Democrats hit administration plan for more federally funded grants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration's plan to give more generously funded Pell grants to low-income college students at the expense of middle-class students came under fire Thursday from Democrats. At his first congressional appearance since his confirmation, Education Secretary Lamar Alexander presented his proposed

Higher Education Act reauthorization plan, which distributes Pell grants and federal student loans and establishes other programs.

Alexander proposed no increase or decrease in the pot of money for Pell grants — $6 billion a year — but would increase the maximum grant from $2,400 to $3,700 and target them to low-income people.

He conceded that, as a consequence, about 400,000 fewer people, especially middle-income students, would receive Pell grants.

"We need larger Pell grants for more students, not larger grants for fewer students," said the grants spokesman, Sen. Calabrese Pell, D.R.I., chairman of the Senate Labor, Education and Humane Rights Committee.

Tuition raised for next year

By Natalie Boehme and Amy Cooper Staff Writers

The cost of getting an education at SIU just went up, as the SIU Board of Trustees approved a 5 percent tuition increase Thursday.

The increase was part of Gov. Jim Edgar's proposed budget, approved by the Illinois Board of Higher Education April 2.

The hike will raise tuition $78 for the 1991-92 academic year, making tuition $1,638. Effective summer 1991, tuition will raise to $409.50 for a six-hour summer load.

With the 5 percent increase, SIUC medical students will pay $7,491, an increase of $357, for a three-year academic year.

Because tuition for School of Law students is based on a multi-year increase plan approved in June 1989, additional increases were recommended.

SIU Chancellor Lawrence K. Penti said education was focused not to have to raise tuition even higher.

Jim Edgar was supportive of higher education in his budget by recommending to maintain the same level of funding, but the University must continue lobbying for legislature for higher education's needs.

"The game for us this time is to hold onto what the governor has recommended," he said.

Gus Bode, a professional Student Council President Charles Ramsey said the board's approval of the tuition increase was an example of "majestic but

Joseph was relieved by junior Ryan A. Williams, who drew 17-13 innings of hitless baseball. McWilliams (3-1) got the win, when he held the Vikes to only one run and kicked a grounded ball and then threw a walk to base first. Van Gilder dominated the bases and walked the bases loaded, before getting Scott Thomas to ground to third.

Seno starter John Jarvis (5-4) gave up four runs in relief, working 72/3 innings. He allowed just 1 earned run on right hits. The Dawgs jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the second inning. Janke singled and stole second. He later scored on a RBI single to center by Cywser.

"He's (Cywser) a good hitter," Riggleman said. "But we're seeing out of him right now because he just has a great opportunity to play every day and every game. His enthusiasm at-bat his confidence goes up. We feel very good about his performance right now."

Endebrock and Janke also put some punch in the Saluki line-up with two-for-three days. Senior designated hitter Bob Geyer went one for two at the plate and Shelton was one for three.

The Salukis had a hit in a row for SIUC after the team went on an eight-game skid.

"I think we've gotten on a roll, winning a few ballgames," Shelton said. "But we've got a long way to go. We've lost too many in a row to think that three wins are going to put us back on top. We've got to start playing well from the first inning on and if we do that we can become a threat.

The Salukis travel to Omaha, Neb., this weekend to battle nationally ranked Creighton in a four-game series. SIUC hopes to improve on its last-place 1-7 record in the Missouri Valley Conference.

"I think our concern right now is what kind of play are we going to have," Riggleman said. "The Valley race is not even on my mind. It's important that we continue to do what we need to do and not worry about what doesn't concern us." The Salukis and the Bluejays will play two doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday. Game time is set for 1 p.m. both days.

"We have a good club," Riggleman said. "We've got a lot of talent. We've had some injuries we've had to play through and we're not going to play people that aren't going to have to deal with us before the season ever starts."

Following the series with Creighton, SIUC comes home for single games with Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and Arkansas State.

"My ambition for this year was to make it to the NCAA," Siracusano said. "I just wanted to make it there and have fun. I wasn't sure what to expect. I didn't expect to.

"Now I want to take this as a learning experience. However I do it will be going on ice this year. I'm just looking to have fun and drive my best."

Diving against the best competition in the world is something Siracusano plans on doing regularly. His goal is to make the U.S. Olympic team and win a gold medal. But for now he's a little nervous about the competition.

"It's going to be scary because it's the best competition in the world," Siracusano said. "I don't think I'm ready to be among the best, but it will be fun competing against them."

Siracusano was All-American his junior and senior seasons at S.H. Calhoun High School and was New York State Champion his senior year.

"With some fortune to go," Ardrey said. "I met him in 1988 at an Olympic training camp. We hit it off and the next two years he spent in touch with us and the school."

"He pretty much made the decision three months into his senior year that this is where he would do the most productive and serve his academic and athletic talents the best."

Ardrey said Siracusano has already made the next turn for the SIUC diving program. Laine Owen made the switch with Illinois University

The No. 6 team in the poll, University of Iowa (29-6), recently swept Illinois and Indiana but the Salukis are seeing him right now. "We are seeing out of him right now because he just has a great opportunity to have a good club." Siracusano said. The Salukis are first in the Gateway Conference in hitting (.330), fielding (.959) and staff ERA (3.00).

The NCAA must not read through the national statistics before making its decision, but this may just be a slight overlook on their part and the Salukis should not heed it. What does SIUC need to achieve in order to gain the respect of the nation?

The next NCAA Softball Poll comes out in two weeks. Maybe then the softball team will gain the recognition it deserves.

Russian workers halt strike, government agrees to talk

MOSCOW (UPI) — Workers in Minsk called off a strike Thursday after the Byelorussian government agreed to hold talks on their protest of nationwide price increases and Communist Party control of the republic. Meanwhile the Minsk city strike committee told some of its followers gathered for the second day on the capital's Lenin Square to return to their jobs, saying they had signed a preliminary accord with both the Byelorussian Parliament and the local government, the official news agency Tas reported.

Forest Service to stop selling timber at loss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Forest Service, criticized for years for selling timber at a loss, disclosed a plan Thursday that would block sales that not only lose money but also are not offset by other forest users. In addition, the agency said it would try to pare the costs of operating the sales program, improving the chances for turning a profit. Officials announced the proposal at the beginning of a Senate Commerce hearing on below-cost timber sales. The hearing was filled with complaints that Forest Service accounting was faulty.

Atlantis touches down safely in California

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — The Atlantis astronauts glided home to a day late landing Thursday, leaving a revolutionary astronomy satellite behind in space and ringing out the shuttle program's first decade with an "eminently successful" flight. Dropping out of a Mojave Desert dawn, Atlantis skipper Steven Nagel and co-pilot Kenneth Cameron guided the 100-ton orbiter to a flawless touchdown at 8:35 a.m. to wrap up the 30th mission since the shuttle Columbia blazed off on the program's maiden voyage 10 years ago.

More than 100 feared dead in ferry collision

LEHORN, Ill. (UPI) — A ferry carrying 141 people crashed into an anchored oil tanker in the fog-bound Mediterranean late Thursday, apparently killing all but the cabin boy and sending oil into the sea, officials said Thursday. The Moby Prince, carrying 74 passengers and 66 crew members, rammed the Agip Abruzzo about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday about 2 1/2 miles from Lehorn in northeastern Italy, piercing the oil tanker's hull. Dense fog shrouded that part of the sea at the time. Part of the tanker's cargo of oil gushed into the Mediterranean.

Burris joins effort to create juries to stop drug trafficking

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Newly-elected Illinois Attorney General Roland Burris joined a 20-year effort Thursday to approve a state law creating statewide grand juries to investigate drug trafficking. Burris testified on behalf of a bill (H316) that would allow the attorney general to convene the juries with the consent of county state's attorneys. The measure sponsored by Rep. Tom Homer, D-Carbondale, cleared the House Judiciary I Committee by an 8-1 vote and advanced to the full House. Burris told the committee the law would give local prosecutors and police access to more resources to track wide-ranging drug operations.

Edgar considers borrowing to pay state's bills

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Gov. Jim Edgar Thursday said he will consider borrowing more funds in state government to put more money into Illinois' main checkbook account and pay outstanding bills. After the governor met for about 45 minutes with leading lawmakers in the State Capitol, he said short-term fund transfers and budget cuts might be necessary in the next few months to bolster the extremely low balance in the general revenue fund. "We're going to know very soon whether the money's going to come from and how we're going to pay it back."

STUDENT ELECTIONS

Three running for student trustee

Independent candidate wants to act as liaison

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

The student trustee should be a direct liaison between students and the Board of Trustees, said Darrell Wheeler, independent student trustee candidate. Wheeler said the trustee should speak for what the students want, because an individual making decisions for others without their input is a dictator.

"How can you make a fair decision for thousands without consulting them?" he asked.

Wheeler said if elected, he would hold regular office hours when students could reach him to raise questions.

He said he also would talk to students in residence halls, in the Student Center, on their way to class and at other times when they could comfortably discuss issues.

"I see the student trustee as someone who has to do some forework. You can't represent people if you wait for them to come to you," he said.

Wheeler, a junior in physical education, has served as Black Affairs Council assistant coordinator, the BAC representative to President's Council and as student representative to the Affirmative Action Advisory Committee.

He said he is a fast learner, and does not feel his lack of experience with student government will be a major factor in the election.

As trustee, Wheeler said he would work to improve the retention of students at SIUC.

The orientation program during the first week of school for freshmen and transfer students is a good idea, he said. But if it were expanded into the school year students might adjust better to the University instead of dropping out.

Incumbent hoping to keep voicing students' concerns

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

Continuing to voice students' concerns to the administration is the chief concern of incumbent Bill Hall, Reform Party candidate for student trustee.

Hall said students have a financial interest in SIUC and take part in the administrative decision-making process through the student trustee.

"The Board of Trustees owns, in title, the University. As student trustee I am part-owner," he said.

Hall said he learned while serving in Vietnam the people making decisions aren't being responsible if they don't listen to the team of people directly affected by their decisions.

Hall, an unclassified graduate student, has served as student trustee since fall 1989 and as Undergraduate Student Government President from 1988 to 1989. He has served on the Financial Aid Advisory Committee from 1986 to 1989 and on the board of directors of the Students' Legal Assistance Office from 1987 to 1990.

Hall said students have elected him into office three times because they know he represents their interests and has the experience to properly voice their concerns.

"Students have confidence in my judgement when it must be quick, and confidence in my deference when it takes time to make a decision," he said.

The time has come for public universities in Illinois to level off tuition rates, Hall said, noting that he plans to request the state government legislate a cap for tuition.

"Tuition has reached a level beyond which the access to education will be threatened," he said.

It is difficult to resist the pressures exerted by the administration, Hall said, and he respects people who do.

Challenger to better flow of information on issues

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

Improving the flow of information from the administration to students is the primary goal of Richard Fasano, Student Party candidate for student trustee.

Fasano said the student trustee represents student interests to the Board of Trustees.

If elected, he said he would work hard to report back to students what is going on in board meetings.

To do this, Fasano said he would consider sending letters regularly to the editor at the Daily Egyptian and use other news agencies to let students know what goes on at board of trustees meetings.

Students must be informed of administrative decisions regularly so they have a chance to consider and respond to them, and Fasano said he would work to make sure students receive clear, unbiased information from him.

Fasano said he also would establish office hours where students could go to the student trustee office, located in the barracks between Fauer Hall and Morris Library, and talk with him.

Fasano, a graduate student in health education, is a Graduate and Professional Student Council representative from health education and chairman of Presidents Council.

He served as an Undergraduate Student Government senator for the College of Education.

The student trustee should attend USG and GPSC meetings as a listener to learn students' concerns, but should not manipulate or try to run student government, he said.

The trustee also should have enough knowledge and experience with the University that he can direct students to where they need to go to get help.

LL.M. Degree in Banking Law Studies

A unique graduate program offering multi-disciplinary courses of study in American Banking Law Studies and International Banking Law Studies.

Taught by faculty of the Boston University School of Law, eminent banking law attorneys and management experts, these innovative programs provide an exceptional blend of intellectual and practical education at one of the nation's best law schools. Covering the full range of advanced banking law subjects, the curriculum also includes courses specially developed to introduce lawyers to the economic and managerial aspects of the U.S. and international financial services industries.

These comprehensive LLM programs offer unparalleled educational opportunities for lawyers who wish to practice in these dynamic areas of specialization.

Applications are now being accepted for full- or part-time enrollment in September 1991.

An equal opportunity, affirmative action institution
Top students bring honor to University

SIUC ROLLED OUT the red carpet Sunday to honor students who have made outstanding grades.

About 1,300 students were honored for maintaining at least a 3.5 gpa for all college work. That means that students have kept average marks to a minimum and hard work to a maximum.

Approximately 700 senior level students were included in the academically elite category. What means is that the students have completed at least 86 semester hours of college work without falling below a 3.5 overall gpa.

IN ADDITION TO PUBLIC recognition for their academic excellence, many students received financial rewards for their accomplishments.

More than $64,000 in scholarships went to top academic performers this past year.

A 3.5 gpa is a tough standard to meet. Obviously, there are some tough students at SIUC.

At a forum for Halloween protests and excessive partying, honor students are showing that SIUC is a college well worth serious time and attention.

Just say no to Wilder plan

The Daily Mill
University of Illinois

Under the guise of being a multihit for forming "a more perfect union," Virginia Gov. Douglas Wilder has made the biggest faux pas of his political career by establishing a group to study ways of ending campus crime. This included a directive mandating drug-testing of all college students.

Aside from being utterly convoluted, this proposal, which would effect students at the state-wide level, is not even plain unconstitutionality. It follows the assumption that a person is guilty until proven innocent, which is presumably against the "Trainers' intent.

Illinois American Civil Liberties Union legislative director Rob Schofield says of this idea as that way to counter that he's a liberal black Democrat. It's clearly unconstitutionality!" What is clear are Wilder's political aspirations, and his quest to take "political correctness," an opinion he already dropped hints that he plans on running for president in 1992 and often proposed a conservative stance on national issues.

Still, Wilder claims the proposal will give Virginia the opportunity to provide a model for the rest of the nation. He says the task force will send "a clear message" that Virginia's college campuses are safe, no-nonsense bastions of higher-learning—with no drug users allowed.

There is very little correlation between violent crime on most college campuses and drug abuse. Even drug abuse he himself thinks the proposal is dumb.

Wife and death tapping the list of most campus crimes, it is ludicrous to believe that drug use is causing crime at our nation's colleges and universities.

For all its flaws, the proposal is ambitious and probably well-meaning, but its priorities are misfocused. Alcohol, which is a factor in drug abused extensively on college campuses, should be targeted.

Additionally, education and prevention about the ill uses of drug should be Wilder's aim, if he truly wants to be a pioneer in higher education.

Because these institutions are supposed to foster a higher level of intelligence and a quest for information and education. Wilder should abandon this pie-in-the-sky, politically motivated idea, and focus on substantive solutions.

Effects of sexist language overlooked

I am shocked by the insensitivity of many lecturers on this campus to sexist language. Our words contribute to our conceptualization of the work, and we must certainly exercise considerable influence over our emerging views of administration.

I was undergirded at SIU in 1970. During the intervening years I spent some time working as a State's Attorney investigator. The university system arose during the Renaissance (history of the Italian) and its beginning was human rights, the sacred nature of many, its greatest shame: the great lack of this same goal.

Administration of Justice majors, as social referees, run special emotional risks due to an early attitude of fairness born of encouragement at home. There exist persons so unreasonable disturbed by nature that they beg to be killed by AJ services in order to make these fair-minded people their killers.

Left alone and treated well, those who attack AJ's often commit suicide or find the real target and commerce. They don't mind "good-natured" racial insults. As hard it may be for many males and (even some females) to accept, many women find gender specific language deeply offensive.

Maturity lost at University level?

Did it ever exist more to the point.

Graduate finds injustice beyond SIUC

I needed the credit, was working hard for a change and was stam­ dunked by the education system that stimulated in own difficulty.

I have also been bunked by a military doctor in a surgery that actually produced a malignant cancer in me—boo on government medicine.

Sadly, AJ majors will discover that there is little justice—only prejudice and ignorance where social groups pray that the tables will one day turn.
External funding growing for SIUC but education remains basic purpose

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

While external funding is rising and administrators for the University are hoping education is part of the overall growth, the University's money has come from the Federal government. Since 1986, the University has received more than $25 million from the Federal government, which has funded various projects on campus. Although this seems impressive, it must balance with education for the University to serve its purpose, said Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit. "Our basic purpose is undergraduate education," Pettit said. "It's true for either a regional teachers college or a major university." Pettit agrees research is important to the University as education, but said higher education is a national problem.

"Today in higher education we have a single model of excellence, and that's the University," he said. "Everyone wants to be a Michigan or MIT, but we provide a combination of the two, he said.

The top universities in the country are traditionally large research centers, Pettit said.

Violeta Molfese, research director for SIUC, said when people choose to attend big universities they order the big name people associated with the university. She said, however, that many times the big names do not teach.

"That's not fair. We are not a research corporation. We are an instructional institution," Molfese said.

Pettit said SIUC is set up to handle this type of problem. The University has been distinguished from most others," he said. "The research faculty teach undergraduates. Some (universities) do abandon undergraduate education."

Pettit stresses that research, education and teaching complement each other and cannot be compared.

"The University is one of the few where research faculty not doing classroom instruction is the exception," he said. "By getting instructors involved in their research, their classroom environment will get graduate students and undergraduates excited about the information."

By getting students and instructors involved in research, the end product is improved.

"Having students ask fundamental questions will sometimes rekindle the professors excitement in the process," she said.

Molfese described research as a "two-way street.

The quality of teachers is key to how well instruction and research are combined at the University, he said.

"We want a mosaic of talents to provide an environment," Pettit said. "We want a versatile individual who is good at research and loves to teach and present a quality of instruction."

Professors not feeling split over research and teaching

By John Patterson

Despite University guidelines and individual college pressures, it is up to the individual instructor to decide how good they want to be and how well they want to teach their students, said two SIUC educators.

Michael Edor, political science instructor, said although SIUC is considered a research university, teaching is still an important emphasis.

"I do not view SIUC as a research university," he said. "I do view it as a research university." Edor said SIUC does nearly as much scholarly research as schools such as the University of Illinois, but will maintain a balance of education.

Teaching and research are both critical to the education process, and it is up to the individual instructor to decide how best to use each, he said.

"If you are an active researcher, it will make you a better teacher," Edor said.

By being more up to date in class presentation, the students will become more interested in the material presented, he said.

"If you are enthusiastic about something, it comes across in the classroom," he said.

Edor said there is already a good balance at SIUC, but more emphasis on teaching may be needed.

The promotion system at the University is not judicious, Pettit said. The research or teaching emphasis of the student, however, is usually balanced. Edor said he is open to examination of the system for the future.

"Teaching is partly an art: form and partly performance that do not have that much to do with research," he said. "I've known excellent teachers who were poor researchers, and excellent researchers who were poor teachers."

Although Edor said he enjoys the research aspect of teaching, there are drawbacks such as having less time for classes.

"You can't be a knowledgeable professor without an emphasis on research," he said.

In many cases doing research helps the classroom performance, but what is necessary, he said, is a careful act of thumb is you have to be an enthusiastic professor or instructor, Wanta said. "You can't be a lazy teacher and do research," he said.

Wanta research in education and other scientific field might help teaching more, but not foundation.

Getting students involved with research is a very important part of usability with a quality education, he said.

During graduate classes or presentations, Wanta said he likes to get research projects going with students.

"Getting papers published and learning how to do research is an important step in the education process and provides students with experience needed for graduate school and professional jobs," Wanta said.

Deans say research keeps education at modern level

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

It takes two halves to make a whole and higher education at SIUC does that to keep education at a modern level, research and teaching must continue to advance.

"In the Liberal Arts Dean John Jackson III, said there is always room for improvement in research and education relationships.

"There is no reason to not be able to do it," Jackson said. "There is no need for us to go out and get people to do it. It comes from the classroom."

Jackson said the education is to be a Michigan or MIT, but we provide an environment that is not only educational, but also teaches students to think.

"We must be able to teach students how to do research and how to think," Jackson said. "We must be able to teach students how to do research and how to think."

Although Jackson said research is part of the basic education plan, he often puts stress on the classroom presentation.

"Ideally they should compliment each other as part of the basic mission," he said. "The people are not brought to the classroom to teach each other."

Jackson said overall SIUC is one of the greatest bargains of education.

We are far better than the image or reputation that sometimes gets out," he said. "We have a quality reputation, but it's not always presented throughout the nation."

It is true you can come party a lot and slide by at SIU, but if you're not bright you can not get a good education," Jackson said. "You can also go to the best graduate programs in the nation."

Providing undergraduate students with instructors who also do the research for the college is one of the most significant aspects of SIUC, he said. "The combination is one that benefits both the teacher and the student."

"Any day you can find in your classroom the leading researchers teaching students," Jackson said. "We feel we stress that."

College of Education Dean Donald Jorgens said the research done by his college is used to improve classroom current.

"The faculty does research pursuing questions relevant to the classroom," he said. "The research is one that benefits both the teacher and the student."

"Any day you can find in your classroom the leading researchers teaching students," Jackson said. "We feel we stress that."

College of Agriculture Dean James A. Tweedy, said he did not think it was possible to compare agriculture to other colleges at SIUC in terms of research.

"We do feel that the education, research and service concept is a triangle approach, none being more important than the other."

The constant trade off between the three keeps each up to date and gains the recognition of peers, and

Summit: Problems abound in GE courses

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

Undergraduate education has made several changes over the years, but as ex-University President Walter says problems still abound.

According to former president of SIUC from 1980 to 1988, said the course of the first years of education at the University level does not compare to the quality of the junior and senior year courses.

One of the reasons for the lack of sophistication at the entry levels is the lack of funding, Summit said.

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit has suggested that institutional grants from the federal government would show that they are serious about higher education, but Summit said the money already comes into universities from Washington D.C.

Federal grants cover the University expenses for research, said. "The government funds research, but it's not as easy to expect you to fund the state to fund teaching," he said.

Although Summit does not like the system, he said there is some good instruction done at this level, but there is also the bad side and overall "students do not get the quality of education they could."

Summit said that six years ago the general education system was overhauled and some aspects have been changed.

The general education system has shrunk to nearly half of what it used to be, Summit said.

Students can still pick and choose from several varieties of courses which has lead to an increase in student interest.

Summit called the general education curriculum "took some time," but said there still is room for improvement.

"It's not as intellectual and coherent as it could be. We have had to achieve a large university," he said.

Therapist: People need to love, communicate

By Omorpee O. Whitfield
Staff Writer

A marriage and family therapist said, despite differences of opinion, people need to love each other.

Eddie Spees, former SIUC chid and family professor, was the keynote speaker for Gay Awareness Week events on Thursday. In her address, "Family & Folk: Your Lifestyle and Others," Spees stressed communication and love as a means of improving relationships.

Specs said the need for acceptance is common to all people, regardless of race, religion, or sexual orientation.

"All human beings hunger for relationships with other people," she said. "All people are human first, and regardless of their sexual orientation, they want and need relationships with other people."

Spees said although there are stresses on gay persons' relationships with family members, many of the problems they encounter are parallel to those encountered by other families.

Consequently, she said, many of the problems of all families could be resolved if people would communicate effectively.

"People have to stop screaming at each other and sit down and talk," Specs said.

Spees has been a private practice therapist for 14 years.

regrettable rubber stamping. "No, SIUC tuition could be summed up as 'keeping up with theJoneses' — the University of Illinois and Illinois State University," Ramsey said. Ramsey said GPSC disproved the tuition hike because it violates IBHE's policy of keeping tuition increases, access to higher education is threatened," "We expect the increase while available state and federal financial aid funding continue to diminish," Hall said. "More and more students may soon find it financially impossible to obtain college degree." Hall said students have to worry about tuition hikes and they longer they will be able to bear the higher percentage of instructional costs through tuition instead of state funding the cable project. Renovations to Evergreen Terrace were awarded to Voss Construction Co., Inc. of Murphysboro. The company had the lowest bid for the project at $144,729, $60,000 lower than University estimates. Work will begin May 11 and should be completed by mid-July. A revised report for the construction of a Cooperative Wildlife Research Building also was approved by the board. Work will begin May 11 and should be completed by mid-July. A revised report for the construction of a Cooperative Wildlife Research Building also was approved by the board. The board approved dividing the project into three phases, because the original phase exceeded the estimated cost. The building is now estimated at $456,500.

The building, which will house laboratories, offices and storage space for SIUC's Cooperative Wildlife Research Laboratory, will be located on McLafferty Road, northwest of University Library.

The revised plan divides construction into three phases instead of two, because phases exceeded the approved budget. Some parts of the first phase were postponed because it was more expensive that expected. Construction began on the building in October 1990, and 85 percent of phase one is completed. Phases two and three will depend on availability of funds.

The increase in tuition will reduce the number of instructional costs, said Susan Hall, GPSC vice president for administrative affairs. Pettit said the increase was necessary to maintain quality education. "We're at the point where SIUC's relative ability is threatened," Pettit said. SIUC expects to raise $1.2 million from the increase, with more than $1.5 million for SIUC. But the additional money won't be put on the university ahead, Pettit said. "The 5-percent tuition hike is applying a bandage to something that needs a little more," he said. The governor's budget assumed Galvin will force a reexamination of the 5.5 percent tuition increase, said students could face paying an additional $400 a year on top of the 5-percent increase if the issue isn't resolved this fall. But the University also looks at several options, including cuts in faculty and civil service positions, if the surcharge is discontinued, he said.

Even if the surcharge does pass this fall, there are a lot of people out there hungry for government for education and education is vulnerable," Pettit said. The administration also wants to distribute $10 billion in federal loans to about 4 million students under a better managed guaranteed student loan program. Some Democrats, including Bell,沪, said the political pressure would encourage more people encouraged to seek higher education.

"I think the administration's proposal represents an idea that the National Commission on Vertical Competition, which Ford funded, was thinking about this," said Simon. "We have to do something more exciting."

at the same time the information can be used to teach in the classroom, he said.

Twodie said a large number of students get involved early in agriculture research as student workers, which he encourages being an ex-student worker himself.

"Professors share research with the students. It's more interesting than reading out of a text book or a Kern," he said. "It's important to keep the facility on the cutting edge. Overall it makes us a stronger educator."

College of Science Dean Russell R. Datcher said faculty should be teaching their research, especially at the upper and graduate levels. At the 100, 200 and some 300 level classes, Datcher said research information is not critical to the presentation of the course, but afterwards it's fairly likely students will run into current research.

He warned that if 20-year-old textbooks and outdated materials are part of the class, "students should look out, they may be getting gypped."

"The advances in all fields in science have been very significant in the last few to 10 years, and if students aren't being made aware of them it's a damn shame," he said. "Teaches well."

Schools such as Columbia College in Chicago use a separate faculty to specialize in teaching the first two-year courses to overcome any problems, he said.

Creating a position where a person would be responsible for developing and maintaining the quality of general education systems would be a small step toward correcting the problem, he said. SIUC has a dean for the graduate school, and Summit suggested a similar position for undergraduate courses.

College of Education Dean Donald Beggs said their is a national movement toward the expectation that schools should have a basic liberal arts program in their undergraduate curriculum to help prepare students for their major classes.

"If it weren't required at the University level, because of our national accreditation, we would still require it professionally," Beggs said.

Teaching is important to the overall performance of a professor, but Wanta said research is emphasized much more than teaching and probably is for most college professors.

"I'm not sure if one helps or hurts the other," he said. "I have an interest in researching. In my case, it's pretty hard for me not to do research here."

The journalism department has been helpful and supportive of research, Wanta said. Balancing teaching loads is one of the things the department does to ease the instructor/researcher pressure.

"Research is not at all a problem," Wanta said. "I'd like to think I'm successful in both. I'm very happy with both."
Lee Khin Wee, a senior in piano pedagogy from Singapore; Pauline Lee, a graduate student in piano pedagogy also from Singapore; and Robert Evans, junior in music education from Gorham, were all winners of the Bill Barras piano awards.

Barras award winners to play piano pieces at Law School

By Annette Holder
Staff Writer

Three SIUC students will play a happy tune when they’re presented with the Bill Barras Baldwin Piano Awards tonight at the Law School.

They will play the pieces that won them their awards before guest pianist Leonora Suppan-Gehrich gives a recital.

The Bill Barras Baldwin Piano Awards were set up in 1988 to honor Bill Barras, owner of Baldwin Piano and Organ in Herrin. The funds for the awards come from patrons, said Donald Beatty, School of Music society director.

"Bill Barras is a very helpful and wonderful piece," Beatty said.

The award winners and Suppan-Gehrich will play on a nine-foot Baldwin piano.

First place winner Robert Evans, junior in music education from Gorham, said he was surprised when he found out he had won.

"One of the pieces (I chose for the competition) was (on the) spur of the moment," Evans said. "Two weeks before the competition I pulled it out and started (to practice) again."

Evans said School of Music professor Wilfred Delphin recommended he play the Edward Grieg and Robert Muczynski songs that won him first place in the competition.

Evans recently won the Presser Scholarship, awarded by School of Music faculty. He said he probably will use the $2,250 Presser Scholarship award to go to graduate school.

Evans will receive $250 for winning first place in the Bill Barras competition.

Pauline Lee, graduate student in pedagogy piano from Singapore, won second place with a Frank Schubert piece.

She said the first thing she did when she found out she had won was cry, and then she called her parents in Singapore.

Lee said she chose to go to undergraduate school at SIUC because her brother was attending school here.

"I chose to go to graduate school here because of my two professors, Wilfred Delphin and Edwin Romain," she said.

Lee will receive $150 for winning second place in the competition.

La Khin Wee, junior in pedagogy piano from Singapore, won third place with her performance of a Johannes Brahms piece.

Wee said she was surprised she had won.

"I didn’t think I was that good," she said. "The other two (artists) are very good."

Wee will receive $100 for winning third place in the competition.

Pedagogy is the art of teaching music. Students who choose pedagogy piano as their major usually choose to teach at college level or teach independently in a studio.

Suppan-Gehrich has played worldwide and won awards in Austria, Poland and the United States.

She came to the United States in 1983 from Austria and resides in Quincy.

"We're very lucky," said Beatty. "Every artist we have is a great pianist and a great person."

This is the last presentation of the year for the Beethoven Society which presents about three concerts a year.

The Friday evening performance is at 8. Cost is $3 for the public, $2 for students and free for Beethoven Society members. The Saturday morning performance at 10 features Suppan-Gehrich and is free.

The performances will be in Loyal Auditorium.

Actress relates trauma of Holocaust victims

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

A St. Louis artist brought the World War II Holocaust to SIUC Wednesday night. Julie Heifitz, a psychotherapist, writer and actress with St. Louis' Center for Holocaust Studies, performed the stories of four people whose lives were changed by the Holocaust for about 15 listeners in the Student Center.

Heifitz said the performance, "Voices and Echoes," was compiled from the testimony of various Holocaust survivors who recorded at the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum. "Be very careful what games you play, what songs you sing, what leaders you choose to follow." -Julie Heifitz

The four stories showed the concentration camps opened and the girl's dream is shattered. "I saw the crematoria, the evidence," she said. "The shock has never left me. Be very careful what games you play, what songs you sing, what leaders you choose to follow."

In the third segment, a young American soldier in Europe finds horror in a death camp. His platoon smells the camp on approach even before seeing it. When the platoon shows the liberated town, the young soldier, his wife, they deny any knowledge of it. The same soldier, the couple commits suicide by hanging.

After the war, the soldier reads a newspaper article questioning the truth of the Holocaust and writes a letter to the editor - "If you'd been there and seen it, you'd know what happened."

Heifitz said for the most part the pieces are the honest retellings of her subjects' stories. "I manipulate the material, but only to the extent that I can crystallize (the subjects) at a certain point in their history," she said.

Heifitz said her definition of a Holocaust survivor is "someone who lived through those years, 1933 to 1945, whose life was totally changed. Although not all her subjects were victimized by the Nazis, all quality as survivors, she said. "We've got to stop just saying '6 million,'" she said, giving the estimated figure of Holocaust fatalities. "They are individuals. It's really an abuse to say, 'That's what Holocaust survivors are like.'"

"My hope is that my work doesn't end with the horror," she said. "It's not just about the Holocaust, it's about human beings."
Organizers of charity jogging run looking to add more participants

By Todd Eschman
Staff Writer

Now that spring is here, more exercise enthusiasts are seen jogging the streets of Carbondale. Some of these joggers will participate in their favorite activity for charity Saturday in the American College of Health Care Executives Fun Run for Special Olympics.

Monika Walraven, senior in health care management and Fun Run's co-organizer, said the run will begin at 11 a.m. Runners can register in advance for $10 or they can register the day of the run for $13.

Walraven said the 2 1/2 mile jog will start in the parking lot north of the Technology Building at the University and follow a path around Campus Lake.

Walraven said ACHE set a 25 runner goal, but so far only eight have registered. She said she hopes more students will participate.

"We promoted (the run) mostly on campus," she said. "We contacted all of the fraternities and sororities on campus and many other student organizations, but they didn't show interest."

Bush: Allies agree on need to help Kurds

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- Having drawn another line for Saddam Hussein, President Bush pronounced the United States and its European allies "in lockstep" Thursday on the protection and care of refugees in war-tom Iraq.

"We're together today with our European allies just as we have been all along in this magnificent operation," Bush declared after meeting with top officials of the European Community on the aftermath of the Persian Gulf War. The refugee crisis, tearing at Iraq and stretching the resources of its neighbors, was a major focus at the White House as the U.N. Security Council worked to bring a formal end to the Gulf War.

Having won the war, the United States and its allies scrambled to salvage the peace by addressing the plight of what the United Nations predicted would be some 1.7 million Iraqis displaced by the conflict. In insisting there was "total agreement" on how to respond to that mounting tragedy, Bush brushed aside as unnecessary an earlier British suggestion for a formal, U.N.-specified refugee enclave in northern Iraq.

Like the symbolic line he drew in the desert sand in the Gulf War, Bush warned Iraq against conducting military operations north of the 36th parallel.

Women express, cleanse emotions through canvas painting project

By Annette Holder

Staff Writer

A student with an art project and 50 feet of canvas gave women the chance to cleanse their emotions through "Catharsis" at the Faner Breezeway Wednesday.

Gregg Elkins, University Studies senior from Vincennes, created "Women Creating Art as Catharsis" as an outgrowth of his project. "This originally began as a class project, but after I started it wasn't like, I said, 'I had a lot of fun with it.'" Elkins said he hopes others will be inspired to create art projects that encourage people to participate. "It's to give women the chance to express themselves.

"Women have not been recognized (in art) to the extent that we should. He said, "I wanted to give women the opportunity (to express) their feelings without judgment." He said he got the idea for "Women Creating Art as Catharsis" after being involved in something similar to this 15 years ago while in school.

"A group of us did a performance show for the opening of the second floor atrium in Faner," he said. "Canvas was hung up all around (the atrium)."

Elkins said he and his friends later created on canvas a collective piece of work. Each person took a section of canvas and drew either mountains, rivers, a railroad track or a head.

After they were finished, they realized they had made a picture of a person.

"The creation was very abstract," he said. "The rivers turned out to be organs, the mountains made the body outline, and the railroad track was a belt."

He said the most interesting part of his "Women Creating Art as Catharsis" will be the final product which he says he will take on a life of its own.

Elkins said the finished canvas will be donated to the museum. Marla Veler, graduate student in Fibers from Chicago, participated in the project with Elkins.

Veler applied paint and blended it with her fingers. She then used a paintbrush to finish the abstract organic canvas.

"I draw a lot from nature," she said. "It's more subconscious, I wait to see how it will turn out." Lina Engle, graduate student in philosophy from Greenville, said she decided to participate because she wanted to bring her son and his girlfriend along.

Engle said she was drawing whatever came to her mind.

"It's such a beautiful spring day," Engle said. "Such a beautiful day could be an influence on (what I do)."

Chris Bobel, SIUC liberal arts advisor from Carbondale, said Bobel was glad to see the project in the Faner Breezeway. "I'm delighted it's here," she said. "It's nice to see a forum for women's expression.

She said she would like to see more art projects like this.

"I hope it's not a once in a while thing," Bobel said. "We need to integrate (women's ideas) into daily life."

Hey all you ΣΚ actives,
AM's would like to get to know you on Sunday April 14 at 5:00 p.m. at the house.

Jenifer
There you go man, keep as cool as you can. Face piles and piles of trials with smiles. It's nice to believe that you perceive the web they were and keep on thinking free. (Gaige Emen)

Boxing tournament hits Southern Illinois

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

There should be some serious fighting going on at the Carbondale National Guard Armory Gym this weekend.

No, it has nothing to do with the recent Gulf War and it won't be on television. The 1st Southern Illinois Boxing Tournament will be hitting the area tonight through Sunday.

The tournament is the creation of Chuck Grandmason, a senior in aviation at SIUC. He began developing the event in December.

"I really wanted it to be on campus, at the Recreation Center," Grandmason said. "But I'm glad to have it anywhere. The people at the Armory have been great and this event should be exciting for the students and the entire Southern Illinois community."

The tournament is an amateur event sanctioned by the Amateur Boxing Federation. In addition the ABF is providing insurance for both the boxers and the crowd. For safety, there will be three local physicians on hand, along with paramedics. Proper equipment and officials will also be provided.

The "fight night" received a boost from some members of the business community. Local establishments' donations have helped make the tournament a reality, those donations include food and refreshments. Security, ticket sales and refreshments will be handled by members of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

"The business people in the area have been great in helping get this thing off the ground," Grandmason said.

The whole thing comes down to a pair of boxes having it out in the ring, where the entertainment will take place.

More than 40 students and local residents have thrown their names into the hat in 12 weight classes. The fighters will range from the 139-pound class to the 201-pound and up super-heavyweight class.

"There are guys from the boxing club fighting in," Grandmason said. "And seniors and heavyweight entry Dave Kalfur. "I've seen a bunch of guys sparring and training at the Recreation Center to get ready. There's going to be some good competition."

While this tournament is new to the area, other schools have made this type of event a campus tradition.

Both Illinois State and Ohio State have been putting on boxing tournaments to the delight of thousands of spectators for more than a decade. Notre Dame has put one on for over 50 years.

Doors will open at 5 p.m., both Friday and Saturday and boxing will run from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. The finals will be on Sunday, doors opening at 1 p.m. and boxing beginning at 2 p.m. Tickets are $2 at the door.

The Armory is located two blocks north of the Burger King on Oakland Ave., near the Carbondale High School, which will provide parking for spectators.

Netters ready for Gateway matches

The SIUC women's tennis team takes on Gateway Conference foes Drake and Indiana State today and Saturday on the road. The Salukis also will play the University of Cincinnati Saturday. Tennis coach Judy Auld said the team is anxious for the tough competition from Drake.

"The team is geared up for the Drake match," Auld said. "Drake is very solid and they have good depth all the way through the lineup."

"But they are definitely beatable. They are human beings and they hit the ball just like everybody else."

It will just come down to who is playing the best," Auld said she wasn't sure how much depth Indiana State would have this year.

"I'm anticipating that out of the two conference schools we are playing they will be the weaker one."

Joseph was relieved by junior Ryan McKee who threw 1.3 innings of hitless baseball. McWilliams (3-1) got the win, while senior Mike Vann came in to pitch in the ninth to pick up his first save of the season.

But the Salukis have a scare in the top of the ninth inning when junior Michael Endebrock kicked a ground ball and then threw a walk to first base. Van Gundy just looking at the bases loaded, before getting Scott Thomas to ground to third.

Semo starter John Jarvis (5-4) gave up a hit to junior Scott Bridges, Hines and Mark scholarship.

In the top of the first, the Salukis got all nine hits thanks to hitless baseball.

Ryan Williams, who has played 11th-ranked Iowa in the ninth to win.

The Salukis are currently ranked 17-11. The Dawgs jump out to a 1-0 lead in the second inning. Janke stood in the ninth to win.

The Salukis return to Omaha, Neb., this weekend to battle nationally ranked Creighton in a four-game series. Creighton hopes to improve on its last-place 1-7 record in the Missouri Valley Conference.

"I think our concern right now is what kind of play are we going to give the fans and the conference," Rackliff said. "The Valley race is not even on my mind. What is important is whether or not we are improving as the season progresses, so come Saturday and Sunday, we are a good club." The Salukis and the Bluejays will play two doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday. Game time is to be announced.

Following the series with Creighton, SIUC comes home for single games with Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and Arkansas State.

"My ambition for this year was to make it to the NCAA," Siracusa said. "I just wanted to make it, to play and have fun. I wanted to go to the conference, but we didn't expect to.

Now that I have taken this as a learning experience. However I do not have to be icinc on the cake. I'm going to have fun and dive my best.

Playing against the best competition in the world is something Siracusa plans on doing again next year. This year's goal is to make the U.S. Olympic team and win a gold medal. But for now he's a little nervous about the competition.

"It's going to be scary because it's the best competition in the world," Siracusa said. "I don't think I'm ready to be among the best, but it will be fun competing against them.

Siracusa was an All-American his junior and senior years at SIC.Julus High School and was New York State Champion his senior year.

"We were very fortunate to get Rob," Ardyte said. "I met him in 1988 at an Olympic training camp. We hit it off and the next two years he was in touch with us and the school.

"He pretty much made the decision three months into his senior year that this is where he wanted to to neurative and academic talents the best."

Ardyte said Siracusa has already made the next step for the SIUC diving program. Laine Owen went on an extra year and representing SIUC in the NCAA Championship finals last year and now Siracusa is going a step farther.

The Salukis are first in the Gateway Confex in hitting (.330), fielding (.559) and staff ERA (.265).

The NCAA must not read through the national statistics before making its decision, but this may just be a slight oversight on their part and the Salukis should not heed their soft-poll decision.

What does SIUC need to do to achieve the gain the recognition it deserves.

The next NCAA Softball Poll comes out in two weeks. Maybe then the softball team will gain the recognition it deserves.

The No. 6 team in the poll, University of Iowa (29-6), recently split a doubleheader with Nebraska and Illinois University. SIUC destroyed the Western Illinois club, 20-0, this weekend to balance the nine

The Salukis did have a few even games in the poll, large enough to compete with the top programs in the nation. Sophomore All American Ed Williams is expected to contend for first in the high jump and junior NCAAs will return. Ed Williams will have a shot at the NCAA record in the long jump and sprints. Senior Brian Miller and sophomore Johnathan Hinch in the javelin and Miller and freshman Jerry King in the discus and shot put.

Not all of the Salukis will be going to Arkansas. Junior John Bookout and senior Dirk Mathias are in the Gateway Conference in hitting (.330), fielding (.559) and staff ERA (.265).
