Gov. James R. Thompson said he would recommend $1.56 billion in appropriations for higher education, $90 million less than the Illinois Board of Higher Education requested.

The Soviet acceptance, announced by Canadian Foreign Minister Joe Clark at the international "Open Skies" conference, allows the United States to base an extra 30,000 troops outside the European central zone, that is, in Britain and Italy.

The Soviet move appeared to be total and the Soviets have dropped a counterproposal that would have denied the United States the extra 30,000 troops in Europe.

Under the agreement, the Soviet Union will be able to station a maximum of 195,000 ground and air troops in Europe outside the Soviet Union's borders.

By accepting the American proposal the Soviet government aban-doned its earlier counteroffers, apparently in the interest of bringing about an agreement greement on the Conventional Forces in Europe agreement in Vienna.

Colleen Heimstead's effort consistent factor for Salukis

By Greg Scott Staff Writer

Colleen Heimstead has had peaks and valleys this season, but her effort always is a consistent factor.

The Saluki sophomore point guard is dedicated to her team and the role she plays on it. Part of that dedication includes arriving at practice earlier than other Saluki

If Saluki Coach Cindy Scott begins practice at 5:30, Heimstead will be in her practice gear and ready to go at 5 p.m.

Scott appreciates Heimstead's attitude toward the basketball pro-

"Colleen is out there shouling around or semething 30 minutes before practice every day," Scott said. "She is really a very neat person. She wants to be good and wents the team to be good."

Heimstead said she's always wanted to be places on time, even if she receives a little ribbing from teammates for her early arrival to practice.

"I just like to be places early and have time to set around, shoot or just relax a little bit before practice or games," Heimstead said. "They give me a hard time about being early but I don't mind it. It's part of me and I've always been that way growing up."

Heimstead's main attribute is her unselfishness. She does what it takes to help her teammates. This includes anything from helping a younger player to getting the team ready for a game.

"I encourage them and try to keep them ready," Heimstead said. "I do what I can to help them out." Heimstead's hard work usually pays off at the free throw line. She is shooting 86 percent (37-43) from the charity stripe and is ranked fifth in the Gateway Conference.

Heimstead's clutch performances have been instrumental during the Salukis' drive toward a during the Salukis' drive toward a Gateway title. In the Salukis' 61-56 victory over Bradley Feb. 5, Heimstead had 13 points, 5 assists and was 7-for-7 from the line. In the Salukis' 49-48 victory over Drake Thursday, Heimstead grabbed a career high 9 rebounds.

But Heimstead has experienced tough moments this season.

Despite her hard work ethic and devotion to the team, Heimstead still is a young player learning. Scott said she sticks with Heimstead because of her winning

"It's hard to get down on her because she gives us a great effort," Scott said. "At times Colleen doesn t make good mental decisions but she's stil1 just a sophomore. We expect a lot out of her and I think the fans are hard on her.

Sterling Mahan named Missouri Valley Conference Player of Week

By Kevin Simpson

In recognition of his outstanding in recognition of his outstanding effort against the Creighton Bluejays Saturday, the Missouri Valley Conference named Saluki point guard Sterling Mahan "Player of the Week".

In the Salukis' 84-76 win over defending a harming Conjahan to defending champion Creighton, the 6-1, 187 pound junior scored 20 points, dished out 5 assists, collect-ed 4 rebounds and did not commit a turnover in 37 minutes of playing time. Defensively, he recorded a block and a steal.

Much of Mahan's defensive effort did not show up in the box score but he was constantly harass-ing Creighton's guards and post players.

Although his effort has been consistent this season, Mahan said he turned up his intensity as the Salukis are making a move to pick up the MVC title.

In his past four garnes, Mahan averaged 20 points as the Salukis won three of four. His best game of the season was against St. Louis University Jan. 29 when he scorched the nets on the Billikens home floor en route to a careerhigh 27 points.

ence and go to the NCAA tournament so you have to turn it up another notch," Mahan said. "I can turn it up another notch because we have two road games that we have to win."

Even though he picked up the award, Mahan considers his role as helping the Salukis advance toward the NCAA tournament. Team goais are more important as the Salukis are playing their best Basketball of the season.

"I'm still going for the team effort," Mahan said. "Everybody is playing well. We're playing with a lot more confidence. We feel better with each other than at the beginning of the year."

Mahan has started all 24 games for the Salukis this season in leading the team to a 19-5 record. SIU-C is 5-3 in the Valley, behind Illinois State and Creighton, both 7-3. During the Dawgs' current hot streak the team has won seven of

On the season, Mahan is averag-ing 15.9 points (sixth in the Valley), 4.5 assists (first), 2 steals (first) and 2.9 rebounds. His 49 percent shooting — 37 percent accuracy from 3-point range ranks him in the top ten. Head coach Rich acknowledged Mahan's effort in a crucial part of the season.

"It may be a week overdue but he is a complete basketball player and his leadership makes him very deserving of the award," Herrin said. "It's not just an honor for an individual but for our team also.

"He does a great job of handling the ball and he does a great job defensively," Herrin said.

This is the second "Player of the Week" award of the season for a Salukis. Senior guard Freddie McSwain received the award after averaging 28 points per game in the Tennessee-Chattanooga tourna-ment earlier this season.

Arizona baseball fans fear impact of players lockout

PHOENIX (UPI) - Just a year ago, Arizona baseball fans were fearful of losing their Cactus League to arch-rival Florida

Now, with the major league owners threatening to lock out the players, Arizonans may find out what it would be like with-out spring training.

Seven teams train in Arizona with an eighth just across the border in Palm Springs, Calif. Their estimated annual economic impact on the state — $145 million — was enough to get the attention of the governor's office in 1989 when rumors surfaced that Florida was trying to lure away some of those teams.

Those threats seem to have disappeared, but not before a special task force, created by one-time softball star Gov. Rose Mofford, spent months studying the Cactus League and recommending ways to keep the teams in Arizona.

Orchard Lake nearing recreational use

Crab Orchard Lake is now close to full recreational use, said Jim Cameron, outdoor recreation planner at the refuge.

Cameron said the lake level is 10 inches below normal pool of 405 feet, which is average for the midsummer. Rains expected later this week should bring the level up considerably, he said.

"We have very few doubts that we'll have a full lake by summer,"

Cameron said.

He said the ground has been saturated by the January rains; Devils Kitchen Lake is full and Little Grassy Lake is brimming at the spillway ready to overflow with a little more rain. The overflow from both these lakes flow into Crab Orchard, and the saturated ground will allow more rain to eventually flow into the largest of the three lakes on the refuge, he

Chuck Suprenant said the increased volume of water in the sive as a fish biologist.

Suprenant said the fish population in the lake has been fortunate because this winter has been unusually mild.

Crab Orchard Lake was drawn down four feet last September so repairs could be made to the dam below the regular water height.

The drawdown forced fish into a smaller area and can affect the population by increasing competi-tion for food, he said. The rain has relieved the fish of close quarters, but the real affect of the drawdown won't be known until later in the spring when the cold damage to exposed aquatic plants can be assayed, Suprenant said. Fish use the plants as protective cover and eat other animals using the cover. If that is damaged, Suprenant said, the fish population will suffer.

Cameron said the boat ramps and most other facilities are use able and have been used by some people. He noted that February isn't a high traffic month for the lake, though.

The floating docks on the lake, installed by the Crab Orchard Take Pride in America committee at Crab Orchard, were unhooked during the drawdown but should be shored up in a week or so, Cameron said.

The docks are installed near permanent boat ramps on various places on the three lakes.

Ea Wagner, also an outdoor recreational planner at the refuge, said the 18-inch minimum limit placed on largemouth bass will stay in force until Crab Orchard is fully up to level.

"At the rate we're filling, it won't be long," Wagner said. "The danger is really past of over harvesting.

The limit was raised from 15 inches early in the drawdown last

Mandela's freedom crucial for S. Africa

"NELSON Mandela is free! Amandla! Power to the people!"

These are the wonderful words that Monday prompted joyful celebrations and near hysteria from Mandela's supporters around the world. The leader of the African National Congress, South Africa's newly legalized opposition party, Mandela had been jailed for more than 27 years on anti-government and sedition charges.

MANDELA, 71, for several years has been the focus of intense media attention. A lawyer and leader of radical political groups since the 1940s, Mandela, his wife Winnie and their comrades and followers have worked tirelessiy against the blatant injustice and prejudice of apartheid (or separateness") that plagues their troubled land.

Whites constitute less than one-fifth of the countries population, but control every aspect of South African life under this unfair and immoral system of government.

THE ANC seeks a one-person, one-vote system to replace apartheid. The new system would be dominated by South Africa's 28 million blacks. South Africa's current leader, F.W. de Klerk, wants to institute a new constitution that would establish some political and legal rights for blacks, but provide the 5 million whites with some sort of veto over major decisions.

The bottom line is that South Africa needs racial and economic equality now. Mandela's freedom is the key to implementing these changes.

SEVERAL ATTEMPTS throughout the years have been staged to gain Mandela's freedom, including lotter writing campaigns, pleas to the United Nations and all star benefits.

Pop stars did their part, banding together in 1985 to release "Free Nelson Mandela." The song, which raised money for Mandela's release, eventually went to No. 1 on the charts in Great Britain and the artisits established a defense fund for Mandela out of the profits.

DESPITE SUCH international efforts, the world's most famous political prisoner remained in jail. The South African government under P.W. Botha repeatedly offered him parole, on the condition he not continue his ANC activities. Mandela refused

Even the United States government got in the act when, as a response to Mandela's plight and other inhumane acts of repression and segregation, it imposed economic sanctions against South Africa.

ECONOMIC RELATIONS between the two countries can only legally resume when all legal restraints and regulations based upon color bias are repealed or amended, all political prisoners such as Mandela are freed and the South African government agrees to meet with black leaders with no preconditions set. The sanctions legislation of 1986 set these provisions and that's the way it should be. Racism and injustice just aren't things we can afford to compromise on.

MANY VIEW Mandela as the only hope South Africa has for a bloodless redistribution of power. During the tenure of his incarceration, Mandela had come to symbolize the movement against worldwide prejudice and against the oppressive system of apartheid Apartheid wrongfully divides South African society into a caste system based on color, creating a giant schism in the national character that has created too much senseless violence and bloodshed. By advocating a rebellion through political reform instead of guerrilla warfare, Mandela can set the tone for a peaceful South African future.

The South African government needs to represent all factions of the population, regardless of race, creed or color. These protections are taken for granted by most Americans, but South Africans are acutely aware of their absence. The rest of the world should applaud their struggle for freedom while simultaneously helping to augment these peaceful changes.

Drug enforcement laws harm society

In response to Mr. Beanett I would like to say that enforcing our current drug laws is indeed imposing greater costs on our soci-ety than do the drugs themselves. Legalization of drugs would not only bring in revenue for treatment and education programs, it would also free manpower to do battle with the big guy and the black

No one is asking for surrender. Proponents of legalization see it as a new approach. We feel it is time to try something else since the current approach is not working. Just look around and you can see that it

I would like to tell you just a few benefits the Netherlands has realized with its permissive approach to drug use in that country: A 1/3 reduction in heroin addiction; an extremely low incidence of AIDS among LV. drug users; a decline in marijuana use; and Crack (cocaine) has had little impact in the Netherlands.
The Netherlands treats drug abuse as a health problem, not a legal one. Any drug can be abused, prescription or not, and this includes alcohol. But not all who use them are addicts, or become addicted. Isn't it time we bring the addicts "above ground" and within reach instead of driving them underground and beyond help? Let's turn our efforts toward drying up the intense demand for drugs by treating it as a health con-cern instead of failing at dry ing up the supply.

The decision rests with you, the people. Do we continue to spend billions of tax dollars on a program that has not succeeded in over twenty years, or do we demand our money applied to one that may work? — L.R. Ward, senior in psychology.

Education, legalization key to ending drug war

Drug Czar William Bennett either misunderstands or misrepresents proponents of legalization in his letter Monday. The arguments he gives against legalization sim-ply do not address the problem.

For one thing, no one I know of is proposing that we do away with all law enforcement regarding drug abuse. When he says that "the consequences of not enforcing drug laws would be far more costly," he assumes we propose no law enforcement. This is not the case. The child abuse, hard drug abuse, and teen use issues can all be dealt with better if we educate honestly about drug dangers. Lumping mar-ijuana with adulterated crack is not going to impress the nations teens with a sense of our Czar's intelligence. At least not in a positive manner. Law enforcement would .ill be able to prosecute child abuse, hard drug abuse, and teen use even if we legalized pot.

Legalizing cocaine, while risky on the surface, has a hidden benefit

The benefit is that cocaine would become safer as it is grown in the Andes mountains instead of deep in the rain forest, hidden from the government.

The coca bush, grown in a rainforest, is a tree much larger than when grown in the hostile mountain environment. It produces stable isomers known as tropocaines, which cause heart attacks, catatonic states and seizures similar to belladona alkaloid poisoning. Its just like smoking Jimson weed—a very bad idea.

This connection between illicit growing patterns, toxicity and law enforcement has worked to create a drug with 75% more reported hospital emergencies at the same time the number of users declined. That's a more toxic drug, grown at more volume per acre to make it even cheaper than before, The NIDA figures support for this anal-

Instead of public health programs to make more toxic drugs less toxic, our czar proposes more jails, more police overtime, and to debate. I say inform yourself, speak out, and above all--free the herb!—Drew Hendricks, freshherb!—Drew Hendricks, fresh-man, electrical engineering.

Documentary film directs racism toward whites

I just saw the movie "The Spook Who Sat by the Door," at the Student Center, and I am glad that I did. What SIU-C should now sponsor is a film about Ku Klux Klan members trying to "bring back the good old

Maybe if one goes to a movie like that, he or she can get a giddy chill listening to a white audience laugh as a black man gets lynched. Judging by the audience's reaction at the movie, it seems to be O.K. to laugh at white people getting killed for the crime of being white.

By the way, if you haven't guessed, I'm white. I'm from Chicago (where the bulk of the movie was filmed) and was brought up in the city. I have lived the nasty business of ethnic and racial tensions up close and personal. Chicago in the 70s did have the small possibility of turning out the way it was depicted in the film, but the innate common sense and decency of the American people won out. It seems that the powers that be at SIU-C believe that it is O.K. to perpetuate hatred only if directed against WASPs. — Thomas M. Swenson,

Jackson tries to steal South African limelight

There goes Jesse Jackson of globe-trotting again.
This time he's going off to South Africa, which is odd because he has not been there in over 10 years, and pooff All of a sudden Nelson Mandlal is going to he released. Mandela is going to be released and Jesse is going to be there to play hero or liberator.

Jesse has been known to try and steal the limelight be stretching the truth. For example, in 1968 when Martin Luther King was assasinated, Jesse came storming into the Chicago city council claiming that Martin Luther King had died in his arms after getting shot. To prove it, Jesse wore a blood-stained shirt claiming that it was the blood of Martin Luther King.

When witnesses of the assasination started to arrive in Chicago, they claimed that Jesse was nowhere near the slain civil rights leader, and how he got the blood on his shirt was beyond them. Jesse later backed away from his claim of King having died in his

Do not be surprised to hear all kinds of stories coming from Jesse when he returns, because he has tried to steal the limelight before when he was nowhere near it.

Maybe Mayor Marion Barry

was right when he said, "The only thing that Jesse wants to run is his mouth." — Bob Holstein, sophomore in marketing.

Letters

Read the Bible to get true story

Just before to Christmas break, a number of letters appeared arguing the merits of the Bible and Christianity. One of these letters stated some "facts" which are simply not true.

First, to say that the Bible was originally written in code is quite an overstatement, unless you consider ancient hebrew, Aramaic, and Greek to be forms of code.

Most of the books of the Bible are straight - forward narratives of events. Books such as Daniel. Ezekiel and Revelation contain descriptions of prophetic visions or

They may be symbolic and difficult to understand, but they were not written in code to hide their meaning. Their ultimate meaning is clear.

Secondly, the Bible has NOT been altered significantly during the past 2000 years.

Ancient documents, dating back to the second century B.C., provide evidence that the Bible has come through the centuries with very lit-tle change. Minor variations exist among different translations, but the meaning and intent have remained intact. You need a better excuse than that to ignore the Bible's message. Being a Christian requires faith, but it does not have to be a faith with no basis. The Bible's main purpose is to lay a foundation on which you can build your faith.

Don't take someone else's word for what the Bible says. Read it yourself. God does not require us to stop using our brains to believe Read some translation other than the King James Version, unless you happen to be fluent in 17th century English grammar and word usage.

Get the New International Version or one of the paraphrase versions such as the Living Bible. They are much easier to stand, and that is the point, isn't if

One final piece of advice for beginning Bible readers—start // reading the New Testame and always come back and read the Old Testament later.

Think about what you're reading. Suppose a doctor, a lawyer, an Internal Revenue agent, and two fishermen each told you an amazing story. Who would you believe? Everyone knows that fisherman are notorious liars and lawyers and government agents probably don't fare much better.

But what if they were all telling you the same story? Wouldn't that give it a bit more credibility? This exactly what you will find in the New Testament.

Luke was a Greek physician who set out to carefully investigate the life of Jesus and write an orderly account of it.

Paul was a Pharisee (an expert in law) who actively persecuted the followers of Jesus until he literally "saw the light" and received a spe-cial revelation from the supposedly

Sure, you can nit pick and find some inconsistencies in their writ-ings, but these amount to nothing compared to the consistent truths that are revealed.

Ask yourself, why did these men write these things? Was a fat contract with some book publisher? A big-money move deal? Why would these men write and tell this story about Jesus? What did they get out of it?

About all they got for their trou-ble from this world was stonings, beatings, imprisonment, exile and beatings, imprisonment, exile and probably martyrdom?

There is really only one logical reason why they would write and continue spreading their story in the face of such persecution. The story is true. Read it!—Michael Youther, A/P Staff, School of Medicine.

Disabled on campus disadvantaged

It has become increasingly evi-dent that many of us with visual impairments are justifiably agitated by the lack of an adequate service delivery system for persons with disabilities here at SIU.

Quite frankly, we are sick and tired of being forced into the fostered dependency role. "Oh, I'm sorry. I need help. How do I go sorry. I need help. How do I go about doing library research? How do I access to the main frame? Where is the adaptive equipment on caripus?" Sorry, but neither the service nor the equipment exists. I can honestly say that if it were not for the gracious efforts of a small teadful. handful of volunteer and paid read-ers several of us could kiss this education good-bye.

It is difficult not to sound bitter when you have to fight complacency and negative attitudes on every issue. Take transportation for example-Oh, having trouble getting to and from campus? What? a dozen stitches because vou were trying not to get hit by traffic and ran into a Yield sign? Well, the service isn't really for your use, but we are feeling generous so we will give you some transit tickets-but only for days you have classes, and you really should be thankful. And we have to ask for this abuse.

O.K. Enough complaining, and on to the solution. Did you professors know that the equipment exists to turn your class handouts and tests into synthetic speech and/or braille in a matter minutes-without retyping? That a scanner will put printed material into computer memory, accessible by word processing, and then send to a braille printer? And that this equip-ment is so inexpensive by contemporary standards it's ridiculous?

What we need is for some faculty and administrators to step forward and take an active role. Additionally, there is an advocacy and support group being estab-lished to lobby for changes in the s rvice delivery system. Anyone wishing to become pa part of this effort should contact me at Rehn Hall, 3rd floor.—Randy Allnatt, doctoral student, rehabilitation.

Bush claims economy healthy, but deficit exists

Bush fiddles while America burns. Yes, burns up and deterio-rates morally, spiritually and economically, e.g. in Illinois alone during 1989 about 140 plants closed leaving some 18,000 or so jobless, yet Bush brags that our "economy is ware backles."

"economy is very healthy."

We have a huge deficit, are the greatest debtor nation in the world, yet we are healthy economically. It does not add up correctly nor does it make common sense. And yet the public is inundated daily with the lies about democracy and security. Bush, this week, was observing war games carried out by our sol-diers in a camp in California. We were practicing against devised Soviet troops with Soviet-like

Will our leadership never wake up to see the reality of the foolishness of the "Star Wars Lasco." (See photo, Bush admiring a model of Brilliant Pebbles, an orbiting satellite which will gather intelligence.) The cost of this continued military blundering is beyond reason. We need to be gathering reasons as to why so many of our people are drug and alcohol abusers; why we have such a high illiteracy rate, high infant mortality rate, home-less, hungry and on and on.

Our leadership could do enor-mous good in the democratization mous good in the democraziano of the Eastern bloc; but we would rather choose the "garrison mentality which prefers bombs over bread, bullets over butter, and now PEBBLES over people." And college students will be among those people trampled over by this administration as it once again is attempting to plunge forth with huge deficit spending to increase cold-war military spending.— Elsie M. Speck, Carbondale.

Solution to baseball travesty: switch channels

As a regular — and sometimes critical — reader of the Daily Egyptian, I would like to compliment the editorial page staff and particularly the author of the Feb. 12 editorial, "Baseball lockout: gigantic gyp for fans."

The editorial was straightforward, hard-hitting and to the point: that the national sport of baseball has fallen on hard times, not because of poverty, but because too much money is now involved, and the fans are suffering.

If the 1990 baseball season is indeed delayed or curtailed, all the fans need to do to express their displeasure is to stay away from the games when the owners and players do decide to play ball.

But what would probably hart even more and really get their mes-sage across would be for the fans to turn off their TV sets or switch channels whenever baseball games come on the air — and boycott the products of the advertising spon-

That may be too much to expect, but the Daily Egyptian editorial was great, as far as it went.

There is only one jarring note:

The colloquial word "gyp" — meaning a fraud or swindle — comes from "Gypsy," so it is really an ethnic slur on all Gypsies. The expression "to Jew someone down" — meaning to bargain for a lower price — is similarly a slap at all Jews, as the telling of "Polack" jokes is disparaging to all people of Polish descent, and so on.

Publications representing institu-tions of higher learning such as SIU-C should be especially careful to avoid the use of language that casts aspersions on any group of neonle.

The agreement overcomes one of the most important obstacles to a CFE treaty and provides additional impetus to reach an agree-ment this year," said Clark, the chairman of the Open Skies conference.

The accord was worked out in the corridors of the Open Skies conference, a meeting attended by 23 NATO and Warsaw Pact foreign ministers aimed at arranging for mutual air surveillance of the rival alliances' military bases. U.S. Secretary of State James Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, who held a formal session at a hotel, also could be seen huddling together with their aides and sometimes alone with only a translator pre-

Still unsettled in the Vienna arms talks is an agreement on com-bat aircraft. The Soviet Union enjoys an advantage over NATO of more than 5,000 planes, Baker had said that if the Soviet counterproposal were to be accepted, the Western powers would have to add 2,000 combat aircraft. 'That is hardly disarmament,"

Baker said Monday. The Soviet concession on the crucial manpower issue comes in the face of the Warsaw Pact's grad-ual disintegration. The Soviet allies of Czechoslovokia, Hungary and Poland have initiated the process of removing Soviet forces from their territory. Soviet forces in East Germany were expected also to be asked to leave as part of the mushrooming process of German reunification.

The manpower agreement means that the 195,000 NATO ground and air troops could be based in West Germany. That number would be one corps of ground troops, several air wings and enough logistical troops to serve as a operational core prepared to lead additional troops in the case of a crisis, U.S. officials said.

The 30,000 extra NATO troops are designed to counter the geographical advantage of the Soviet Union, which because of its proximity to Europe could send troops in quickly in an emergency.

The agreement will be sent to the Conventional Forces in Europe negotiators in Vienna, who already have made progress on limiting tanks, armored personnel carriers and artillery

Campus soda price increase due to rise in wholesale price

By Brian Gross

When searching for exact change for soda machines, quarters are not the only coins sought out anymore. Add nickels to that list

The price increased to 55 cents for a can of soda from campus vending machines Monday. The price had remained at 50 cents for the past five and a half years, Harry Wirth, director for service enterprises, said. Under the terms of the contract,

Wirth said, the vending service may raise its price if the price of the product increases by 10 per-cent. The University's vending contractor, Canteen Co. of 1520 Industrial Rd., was given permission to raise the price beginning Soda can sales raised $165,000 for students last year.

The increased cost of both aluminum and product ingredients have caused the wholesale price of soda to increase about 10 percent, John Rains, financial department employee for the Pepsi Cola

'West Side Story' enjoyab

By Jeanne Bickler Entertainment Editor

The Valentine's Day cupid struck early this year, hitting Maria and Tony from "West Side Story" Monday night on the Shryock

The musical, presented by the youthful Music Theatre Groun, Inc., had beautiful choreography, excellent sets and some very talented performers.

Unfortunately, the orchestra often overpowered the voices of the actors, making certain parts of the songs and speech inaudible. The stroager voices in the cast were able to hold their own with the orchestra. Because most of the songs involved two or more singers, when only the stronger voice could be heard the story was lost in the song.

An instance of this occurred in the song "America." In this num-ber, the lead singer is Anita, played by Kristen M. Wilson. Anita is arguing with another Puerto Rican girl about the values and virtues of American life.
The song requires the Puerto Rican girl to sing a complaint about America, and Anita to counter with a smart remark. Wilson, as Anita, had an extremely

But, because of Wilson's strong voice, "America" was one of the better numbers. Also, the choreography for this was exciting and energetic. The performers in this segment were very talented

"Gee, Officer Krupke," featuring the Jets led by Matthew Johnson as Action, was the most enjoyable piece because every single word could be understood.

Johnson was fun to watch as the excitable Action. This could not be said of all of the actors.

The lead roles of Tony and Maria, played by Zachary Robbins and Christina M. Pierro respective-ly, didn't seem to have the impact or the punch expected.

This story of star-crossed lovers needed some real chemistry between the two, and it just wasn't

The play often calls for both Tony and Maria to sing at the same time. Robbins' singing was usually powerful, but when he sang with Pierro, she drowned him out. To their credit, they both had different singing styles, which served to emphasize their ethnic differences.

But exactly what ethnic group did Marin belong to? The role states the part is that of a Puerto Rican girl, but the accent seemed wrong. In comparison to Wilson's (Anita's) authentic sounding accent, Pierro sounded like Elvira introducing the next creature fea-

This overbearing accent was especially noticeable in the number "Tonight." Pierro seemed to be singing "Donight, donight."
Clearly, Wilson was the most professional in this group, as evidenced by her roles as the Scarecrow in "The Wiz" and Cha in "Grease." Johnny Martinez, as Bernardo the leader of the as Bernardo the leader of the Sharks, also delivered a great per-

Despite the fact that many of the words to the songs were lost and some of the performances weren't as sharp as expected, this was an enjoyable evening at the theater.

The situation is well in hand," said U.S. Ambassador Thomas McNamara, who described the protective military force as "the usual presidential contingent.

"It is not an extraordinary (security) effort on our part," he said at a news conference in Cartagena. He conceded, however, that "there's always a risk when you put four presidents together, but that risk is not excessive."

In Washington, the Pentagon announced that the assault ship USS Nassau and the escort destroyer USS Sampson arrived off the coast of Colombia Monday.

The 830-foot Nassau normally carries a complement of 1,900 fully armed Marines, the Navy said. But the Navy and U.S. offi-cials refused to say exactly how many Marines were aboard for the Colombian trip.

Botero said the U.S. assault ship would, in conjunction with the Colombian navy, supply heli-copters to fly Bush and his entourage from the Barranquilla airport to the summit site in Cartagena.

A Pentagon official said that, while the Nassau and Sampson are there mainly for those types of logistical purposes, "if anything happens, they would be prepared."

The summit comes as South Americans expressed optimism over the talks and praise for what some officials saw as a U.S. change from "finger-pointing" to a willingness to discuss critical eco-

McDonald's makes bid to replace H.B. Quick's; McPizza a McMaybe

McDonald's may add to its list of "billions served" if installed in the Student Center by fall semester. Representatives of McDonald's spoke Tuesday as bidders of the latest fast-food restaurant in the Student Center. The restaurant would replace the area currently would replace the area currently occupied by H.B.Quick's.

McDonald's proposed spending about $900,000 in renovations, according to Student Center Director John Corker. Remodeling would include walls, fixtures, seating and the ceiling.

The proposed remodeling schedule would call for construction to begin on June 4 and end in the week of Aug. 13.

Tami Todoroff, Undergraduate Student Government and Student Center board representative of the food service committee, said McDonald's was "the only fastfood service to be taken seriously at this time.

"There was a real positive attitude coming out of there (the pre-sentation)," Todoroff said.

McDonald's would offer a new item, McPizza, on a trial basis.

Five other companies are bid-ding for food service contracts in the Student Center. Each company recommends the installation of a pizza operation and an ice crean

Pizza Hut, which is currently contracted to the Marriott food service company, could be replaced with a different pizza restaurant if Marriott loses its contract in May

Senate passes on title change for CCFA dean until request is made

The Faculty Senate will not deal with the appointment process of Marvin Kleinau from acting dean to dean for the College of Communications and Fine Arts until a request for approval is

"We will deal with it as an issue when it comes from the vice president's office," Donald Paige, Faculty Senate president, said after much discussion on the subject at the senate meeting Tuesday. "We will discuss it when it comes to us and vote on it at that time.

Gretel Chapman, faculty mem-ber, read a letter from the IEA-NEA questioning the search pro-cess for a new CCFA dean and the proposed changing of Kleinau's acting dean title to dean without input of the faculty.

"It was my intention to ask the senate and the graduate council to reply to the issue of dropping the (acting dean) title," Benjamin Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs, said. "If they don't object, I intend to drop the title July first.

The University first conducted a search for a permanent dean last spring. Kleinau served in an interim capacity this year.

"Our first search was negative," Larry Busch, faculty senator, said. "We didn't like any of the candi-dates who came in. I have seen no error or emissions in the proceed-

"We're very fortunate to have Marvin Kleinau as our acting dean, and he is just that. He is doing this as a courtesy, but he will not return after next year."

The department chairs polled their faculty members, resulting in a 120-18 vote in favor of asking Kleinau to stay on next year, Shepherd said, and Kleinau wanted the title change to dean.

"I thought it was a reasonable thing to do," Shepherd said. "We never hire (permanent) deans on a term basis."

Kleinau would be hired for only one year as dean, Shepherd said, which means he could not stay in that position for a longer term.

A second search to be conducted next year during both the fall and spring semesters looks promising, Busch said.

"This time we have the advan-tage of time," he said. "Last time things were rushed. We're confident we can find a good individu-

In other business, the senate passed a resolution amending the SIU-C spouse travel policy. The amendment specifies that spouse travel be funded only by direct grant funds and unrestricted or gift foundation funds.

Another resolution passed stat-ing that Social Work be affiliated with an academic unit of its choice, upon agreement of the academic unit, for voting purposes in the Faculty Senate.

Also passed was a resolution recommending Pat Taricone, facul-ty member for the rehabilitation institute, be placed on the SIU-C substance abuse committee.

The Judicial Review Board elec-tion was conducted at the meeting after being postponed from the December meeting. Gola Waters, Norman Vieira and Chandra Banerjee were elected for two-year terms. Marvin Zeman was elected for a one-year term.

The number of members on the JRB was increased from five to six this year. Three members will be elected every year for two-year terms beginning next year. During the Faculty Status and Welfare Committee report, committee chairman Donald Garner said he has submitted a proposal to the administration to resolve the issue of changing the student con-duct code and is awaiting an

Also during the committee report, the issue of the proposed Faculty Club was discussed.

"We should start calling it the University Center, because it will be a meeting place in a collegiate atmosphere where one can conduct appropriate business," Garner said.

Committee member Walter Henneberger said the new plan for a University Center would call for an building connected to the Student Center costing in the range of $100,000 to $200,000. Henneberger discussed the plans with University architect Allen

"We're probably better off under this plan than we were under the old plan," Henneberger said. "The cost would be about what they would have been in the Student Center. We would have been paying rent forever (under the old

Prep seniors using fewer drugs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Illegal drug use among bigh school seniors declined again last year as the popularity of cocaine plummeted to its lowest level since the mid-1970s, a federally financed survey showed Tuesday.

showed Tuesday.

University of Michigan researchers, who conducted the study for the National Institute for Drug Abuse, said the decline occurred despite a significant increase in the number of students who said it was easy to obtain drugs.

"The broad trends we are seeing are due almost entirely to demand, not supply," said Lloyd Jonnston, principal researcher for the survey.

The report was issued two days before President Bush's drug summit with the presidents of Peru, Bolivia and Colombia in Cartagena, Colombia.

Drug policy director William Bennett told a news conference the survey is evidence that progress is being made in cutting demand and that more action is needed on supplies.

"These statistics suggest that for high school students, drugs are still an all-too-available commodity," he said.

The 15th annual report was based on surveys filled out in class by 17,000 seniors. For a 10th year, 1,200 college students and 6,600 other high school graduates who had responded to previous studies were surveyed again by mail.

The study said the percentage of seniors who ever had used an ille-53.9 percent in 1988.

The percentages of seniors had used any form of cocaine either in their life, in the last year or in the last month fell to their lowest levels since 1976.

Johnston acknowledged the student survey was unlikely to find heavy crack users.

"What may be most significant here is the fact that crack has not heavily penetrated the mainstream populations of American young people and that the initiation rates among them appear to be on the decline". Industring said among them appear to be on the decline," Johnston said.

Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Narcotics Committee, said the survey was of "extremely limited value" because it did not include data on high school droupouts who are at the "core of the drug crisis."

Use also fell in 1989 for alcohol, marijuana, amphetamines, barbiturates, and Quaaludes. More students used PCP, and the use of inhalants, such as glue and nitrous oxide, and of cigarettes was about the same as in the early 1980s.

■ Regular use of PCP increased from 0.3 percent to 1.4 percent of seniors. But use remains lower than in the late 1970s.

m Esstasy, included in the survey for the first time, was tried by 3.3 percent of the 19- to 28-year-olds and was used regularly by 0.4 percent.

■ Three percent of the seniors, 4.7 percent of males and 1.3 percent of females, had used anabolic steroids, also included for the first time.

Marijuana was used regularly by 17 percent of seniors, down from 37 percent in 1979. Daily use was down among all groups.

Tranquilizer, barbiturate and methaqualone use was so low that in some cases barely any usage was found. Less than 0.1 percent of the college students regularly used methaqualone, or Quaaludes.

Negotiations encouraging

NEW YORK (UPI) -Baseball's labor negotiations took an encouraging turn Tuesday, with both sides agreeing to consider sugges-tions from Commissioner Fay Vincent. With sp With spring training scheduled to begin in two days, management's chief negotiator Chuck O'Connor and union chief Don Fehr said they would meet with their respective groups Wednesday.

Fehr emphasized he had no vay of knowing whether Vincent's suggestions would lead to progress in the talks.

Puzzle answers

While most of the Arizona spring training teams are centered in the metropolitan Phoenix and Tucson areas where their absence would have less impact, the San Diego Padres are a more important economic factor in Yuma.

to pinpoint, according to Howard.
"I think it's awfully hard to assess," he said. "Someone who had planned a trip to Scottsdale and planned to see a few games, is he going to cancel his whole trip?

I'm not so sure.
"Quite a few folks might come

(to Arizona) anyway."

Snyder thought the loss of tourism might be more significant.

"We know we have a very large following of baseball fans here in the Valley and naturally without spring training we're going to lose an untold number of visitors that would typically spend a little bit of their vacation in Arizona," Snyder said. "I know there are a lot of them that come to Arizona just to see baseball."

Bob Tippett, baseball chairman for the Caballeros de Yuma, which operates the Yuma stadium, said motels and hotels in the area already are booked for weekend Padres games. Yuma is only about a four-hour drive from San Diego so many Padre fans take weekend trips, unlike the baseball fans in the rest of the state who usually come for a week or more.

"We will miss those 5,000 people coming over from the coast,' said Tippett.

He estimated that when the Padres draw 7,000 fans for a Saturday or Sunday game, about 5,000 are from California.

Yuma, which has one of the state's highest unemployment rates, will survive, Snyder said, although the Cabarrols will have to cancel their next community improvement project, hotels and motels will see higher vacancy rates and the companies holding concession contracts will be hurt.
