'Hundreds' of civilians killed by stealth bomb in Baghdad

EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (UPI) — U.S. military officials said Wednesday an F-117A stealth aircraft using two laser-guided bombs destroyed a "critical" Baghdad military command center, which Iraq claimed was a shelter where hundreds of civilians were killed.

The building, heavily fortified with reinforced metal and steel, was one of several facilities in and around the Iraqi capital used to house intelligence and military operations for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, Pentagon officials said.

It became active over the last several weeks, following the destruction of Iraq's principal military complex, Lt. Gen. Thomas Kelly, director of operations for the

Edgar declares war on high property tax

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Declaring the state "must act now," Gov. Jim Edgar used his first State of the State address Wednesday to call an immediate special session of the General Assembly to try to pass a property tax limitation law.

The 40-minute speech by Edgar, who has only been in office 30 days, touched on themes he made familiar in his campaign like education, the environment and drugs in his effort to map a framework for Illinois' next four years.

"Though we are faced with severe budget restraints this year and next, we have the opportunity to move Illinois forward," Edgar told a joint meeting of the Legislature. "Out of our difficulty must come innovative answers, not the superficial responses that in the past have been cloaked in expensive, new programs."

Lawmakers often interrupted Edgar's remarks with applause, one sign his honeymoon period as chief executive is not yet over. However, some said afterwards that he offered too large of an agenda and the speech lacked the verve of his predecessor, James R. Thompson.

Edgar delivered the address to a packed Illinois House chamber using a video teleprompter to aid his delivery, a first for any Illinois governor. He looked out on a chamber that was awash in yellow ribbons honoring U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

Edgar said he would work to improve early childhood education programs to lower the dropout rate in public schools, try to increase parental involvement and get the business community involved.

Freshmen minorities expand

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

SIUC student Patricia Knowles is the first in her African-American family to go to college.

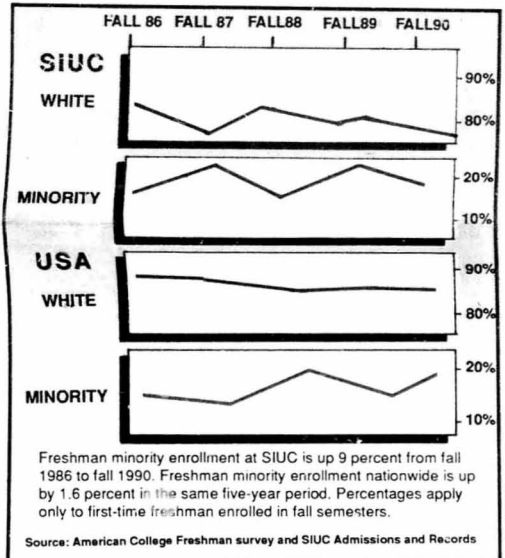

The senior in social work from Cairo is part of a small but growing number of minority students entering college in the last five years.

Of the first-time freshmen who entered U.S. colleges and universities when Knowles did, only 12.2 percent were African Americans, and 20.9 percent were minorities, according to statistics compiled by the American Council on Education and the University of California at Los Angeles.

The number of minority freshmen nationwide has increased by 1.6 percent in the last five years. The number of African-American freshmen has increased by 1.1 percent nationwide.

Although Knowles is not a typical college student by national standards, SIUC is not a typical university for minority students.

In the past five years, the number of minority freshmen entering SIUC in the fall has increased by 9

Trustees to discuss $125 increase in student fees to install cable TV

By Natalie Boehme

Money to support a $500,000 project to install cable television in campus residence halls will come from a $125 increase in student residence hall fees, a university official said.

Donald Wilson, vice chancellor for financial affairs, said the project, approved by the Board of Trustees in September, needs funds to go ahead with installation.

The Board of Trustees will not make a decision regarding a 4-percent residence hall fee increase at its meeting at 11 a.m. Thursday, but it will discuss the increase.

A 4-percent increase would raise the resident hall fee $125 from $3,114 for a school year to $3,239.

Wilson said fee increases must go to the board twice before a decision is made.

"This is part of the process that gives people a chance to have some input," said Wilson, who serves as board treasurer.

University Housing proposed the increase to cover funding for a University-owned cable television system, renovations to Evergreen Terrace and inflation, said Lawrence Juhlin, associate vice president for student affairs.

The housing staff will meet with the Residence Hall Association to discuss the cable issue again if the housing fee increase is not approved, Juhlin said.

The cable project was approved with the agreement that SIU own the cable system and that the cost of installation will be paid during the next five years, Juhlin said. Bids for installation and hardware should come in by March.

University Housing also is asking for $150,000 from housing revenues to renovate the heating and air conditioning systems in Evergreen Terrace.

Improvements at Evergreen Terrace are designed to make the 22-year-old apartments more energy efficient, Juhlin said.

The cost of utilities will be added to the rent, so tenants can have more control over their monthly

Experts: War to cause little economic flurry

By Brandi Tipps
Staff Writer

A swift end to the war in the Persian Gulf will restore consumer confidence, but a long war could result in a longer, deeper recession, SIUC experts said.

Kim Harris, associate professor of agribusiness economics, said he thinks the United States would have gone through a recession with or without the war.

Harris said even if the war were to end next month, that doesn't mean the recession would end right away.

Although most Americans are under the impression that war helps boost the economy, "this war is an exception to the rule," Harris said.

Sycamores steal Salukis' win

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

The Salukis had the win in their paws, but were in a giving mood Wednesday night and let the game get away to Indiana State.

The Dawgs had a 13-point lead halfway through the second half, but the Sycamores climbed back into the game and stole it at the charity stripe. The Sycamores hit 27 of 28 free throws (96 percent) in the second half to beat SIUC 64-60 for the first time since 1986.

The Sycamores only hit six field goals in the second half but managed to knock off the Salukis, who have struggled in opponents' arenas this season with a 1-9 record. Both teams finished the night with a dismal 35-percent shooting mark.

While ISU shot the lights out from the line, free throws were SIUC's usual downfall. The Salukis hit only 57 percent (12 of 21) of their free throws.

SIUC dropped to .500 in the Missouri Valley Conference and is tied with Wichita State for third. Indiana State improved to 6-7 in the Valley. The Sycamores have won five of their last six basketball games.

The Salukis were up 44-32 with 9:32 left in the second half. Their tenacious defense got the lead away from the Sycamores, who took a 24-22 lead into the locker room at halftime.

Junior forward Matt Wynn came off the bench to spark the Dawgs with back-to-back 3-pointers. But ISU hung tough and kept creeping back.

With pin-point accuracy from the charity strip by nearly every player on the floor for ISU, the Sycamores took the lead 54-53 with 1:59 on the clock. Junior Travis Inman, sophomore Greg Thomas, and seniors Quinton Fly, Eddie Bird and Dewayne Brown hit two of two from the line in the last two minutes to steal the victory from SIUC.

Bird, the brother of the Boston Celtics' Larry Bird, was like ice from the line, hitting 14 of 14. The Salukis committed 25 personal fouls, allowing ISU to end the ballgame shooting 91 percent from the free throw line.

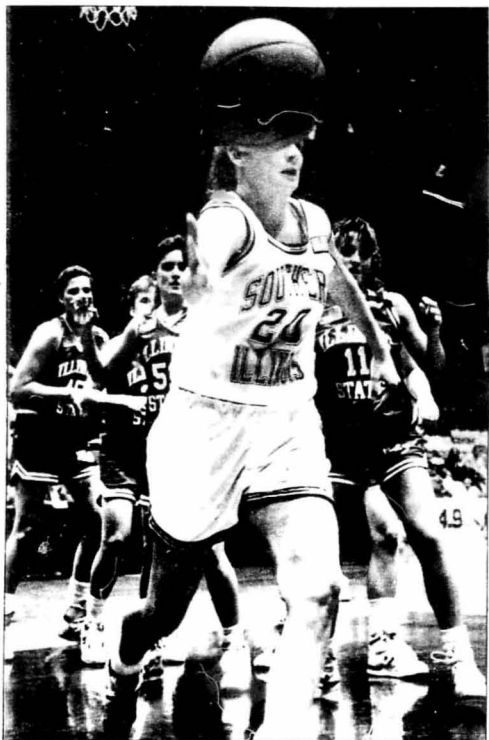

Bird and Inman led the Sycamores with 14 points. Inman also led ISU on the boards, grabbing eight rebounds.

Coach Rich Herrin started his "big" lineup for the second straight

ISU leading scorer no longer a cramp for Saluki women

Senior forward Cyd Mitchell saves the ball from going out of bounds against Illinois State Jan. 19 in the Arena. The Salukis will play Illinois State tonight in Normal.

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

In past season's, one Illinois State player has been a chronic cramp in the Salukis side. Ironically, that same illness could keep this Redbird star from possibly her last game against SIUC.

When the Saluki women's basketball team gets busy with the Illinois State Redbirds in Normal, at 7:30 p.m. tonight, the Redbirds could be without their top scorer Cindy Kaufmann. The senior forward, who averages 19 points a game, has been a no-show in the past two ISU games because of stomach problems.

"I don't know if she will play," ISU head coach Jill Hutchinson said. "It's a day-to-day thing. She's been practicing some. I hope she can play, but I really don't know if or how much."

Kaufmann's mysterious illness has not been diagnosed by doctors. Hutchinson said they ran every test on her, but found no cause or cure for her sickness. Severe abdominal cramps is how Hutchinson described it.

But SIUC head coach Cindy Scott's is a little queasy about scratching Kaufmann from the starting lineup too early.

"We'll prepare as if Kaufmann were going to be there," Scott said. "I don't know if she'll play, but she's such a tremendous competitor and a senior. I think she will be there for the opening tip."

Kaufmann or no Kaufmann, ISU has enough firepower to give the 16-5 Salukis another round

More than 385 athletes expected at TAC meet

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

The Recreation Center will be filled with athletes from across the country Saturday as the SIUC women's track team plays host to The Illinois Athletic Congress Championships.

Women's track and field coach Don DeNoon estimates there will be over 385 athletes competing in the meet including past Olympic medalists. One such athlete is Earl Bell, two-time Olympic medalist in the pole vault.

Over 20 schools and clubs as well as many non-collegiate athletes will be competing in this meet. A common practice of many schools is to send only one or two athletes to prepare them for the conference championships, which are the following weekend.

The men's track and field team, instead of traveling to Missouri this weekend as scheduled, is staying home to be a guest at the meet to prepare for the Missouri Valley Conference Championships. This will give the team a chance to avoid the strain of traveling and compete against top athletes, men's track and field coach Bill Cornell said.

This governing body of track and field, better known as TAC, is one meet that selects Olympic athletes. The National TAC Championship will be at Madison Square Garden Feb. 22, and many Olympic hopefuls will be at SIUC to improve their TAC marks of ability and quality for the national championship.

DeNoon said most athletes at the National TAC Championships are post-collegiate athletes since most college's conference championships are typically held on the same weekend and schools tend to keep their best athletes for their own conference meets.

This is the first time ever for Illinois to host a TAC championship. DeNoon said SIUC was chosen because he was present at the TAC National Convention when they were looking for a place to host the meet.

"I guess I was at the right place at the right time," DeNoon said. "They needed a place to hold the meet and I offered SIUC as a choice for them."

DeNoon said SIUC's spectacular facilities are drawing many athletes who wish to improve before the national TAC meet.

"We have one of the top indoor facilities around," DeNoon said. "Many athletes are coming here to give themselves another shot at doing something special."

DeNoon said he expects the pole vault and the men's mile. Seven athletes who have pole-vaulted over 17 feet will be competing and several of the mile runners have a time of 4:06 or better. DeNoon said there could even be a mile of under 4

Oquendo signs four-year extension with Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Second baseman Jose Oquendo of the St. Louis Cardinals has signed a four-year extension of his contract, which had one year to run, team officials said Wednesday.

No terms of the contract were announced, but the package was reported to be about $8.5 million in base salary, including an estimated signing bonus of $1 million.

Including the signing bonus this season, Oquendo will earn $1.8 million a year in 1991-93, $1.9 million in 1994 and about $2 million in 1995. He could have become a free agent after this season if he had not signed the extension.

"We are extremely happy that Jose will be a member of the Cardinals for the next five years," said Dal Maxvill, vice president and general manager

ISU's Bender breaks nose in brawl

NORMAL, Ill. (UPI) — The future of the Illinois State-Chicago State basketball series was put on indefinite hold Wednesday following the previous night's brawl between the two's basketball teams.

"We will sit on that issue for the time being and evaluate what we want to do about the relationship with Chicago State," ISU Athletic Director Ron Wellman said. "It won't be decided right away."

Tuesday night's game at Redbird Arena was stopped by the officiating crew with a second left in the first half after the bench-clearing brawl and ISU leading 39-23. The fight resulted in 11 of Chicago State's 13 players being ejected and one from Illinois State forcing Chicago State to forfeit the game.

Despite the initial report of no one being injured, ISU Coach Bob Bender sported a swollen nose Wednesday, broken by an errant punch thrown in the melee.

"I'm proud of the fact that our players showed class in a tough situation," Bender said. "It's no secret that I got hit. They saw it, and I'm sure it made them mad, but they didn't retaliate. I stuck my nose into something, and, with a nose the size of mine, it was the wrong place at the wrong time."

"I know who it was, but that's not an issue," he added. "It was just something that happened."

The fight occurred after a sloppy and foul-plagued first half and a play in which ISU's Scott Taylor and Chicago State's Derrick Van dived for a rebound out of bounds at the corner of the court near ISU's bench. Players from both teams converged on the two while officials and coaches tried to stop the fighting.

According to an NCAA rule adopted this season, any player ejected for fighting receives an immediate one-game suspension. A two-time offender is suspended for the season.

The only ISU player ejected, Antoine Hicks, will be suspended

Soviet presidential envoy sees signs of peace in gulf

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet presidential envoy saw "signs of hope" in discussions with Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein and Iraq's foreign minister agreed to continue talks on ending the Persian Gulf war in Moscow, a spokesman said Wednesday. Soviet presidential spokesman Vitaly Ignatenko said Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz would travel to Moscow and meet President Mikhail Gorbachev on Monday. Soviet envoy Yevgeni Primakov, who met Saddam in Baghdad Tuesday, flew to Moscow via Teheran Wednesday night to report to Gorbachev.

Activists warn of Palestinian economic collapse

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Human rights activists warned Wednesday that a month-old curfew imposed on the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, which Israelis say is necessary because of the Persian Gulf war, is leading to the "total collapse" of Palestinian economic and social life. "After one week, after two weeks, it just doesn't make sense anymore. It can't go on like this," said Dafna Golan a spokeswoman for B'Tselem, an Israeli organization that monitors human rights in the occupied territories.

U.S. should respect U.N. mandate, Carter says

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Former President Jimmy Carter says it would be unwise for U.S. forces to push into Iraq and try to depose Saddam Hussein. "I hope as soon as we do cross the Kuwait border and dislodge the Iraqi forces that we will announce a cease-fire," said Carter, who was president from 1977 to 1981. Carter also opposes seeking to eliminate the Iraqi forces because that strategy would only prolong the war and heighten the casualty toll, he told an audience of about 7,000 people at Purdue University.

Gas tanker crashes, sets neighborhood on fire

CARMICHAEL, Calif. (UPI) — A speeding tanker truck overturned on a curve and spilled 8,800 gallons of flaming gasoline into a suburban storm drain system Wednesday, destroying four houses and six vehicles and forcing hundreds of residents to flee. Only three people suffered minor injuries despite explosions and rivers of fire that left some of the neighborhood looking like a war zone. Damages were estimated at $1.2 million, said Battalion Chief Dennis Plessas of the American River Fire Protection District.

Worshippers killed at service in Mexican church

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — At least 38 people were trampled to death in an Ash Wednesday service when some 500 worshippers tried to enter already packed church at one of the country's main Catholic centers, reports said. Police told Mexican television that 38 people were killed and at least 50 were injured in the morning incident in Chalma, a religious center about 30 miles southwest of Mexico City. Mexico's official news agency Notimex said some 500 of the 3,000 worshippers crowded around the doors of the church pushed forward.

More food poisoning cases linked to pork convention

PEORIA (UPI) — Health officials in Peoria said they have found three confirmed cases of salmonella connected to a livestock convention last weekend. The third case turned up Tuesday and authorities suspect there may even be two more cases linked to the annual Illinois Pork Producers Association convention, according to Robert Murray, director of the Peoria City/County Health Department. About 6,500 people attended the convention. The Peoria Journal-Star reported Wednesday that one of the people afflicted with the illness was Robert Williams, a farmer from Jacksonville who was the director of the convention.

Health service says no meningitis cases on SIUC campus

By Rennie Walker
Staff Writer

Located 150 miles south of the rush in the McKinley Health Center at the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana, the University Health Service is conducting business as usual.

Cases of meningitis-related illness in relation to a situation at UI are not expected to occur in the SIUC community, said Jake Baggott, University Health Service Administrator.

Two UI students have died from meningococemia, an invasion of the blood stream by the same bacteria that causes meningitis. Gregory Mank died Saturday, and Brian McDonnell died Monday.

"We're aware of the situation and we are keeping contact with the people at University of Illinois, but we do not expect a similar situation," Baggott said. "There is no reason to be alarmed."

Mank and McDonnell are the only reported cases at UI. Two UI students were hospitalized with the dominant meningitis symptom, a severe case of the influenza.

One student was released, and the other is undergoing tests at Carle Foundation Hospital in Urbana to determine if the student has meningococemia or influenza.

This week, McKinley Health Service passed out Rifampin, an oral medication that prevents the onset of meningitis, to about 4,000 students, said Craig Chamberlain, editor of the News Bureau.

Baggott said no meningitis symptoms were reported to University Health Service.

Flowers flowing: Shops moving roses for Valentine's Day; recession fails to slow holiday gift sales

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Local flowers sales are budding this Valentine's Day despite talk of a sluggish economy.

Two area florists report sales of more than 2,000 roses, as flower shops prepared for what Jerry's Flower Shoppe employee Betty Millard calls "a very condensed, demanding, last-minute" holiday.

Millard said the state of the economy has had the opposite effect on business at Jerry's in the Campus Shopping Center.

"We're busier than usual," she said. "We expected business to be slower, but it hasn't been."

Millard said the flower shop tries to avoid selling out of roses each year by buying more, but the demand for the popular flower also increases.

Patty Prost, owner of the Flower Box in the Murdale Shopping Center, saw record-breaking sales for Valentine's Day flowers have blossomed regardless of the economy.

As the holiday demand for roses increases,

Prost says the price for the flowers also increases.

"That cost increase, however, is passed on to the retailer from the grower, she said.

"The wholesale price doubles, but we can't pass that much on to the consumer," Prost said.

Because of slow economic projections,

Prost said the Flower Box increased its rose stock by 3 percent for Valentine's Day sales instead of the usual 10 to 15 percent.

Michelle George, assistant manager for Flowerama at University Mall in Carbondale, said the store should come close to selling out of roses by noon today.

George said sales were better than expected this year, especially with early orders.

Hallmark retailers also report increased sales this year, a Hallmark spokeswoman said.

Renee Hershey said Hallmark expects 1 billion valentines to be exchanged this year, up from 900 million in '90.

War in the Persian Gulf and the economy affected Hallmark sales this year, she said.

"Our retailers are telling us that sales started earlier this year with more people in the stores for valentines to send overseas," she said.

Because of the cost of flowers and candy, Hershey said, cards are a high selling item, taking 65 percent of the total valentine sales over 6 percent for flowers.

Soldiers in the hearts of loved ones

Groups ship valentines, ribbons, plants to gulf

United Press International

Cupid's arrow was tied with a yellow ribbon Wednesday as Americans sent valentine messages of love and kisses to family, friends and strangers serving in the Persian Gulf.

The annual love festival of mushy messages, long-stemmed roses, calorie-charged chocolates and other foreplay was marred for thousands by months-long separations from their loved ones.

But in scene after scene around the country reminiscent of the World War II homefront, neighborhoods and organizations rallied to keep up the troops' morale — as well as their own.

For weeks before Valentine's Day, groups around the country collected signatures and messages on homemade paper valentines to be shipped to the gulf.

Others did it with yellow ribbons, like the gigantic streamer 900 feet long and a yard wide that was being signed by hundreds of school kids and grownups in Tarrytown, N.Y.

In Houston, a 30-foot tall, 48-foot long Valentines card proclaiming "You're in Our Hearts" was being carted around town so Texans could send their best wishes. In another part of town the Adam's Mark Hotel was staging a USO-type salute which organizers hoped could be piped live to the troops.

In San Diego, Miss America Marjorie Vincent planned to visit the Naval Hospital and the crew of the aircraft carrier USS Independence.

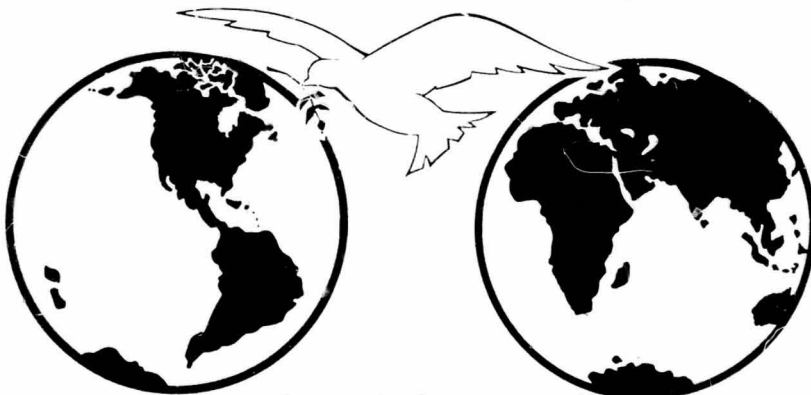

Apple Computer in Irvine, Calif., was offering free use of the company's computers so families could send "letters from the heart" to a facility in Saudi Arabia where they would be sealed and delivered.

In Lak Worth, Fla., two brothers who own a nursery were giving away 3,000 plants to spouses of military personnel serving in the Gulf.

David and Jeff Lee, who call their project "Operation Sweetheart," said they were distributing the plants from the back of a truck parked outside the MacDill Air Force Base near Tampa.

Fear shouldn't clog donations of blood

THE SIUC BLOOD DRIVE ends today. As the reasons for giving blood flow on, fear and misunderstanding has muddied the stream of excuses for not giving.

Except for those who cannot give for medical reasons, a small pinch in the arm is the only thing keeping many from donating.

But giving blood transcends discomfort. The act's selflessness and benefits provide enough reasons to give.

Some still stay away because they fear the possibility of getting AIDS.

But the "needle-users" common in AIDS cases are not found in the Red Cross.

Each individual receives pre-packaged sterile needles that are thrown away after use. Therefore, no diseases can be transmitted by giving blood.

ANOTHER MYTH LIES IN the amount of time it takes to give blood.

The actual act takes only eight to 10 minutes for most people. The entire process, which includes filling out forms, taking temperature and blood pressure and relaxing afterward can take as little as 45 minutes.

But the process takes a back seat to the results.

An individual can save three or four lives with a single donation, which may be used in accidents, routine operations or transfusions.

And the people this benefits could be a family member, a child with bone marrow disease, a soldier in the Persian Gulf, and possibly the self.

STUDENTS ARE GIVEN THE last opportunity of this week to help these potential beneficiaries; the Red Cross had to cancelled the blood drive on Friday because of other urgent demands in the region.

Anyone 16 years old and older weighing 110 pounds or more can donate from 10:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. today in Student Center Ballroom D.

Excuses for not giving hold little weight, but a pint of blood could tip the scales in someone else's future.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potential libelous material or because extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

A war for the 1990s

AT LAST, a war to call our own.

No more personifying the radicals of the 1960s pretending we understand what happened in Vietnam.

No more reveling in the glory days of the "The Big One." Yes, the children of the 90s have a war to call their own.

The America people, the majority, have spoken. You wanted to liberate Kuwait, we did it.

And, of course, our democratic government has given us, the minority, the right to disagree.

FEEL BETTER yet? We can lock arms, form a chain and carry signs. Is that my only outlet?

We'll make the news. We'll be portrayed as vocal dissenters, those peaceful protesters.

Don't think anything of it that we'll be broadcast alongside the local teacher espousing the attack on the second Hitler to a bunch of impressionable second-graders.

They'll be told we had no choice, and they'll believe it. And the cycle begins again.

LIBERATE KUWAIT? Come on. I guess we can't expect any straight answers. We are average citizens.

We don't know what is best, but our government does.

Let them tell you the skies of Baghdad were lit up like a Fourth of July celebration—very patriotic.

Let them tell you casualties were minimal, although "that's not an official confirmation at this time."

And let them keep talking, explaining the victorious assault over and over, so you can't envision trying to save an innocent baby or elderly man from the shattering windows, blazing fire and endless confusion.

DON'T GIVE anybody time to visualize innocent people being killed, because well—time was up.—Patty Williams, graduate, agrusiness economics.

Locals not considerate of nature

Early a.m. here again, this always seems so soon. Moving quiet, walking slow, outside, this morning blooms.

Bathe and dress, quick breakfast, with cups of coffee to wake. Quickly outside, morning ride, I have early classes to make.

Naked trees, waiting for leaves, silhouettes a watercolor sky. Gentle pastels, sweet light smells, this infant day is getting me high.

Looking down towards the ground, reams of filth across the land! Hey Carbondale! Learn to hold it 'til you get to the can!—Ben Planchon, junior, University studies.

International Festival superficial

I guess somebody needs to say a few unpleasant things here. Or maybe it's stupid. Maybe it's wise instead to follow the rack.

Should I speak out? Who cares if I am scared? Scared of this war, confusion, this lie, tormented to see the horrified children, the disbelief in their eyes? Would you out there care for me?

Let's talk about the pomp and grandeur of the International Festival. Why stage it now in the first place?

Was everybody in a festive state of mind? Did Iraqis participate? Did Kuwaitis show up?

Did Israelis or Saudis take part? Or Palestinians, or Jordanians?

If they did, how many did? How many didn't? Or, maybe they don't count!

For that matter, my family and I don't count either. My Indian student leaders never bothered to call.

My little girl is never given a chance to wear something nice for the fashion show.

The International Spouses Group is never asked by anybody to participate.

How many internationals showed at the payed buffet? Why not make it a free event too?

Why invite the rich only? Why not also feed the common poor foreign students and their families?

The answer is—the poor are God-forsaken.

So is the poor international student, as he is supposed to do all those nice things the privileged do—send his kids to school, buy them some nice dresses, keep a drivable car, send his wife to the hospital when she has a baby, and try to show as much Americanhood as possible.

But he knows he can't do it well with his divided identity, his stipulated abysmal income, his not-so-fair skin, his non-Christian name and his non-nasal English. Getting absorbed in the American mainstream?

Even if he wants to, and even if he is a worthy person, will they out there want it?

The harsh reality is no.

However, the International Student Council, and the other international and national bodies don't give a damn.—Partha Banerjee, graduate, plant biology.

percent. The number of African-American freshmen has increased by 5.6 percent.

That's nine times the increase of minority freshmen and the number of African-American freshmen enrolled in colleges and universities nationwide over the same five-year period.

For Knowles the number of minority students at SIUC still is too small, especially in University classes with only a handful of minorities.

Of the 2,658 first-time freshmen who enrolled at SIUC in fall 1990, 73 percent were white and 16.8 percent were African American. Total minority enrollment was 26.9 percent.

That includes African Americans, Native Americans or Alaskans, Asian or Pacific Islanders, Hispanics, non-resident aliens and students who didn't indicate their race or national origin.

First-time freshmen minority enrollment at SIUC in fall 1990 was up 9 percent from fall 1986. Of 3,179 first-time freshmen enrolled at SIUC fall 1986, 17.9 percent were minorities.

The number of first-time freshmen white students was down 9 percent in fall 1990 from 82 percent in fall 1986. The number of African-American students is up 5.6 percent in fall 1990 from fall 1986.

Seymour Bryson, SIUC executive assistant to the president for affirmative action, said the presence of minorities on campus may contribute to the increase in minority enrollment by attracting other minority students.

"The overall climate for minority students is positive," he said, "although that doesn't mean we don't have needs that need to be addressed."

Bryson said SIUC as an institution historically has been successful in enrolling students.

Minority enrollment, he said, has kept pace with the general trend.

A spokesman for the post-secondary education division of the U.S. Department of Education said freshmen minority enrollment nationwide has increased in part because of changing attitudes at the high school level.

"There are greater aspirations for post secondary education," Jim Moore said. "The perception is clearer to minorities that college leads to higher incomes."

Nationwide the number of first-time minority freshmen in colleges and universities in fall 1986 was 16 percent. The number of white students in fall 1986 was 85.8 percent.

The number of first-time minority freshman nationwide in fall 1990 was 84.3 percent. The number of white students in fall 1990 was 17.6 percent.

But Moore pointed out that the number of minority freshmen entering U.S. colleges and universities may be higher than the number who persist and complete a college education.

Knowles said a diploma isn't always enough of an incentive.

"Even if a black person goes to college and has a diploma, it doesn't guarantee them a job," she said.

The gulf war is called the "inventory war," he said. Usually during wartime jobs are created through military demand of weapons, planes and armored vehicles, he said.

Almost all the weapons used in the gulf war were already made and in storage. Almost everything the military is using now is coming out of inventory, Harris said.

He said the war hasn't caused a lot of new economic activity.

"That's why the war won't have the stimulating effect that wars typically have," Harris said. "As long as we are engaged in war we probably won't see a sharp turn around in the economy."

For America to get out of the recession, consumers and businesses must be willing to spend money, Harris said.

Since the war has started, consumer and business confidence has dropped, he said. People are scared and are going to hold on to their money until the war is over.

He said the end of the recession depends largely on two issues — the outcome of the war in the Middle East and domestic policies pursued by the government in the months ahead.

Harris said stable and moderate money growth, no new taxes or tax increases, no substantial decrease in federal spending and an international agreement to encourage a free flow of trade around the world would all help bring the United States out of the recession.

Harris said war makes people nervous and therefore they are inclined to save money rather than spend it, making the recession worse.

Robert Ellis, associate professor in economics, agrees that the United States was headed for a recession before the war, but said he does not know if the war sped up the process.

Ellis said he thinks the United States could be out of the recession by the end of the summer, if the war ends within the next couple of months.

If the war were to last beyond six months it would probably be middle to late 1992 before the United States would start to recover from the recession, Ellis said.

rent by their personal energy conservation, he said.

The board also will discuss proposed increases in the campus housing activity fee and the student medical benefit fee, Wilson said.

The Residence Hall Association, made up of representatives from all residence halls, unanimously voted to propose a $1 increase a semester for the Campus Housing Activity Fee in single student residence halls.

The fee, currently $6 a semester, would rise to $7 for the fall or spring semester, beginning fall 1991 if approved by the board. The $4 summer session fee will not change.

Paulette Curkin, housing program coordinator, said money from the increase will be divided evenly between the residence halls and the RHA. The increase only will affect on-campus housing, she said.

The board also will consider raising the Student Health Fee.

Samuel E. McVay, director of student health programs, said an increase in the Student Health Fee is needed to offset projected salary increases, inflation on expenditures and an expected decrease in enrollment.

The proposed $6-a-semester increase would set the fee at $75 for fall and spring semesters and $45 for summer semester. The new rate will be effective summer session 1991, if approved.

McVay said the original proposed health program budget would have required a $10 increase if cuts had not been made in the personnel budget and expected inflation.

The Student Medical Benefit Fee is made up of the Student Health Fee and the Student Medical Insurance Premium Fee. The health fee funds on-campus health care and the insurance premium fee funds health insurance. The Student Medical Insurance Premium Fee will not be changed.

"If the increase goes through, students will have comprehensive health care for $34.23 a month," McVay said.

Sharon Meyer, supervising nurse at Jackson County Health Department, said her office has received no reports of meningitis.

Other symptoms include colds with rashes and sore necks when the chin is bent to touch the chest, Baggott said.

A student at Millikin University, in Decatur, was diagnosed with a meningitis related illness 1 1/2 weeks ago. The three cases are the only reported in the state.

The student probably will be released from a Decatur community hospital within the next few days, said Brad Wood, director of University Health Service at Millikin.

Contacts with the person were given medicine to prevent the onset of the illness. Wood said contacts will not come down with the illness because the incubation period has passed.

Wood said 15 percent of the general population carries the bacteria that cause the meningitis illness.

He said most people have an immunity to the bacteria, but every once in a while people without the immunity come into contact with the bacteria and come down with the illness. The illness is more common in males than females, Wood said.

College students fall into the second most prevalent age group of those who come down with the illness, Wood said, noting that the illness strikes infants most often.

Joint Chiefs of Staff, said in Washington.

Pentagon officials, concerned about the political fallout from destroying a building possibly used as a shelter for civilians, disclosed numerous details about the building's location and the operation to destroy it.

A report by the Cable News Network, quoting civil defense officials in Iraq, said 200 bodies, mostly those of women and children, had been recovered and an estimated 300 dead remained inside the gutted building.

Military officials, saying they had no account of civilian casualties, expressed sorrow for the people who may have been killed.

War increases fertilizer prices, costs to farmers

By Brandi Tipps
Staff Writer

The Persian Gulf war may affect agriculture production, said Kim Harris, associate professor of agribusiness economics.

Higher energy prices have been just one economic effect of the war so far, Harris said. Because of higher energy prices, farmers' operating costs have increased.

Harris said the problem is not so much the fuel costs, because the price of oil has been dropping steadily. The real problem lies in the cost of herbicides and fertilizer.

He said the price chemical and fertilizing companies charge the farmers will reflect the higher oil cost.

"The chemicals and fertilizer were probably made from $40 (a barrel) oil not $20 oil," Harris said.

Harris said the reason for the rise in cost of the fertilizer is because nitrogen-based fertilizers are derived from petroleum.

According to a report by the United States Department of Agriculture in Agri Finance Magazine, every $5 raised on the prices of crude oil will cost farmers $900 million more for fuel and chemicals, Harris said.

He said he doesn't know whether or not it will have the opposite effect with the price of oil coming down.

"Certainly the fuel cost will come down, but farmers will probably see higher costs of chemicals and fertilizers, relative to last year's prices," he said.

Consumer purchases of beef and pork are likely to fall because of the recession, Harris said.

Because some people's incomes may get reduced, they try to supplement a reduced income by substituting higher cost food with lower cost food, Harris said.

If the consumer isn't demanding as much beef and pork, the prices that farmers receive for the beef and pork will decline, he said.

When consumers start to buy more chicken and turkey however, the prices farmers receive will rise.

Bill Herr, professor of economics, said one of the effects of the recession is the federal reserve has lowered interest rates. Lower interest rates mean the cost of borrowing money will be reduced.

The prime interest rate has dropped one percentage point from 10 percent June 30, 1990, to 9 percent today in the Wall Street Journal, said Stephen Schaeffer, vice president of the loan department at First National Bank in Carbondale.

"With the other difficulties they (farmers) may be having, lower interest rates are a plus," Herr said.

Science research may trigger war

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The shifting pattern of scientific research in the Middle East foreshadowed the gulf war and may have even been a factor in triggering the conflict, a study showed Wednesday.

The analysis of scientific publications indicated U.S. research ties with Saudi Arabia and Kuwait increased sharply between 1980 and 1989, while links to Iran plummeted and relations with Iraq held steady.

During the 1980s, tiny oil-rich Kuwait invested large sums of money in modern scientific equipment. By 1989, in relation to its size, Kuwait was producing "a scientific output that was almost on a par with that of Western countries," the researchers wrote in an analysis in the British journal Nature.

Three judges to decide fate of independent film makers

By Stephanie Steirer and Karen Radius
Staff Writers

The fate of independent film makers lies in the hands of the three judges of the 13th Annual Big Muddy Film Festival.

Marla Schweppe, Jim Klein and Steven Ross will select the winners from the 120 independent film entries Friday night.

The film entries come from independent film makers and students.

All competing films will be shown from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Friday on the Cinema and Photography Sound Stage in the north wing of the Communications Building. Admission is free.

The judging started Wednesday will run through Friday, and the prize winning films will be shown at 4 p.m. Sunday in the Student Center Auditorium.

"We have already seen some good work," Ross said.

Unlike previous years, the 1991 Big Muddy Film Festival doesn't have a definite theme. The general theme of independent film making opens the door to a variety of topics.

Although all of the judges are independent film makers, each specializes in different film areas, which might narrow their scope in judging.

Schweppe specializes in computer animation and is a professor at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago.

Klein is a documentary film maker and teaches at Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio. Ross is a narrative film maker and an associate professor in the Department of Theatre and Communication Arts at Memphis State University.

"People are really taking a chance when they send in their films because we may not have an interest in a particular film subject," Klein said.

It is up to the judges' discretion whether to view an entire film only once, to review it or to stop the film midway. The judges privately view the films together in the SIUC Cinema and Photography Department office.

It is also up to the judges to decide how the $1,000 in prize money will be awarded.

Because the judges are viewing the films as a whole instead of in categories, they will be looking for "stuff that jumps off the screen."

"We're looking for films that say something new about a particular idea," Schweppe said. "We're looking for the idea of the film, rather than looking at the film's category."

"We're looking for uniqueness and passion or even something simple, but shows a beautiful use of the media," Klein said. "We'll take each piece for what it's worth."

Big Muddy Film Festival Director Tony Shaw said the judges are looking for quality and the way independent film makers express their ideas.

The judges were solicited by the Big Muddy Film Festival committee and the committee chose academia as a forerunning criteria, Shaw said.

Funniest student goes to regionals

By Tracy Sargeant
Entertainment Editor

Terrill Jenkins, who won the Certs Comedy competition Monday night, could be America's funniest college student.

After being declared SIUC's funniest student, a tape of Jenkins will be sent to the regional level. If he is selected there, he will go Daytona Beach, Fla., for the final round, said Yvonne Hawk, Student Programming Council expressive arts chairwoman.

Jenkins took first place out of 14 entries, Hawk said.

He doesn't think he will make a career out of comedy, but Jenkins said his award would be an interesting addition to his resume.

Jenkins, a senior in cinema and photography, said he decided to enter the competition because he had a friend who had done stand up comedy.

"I like comedy," he said. "So I tried a couple of jokes on my friends."

He said he really didn't know if his stuff was funny until he took the stage.

Three judges from SPC based their decision on categories such as comic delivery, how comfortable the contestants were on stage and the diversity of the material, Hawk said.

"I was really shocked (when they announced my name)," Jenkins said. "When you are on stage, you are not aware of what's going on."

He said he was nervous going into his routine, but he drew on his drama teachings from high school.

"I was always told to feed on my nervousness. (That way) I was more intense," he said.

Hawk said the campus has a good audience base for comedy.

"(SIUC) can look forward to more events (like this)," she said.

SIUC's funniest student, Terrill Jenkins, winner of the Certs Comedy competition, will advance to regionals.

'Wolves' take Oscar nominations

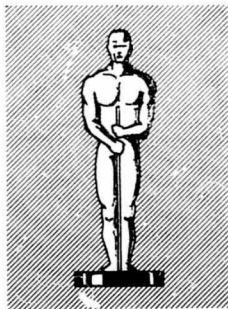

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — "Dances With Wolves," Kevin Costner's tour de force as producer, director and lead actor, was the top vote-getter Wednesday in Oscar nominations announced by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences.

"Dances With Wolves" received 12 nominations, including ones for best picture, best director and best actor. It was followed by the heavily marketed but poorly received "Dick Tracy" and "The Godfather, Part III," each with seven nominations.

While the success of "Dances With Wolves" was fully expected, there were several surprises at the pre-dawn news conference at the Academy's Samuel Goldwyn Theater.

Al Pacino, for instance, was nominated for best supporting actor for "Dick Tracy," but his powerful performance as patriarch Michael Corleone in "The Godfather, Part III" was overlooked.

The loudest sounds of surprise from the gathered Hollywood media came with the announcement that Julia Roberts had been nominated for best actress for her role as a hooker with a heart of gold in the box-office smash "Pretty Woman." Oscar very rarely recognizes comedic roles.

Another collective gasp went up from the group when "Ghost," a sentimental love story, was named in the best picture category. Although well received by critics, the box-office hit stands in sharp contrast to its deeper-themed competitors — "Awakenings," "The Godfather, Part III," "GoodFellas" and "Dances With Wolves."

In the best actor category, Costner was joined by Robert De Niro, "Awakenings"; Gerard Depardieu, "Cyrano de Bergerac"; Richard Harris, "The Field" and Jeremy Irons, "Reversal of Fortune."

Joining Roberts for best actress nominations were Anjelica Huston, "The Grifters"; Kathy Bates, "Misery"; Meryl Streep, "Postcards from the Edge" and Joanne Woodward, "Mr. & Mrs. Bridge."

Paul Newman, Woodward's husband and co-star, received glowing reviews for his part in "Mr. & Mrs. Bridge," but was slighted by the Academy's voters.

The Oscars will be presented Monday, March 25, during black-tie ceremonies televised live by ABC from the Los Angeles Shrine Auditorium.

By Rennie Walker
Staff Writer

IN ADDITION to exceeding the daily goal Wednesday by 13 pints, the SIUC blood drive set a record for the week on the number of first time donors.

The total pints donated was 413. Of all donors, 59 donated for the first time on Wednesday, said Vivian Ugent, coordinator of area blood drives.

"First time donors are what we need and what we are dependent on," Ugent said.

"IT REALLY goes a long way when someone comes in for the BECAUSE FRIDAY was cut from the blood drive schedule, hours have been extended until 7:30 tonight. An extra day will be added to the blood drive scheduled in April.

"By extending the hours we hope to accommodate the people who were planning to give on Friday," Ugent said.

THERE WERE 21 first time donors on Sunday, 33 on Monday and 38 on Tuesday.

SIUC to ship DEs overseas to students, faculty in gulf

By Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

THE SIUC OFFICE of Veteran's Affairs is sending Daily Egyptians to SIUC students and faculty in the Middle East.

On Monday, Veteran's Affairs began reserving 100 DEs each day and plans to send them to SIUC faculty, staff and students recently called to duty.

VA will hold Monday through Friday editions of the campus paper, and send them to SIUC soldiers as a package on Friday.

Russell Wetherington, benefit assistance counselor for VA, said right now VA is trying to find addresses for SIUC military personnel. Wetherington, a senior in history, said roommates or friends of SIUC military personnel who would like to receive the DE should send the addresses to the Office of Veteran's Affairs.

THE PROGRAM is running on a trial basis, Wetherington said.

"We can't even be sure they will get the papers, but we are gambling some will get through," he said.

Wetherington said VA will continue this program until its postal allocation runs out or the end of the semester, which ever comes first. Bill Patrick, VA coordinator, said he isn't certain what postal rates will be, but estimates the mailing won't cost more than $50 a week.

The program is funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of Education, Patrick said.

Cathy Hagler, DE business manager, said the VA office asked last week if the DE would be interested in supplying papers.

HAGLER SAID it was an internal department decision to provide papers to the VA office.

"We wanted to take part in this joint effort to supply SIUC students and faculty with community news," Hagler said.

Gary Buckles, DE superintendent of print shop, said the DE will print an extra 100 papers, instead of reducing those in circulation on campus.

It will cost the DE eight to ten cents for each additional paper, he said.

"Once the press is set up and operating, it is relatively cheap to print extra copies," Buckles said.

SIUC IS THE only Illinois university to adopt this program.

Jeff Madsen, editor in chief for the Daily Eastern News at Eastern Illinois in Charleston, said they did not opt to send papers to the Middle East, but roommates and friends have purchased subscriptions for soldiers.

THE NORTHERN STAR at Northern Illinois University in Dekalb has a similar process.

Heather Moore, payroll manager for the Northern Star, said it is sending subscriptions to a couple of students stationed in the Middle East.

"If people want them we're more than happy to send them," Moore said.

The Daily Vidette at Illinois State University in Normal is writing to students who have been called to duty in the Middle East and asking them to write back, said Jennifer Johnson, local/state editor for the Vidette.

"WE WANT TO get in touch with as many of them as possible and print their letters in the paper so students know what is really happening over there," Johnson said. Catherine Spellman, former managing editor for the Daily Illini at the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana, said the DI has not initiated a similar program, but she thinks it is a good idea.

Hussein hotline

British callers can listen to, record Iraqi jokes over phone

LONDON (UPI) — British callers keen to air their feelings about Iraqi President Saddam Hussein can call a hotline featuring the latest war humor and add their own jokes for other callers, however offensive or crude they may be.

Owners of the "Hussein Hotline," Phonorama International, said they had already received one death threat from "an Arab caller" only hours after the jokes exchange was launched.

The company employs actors to deliver the jokes in the voices of the queen and former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

A recorded message in Thatcher's voice asks "Baghdad bully-boy bashers" to listen to jokes already recorded, or to do some "serious Saddam slugging" by leaving their own quips about the "atrocious Arab" and the "little dictator." She even offers $50 for jokes that are used, adding, "and they accuse me of being uncaring."

The queen's voice relates jokes left by previous callers.

■ "Why does Saddam have a glass-bottomed boat? So he can see his fleet."

Some jokes, many of which are offensive, are aimed at Iraqis in general. "How do you get six Iraqis into a phone box? You tell them it isn't theirs."

The company's managing director, Stan Markland, said that all profits from the joke service, which charges 65 cents a minute for the telephone calls, will go to the Ministry of Defense Gulf Trust to provide assistance to the families of British troops fighting in the gulf.

Markland said the company received a death threat from a Saddam Hussein sympathizer who said, "Saddam is God in our eyes. You will die."

A royal spokesman said the queen was unaware of the hotline.

U.S. ammunition supplies not prepared for ground war

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Allied troops could face potentially dangerous shortages of some types of ammunition if there is a ground war in the Persian Gulf, sources told the Philadelphia Inquirer.

For some munitions, less than a 10-day anticipated wartime supply is available in U.S. stocks, one government official told the newspaper.

"We've got a lot of everything except the bullets we need to shoot," said Sen. Alan J. Dixon, D-Ill., chairman of the Senate Armed Services subcommittee on readiness.

The reasons for the possible shortage include a preference for high-tech weaponry, a sharp reduction in recent orders because of the belief the Cold War was over and the fact that Gulf brass are demanding more ammunition than Pentagon planners anticipated.

Pentagon, industry and congressional sources told the Inquirer that ammo-nition in poor supply include 25mm ammunition for the main gun of the Bradley infantry fighting vehicle, 120mm ammunition for the M-1A1 tank and 2.75-inch helicopter rockets.

Panel discusses desegregation

By Christina Hall and Rennie Walker
Staff Writers

John and Rosetta O'Neal know about combating racial injustice.

The O'Neals, who taught in Carbondale in the 1960s, know about racial injustice because they fought it in the city's segregated public school system.

Sixty people gathered in a Lesar Law Building classroom and listened to John and Rosetta O'Neal tell their story of desegregating Carbondale public schools in 1964.

The third panel member was Michael Starr, SIUC professor of radio-television and a lawyer who assisted William Kunstler investigating the murders portrayed in "Mississippi Burning."

John was one of the first African-Americans to teach at a Carbondale school designated for whites. He said the first handful of African-American teachers at the white public schools had to prove themselves.

"All of us were determined to demonstrate that we could get along with all kids, whether they were black or white," said John O'Neal.

When the O'Neals were fighting for the desegregation of the school system, many other areas in Carbondale were reserved for whites only.

"Unless you found a black restaurant, you wouldn't eat. If you had to go to the restroom, you found a safe place where the bushes were thick and go there. You couldn't go into the gasoline station or anywhere," Rosetta O'Neal said.

The O'Neals believe one of the main problems today is a lack of knowledge about the difficulty blacks faced in their on-going struggle for civil justice.

"Many of the young kids, especially white ones, don't know about the hardships of blacks. They sure don't read about it in the history books," John said.

Rosetta remembers when there was only one week set aside for black history, but said it should be important throughout the year.

"It's ridiculous. One-hundred-twenty-five years after the emancipation proclamation, we have one month where we can talk about our heritage, to lift up our voices and sing. That should be happening every day," Rosetta said.

First WLAF player to be lineman

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — The New York-New Jersey Knights will select the first player Thursday in the World League of American Football's inaugural draft.

The WLAF's complicated player selection process will last for 19 days. The first group drafted will be offensive linemen, who worked out Wednesday for coaches and from office officials of the 10 teams.

Each team chooses a package of selections designated by a letter. For instance, the Knights choose a matrix designated as "D." Under that package they will get the first choice among offensive linemen, second choice among defensive backs, third among kickers and so on through 10 categories.

"We're very pleased to say that the Knights got their first choice," said retired Cincinnati Bengal linebacker Reggie Williams, the Knights' general manager.

"This gives us the opportunity to stock our roster in some critical areas. We needed a strong cornerback to anchor our defense, and a quality offensive lineman to protect our quarterback," said Williams, who brought Bengals tackle Anthony Munoz with him to help evaluate the linemen.

Under the Knights' matrix, they will draft a quarterback 10th and last. Williams said that didn't bother him, although his coach Mouse Davis intends to install a run and shoot offense.

"We have confidence that Mouse Davis is a great teacher of quarterbacks, and know he will develop an outstanding passing game from the available talent," Williams said.

The two top quarterbacks in the draft are Tony Rice of Notre Dame and Todd Santos of San Diego State. Birmingham gets the No. 1 selection among the quarterbacks and Montreal is set for Monday.

The team that got its first choice of matrices was the Raleigh-Durham Skyhawks, whose coach is former Los Angeles Ram quarterback Roman Gabriel. Gabriel is directing the team's draft and chose the "H" package that includes rights to the No. 1 wide receiver, No. 2 running back, No. 3 tight end, and No. 4 quarterback.

Becker wins, Agassi loses in Donnay Open

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Top seed Boris Becker needed three sets to win his opening round match of the $600,000 Donnay Open Wednesday, while second seed Andre Agassi fell in straight sets to a qualifier.

Becker struggled for an hour and 42 minutes before overcoming Alexander Volkov of the Soviet Union, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, fighting back from a 2-0 deficit in the final set.

Agassi was victimized by Christian Saccanu of Germany, 6-3, 7-6 (9-7).

Becker, protecting the world No. 1 ranking he earned by winning the Australian Open, usually has difficulty against Volkov, whom he called "a feared opponent."

"Only last week he won in Milan," Becker said. "Last year I had lots of troubles with him. And today was again a tough one." Becker said physical conditioning will determine whether he can ward off all the challengers for the top ranking.

"If one wishes to stay in the top 3 one has to play many tourneys," he said. "I have to take care of my physical health. To cut a long story short, the season is long and hard, especially now that I have decided to play the Davis Cup."

Chang wins in Brussels

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — American Michael Chang routed qualifier Arnaud Boetsch of France, 6-3, 6-2, in their second round match Wednesday, moving closer to a probable duel with Boris Becker in the quarterfinals of the $600,000 Donnay Open.

Chang, the 1989 French Open champion who has slipped to the 16th position in the world rankings after fracturing his hip last year and being out of action for three months, was never seriously troubled by Boetsch.

"I'm trying to become a more complete player," Chang said. "My strength is still in my groundstrokes but I'm trying to work on my serve a little bit. I've also been trying to work on my volley so that I can incorporate that in my game as well."

If Becker, newly elevated to the world No. 1 ranking, beats Alexander Volkov of the Soviet Union and fellow German Eric Jelen, a qualifier, he will meet Chang in the last eight.

Marc Rosset of Switzerland qualified for the quarterfinals Wednesday, beating Haitian Ronald Agener, 6-4, 6-3.

Belgian qualifier Eduardo Masso delighted the audience by tenaciously fighting back after losing the first set to beat Australian Richard Fromberg, 3-6, 7-6 (7-3), 6-3. It was a sweet revenge for Masso, who lost to the Australian in a Davis Cup match last month.

Hall of Famer Jim Palmer works out for scouts

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI) — Hall of Famer Jim Palmer pitched to minor league hitters for 15 minutes Wednesday while several scouts evaluated the 45-year-old right hander's chances for a comeback.

Palmer, 45, has been working out since Dec. 16 under the guidance of Lazzaro Collazzo, a pitching coach for the University of Miami Hurricanes. He is trying to become the first member of the Hall of Fame to return to the major leagues.

Among the scouts watching Palmer was Dick Bosman, pitching coach for the Rochester Red Wings, the Baltimore Orioles' Triple-A farm club. He said he was representing Orioles' General Manager Roland Hemond. At least six other scouts were scattered around the University of Miami's Mark Light stadium watching intently.

"I expected to see some velocity and some sharpness on the curveball and I saw that," said Bosman, a former teammate of Palmer's on the Orioles. "I liked the way he threw."

Among the other teams that have expressed definite interest are the Milwaukee Brewers, the Montreal

Expos and the Toronto Blue Jays. Wednesday was the first day Palmer invited major league scouts to watch him. He also plans to work out for them on Friday and early next week.

Palmer pitched to former Hurricane players Mike Fiore and Henry Hernandez, who both played with Class A teams in the St. Louis Cardinals' farm system last year.

"When he came in, I think he still has a little bit left," Fiore said. "I think he still has enough control of his pitches that he can help someone in the major leagues. I didn't see a huge difference between his arm and a 23 or 24-year-old."

Fiore and Hernandez hit a few line drives off Palmer, but neither managed a long ball. They hit in a batting practice format with Palmer telling them what pitches were coming.

Palmer and Collazzo said his fastball has been clocked at 86 mph, as fast as ever. Collazzo has altered Palmer's throwing motion, revamping the windup, lowering the leg kick and lengthening his stride.

"When I throw the ball now, I throw it a little harder than I did," Palmer said.

The three-time Cy Young award winner was a starter for 18 years in the major leagues, but said he was willing to accept the role of a long or short reliever if it was offered.

"I would do anything for any club," Palmer said. "I would relieve, I would start, I would do anything. But again, the bottom line is whether I could do it at the major league level."

One factor for deciding to try a comeback was his failure to agree on a new contract with ESPN.

Dixon wants Browns coaching job

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Former Cleveland defensive back Hanford Dixon, who nicknamed the team's defense the "Dawgs," is applying for work as the Browns' defensive backfield coach.

Dixon represented the Browns in four Pro Bowl games before signing with the San Francisco 49ers as a Plan B free agent before the 1990 season.

He retired during training camp with the 49ers and moved back to Cleveland. Now he wants to return to the Browns.

"I've never coached before, but I think I could do a real good job with the secondary," Dixon said Tuesday. "Not only have I played the position, but I understand the guys and I know what they can and can't do."

"I've already mentioned my interest to (Executive Vice President) Jim Bailey," Dixon said. "And I plan on call Bill Belichick to see about getting an interview."

Belichick, reached at Giants Stadium, said he would talk with the former leader of the Browns defense.

"Obviously, I haven't worked with Hanford, but if he wants to talk with me, I'd be more than happy to talk to him," said Belichick, hired recently as the Browns new head coach.

Belichick was to return to Cleveland Wednesday to begin setting up interviews.

Dixon said he planned to talk with cornerback Everson Walls, who played under Belichick with the Giants last season, to prepare for a meeting with Belichick.

Ball State, Ohio U. sue promoter

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Officials at Ball State and Ohio Universities hope a federal judge agrees with them and freezes the accounts of a Florida promoter whose plan for a football game in Ireland didn't materialize.

Judge Larry McKinney is expected to rule within a few days on the request to freeze about $99,000 in accounts of James R. Aebli.

That was all that remained, according to bank records, of about $345,000 paid in deposit fees and tour purchases.

Aebli early in 1990 went to the Mid-American Conference and suggested a college football game, dubbed the Shamrock Crystal Bowl, be played in Killarney, Ireland Ball State and Ohio University thought it was a good idea and agreed to a Nov. 17 contest.

But less than three weeks before the game Aebli asked the schools for $150,000 because tour sales had not lived up to expectations. The schools refused and the Ireland trip was scrubbed.

During a hearing Tuesday, Ohio U. attorney Gerald A. Mollica said $54,690 was spent from Aebli's accounts during December and January, much of it on personal expenses. Mollica said Aebli even wrote a $16,000 check to pay his taxes.

Houston group to join bidding war for Astros

HOUSTON (UPI) — A local attorney and his father say they have "a very serious interest" in a local group that is looking into buying the Houston Astros baseball team.

"We know with certitude that it can be done in Houston," said Jeff Love, who is working on the package with his father, Ben Love, the retired chairman and chief executive officer of Texas Commerce Bancshares. "We don't think there is a lack of potential investors in Houston."

Astros owner John McMullen announced in November he was selling the team. McMullen, who has owned the team since 1979, plans to keep the Houston Sports Association, parent company of the Astros, and sell only the team. Jeff Love said the group with which he is associated has signed a confidentiality agreement with investment bankers Salomon Bros., which is handling the sale, so he could not divulge names of any other group members or details of the negotiations.

"There are people in Houston who have the means and the civic interest and the baseball interest to do it," said Ben Love. "There's a possibility that a group could be put together to make an offer, and that's what Jeff and I are looking into trying to do."

Jeff Love said the process of putting the group together began in November, when the Loves "were notified that the club was being placed up for sale."

The Loves are the second group in recent days to express interest in purchasing the Astros.

Belcher loses in arbitration

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Right-hander Tim Belcher of the Los Angeles Dodgers lost his salary arbitration hearing and will earn $900,000 this season, it was announced Wednesday.

Belcher earned $450,000 in 1990 and was seeking a one-year contract of $1.35 million.

Belcher, 29, went 9-9 with a 4.00 ERA, five complete games, a one-hitter and two shutouts in 24 starts last season. He did not pitch after mid-August and had arthroscopic surgery Sept. 11 to remove tom cartilage from his right shoulder.

Two years ago, Belcher compiled a 15-12 record with a 2.82 ERA and 200 strikeouts.

DeBartolo tries to quell Lott uproar

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (UPI) — San Francisco 49ers owner Edward DeBartolo Jr. Wednesday said the decision to allow veterans Ronnie Lott, Roger Craig and Matt Millen to become Plan B free agents was made in an effort to keep the club competitive.

DeBartolo also extended coach George Seifert's contract for two years, named executive vice president Carmen Policy team president and changed the team logo from its trademark red-encircled SF to a script and 49ers.

DeBartolo had served as president, with Policy holding the title Executive Vice President-Front Office/League Relations.

"There are a lot of people over the years who have meant a lot to the 49ers," DeBartolo said. "Ronnie Lott is one of them, but things change. You have to keep a football team competitive. I'm not saying Ronnie Lott is not going to keep this team competitive, but we just can't sit here. "In order to keep a football team competitive, you have to bring youth in. The Pittsburgh Steelers didn't do that and it's taken them 10 years to rebuild. I don't want that to happen to his franchise."

Running back Craig and safety Lott have been long-time fan favorites and played a major role in transforming the 49ers from also-rans to the team of the 1980s. But both were slowed last season by nagging injuries. Lott still was voted to the Pro Bowl.

Lott was shocked when he learned that he would not be protected from Plan B free agency and even offered while at the Pro Bowl in Hawaii to take a $200,000 pay cut.

"When Ronnie and I visited in Hawaii (Seifert was coach of the NFC Pro Bowl squad) he brought up taking a $200,000 pay cut if he were protected," Seifert said. "Carmen visited with his agent and there were conversations, but the decision was made to go on with Plan B as it existed."

Lott also wanted to have his contract for next season guaranteed — something the 49ers as a team policy do not do.

"I called his agent and asked exactly what did they have in mind," Policy said. "He said if Ronnie agreed to a $200,000 pay cut he wanted the contract guaranteed and he wanted to be protected. It was an issue that could not be resolved in the amount of time we had. Our position now is we let Plan B play itself out."

However, Seifert was quick to emphasize the 49ers' desire to retain many of the players the club did not protect including Lott.

"It's not as though we fired these players," Seifert said. "It's somewhat of a chess game who you protect. It's unfortunate the publicity (over Lott) has reached the point it has."

of the Cardinals. "Not only is Jose one of the finest second basemen in baseball, but he is one of the hardest workers in the game and sets a good example for his teammates, a work ethic that will be very important to us this season with the number of young players we anticipate having on the team," Maxvill said.

Oquendo, 27, set major-league records for second basemen last season by committing just three errors in 150 games for a fielding percentage of .996. Last year was just his second full season at second base.

The switch-hitter played in 156 games last season, when he batted .252 with one home run and 37 RBI. In 1989, he batted .291 with one homer and 48 RBI.

In 1988, Oquendo became the fourth National League player and the first since Eugene Paulette of the Cardinals in 1918 to play all nine positions during the season. He started at seven positions, also caught and pitched four innings of relief, giving up two runs and taking the loss in a 7-5, 19-inning loss to the Atlanta Braves.

In the decisive seventh game of the 1987 NL Championship Series, Oquendo's three-run homer off Altee Hamaker of the San Francisco Giants sparked the Cardinals to victory.

Originally signed by the New York Mets in 1979, the native of Puerto Rico spent parts of the 1983 and 1984 seasons with New York. He was traded to the Cardinals in 1985 along with pitcher Mark Davis for shortstop Argenis Salazar and pitcher John Young.

headache. Three Redbird starters are averaging in double figures, LuAnn Robinson (12.6 points a game), Tami Baalke (10.5 points a game), and then there is Caryn Brune.

Brune could possibly be the poison pill in the ISU attack. The 6-foot-4 sophomore center, who is averaging 12.3 points and 8 rebounds a game, was the only threat during the Salukis 58-51 win over ISU in January. She poured in 15 points and nine rebounds against SIUC. Also, Brune is coming off a 24-point, 10-rebound effort against Western Illinois.

The job of putting a body on Brune will go to SIUC senior Amy Rakers. Rakers defense has been stellar lately as she had four blocks and three steals, to go with her 16-point and 16-rebound night against WIU, last Thursday.

But the defense can't stop with Rakers. The Salukis will have to be extra stingy against the Redbirds, the No. 3 scoring (74.3 p.p.g) and No. 2 field goal shooting (.464 percent) team in the Gateway Conference.

So far in the Gateway season, the Salukis defense has been splendid. In Gateway games, foes have averaged only 54 points a game on 36 percent shooting. Nationally, SIUC ranks No. 11 in scoring defense.

The Salukis shooting, however, has not been pinpoint in conference play. SIUC is currently ranked No. 7 in conference scoring offense at 66.7 points a game and shot a season-low 34.3 percent from the field against WIU.

"We know ISU is a tough place to play," Scott said. "They are as well coached as any program in the country. If we don't shoot the ball well, it could be a long night."

minutes at this meet.

"People could have an opportunity to witness several athletes running sub-four minute miles," DeNoon said. "To see that happen under one roof, for the first time in the state of Illinois, would be indescribable."

DeNoon said he expects stiff competition for his team, but he also expects some wins. Sophomores

Cheryl Evers in the shot put, Lecann Conway in the 3,000-meter and Nacolia Moore in the triple jump are expected to lead the Salukis.

"This will be a good contest," DeNoon said. "I hope the SIUC athletes feel really good about themselves when it is all done."

The meet will begin at 9 a.m. and admission is $3 for adults and $1 for non-SIUC students.

for Saturday's home game against Drake. Of the 11 Chicago State players ejected, only two reportedly face suspension for fighting, but the university was seeking clarification on the matter. The Cougars play next on Saturday at Wright State.

Chicago State Coach Rick Pryor blamed "lopsided" officiating for the incident.

"The bottom line was the officials," he said. "I apologize to Illinois State University, but I will not apologize for the officiating."

Added Bender: "It wasn't so much the physical play as much as it was the talking and taunting on the court. There's a growing concern about that, and we coaches have to work to control that."

Gary Johnson of the NCAA Statistics Service said a game must be played to 75 percent of completion for individual and team stats to count. Therefore, the final score officially was changed Wednesday to Illinois State 2, Chicago State 0.

All of the individual and team statistics from the first half will be voided, although the game will count in the won and lost records of the two teams. The Redbirds are now 5-18 and the Cougars 3-19.

game. Freshman Emeka Okenwa started at center with sophomore Ashraf Amaya moving to power forward. Senior Rick Shipley played the small forward and junior Kelvan Lawrence switched to shooting guard with senior Sterling Mahan at the point. Sophomore guard Tyrone Bell, who started the first 21 games for the Salukis, came off the bench.

The Salukis were led by Amaya who dumped in 16 points and Mahan with 15 tallies.

Shipley dominated the boards, pulling down 14 rebounds and also contributed 9 points.

The Salukis are back in action at 5:05 p.m. Saturday against Wichita State, which beat SIUC 68-65 in Kansas. The game will be televised on MVC-TV.
