Tuition debate headed for final battle

By Katie Morrison
Administration Reporter

The SIU Board of Trustees will vote today on a two-year tuition increase plan and students are expected to come to the meeting in large numbers to voice their opposition, a student leader says.

Graduate and Professional Student Council president Susan Hall said so many students are expected to attend that the trustees have decided to limit comments to five minutes each.

The proposed increases are 13 percent for undergraduate programs and 30 percent for SIU School of Law.

The Undergraduate Student Government voted Mar. 30 to oppose tuition increases.

Hall said the council approves a 3 percent increase prescribed by the Illinois Board of Higher Education only if SIUC's administration proves the increase is necessary to stop further program cuts.

SIU Chancellor James Brown said the increase is necessary to meet costs not covered by the board's budget.

Henderson considers resigning; Spiwak absent

By Marc Chase
General Assignment Reporter

Undergraduate Student Government vice president Lorenzo Henderson says he is considering resigning from his office because president Mike Spiwak gave the power of representation at today's Board of Trustees meeting to the USG chief of staff.

Henderson said he is upset by Spiwak's decision to appoint USG chief of staff Terrie Pickerill to represent USG at the Trustees meeting, in which board members will decide if students will pay a 13 percent increase in tuition over a two-year period.

The USG constitution calls for the vice president to fill in whenever the president is unable to perform the duties of his office.

USG members said Spiwak is currently at Johns Hopkins University in Washington D.C., and they did not know how he could be contacted. Spiwak could not be located for comment.

Henderson said he feels Spiwak appointed Pickerill because of disagreements he and the Spiwak had during the semester.

"Personally, I think the reason Mike Spiwak did not ask me to take his place at the Board of Trustees meeting is because we disagreed on issues such as the athletic fee referendum and other numerous issues," Henderson said. "The president (Spiwak) was in favor of an increase in student fees to support athletics, and I was not;

Handgun limits could halt crime

By Emily Priddy
Special Assignment Reporter

Community policing and limitations on the manufacture of handguns could decrease the problem of crime in the United States, SIUC law professors say.

Speaking at a forum at Lesar Law Building Wednesday night law professors Patrick Kelley, Suzanne Levitt and William Schroeder and assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Leggans discussed current crime legislation and possible improvements to popular ideas.

Schroeder said he favors outlawing the manufacture and sale of handguns in the United States.

ISC votes down motion

Abolaji says issue 'closed' as council remains divided

By Emily Priddy
International Reporter

Although SIUC's International Student Council voted down a disciplinary motion against president John Abolaji, controversy concerning his alleged misuse of council funds remains.

Omar Al-Bishtawi, member of the council's committee to investigate Abolaji's alleged misuse of funds, said the council unknowingly reimbursed Abolaji more than $1,000 for his expenses at the 1993 National Association for Student Affairs conference last summer in San Francisco.

Council members present Tuesday night unanimously agreed that Abolaji's use of funds was unconstitutional, Al-Bishtawi said.

Panagiotis Pantazopoulos, of the European Student Association, made a motion for Abolaji to repay the $1,041.65 he used for food, lodging and travel expenses during the trip, but the motion was defeated 3-2, with several abstentions, Al-Bishtawi said.

The council has not yet determined a course of disciplinary action, Al-Bishtawi said.

But Abolaji said he believes the issue is closed.

"If the council voted I should not pay the money back, I did not violate the constitution," he said.

Committee member Anup Menon said according to the council's constitution, Abolaji was not president at the time of his trip, but it is unclear who was in the position.

"We (the committee) find it very vague that in the summer (the constitution) does not state when the (term) begins and ends."

Bar owners say TIPS costly as enforcement approaches

By Aleksandra Macys
Health Reporter

As deadline approaches for bars to have alcohol servers trained in a special program, one Carbondale bar owner says the city should pay the bill because city officials passed the ordinance.

Gwen Hunt, owner of PK's, 308 South Illinois Ave., said she went through the program three years ago and common sense tells people when someone is drunk, not training.

Hunt said when she took the class three years ago it was free, but now it will cost her $15 per employee. She must send seven employees to comply with the ordinance, at a cost of $105.

As of June 30, all Carbondale liquor licensees must have at least 50 percent of their employees trained in an approved Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse (DASA) program.

The TIPS program, (training intervention procedures by servers of alcohol) at Jackson County Health Department is the only approved program offered in Southern Illinois, according to the department.

The Carbondale City Council passed the ordinance Nov. 9, 1993 under advice of the Liquor Advisory Board after Jose Wright, an SIUC student died of asphyxiation Feb. 6, 1993 outside the former Checkers nightclub at 605 E. Grand.

City Clerk Janet Vaught said all liquor licenses must be accompanied by TIPS certification or the license will not be renewed.

License-renewal applications are due April 30 and do not need to be accompanied by TIPS certification, Vaught said.

Currently, 23 of the 59 liquor licensees in Carbondale have trained servers. The total number of servers in Carbondale could not be calculated because no records are kept.

According to the Illinois Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse, 100,000 people die each year as a result of alcohol.

The department also reported 45 percent of ISRAEL'S MEMORIAL DAY MARRED BY BOMBING — HADERA, Israel—A wave of terror by Palestinian Islamic extremists intensified Wednesday when a bomb exploded aboard a commuter bus packed with civilians in the heart of northern Israel, killing at least five Israelis and wounding 28 others. It was the second such attack in a week, apparently launched in retaliation for the Feb. 25 massacre by a Jewish settler of about 30 praying Palestinians in a Hebron mosque. As paramedics frantically cleared the dead and treated the wounded at Wednesday's bomb site in the parking lot of Hadera Central Bus Station, police discovered a second device planted nearby. It apparently was timed to explode during the rescue operation.

RUSSIAN AIDE CALLS AIR SAFETY 'VERY WEAK' — MOSCOW—Russia's minister of transport acknowledged Wednesday that air safety has become "very weak" since the 1991 collapse of the Soviet Union and pledged tough new controls to improve the situation. Transport Minister Vitaly Yerimov said that in the wake of last month's crash of an Aeroflot flight in Siberia in which 75 people died, the government will beef up spending on air safety and require more frequent certification of pilots and other airline staff.

ITALIAN DINING'S EASY AS ESCAR-GOGO — WASHINGTON—Italian designers are famous for starting trends that take the corridors of style by storm. That's one reason people in the business rush to Milan for the International Furniture Fair, which is taking place this week. Escar-gogo, one of the newest products from housewares specialist Alessi, is a petite stainless-steel dish holds six porcelain snails at attention. Design cognoscenti will quickly spot the cartoonlike outlines of the ultra-hip Bolidist movement, which the designer, Stefano Giovannoni, founded in the 1980s. Diners may simply look forward to easier access to garlicky snails.

CLINTON CALLS FOR ALL-DAY STAFF SESSION — WASHINGTON—The Clinton Cabinet and other senior officials are getting together for an all-day, "taking stock" session starting with a White House dinner Friday, April 22, and running through Saturday. Does this mean the heavy hitters will be in a nice, warm and toasty confessional mood when they meet the press at the White House correspondents' dinner Saturday night? Don't count on it. Word is this is not going to be the touchy-feely encounter session like the one last year held at Camp David. It would be too much to call this gathering a retreat, White House types say. It will be more like a "business meeting."

WILDERNESS BILL GETS SENATE'S APPROVAL — WASHINGTON—The Senate, breaking a long deadlock on one of the most important and contentious conservation issues of the past decade, Wednesday approved legislation that would give wilderness protection to almost one-third of California's vast desert lands. If approved by the House, which three years ago approved similar legislation and is to begin work soon on its latest version, the measure would create the largest wilderness area ever designated by Congress in the lower 48 states: a total of 7.75 million acres, approximately the size of Maryland. Senate passage of the California Desert Protection Act, has traditionally been the most serious hurdle facing a broad coalition of environmental groups who have long sought stringent protection for millions of acres of fragile desert that are under mounting pressure from the state's sprawling urban areas.

Agriculture, social work students honored

By Jamie Madigan
Special Assignment Reporter

Students who attended the College of Agriculture Honors Day Sunday expected to receive certificates but did not know they also would be given an assignment.

Kim Harris, associate professor in agribusiness economics, was the college's Honors Day speaker and began his speech with good news and bad news for the students.

"The bad news is for you honors students — I'm going to give you an assignment," he said.

"The good news is the assignment is not due until (the year) 2049. Your assignment is to make a life-long commitment to learning."

Harris gave students five practices to enhance personal learning, including defining the subjects that matter to them, reading for 30 minutes a day, listening to books on tape while driving and learning the language of computers.

As a final step, Harris urged students to make use of what they learn.

"There comes a time when you have to make the transition from pure learning to learning and doing," he said.

He ended his speech by reminding the students that if he saw them in the next 56 years, he would ask about the assignment.

"Tell me what you are learning and I'll tell you what you're becoming," he said. "The journey is the reward."

Students were honored who had full-time status and a 3.5 grade point average, and 56 students met

Helping others gets recognition for SIU students

By Diane Dove
Special Assignment Reporter

Some social work students who find rewards in helping others were awarded for their community efforts in an honors award ceremony in the Quigley Hall Auditorium on Sunday.

M. Mizan Miah, director of the School of Social Work, said Honors Day is a special day for the college because the students are recognized for their efforts.

"Today, we have the opportunity and pleasure to honor the best and the brightest of our students," he added.

The college honored nine Dean's List students for having a grade-point average of 3.75 or higher, and also honored 16 students for having a 3.5 or higher grade-point average.

The National Association of Social Workers Award for undergraduate student of the year went to Mary Nash-Pyott.

A senior from Johnson City, Nash-Pyott was also on the Dean's list and received the Delyte W. Morris Memorial Scholarship of $300.

Peter Welle of Carbondale, received the Graduate Student of the Year award from the National Association of Social Workers.

Welle is a former project coordinator for Care International, and is currently working on projects which involve community gardening in East St. Louis.

As recipients of the Student of the Year awards, Nash-Pyott and Welle also received the Jimmy Auerbach Award of $100.

The Social Work Recognition Award of $100, which is given to non-traditional students majoring in social work, went to Daryl K. Cox, a graduate student from East St. Louis.

Cox said he was surprised when he received news of the award in a letter last month.

"I was smiling, and walked around the house all day with a glazed look in my eyes," he said.

Andrea Walker, a senior from Centralia, received the African American Achievement Scholarship of $250. Walker is currently a member of the Judicial Affairs Committee.

The Leah M. Reef Memorial Scholarship of $125 went to Sara Rutland, a senior from Anna, who is the president of the Social Work Student Alliance. Rutland is also on the Dean's List.

Melissa Anderson, a senior from Mt. Vernon, received the Beatrice and Bayard Scotland Scholarship for $100.

Students encouraged to voice concerns at debates

By Marc Chase
General Assignment Reporter

Students may not be aware of the importance of the Undergraduate Student Government debates, but the USG election commissioner says attending the debates is a way students can control how their concerns are represented at the University.

Craig Leech, election commissioner, said attracting students to debates has been a problem in the past because they were unaware of the event's importance.

USG presidential candidates to answer questions, look at issues

Troy Arnoldi, AAA presidential candidate, said students need to attend debates so they know where the candidates stand.

"Students have the power to elect a candidate who will support their views to the University and state legislature," Arnoldi said.

Arnoldi said the only way students can influence University issues is to become informed of who the people are that they should vote for, and they can become aware by attending the debate.

Students can observe the Undergraduate Student Government presidential candidates argue current university issues and campaign platforms at 7 p.m. tonight in the Student Center Auditorium in a debate sponsored by the election commission.

Leech said the debates promise to be interesting since many issues of concern to students, such as fee hikes, parking, and a proposed book rental system have not yet been debated between the candidates.

The four candidates participating in the debate are Troy Arnoldi from the Triple-A party; Ben Smith from the Student Independent Party; John Shull from the Progressive Party and Edwin Sawyer from the Unity Party.

Shull and Arnoldi said their past experience as USG senators will give them edge over Smith and Sawyer if they are elected.

Smith and Sawyer said as newcomers to student government, they will bring new ideas and energy to the office.

Questions from students also will be answered by the candidates at the debate.

The final election day for USG officers and senators is April 20.

Polling locations include Lentz Hall snack bar, Trueblood Hall snack bar and the Old Mam area of the Student Center.

Ex-faculty generous in endowment fund

TWO RETIRED SIUC FACULTY MEMBERS DID something unique with their savings from the years they worked at SIUC. They turned and gave it right back to the University in the form of a donation. A $1 million donation!

This generous contribution from Donald and Jo Ann Boydston of Carbondale will promote further study of American philosopher John Dewey. The gift will establish the Jo Ann and Don Boydston Endowed Chair of American Philosophy in the College of Liberal Arts. The University's philosophy department will use these monies to attract a top Dewey scholar.

THE BOYDSTONS, WHO HAVE NO CHILDREN, say they invested their savings in tax-sheltered annuities, Florida real estate and mutual funds.

Donald Boydston put it humbly when he said, "We never had expensive tastes, and we've just put savings together over the years. It all adds up if you live long enough."

Jo Ann Boydston, an internationally recognized Dewey scholar herself, spent most of her professional life developing SIUC's Center for Dewey studies. In a little more than three decades, she edited the entire 38-volume collected words of the renowned philosopher and educator.

Donald Boydston had one of the longest tenures heading a department, with 33 years at the helm of health education. He also was the SIUC athletic director from 1957-1972.

MORE THAN JUST BEING A DONATION, THIS sizeable gift from the Boydstons is also something the SIUC administration needs. Desperately.

Cuts in state funding in the past and more proposed cuts in the future will, without a doubt, leave SIUC with less funds than it has now.

The answer to this problem seems obvious. We have to look to non-state funding alternatives, and one of these alternatives is private funding. An administration that knows how to obtain these private funds will serve the University well in the coming years too.

Currently, SIUC has only two endowed chairs, one being the Boydston. The first endowment fund was established in 1960 with a gift from the Ashland Oil Refinery Company. This endowed chair is also in COLA, in the economics department.

BUT, WHAT HAS TAKEN PLACE IN THE last 34 years? Unquestionably, our SIUC administrators worked at obtaining funds through other avenues, but 34 years is a large gap in major endowment chair funding, certainly less than what might be expected for an institution the size of SIUC.

It would be appropriate to mention something Donald Boydston said that makes this point only more evident — "Education is the only hope to solve societal and world problems."

The University thanks you both Jo Ann and Donald Boydston, and we wish you well in your future undertakings. Our hope is that more alumni, friends and well wishers will follow your lead and be just as generous.

Women bullied by feminists

According to feminists, all men are potential rapists and all women are potential victims. Daaa....! Men are also hard workers, courageous military personnel, contributing family members and potential graduate students. We men prefer to focus on the present and potentially positive aspects of our lives. Feminist, being your own biggest fans, overly flatter yourselves. The men I've come to know don't fantasize about loud mouthed females incapable of even social intercourse. Besides, most of you are not that good looking. Other organizations recognize achievement or lack thereof. Academy awards, aren't given to potential actors/actresses for pictures that aspire to be the best. Prisons don't admit people solely on the basis of potential to break the law. Personally, I don't mind if you feminist fail to live up to your "potential" and please forgive me if I don't live up to your version of my "potential." Feminist have grown to loath that meek, mindless woman of yesteryear. They have distanced themselves from the one who "fetched a beer" on command, and was tied to a stove, by setting differences in career goals and renouncing the role of the homemaker. Curiously enough, feminists have much in common with their so called mindless outdated female counterpart. Feminist knee jerk to the calling of the cause without my uncle's crystal blue boots hesitation or examination just as the homemaker did when dutifully obeying her husband. Knee jerk feminist followers have replaced that outdated loud mouth bullying husband with that of a new age loud mouth feminist bully. As you were there you are now, mindless followers. This is characteristic of a herd like mentality. Hardly the individualist feminist claim to be. If what I am saying is true, it's feminist who are oppressing females. Their message being, "don't let men push you around, let feminist." Followers don't examine the issues or their actions, convinced whatever position the feminist movement takes is validation enough.

Anti-Holocaust advertisement product of hate, printing was childish action on behalf of staff

Your printing last Thursday of an ad from The Committee for Open Debate on the Holocaust, and your defense of this action in Friday's paper were disgraceful, appalling, and childish. The ad claimed that the Holocaust is not historically verified.

In documents, in photographs, and most of all, in searing, traumatic personal histories, the Holocaust was real and its real effects continue to haunt the world today.

Why then does anyone pay for such an ad, much less print it?

As a scholar in religious studies and as former Chair of SIU's Religious Studies Department, I believe I can give a valid answer to that question. If any human opinion is fostered by deep love or by deep hate, it will seldom yield to any evidence to the contrary.

People who profoundly love their spouses, their children, their work, their homes, their country, their power or any other vested interest, are capable of defending these things to the last ditch, despite all the faults and failings of the objects of their love. People who profoundly hate any person or group of people can be equally unaffected by every contrary indication or evidence.

There are people who profoundly hate Jews and Jewish culture. One of the ways they justify their hate is to claim that Jews are among the world's worst exploiters. They cannot at the same time admit that such powerful exploitation is compatible with the sufferings with which Jews have been victimized in fact and in history. The anti-Holocaust ad is a product of such hate. The Egyptian's printing of that ad and its public defense for their act is a disgraceful and appalling support for that kind of hate.

Your stated policy is that you would never print anything which "encourages discrimination against any individual or group." But you have encouraged discrimination by printing the ad.

If the Egyptian's staff wished to claim that they do not share the hate which exists within their actions, then the best excuse they have is childishness. Anyone so foolish as to encourage the denial of Holocaust history at the very least has displayed an infantile level of intelligence and should be disciplined accordingly by their faculty and advisors.

—John F. Hayward

University," Brown said. "There is no money in the BHE (Board of Higher Education) budget for inflation and utilities."

Gov. Jim Edgar filled the board's budget request for a $86.4 million increase but the increase still leaves SUC short on funds.

Student Trustee Mark Kochan said the tuition increases are excessive because they are spread over two years.

"We could have a new governor next year offering more revenue for higher education," Kochan said. "We may have other funding (from the state) down the pipeline."

Between 1980 and 1990, tuition increased by about 270 percent at SUC, Kochan said.

"In the 1990s, we need to keep tuition at the rate of inflation," he said. "We have to keep the cost of education affordable."

SUC Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost Benjamin Shepherd said unfunded mandates, costs not covered by state funds — such as early retirement payouts, are costing the University about $5 million, which is one of the largest unpaid bills.

The SIU School of Law could face a 50 percent increase during the next two years, and Dean Harry Hayman said the increase is necessary to enhance the school's quality.

The trustees also will vote on the student activity fee and student medical benefit fee.

The student activity fee $3 increase was proposed by Undergraduate Student Government on Feb. 2 making the cost $18.75 a semester to meet the funds needed by registered student organizations.

Hall said the council is backing the activity fee increase.

According to a board agenda, the current funding of student organizations would be reduced if the increase does not pass.

Undergraduate Student Government president Mike Sprwak said with decreased student enrollment and increased participation in student organizations, an activity fee increase is necessary.

The trustees also will consider a $28 increase for the insurance premium. The premium cost would become $134 a semester.

According to the trustee agenda, the insurance premium is based on expenses from the 1992-93 contract year.

Kochan said he is not pleased with the insurance increase, but said it is necessary to maintain quality care.

"If (the increase) is the best price for the care being provided," he said, "it may be the best (price) we can get on it (without losing quality)."

Hall said the only alternatives were to stay with the same plan and face a $42 increase, go with the preferred-provider plan and pay a $28 increase, or pay nothing and cut coverage.

The council opted to choose the preferred provider plan that gives students a list of health care providers to choose from because it keeps costs low and offers good coverage.

manufacture of handguns (and) outlaw the importation," he said. "Slowly the supply will dry up, and the gangs will have a harder time getting guns."

Kelley said police patrols on foot also help deter crime.

"I'm strongly in favor of the resurgence of the notion of cops on the beat, who know the people in the neighborhood (and) who's new in the neighborhood," he said.

But Levitt expressed concern that the costs of foot patrols might outweigh the benefits.

"I don't think we need more cops," she said.

"The costs are enormous for states. We know that more cops on the street doesn't deter crime. Studies have been done."

A popular current proposal for controlling crime is the "three strikes and you're out" plan, which punishes violent offenders behind bars permanently after their third conviction.

Leggans said he supports such ideas, because they make it impossible for incorrigible offenders to continually harm others.

"The whole idea behind the incapacitation theory is that we are going to throw this person in jail and throw away the key," he said.

"Eventually you will lock up all the seriously violent criminals."

Self-care with over-counter drugs lessens common cold's symptoms

By Chris Labyk
Student Health Programs

It has been suggested that 75% of all illnesses are self-limiting meaning that the illness will run its natural course, or have no specific remedies.

The purpose of over-the-counter (OTC) drugs is to relieve the discomforts of an illness or condition until the body heals itself.

Four times as many health problems are treated by self-care and non-prescription drugs than are taken to health care professionals.

Misinformation and inaccurate beliefs often lead to unrealistic expectations, not only of what a health care professional can provide, but also what to expect of over-the-counter drugs.

For example, cold products do not cure or completely eliminate cold symptoms.

The majority of colds are caused by viruses that have temporarily invaded the body.

Cold symptoms, runny nose, congestion, and fever are the body's way of eliminating the invading organism, a sign that the body is working as it is supposed to.

To Your Health

There are no cures for viral illnesses, but there are products that can lessen the symptoms and increase comfort, but don't expect miracles. You should expect to feel under the weather for a while.

Poor health habits, staying up late, poor nutrition, smoking, and stress all contribute to increasing susceptibility to illness or prolonging symptoms once you are ill.

Cold products do not cure or completely eliminate cold symptoms

Commercials, magazine ads, friends, and previous experience are often the most common source of information of OTC products.

The increasing expansion of categories of non-prescription drugs make it more difficult to decide what to use. In fact, many products that were once prescription items are now over-the-counter.

Here are some guidelines for selecting and using OTC products: 1) choose single ingredients products, specific to the symptom, 2) read the labels and follow the instructions; more of a particular drug is not always better and may actually be harmful, 3) do not use someone else's medication, 4) become a wise consumer, learn about symptoms and treatments and how to use self-care resources to increase the likelihood of accurate diagnosis and treatment.

There are thousands of self-care foods on the market to help you make educated decisions, 5) have realistic expectations, and 6) if the problem persists, complications or questions arise, consult a health care professional.

The Student Health Programs have resources and staff to help you become a wiser medical consumer.

Fundraiser benefits workers, tastebuds

By Melissa Edwards
Entertainment Reporter

Chips and salsa, enchiladas, chicken mole — a list of authentic Mexican food can make your taste buds water and mind wander south of the border.

For a small contribution one can sample culinary delights and be entertained at a dinner to benefit the Intercambio Cultural Maya at 6 p.m. Friday at the Newman Catholic Student Center.

Karen Knott, campus minister at University Christian Ministries who helped form the group, said they support medical and construction projects in Mexico.

The group has a fundraiser in the fall to help defer the $795 cost of the trip to Mexico, but when last year's group was in Mexico, they ran out of money to buy much-needed medicine.

Jackie Badger, a senior in economics from Millstadt, said the evening's entertainment includes a combination of various student's experiences in Mayatecum.

Knott said the event is a way of bringing life to the village without only showing slides or pictures.

"The trip is really about understanding people — developing good relations (with other cultures)," he said.

Volunteers work side-by-side with the townspeople to help with the projects.

Knott said if students are interested in participating in the project, they should get on a waiting list as soon as possible.

of college students have at least five drinks at a time every two weeks.

The program also trains alcohol servers and liquor-store employees on how to take the focus off of alcohol and how to prevent a customer from becoming inebriated by showing concern and respect.

Ed Kleinschmidt, manager of Sidetracks, 101 West College Str., said the program is helpful and helps save lives. He said most of his employees attended the program last year, and new employees will attend this year.

Kleinschmidt said the best method taught is how to use tact when a customer must be cut off.

"They teach you other alternatives besides just throwing the customer out of the bar," he said.

Program coordinator Ann Feliu said she teaches people how to prevent becoming intoxicated.

Feliu said she teaches four behavioral cues that help servers know which level a person is at in their drinking.

The first cue that a customer is becoming intoxicated is lowered inhibition and in this stage, people will talk more and become more relaxed, Feliu said.

The second cue is impaired judgment, and servers may notice the customer become louder, laugh at things that are not funny or overrate themselves. One example of impaired judgment is if someone starts dancing while no one else is on the dance floor, she said.

Mark Schloemann, a therapist at Carbondale DUI and Counseling Associates, said it is difficult for bartenders to judge if someone is just tipsy or if someone is using tipsy as a subjective term.

"Someone can be tipsy or even intoxicated after one drink," he said.

Schloemann said bartenders can look for unbalanced movements and slurred speech, but at that point the customer is probably already drunk.

Feliu said when customers reach the impaired reactions level, they have more than likely reached the legal limit of .10. At this level, people lose their train of thought and fine motor movements, she said.

At the last level, the customer will lose gross motor movements such as walking and will probably have trouble sitting down or will be stumbling, she said.

Feliu said people should be cut off before they reach the last two levels because it is against the law in Illinois to serve a customer whose blood alcohol level (BAC) is more than .10.

She also said if someone gets pulled over by the police and they have a BAC between .05 and .09 they can get a DUI.

Employees are taught to suggest food or non-alcoholic beverages to people who are consuming alcohol, give customers a glass of water with their drink so they have something else to sip on and take time out to talk to the customers.

Separate classes are conducted for servers and liquor store employees; the server class runs five hours and the liquor store employee class runs three hours.

Those interested in more information about the classes or wanting to register should call Feliu at 684-3143 ext. 160.

Billiards grow in popularity

Pool players chalk up experience

Billiards have been around since the Renaissance, but in Carbondale, pool is experiencing a rebirth of its own.

Within the last six years, the popularity of pool has grown immensely, as illustrated by the rise in the number of establishments that offer the game, and a visit from one of the best pool players in the world.

On South Illinois Avenue alone, two bars, a former laundromat, and a record store have become pool halls within the last six years.

SIUC student Todd Adams said he plays pool an average of four days a week. His favorite place for pool is Gatsbys II, 610 S. Illinois Ave., but he does not like to play too much in one place.

"I like to catch different crowds, because that way you meet and play different people," he said.

But meeting people is not the only reason Adams gave for his pool hall migration.

"I try to play people who that will beat me," he said. "It sucks playing people who aren't any good. You don't learn anything that way."

Adams, a music major from Metropolis, said he can usually find good competition wherever he goes, but the toughest players he has faced were at Stix Bar and Billiards.

Stix, 517 S. Illinois Ave., opened six years ago and since then has been rated as the best pool hall in the state by the Chicago Tribune.

The co-owner of Stix, Gary Brooks, said pool does not bring in much money, but it brings people into the bar. He said there is usually a long waiting list for the tables on weekends.

"It gives people some kind of entertainment, and lots of people like to play these days, like it was years ago," he said.

Patrons of Stix have been entertained by others playing pool, too. In the first year it was open, Stix was host to pool master Buddy Hall, who was ranked No. 1 in the world at nine-ball, a game where balls one through nine must be sunk in consecutive order.

Hall gave an exhibition in which he played anyone in the bar that wanted to try a game with him. He beat everyone in the bar with the exception of Brooks' son, who was

see BILLIARDS, page 10

'Machine' leads heavy-sound show

By Heather Burrow
Entertainment Reporter

Two bands will deliver heavy alternative sound at Beach Bumz starting at 10 p.m. tonight.

Autumn Clock from Alton, which plays bars around St. Louis and is produced on Grinder Records owned by Fritz Beer, will start the show.

The band consists of Eric Hensley on bass guitar, Scott Cornell, playing drums and Todd Keith as vocalist.

Their new release, "Ready, set Apple Pies" will be released in June.

Leading the show, Green Machine from Minneapolis has three members. The organ player is Dave Krejci, guitarist, Sean Miland and drummer, Mark Munn.

Before this trio got together Miland and Krejci played in a band called Third Eye and Munn was in a band called Green Leafy Things.

Third Eye had four members with one being a bass player. "Our music had too much bass on the low end of the music spectrum. So, we got rid of the bass guitar and now use an organ instead."

"The organist uses his left hand to play the bass and, therefore, the individual sounds are easier to distinguish," Munn said.

The band's album "Sonic Lobotomy" appeared Wednesday and is available to special order from Disc Jockey.

This album was produced by Arthur Brown who is known for the song "Fire" popular in the 1960s.

"We are growing a little tighter as a band and writing music," Munn said, "The songs are more intense and more focused."

Menon said. After an election, the old president's term ends with the spring semester, but the new president officially does not take office until the beginning of the fall semester, Al-Bishtawi said.

Before officially becoming president, Abolaji said he presided at council functions, reserved the Student Center for International Festival '94, attended a workshop as a council representative and organized several council activities, including flood relief efforts.

Because there was no formal transferral of power from 1992-93 president Nicholas Agrotis to his successor, Abolaji assumed the role during the summer, he said.

Al-Bishtawi said the council made several recommendations to avoid similar problems in the future, including a constitutional change to clarify who is president during the summer, a $200 limit on money spent by the council's executive committee without council approval and prohibition of council payment for food and lodging expenses when members attend the conference.

After the committee presented its information to the council, Abolaji responded to the allegations and gave his interpretation of the facts.

He said it was not necessary to obtain council approval before using funds to attend the conference, because presidents-elect had gone without prior approval for the past five years.

But committee member Ali Firouzi said those who attended the conference previously either were sponsored by other organizations, such as International Programs and Services, or authorized to use council funds for the trip.

James Quisenberry, faculty adviser for the council, said he did not know of a president-elect submitting a written request to the council's executive committee for funds to attend the conference at any time during the past five years.

The current controversy stems from a disagreement between Abolaji and other council members concerning a soccer tournament last fall, he said.

Quisenberry said a fight broke out between members of two teams at the tournament and referees recommended that the players be suspended.

Quisenberry said Al-Bishtawi, Ali Kham, Wan Napi, Abolaji and two or three referees joined him in a special hearing to determine whether the players should be allowed to continue in the tournament.

A referee recommended that one of the teams be disqualified, but the recommendation was not upheld, Quisenberry said.

The council will meet Friday night to elect 1994-95 officers and discuss the constitution.

this whole situation (of Spiwak delegating power to Pickerrill) makes me feel like shit."

USG senators, such as Jami Bathon, said Henderson should be representing the student body at the Trustees meeting not only because the constitution states he should, but because he is more informed on issues regarding the proposed tuition increase.

"Terrie (Pickerrill) does a good job of representing USG, but as far as the tuition issue is concerned, Lorenzo is more prepared to represent the student body," Bathon said.

Bathon said she is afraid USG will not receive adequate representation at the Trustees meeting.

Pickerrill said she is prepared to thoroughly represent USG at the Trustees meeting because she spent Wednesday with Mark Kochan, student trustee, and Susan Hall, Graduate and Professional Student Council President, becoming informed on the issues of the tuition increase.

Pickerrill said she will read the USG resolution that opposes the tuition increase before the trustees today.

GPSC Representative Bill Hall said Spiwak's appointment of Pickerrill over Henderson brings to light interesting questions of ethics within student government.

"I think an important question to ask here is whether a president of USG or GPSC has the authority to by-pass an elected vice president for an appointee," Hall said.

Henderson originally announced his resignation for noon today, but he chose to wait on this decision after speaking with Hall and Senator Larry Jackson.

"I am now only considering resignation because I passionately feel we (USG) can do more to represent the concerns of the student body," Henderson said.

only a teenager at the time. "I think he let him win," Brooks said.

SIUC Student Steve Gamburg plays at many area pool halls, but said he likes Gatsbys and Mugsy McGuires, 1620 W. Main, on the weekends because there is less of a wait for tables.

"At (Gatsbys and Mugsy's), most of the people double up on tables because they use coin tables," he said. "If people are friendly, you can plop 50 cents on the table and be in line to play the winner of the game that's going on."

Gamburg, an automotive major from Niles, said the turnover of tables at Six was not as high because players have to leave their I.D. at the desk to play there.

Mugsy McGuires just opened its game room in October, a popular addition according to manager Craig McClellan.

McClellan said the new room, has increased business, especially at night.

"We're packed from Thursday to Saturday night, and people stay later than they used to," he said. "It was pretty rare that we would stay open until 2 a.m., but now it's pretty common."

McClellan said they opened the game room because the owners were not happy with the way the comedy shows offered by Mugsy's were going, so they decided to give pool a try.

McClellan said the pool tables at Mugsy's are the largest coin tables available. They were provided by a Murphysboro vending company, which also services the tables, and provides cues and balls. The vending company and Mugsy's split the income from the tables.

"We like the situation because we only had to change the room around," McClellan said. "We didn't have to buy the tables and we don't have to repair them."

Both Gamburg and Adams said the equipment and tables at Power Players are in the best shape.

"That guy takes care of his tables and waxes his balls," Adams said.

Roger Herpel, owner of Power Players, 815 S. Illinois Ave., said his nine pool tables compromise about 50 percent of the revenue of his business, which also contains 28 video games.

He opened the billiards room two years ago, and said he takes better care of his equipment than other places.

Manager Neal Barnstable said that all the felt is vacuumed and the rails are cleaned every morning.

"We also thoroughly clean and refelt the tables every three months, whether they need it or not," he said.

The Student Center also offers billiards, with 14 pool tables and one snooker table.

Student worker Gordon Bartolomei said the Student Center has been offering a cheaper alternative for pool since around 1965. He said the equipment at the Student Center is kept in good repair.

"We have three large groupings of pool cues, and while one is in use, the others are being repaired," he said.

Carbondale resident Dave Bauman said most of the tables are in good shape no matter where they are, but he has run into some low quality pool cues. He said if people are serious about pool they should get their own cue.

"You can find cues out there for up to $800," he said, "but it really doesn't matter if you pay $300 or $800. The only difference when you get into that range is how the sticks work."

Adams said he likes playing pool because it requires much thought, and a little luck.

"Pool is good because it is a thinking game, kind of like chess," he said.

State. The Salukis will look to improve on last year's mark of finishing last in a 19-team field. SIUC will be the only Missouri Valley Conference school competing.

SIUC will be led by junior Lieschen Eller, the newly named MVC Golfer of the Week, who won the Western Kentucky Invite last weekend.

Eller has a 79.4 stroke average for fall-spring; she has scored in the 70's in nine of 18 rounds and has been SIUC's top finisher in seven consecutive outings.

The Salukis will also be looking to have big matches from senior Dana Rasmus who had a career-best 77 at the Indiana Invitational and junior Laura Stefanich who averages an 83.9 per round of golf.

Hasenstab's senior season had been one to forget until she returned to the lineup last weekend. She had been suffering with a nerve problem in her left arm which kept her out of the lineup for all but five times this season.

The three-year starter at third base has been acclaimed for her defense (.943 pct), but has also been respected for her offensive abilities.

Hasenstab, majoring in teacher education, was a 1994 All-Missouri Valley preseason selection. As the number nine hitter, the left-handed swinger has a career .248 batting average with 53 hits and 30 runs. She was a second-team All-Missouri Valley pick in 1993 and is a two-time Gateway All-Academic selection.

Klotz, majoring in program services, started at second base her sophomore and junior seasons. She made the transition over to shortstop this year because of an injury to freshman Dawn Daenzer.

She currently ranks in the top 10 in nine career SIUC offensive categories - sacrifice hits, total sacrifices, sacrifice flies, walks, at bats, runs, games played, hits, and doubles.

Klotz slugged her first career home run over spring break against Yale and is having one of her better offensive seasons. She is currently hitting .329 with a team-high 21 runs and 15 RBI's.

Tania Meier, majoring in therapeutic recreation, is only in her second year at SIUC, but she has made quite an impact on the Saluki pitching staff.

Meier, a native of New Zealand, transferred from Illinois Central College. She has collected a 20-10 career record at SIUC with 24 complete games, nine shutouts, and a 1.46 ERA.

Although only in her second year as a Saluki, Meier is in the SIUC record book in five categories - she is tied for fourth in shutouts, tied for fifth in saves, sixth in ERA, seventh in wins, and tied for seventh in complete games.

The acquisition of Meier in 1992 made her only the second southpaw at SIUC and the first since Karen King in 1979. Meier's graduation opens up a slot for the Salukis third left-hander, freshman Buffy Blust.

For the past four years, catching and Laurie Wilson have almost been synonymous.

The mathematics major from South Bend, Ind., has started 169 of 173 games played. Wilson first impressed college softball coaches and her conference when she was named 1991 Gateway Rookie of the Year. Since then she has been a two-time All-Conference pick, an MVC First Team selection, collected MVC All-Tournament team honors, and been a two-time All-Gateway Academic pick.

Wilson's 12 career and 27 single-season marks in SIUC's record book have had a lot to do with the honors she has received.

She set the SIUC record for career sacrifice flies earlier this season while notching her 109th RBI to become only the second Saluki to surpass the century mark. Wilson is in the top 10 in career hits, runs, RBI's, doubles, triples, homeruns, total bases, slugging percentage, walks, and at bats.

These four seniors and their teammates will host a doubleheader with Northern Iowa on Friday before being honored on Saturday in their two contests with Drake.

Next Thursday the Salukis will make their final appearance at the IAW Fields in a twinbill with SIUC.

Arkansas State's manager, Bill Bethea, obviously thought he could make better calls than Wednesday afternoon's umpire at Abe Martin Field. The Salukis lost the game, 8-6, despite leading 6-1 going into the contest's sixth inning.

Late rally lifts Arkansas St.

By Grant Deady
Sports Reporter

The Saluki baseball team has had to learn the hard way this season that no lead is too big.

SIUC was ahead 6-1 against Arkansas State Wednesday afternoon heading into the sixth inning, but allowed the Indian bats to tomahawk back for an 8-6 ASU victory.

The Salukis jumped out to an early lead in the bottom of the first when Dan Esplin hit a two out double to left field. Pete Schlosser followed with a double to right center, scoring Esplin to put SIUC up 1-0. Clint Smothers then stepped in and hit a single that knocked in Schlosser for a 2-0 Dawg lead.

Arkansas State got one back in the top of the second off Saluki starter Dan Davis, but the SIUC bats came striking back in the bottom of the third inning.

Scott DeNoyer started the rally by being hit by a pitch and was moved to third when Esplin reached on a fielder's choice. Both players eventually scored on errors by ASU's catcher to push SIUC ahead, 4-1.

The Salukis then added single runs in the fourth and fifth innings off an RBI sacrifice fly by DeNoyer and a single by Braden Gibbs to go up 6-1 heading into the sixth.

Arkansas State pecked away at the SIUC lead with one run in the top of the sixth and then opened the flood gates on Saluki reliever Dave Farrow, who replaced Davis after going 5 1/3 innings.

The Indians poured in four runs in the top of the seventh off just three hits and one error to tie the game at six a piece.

SIUC's bats remained on ice in the bottom of the seventh and ASU took the lead with two runs in the top of the eighth to go ahead for good, 8-6.

The Dawgs were unable to muster up any runs through the last four offensive frames of the game and fell to 15-14 on the season.

Farrow took the loss for SIUC to even up his season record on the mound to 2-2.

Action heats up again today at Abe Martin Field when the Salukis battle the Orahkians of Southeast Missouri State at 3 p.m.

Four softball seniors hanging it up for SIUC

By Chris Walker
Sports Reporter

Hasenstab, Klotz, Meier, Wilson.

The four names have become household ones for Saluki softball fans over the past four years, but soon they will fade into memories.

These seniors, who have helped the Salukis to a 127-52-1 record over the past four seasons, will be honored this Saturday when they play their final MVC contests of the season against Drake.

Two of the seniors, Maura Hasenstab and Jenny Klotz, graduated from Belleville West High School.

Golfers take to Georgia, nation's top to compete

By James J. Fares
Sports Reporter

The SIUC lady linksters have a long trip ahead of them this weekend as they travel to Athens, Ga., to participate in the 22nd Annual Women's Southern Intercollegiate Championship.

The championship play will take place at the UGA Golf Course in Athens. There will be 20 teams participating in the tournament, ranging from all over the country. The likes of Hawaii, Illinois, Indiana, Alabama, Rollins, Texas Christian, Georgia, Furman, and the Saluki women are only some of the top teams that are competing.

The USG Golf Course is a par

73 and totals 6,114 yards in length. Last year's returning champion San Jose State will not be competing in this competition. The Spartans won the last match-up by five strokes over Furman and seven shots over Georgia. Individual winners consisted of San Jose State's Lisa Walton, who shot an unbelievable second and third round (78-73-71) to total out at 222 and give her the title over Caroline Peek from Furman. Those two schools should be the favorites again at this championship.

SIUC will tee-off at 9:20 a.m. on Friday along with Southern Methodist University and Ohio

Dawgs sign JUCO standout

By Dan Leahy
Sports Editor

The SIUC men's basketball program wasted little time in taking advantage of a one-month signing period which started Wednesday, as the Dawgs announced Jaratio Tucker has signed a national letter of intent to join the Salukis next season.

Tucker, a 6-4 junior college standout, has played the past two seasons at Northern Oklahoma College and is expected to compete for a starting job on an SIUC roster which returns three of five starters.

Tucker was a leader in just his sophomore season, as his 16.9 points-per-game average helped his club to a 17-14 record and a co-championship in the Oklahoma Bi-State Conference.

SIUC head coach Rich Herrin said Tucker's stats are a good indication of talent, as the Bi-State Conference is one of the toughest junior college leagues in the country.

Tucker averaged 11.5 points a game his freshman season, but bolstered his scoring by shooting 33 percent from three-point range, 48 percent overall from the field and 69 percent from the line. He also averaged 5.8 rebounds a game and two assists while garnering co-player of the year honors in the conference.

Northern Oklahoma head coach Mick Weiberg said Tucker's main asset is versatility.

"Jay is one of those players capable of doing many things," he said. "He's a great defensive player, rebounds well and can step up and shoot the ball when needed. If anything, Jay needs to concentrate on improving his shooting skills, but he's a fierce competitor, a great young man and I know he'll handle that as well."

Herrin said the acquisition of Tucker adds a little depth to the guard spot.

"He's a very fine player who can play three positions for us at the number one or two guard spot and the number three position," Herrin said. "He's definitely a team player with some leadership abilities who will give us some needed depth at the guard positions next season."

Paul Luak is the only Saluki guard returning with starting experience.
