F-Senate OKs Donow promotion

By Phillip Fiorini
Staff Writer

Although Faculty Senate President Herbert Donow's promotion to professor may have been "unusual," he did not receive any preferential treatment in the promotion procedure, the senate agreed Tuesday.

Lawrence Dennis, chairman of the senate's Faculty Status and Welfare Committee, said that "nothing indicates that anything improper transpired" in the promotion procedure. In the committee's report to the senate, Dennis said "it appears that everyone concerned acted in good faith, even if their actions were occasionally ill-advised."

In November, the committee was instructed to discuss allegations that Donow, an English professor, received special treatment from University administrators after both the English Department and the College of Liberal Arts had recommended that he not be promoted. After an 18-month grievance, Donow was promoted in September by John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs.

The allegations concerning the procedure were made by senate member John Gregory, a mathematics professor, who asked that the senate question whether the procedure was "improper" and whether Donow "colluded with the administration" to receive his promotion. The committee's report denied both charges.

Dennis said the "difficulties" of the case arose in July of 1982 when a grievance panel made an "ambiguous" recommendation to President Albert Somit not to promote Donow until his third book was published. The panel was chaired by Professor Robert Dreher, now retired from the School of Law.

At that time, Somit recommended not to promote Donow but asked that both James Light, dean of COLA, and the English Department reconsider their recommendations "immediately." But Dennis said that at that point, Somit should have denied or approved the promotion.

City tables conference center

By Patrick Williams
Staff Writer

The downtown conference center has missed yet another deadline, causing yet another delay in the city's plans for downtown redevelopment.

The city will not exercise its options on the remaining parcels of land needed for the downtown conference center project, which was to be done in partnership with hotel-owner Stan Hoy.

The City Council's vote to let pass Thursday's deadline for buying the property in effect tabled the project, a result mainly of a bill that would limit the city's ability to obtain funding for the center.

But Mayor Helen Westberg said the city remains committed to taking some sort of action on revitalizing the downtown area.

Westberg said the vote did not necessarily mean that the hotel-conference center is dead. The project will be considered along with other redevelopment options for the downtown area, she said.

"We're certainly open to other ideas and opportunities," Westberg said.

City Manager William Dixon said, "We're going to continue to look at the conference center, but we're also going to look at other options."

Coming out of a 90-minute closed session Monday, the council passed unanimously a resolution not to buy the land before the Dec. 15 deadline. The measure follows a set-back to the project resulting from a proposal before Congress limiting the amount of federal tax-free bonds cities can issue.

Municipalities would be limited to $75 per capita population in the amount of industrial revenue bonds they could issue. That would make Carbondale's cap at between $1 million and $2 million.

City Finance Director Paul Sorger said that a lot of Urban Development Action Grant funded projects in other cities are in limbo, because of the measure.

With a cap as low as the one proposed in Congress, other development projects in the city, such as the railroad relocation, could also have trouble getting funds.

The resolution on the land also cited high interest rates and the inability of the city to retain a federal development grant if the city guarantees all the bonds for the project.

The measure also directed the administration to seek other redevelopment options for downtown "with a view" to retaining the $2.071 million UDAG. The UDAG money is to be used to buy deteriorating property for revitalization work done with local governments

Russian program to be kept with one less faculty position

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

The Russian Languages and Literatures baccalaureate program will be retained next year, but it will likely be offered with less than two full-time teaching positions.

That decision was made by James Light, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, and John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs, who met Monday to discuss the future of the Russian program.

"The basic decision is that we are not going to eliminate the Russian major," Light said. "But we also decided that we are not going to put any additional resources into the program."

That means that the University will not hire a full-time replacement for Joseph Kupeck, one of the two professors in the Russian languages program who is retiring at the end of the academic year, Light said.

Light, who is faced with a $160,000 cut in the liberal arts budget next year, said he hopes to hire a half-time teaching replacement for Kupeck and use graduate assistants to supplement the instructors.

He said because Kupeck spent half his time on research projects, the half-time replacement could maintain the current teaching level in the program, while creating "a loss in research commitment for the time being."

The possibility of eliminating the Russian major was raised when a group of students in the Russian program, protesting Light's decision not to hire a full-time replacement for Kupeck, met with Guyon and President Albert Somit last month.

At that meeting, Somit said he would be "hard pressed to justify" a baccalaureate program with two, or less, teaching positions.

But Light, who met with Somit this week, said the president was not making any recommendation about eliminating the Russian major. "On the basis of my talk with the president it is my belief that he was posing a question, and in my mind a legitimate question," Light said. "He was not mandating a decision."

Light said that he hopes the reduction in full-time teaching positions in the Russian program is only temporary.

"It is my hope that sometime in the near future we'll have the type of budget that will enable us to put more financial resources into the program," he

Thompson signs amended waste bill

By Karen Torry
Staff Writer

Illinois may share a disposal site for low-level radioactive waste with other Midwestern states under legislation signed by Gov. James Thompson.

Thompson on Monday signed an amended version of the Midwest Low-Level Radioactive Waste Compact, which authorizes the establishment of a regional dump-site in a host state, where all nuclear waste generated by members of the compact would be stored.

Amendments to the compact, sponsored by state Sens. Kenneth Buzbee, D-Makanda, and Jerome Joyce, D-Reddick, provided for shared financial liability among all compact states in case of accidents and increased citizen participation in the compact.

Other amendments require the compact commission, which would administer the agreement, to make policies which would require states to reduce the amount of low-level waste generated in the region and minimize the amount of that waste buried in shallow landfills.

Four states have passed the compact without the amendments, but Buzbee said he thinks Illinois may be able to convince the legislatures in those states to accept the changes. Federal law requires that states forming compacts all pass exactly the same legislation.

If those four states are unwilling to alter their legislation, Buzbee said,

F-Senate member calls salary increase allocations 'atrocious'

By Phillip Fiorini
Staff Writer

Calling the way salary increases were distributed last year "atrocious," a member of the Faculty Senate said Tuesday that the senate should cooperate with the administration to make sure the same mistake doesn't happen again.

John Mow, a professor in guidance and educational psychology, said that the senate might have made a mistake in recommending across-the-board increases above a certain point and that a certain amount of the salary pool should go for market adjustments.

"Frankly, the way salary increases were allocated last year was atrocious," Mow said at the senate's meeting in the Student Center.

"But I think we can fix it in cooperation with the administration," he said. "I'd like to see a more careful planning of the distribution process and have the central system stay close to us."

Mow presented a report to the senate showing how the increases were distributed in each college and also how faculty salaries compare to University administrators. The faculty's salary increase averaged about 5 percent, but several departments on campus received increases that totalled almost 20 percent.

Mow said it was unfortunate that the senate didn't see that market adjustments were going to make such a difference for some colleges.

"We should've said 'how much' cause it looks to be a hell of a lot," he said.

The study shows that professors in the Law School have the highest salaries, followed by the College of Business and Management and the College of Engineering and Technology.

Senate member Marvin Kleinau, chairman of the Department of Speech Communications, said the senate should conduct the same study annually.

"We've operated in the dark in the past," he said, "but because of this, we can talk selectively to areas that are in more trouble than others."

The senate also heard responses to a questionnaire drafted by the Faculty Status and Welfare Committee concerning the way salary increases were distributed and also how the faculty are consulted on major policy decisions.

Dennis said the questionnaire shows that the faculty is "extremely demoralized and extremely skeptical" and that the situation will not improve.

He quoted a faculty member, saying that salary increments last year in that member's college and in central administration "were a travesty of justice."

That faculty member stated that administrative salaries should be frozen.

Another faculty member said that the "lump sum" salary increases to faculty in certain areas was an "outrage" and that the "marketability argument for raises should be replaced with a quality argument."

In other business, the senate opposed a resolution which stated that the new check-out system at Morris Library was "near disaster" and that it should be replaced by the old system where student workers check out materials.

Kenneth Peterson, dean of library affairs, said the new system has been a problem, but said it would be improved within six months.

Jobless rates lower in 45 states

WASHINGTON (AP) — All but five of the 50 states are showing lower unemployment rates than a year ago, the Labor Department reported Tuesday in a new indication that economic recovery has spread through most of the nation.

The report said October's jobless rates were still high in several states, led by the 15.1 percent in West Virginia. But just seven states had rates of 10 percent or more, down from 19 states a year earlier.

New law favors ticketed motorists

By The Associated Press

Illinois motorists likely will welcome a new state law on the handling of minor traffic offenses — but some local officials are leery.

Currently, a motorist is required to post a $50 bond or surrender his driver's license or bond card for minor infractions.

Under the new law, which goes into effect Jan. 1, motorists ticketed for minor traffic violations such as improper lane usage, running a red light and speeding up to 30 mph over the posted limit will be permitted to sign a court "promise to appear" record or pay the fine.

Nuclear waste transport has mishap

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tractor-trailer returning high-level radioactive wastes to an Illinois nuclear power plant from a storage facility in New York separated last Friday on the Indiana Turnpike, officials said Tuesday.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission said the mishap occurred about 2 p.m. three miles east of the Indiana-Illinois border.

Indiana state police said there was no damage to the tractor, the trailer or the giant cask aboard it containing seven radioactive used or spent fuel assemblies.

In related business, the council approved exchanging a parcel of city property at the corner of Marion and Jackson streets for a piece of property needed for the conference center owned by Hugh McGowan.

The council also approved a $100,000 bond issue on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce to construct a new office building in the Eastgate Shopping Center on Walnut Street.

The Community Development Department will begin seeking grant funding from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services for the city's child care services. The council informally directed the department to seek the money.

In October of 1982, Donow's dossier was addressed again by the English Department, which again rejected the promotion. The department was chaired by John Howell, who is presently on sabbatical.

Dennis said a decision was made to seek reviews of the book which had been published in July and that a recommendation wouldn't be made until then.

Dennis said that after reviewing all prior recommendations concerning the case and "in an attempt to preserve the collegial process," Guyon paid $200 to have the book reviewed in February of 1983. Dennis said that the Faculty Handbook does not "preclude" Guyon from doing this because the grievance was still in progress.

However, Dennis said the reviewers may have also been ill-advised to comment on Donow's suitability for promotion instead of simply commenting on the book. He also said that the English Department has an obligation to call in "expert testimony" if it can't make a decision about Donow's reputation as a scholar or bibliographer.

Guyon told Light and Howell in May that since Donow's book had received favorable reviews, he had recommended promotion. Dennis said Guyon did not put the recommendation in writing until Sept. 8.

Dennis also pointed out that Gregory's actions were ill-advised, because he "levelled public charges against the principle parties" and didn't appeal to the senate first.

there are several other states eligible for the Midwest Compact with whom Illinois could share a dump-site.

"There is a lot of room for flexibility there," said Buzbee, adding that the governor probably will appoint persons to represent the state in negotiations.

Ma-y Ann Dalzell, a member of Southern Counties Action Movement, one of several Southern Illinois citizens groups which lobbied for the amended compact, applauded the governor's signing of the bill, but cautioned that "this is just step one."

"We've got a long, long way to go to ensure the safety of the people of Southern Illinois," Dalzell said. "What we want is to see Thompson continue along the same line in guaranteeing the quality of life in any future handling of the compact."

Dalzell said SCAM will work to keep a dump-site from being located in Southern Illinois.

"Nobody wants a nuclear waste dump-site in their back yard but we're not generating nuclear waste in Southern Illinois," Dalzell said. "The problem is up near Chicago and the Quad Cities."

However, Dalzell said she believes a dump-site is most likely to be located in a less populated area, probably between Springfield and Mount Vernon.

"And that is our back yard," she said.

Good-bye 1983 — the year in review

BIG BROTHER is peering over the horizon. In two weeks it will be 1964, and '63 will be history.

For many students the most important events of 1983 were the new Rolling Stones album, Playboy's 30th anniversary issue and the David Bowie concerts in Chicago. But as important as those events are in annals of mankind, other things did happen.

On the world scene things were pretty frightening in 1983. Central America exploded in revolution and counter-insurgency in the jungles and cities of Nicaragua and El Salvador, and the United States flexed its military muscle by kicking the Cubans out of Grenada.

IN 1983, Lebanon took over first position from Iran as the world's bloodiest spot. First, Israel stormed through the war-torn country to eliminate the PLO and Syrian threat from their northern border, resulting in the demolition of Beirut, the Christian-Phalangist massacre of refugees in the camps of Sabra and Shatilla, and the mass exodus of the PLO.

After its campaign, Israel withdrew from their forward positions and the gap was filled by American, French and Italian troops, sent there to keep the peace. Unfortunately no peace has been found. Numerous religious and political factions battled the peacekeeping force, the Israelis, the Lebanese government and each other. A terrorist attack claimed the lives of 238 U.S. marines and war remained widespread throughout the countryside. The siege of Beirut continues.

1983 saw a new low in U.S.-Soviet relations. In August the Soviets shot down Korean Airline flight 007 with all 269 passengers aboard — an act that shocked all of the free world.

U.S. deployment of Pershing II and cruise missiles in Europe began in December and the Soviets promptly walked out of the arms talks threatening to accelerate the arms race, putting a new chill into the Cold War.

Denial of the arts at SIU is pathetic

I am responding to the letter in the Dec. 12 issue of the Daily Egyptian. To whom it may concern (business and administration majors included), I find the constant denial of the arts at SIU pathetic.

Although I am not an art major, I do appreciate art in all forms. I don't care if you like or dislike my creative endeavor. After all, it was a final project for Art 101, and I did receive an "A" for it. However, I do find it significant that people noticed it. It made them stop and think. They may have thought it was garbage or beautiful art work, but at least it stirred their grey cells. It may have even added a little color to someone's square brown attitude.

Because of popular demand, I've decided to recreate a facsimile of this art happening in a different place next year. See you then. — Daniel Marder, Cinema and Photography.

At the national level, the Reagan administration proclaimed the economy was back on track. But dimming that shining view were high interest rates, high — although decreasing — unemployment and a huge national budget deficit.

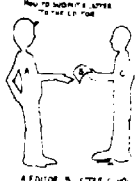

IN CARBONDALE it was a year for change. Helen Westberg was elected Carbondale's first female mayor and outspoken city manager Carroll Fry stepped down and was replaced by William Dixon of Glen Ellyn. Halloween was sanctioned for the first time by the city, expanded to Grand Avenue and included outdoor concerts and beer booths, making it the largest and best Halloween celebration to date.

The big story at SIU-C in 1983 was the football Salukis' record-breaking, winning season and their quest for the NCAA 1-AA national championship. The Dogs went 10-1 for the regular season and moved through the playoffs to the championship game in Charleston, S.C. with a No. 1 ranking. Coach Rey Dempsey's Dogs were truly incredible.

THE UNIVERSITY entered and left 1983 with the library storage question unresolved. As the year wanes, all signs point to the eventual acquisition of the much-maligned Bracy Building in Marion. But entanglement with state bureaucracy is far from over.

The Illinois Department of Corrections' proposal of a minimum security prison in the Baptist Student Center caused widespread public outcry and the proposal was dropped. Administrators promise less tension in the formulation of the state budget — meaning, it is hoped, that the threat of another "doomsday" state budget has subsided. It is not anticipated that University officials will be able to sit back and relax with more money than they know what to do with, but they sound a bit more optimistic about 1984.

That sounds like a good attitude to have. After all, at the end of such a topsy-turvy year, what else can we be?

Center established by Board of Trustees

I am disturbed by the errors of fact and surprised by the publication of the article "Tutors hope for name change, offer basic skills instruction" that appeared in the Nov. 30 edition of the Daily Egyptian. I direct your attention to misstatements of fact in Paragraphs 2 and 4.

Paragraph 2 says that "some programs previously offered by the Center for Basic Skills, which was dissolved last spring, will be switched to Special Supportive Services." The fact of the matter is that the center was established by the Board of Trustees, and no such board action has been taken to "dissolve" the center; also, the center's programs are under the coordination of the Special Supportive Services Project Director — something quite different than "switched to Special Supportive Services" implied.

Paragraph 4 implies that the Special Supportive Services Project offers courses in reading, writing, and math. In fact, the Curriculum, Instruction and Media, English, and Mathematics departments offer formal instruction in these courses, respectively. Special Supportive Services conducts tutorials in content areas and coordinates sections of U100: Learning Skills, a non-credit course taught by CBS staff that special admits are required to take. CBS staff also monitor a learning skills laboratory, provide study skills tutorials and academic assistance workshops, and academic advisement for special admissions students. These are certainly not functions of a unit that was "dissolved last spring." — Fred Hamilton, Project Director, Special Supportive Services.

A smut peddler for U.S. President?

By John Izumi Student Writer

What happens when a self-proclaimed "smut peddler" runs for the office of President of the United States? You get political ads distinguished chiefly by their bad taste.

Larry Flynt, who is running as a Republican because, in his words, he is "wealthy, white, pornographic," has taken out full-page ads in the nation's most prestigious newspapers in order to proclaim "The Gospel According to Larry" and explain why he is a candidate for the highest office in the land.

The political theory in each of these ads is wrapped in a blatantly paranoid analysis: one of the reasons Flynt gives for running as a Republican is that he has been shot for what he believes in, "like the nuclear-mad cowboy Ronnie Reagan."

HIS PLATFORM is based on the concept of "free thought, individual liberties and civil rights for all mankind." His goal if elected would be elimination of "sexual ignorance and venereal disease."

Flynt says he will dismantle the bureaucracy in government by turning over most of its functions to private enterprise; he promises a constitutional convention in order to restructure the entire government; he would levy heavy fines against all qualified and able Americans who fail to vote, and he would "completely reform the three branches of government" by limiting their terms of office and greatly increasing their salaries in order to eliminate the bribing of politicians.

CYNICAL about the role of religion in modern politics, Flynt says, "As the Lord is my shepherd, I shall prevail. And if He's not interested, I'm sure the Atheists will help me out."

It is hard to figure Flynt's attitude toward Christianity. After experiencing a much-publicized conversion with the help of former President Carter's sister, Ruth Carter Stapleton, Flynt took to running full-page ads on the back of Hustler magazine proclaiming that "He is coming... and boy is he pissed!" Now Flynt lists Jesus Christ as the publisher of his magazine, yet is bitter toward a God who allows so much suffering in the world — including, one imagines, Flynt's own suffering.

BUT FLYNT saves most of his bitterness for Ronald Reagan. In the January issue of Hustler, another ad appears headlined "Send Reagan a check?"

The copy says, "The weasels behind the GOP Victory Fund made two big mistakes. First, they picked the wrong candidate. Then they messed up and sent the other Republican candidate, Larry Flynt, a letter asking for money..."

The ad continues by suggesting that many citizens "would like to pitch right in and contribute several hundred or even a thousand dollars to the crazed cowboy (Reagan)... and then just stop payment before putting it in the mail as an act of protest."

"Payback is so much fun!" the ad reads. "Think of the mess you'd cause down at the old GOP Victory Fund's accounting department." Then, perhaps to cover itself legally, the ad hedges: "We're not suggesting any one do this, of course," and then offers advice on how to do it safely.

A THIRD AD that reveals Flynt's paranoia and bad taste was initially refused by the New York Post, the Washington Post and the Los Angeles Times. Flynt threatened to take the $25,000 the ad would cost and pay someone to distribute it in front of the newspaper buildings with a headline saying that the paper refused to run it. The Los Angeles Times, the Washington Post and the New York Post buckled under.

The reason for the papers' initial refusal is not hard to understand, however. Flynt's ad traces America's history of international political coverups, and suggests that Congressman Larry McDonald, a rabid anti-communist, actually martyred himself and the 267 other passengers to help President Reagan get the arms buildup he wanted. He even goes so far as to hint that Reagan himself had prior knowledge and consented to the plan.

READING reprints of these ads, sandwiched as they are between pages of graphic photo spreads of females, it is easy to imagine what type of reader Flynt's brand of political rhetoric would appeal to. And while many readers who originally saw the ads in the major dailies expressed profound distaste for his ideas and manner of expression, many apparently approved — according to Flynt, at a rate of three to one.

Is Flynt off his rocker? Does he seriously think that his brand of paranoid politics is what the majority of the people of the United States desires? Probably not. But he is right about one thing: he is the world's greatest smut peddler.

Panel attacks drunk driving

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's commission on drunken driving proposed congressional legislation Tuesday cutting off federal highway aid to any state that does not set a minimum drinking age of 21.

The national commission, in its formal report to Reagan after more than 18 months of study, said the legislation should provide that a state failing to abide by the national standard would have its federally aided highway maintenance and construction projects disapproved by the secretary of transportation.

"There is evidence of a direct correlation between the minimum drinking age and alcohol-related crashes among the age groups affected," the panel said.

The panel said there was no way to adequately deal with "the needless tragedies" caused by young people traveling to neighboring states with lower drinking ages "except by establishing a uniform drinking age among the states."

The commission also recommended a series of state and local actions but did not propose that states be liable to federal sanctions for failure to comply. Those proposals include:

—State establishment of "mandatory substantial minimum fines" for all drivers convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol. The panel, however, stopped short of calling for mandatory jail sentences for first offenders.

The report proposed that "any person convicted of a first violation of driving under the influence should receive a mandatory license suspension for a period of not less than 90 days, plus assignment of 100 hours of community service or a minimum jail sentence of 48 consecutive hours. Any person convicted of a second violation ... should receive a mandatory minimum jail sentence of 10 days and license revocation for not less than one year."

"Dram shop" laws making people who sell or serve alcohol to drunks liable for the consequences, even if the server is an individual in a private home.

—Prohibitions against the possession of open alcoholic containers or consumption of alcoholic beverages in cars.

—Enactment by states of programs to assist the victims of traffic accidents involving drunken drivers. The panel also wants judges to consider the impact on victims before sentencing people convicted in connection with an accident.

The commission noted that only three state legislatures heeded its call a year ago to adopt the age standard.

The report was presented in a ceremony at which Reagan proclaimed this week as National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week.

So far 19 states have enacted minimum 21-year-of-age drinking laws. A recent government report, however, said courts often are lax in enforcing the tough new laws.

At least one governor opposed the new proposal, however.

In Phoenix, a spokesman for Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt said the governor would like to see his state's age minimum raised from 19 to 21. But spokesman Jim West added that "the threat of cutting off funds is a poor way of doing business."

Heat bill aid may require waiting

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

The Illinois Energy Assistance Program helps low-income households pay heating bills, with one-time payments based on need. But two students have been thus far displeased with the program.

Any students meeting income guidelines are eligible for the program, which is federally funded and administered through the Illinois Department of Commerce, which implements the program through electric companies. Jackson County is served by Western Egyptian Electric Co-Op, which is headquartered in Steeleville and has offices in Murphysboro and Carbondale.

To apply for energy assistance, individuals must call the co-op by Thursday to set up an appointment. Appointments will be made for January, according to Janey Willis, director of the co-op's energy assistance program. She said residents of Carbondale will have their appointments at the co-op's Carbondale office, located at 409 N. Springer.

Applicants must document proof of income and assets, along with heating bills. Income includes money earned through work and Social Security, and welfare payments. Financial aid, such as grants and loans, are not considered as income. Willis said, but graduate assistantships and student work are income.

Four individuals living in a household may earn up to $2970 in the previous 90 days and still be eligible for some aid. A typical household with four individuals living together and earning $1500 (an approximate income if all four had 20-hour-per-week student work jobs) would be eligible for about $265 in energy assistance, if they heated with electricity.

A household of two earning $600 in the past 90 days would be eligible for $330, if they have electric heat. Individuals never actually see the money, as it goes directly to utility companies in the form of a one-time payment.

It is a "hassle" for students get assistance, according to Steve Segner, a senior in engineering. Segner said he applied for energy assistance last year, and was forced to "wait, wait, wait" in line. He and his roommates had to each fill out individual forms and one joint form, which was subsequently sent back to them for more information, he said.

Willis said appointments are being made to avoid "people waiting in line in the cold." Another student, who is applying this year, said there should be a special form for students. He said he tried earlier in the semester to get an appointment, but the co-op told him the only time they could schedule him was during semester break.

Holiday sing-along set for Sunday at Shryock

In the first performance of what is hoped will become an annual event, the Southern Illinois Choral Society and the SIU-C School of Music will sponsor a sing-along performance of the Christmas portion of Handel's "Messiah" as well as a sing-along feast of popular Christmas carols.

Program time is 3 p.m. Sunday at Shryock Auditorium, but the singing audience has been asked to show up at 2:30 p.m. to get instructions and seating assignments.

"We're not talking about 'participants'; everybody's a performer in this one," one choral society member said.

Sing-alongers are also asked to bring "Messiah" scores plus any other Christmas carol music they have available.

A limited number of "Messiah" scores will be available for purchase at the door on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The Festival of Christmas Carols, also included in the program, was arranged by music professor Marianne Webb. The arrangement includes "Angels We Have Heard On High," "O Come O Come Emmanuel," "The First Noel," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Joy to the World," "Silent Night," and "O Come All Ye Faithful."

Performers will be seated in the auditorium by voice groups, while soloists and instrumentalists will work from the stage. Concert-goers who don't want to sing will be seated in the balcony.

Organists Robert Roubos and Marianne Webb will accompany performances on the auditorium's pipe organ. Roubos is director of the School of Music and Webb is a professor of music. Gerald Bolt, assistant professor of music, will conduct the performance.

Soloists for "Messiah" include soprano Karen Lewis, alto Molly Brown, tenor Michael Blum and bass David Williams.

Orchestral accompanists will be pianists Donna Haney and Candace Williams; trumpeters Robert Allison and Michael Good; and tympanist Michael Hanes.

Admission is a minimum of $2 per person. Proceeds will go to the SIU-C Music Scholarship Fund.

Challenge of recovery: Trying to learn to live all over again

By Deanne Bekker
Student Writer

In August 1981, Steve Cole, a former high school football star from Chesterton, Ind., received multiple injuries when the helicopter hangar he was working in collapsed.

He suffered a traumatic head injury and was in a coma for two months. Steve suffered vision, speech and memory loss and temporarily lost the use of his legs. He was 20 years old when the accident happened!

Steve has made a lot of progress since then. He now lives at the Center for Comprehensive Services in Carbondale. The Center treats adults who have had traumatic closed-head injuries, according to DeMoyné Bekker, a consultant to the firm and member of the Board of Directors.

They specialize in cognitive retraining, social skills, and psychological emotional support. The Center also maintains a vocational program in which vocational counselors assist in developing on-the-job training experience. The attempt is made to develop in their clients the ability to function as independently as possible.

Steve is very in touch with and aware of his disabilities, said Pat Swanson, one of his counselors.

"He does everything he can to overcome them. He is the greatest guy in the world. I look very forward to working with him," Swanson said.

According to Steve, the major change from living at home to living at the Center was "at home there were always people to do it for me. Here I have people to help me learn to do it on my own. I love this place because of that."

Steve is happy that he was accepted at the Center. He especially likes it because he doesn't feel out of place and is constantly around people.

According to Steve, his major stumbling blocks as far as recovery have been his memory and his long-distance walking.

"A big thing is time," he said, referring to his recovery process. He said he has been able to use his memory more and more as time goes by.

Steve's ultimate goal is to live on his own and learn a skill.

"One thing I want to do is see if I can't get going with a job. I would like to work outside, but I'm not sure what yet," he said. Some of the skills clients are taught at the Center are independent living skills, including grocery shopping, meal plans and cooking, Swanson said.

They also have a leisure and recreation program, making use of the Recreation Center at SIU-C, and a community program, through which clients learn to take advantage of community resources by watching movies and going out for dinner.

All the areas a person needs to learn about in order to live a successful life again are dealt with at the Center, Bekker said.

"It is a thorough, comprehensive, rehabilitative center," he said.

The Center was started in 1977, specializing in the treatment of adults with traumatic closed-head injuries. It is not affiliated with SIU-C, although the two do have "a nice working relationship," said Bekker.

The center has been able to accept students as interns from the Rehabilitation and Psychology departments and other related areas at SIU-C, Bekker added.

Somit calls proposed boards on athletes' grades inadequate

By Karen Torry
Staff Writer

President Albert Somit said Tuesday that he probably will reject two proposals to create commissions within the National Collegiate Athletic Association to deal with academic standards for athletes.

One proposal, offered by the American Council on Education, would create a commission of university presidents from NCAA member schools, which would have the power to enact new bylaws or suspend existing rules.

The commission, which would be elected by mail ballots of all member presidents, would have authority only in policies affecting the academic standards, financial integrity and reputation of the member institutions, according to Derek Bok, chairman of the ACE's committee on Division I intercollegiate athletics.

A SECOND proposal, offered by an NCAA committee, would create a presidential commission which could place items on the NCAA council and convention agendas, determine the order of agenda items at the national convention and order studies on various issues, but would have no power to set policy.

The NCAA council would appoint 12 member presidents to select a slate of candidates for the commission. The candidates would then be voted on by delegates to the NCAA convention.

Somit said he will meet with SIU-C's Intercollegiate Athletic Advisory Committee next week to decide whether to support one proposal or reject them both. Both the ACE and the NCAA proposals will be voted on at the NCAA convention in January, which Somit said he plans to attend.

BUT WHETHER the convention chooses an advisory or a policy-making commission, Somit said he doesn't think either would address "the real problem."

"The real problem is the general commercialism that has affected intercollegiate sports," he said. "Schools use one standard for recruiting students generally and another for recruiting athletes."

Somit said, however, that he doesn't believe that is the case at SIU-C.

"I can't say it's never happened," he said. "But I think we've been very careful."

Somit said that "basic changes in university policies across the country" are needed to ensure that athletes are required to meet standard admissions requirements and maintain the grade point average needed to play sports.

BOTH THE NCAA and the ACE proposals are "more cosmetic than is useful," said Somit, and may create even more barriers to solving the problem of poor academic performances among athletes.

SIU-C Athletic Director Lew Hartzog said he believes that scholastic problems — sub-standard grade point averages, failure to complete courses, failure to graduate — apply to all students, not just athletes.

"I think this notion that every athlete who accepts a scholarship should graduate is a noble one," said Hartzog. "But I also think it's foolish."

Athletes are "exactly like the rest of the student body," he said — some maintain good grades and choose to finish school and others don't.

HARTZOG SAID his office strictly enforces rules requiring athletes to complete 12 hours a semester and maintain a 2.0 grade point average, or the GPA required by the athlete's college, which is sometimes above 2.0.

"You can rest assured that the coaches know exactly where our athletes are," he said.

Computer links Shroud to era of Crucifixion

CHICAGO (AP) — A new computer analysis of the Shroud of Turin, regarded by some as the burial sheet of Jesus Christ, offers highly significant evidence linking the cloth to the time of the Crucifixion, a theology professor says.

Results of the first complete computer analysis, released Tuesday, show shroud imprints fitting six Greek letters of a Pontius Pilate coin dated 29 A.D., shortly before Christ's Crucifixion, said the Rev. Francis Filas, a Loyola University professor.

Filas said the analysis found images corresponding to two new letters — O and C — on the coin and confirmed four others — UCAI — he had discovered in earlier research. Also, he said the analysis found other images characteristic of the coin, including an astrologer's staff.

These findings offer the "most significant" evidence to date the shroud, said Filas, who has researched the cloth for more than three decades. "It dates the image, not the cloth."

Filas said while this research doesn't prove the shroud image is Christ, it does go a long way toward establishing the cloth's date.

The chief subject of the analysis was the right eye area and shows a coin there, Filas said. Earlier studies have proven to Filas' satisfaction there were coins on the eyes, although some scientists have disagreed.

The six-month analysis was conducted at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University and led by Robert M. Haralick.

The shroud, the subject of decades of scientific study and debate, is an ancient linen cloth kept at Turin, Italy, imprinted with what some believe to be the image of Christ.

AT&T breakup foreshadows higher local, lower LD rates

By James Freeburn
Student Writer

Big changes are coming to the telecommunications industry, which means big changes for everyone who uses a telephone at home or in business.

Local rates are going up and long-distance rates will be going down, said Jim Manis, a representative of General Telephone, the second largest telephone company in Illinois.

Manis said that General Telephone's residential customers may expect to see a $4 access charge added to their bills while businesses may face a $9 increase — now scheduled for April 3, 1984. This will be the result of the impending Jan. 1 breakup of American Telephone and Telegraph Co., the nation's largest telecommunications firm. AT&T is being forced to sell its 22 local companies to end its monopoly in the telephone industry.

AT&T's long-distance rates have been artificially high and the extra money, amounting to $7 billion annually, was used to subsidize lower rates for local calling so that every person could afford local service, Manis said.

The current system is being replaced by a "user's pay" system, Manis said. The new access charges are being added to reflect the actual cost of local calling.

Student charged with striking roommate

An SIU-C student was arrested and charged with aggravated battery and criminal damage to property Monday after allegedly striking a roommate and damaging some property in the house. He is also suspected of having caused a disturbance earlier in the day at the SIU-C Student Center.

Matthew P. Jones, 21, 802 W. Walnut St., was arrested by SIU-C Security after the incident at 6:10 p.m. but escaped and was recaptured by Carbondale police.

He reportedly struck Andrew

"The days when a person could sit and talk on the phone for hours at a flat rate per month are over," Manis said.

"Telephone rates will not double or triple though," said Manis. "The increased costs will be offset by the lowering of long-distance rates."

These changes are the result of the government's deregulation of the telephone industry.

"About a decade ago," Manis said, "Congress began looking at deregulating the telephone industry with the idea that competition is good and necessary."

In 1968, Carterphone successfully challenged AT&T, by far the nation's largest telephone company, in court for the right to sell its products for use on AT&T lines. This signaled the beginning of the end of AT&T's dominance of the telecommunications industry.

Then in 1969, a company called MCI provided consumers with an alternative to using AT&T's interstate lines. By offering long distance communications via microwave transmission between Chicago and St. Louis, MCI created direct competition with AT&T for the long distance market.

MCI and another company called Sprint have been able to capture only 3 percent of the market, Manis said. So in the Fuitori of the same address with a broom handle, Carbondale police said, and then began beating him with his fists. He reportedly damaged some stereo equipment and a bicycle.

SIU-C Security said Jones was also charged with battery after an incident at the Student Center earlier Monday, when a Christmas tree was knocked over and a secretary at the Students' Legal Assistance Office was pushed.

Jones was transported to Jackson County jail to await an initial court appearance.

interest of promoting competition and lower prices. Congress has ordered the breakup of AT&T's monopoly. AT&T is being forced to sell its 22 local companies in competition with other long-distance services.

Some aspects of the breakup are still uncertain. There are bills currently in Congress designed to delay the imposition of charges for local service. However, the Supreme Court settled one question Monday when it ruled that cost of phone hookups to new regional companies may be passed along to consumers.

"Lower-priced long distance calling will be reflected by this competition," Manis said.

Since long distance calling will no longer be connected to local calling services, long-distance rates can no longer be used to subsidize local calling.

"Local calling will have to pay for itself," said Manis. The access charges may be added to replace the $7 billion in revenue lost from previous, artificially high long-distance rates."

Manis said that there will be a push in the industry for consumers to own their own telephones and that, at some point, repair of telephones will no longer be free. Phone marts such as the one located in the Murdale Shopping Center, he said, will become retail outlets for the sale and repair of telephone equipment.

All of the effects of the deregulation process are not clear yet, said Manis.

"There are no yes-and-no, black-and-white answers. It's a step-by-step process," he said.

"In the next few years," Manis said, "it is projected that access charges may be as high as $8, but as competition in the long distance market opens up, long distance rates may drop as much as 25 to 30 percent."

'Outdoors' means blimps, lake trout and Gary Swanson

By Joe Walter
Staff Writer

Sitting on the set of "Outdoors with Art Reid," is the star himself, taking a cigarette break in between takes.

"In the 13 years we've been doing the show, altogether we've done about 525 shows," Reid said, puffing on a cigarette.

Reid said that 13 segments of his show, which is syndicated on about 13 broadcast stations nationwide and about 50 cable networks, are filmed a year. Before the show became syndicated, he said, about 35 to 40 shows were done a year.

Because most of "Outdoors with Art Reid" is shot outdoors, Reid has had many memorable moments shooting the show on location.

Reid told the story of the time he went up in the Goodyear Blimp.

"I not only went up in it," he said, "I flew it for about 15 minutes. That was probably one of the highlights of my filming and flying career."

Reid also recounted his impressions of Central America, where he fished some of the rivers for a show. In Panama, he said army guards with machine guns are everywhere.

This season of "Outdoors with Art Reid," will have a show "about fishing clear mountain lakes for brook trout," he said. "You have to ride horseback to get there."

Another of this season's shows contains an interview with Gary Swanson, an internationally renowned wildlife artist. Reid said that he and Robert Henderson, the producer and director of the show, flew to Prescott, Ariz. to shoot the interview with only one camera, which meant a lot of editing had to be done to give the sequence flow and polish.

Apart from hosting his television show, and pursuing such interests as traveling, flying, fishing and hunting, Reid writes magazine articles.

Reid said he has written for all the largest outdoors magazines, and has also written for the Southern Illinoisan and the Champaign News-Gazette.

Art Reid as he looks when he's occasionally indoors.

His interest in the outdoors, Reid recalls, started when he was a child growing up on a farm outside of Champaign-Urbana.

"I grew up with a fishing and hunting tradition," he said. "My father was a farmer. I remember during the Depression, he fished for subsistence so that the family could eat."

During World War II, Reid was a seaman who served in the Pacific. In 1947, Reid earned his pilot's license and said he has flown all over the North American continent.

As he traveled more, Reid said, his interest in outdoor activity grew.

"I have seen how things are done in different places," he said.

"Outdoors with Art Reid," is broadcast at 7:30 p.m. Thursdays on WSIU-TV channel 8.

Key to finals survival: three squares, limited java

By Lori Neal
Student Writer

Limiting caffeine, eating three meals a day and setting realistic goals are some suggestions offered for surviving finals week by Nancy Logan, a counselor at the Wellness Center.

Logan, who has been on the Wellness Center staff for five years, said, "A lot of deadlines, many exams at the same time, and papers due at the end of the semester result in high amounts of stress on students at finals time."

She has found that students who come to the Wellness Center share two common problems: Stress management and time management.

Stress problems usually occur during busy periods like midterms and finals, Logan said, when students become overloaded with work. The overload can cause confusion and disorganization.

Procrastination is a leading cause of time management problems, she said. "Students tend to say, 'I'll do it tomorrow,' and put a lot of things off, simply putting them further behind, causing additional stress," Logan said.

"Students try to study but feel so pressured and tense about it that they don't concentrate well, she said.

"They become bored, get up, get coffee or find other distractions. Stress is a general feeling of anxiety and nervousness," Logan said.

There are a lot of types of stress and a student's background and personality affect the way a student will handle stress, she said.

Caffeine and poor nutritional habits are factors contributing to stress, Logan said. Drinking more coffee and taking overthe-counter "pep pills" throws the body into a state of artificial stimulation and when the desired effect wears off, students become tired and irritable, she said.

Skipping meals and indulging in junk foods add to the problem of stress, she said. "Many students think they don't have the time to eat, and if they do take the time, it is usually some form of quick snacks such as potato chips and candy bars," Logan said.

Besides balanced nutritional habits and cutting back on drinks which have caffeine, Logan recommended that stress-plagued students organize themselves.

Setting deadlines and organizing a list of "things-to-do" could be the solution to a student's problems, she said. Setting realistic goals is also a good standard, she said.

"Don't stay up all night," she warned. "You won't retain information. When studying, build in relaxation breaks even if only for 10 minutes.

"The mind becomes stale after so long and a person may begin to daydream," Logan said.

"Go for a walk. Get some fresh air. Get the body moving and blood circulating. It gets oxygen to the brain and you'll feel refreshed."

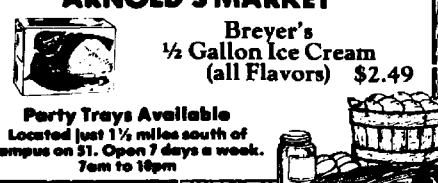

Stress often causes physical problems, she said. The effects include headaches, muscle tension, especially in the neck and shoulders, the inability to sleep and skin itching and rashes.

Alcohol is one release valve that many stressed students turn to, she said. But overdoing it just contributes to the problems, she said.

Karen Torry to be DE editor

Karen Torry, a Daily Egyptian staff member, was named student editor-in-chief for the spring semester, by the paper's policy and review board.

Torry, of Decatur, is a 22-year-old senior in journalism. She worked two years for the Decatur Herald and Review prior to her three semesters covering city news and politics for the Daily Egyptian.

"A veteran staff will return in the spring," Torry said, "with nearly all reporters having at least one semester of experience and many having several."

Sherry Chisenhall, of Troy, was named associate editor. Chisenhall, 20, has been sports editor of the Egyptian for one semester and a sports writer for a semester before that.

She was also an intern with the Harrisburg Daily Register last summer, covering Saline County. She is a junior in journalism.

Campus issues such as the purchase of the Bracy Building, a proposed athletics fee increase and city news will continue to be reported. And, because of the election year, there will be increased political coverage, Torry said.

"I'd like to see more in-depth coverage," Torry said.

More focus stories and in-depth looks at current issues, were a positive aspect of the Daily Egyptian during the fall semester, she said, and she would like to see those continued.

The Daily Egyptian will resume publication Jan. 16, the first day of the spring semester.

said. "And I would hope we would have the enrollment to justify any increases."

If the University can maintain the Russian program, there is a possibility of obtaining federal funding in the near future for teaching fellowships, faculty research and graduate programs in Russian languages.

Two weeks ago, President Reagan signed a bill authorizing the expenditure of up to $50 million in federal funds during the next 10 years to increase the level of Russian expertise in the United States.

The money will be distributed by the State Department and is expected to become available in 1985. Government officials expect that much of the money will go to university Russian programs.

The bill signed by Reagan is a modification of legislation co-sponsored by U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Makanda.

Simon, a long-time advocate of foreign language study, expressed concern about the possible cuts to the Russian program at SIU-C, saying that there is a shortage of Americans who speak Russian.

He said the lack of bilingual skills often creates misunderstandings between the United States and the Soviet Union and heightens international tensions.

Murdale water connection planned

Carbondale residents living in the Murdale Water District can expect their water service to be disrupted for several hours a day over the next month, according to Steve Piltz, city public information officer.

"The local radio stations and newspapers will be notified prior to the shut downs as to the affected areas," Piltz said. "The shut downs will only last a few hours and water service will be restored at the end of each working day."

Jack Foster, water and sewer services director, said eight water lines will be severed in joining the Murdale Water

Leaded gas called menace; banned within Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Two alderman on Tuesday proposed legislation against the sale of leaded gasoline within city limits, saying the fuel is a "deadly yet invisible menace," especially to children.

"It kills, it maims. It has all kinds of subtle but harmful effects on the brain, the nervous system and the body — and it hits our kids hardest of all," said Alderman Joseph S. Kolarz.

He and Alderman Danny K. Davis were joined at a City Hall news conference by Dr. Quentin Young, president-designate of the Chicago Board of Health, who said medical studies have linked high lead levels in the blood with anemia, mental retardation and brain damage.

Noting that children absorb lead five times faster than adults, Davis said national studies have found that black inner-city children have average lead levels of 23 micrograms in their blood, well over the 10 to 15 micrograms that can produce a risk of mental and behavioral disorders.

"Today, blood lead levels in Chicago children are the result of gasoline emissions more than any other source," said Davis. He predicted that a ban on the sale of leaded gasoline in Chicago would drastically reduce the amount of lead in the air.

"Here's something that's really deadly yet invisible — airborne lead — and we're pretending it isn't there," Kolarz said.

District to the city's system.

Dean Bush Construction of Carbondale will be doing the work and plans call for all work to be completed by early January, Foster said.

The water department's billing and service office will notify customers as to their last date for meter readings and the starting date for the city's water system.

"I'm not sure of the exact amount," Foster said. "But our new customers will be paying less for their water than they did previously."

Residents seeking additional information should contact Steve Piltz, Public Information Officer, at 549-5302, or at P.O. Box 2047, Carbondale 62901.

CAGERS from Page 32

Drake, a perennial title contender, owns a 3-2 record, all played on the road. The Bulldogs have downed Iowa, Northeastern and Kansas, with losses to nationally-ranked Cheyney State and Kansas, State.

Illinois State is 5-1, with the Redbirds' sole loss to Delta State. The Salukis, meanwhile, boast a win over nationally-ranked Western Kentucky, as well as Big Eight member Oklahoma and Pac Ten school Washington State.

Scott's team has only two games remaining before starting conference play. The Salukis will travel to Chicago on Dec. 19 to battle DePaul, a club that hasn't fared well in the early season.

The Lady Blue Demons are 1-5, but have undertaken some fairly heavy tasks. DePaul's only win came against Illinois-Chicago, while the team has lost to Northwestern, Oklahoma State, UCLA, Northern Illinois and Alabama.

The Illini are 4-2, with wins over Western Illinois, Illinois-Chicago, Bradley and Cincinnati, against losses to Memphis State and Iowa State.

SIU-C will open its conference play Jan. 5 at Illinois State. The Redbirds own a 9-2 record against SIU-C clubs coached by Scott and will give the Salukis a tough game again. ISU returns three starters from a 13-15 club.

The Redbirds are second in the conference in scoring margin, outdistancing their opponents by 9.1 points per game. ISU's 6-foot-2 junior center Marla Maupin is third in the GCAC in points per game, scoring at a 19.8 clip.

The Salukis will take on Indiana State Jan 7 in Terre Haute. The Sycamores are 1-3 and are averaging only 61 points per game to opponents' 64 points. The team is shooting 40.6 percent from the field and 47.1 percent from the free throw line.

Jan. 12 at the Arena is the Salukis' showdown with Drake, with the tipoff scheduled for 7:35 p.m. Drake holds an 8-2 series record against Scott, although last season the Salukis edged the Bulldogs 76-73 in the GCAC tournament at Illinois State.

The Bulldogs are led by 6-foot-3 senior center Lorri Baunman, who averaged 25.2 points and 9.2 rebounds per game last season. Bauman is at the top of the GCAC this season in individual scoring, averaging 27.4 points per game.

Drake will also get help from 6-foot sophomore forward Wanda Ford, who leads the conference in rebounding with 11.8 boards per game. SIU-C's Connie Price is second with 10.3 rebounds per game.

Scott's team will close its competition during break with a home contest against GCAC foe Northern Iowa. The Panthers are 0-5 and last in the GCAC, scoring 56.2 points per game to opponents' 83.2.

Hockey coach trying to beat deadline for signing recruits

By Steve Koulos
Student Writer

SIU-C field hockey Coach Julie Illner is trying to sign at least four recruits for the 1984 season. The national letter of intent day for signing high school seniors and junior college transfers is Feb. 9.

The Salukis will lose three starters to graduation in left fullback and team captain Dore Weil, right halfback Jeanine Janos, and right inner Terry Draffkorn. The three will leave a gap in a lineup that finished 2-4 in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference and 9-12-3 overall.

Illner said she hopes to sign a link, a halfback, a fullback and a goalie from 20 prospects she has contacted. "I'm not looking for a forward. We anticipate Nadine Simpson will switch from link to forward and that gives us six returning forwards," said Illner, who has posted a 198-83-35 career record in 15 seasons at SIU-C.

"I'm looking at a couple of midfielders and our No. 1 concern is to find a link to play in our system," Illner said. "For the link position I'm looking at junior college players because I think we need experience there. If we bring in a freshman she might be a backup."

Illner hopes to recruit a fullback who can replace Weil and join returning fullback Nancy McAuley so the Salukis can play a 4-2-4 alignment. If Illner is unable to find a fullback she plans on a 4-2-3-1 alignment with McAuley as the lone player on defense as a sweeper.

"I'm not as concerned recruiting a fullback as I am a halfback and a link because of Melinda Foe and Nancy," said Illner. "Melinda has the most potential at the fullback position among our reserves last season and I think playing indoor will help her considerably."

Illner wants to bring in a freshman goalie to back up seniors Sandy Wasley and Lisa Cuoci.

"I want a goalie who has good potential but is not fully developed so she can get experience and have the opportunity to start as a sophomore," she said. "A highly regarded goalie might not want to come here because she would want at least a guarantee of starting 50 percent of the games next year."

Illner said she is going to call many of her prospects this week and remind them to watch the Saluki football team on national television this weekend. Illner said that at halftime a film segment about the SIU-C campus will be broadcast, explaining some of the programs the school offers. The Saluki coach said the publicity should aid in her recruiting.

Spiker honored for academics

The nights of studying on a bus with a flashlight while traveling with the team have paid off, according to Jill Broker, a member of the Saluki volleyball team.

Broker was named last week as an Academic All-American by the College of Sports Information Directors of America.

Broker, a junior biomedical engineering major with a 3.89 grade point average, was the only athlete from the Midwest named to the six-player first team.

Broker, 5-foot-3 defensive specialist for the Salukis, played in 103 of 111 games, recording 32 service aces, 151 digs and only nine service errors and six ball handling errors.

Jill Broker

In the Saluki Invitational, Broker came up with 13 digs in a loss to Texas A&M and 12 digs and 3 service aces in the Salukis' upset of Missouri.

Broker said she was surprised about the award.

"I didn't even know there was such a thing," she said. "My teammates are really happy about it, and it's even nicer to share it with them."

"It's nice, like an unexpected reward for all those nights spent in the library. But even though it's a single recognition, there's a team behind it. I don't know if I could have pushed myself without them."

Swimmers taking on big meets during break

By David Wilhelm
Staff Writer

While most SIU-C students will be enjoying a leisurely month away from school, the men's swimming team will be traveling to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and the University of Nebraska for some competitive swimming against top teams in the country including Miami, Florida State, Houston, Iowa State, Nebraska and Kansas. Meanwhile, the men's diving team will return to Carbondale from break on Jan. 3. According to Diving Coach Dennis Golden, they will then train for four days before heading to Austin, Texas, to compete in the Texas All-American meet Jan. 13 to 15. The swimmers are following a 59-54 victory over Auburn University in which they raised their dual meet record to 2-1. Their only dual meet loss came to Southern Methodist. The Salukis were also victorious in the annual 5-S meet two weeks ago.

Against Auburn, the Salukis broke four meet records. Gary Brinkman swam a 4:30.29 in the 500 freestyle. Barry Hahn recorded a 1:40.85 in the 200 free. Anderz Grillhammar swam the 1,650 in 15:39.1 and the Salukis' 400-meter relay team of Carlos Henao, Joakim Sjoholm, Barry Hahn and Tom Hakanson was timed at 3:02.20. All this should lead the Salukis to their trip to Florida. After the Auburn victory, Coach Bob Steele said the Salukis will get back to the training routine in preparation for the trip.

"We just need to get back to some real heavy training for everybody before the Collegiate Coaches Invitational," Steele said.

The Salukis will train until Dec. 19 before going home for Christmas, then return to Carbondale before leaving for Ft. Lauderdale on Dec. 27. After the trip, the swimmers will jump into action with the Collegiate Coaches Invitational Dec. 28. While in Florida, the Salukis will also compete against Miami and Florida State. Florida State was one of the teams the Salukis defeated at the 5-S meet, but their home pool, the Seminole, could represent a stiffer challenge.

After the Florida trip, the swimmers will travel to Lincoln, Neb., to swim in the Nebraska Invitational. The Salukis, in addition to the Cornhuskers, will swim Houston, Kansas and Iowa State. Kansas also fell to the Salukis at the 5-S meet. SIU-C will see Houston and Iowa State for the first time this season.

The diving team, after a victory over Auburn on the 3-meter board, will return to Carbondale on Jan. 3 to get four days of training in before leaving for Austin, Texas, on Jan. 7 to compete in the Texas All-American meet. The divers will be training until Dec. 19 in Carbondale.

At the meet, the Saluki divers will compete on the 10-meter platform, in addition to the regular competition on the one and three-meter boards. It will be the first time Golden and his divers will compete on the 10-meter this season.

"We are looking for optimal training, conditioning," Golden said, "particularly for platform diving."

Golden said that the Salukis divers have all had experience on the 10-meter. Nigel Stanton, who won the 3-meter event last week against Auburn, is the senior national champion of the United Kingdom on the 10-meter platform. Tom Wentland has qualified for the U.S. Championships in the event and Golden said that Jim Watson "could be great" at it.

To be successful, the swimmers and divers will need to train hard. Like Steele, Golden will also be working hard with his team. He said they still have 10 or 11 days to prepare.

All of the teams finished in the top nine in the NCAAAs.

THE MEET will also feature most of the nation's best individual swimmers, including four NCAA top 10 finishers - Su Walsh from North Carolina, a No. 6 finisher; Michelle Ford and Sue Habernigg of Southern California, No. 7 and 8 finishers, and North Carolina's Polly Winde, a No. 9 finisher.

Other individual standouts in the meet are Joan Pennington, the second fastest IM'er in the country, Cynthia Woodhead, the world record holder in the 200-meter free, Tori Trees, one of the top breaststrokers in the nation, and Annie Lett, a world-ranked freestyler.

"This is the preview meet leading up to the NCAA championships," Hill said. "I think we could possibly finish in the top three."

According to Golden, diving competition will be open to individual entrants. Golden said former Saluki diver Tracy Terrell will be one of the individuals that will enter.

Terrell is at the University of Texas training for the Olympic trials. She is trying to qualify for the 10-meter platform diving competition.

Swimmers to compete with top NCAA teams

By Scott Rich
Staff Writer

Going into Christmas break with an undefeated dual meet record, women's swimming Coach Tim Hill is looking toward the Texas Quad meet on Jan. 13 as "the preview meet to the NCAA championships".

The meet will feature six of the top 10 women's swimming teams in the nation. The only teams from the top 10 that won't be at the meet are No. 1 Stanford, No. 2 Florida and No. 5 Alabama.

"The top six finishers in the meet will be the top scorers in the NAAs," Hill said. "I think we'll see a lot of NCAA qualifying times." The Saluki women are following an impressive 86-54 dual meet victory over Auburn, the No. 8 finisher at the NAAs. The win avenged a dual meet loss last season and an NCAA finish behind the Lady Tigers.

THE MEET with Auburn was a show of outstanding performances, featuring four pool and 10 meet records broken and 12 NCAA qualifying standards. The Saluki women had seven of the 12 NCAA standards.

The SIU-C 200 freestyle relay team of Rene Royalty, Sue Wittry, Barb Larsen and Pam Ratcliffe turned in an NCAA qualifying standard and a meet and pool record with a time of 1:35.4. The time was one and three-tenths of a second below the qualifying pace and the team's best performance since Royalty, Laura Peel, Larsen and Ratcliffe finished fifth in the NCAA championships.

Royalty swam the leadoff leg in the relay, turning in a meet record and NCAA qualifying time of 23.87. She also took first in the 50 and 100 individual free events.

Hill praised Royalty's performance in the meet.

"The win in the 50 free got Rene on a roll," Hill said. "She really came through and did an excellent job in all the sprint events."

THE 400 MEDLEY relay team of Wendy Irick, Armi Airaksinen, Amanda Martin and Ratcliffe turned in an NCAA qualifying standard and meet and pool record time of 3:52.5. Their time was the best ever by an SIU-C 400 medley team.

Along with qualifying in the 400 medley, Martin also met the standard in the 100 and 200 breaststroke. Her time of 1:05.22 in the 100 breast was a meet and team record.

Hill said Martin's performance was about what he expected.

"Amanda really hasn't been pushed all season," Hill said. "I think she could have been faster in the 200 (breast) if she would have had some competition."

Stacy Westfall swam an NCAA qualifying time finishing second in the 200 butterfly clocking in at 2:03.84. Hill was surprised by Westfall's performance.

"I really didn't expect Stacy to swim that fast," Hill said. "It was a pleasant surprise." IRICK TURNED in a lifetime best qualifying time in the 400 individual medley, finishing at 4:28.27.

Other first-place finishers for the team were Airaksinen in the 200 free, 1:51.93, and Larsen in the 100 fly, a season best of 57.4.

"I think the meet with Auburn showed the girls that they are national caliber swimmers," Hill said. "The hard training has begun to pay off."

Women's diving Coach

Dennis Golden was also pleased with the performance of his team SIU-C's Angie Faidherbe was the top finisher for the Salukis, finishing third on both boards.

Faidherbe's finishes of 225.68 on the one-meter and 227.7 on the three-meter board was just short of the NCAA qualifying standard.

"Angie averaged sixes. With her format of dives she needs 6.2s," Golden said. "She's not very far from the NCAA standard."

GOLDEN SAID that his divers turned in their most "steady" performance of the season.

"We did what we've been trying to do all season," Golden said. "We showed a lot of consistency in our dives."

Over Christmas break the team will swim in two meets in Austin, Texas.

Jan. 6-8 the Saluki women will take on swimmers from around the world in the University of Texas International meet. Hill said the meet will feature some of the top competitors in the world.

"The meet is a warmup for the Olympic games for many of the teams," Hill said. "Teams from: Russia, Germany and many other countries will be represented in the meet."

On Jan. 13 and 14 the team will again be in Austin to face Texas, Southern California, North Carolina, Kansas and Auburn in the Texas Quad meet.

Fullback Corky Field broke through a hole in the middle of the Wolf Pack defense Saturday.

Carolina passing attack as a "do or die situation."

The Salukis have lived with the defense's 34 interceptions and the front line's persistent rush all season, which has resulted in 58 quarterback sacks and 42 tackles for losses. If SIU-C's defensive backs lapse against Western Carolina, then Gilbert could have a field day, which he has oftened enjoyed this season.

Gilbert's favorite receiver this season has been flanker Eric Rasheed. He has caught 87 passes for 1,116 yards and 12 touchdowns. Rasheed has averaged more than six receptions per game this year.

Split end Kristy Kiser has 61 receptions for 905 yards and six touchdowns. Tailback Leonard Williams has come out of the backfield to catch 36 passes for 290 yards. Tight end Eddie West has 36 receptions and tailback Melvin Dorsey has 22 catches.

Williams has gained 808 yards on 201 carries and scored 10 touchdowns on the ground. Dorsey has also rushed for 674 yards on 147 carries, averaging 4.6 yards per carry.

Defensively, the Catamounts have been yielding 307.8 yards per game. The defense doesn't appear to be especially strong against either the rush or the pass, giving up 157.2 yards passing and 150.6 yards rushing per game.

Cornerback Miles Nicholson leads the secondary with eight interceptions, including one against Furman last week, and has 11 pass deflections.

The Catamounts' other cornerback, Tiger Greene, has six interceptions and a team-leading 16 pass breakups. Greene also has blocked four kicks.

Left end John Surratt has eight quarterback sacks and 12 tackles for losses. Right end Clyde Simmons has sacked quarterbacks six times this season and has eight tackles for losses.

Placekicker Dean Biasucci has done the job during his senior season. Biasucci has made 18 of 31 field goal attempts and 39 of 40 extra point attempts.

Biasucci has made three of seven field goal attempts from 40 to 49 yards out. He has missed his last three attempts, though, from that distance. Biasucci has had three 50-yard attempts hit the crossbar and bounce back onto the field. Against Furman in the playoffs, he connected on a 52-yard attempt.

Western Carolina's Steve Kormegay has averaged 40.9 yards per punt off of 80 punts and has had two punts blocked this year.

without a proven scorer among the returning players.

"We've never been in a situation before where we've had to replace this many players," Coach Lou Campanelli said.

Still, Campanelli's squad is off to a 5-2 start. It's losses came at Virginia, 53-50, and at home to Rider. Derek Steele, a 6-foot-7 forward, and Greg Mosten, a 5-foot-9 guard, are leading James Madison in scoring. Both are averaging just over 10 points per game.

Southern Methodist returns four starters from last year's 19-11 team. The Mustangs are off to a 5-1 start.

Jerry Tarkanian's Runnin' Rebels, 28-3 a year ago, have brought back four starters from that team. They are 4-0, with games left against Nevada-

Reno and Kansas remaining before the Round-Up.

The Salukis will not play for two weeks following their trip to Las Vegas. During that period, they will prepare for the Missouri Valley schedule, which tips off Jan. 7 at home against West Texas State.

If SIU-C students do not return to Carbondale until the start of the semester, they will miss the Saluki home games against West Texas State and Indiana State Jan. 9. SIU-C plays at Creighton Jan. 12 and at Wichita State Jan. 14.

The Wichita State contest will be televised on the Missouri Valley Network, and is available on several cable systems in the Chicago and St. Louis areas and on KFVS-TV in Cape Girardeau.

Wichita State, Illinois State and Tulsa are the favorites to command the top three spots in the Valley.

The Salukis were ranked eighth in the nine-team Missouri Valley in the media and coaches pre-season polls. They were considered a sleeper, though, by several coaches and media people because of their influx of transfer talent.

Catamounts last Saluki hurdle

By Jim Lexa
Staff Writer

One last obstacle remains for the Salukis in their quest for the NCAA I-AA football championship -- Western Carolina. SIU-C will play the Catamounts, who are riding the nation's longest unbeaten streak in I-AA with 12, at 1:40 (Eastern Standard Time) Saturday at The Citadel in Charleston, S.C.

Western Carolina, 11-2-1, lost its first two games of the year to I-A teams Clemson, 44-10, and Wake Forest, 21-0, but bounced back to record 11 wins and a tie.

The squad's streak includes three wins in the I-AA playoffs. The Catamounts' tie was a 17-17 battle with Furman. Western Carolina, though, avenged that tie by knocking Furman out of the playoffs last week with a 14-7 win. With Furman being bounced out of the title chase, that leaves the No. 1-ranked Salukis as the only seeded team left in the playoffs.

Before beating Furman in the playoffs, the Catamounts defeated Colgate, 24-23, and No. 2 seed Holy Cross, 28-21.

Western Carolina finished No. 9 in the final regular season I-AA poll, just a half game behind Southern Conference champion Furman.

"It is the biggest game we've ever been involved in," Catamount Coach Bob Waters said. "What could be more important than playing for a national championship?"

Unlike Nevada-Reno, which used a strong rushing attack in a predominantly passing conference to make the playoffs, Western Carolina's offense is a strong passing attack.

Waters, a former pro quarterback with the San Francisco 49ers, has his squad's aerial attack in fine shape.

Western Carolina has averaged more than 233 yards passing, 130 yards rushing and 25.9 points per game.

Quarterback Jeff Gilbert has completed 251 of 454 passes this season, for 2,839 yards and 20 touchdowns. Gilbert has thrown 13 interceptions, including two last week against Furman.

Gilbert has not always been the leader of the passing attack this season. As far into the season as the squad's fourth game, the quarterback situation had still not been resolved. After a 42-10 win over Tennessee Tech in the fifth game of the season, the quarterback job was Gilbert's.

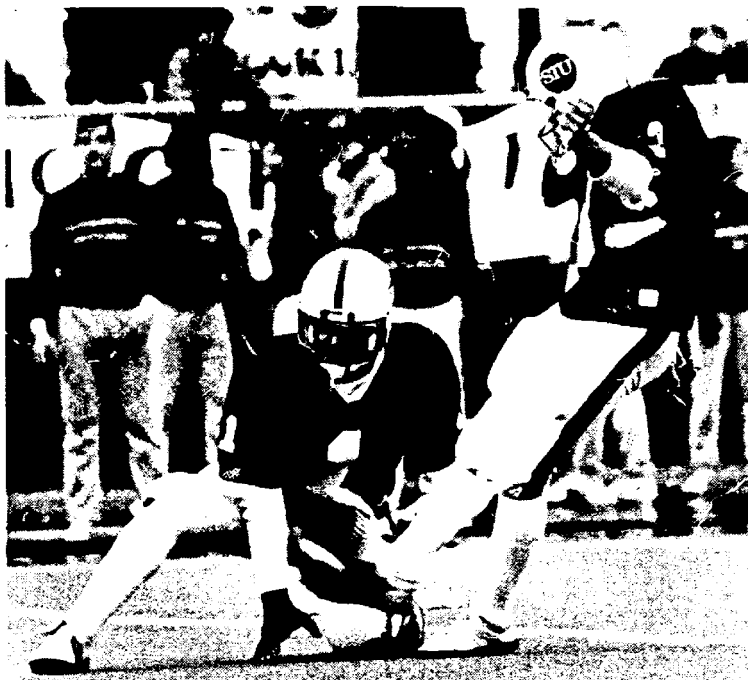

Against Tennessee-Chattanooga, Gilbert had what might have been his worst game of the season, eight of 25 for 89 yards, but he threw three touchdown passes to lead his squad to a 25-15 win.

Even though the passing attack has been working for most of the season, Waters said he is a little concerned about the Saluki secondary.

"Their secondary presents a tremendous challenge for our passing game," Waters said. "Southern Illinois is the finest defensive team we've seen this season."

Van Winkle's squad to tackle tough tourney slate over break

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

With all of the hoopla surrounding the football team and its march toward the I-AA championship, the men's basketball has somewhat quietly bolted out of the gate, piling up a nifty 6-1 record.

In 1981-82, Coach Allen Van Winkle's first season, the Salukis won 11 games. Last year SIU-C won nine. With one quarter of the season completed they are one-third of the way from matching last year's win total.

But the roughest portion of the schedule lies ahead.

Van Winkle's band of transferees plays in two tournaments before opening the Missouri Valley Conference season Jan. 7. This weekend they play in the Bayou Classic in Lafayette, La., and Dec. 22-23 they'll play in the Rebel Round-Up at Las Vegas.

At Lafayette, the Salukis play California-Santa Barbara in the first round Friday night. The winner plays the winner of the Eastern Washington and host Southwestern Louisiana matchup Saturday. A consolation game will precede the title game.

The Gauchos of U.C. Santa Barbara are 4-1, with all of their wins coming at the expense of Division II teams. They are led by 6-foot-7 forward Scott Fisher, averaging 18.6 points and 8.3 rebounds per game.

Following a 1-15 Pacific Coast AA record last season, they were picked to finish last this season by the media and coaches in pre-season polls.

Eastern Washington, 1-5, is led by Melvin Bradley, averaging 12.3 points per game. Last year the Eagles posted a 17-11 mark as an independent.

The Rajin' Cajuns are undefeated in their first three games. Guard George Almones is their leading scorer with 20 points per game. In addition to Almones, two starters return from last year's team that went 22-7.

The Rebel Round-Up, also a four-team invitational, appears to be the toughest of the three tournaments on the Saluki schedule. After playing James Madison in the first round, the Salukis take on either the Runnin' Rebels of Nevada-Las Vegas or Southern Methodist.

James Madison posted a 20-11 record in the ECAC last year before advancing to the NCAA tournament for the third straight year and to the second round of the second consecutive season. Last year they were eliminated by North Carolina.

The Dukes, however, have lost four starters and are

Cagers down Flames

By Sherry Chisenhall

An overmatched Illinois-Chicago team never quite pushed its way into the game Tuesday night as the Saluki women's basketball team blew past the Flames 67-53.

Saluki center Connie Price didn't dress for the game and will not practice until the end of the week because of a viral infection and bronchitis.

The Salukis didn't need Price, though, still outsizeing the Flames inside and controlling the inside game. Saluki freshmen saw quite a bit of playing time and held their own against the UI-C club.

Jackson paced Coach Cindy Scott's team with 18 points, while senior forward Char Warring had 11. Freshman Tamie Sanders saw a good deal of court time, scoring 10 points for SIU-C.

The Salukis outrebounded the Flames only 40-32 and didn't take advantage of their edge inside. The 6-foot-2 Warring pulled in only eight rebounds to top SIU-C, while Jackson contributed seven and freshman forward Ann Kattreh chipped in five.

The Flames were led in scoring by 5-foot-10 sophomore Tracy Manuel, who scored 18 points and hauled down nine rebounds.

During Christmas break the Salukis will swing into their conference schedule, in a conference that doesn't appear to be very strong. SIU-C and Drake are the favorites to battle for the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference crown, with Illinois State running a not-too-distant third.

The conference play will be double round-robin in the regular season, with no championship tournament. The team with the best conference record after the regular season will be declared the GCAC champion and will receive an automatic bid to the NCAA tournament.
