Flood forces evacuation of downtown Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — A construction crew driving pylons into the Chicago River punctured a retaining wall Monday, causing massive flooding in the basements of buildings throughout the downtown area and forcing the evacuation of most buildings, authorities said.

Mayor Richard M. Daley said city emergency workers and utility crews were trying to plug the leak, which was draining the Chicago River into a honeycomb of tunnels that run under the Loop.

Among the buildings ordered evacuated was the Sears Tower — the world's tallest. Workers poured out of the Loop area during the late morning and early afternoon, clogging streets and mass transit facilities. Daley called the underground flooding a "serious emergency crisis in our city."

"We're doing everything possible," Daley said after observing the whirlpool at northwestern end of the Loop. "Rocks, mattresses, sandbags — they're doing everything they can" to plug the hole into the tunnel system.

Daley said a private construction firm had been called in to help city workers plug the hole that sent millions of gallons of water pouring into a tunnel system 40 feet below street level. The tunnels at one time were used to haul coal and ashes to and from buildings but recently have been used mostly for distribution of electricity and telephone lines.

Construction workers dumped gravel into the hole in an attempt to plug it. Officials said it would take time to see if that worked.

"We've got every city agency out — the Army Corps of Engineers, the Metropolitan Sanitary District — and right now we're in the process of assessing the problem," said Fire Department spokesman Earl Larsen.

There was no water in the streets but water

Yeltsin Cabinet quits, says reform blocked

MOSCOW (UPI) — Russian President Boris Yeltsin's reform Cabinet submitted its resignation Monday, accusing the conservative Congress of People's Deputies of trying to block radical reforms.

"Realizing the impossibility of carrying out the decisions of Congress and disagreeing with its refusal to continue with radical reforms, we are forced to ask the president to accept the resignation of the government," Yegor Gaidar, deputy prime minister and architect of the radical economic reform program, said in a statement.

Yeltsin said he would act when the Congress ended its session and asked his Cabinet to stay on at least until then, but the situation exploded into name-calling and a walkout by the Cabinet during the evening session.

Congress Chairman Ruslan Khasbulatov appeared on light-night television to apologize for referring to Yeltsin's Cabinet as "boys who lost their heads."

"If they are offended, by God, I deeply apologize. Before the whole country, before the whole world, I didn't mean to offend anyone, to humiliate anyone," Khasbulatov said.

His own deputy, Sergei Filatov, said after the session, "Ruslan Khasbulatov destroyed the fragile balance existing at the Congress by his words."

The stormy session polarized deputies into conservatives eager for the Cabinet to resign and those mobilizing behind Yeltsin's reforms.

The resignation offer got little attention in Congress until Khasbulatov said, "It's the government's business to decide whether to resign or not. We're not

Consumers to see increase in April electricity, gas bills

By Todd Welvaert
Politics Writer

Illinois power consumers will notice a slight raise in power rates as the April billing cycle comes to an end.

The rate increase took effect March 19 after the Illinois Commerce Commission cleared a lower-than-requested rate for Illinois power companies.

The rate increase means average residential consumers will pay an additional 84 cents a month for electricity and $2.17 a month for natural gas.

Central Illinois Public Service Co. filed the request in April 1991. The original request was considerably higher than the one ICC passed.

"We originally asked for a 3.7-percent increase in electric rates and a 10.3-percent increase in gas," said Ed Cobau, spokesman for CIPS. "The rate that was passed is obviously disappointing, but it will allow us to eventually offer lower rates to the consumer."

The rates would have increased the average monthly cost to residential consumers of electricity by $3.30 a month, and natural gas would have cost about $4.60 a month.

Cobau said the rate increase would pay for further investment for the company.

"Our purpose for the rate increase was three-fold," Cobau said. "We needed to begin to earn return on investments CIPS is

Officials: Route to St. Louis hinges on funding sources

By Teri Lynn Carlock
City Writer

Southern Illinois officials say a shorter route to St. Louis means traveling down the long road of finding sources for funding.

In 1983, U.S. Rep. Ken Gray proposed a four-lane highway from the Carbondale-Murphysboro area to St. Louis, widening U.S. 51 to Interstate 64 and improving Illinois Route 3.

But according to an Arthur Little study conducted the same year, instead of building a new highway, some of the existing routes should be approved.

The study's core counties are Jackson, Monroe, Perry, Randolph, St. Clair and Washington, Franklin, Jefferson and

Bush acts to prevent unions from using non-union fees for activities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush acted Monday to prevent unions from using the dues of non-union employees for political activities or candidates, effectively denying Democrats a traditional source of some campaign funds.

On the day before traveling to union-rich Michigan for a campaign swing,

Bush used the colorful backdrop of the Rose Garden to sign an executive order giving non-union workers the right to withhold dues that would be used for political purposes.

Bush's decree essentially codifies a 1988 Supreme Court decision that ruled

Track, field teams excel-erate by foes

Women 'best' opponents at EIU invite

By Karyn Viverito
Sports Writer

The women's track team sent 30 athletes with high expectations to compete against a field of nine teams at the Eastern Illinois invite.

What they achieved were 32 combined career- and season-best performances that blew away the competition in the non-scored meet Friday and Saturday.

Coach Don DeNoon said he was impressed with his young squad's performance.

"Everyone went out and performed beyond what they knew they could do," he said. "Even with the windy weather, our kids hung in there and did the job."

Senior Jamie Dashner finished second overall as she competed in the heptathlon for the first time this season.

She had season-best scores in five of the seven events, including a first place showing in the javelin throw at 147-10.

The heptathlon competition lasted two days and started a day earlier than the rest of the meet.

This may have played a factor in Dashner's performance in the individual javelin throw Saturday, DeNoon said.

Dashner with a toss of 128-4 placed second to Eastern Illinois' Michelle Warren (145-9).

Two weeks ago at the SEMOTica relays, Dashner placed ahead of Warren by a margin of 15 feet.

Coming out of the heptathlon most likely affected her, DeNoon said.

"Competing in the heptathlon probably contributed to her arm soreness," he said. "They switched places this week, and they will face each next week, so we'll take it from there."

Junior Nacolia Moore brought home a career-best victory in the 200-meter dash (25.94) and a second place finish in the triple jump (37-6 1/2).

Junior Crystallo Constantinou tied her career-best time in the 100-meter dash with a time of 11.6, and she still ranks No. 3 all-time.

In the 400-meter dash, Constantinou (57.54) had another career-best performance placing

Cornell's crew covets Top 20 consideration

By Scott Wuerz
Sports Writer

The SIUC men's track team is making a run at the NCAA Top 20, head coach Bill Cornell said.

It took a big stride toward that goal with a victory at the Hot Springs Invitational Saturday in Fayetteville, Ark.

The Salukis scored 102 points to win the meet over second-place Alabama despite being without junior Nick Schwartz and senior Vaughan Harry, who had class responsibilities and senior Bernard Henry and junior Kenton Rolle, who were ill.

"We went into the meet wondering if we were even going to be able to compete against top flight competition without some of our key runners, so we were elated with the win," Cornell said. "Hopefully it will help us to get a spot in the Top 20."

The Salukis were led by high jumper Darrin Plab, shot putter Brian Miller and discus thrower Torre King, who finished first in their events. Plab, who has already qualified for the NCAA championship meet in the high jump, turned in a 7-2 1/2 leap.

King won the discus competition with a 157-foot five throw and Miller topped all performers in the shot put with a 52-foot 6 1/4 heave. He also finished second in the discus with a 150-8 performance.

Other top Saluki finishers include Garrett Hines, who placed second in the 200-meter dash with a 21.26 pass, Ed Williams, who finished second in the 110-meter high hurdles with a 14.11 performance and John Hirsch, who made a 189-foot three throw in the javelin for second place.

Freshman runners Neil Emberton and Garth Akal turned in personal best times in the 1,500-meter run, finishing second and third respectively in their heat.

Cornell said the victory was a result of the fact his team is well represented in all track and field events—a feature which may make this the greatest team he has coached.

"We've got everything covered," he said. "There may be teams who are better than us in individual events, but they pay for it by not having the talent we have across the board."

BRITISH LABOR PARTY LEADER RESIGNS — Neil Kinnock, who brought the Labor Party from the fringe left to the mainstream in nine years as its leader but lost two elections to the ruling Conservatives, announced his resignation Monday after last week's defeat at the polls. Kinnock's resignation announcement, coming four days after the Conservatives' victory, opened the way for a leadership contest within the Labor Party, which has not held power since 1979.

BOSNIANS UNLEASH DAM ON SERBIANS — Serbian forces Monday renewed attacks in violation of a new European Community-brokered truce, prompting a Muslim defense chief to unleash from a dam torrents of water toward low-lying populated areas along the border with Serbia, news reports and officials said. Thousands of people fled Visegrad as word spread that floodgates of the hydro-electric dam above the mostly Muslim town were opened.

BULGARIA'S POPULATION DECLINES — More than 300,000 people have emigrated from Bulgaria since travel restrictions were lifted in 1989, accelerating a decline in population caused by high infant mortality and low birth rates, the National Statistics Institute said Monday. "Our latest demographic study shows that for the second year in a row more people died in our country than were born," institute director Zahari Karamfilov told a news conference.

Agriculture College weeds out top of crop with scholastic recognition

By Annette Holder
General Assignment Writer

The College of Agriculture has honored its cream of the crop for scholastic achievement, including the top four students from each class.

Donald Elkins, associate dean for academic programs for agriculture, said 55 students were recognized at the Honors Day program Sunday.

"All of these students have good working knowledge in their field of expertise and are academically sound," Elkins said. "They are all energetic, hard working individuals."

Eric Johnson, a forestry major from Farmington, was named the top senior in the College of Agriculture. He has a 3.9 grade point average.

"I like to give honor to God and my family by getting good grades," Johnson said. "That's why I work so hard."

Johnson will work for the U.S. Forest Service after graduation but does not credit his good grades for getting a job so quickly. He worked for the Forest Service for several summers.

Brett Hunley, an agribusiness economics major from Auburn, was named the top junior in the College

First in a four-part series of Agriculture. Hunley said he has worked hard to take his knowledge home to his 1,500-acre family farm. His grade point average is 3.9.

"I want to help make my family farm more successful," Hunley said. "I just want to do the best I can."

Ryan Miller, agribusiness economics major from Browning, was the sophomore with the highest grade point average. He has a 4.0 grade point average.

"My friends study a lot less," Miller said. "I try to study hard and do my best."

Miller said he attends all of his classes because he is paying for his education and wants to make the best of it.

Eric Cerny, plant and soil science major from Cobden, was named the top freshman. He has a perfect 4.0 grade point average.

Valarie McCall, a junior in general agriculture from St. Charles won the Carrie M. Bunn Award, which honors a student on the basis of scholarship and need.

Tim McLochlin, a senior in agricultural education from Carbondale, was the Max Carter Award recipient.

The award honors a junior or senior in agriculture educator who has exhibited leadership in agriculture education.

Miller won the Robert W. Davis Memorial Scholarship for the college.

The award is given in honor of the first chairman of the SIU Board of Trustees to students in their junior year who show high academic achievement and potential.

Johnson won the Delyte W. Morris Scholarship for the college. The Morris scholarship honors a graduating senior who is considered by the scholarship selection committee to have the highest potential in scholastics, character, social leadership and ambition.

Tracey Tinsley, a junior in animal science from Poplar Bluff, Mo., won the Leah M. Reef Memorial Scholarship, which honors students in various fields of studies who are considered to be in need of additional assistance.

Carol Caserly, a senior in plant and soil science from Belleville, won the Ina Belle Zimmerman Award, which is awarded to a plant and soil science major.

College of Science honors its best and brightest

By John McCadd
Special Assignment Writer

The SIUC College of Science recognized 38 students with scholarships and fellowship awards on Honors Day Sunday, five of whom may receive additional federal search grants for work on special projects in their field of study.

Scott Franklin, a doctoral student in plant biology from Carterville, was presented the John W. Voigt Natural History of Plants Award for outstanding performance in the plant biology department. In addition to Franklin's grade point average, part of his recognition was the result of his study of the effects of fires on forest communities along the Mississippi River.

Lawrence C. Matten, chairman of the plant biology department, said awards such as these are very prestigious because the review committees judge these projects as if they were judging for assessment of research grant funding.

Another award for similar studies was the James E. Ozment Achievement Award in Natural History.

Plant biology students Kerrie L. McDaniel, Charles P. Giedeman, Bethany Wiltshire and Steve L. Morton received the award for various projects.

McDaniel, a graduate student in plant biology from Bowling Green, received the award, in part, for her study of the cytokinin's role in regulating growth and homeostasis of the common bean and soybean.

She also won first place in a similar research competition by the Sigma Xi scientific honor society.

Several students were awarded scholarships in each department recognized as the best in their class.

Kristin Mary Schrecker of Sterling, Virginia won the Outstanding Senior in Computer Science Award, which is presented to seniors with the best overall performance during their undergraduate career.

Bob Glimm, College of Science undergraduate adviser, said computer science is one of the more difficult majors in the college in which Schrecker managed a 3.97 GPA.

"Usually our students will have 3.5 GPAs, and a 3.7 is perceived as unusually good," McGlimm said.

Other recipients of scholarships were Praful Shrestha of Carbondale, who secured a $280 scholarship from the physics department, and Jennifer Bergner, who received the Carl G. Towns Memorial Scholarship from the mathematics department.

SIUC's blues coup misdirects the green

Student Programming Council has a good reason to be proud. Consort Chairperson Laura Moore pulled off a coup when she booked Blues Traveler and longtime blues artist Buddy Guy for a Shryock Auditorium concert. But a ticket policy enforced by SPC's partner in the deal, Chicago-based Jam Productions, may end up putting cash in some undeserving pockets.

The 2 1/2-hour sellout was unprecedented; despite excellent efforts by all the SIUC's concert hosts and promoters of the arts, attendance for major music events has been lackluster in recent years. The Blues Traveler-Buddy Guy sellout was a breath of good business.

But a major factor in the sellout was the lack of a ceiling for ticket purchases. Some of the earliest ticket buyers walked off with scores of passes in hand. Some were legitimately buying tickets for friends, but a chance to buy multiple tickets encourages buyers to reap a scalping profit when the music starts on May 4.

Most SPC events have a cap of 10 tickets per person, but Jam blew that lid off and sold limitless tickets through SPC. Line reservations were passed out at 8 a.m., and by the time the 28th line number was called, the best seats to be had were in the second balcony row.

The flood of available tickets ensured a sellout, but getting squeezed out in the first round of $13 ticket sales tempts hopeful concertgoers to buy from illegal distributors for a second chance.

Scalpers beat the system by selling over ticket prices, making profit from the work of others. The 10-ticket cap keeps more money where it belongs. Jam Productions has made it easy for scalpers to flourish outside Shryock's front doors.

Promoters nationwide moan about scalping's plague on their industry. If they want to remove the blight, they should first remove the conditions in which it thrives.

Alternative birth control forms provide women with choices

The Red and Black
University of Georgia

Given recent AIDS statistics, the debate should focus on something other than who is meant to wear what contraceptive. According to the Centers of Disease Control, 13,395 women had contracted AIDS in the United States through July 1990.

The female condom should also be a superior prophylactic in terms of birth control. In particular, the pill and the male condom are less than perfect. In girls under the age of 15, the rate of pregnancy rose to 18.6 percent in 1987 from 15.9 percent in 1980, and of those who became pregnant more than half carried the fetus to term.

Health officials have even come out in support of the female condom because it provides women with another prophylactic device in cases where men aren't willing to use one on themselves.

Men should not be absolved of their responsibility to prevent disease and unwanted pregnancy, but still, the more options the better. So stop grumbling, please.

The recent approval of the female condom by the Food and Drug Administration has generated some unnecessary grumbling by women who question its comfortableness—the real issue should not be comfort, but whether the device is an improvement on other forms of birth control.

Regarding AIDS prevention, the female condom—marketed under the brand name Reality—is indeed superior to other female birth control devices. Made of lubricated polyurethane, the vaginal condom is 7 inches long, has flexible rings at both ends and is inserted like a diaphragm. The inner ring fits behind the pubic bone and the outer ring remains outside the body. Unlike the diaphragm, which only prevents sperm from passing the cervix, the female condom protects the entire vagina and labia from contact with HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

Inaccuracies give NORML wrong image

I have been a member of SIU NORML since 1989, and president since the Fall of 1991.

In that time, I have met Mark Besser on a few occasions, but he has not played a major role in SIU NORML since 1989 or perhaps 1988.

Your story Friday claiming him to be the president of SIU NORML was an error which could easily have been avoided by consulting any of three sources:

1) Me (my number is widely published in the NORML NEWS, and I regularly write to your editorial page as president of SIU NORML).

2) The office of Student Development.

3) or your own news morgue, circa 1988 (several previous stories were filed in the wake of our problems at 611 Pizza which clearly named Kitty Bonde as the president at that time.)

The only reason I can see for your mistake is a story printed in 1988 or 87 which pictured Besser in front of Shryock auditorium, when he was involved in its reactivation on this campus.

Perhaps you found this story in your news morgue and thought it was an interesting link. I certainly did.

But you failed to include the word "former" in your description, thus making me appear to be the successor to a convicted felon.

That is not responsible journalism.

Mark Besser was not a member of the group for three years prior to his arrest last August for possession of LSD (with intent to distribute). —Drew Hendricks, President, SIU NORML.

Reader misinterpreted Bible, rereading holy book suggested

I would like to address the letter written by Terry West. Before quoting the Bible to support your views on pornography, I would suggest that you thoroughly search it in its entirety.

II Tim. 3:16 says "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness." Anyone who knows anything about God or His word can certainly discern that you are completely ignorant of it.

I would like to point you to the New Covenant God made with man to the first chapter of Romans wherein it states Romans 1:22-28 "Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools, and changed the glory of the incorruptible God into an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds and fourfooted beasts, and creeping things. Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness through the lusts of their own hearts, to dishonour their own bodies between themselves; Who changed the truth of God into a lie, and worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator; For this cause God gave them up unto vile affections; for even their women did change the natural use into that which is against nature; and likewise also the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust one toward another; men with men working that which is unseemly, and receiving in themselves that recompense of their error which was meet. And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient."

I would suggest that you get to know this God that you are quoting.

Please notice I said "God" not gods. There is only one!—Delores Parent, Behavioral and Social Sciences

Graduate student offers theory on how to survive school, life

I believe that the collective "A" student should be ignored.

These often cannot see, but a "C" student can "A" in season unless, of course, it is subject to seizure. Isn't it retail majors who are counterfit?

SIUC is..... The non-traditional middle aged graduate-undergraduate experience is terrifying.

Professors, contemporaries if not colleagues, are best suited most often for their encounter with insensitive juveniles pursuing some degree of.....

Without complaint, the system, per se, asks students pursue a line of research in which they are judged excellent by those who have done the same in a tape recorded—he's just like me—evolution in which teachers are the shoe's Leaky soul.

This educational social norm may run contrary to the real development of social and environmental expertise which the system ostensibly offers to the world.

Nature is a unified whole and those subjects in which one is expert or can see, as the system would label expertise, cause our individual technological environmental problems.

We are most blind in the "C" (see) area.

Environmental cycles at the root of life are, upon examination, rather like "motorcycles" in that they have two wheels and are dangerous to the operator and pedestrians.

The refrigeration cycle in which gas is heated and released under pressure to cool off the meat and veggies offers an instructive metaphor.

A slower examination by an "A" student in the "C" subject area might elicit a swifter set of interactive social and business system were the "A" student asked to continue in the "C" area and forced to "earn A grades" to satisfy degree requirements.

It is far better to "C" "A" later in "DC." —William Powers, unclassified graduate student.

Political Clark Kents still searching for phone booth

The present presidential race has the makings again of becoming another nonspectacular event. Attention mainly has been focused on the Democrats in their never-ending search for the candidate who has the "S" hidden beneath the suit coat.

Unfortunately the Democratic party seems to be addicted to putting up typical Joes who are as unappealing as they are uninspirational.

The last Democratic candidate to have any kind of charisma was Robert Kennedy. But the political era of outspoken heroes and leaders not afraid to tackle problems ended with his assassination. Gone are the days of faith in government when people believed in their leaders. With the corruption and outrageous expenditures publicized about government the voters have become fed up.

With the 1992 presidential election approaching, the political system faces a public that no longer cares, politicians afraid to take seemingly radical stances and a court system too backlogged to tackle timely issues.

The current field of candidates seems to have come from the same mold, which unfortunately has yet to be broken. It nearly is impossible to distinguish between those who were running and those who are running. Clinton, Tsongas, Harkin and the others are interchangeable. Despite the different offices held and stances on domestic policies, the Democratic candidates follow the same path. None are particularly exciting. Their strength is in meagerness. Instead of leadership they have provided support for the status quo. Rather than confronting issues with innovative ideas, they have relied upon taking safe stances and making sure not to offend.

John C. Patterson
Associate Editorial Editor

But then there is Jerry Brown. The loud-mouthed, former California governor blaring 1-800 numbers throughout the primaries poses about as much a threat to the political supermen as an abandoned Wonder twin. His anti-establishment message is nice, but what will he find to replace it. Maybe if Walt Disney were alive he could find an appropriate running mate; the seven dwarfs would fit nicely in cabinet positions.

In the other political party, the Republicans face an internal skirmish from the pesky but bold Pat Buchanan. No one expects Buchanan actually to win, but he has managed to put forward his best foot and stir up the conservatives. Buchanan, however, is too risky for his own good and his views toward foreign policies and nearly anti-Jewish stances in the past have forced that foot into his mouth.

Come November an apathetic population will await the mud-slinging battle between whichever non-candidate the Democrats choose and the once popular president currently out of touch with his country. With predictions of new lows for voter turnout reported through the primaries, the yearning for nostalgic campaigns returns. Presidents and candidates no longer have a rapport with the public. The art of working a crowd is gone. The youthful energy and delivery of the Kennedys has disappeared along with the public faith in leadership known during the Eisenhower administration.

With domestic kryptonite paralyzing politicians, the public must realize that it is up to them to become the heroes of the country. Continued reliance on politicians will benefit no one. If any real changes result in 1992, the real leaders need to step forward and tackle the issues. Only through courageous leadership can the country regain its composure.

Reader fed up with sympathy, Native Americans undeserving

Indians were all perfect until the big bad white man showed up and ruined their utopian society. Nobody could see the movie Dances with Wolves and doubt this statement. The noble savage is fact and not just some romantic concept dreamed up by bleeding hearts.

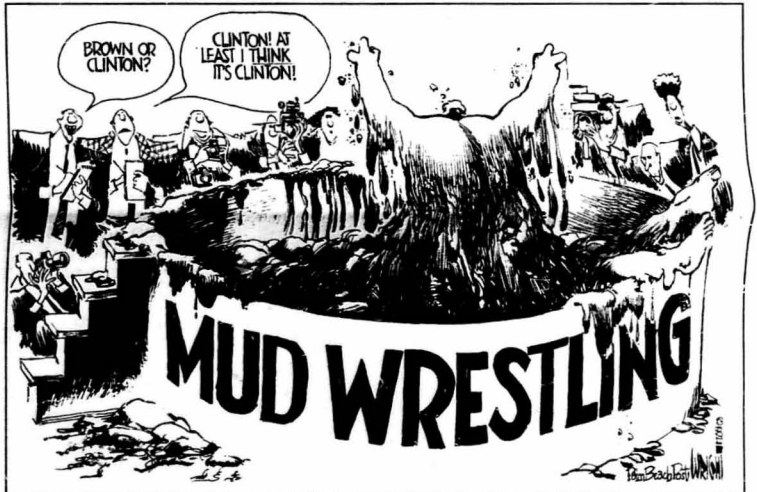

I personally disagree with our governments' treatment of the Indians. No other ethnic group was given reservations. I don't see why the Indians get special privilege in South Dakota, a place I visit often. I have seen Indian reservations. The poverty they experience is something they bring upon themselves. In the late 1970s, the government built housing for the Indians on the Standing Rock Reservation near Mudbridge, South Dakota. When the housing was completed, the first thing their new inhabitants did was rip out the plumbing and sell the copper. Ten years later they are whining about the terrible housing they are forced to occupy.

And what's with this "We were here first" issue? So what. I got a new roommate in January. Somehow I don't feel entitled to the whole room because I was here first.

I don't think we "stole their land" either. What makes America their land? My dorm isn't "my land" just because I live in it. I advise any white person that feels that we stole their land, to right that wrong and donate their house and all other property to some Indian family. Otherwise shut up!

I was born in this country like the Indians. My ancestors were born in this country like the Indians. I am just as Native American as any Indian. I have just as much right to live in America as any Indian. I'm really sorry the Indians are all so upset that they have to actually coexist in America with other races of people.—Patrick Shaefer, junior, history.

Fraternity's community service sets example for involvement

Spring fever is in the air at SIUC and with it comes the prospect of fresh air, outdoor parties, and the upcoming Springfest weekend. Along with these activities will come tons of litter. Many of you out there right now are thinking "wait a minute, I am an environmentally conscious person, I would never do that". For many students this is definitely true, but this alone will not solve the problem of litter in Carbondale.

So what can we do to solve this ongoing "War Against Litter?" Here is what our Fraternity has planned. On Saturday, April 18 Pi Kappa Alpha will participate in Carbondale's Spring Clean Up Day 1992. Last year over 400 volunteers collected 8,240 pounds of litter and recyclables from the city of Carbondale.

Our fraternity, Pi Kappa Alpha, has been the winner of this service event for over three straight years (last year we collected 2,445 lbs) and we plan once again to gather our volunteers for another great year.

For this reason I would like to challenge all the students of SIUC to take part in this important event whether you are a member of another fraternity, sorority, campus organization, or just an environmentally concerned student; because not only will it help to keep the city clean, but it will also give all of the students a chance to take pride in their pride in their community and themselves. Any interested groups can contact Carbondale Clean and Green at 549-4148 and I hope that we can all work together to keep Carbondale beautiful for the years to come.—Rich Kalina, Biological Sciences, Pi Kappa Alpha, Community Service Chairman.

Lessons of past not learned by present society

In response to Brian Kossett's letter of April 2, Friends for Native Americans has not "taken to blaming Euro-Americans for all the past ills of American society." However, many of us with European-American backgrounds feel pain for the way indigenous peoples suffered—and continue to suffer—the conquest of their lands and the destruction of their cultures.

"Those who fail to learn the lessons of history are condemned to repeat them." We want to create awareness of the massive misinformation most people have learned about Native Americans. In our public schools, there is a conspiracy of silence about the history of America from a Native American viewpoint. Massacres of "Indians," we call "battles." When Native Americans defended themselves from invasion, we call them "massacres."

We do not learn that the U.S. Constitution was based on the Iroquois Confederacy. We do not learn that scalping was introduced by Europeans.

Instead we have been given a stereotype of an "Indian," more of a thing than a human. We think little of calling a team the Washington Redskins, but would never allow a team to call itself the Cleveland Jews or the New York Negroes.

Both are equally wrong.

Native Americans continue to suffer from oppression. When did you ever have a history class that talks about the Lakota, the Cherokee, or the Navaho today? Theft of land from Native Americans continues today, and it is time U.S. citizens became aware of it and put a stop to it in the name of justice.

It's not always easy to face the facts; it is far easier to stereotype Native Americans as a thing of the past. As human beings, however, we should expect more of ourselves.—Robert W. Johnston, alumnus, member, Friends for Native Americans.

DE coverage distorts, ignores SIU NORML

On April 10 the D.E. reported a major LSD bust with the help and cooperation of SIU NORML. President Mark Besser.

This information is incorrect. Mr. Besser is a former president and has not been associated with NORML for some time, including the time span of his arrest and subsequent tumult for the DEA.

Implying a linkage between Mr. Besser's personal activities and an RSO with which he is no longer associated is irresponsible journalism at best, complete incompetence at worst.

In light of the DE's continuing inability to cover NORML events which impact upon a significant portion of its readership, the DE leaves itself open to serious questions of bias.

Why is it you can link SIU NORML to drug activities with which we had nothing to do, but cannot cover our rallies?

How is it our weekly meeting briefs are handed in, but rarely make it to the page? I am not asking the DE to become a propaganda rag for NORML, but when we rally this Friday will the DE be there to cover it in the context of a campus event which has brought nationally known speakers to campus, or will it ignore us?

The only excellence the DE seems to be able to achieve is perpetuating stereotypes and hysteria.—Jason Catlin, junior, cinema and photography.

was rushing into the lower portions of buildings so fast that it was too dangerous to send in divers to assess the problem. One observer said the hole created a whirlpool that made it look as if someone had pulled the plug in a giant bathtub.

"Obviously, for a breach that size it would be dangerous," Larsen said. "I assume underwater cameras will be used to assess the damage."

"The city has experienced flooding through the whole Chicago tunnel," said Fire Department Commissioner

Raymond Orozco. Commonweath Edison spokesman Donald Petkus said power was shut down between Dearborn and Michigan avenues and between the Chicago River and Adams Street—an 18-square-block area. Daley ordered an evacuation, however, of a much wider area, extending to 18th Street on the south and to west of the Chicago River's South Branch. Orozco urged people in the affected area to leave their buildings before power was cut at 11 a.m.

"What we want to avoid is people being trapped in the elevators," Orozco said. Reports of water at the sub-basement level began shortly after 5:30 a.m. Authorities said a construction crew working near the Merchandise Mart, the world's largest wholesale buying complex with 93 acres of floor space, was driving pylons into the river and apparently ruptured a retaining wall that held back the river. "The Army Corps of Engineers is presently lowering the level of the river right now," Orozco said.

Williamson counties also are included because of their relationships with the core counties.

The Southwestern Illinois Freeway Team was formed two years ago by five counties in an effort to accelerate the process of having a four-lane highway built between the Carbondale-Murphysboro area and St. Louis. The group also promotes economic development in Southern Illinois.

The SWIFT met Friday with Rep. Glen Posherd to discuss the status of monies allocated for the highway project. The group has $320,000 allocated in the 1991 Highway Reauthorization Act that it can put to use anytime it wants.

Dan Reitz, chairman of SWIFT, said the group decided to access its funds in October of this year.

"The $320,000 is for a feasibility study to determine if a toll road is appropriate," he said. "We feel a toll would help tremendously in making the road from Carbondale to St. Louis more appealing."

Southern Illinois needs a new highway to stay in competition in the economic market, Reitz said.

"We feel this is a way to move our products from our markets," he said. "We just don't have the transportation access we need, and we're afraid of the business we can't get and retaining the ones we do have."

Carbondale City Manager Jeff Doherty said the main reason the highway project has taken so long to get off the ground may be summed in one word—money.

But city officials support the highway project because of the city's need for a better access to the metropolitan area, Doherty said.

And to maintain the utility's financial stability so that customers will continue to benefit from CIPS' low cost of capital."

The increase will be the first since the utility's 8.2 percent natural gas increase in 1990.

"Nearly 10 years has passed since our last electric rate increase," said Jim Bachman, CIPS vice president of corporate planning. "That was a rate of exceptional period stability for our customers. During that same period, though, we have had significant increases in operating and maintenance expenses."

Bachman said CIPS has implemented numerous cost control devices but because of inflation, the higher costs forced the raise.

Prof receives trustee award for committing time to others

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

SIUC faculty member Robert D. Arthur does not know the word "no" when it comes to helping those who are less fortunate.

"I have made a commitment to do public service work," he said. "So instead of spending time with my family or doing the lawn work that needs to be done, I spend time doing things for others."

The SIUC Board of Trustees recognized the 15-year faculty member for work unrelated to his job with the 1992 Lindell W. Sturgis Award for Public Service at its April 9 meeting.

According to a nomination letter by Carol D. McDermott, coordinator of the SIUC Clinical Center, Arthur has served his church and community in a variety of roles.

"The majority of his so-called leisure time, such as vacations and weekends, is spent in serving others," she wrote. "When there is work to be done, he is involved. He is dependable and willing to work quietly without credit."

Unaware of his nomination, Arthur was surprised to receive the letter announcing he had won.

"I thought the letter was asking for nominations, until I got to the second paragraph where they named me," he said.

Many people do a lot of work for others and rarely get recognized, Arthur said.

"I think there's a lot more people out there than you think, and we do it because we want to do it," he said. "We don't make a big deal about it unless something like this Sturgis award comes up. I am one of many and I was lucky to get nominated—and I'm very appreciative of it."

Arthur spends about 60 hours a week as chairperson and professor in the SIUC Department of Animal Science, Food and Nutrition—and rest is farthest from his mind during his leisure time.

His job cuts down on extra work, but he still manages to spend about 10 to 15 hours a week on public service work, either at night, on weekends or on vacations, he said.

"I see the need out there of individuals who need help," he said. "And I have the ability to do something, so I feel a commitment."

Arthur said his service contributions are a carry-over from his family.

"My dad was always active in the Jaycees, the Masonic Lodge, church and Scout activities," he said. "I've continued on with his tradition."

One of the main ways he gets involved is when he is asked to participate, which is also one of his weaknesses, he admitted.

"Maybe I can't tell people 'no,'" he said with a laugh. "But most of my services are only small amounts here and there."

A native of Muncie, Ind., Arthur came to SIUC in 1977 as an assistant professor in animal industries. He became an associate professor in 1983, chairman of the department in 1987 and professor in 1988.

He has been an officer in the Carbondale Kiwanis Club during most of the past 15 years and has helped with projects such as repairing bicycles for needy children and constructing or repairing facilities or equipment at the Women's Center.

He also annually organizes and attends a Christmas party for residents of the Choate Mental Health Center and coordinated the collection and mailing of food and money to people in the former Soviet Union.

"I get the satisfaction that I'm helping somebody, and somebody less fortunate than I am," he said. "I see people out there who have a need who I can match my talents with."

Arthur is treasurer of Carbondale's First United Methodist Church and has served on and led numerous church governing committees. He also is a substitute Sunday School teacher.

Agribusiness emeritus to receive service award at commencement

By Christine Leninger
Administration Writer

A retired agribusiness economics professor who has no children of his own has a brood of adopted children that he and his wife have collected through the years.

Walter J. Wills, former chairman of the SIUC Department of Agribusiness Economics, said he has kept in close touch with many of his former students.

"I have yearly pictures of students I correspond with and even pictures of their families," Wills said. "Many of my students write and call me even though I have been retired for nine years."

Wills will receive the University Distinguished Service Award during the Graduate School commencement exercise May 17.

Distinguished Service Awards honor those who have contributed significantly to Southern Illinois, the state or the University.

Wills served at SIUC for 27 years before retiring in 1983, but he left many fond memories with students and graduate students whom he taught.

Wills said he knew it was time to retire in 1981 when a student came to see him in his office with a not news. "The student said his great-grandfather said he had to see me," Wills said. "It was then that I knew it was time to hang it up."

Les L. O'Dell, assistant dean for external affairs, nominated Wills for the award.

O'Dell said he has known Wills since he was a student at the University.

"It is hard to come through the College of Agriculture without hearing about the accomplishments of Dr. Wills," O'Dell said. "He is a huge supporter of activities and scholarships in the COA. I figured this is an outstanding opportunity to give back some of what he has given the College."

Lyle Solverson, chairman of the department of agribusiness economics, said Wills was popular with his students in the classroom

Blood drive for April begins, new scheme honors donors

By Jeremy Finley

The need for a vacation this weekend is not surpassed by the need for life, a local health official said.

The American Red Cross Southern Illinois April blood drive began Monday as local volunteers worked to collect money for the holiday weekend and for those who continually need blood.

Vivian Ugent, local blood drive coordinator, said holiday weekends are always a vital time for blood.

"The need for blood does not take a holiday this weekend," Ugent said.

Ugent said eight weeks must lapse between donations so those who gave blood in the drive February can give in the drive this month.

A VIP program new to SIUC begins this week to honor those who give blood regularly, Ugent said.

"Those who give blood may sign a pledge to donate blood four times in the year, and they will receive a special recognition pin and a gold card from the American Red Cross to certify them as a VIP blood donor," she said.

Blood donors must weigh 110 pounds and be at least 16 years old with a parental consent.

Those who donate also receive a mini-physical before they give blood.

Ugent said EMT, CPM, RM or senior nurse volunteers are needed to help take blood pressures and pulses.

The drives began Monday with a goal of 40 pints of blood.

A drive will take place from 3:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. today at the Carbondale K-mart with a goal of 35 pints.

Drives for the rest of the week will take place at the Student Center from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Thursday and 2:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Friday.

The blood goals are 250 pints for Wednesday, 300 pints for Thursday and 150 pints on Friday.

Refreshments will be available at all drives.

Church has been an important part of his life and gives him the possibility to help others, Arthur said.

"I've been a member of the church ever since I was eight years old, and I see the needs church has for people," he said. "If I can provide the services needed, I'm willing to provide them."

Arthur spends a week of his summer vacation with the church's youth helping rebuild and repair homes in poverty-stricken areas throughout the Appalachia region through the church's ongoing Appalachia Service Project.

Each year, the youth raises about $10,000 for the project.

"I like to work with youth," he said. "And the church gives me the opportunity to work with them."

But his contributions sometimes can get frustrating. "I've never had a bad experience. Frustrating experience, maybe, but never bad," he said. "It's frustrating seeing that if you just had an extra $500 how much more you could do."

As many services he provides for others, he does not hesitate to pass a service to be with his family, Arthur said.

"I'm sure there's been times the family probably wished I was home, but I never miss birthdays," he said with a laugh. "The family does come first."

and out of the classroom.

"He would talk with his students rather than lecturing to them all of the time," Solverson said. "Because of his concern for his students, they remember him. For instance, one student I saw (Sunday) asked me to say 'hello' to him."

Through the years, Wills established a reputation as an agricultural transportation and marketing specialist and became a recognized authority on U.S. agricultural cooperatives.

Solverson said Wills has worked many years to perpetuate cooperatives. "He is known as 'Mr. Co-op' in Southern Illinois because of his contributions to the development of many cooperatives," Solverson said.

As a spokesman for agriculture, Wills has testified before U.S. Congress, the Interstate Commerce Commission, Illinois Department of Transportation and the Illinois General Assembly.

He has written three books and more than 400 professional publications, and also penned a weekly farm column.

Since retirement, Wills has continued to serve the University as a graduate advisor and contributor to the SIU Foundation.

Many rush to file tax returns before Wednesday deadline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Millions of Americans scrambled Monday to finish income tax returns as the dreaded deadline looms, and awaiting last-minute filers along with the eager hand of the IRS are marijuana seeds, ice cream and protests.

The Internal Revenue Service said most Americans have filed their individual returns, but that millions had not just two days before the midnight Wednesday deadline for submitting the documents people love to hate.

Droves of tax filers are expected to dash to post offices around the nation up until the last minute. Capitalizing on the rush will be a hodgepodge of protest groups and other hawkers.

The maker of Edy's Grand Ice Cream will attempt to scoop up free publicity outside a suburban Detroit post office by dishing out free dessert Wednesday.

"If ice cream can soothe the savage beast, it can do wonders for irate taxpayers," said Diane McIntyre, Edy's public relations manager.

A peace organization in Washington, D.C., will protest government allocation of taxes to the military.

Carol Coney, a spokeswoman for the Washington Area Alternative Fund, said "about a half-dozen" people will turn themselves in for arrest at the Justice Department to symbolize the pain they feel as their tax dollars are converted into weapons of destruction.

"Their consciences are in agony because they're paying for covert and overt U.S. military operations around the globe. People who are paying for crimes against the Iraqi people want to turn themselves in," she said, referring to last year's Persian Gulf War. "The civilians were very hard hit."

Figures issued last week by the IRS said 67.4 million individuals had sent in their tax returns, out of about 105 million required to file.

While taxes might be the chief complaint of Americans, IRS spokesman Ken Hubenak said "roughly" 75 percent of people who file returns get refunds.

Of the 67.4 million who had filed returns as of last week, 47.1 million were due refunds totaling $46.071 billion.

That averages to $976 for each person filing taxes.

Last year, 6 million individuals and businesses failed to file returns required by the IRS, Hubenak said.

Some of the annual deadbeats refuse to file and others just "forget," said Hubenak.

Police Blotter

SIUC police reported a car stolen between 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. April 9 at lot 18 south of the SIUC Arena.

Police said the car belonged to SIUC student Gregory T. Watts of Alton.

The suspect, Robert Moreno of Chicago, allegedly stole the car and drove to Charleston, where he was apprehended by police at 7:47 p.m.

Carbondale Police reported a residential burglary between 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday on West Main Street in Carbondale.

The victim, SIUC student Neil T. Schroeder, 25, reported his apartment was entered and stereo equipment stolen, police said.

Stolen property and damages were valued at $1,095.

Carbondale police reported an auto burglary at 8:08 p.m. April 5 at 504 S. Grand.

Police said SIUC student Tracy K. Loyd, 22, of Marion, reported his car broken into and stereo equipment valued at $405 stolen.

A black male suspect was seen in the car and chased from the area by witnesses but not apprehended, police said.

Police apprehend suspect on sexual assault charges

By John McCadd
Police Writer

Carbondale Police arrested Herbert Moore last week on criminal sexual assault charges in connection with a rape that allegedly occurred Friday morning off campus.

Moore, 25, of 520 N. Allyn, was arrested on a warrant at 10:37 p.m. Friday.

The victim is described as a 30-year-old female who is not an SIUC student.

The incident reportedly occurred between late Thursday night, the time the victim began sleeping, and 4 a.m. Friday morning at her apartment.

Police reports said the victim allegedly awoke to find Moore on top of her. After ordering Moore to leave, the victim later discovered she had been sexually assaulted.

Police reports said the victim and Moore knew each other through friends and both had been at a party Thursday, from which the victim reportedly left alone.

Moore was taken to Jackson County jail on $100,000 bond.

If convicted, he may serve up to 30 years in prison.

Man smashes Reagan prize, but not former leader's spirit

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — An anti-nuclear demonstrator casually ambled on stage while former President Ronald Reagan was accepting an award Monday from the National Association of Broadcasters, grabbed the crystal statue from the podium and smashed it.

Man and Reagan was startled but unharmed.

Reagan was on stage to receive the NAB distinguished service award commemorating his years as a sports broadcaster. Moments later, Reagan returned to the stage.

"Was he a Democrat, by chance?" Reagan quipped to a standing ovation from more than 3,000.

Swinburne award available

A $1,000 scholarship will be presented in August 1992 to an undergraduate, graduate or professional student in honor of Bruce and Mary Lou Swinburne.

Bruce Swinburne served SIUC for 14 years as vice president for Student Affairs prior to his retirement in 1987.

Financial need and involvement in SIUC extracurricular activities and organizations will be considered in selecting the recipient.

All applicants must complete a 1992-93 Financial Aid Application available at the Financial Aid Office in Woody Hall.

Scholarship applications are available from the Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs, 311 Anthony Hall, SIUC, IL 62901-4308.

Forms must be returned to the same office by May 15, 1992, in the care of Dr. Jean Paratore.

Students, orchestra to showcase music talent

By William Ragan
Entertainment Writer

The winners of the annual School of Music competition and the Symphony Orchestra will weave a web of complex musical compositions designed to showcase the musical excellence of students.

The orchestra will perform a concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in Shryock Auditorium.

The winners were selected by a jury from the Annual Orchestra Solo competition in December, the only contest in the School of Music in which all instrumentalists and vocalist may enter.

The contest consisted of an audition to perform with the orchestra, conductor and faculty member, Michael Barta, said.

Although no money is given to the winners, the opportunity to play with the orchestra in front of an audience is reward enough, he said.

"The rules of the competition say a monetary award can be given," Barta said. "I wish we could do that every time. The students deserve it but there isn't always money for it."

"Very few people have a chance to perform with the orchestra. It's important for the students," he said.

Winners are required to perform the piece they played at the competition, and the conductor must approve the pieces for public performance to make sure the literature is available and is not exceedingly difficult.

The concert will open with Bach's "Brandenburg Concerto No. 3" for strings and harpsichord. The piece goes against the popular method of alternating slow and fast passages, instead playing only one fast concerto.

"Bell Song" from Delibes' opera "Lakme" will feature soprano Mara D. Rice. The song incorporates bells and uses the full orchestration available to a conductor, Barta said.

"It's one of the flashiest show pieces for the soprano in the literature," he said. "It really highlights the singer."

The piece uses the technique of coloratura, which is associated with the high soprano acrobatics that opera singers perform, including vocal frills and swoops.

Rice, a graduate student in music from Du Quoin, said she fell in love with the song the first time she heard it.

"It's a demanding song," Rice said. "It has a very large range. It needs a lot of the lyricism as well as the agility of the voice."

Jennifer L. Chaney of Carbondale will sing the aria from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," a waltz based on the Shakespeare play which uses triangles and percussion to set the pace for the rest of the orchestra.

The first movement of Kabalevsky's "Piano Concerto No. 3" will feature piano soloist Robert H. Evans.

The piece is subtitled "youth concerto" because of its optimistic, happy character. It was written in the 1950s and is dedicated to Soviet youth.

The concerto includes a difficult and demanding piano part which is not designed for student performers, Barta said.

The piece is deceiving because the piano score looks simple but the interaction between the instrument and the orchestra is rhythmically and harmonically complex, said Evans, a senior from Gorham.

"The biggest challenge is working with the orchestra," Evans said. "I've never done that before. It's been a unique experience."

After a brief intermission, the concert will resume with Haydn's "Symphony No. 101," known as the "clock symphony" because of the metronome-like ticking in the strings and woodwinds which is consistent throughout the piece, Barta said.

"It starts out like a simple clock ticking," he said. "It becomes a monster by the middle of the piece and quiets down towards the end."

The difficulty of the pieces that will be played has been trying on the orchestra, Barta said.

"It's been a challenge, but our orchestra has lived up to the challenge," he said.

The orchestra will perform a children's concert at 1 p.m. Thursday, playing an abbreviated set that will consist of the Bach concerto and the second movement of the Haydn symphony.

In addition, the orchestra will perform the third movement of Weber's "Concerto No. 2 in E Flat Major" for clarinet and orchestra, which will feature soloist Kevin Cox.

The piece has a Polish flavor, because of the staccato rhythms and quick execution by the orchestra.

The concerto will not be performed at the evening concert.

Tickets for the concert can be purchased at the door and cost $2 for students and $3 for the general public.

All proceeds support music scholarships.

Poll: Women feel need for religion

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey of 1,499 women around the country indicates that a majority of them feel there is too little mention of religion and God in today's world, and many would like to see daily prayer in schools, Glamour magazine reported Monday.

The survey of 1,499 Glamour readers between the ages 18 and 44 showed that 64 percent believe that religion and God should have more public exposure in daily life.

White Sox, Hibbard shut out Seattle in Comiskey opener

CHICAGO (UPI) — Greg Hibbard celebrated Chicago's opener at new Comiskey Park with eight shutout innings and Frank Thomas tripled home the game's lone run Monday, leading the White Sox to a 1-0 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

Hibbard, 2-0, allowed only three hits, including one after the second inning. He retired 13 Mariners in a row at one point and didn't allow a runner beyond second base.

Bobby Thigpen pitched the ninth and escaped a two-on, two-out jam to record his third save of the season.

Robin Ventura also displayed some outstanding defense at third base. The 1991 Gold Glove winner robbed Seattle of hits on four separate occasions.

It was a far cry from last year's home opener when the Detroit Tigers christened new Comiskey with a 16-0 drubbing of Jack McDowell and the White Sox.

The Mariners, who had their three-game winning streak snapped, wasted a fine pitching performance by Russ Swan, 0-2. The Seattle pitching staff entered the game with a combined 5.86 ERA.

Swan, who was shelled for seven runs in 1 1-3 innings by Texas in his first start, allowed only three hits while walking four and striking out four. He retired 12 straight batters, matching Hibbard pitch for pitch.

He made only two mistakes all afternoon, but they translated into the game's only run.

First, he walked Ventura with two outs, and then Thomas followed with a liner into the right field corner to snap an 0 for 11 slump.

The closest the Mariners came to scoring off Hibbard was in the second when Dave Cochrane and Dave Valle smacked back-to-back singles with one out. But Hibbard got Jeff Schaefer to fly out and Harold Reynolds to ground out to short.

Henry Cotto got a gift double in the eighth after Chicago right fielder Mike Huff fell down.

But again Hibbard was up to the test, easily retiring Edgar Martinez and Tino Martinez to end the threat.

Mariners star outfielder Ken Griffey Jr. was scratched from the starting lineup with a sore foot. He singled as a pinch hitter in the ninth.

Expos knock off Cards for fifth consecutive win

MONTREAL (UPI) — Delino DeShields had two hits, including a home run, Monday to pace the Montreal Expos to their fifth victory in a row, a 3-2 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Mark Gardner 1-1 went five innings for the victory while Rheal Cormier, 0-1, who also worked five innings, was tagged with the loss as the Cardinals dropped their third in a row.

The Expos opened their 24th home season before a sellout crowd of 40,907 when DeShields hit a leadoff homer.

Montreal added two more runs against Cormier in the second. Larry Walker and Gary Carter, making his first appearance in Montreal since 1984 when he was traded by the Expos, singled.

With two out, Ozzie Smith was charged with an error at short on a grounder by Gardner, which scored Walker from second with the second run.

DeShields singled to load the bases and then Cormier walked Spike Owen to force home Carter for a 3-0 lead.

Ray Lankford led off the third with his first home run, cutting the Montreal lead to 3-1.

St. Louis closed the gap against reliever Bill Sampen in the eighth when Brian Jordan tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Luis Alcaide.

Gardner loaded the bases with no one out in the fourth but then retired the Cardinals in order.

Alton school principal selected referee of year

ALTON (UPI) — Broken family, economic disadvantages. The humblest of beginnings. Ed Hightower has risen above it all.

Hightower, 40, is principal at Eunice Smith Elementary School in Alton. He also is among the nation's top basketball referees.

Hightower will be honored April 16 in Atlanta as the Naismith College Basketball Official of the Year by the Atlanta Tip-Off Club, along with Coach of the Year Mike Krzyzewski and Player of the Year Christian Laettner.

"I'm very honored to have been selected," Hightower said. "It is such a prestigious award, and there are so many deserving people out there. I fully realize that I didn't get there by myself. When I receive it, I receive it on behalf of so many people in this great St. Louis metropolitan area that have been so supportive of me."

Hightower was born the second oldest of eight children in rural Gobler, Mo., which is in the bootheel part of the state. As a child in a one-parent home, he picked cotton.

So he knows about hard work and dedication — especially when he tries to impart his wisdom on to the youngsters he works with every day.

He does not want his kids to accept mediocrity. He wants them to be goal-oriented. He tells them environmental obstacles can be overcome.

"So many kids are looking for that mentor, that role model who understands where they're coming from and can empathize with them," Hightower said. "Someone who can say, 'Yes, I understand, but here is a path that you have to take. This is a course that you have to set for yourself.'"

Other siblings in the family have been successful as well, Hightower said.

"We've come a long," he said. "When I talk with young people, that's my message to them: 'Maybe life didn't deal you a nice hand. However, it's up to you to take the cards dealt and turn them into a positive.'"

"It doesn't always happen, and young people have to realize that but you can do something to help yourself:

- "No. 1, by being a quality person.
 - "No. 2, by being concerned about other people.
 - "No. 3, by getting an education, setting some goals, working toward the realization of those goals."
- Hightower went to Southern Illinois

University-Edwardsville and earned bachelor's, master's and specialist degrees in education. A knee injury cut short his basketball career at the school, where he had an athletic scholarship.

To stay close to the game, he began officiating intramural games as a junior for $1.25 an hour. He moved up to the Alton City League and then began working high school games in the St. Louis area.

Next came junior college games and a basketball officiating clinic at Michigan State in 1977. He was soon put on the Big Ten satellite staff, which meant Hightower worked Division II games in the Big Ten region.

Now, he primarily does Big Ten games but also calls games for the Big Eight, Great Midwest and Missouri Valley conferences.

our best, and the wins will take care of themselves. We need to prepare for all games we play."

The Salukis are coming off a 7-4 win in Game two of a doubleheader against Gateway rivals Illinois State. Before the win, SIUC had been on a five-game losing streak. Four of the games were one-run losses.

Individually, some player have remained consistent during the down spell.

In the last six games SIUC has played, senior shortstop Cheryl Venorsky hit .500, and has a .958 fielding percentage. Venorsky is now on a seven-game hitting streak. In Gateway play, she has a team-best .393 batting average and a .970 fielding percentage.

Junior right fielder Colleen Holloway rebounded from a slow start and has taken over the team lead in hitting. Last week, Holloway batted .438 with a pair of doubles and triples. In the last six games, she has batted .388 and produced 11 runs and nine RBI. In Gateway play, Holloway is batting .381.

Although the Salukis came up short last week against Southeast

Missouri and Indiana State, sophomore catcher Laurie Wilson blasted fence-clearing homers against the two teams.

On the mound, junior Angie Mick is leading the pitching staff with a 1.49 ERA. Mick, 9-6, had the Salukis' lone win last week against Illinois State in Game Two.

SIUC, 13-14 overall, began its season with six straight wins and then dropped six in a row. Since that time the Cougars have gone 7-8. Senior Lynn Rochester leads the team offensively with a .413 batting average. Senior Jennifer Albert follows with a .350 batting average.

Junior Jennifer Thompson, with a .312 batting average, leads the team with 20 RBI. Her stats also include three game-winning blows.

Junior Michelle Cox, 6-8, and sophomore Amy Strong, 6-6, split time on the mound. Cox has a 2.11 ERA including 60 strikeouts, and Strong has a 2.86 ERA.

Milwaukee disputes newspaper in report of firing ex-coach Harris

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks refused to comment on a report that Del Harris was fired as vice president of basketball operations last week, and did not leave in a "mutual parting" as had been announced by the team and Harris.

The Milwaukee Sentinel on Monday cited an unidentified source as saying Harris had a falling out with team owner Herb Kohl.

It reported the falling out occurred when his request for a contract extension was rejected, and that led to his dismissal.

Harris has not commented on why he left. The Sentinel says he will be paid through next season, the final year on his contract.

A Sentinel source said Harris' silence on the matter might be a condition of his contract.

The announcement from the Bucks had said Harris was leaving to pursue NBA coaching opportunities.

He had given up his job as the Bucks' head coach in December to concentrate on the front office position.

At the time he stated he was into the administrative work, but adding that his "coaching desire is still very strong."

Harris had been named head coach of the Bucks on June 4, 1987.

He had a record of 332-341 in eight seasons as coach of Milwaukee and the Houston Rockets.

Harris' teams made the playoffs in all but one season, and he led the Rockets to the 1981 NBA finals.

The Bucks have struggled through a poor year and will miss the playoffs for the first time in 13 seasons.

They started the week with a record of a 31-48.
