Passing the baton: Sanders' legislative ties to help him fulfill his SIU educational duties.

When Ted Sanders, the new SIU chancellor, came to campus earlier in the semester, he was an unknown visitor to most people.

On Thursday, Sanders was officially recognized as SIU's new chief executive officer as SIU Board of Trustees Chairman A. D. VanMeter and Chancellor James Brown introduced him at press conferences on campuses at Edwardsville, Carbondale and Springfield.

Sanders, as chancellor, is ready to take on Springfield and Washington D.C.

SIUC President John Guyon said Sanders' appointment will help the university system.

"I'm very glad to have a new chancellor who has external skills and policies," Guyon said.

Specifically, Guyon said Sanders' political capabilities and connections with state legislators in Springfield and federal policy makers in Washington D.C. will make him a contributor to the SIU system.

Sanders' political background includes a deputy position and acting Secretary of Education under President George Bush in which he advised the administration on higher education policies.

"I have worked with people on both side of the aisles," Sanders said, "I advocate good policy in education."

The chancellor is a university representative in the public forum on a state and national level. The chancellor executes and enforces the policies of the president and the board of trustees.

The SIU Board of Trustees only discussed raising the athletic fee Thursday, but it is expected to take action next month on the issue and other fee increases.

Mark Kochan, SIUC student trustee, recommended the proposed athletic fee increase despite a recent student referendum opposing it. SIUC students voted 314-140 against the fee increase proposal Monday.

"When the IHBE recommended that no public money go to support athletics, there were some schools that basically put all of the burden on the students, and I commend the administration for not going that route," Kochan said. "I think there has been some work to seek additional revenue sources to support the athletic program."

A majority of the Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board recommended Thursday that the city's bar-entry fee be raised to $7 per entry, despite Undergraduate Representative Michael Nolan's objections.

A referendum opening the higher age limit was passed by this week by the SIUC student body. Nolan raised issues of safety and jurisdiction, but most board members said they saw no reason for undergraduate students to be in the bars.

"It seems a little bit of a farce to let them in the bars, I don't think they participate in the primary purpose of the establishment," said LAB member Larry Juble.

Nolan said the decision will jeopardize the safety of freshmen and create a sharp division between the University and city.

"It's going to break down the city and University into two separate things," he said. "Does the city care about what the students need, or just want our money?"

Board member Joyce Hayes said bars must be serving underage students or they would not want them in their establishment.

"If the city is serious about ending underage drinking it should raise the bar entry age," she said. "Students go to bars to drink, and bartenders wouldn't want them there if they were not drinking."

Underage drinking in bars is easier to supervise than the many private parties that would result if the 19- and 20-year-olds could not go to the bars, Nolan said.

"If a fight starts in a bar, it's over in thirty seconds," he said. "A fight at a party lasts until they are tired or hurt."

A majority of the board for the Bald Knob Cross Corporation recommended go to increase the athletic fee Thursday. They would ask the city if the city was serious about ending the fee increase proposal Monday.

"The additional money would not go to increase the athletic budget," he said. "The net money would be put back into services and the education of the students." RELIQUE CULT LEADER PREDICTS EARTHQUAKE
"Tokyo-More than 10,000 Japanese police set up roadblocks across the country Tuesday in an attempt to arrest more leaders of the Aum Supreme Truth religious group, as its cult leader predicted that Tokyo would be hit by an earthquake Saturday. A day after Tokyo Governor Shintaro Ishihara's warning of a quake and another unspecified disaster in the capital, is expected to last through the weekend, the country's leader and prime minister, in hiding. A spokesman relayed the prophecy in a statement issued to reporters.

RUSSIAN TROOPS RAVAGE CHECHNYAN TOWN-
"MOGOW-At least 47 civilians were massacred last weekend by Russian troops who rounded up and executed nearly 500 Chechens in the southwestern Chechnya, leaving behind burned bodies and using summary execution procedures. Russia's law enforcers and Russian rights activists said Thursday. Some reports put the death toll at 250. The last rival Chechen, Dzhokhar Dudayev, was killed two days earlier under pressure from civilians who feared Russian reprisals if the parliamentarian was allowed to claim victory, which was denied. They said many of the soldiers injected themselves with drugs during the massacre.

BRIEF BOHB COMMENT IGNITES ANGER IN JAPAN-
"TOKYO-A brief and tone-deaf comment by President Clinton has stirred outrage among Japanese politicians and sparked renewed debate that the President's rapportology for having used the atomic bomb in World War II. This latest outburst was prompted at a meeting in Dallas last weekend when Clinton was asked whether the United States should apologize for dropping the atomic bomb in Japan.

ELECTRONIC TAX RETURN EXPERIENCES DOWNSIDE-
"WASHINGTON-Electronic tax return filing, touted by the Internal Revenue Service as its best hope for faster, more-accurate processing of returns, has faltered dramatically since last year. It's the result of a policy official's plan, of their effort to stamp out refund fraud. The number of returns filed electronically last year was 10.2 million, or just $22 million at the same point in the filing season last year, according to IRS figures. And even though a new program that allows some people with small refunds to file online will return the number of returns, non-paper filing overall is down 17.5 percent so far this year.

OIL COMPANIES MAY HAVE UNDERPAID ROYALTIES-
"WASHINGTON—Major oil companies may have underpaid royalty payments to the federal government. All of which ties into the upcoming November elections. An Interior Department internal report made public Wednesday. In California, where all royalty payments are turned over to the public education system, the report was based on a study of oil company's tax returns.

HOPEFUL POINTS TO "CULTURAL MELTDOWN"
"WASHINGTON—Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., proclaiming himself "leader of all the crusaders" along with the nation's largest religious group, a cult, on Thursday, adding another strongly conservative voice to the ever-expanding GOP fold. Dornan, 62, whose reputation in the House rests on his free-swinging debates with liberals, presented himself as a "mainstream Republican" who would press everyone in the race to make the 1996 campaign "the best of all time."

Domestic violence cross-cultural concern

By Michael B. Deford
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Domestic violence among Asian Americans is not a common subject in the media, a women's shelter official said. Ranjana Bhargava, executive director of Chicago's Apna Ghar Women's Shelter, spoke to an audience of 26 Wednesday night in the SIUC Student Center Video Lounge about domestic violence among Asian American women.

"Domestic violence was not a media topic a few years ago. It is not a topic you read or even hear much about," Bhargava said. "In 1988, 150 Asian, Pakistan and Indian women living in the United States filed for court protection and no one even knew about it.

"So many women were asked for help where there was none," Bhargava said the Apna Ghar Women's Shelter started because of a lack of resources available to Asian American women subjected to domestic violence.

Bhargava said the shelter's philosophy is that every woman has a right to live and be accepted in society, to have dignity and self-respect and to not be made to feel inferior.

"All women feel domestic violence is just physical abuse," she said. "It is also emotional abuse, sexual abuse and it is psychological abuse.

Bhargava said Asian women are most often victims of emotional abuse. She said many women are told they are nagging, unattractive, insecure and should be thrown out on the street.

"Generally, Asian women are portrayed as passive, unassertive and obedient," she said. "Asian communities are portrayed as very quiet and hard working and a community that takes care of its own people.

Bhargava said this stereotyping creates the illusion that there is no problem among Asian women.

Bhargava said many Asian women refuse to take action against abusive spouses because of devotion and loyalty to the husband.

"Traditionally, a woman who is born is dedicated to be the daughter first, a wife second and then a mother," she said. "Those are the three roles an Asian woman has to fulfill and any other action she wants to take is not conforming to the norms.

"They are expected to comply with the rules of the country and not go outside the traditional boundaries." Bhargava said the shelter faces several difficulties when dealing with victims of domestic violence.

"There are language and culture barriers which limit our abilities in obtaining the proper

'This semester SIUC's Student Center Special Programs will bring a small part of France to campus. Not exactly in earth, but in art, people, music and food.

'A full-course meal comprised of French cuisine, including the French-American Village's Poulet Raisin Aux Herbes (roast chicken), Ceviche Dauphinois (potatoes au gratin) and Caravanserai (lemon sorbet), will be provided at Soiree Francoise, A - Cabaret: A Taste of France.

'The French-born and raised musician, Cecile Savage, will bring her jazzy upright bass to the faux cabaret Saturday night as well. She was born in France in Fort de France, Martinique, an island in the French West Indies. She grew up in Paris where she studied classical piano at the age of seven. By 1968 she began to study philosophy, Russian and Arabic at the Faculte de Nanterre, but decided to drop out and move to America.

'Once in New York she began to study piano at the age of seven. By 1968 she began to study philosophy, Russian and Arabic at the Faculte de Nanterre, but decided to drop out and move to America.

Rosetta acquires Varsity's foreign, artistic films

By Benjamin Golshahr
Daily Egyptian Reporter

When Varsity Movie Store closed, Carbondale residents lost access to the area's largest compilation of foreign and art films.

Several attempts were made to keep the collection together, and it was offered to SIUC's Morris Library at one point, but the deal fell through. It was rumored that the film collection was broken up and the movies were sold individually during the store's recent video clearance sale.

This was not the case.

Rosetta News, a media store located at 310 S. Freeman St., managed to purchase the film collection from extinction.

"Well, what happened was that Varsity closed down and nobody was going to pick up the bill and run with it," said Rosetta News owner Michael Buila. "We got involved because there was a need for an outlet (so students and the community) could access foreign and art films.

The 200-plus films in the collection will be available for rental today at a rate of $2 per night. The films are back before closing the next day. Rosetta is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday.

The collection includes such titles as "Mystery Train," "The Great Room," "The Crying Game," "The Draught Horse," "Naked Lunch." Buila said for at least the first year, all profits made from film rentals will be off-budget, meaning all profits will be donated directly into the purchase of more film titles.

"We got involved... (so students and the community) could access foreign and art films.

Early closing of Rec Center unnecessary

MANY STUDENTS MAY FEEL INCONVINCED by a decision to close the Recreation Center earlier in the evening for the duration of the semester. The decision was justified by Recreation Center officials because of a decrease in attendance of evening hours last spring. This rationale is not sufficient justification for the early closing of a Center which is almost entirely funded by fees charged to every student on campus. By redirecting its resources, the Recreation Center could and should open until 10 p.m. for the remainder of April.

The Recreation Center closed at 10 p.m. Monday through Friday at the beginning of the semester, but now the Center closes at 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8 p.m. on Friday.

FIGURES PROVIDED BY THE CENTER'S OFFICE
of administration show that from the winter to the spring of 1994, use of the Center decreased from an average of 3,011 people per night in February to 2,190 in March. Since the Center bases its schedule each year on trends of the previous year, these figures helped determine the early closing of the Center during the spring.

With a little reworking of the Center's budget, it would seem the Center could have remained open compared to the Center's overall budget — could easily be found to keep the facility open later. McMinn has agreed that it would be possible to keep the Center open for an extra hour or two while working under the same budget.

BLAME FOR THE EARLY CLOSING CANNOT BE fully placed on the shoulders of the Center's administration, however. Before the hours for this semester were set and early closing decisions were made, a student advisory board which included representatives from the Undergraduate Student Government and the Graduate and Professional Student Council was consulted. According to McMinn, there was no opposition to the schedule from the Student Senate or the USC and GFSC representatives are elected by the student body to seek out the best possible conditions for students on campus that are possible. Student representatives on the board should have opposed it strongly because it is not the best possible use of their constituents' fees.

EARLIER CLOSING OF THE CENTER IN THE spring is not a new phenomenon this semester; it has closed early during this season for the past several years. There fore, if students want to see the Center remain open later during the spring semester, in reality they are going to have to speak up. McMinn has said he is open to suggestions from students and student government.

In a time when alternative activities for students, other than beer-hopping, are being sought by various campus groups, the Center should be expanding its nighttime hours — not reducing them. It is time for students to receive what they are already paying for.

Guyon's prayer decision correct

I must respectfully dissent from the views of my fellow law students who have petitioned University President John Guyon to include prayer at University graduation ceremonies.

The argument that a prayer conducted at a college graduation might be found constitutional by the present Supreme Court begs the question of whether it should be found constitutional.

The core meaning of the First Amendment's Establishment Clause is that government should remain neutral on matters religious. The government should protect everyone's right to practice religion, but it is not the government's role to promote religious belief. Religious groups have every right to promote such beliefs on their own. They do not have a right, however, to insist that the government provide assistance in that endeavor.

The fact that college students are not as impressiveable as high-school students is irrelevant to the principle at stake.

Members of minority religions, atheists and agnostics have a right to attend state functions without being involuntarily subjected to religious proselytizing of any kind.

Two law students quoted in the article suggested that only "a few people" are opposed to state-sponsored prayer. One of the purposes of the Constitution, however, is to safeguard the rights of minorities against majorities who seek to use government machinery for self-serving ends.

Lake project reflects Saluki pride

On Saturday, April 1, I witnessed a truly blendering blend of Saluki community enthusiasm and effort. Over 100 individuals devoted many hours of labor by digging, raking and planting seeds of specialized grasses and wildflowers and hundreds of "forbs" (prairie plants) to establish a prairie about 1,000 feet long by 40 feet wide in the cleared Egyptian Electric Co-op right-of-way just west of the University and the community.

The project was supported by the cooperation of Egyptian Electric Co-op, the Illinois Department of Conservation; a nucleus of "Friends of the Lake on the Campus"; a local high school; the city of Carbondale; and the Illinois Natural History Survey.

The project demonstrated the Saluki spirit in its finest form by enthusiastically contributing something of lasting value to the University and the community.

The effort to maintain and beautify this strip of prairie may continue annually adding new varieties of prairie species. As the Saluki prairie grows and blooms through the years, those who view it will benefit from its enrichment of the educational, environmental and aesthetic quality of the Lake on the Campus.

While this is a very big issue," she said. "Many women fear deportation if they file a complaint regarding domestic violence, bowever, any battered woman has the right to file on her own without the fear of being deported under the battered woman waiver.

The waiver, passed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service last January, permits any battered woman to file for protection on her own. Bhargava said the shelter ensures that women will be helped, but prefers that the woman learn to stand on her own alone. She said the waiver is intended for cases where the woman is too afraid to go to court.

The court said the opposition would not have enough to run the station after paying the fee, he said. Westcountry's investors were apprehensive about the station funds into the operation until the appeals were over, so the company consisted of only seven people just six months before going on the air, Thomas said. "To save costs we made the outfit a high-tech, state-of-the-art facility," Thomas said. "For about two years we were the most modern television station in Europe.

The station employed one technical operator to run five robotic cameras, Thomas said. Mike Story, chairman of the Radio and Television department at SUIC, said the new technologies in Britain are being employed more quickly than in the United States. Sir David Nicholas, a retired chairman of Britain's Independent Television News and chairman of the board for the all-talk radio station, said when commercial broadcasting began in 1955 nearly everyone was opposed to it. "When commercial broadcasting began people thought it would bend the news," Nicholas said, but despite the huge competition in the industry as of late, the news has always been fairly objective.

Both men are important people in the development of commercial television and radio, Starr said. "It's really an honor to have a couple of major players from British broadcasting to come here," he said.

Three strikes' legislation may be out in court: 25-year-to-life for priors may soon be overlooked

Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — The California Supreme Court, accepting its first "three strikes" case, was Thursday to determine whether judges can warn some criminals more than once when a conviction requires 25-year-to-life sentences for more than one offense. The court's ruling, expected within a year, should establish whether judges can make interpretations of convictions. But what records are nonviolent.

The court's interpretation of the "law is conditioned critically because of "the inconsistencies and contradictions in the wording of the initiative and a Roseburg District Court judge that precluded it. "Both of them are a nightmare," said San Diego Deputy Public Defender Gary Nichols, who will argue the defendant's case before the court. Some judges have decided to ignore prior violent convictions rather than hand down 25-year-to-life sentences for more crimes that trigger the "three strikes" law. In the case before the court, San Diego judge dismissed two previous convictions for burglary and attempted burglary when sentencing Jesus Rojas, 24, for cocaine possession.

Instead, the judge sentenced him to six years in prison for possessing a small amount of cocaine.

But the San Diego district attorney's office appealed. The Court of Appeal in San Diego ruled in the prosecution's favor, holding that judges have no such discretion in "three strikes" cases. Responding to a petition by the defendant, the California Supreme Court voted unanimously to take the case.

The vote means that the San Diego appellate ruling cannot be cited as precedent pending pending the Supreme Court's decision.

dications and regulations of the board and recommends policy amendments or additions. As chancellor, Sanders will preside over SIUC, including the Law School, SIUE and the School of Medicine at Springfield as well as the School of Dentistry at Alton. From 1985 to 1989, Sanders was the Illinois Superintendent of Schools. During that time, Sanders was a leader and communicator in education organizations striving for school improvement, according to a news release.

Sanders, who is currently the Ohio chief of schools, will officially take office July 1 and will have an annual salary of $160,000 plus an $18,000 housing allowance and use of a University-owned car, according to a Board of Trustees press release.

"Mr. Sanders is a very capable and outstanding person," VanMeter said. Sanders said his no. 1 priority is to "get to know staff and system" before he officially takes office.

Sanders said SIU system will be well served with a chancellor. "SIU will be served well with a chancellor," Sanders said. "I knew she was good and, I wanted to be with her, but I needed to go along with it, so A Taste of France" sounded good," he said.

"We started out with "Taste of India,"" he said. "350 people showed up and that got the ball rolling. It was tough telling them we had no more tickets."
Cottontails

Every bunny loves some bunny sometime

By Kellie Hutter
Daily Egyptian Reporter

In less than 48 hours the streets of Carbondale will be crowded into a bunny trial as Peter and his sister Pamela Cottontail deliver eggs and candy to the children who believe.

Pamela Cottontail, a big brown bunny with fluffy ears and a powder-puff tail, has been at the University of Illinois since March 1 for about a month, sitting in front of her bunny house, listening to the Easter bunny stories told to area children and college students.

"I see about 100 kids each day," she said. "Each child is amazed at the kind of stuff they want in their Easter baskets — jelly beans, chocolate bunnies and marshmallow peeps are the candies they like."

She also receives letters from children simply addressed E. Bunny.

Pamela said this Saturday night is her favorite night of the year, as she and Peter distribute candy and treats across town.

"I'm a lot like Santa Claus," she said. "I really have to top it to get it all done the night before Easter — it's magic."

Although the brother-sister team distributes the goodies late Saturday night, many monther help color eggs for the rabbits to hide, Pamela said.

Pamela and while most people think the Easter bunny visits only children, she always remembers the college students.

"Some college students even visit me and tell me what they would like in their Easter baskets," she said.

Meg Wolley, a sophomore in interior design from Champaign, said she is staying in Carbondale for the weekend and would be thrilled to be visited by the Easter Bunny.

"I'd love candy, stuffed animals and an Easter basket," she said. "Actually, I'd settle for anything."

Adam Hurst, a junior in speech communications from Peoria, said he is expecting more money from the Easter Bunny.

"You never know how much you'll get until you open up that little plastic egg," he said.

"I could really use the money now because I'm going away. I'll spend it on going out to eat and some wine. I'm already stressed out and it's not even finals week."

SLUC international community traditions not all Easter-act the same at Easter time

By Dustin Coleman
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Before Ronnie Siddondo came to the United States, he had never eaten an Easter egg.

Siddondo, a junior in journalism from Kenya, said when he spent his first Easter as an adult, he was surprised because the practices are so different than those back home.

"I have not understood the sacrifice Jesus made for those who were talking about," he said.

Although the big cross population, SLUC has just as many ways of celebrating Easter as it does student diversity and differences.

Siddondo said besides the eggs, there are other things his country does that are different during the holiday that is what is done in the United States.

Siddondo, a Catholic, said nearly all of Kenya closes down from Friday through Monday to celebrate the sacrifice Jesus made for everyone around the world.

"It really surprised me that people here do not celebrate as much as they should," he said. "It is necessary that everyone gives a moment of silence out of respect."

Another country with different traditions is Cyprus — which uses eggs, but with a twist — said Tony Klasli.

Klasli, a junior in hotel and restaurant management from Cyprus, said students play many games with Easter eggs, and in many cases the eggs get smashed.

In one game, an egg is hung from a tree branch by a string, with two people standing across from each other, knocking the egg back and forth with their foreheads. The first to break the egg in their mouth wins, Klasli said.

Wilson said the flower Service used the cross as a fire tower when it was first built. He said the FBI now uses the cross as a booster antenna.

A Sunday school class taught by Rev. Steve Klasli’s father in 1938 built three small wooden crosses that stand near the base of the cross.

Wilson said the first cross on Bald Knob was wooden and was built by a crew of men hired with light bulbs was attached to the side of a fire tower, and was powered by a motor pulled by a local farmer’s tractor.
Spice of life: Moon Island to perform musical variety

By Kristi Dehority
Daily Egyptian Reporter

You want it, they play it or have played it. You could even play it with them, if you're good enough. Moon Island, an evolutionary band from St. Louis, defies categorization by playing every kind of music with an eclectic approach. Besides being the driver of the group's van, Beth Tuttle, lead vocalist, has the reputation of being a blues singer in the Gateway, but defines herself as a singer of songs. "I break genres and consider myself a Pinch Penny stylist," Tuttle said. "I sing songs that show off the voice."

"I'm a lot more motivated by telling the truth and enjoying it. I go for the emotional hook." Tuttle said the band plays everything from bluegrass, Dixie, Celtic, jazz grass and country. Since the band plays a broad range of music, she says it does not fit in any category. "We defy categorization," Tuttle said. "You can't call us a traditional jazz band, we are very polyesthe-

talist, harmonica, banjo, bodhran (Irish drums) and percussions. Tuttle said the band appeals to the intellectual and emotional aspects of music and to the listening crowd. She said the band does best in venues where people are paying attention. "We develop that listening atmosphere," she said. "People may be talking, etc., in spite of themselves (audience), we get the people involved. "We get that kind of enthusiasm, (from people) that are very admiring of the quality that they are getting for their time and money," she said. Tuttle said the band just finished a demo tape and hopes to find someone to finance a recording. She said the band will continue to play a couple nights a week and do special gigs but are happy in St. Louis. "I'm playing with the best guys on the block and there is a lot going on musically in St. Louis," Tuttle said.

Moon Island, a St. Louis based band, stretches the boundaries of categorization by playing all kinds of music from jazz to country. The group will perform at Pinch Penny Pub Saturday at 9 p.m.

The campaign-wide blackout last night was as perfect time for vandalizing because no one was watching. The Southern Hills Apartments was a target.

Sergeant Frank Evaldi of University Police said four vehicles, including the one driven by Goyon, were vandalized.

"There was no tool found at the scene so the officer could not determine what was used," Evaldi said.

M. G. Greenfield, a graduate student in engineering from Minneapolis, Minnesota, said the vandalism was one of a few incidents around the university.

"He said he believes the incident occurred during the blackout, between 2 a.m. and 5 a.m."

Greenfield said that in the area, and that the police do not process vandalism complaints until an employee came to the area to give tickets.

"We pay rent here and we are supposed to be able to park in the lot," he said.

"The police told me they cannot be here 24 hours a day but it seems like they are around here giving tickets 24 hours a day," Evaldi said. University Police patrols the area during the blackout.

Pilot of crashed plane previously forced to resign

WASHINGTON—The pilot of American Eagle Flight 3379, which crashed on Dec. 13 at Raleigh-Durham International Airport and killed 15 people, was forced to resign from an airline for a year because a supervisor feared that he "may freeze up or panic in an area, and that the police do not process vandalism complaints until an employee came to the area to give tickets." We pay rent here and we are supposed to be able to park in the lot," he said.

"The police told me they cannot be here 24 hours a day but it seems like they are around here giving tickets 24 hours a day," Evaldi said. University Police patrols the area during the blackout.

"The email was from a friend of mine," Goyon said. "He wanted to know if I was going to be home for the weekend."

"He was hired by American Eagle at Nashville and selected for to check ride in an international simulator because he failed to complete or pass the required tests," Kochan said.

"He has no experience with a communication disorder and was not involved in Kochan."

"The debate has always been whether or not Goyon should present the proposal to the board, not whether the board should approve it," Smith said. "Kochan has nothing to do with what the president does."

The committee is expected to vote on the proposal at the board's May meeting. If the committee approves the proposal, the entire board will need to approve the measure before it takes effect.

"Guyon introduced a proposal for a $25 mass transit fee which would be used to fund a city and campus-wide bus system scheduled to start service next fall."

"A campus housing activity fee increase of $1.50 on all student residents was effective fall 1995."

"A $5 student medical benefits fee increase, which would fund new programs such as HIV testing and psychological services, has been proposed by a student grant program fee increase, which would make more financial aid available to students."

"All but the athletie fee increase have the support of the Undergraduate Student Government."

"In addition, the trustees voted unanimously to create two new programs at SIUC: a master's of fine arts in creative writing and a bachelor's of science in rehabilitation services."

"The bachelor's program is designed to help students develop their skills as poets or fiction writers."

"This new program will not require any new state's funds."

"The program will replace the existing bachelor of science in communication disorders and sciences degree."

Trade Center bombing suspect charged in plot to blow up jets

The Washington Post

NEW YORK—Federal officials Thursday charged Ramzi Yousef, the alleged mastermind behind the 1993 World Trade Center bombing, with planning to blow up U.S. jetliners in the Far East.

Yousef, a second man, Abd al-Rahim Munir, allegedly conspired with unnamed others in the Philippines and elsewhere to plant homemade bombs on "numerous" commercial U.S. aircraft earlier this year as part of a worldwide terrorism campaign, law-enforcement officials told a press conference here. Yousef was also formally charged with placing a bomb under the seat of a Philippine Airlines passenger jet on a flight from Manila to Tokyo last Dec. 11.

Kim Holder, the designated hitter, singled home the go-ahead run in the top of the ninth to put the Salukis up 5-4.

Holder also had a solid outing as SIUC's starting pitcher, but the Cardinals still managed to hold the lead 3-0 in the first inning.

With a hunger for competition, Saluki high jumper Cameron Wright may have quite an appetite, as he solidified his position for the NCAA Outdoor Championships after his performance at the SEC Championship. Coming off the weekend, becoming the first Saluki to do so.

Wright's accomplishments at SEC may have given him the Missouri Valley Conference Athlete of the Week Award, and the Daily Egyptian Athlete of the Week honor.

From the small town of Creal Springs, Wright has been a consistent contributor for the Salukis and is making a name for himself. Cameron Wright is the first Saluki to be named Athlete of the Week.

The Saluki softball team finally put it all together Wednesday, as they scored 10 runs in the final two innings to beat the Missouri State University Bears. The Salukis are now 9-5 overall and 2-0 in MVC.
