Keg ordinance delayed by council vote
By Alan Schnepf
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The Carbondale City Council decided Tuesday night to delay action on an ordinance that would have required keg buyers to make their purchase information available to the police.

The council voted unanimously not to act on city legislation that would have required liquor stores to record a keg purchaser’s name, the address where the kegs are to be consumed, the number of the kegs sold and the date and time of the sale.

Under the ordinance, this information would then be available to the police upon request.

The council passed two other ordinances regulating kegs at its last meeting on Aug. 15. One banned the sale of kegs from 10 p.m. to 7 a.m. The other moved “the person in control of the premises” responsible for any underage drinking at a keg party.

Councilman John Yoew agreed. “We have taken perfect control of the situation at the last meeting where we passed the other ordinances,” Yoew said.

City manager Jeff Doherty said the registration ordinance could be reconsidered later if the council feels necessary.

The registration ordinance was originally part of the city legislation banning kegs but was removed at the last meeting when council members decided to take action on it when students returned to school.

Doherty said the intent of the registration was misinterpreted by some people as an attempt to give police a list of kegs parties on a given night to check. The purpose of the registration was to supplement the ordinance making hosts responsible for underage drinking at a party.

Help Desk closes, leaves SIUC in need
By David R. Kazak
DE Government/Politics Editor

Information Technology’s Help Desk, which for SIUC computer users is the one place on campus they can go with any computing questions, has been closed down for what could be a year.

A reason for the shutdown, according to C. Michael Williams, executive director for budgeting and information resources, is because there is no money available to hire and train the personnel needed for the new IT Customer Service Center, which was to take the place of the Help Desk.

The Help Desk, which previously was located in the basement of the Communications Building, was shut down at the suggestion of IBM, which studied all of its operations and suggested that a new customer service center replace the Help Desk.

Williams said a new help desk, which will be called the Customer Service Center, is already in place. It has rented space in Leon Hall at Telephone Point and new computers and software are being installed now. The new equipment should be operational by Sept. 30, he said.

The problem blocking the opening of the new Customer Service Center is that more people are needed to run the new operation. Williams said, but more important, the money to hire and train these people is just not there.

“We could reopen (the Center) right now if we had the people and the money to train these people. They were always busy. Even so, he agreed with Williams that something new was needed.

“The old Help Desk was used as a mistake to open the center now with a minimal staff because that would be contradictory to the purpose of the new center. It would repeat the problems of the Help Desk.

“Skills were lacking and the training (for the old staff) was not enough,” Williams said. “There were three students and four regular staff for 25,000 people.

“As things were, there was no help desk,” he said. “This is a mistake which was condemning the people. They were just overwhelmed.”

But the closure has left a hole in IT’s ability to help students with problems they may encounter either working with computer systems on campus or working off campus with the University’s system on-line.

Lindsey C. Lawwill, the former Help Desk manager, said it would expect there to be a noticeable hole, especially because of the timing. We are at the beginning of a new semester. We have new software and there is a new security system that students will have questions about.

Between the walk-in customers and the one phone line, Lawwill said they were always busy. Even so, he agreed with Williams that something new was needed.

“The old Help Desk we as we knew it needed more people and better software,” he said. “Our problem-tracking programs were in-house, and not operational by Sept. 30. They did not help very much because they did not provide the help needed.

SIBS' OFFER PUTS U.S., ALLIES IN TOUGH SPOT — WASHINGTON— A surprise offer from Bolivia's rebel Serbs to participate in U.S.-sponsored peace negotiations and observe a cease-fire while those talks take place left the Clinton administration and its allies Tuesday night in the difficult position of welcoming the initiative while going ahead with plans for a military strike against the Serbs in pun­

Presidential grapevine: all talk, no answers

"We understand that Clinton will be here September 11 and all the details about it will be announced by Washington some time later."

Jack Dyer
Executive director of University relations

"Essentially, Washington is calling all the shots and we sit around and wait." Clinton may choose to visit SIUC instead of Milwaukee and Pittsburgh to a site for a presidential address on higher education and student aid, campus officials have said.

SIUC President John Guyon said the rumors about Clinton's visit are getting stronger, but nothing is definite. "The probabilities of his visit are getting higher, but we don't know anything more than we knew yesterday," Guyon said.

Laura Schwartz, spokeswoman for White House affairs, said she can not verify that Clinton will be coming to campus. "As always, we have not confirmed the trip to Southern Illinois University at Carbondale but we will be able to give a definite answer in about a week," Schwartz said.

Mark Terry, an SIUC Graduate and Professional Student Council vice president, said SIUC and the Undergraduate Student Government will be involved with getting and coordinating students to attend Clinton's speech but are not longer involved with the planning. "It is more appropriate for administration to deal with the White House," Terry said. "We're essentially going to be the foot soldiers." Don Priddy, the community research officer for the Carbondale police, said security for Clinton's possible visit will be up to the Secret Service and the federal government.

"When Mrs. Clinton was here for the campaign, our officers helped with the perimeter but the rest was handled by the S.S. and the government," Priddy said. "If they ask for officers to help with the crowd, we would give them to them."

Logging restraining order extended; environmentalists prepare strategy

Benton Judge Phil Gilbert added a further extension Thursday on a restraining order against logging in the Cripps Bend area of the Shawnee National Forest. Bill Knothe, who filed the original lawsuit against the forest service, said another extension was granted because of the volume of pretrial motions attached to the lawsuit.

"I think on Sept 12 we will have a decision. It allows us more time to do more organizing from the home base," Wilder-Thomas said. "We will not do so until the forest service has closed the sale.

"Even if the judge rules against us, Stan said he wouldn't go into the forest to cut because he doesn't want to endanger anyone's lives," Wilder-Thomas said.

Local environmentalists have been protesting the logging site since cutting began. However, trees have been cut because of the ongoing order.

"When Mrs. Clinton was here for the campaign, our officers helped with the perimeter but the rest was handled by the S.S. and the government," Priddy said. "If they ask for officers to help with the crowd, we would give them to them."

Kidnapper needs to pay maximum

THE THINGS SOME PEOPLE PUT CHILDREN through. Police say John D. Moro allegedly kidnapped his daughter from school Monday, armed with an automatic or semi-automatic weapon. According to witnesses, the child was pulled away from the scene of the kidnapping. Whatever the person’s motives were for the kidnapping, he should be locked up permanently for emotionally scarring Demetria Moro, so severely.

Demetria is not the only child scarred by the kidnapper’s actions. According to witnesses, he pointed his gun at other children in the class, their teacher, and other employees of Giant City School. Just by appearing in the classroom with a gun, he has caused irreparable damage to the young people who are his daughter’s classmates and friends. This is inexcusable.

THE DAILY EGYPTIAN WOULD LIKE TO extend heartfelt sympathy to Demetria’s family and friends, who must be staying awake at night worrying about her safety. We pray that she will be returned safely and unharmed from this ordeal. And we call on the kidnapper to do the right thing and minimize any further trauma to Demetria by turning himself in immediately.

GIANT CITY SCHOOL OFFICIALS SHOULD BE commended for their handling of the traumatic situation. The school brought in 14 counselors to talk with the children at the school yesterday. Four of those counselors devoted their efforts to Demetria’s class, and each of the other classes were visited by their own counselor. In traumatic cases such as these, it is important that the traumatized children receive counseling immediately to minimize the negative impact of the incident. Hats off to the counseling team for making themselves available at such short notice and for their efficient handling of the case. Classes at the school were back on schedule at 10 a.m. yesterday, with the exception of Demetria’s class, which was back on track by 11 a.m.

THE DAILY EGYPTIAN URGES JACKSON County State’s Attorney Michael Wepsiec to prosecute the kidnapper to the fullest extent of the law when he is caught. It is the duty of the law to prevent such traumatic situations by sending a stiff and painful message to those who commit such acts. The kidnapper is an ill man to think of committing such acts, especially in front of their peers in a classroom setting. The kidnapper obviously did not contemplate the reactions of Demetria’s classmates. Nor did he contemplate the reaction of those close to Demetria and her immediate family. Ignorance is no excuse for inflicting pain on others—especially a child.

WHILE HUMAN COMPASSION MAY BE FADING in the waning years of this century, as exemplified by the kidnapper, the duty of the law is to prevent such traumatic situations by sending a stiff and painful message to those committing such acts. The kidnapper is an ill man to think that an action such as his will be justified on any grounds.

The Daily Egyptian hopes there will be a positive ending to prevent the pain in this situation from fully blooming and that the kidnapper be brought to justice.

Babies riding system for free

A letter in the Aug. 23 Daily Egyptian complained that children could not ride on the Saluki Express. This is incorrect.

There are no restrictions on who can ride the bus (except untrained dogs!). Children under the age of five can ride free if accompanied by an adult.

This misunderstanding probably comes from the restriction that children cannot ride on the Women’s Night Transit due to insurance considerations.

Campaign reform bill worth while

The Washington Post

Sens. John McCain, R-Ariz., and Russ Feingold, D-Wis., have begun circulating a proposal to reform how campaigns are financed. They expect to introduce it after Labor Day and are searching for the broadest co-sponsorship. The bill is not everything it could be, but it is decidedly worthy. Its chief sponsors—a conservative Republican and a liberal Democrat—have tried hard to solve the problem that has bedeviled past campaign finance reform efforts: how to write a bill that equally benefits and equally burdens both political parties. They have balanced these equities while trying to improve the lot of those in either party who try to take on well-financed incumbents.

The Supreme Court has severely impinged on Congress’s ability to limit campaign spending and contributions, arguing that the severest constraints constitute a limitation on the rights of free speech. Consequently, efforts to limit campaign spending must be premised on a deal—candidates who voluntarily live by limits will be rewarded. The most logical and equitable way to do this is the system now used in presidential campaigns: in primaries, presidential candidates who live under specified limits have their contributions matched with public money; in the general election, presidential campaigns are publicly financed.

Unfortunately, a substantial majority of Republicans has rejected public financing, meaning that any reform bill promised on public financing has no chance in the current Congress. This has led Sens. McCain and Feingold to come up with a different package of benefits. Their bill, which only covers candidates for the Senate, would give 30 minutes of free television time (60 spots of 30 seconds) on stations of their choice to candidates who agree to spending limits. It also offers such candidates rates on television time actually purchased and reduced postage rates.

The bill is sound and, in our view, unconstitutionally—would ban political action committees. But the backup provision on PACs that would take effect if the courts ruled the ban unconstitutional. Candidates who wish to candidates must be able to raise from $2,000 per election cycle—down from $5,000—forcing PACs to live under the same limits that now apply to individuals.

The bill includes other useful provisions: a ban on free mass mailings; a reimburses a full year before an election; limits on the amount of "soft money" that parties can raise from big contributors; and ways to raise additional funds for candidates facing opponents who refuse to live by spending limits. Especially promising is a new provision that would apply at the end of the particular advertisements: "Candidate X is responsible for this advertisement." Candidates should say outright that they are responsible for the stuff they put on the air.

We still believe that public financing of campaigns is preferable to compulsory free television time. But the McCain-Feingold bill answers many of the complaints that have been raised against campaign finance reform efforts in the past and would represent a large step forward. It deserves support and early consideration.

Looking for truth in politics

By Suzanne Garment

Specs to be the Los Angeles Times

Sen. Robert W. Packwood, R-Ore., has come out fighting on behalf of his public image. He says he will correct the many false things that has 17 accusers—maybe 18, by last count—have said about him. You might think this enterprise of Packwood's is a hopeless one, but in fact the senator is thinking he has a chance to change the people's view of the realities in his case. If there's one thing the public is used to nowadays, it's the notion that what we think are facts about public life probably aren't.

Foreign observers have long noted that Americans are more fascinated than other peoples by stories of public life. For more information call Cathie at 533-5151.

Next time they call you Generation X, hit them with the "inside story," with mystifiers and con-men—perhaps we've made the fact that social and political realities are here indeed highly changeable; a citizen has to learn a flexible view of the state of the environment, the way we talk has to learn to walk on a rolling deck.

For one thing, the country is dedicated to change and the spirit of it. As a consequence, things scientists and other experts tell us one day may be disputed or explained or explained in a different light. Even officials long for years to clean up Mexico City's air pollution by controlling industry at the rate of a million tons a year. Then we read that the main culprit in fouling the atmosphere may not be the malign outliers but the Mexicans' cooking gas. Have Americans, at great expense, gotten rid of all those realty substances in our refrigerators that threatened the ozone layer? Well, the stuff now used as a replacement may, according to a recent piece in a major scientific journal, hurt plant growth.

The public is treated to baroque technical debates about the facts of increase and decrease distribution of workers' productivity when the real question in dispute is the amount of inequality that should be tolerated in America. When the country commemorates the dropping of the atomic bomb on Hiroshima, the opposing parties argue about how many casualties U.S. officials expected of an invasion of Japan proved necessary; they don't have to argue about whether we are a good country or a evil one.

These factual disputes are more confusing because of the erosion of the bipartisanship that marked areas of U.S. politics in the recent past. Thus there is something of a vaudeville in the press statements. It turns out the main culprit in fouling the atmosphere may not be the malign outliers but the Mexicans' cooking gas. Have Americans, at great expense, gotten rid of all those realty substances in our refrigerators that threatened the ozone layer? Well, the stuff now used as a replacement may, according to a recent piece in a major scientific journal, hurt plant growth.

"...an immediate response."

Mark Collins, a senior in industrial technology from Dawsons Grove, said he used the Help Desk for one of his computer science classes.

"I was unfamiliar with the CWIS (Campus Wide Information System) as well as other aspects of the system like getting on-line," Collins said. "It would have taken much longer to learn the system and it would have hurt my work in class."

Computer Science Chairman Kenneth Danhof said the shut down of the Help Desk is a disappointment for him and his department because "it comes at a time when the students are really going to need it."

"What you want with these new systems and equipment is effective utilization by the students," Danhof said. "You don't want to see the systems go down. If I can use that term, or new systems causing confusion."

Because no money is available to open the new center, Williams said he will have to wait until next year when the budget for Fiscal Year 1997 is figured out to get the funds he needs.

Williams said he expects criticism for his decision to keep the new Center closed, but he defended it by saying it was not a play to get more money sooner.

He said the only way he can get more money is to ask $100 President John Guy for the funds or reallocate the current IT resources.

"I can't fault the president for not having the money to give," he said. "I know people will ask why we're waiting when everyone else needs money now."

"My reason for closing is this: Why not wait and start over. Why not now?" Williams said. "We were going to have to stop sometime and start over. Why not now?"

Williams did say he would like the new Center effective. He said he would like to see 17 full-time staff brought in to make the new Center effective.

With the average civil servant yearly salary at $17,000, it is expected the new Center will cost more than $600,000. This is not including the cost of training Williams said the staff would need.

Also, Williams provided figures showing that IT has already committed nearly $35,000 to purchase the new center. This cost includes the rent for the first floor, which is $35,000 and the lease of the equipment.

Williams said even with all these new features, he foresaw two possible outcomes from the shutting down of the Help Desk. The longer the center stays closed, the more time there will be for training any new staff the center requires.

But he also said the longer it stays closed, the more chance there will be of customers finding help elsewhere. This would mean when and if the center does open, there will be less people who will need its services.

"The way I see it, either or both could end up being true," he said. "It depends on how long it takes."

white male, 6 feet 2 inches tall, 200 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes. He was last seen wearing glasses and had a beard and mustache.

Demetria is approximately 4 feet tall, with shoulder-length brown hair and brown eyes. At the time of the alleged kidnapping she was wearing a red top with ties in the front, cut-off shorts, red socks and white tennis shoes with blue and purple trim. The car Moro was last seen driving was a 1997 Gray or Silver Pontiac Trans Am with Nebraska license plate HJ1634.

Jackson County Sheriff William Kilquist said at the press conference Tuesday, he had been informed that Demetria was kicking and screaming when her father allegedly took her from her classroom.

"The first priority is the safety of the child," Kilquist said.

Authorities said witnesses at the school allegedly saw Moro drive off in a black Pontiac Trans Am. Authorities said witnesses at the SHP Touch of Nature reported seeing a black Trans Am enter a parking lot at the Touch of Nature facilities. They then reported seeing a male matching Moro’s description pull a young girl into a gray or silver Pontiac Trans Am.

Kilquist said investigators searched the areas around Touch of Nature and Crab Orchard Lake Monday night, and are continuing to follow numerous leads.

Kilquist said investigators have received calls from the "North, South, East and West" from people who "honestly" believe to have seen Moro.

"It’s a big investigation, it’s taken an awful lot of time," Kilquist said.

At the time of the press conference Kilquist said Moro had been gone for 26 hours and could have been 1000 miles away. At the same press conference, State’s Attorney Mike Wepsic said he has prepared preliminary charges against Moro for the class 1 felony of aggravated kidnapping.

Wepsic said Moro has not previously been convicted of any crimes. He also said there was no evidence as of yet to indicate that Moro allegedly did not act alone.

Wepsic said armed violence and unlawful use of a weapon are possible charges that may be brought against Moro in the future.

The authorities have asked anyone who sees a suspect matching Moro’s description, his daughter or Moro’s car to call their local police agency immediately and provide detailed information about their sighting.

Giant City Superintendent Chris Rigdon said every classroom at Giant City School had a counselor present on Tuesday morning to help students deal with the kidnapping of Demetria.

Rigdon said most of the classrooms were back on their regular daily schedules by 10 a.m. He said Emma Jean Dunn’s (Demetria’s teacher) classroom had four counselors appointed to it, and by 11 a.m. the counselors thought it was safe for Demetria’s classmates to return to their regular schedule.

School’s benefit from deal

By James Lyon
Daily Egyptian Reporter

As a result of a $250,000 deal, Lindy Dopolo and elementary stu­dents throughout Carbondale are able to slide down a brand new slide at noon.

"The new slides are better because they go in circles," Lindy said.

Lindy is a second grade student at the Carbondale Parish Elementary School, where a ribbon cutting ceremony will be held today at 9 a.m. to celebrate the new playground equipment that has been built.

Parrish is one of six schools that have received new equipment and playing areas in the Carbondale area. According to John Williams, Assistant Superintendent of District 95, "The playground is a real benefit for the community, and not just for the students involved." Donna Metzger, Director of Curriculum and Instruction at Carbondale Elementary School District 95, said, "Parrish, Lewis, and Lakeland schools all received new playground equipment, and Lincoln, Thomas, and Winkler schools have all received new asphalt for their basketball courts and playgrounds."

"All six schools have received some kind of site improvement," Williams said.

The money for the new equipment came from the purchase of basketball and softball equipment, and Lincoln, Thomas, and Winkler schools have all received new asphalt for their basketball courts and playgrounds.

"Many of those who returned were surprised at how the University had changed," said at her class reunion five years ago. "They all knew about Old Main, but were surprised when they saw where it used to be." "Old Main building was destroyed by fire in 1969," Lucas said though it is the 50-year class reunion are. "Many of those who returned came from New York and Boston and were used to high-rise buildings," she said. "But they just kept walking, believing there were high­rises at SIUC."

Anyone who knows members of the Class of 1945 can contact the Alumni Association at 453-2408.

"I am sure that anyone who comes back that has not been here since graduation will be very shocked at the progress of the community," Morris, who taught biology, botany and English at SIUC for 22 years, said.

"SIUC has a new zoology graduate, working in the Al­umni Association for 33 years," she said. "They all knew about Old Main, but were surprised when they saw where it used to be."

"So far we have had little response, but it is still early," Lucas said. "We have had responses from people in the area who knew where other 1945 graduates are, which will make it easier."

Returning students have a busy schedule of events during the reunion weekend. Lucas said, "First, a brunch, followed by a bus tour of the campus and the city conducted by Bob O'Daniel, who was executive director of the Alumni Association for 33 years. After the bus tour, alumni will attend a banquet called the "Half Century Club," where members of the 50-year class reunion are inducted every year."

"Many of my dear friends from then are gone," Morris said. "But I was very close to many of the students who were here, and I am looking forward to seeing some of those people who I have not seen since then."

Of the 374 students, 68 cannot be found and 17 are deceased. But the Alumni Association has current addresses for 180 gradu­ates. Nadine Lucas, administra­tion aid to the Alumni Association, said, "So far we have had little response, but it is still early." Lucas said, "We have not heard from all the people when you touch them."

"You start with the ground work," Williams said, "and then work up to the future."

The money for the new equipment came from the purchase of basketball and softball equipment, and Lincoln, Thomas, and Winkler schools have all received new asphalt for their basketball courts and playgrounds.

"The old slide only went straight, but this one is curvy, and goes fast. And if you go on it too long, your toes can stick other people when you touch them."

"The new slides are better because they go in circles," Lindy said.

"Many of those who returned came from New York and Boston and were used to high-rise buildings," she said. "But they just kept walking, believing there were high­rises at SIUC."

out 4-6 weeks due to a broken bone in his foot.
"We'll miss Aaron because he really had good two-a-day and had a strong leadership role at the receiver position," Watson said.
"However, Watson said the receiving corps is deep enough to compensate for Baker's loss.
"Jameis Gary has come along real well, we're excited about Stephes Gerald, Reggie Fowler and Johny Thomas," he said.
"So we're in pretty good shape there."

HIGH ON TAILBACKS
Watson and the Saluki coaching staff have a problem.
However, this problem is a good one as the Dawgs appear to be loaded in the backfield.
"I think we have the tail real well, that's do to the size and strength that we have up in the offensive line, plus the four tailbacks we have.
"We have four kids who can line up and run for us, and we didn't have that luxury last year.
William Tolen, last year's leading rusher, will start and Watson said he will get the majority of the work but the Salukis have a stable and he will get the majority of the carries.
Players are eligible to vote if they were on a roster for more than one 10-day contract last season, but have not announced their retirement.
"Rookies are ineligible because they have not signed contracts and therefore are not officially considered part of the union.
Players can cast ballots Wednesday or Sept. 7, and the results announced on Sept. 12. All votes will be tabulated that day, so there won't be any "scorn" after Wednesday's first session.
A simple majority will be enough for either side.
Not surprisingly, both sides are predicting victory.
Commissioner David Stem, suddenly on the same side as union leadership in an attempt to get the deal passed, said unofficial straw polls conducted by each team are "very, very encouraging.
"The big issue, like with most elections, is getting out the vote," Stem said. "We're confident the vote will be yes, but we're not going to make the boastful comments that the agents' group seem to need."
"The hostages have a different slant."
Marc Fleisher, representing the unhappy players, said 30 to 35 agents polled their own players.

WHERE'S THE BEEF...
On the Saluki offensive line, the SIUC offensive line goes through the game against the Indians with an average weight of 305 pounds. The starters include left tackle Shane Kreke (321), left guard Steve Jones (316), center Larry Mitchell (290), right guard Chris Myers (300) and right tackle Larry Watkins (310).

The voice coming from the telephone sounds so calm and reassuring that it’s hard to believe it belongs to The Most Dangerous Man in College Football, Leeland McElroy.

“I’ve been blessed with a lot of talent,” Texas A&M running back Leeland McElroy says humbly. “I put hard work along with that.
What has come from that has all been good.”

No, what’s come from that has been absolutely terrifying, is just if you’re an opposing member of the Southwest Conference. In two seasons, an initial surprise for the Aggies, McElroy has scored a touchdown every 10.6 times he has touched the ball, including four tries to the one end zone in 21 kickoff returns. Statistically, he is good for a first down and then some after every two plays from scrimmage.

“You spend the whole time host­ing your breath every time you playball him,” Texas Tech Coach Spike Dykstra said. “His presence is presence.”

So amazing is McElroy’s impact that the junior opens the 1995 sea­son as a favorite for the Heisman Trophy, even though he has never had a college game.

The highly recruited running back from Beaumont, Texas, re­tained as a freshman and spent his first two years of competition back ing Greg Hill and Rodney Thomas, who, both went to the NFL. Hill and Thomas got most of the carries, so McElroy crafted a reputation as a kick returner and situation specialist.

“When given the opportunity, I had to make the most of it,” McElroy said. “I felt like any time I touched the ball, I had to show I could be out there.”

In his first season, McElroy returned 15 kickoffs for 590 yards (39.3 yards per return) and three touchdowns. Even with opposing teams doing their best to avoid him on kickoffs last season, McElroy still managed to return six for 306 yards (50.2 yards per attempt), including a 100-yard return for a touchdown against Southern Mississippi.

In 262 career running attempts, he has 1,120 yards (65.7 yards per carry) and 16 touchdowns. He has caught 28 passes for 266 yards (9.5 yards per reception) and four touchdowns. McElroy seems to have come around at the right time, the perfect specialist in the age of specialization.

“I think the game of football has headed that way for quite some time,” Texas A&M Coach R.C.
Slocum said. “Watch an NFL game. After every play, you’ve got a stream of players from either bench running on the field, pass­ rush specialists, specialist defenders, nickel or dime man. I think that’s the nature of the game.”

New Refund Policy

Revised Deadlines to Withdraw or Drop Courses

A new refund policy approved by the Board of Trustees authorizes a pro-rata refund for students officially withdrawing from the University through 60 percent of the semester. The policy also changes the deadlines for withdrawing from all classes or dropping courses and receiving a refund.

Students ‘Officially Withdrawing’ from the University:

- Duration of Course
  - 4-7 weeks
  - less than 4 weeks

- Last Date to Withdraw to Receive a Full Refund
  - Last day of 2nd week
  - Last day of 1st week

- Day of First Class Meeting

Students who withdraw from the University after the full refund period stated above will receive a pro-rata refund through the 60 percent of the duration of their course enrollment period. An administrative fee will be assessed to all students who withdraw from the University and receive a refund. The amount of the fee will be the lesser of $25 or 1 percent of all assessed charges, or $100.

Students Dropping Courses, but remaining enrolled at the University:

Students dropping courses must drop the course by the above deadlines for a full refund. Students who drop a course after the above deadline, but remain enrolled at the University, will not receive any refund and will receive a ‘W’ or a final grade. October 16th remains the deadline for dropping a full semester length course without a final grade (A, B, C, etc.).

Kennedy starts; Baker sidelined

By Doug Durso
DE Sports Editor

It’s finally official.
Saluki football head coach Shawn Watson, announced Tuesday redshirt freshman Reggie Kennedy will be the starter in Thursday’s game against Southeast Missouri State.

Kennedy has been taking the majority of snaps during practice and Watson said he has performed the best.

“We’re going to go with Reggie and see how that works,” he said. “I’ll have a decision by the time we play.”

Watson said if the need arises Danny Smith and Chris Schulman could see some action.

“TThat situation presents itself we’ll deal with that,” he said. “We’re going to keep Kennedy’s confidence up and give him all the confidence in the world when he goes out and has a great game.

“That’s my job with him so I’m not going to coach it at any other way.”

Kennedy said the key to his success this season will be his ability to play in control of the offense and not making any stupid plays.

“There’s absolutely no doubt in my mind this year,” he said. “Last season we went on the field with a ‘maybe we can win’ attitude.

“This year we’ll be going on with a ‘we will win’ attitude. There’s a big difference and we simply have the confidence to get the job done this season.”

Watson said he is expecting big things from his defense, and now he has the depth at each position to fulfill those expectations.

I prefer to let my actions speak for me, but we will have a successful season, there’s absolutely no doubt in my mind this year,” he said. “We have an opportunity to play that physical brand of football that we’re teaching.

Because of the depth at each position, Watson said he would hesitant to use his bench liberally.

“We have an opportunity to play a lot of guys,” he said. “We’ll probably at least, minimum, play rotations in the secondary of three at corner and safety. On defensive line, we can roll in and out and (as linebacker), we can go in and out.

Even though those three linebackers (Tranchilla, Tonnysen and Tony Semani) are a real good corps, if somebody needs a blow, his backup will go in and we’re set to go. We’re ‘steady Eddie,’ let’s play.”

When the Salukis line up against Southeast Missouri State Thursday night, the starting defense line will consist of: sophomore left end Ryan Smith (6-2, 285) and senior right end David Baker is the player. Baker will be

NBA lockout, decertification decided soon

The Los Angeles Times

The NBA arrives at a crossroads Wednesday.

Players will vote either to accept the collective bargaining agreement its union leaders reached with an owners’ negotiating committee or to decertify the same National Basketball Players Association, as a group of unhappy players, inspired by their agents, is urging.

Decertification would undermine results in lawsuits at and best delay the start of the season. It could even result in a long work stoppage that league officials warn
