well two weeks ago in a tournament at Illinois, so we’re looking OK," McGirr said.

In women’s competition, McGirr said the two favorites at the Illini Invitational are defending champion Illinois State and Michigan State.

It will be a busy weekend for the SIU-C men’s and women’s golf teams.

The men will play in the Charlie Costello Memorial Intercollegiate on Friday, a 14-team tournament hosted by Murray State.

The women will play in the Illinois Invitational at the Blue Course in Savoy. They will travel to the Lady Salukis Spring Classic and compete Saturday and Sunday at Murray State.

SIU-C Coach Mary Beth McGirr said the men have a shot at winning the 34-hole tournament at Murray State, but they will be challenged by four Kentucky teams — Western Kentucky, Eastern Kentucky, Morehead State and Murray State.

"Jay Sala and Tom Jones led our team last fall at Murray State. They have been key players this season. The Salukis may already have an idea who they will be playing against Saturday at the Blue Course in Staff alreadv Gatew::y Conference.

second-highest vault this season, a 14.8. Only Sayre's 18-foot vault is better.

Hartzig expressed disappointment that Geiger has been unable to reach the 12-foot mark in the vault this season, but added that he should be able to with a little work on his technique.

Hartzig said eight SIU-C athletes will be attempting to qualify for the NCAA championship meet.

"We're obviously trying to qualify several people," Hartzig said. The euphoria he wants to qualify are Elvis Jorde and Mike Franks in the 400-meter dash. Parry Duncan and Sam New in the intermediate hurdles. Edison Wedderburn in the 5000, Chris Bunyan in the 10,000, and John and Tom Smith in the hammer throw.

"These are the ones I feel have a shot at qualifying," Hartzig said. "The competition will be there. There's no question about that."

The Salukis are entered in 17 events at the Relays, which begin Friday and conclude on Saturday. The Salukis will need to qualify Friday in two relay events, the 4x100 and the 4x200, to participate in the finals Saturday.

One change will be made in the relay team. Mark Hill will run instead of Tony Adams, who is recovering from a groin injury. Hill will run with the other regulars. Duncan, Franks and Franks.

Franks and Forde will be missing from the Salukis' record-setting 4x400 relay team.
Primavera race

Price to compete on track team

By Steve Kados
Staff Writer

Many people thought the Connie Price era ended March 7 at Davies Gymnasium. That night Price capped her brilliant four-year SIU-C basketball career.

But the Price era hasn't officially ended yet at SIU-C. Price, the Salukis' fourth all-time leading scorer, will graduate in her track jersey for a pair of track shoes last week. She will race her final leg of a pulled hamstring and DeNoon is unsure when she will be back.

While DeNoon gained the services of Price, he will be without spinner Denise Blackman for the second consecutive week. Blackman is injured with a pulled hamstring and DeNoon is unsure when she will be back.

Even without Blackman, the Salukis are favored to capture the Dog and Cat Fight because they are seeded No. 1 in 10 of 17 events. Eastern Illinois is top-seeded in five events, and Chicago State in two. SIU-C isn't seeded first in an event.

“On paper it looks like we're the strongest team,” DeNoon said. “We're primarily an outdoor team compared to the indoors because we're strong in the field events.

The Salukis are seeded first in four of the six field events. Rhonda McCauliffe in the long jump, discus and javelin, Sydney Edwards in the triple jump, and the Salukis are seeded fourth in the shot put and the discus.

SIU-C's top seeds in the running events are Kathryn Dooling in the 1500- and 3000-meter runs. Lisa Hirs in the 5000, Sally Zack in the 10000, Debra Davis in the 400, and Karen Cooper in the 400 hurdles.

DeNoon said the Salukis should be able to compete in the next two meets. In the 400, Davis will probably be challenged by Gill Stephens of Eastern Illinois and Denise Bullocks of Chicago State.
Buckner, Green continue battling

What's the beginning of a new baseball season without a little controversy on the Chicago Cubs' "new and improved" 1984 team? Even before the Cubs started piling up the losses, General Manager Dallas Green and former starting first baseman Bill Buckner were already, at odds.

Cubs fans have grown accustomed to seeing Buckner's name in the Stlneagle during his eight-year career with the Cubs. Whether it be reading about his extraordinary hitting, contract renegotiations or his name in trade rumors, he has made the headlines. He's been described as outstanding, arrogant, selfish and jealous among other things.

BUCNER'S CAREER in Chicago has been a success so far, yet stormy one. After coming to the Cubs in a December 1977 trade with the Los Angeles Dodgers, he found himself as the Cubs' best player before he even put on the pinstripes. He quickly became the fans' favorite and the heart-throb of all the women fans.

But since then, the Cubs have come up with some more players of Buckner's quality, through trades and the minor leagues. Over the last few years, players such as Leon Durham, Keith Moreland, Lee Smith, Jody Davis, Fonz Cuy and Ryne Sandberg have placed their names into the spotlight. Recent acquisitions Bob Deren and Gary Matthews add to that list.

BUCKNER'S BAD news came in 1981 when the Cubs hired Green, the former Philadelphia manager, to be their general manager — the man in charge of putting the players on the field and paying their salaries.

Green and Buckner have had an inconsistent relationship. One day it seems they are the best of friends, the next day they don't talk to another. The Chicago newspapers never leave the fans uninformed of the Green-Buckner status.

Buckner has had a rocky relationship with his teammates and field managers too. In 1979 when Dave Kingman was busy depositing 48 homers into the bleachers and through windows on Waveland Avenue in back of Wrigley Field, then-Chicago manager Herm Frank accused Buckner of being jealous of Kingman's hitting.

LAST SEASON in San Diego, Buckner and former manager Larry Elia got into a scuffle in the Cubs' dugout. Controversy started up again at the winter meetings.

The Cubs went into the winter meetings determined to get some pitching, and it appeared Buckner would be the bait. But when the Cubs got Scott Sanderson from the Montreal Expos, Buckner was still a Cub. At least it seemed to be going to be difficult to trade him, too. It was possible he probably would stay in Chicago.

Then, about a month ago, Green came within an eyelash of trading Buckner to the San Francisco Giants. After the trade fell through, Green told Buckner the same thing — that he would be a Cub.

Once again, on March 28, Green told Buckner that he had traded him. This time it was to San Diego. Buckner went to the city the next day to pack his equipment and move his belongings. In the starling lineup at first Saturday, the Cubs' front office figured the trade was final. Then Green told Buckner the trade was off. Instead, the Cubs had acquired veteran lefthanders Deren and Matthews, plus a pitcher, Porti Altamirano for Bill Campbell and Mike Diaz. That left Buckner, a 256 lifetime hitter, on the bench. Green said Buckner was the one who killed that deal.

Reports from the Phillips' camp in Clearwater, Fla., said Buckner asked for a four-year contract extension and a $400,000 bonus. Buckner said "yes" to "anything" and would probably have approved the trade if the Phillips extended his contract one year. His current contact with the Cubs has three years remaining.

For a guy who has contributed much to the Cubs, including a batting title and two Cy Young Awards, is being handled too tactfully by Green. Sure, maybe Buckner is worth $400,000 a year, but that does not mean the Cubs fans should be told about it by him.
