What WE want

College guys shatter stereotypes

College women confirm stereotypical image

DEVIN MILLER & JASON ADAMS - DAILY EGYPTIAN

BRYNN SCOTT & ANDREA DONALDSON DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTERS

Men want sex. Across the globe, that stereotype — guys chase women solely for the purpose of a red-hot night of passion — has stigmatized men for ages. From media images to parental warnings, the misguided belief that guys are only looking for sex has pervaded college life.

And so the stereotype sticks. "I think most guys are looking for sex," said 19-year-old Amber Boegler, a sophomore in radio and television from Ava. "Guys are looking for fun, and sex just comes along with it."

So men only want sex, right? Wrong, said Linda Andes, a professor of sociology. While men and women have similar requisites in their quest for the perfect mate, Andes said it's often falsely depicted with the assumption that men look for sex while women look for love.

"I think that in the mainstream culture that's the image of what men and women are looking for," said Andes, who teaches a course on pop culture. "Whether that's true or not...I think there's less of a difference in what men and women really want."

A recent DAILY EGYPTIAN survey lambasted that prevailing stereotype and revealed quite the opposite. One hundred, confidential surveys were distributed independently to SIUC college men ranging in ages from 18 to 27. The survey revealed that 62 percent of the men think love is more vital than sex while only 38 percent thought sex reigned supreme.

The survey also showed that personalty beat out looks in terms of what men desire most in their mates, by 68 percent to 30 percent, respectively. Two percent were undecided.

For Russ Eisenstein, 20, a sophomore in radio and television from Bolingbrook, the quest for the perfect girl includes "the total package of looks, personality and a girl who likes sports."

"I'd like to settle down in a more committed relationship," Eisenstein said. "I've had my fun."

Like the majority of men surveyed, Eisenstein isn't searching for a Barbie-cloned girlfriend. Personality and love is a must.

"And someone I can bring home to mom," he added.

Chris Cline, a 19-year-old freshman in cinema and photography from Dayton, desires a similar lady.

"I want a girl who's refined and has

Women want love. Whether it's during a quiet evening at home, a night dancing at the bar or a hike in the woods, girls want that one special thing from guys.

Forget roses, dinners and diamond rings, boys. Love is the clincher — the passionate tingle that girls are craving.

A recent DAILY EGYPTIAN survey revealed that 90 percent of the females questioned are yearning for love more than sex. The surveys were confidentially distributed to 100 SIUC females, ranging from ages 18 to 38.

Jennifer Fuller, a senior in radio-television from Carterville, is no exception to the majority of females who found love most important.

"At this point it's love. I'm saving myself for marriage," Fuller said. "Sex just complicates things."

The survey stated that only 8 percent of the females found sex to be "extremely" important in a relationship. Twenty-one percent of the females surveyed considered sex "not at all" important in a relationship.

But when love strikes, raging hormones peak — especially among males. Megan Marsh, an 18-year-old freshman in administration of justice from St. Charles, said the stereotype of males just wanting sex is sometimes true, and she was warned about it.

"My dad told me to be careful with guys and warned me that some of them have hidden agendas, like only wanting sex," Marsh said.

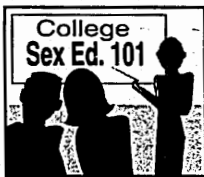

But that stereotype may not be true anymore. Times are changing, and ladies are not only consumed with love and the idea of "making love." Pleasure ploys and taunting toys are now a prevalent part of whip-lashing, wild sex. For some female college students, it's all about achieving that ultimate, orgasmic pleasure.

Marsh said though females sometimes shy away from admitting it, they are sometimes after the same thing as the stereotypical male.

"Sometimes guys just want sex," Marsh said. "But they may not say it because it could make them look bad."

"Some girls are just scared about their reputation."

Andy Spellman, a 19-year-old sophomore in cinema and photography from Northbrook, said there is a double-

Investigation of possible fraternity violation continues

Greek leaders do not foresee change in policy

JENNIFER WIG DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Greek leaders say their reputation has been tainted by the actions of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, but appear optimistic about the SIUC Greek Millennium Initiative.

Student Development officials continue to investigate the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity chapter for a possible violation of the SIUC Greek Millennium Initiative.

Twenty-five to 30 people were at the fraternity chapter house, 605 S. University Ave., after 2 a.m. Jan. 29 when a Delta Zeta sorority member fell down the stairs of the house. The sorority member was hospitalized and underwent surgery for an arm injury.

The Initiative, which was installed this spring, allows fraternity chapters to have three alcoholic functions each semester, but they must first complete training approved by the Inter-Greek Council. The first training session on risk management occurred Feb. 5. The second step of the training was completed in an alcohol education presentation Feb. 10.

Pete Hatfield, president of the Sigma Phi Epsilon chapter, denies that the B.Y.O.B. function was a party. However, he said he did break the rules by allowing alcohol in the house after 2 a.m.

Greek members say this is a temporary setback to the new program and although the chapter will be punished according to facts unearthed during the Student Development investigation, the new Millennium Initiative will remain intact.

"This makes us look really bad," said Gary Dudzik, president of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. "It will hurt our reputation. People make mistakes. It's just a shame that it had to happen right after we initiated a new program."

Dudzik said because only one fraternity has possibly violated the Initiative, the only result will be a punishment for the Sigma Phi Epsilon chapter.

Reusable Student Center mugs successful

Introduced by Southern Sustainability last semester, refillable mugs are being used widely in the Student Center and have reduced the amount of trash on campus. The mugs have been used more than 2,000 times, according to Ken Jaras, associate director of the Student Center.

The mugs are popular partly because they help people save money. Every time a person uses a mug, they save 30 cents off of a large drink at the Student Center.

More than a thousand mugs have been sold so far, and only 40 are still available. This project is meant to help students become "environmentally literate," said Hugh Muldoon, who works with Southern Sustainability.

'Peanuts' creator Schultz dies of heart attack

"Peanuts" creator Charles M. Schulz has died of a heart attack, ending an era spanning nearly half-a-century in which the daily trials of an anxious round-faced kid and his dog Snoopy became probably the world's most popular comic strip.

Associates said Schulz, 77, died of a heart attack at his Santa Rosa, Calif. home on Saturday night after a three-month battle with colon cancer that had forced him to give up drawing the strip.

"Peanuts" becomes part of the family for anyone that reads the comic strip and I still have a lot of sad feelings inside right now," said Karen White, who was the voice of Lucy on the first "Peanuts" television special.

He died on the eve of publication in Sunday papers of his final strip, showing Snoopy on top of his doghouse in his role as a writer who invariably starts his stories "It was a dark and stormy night."

In a farewell message printed in the strip, Schulz said: "I have been grateful over the years for the loyalty of our...itors and the wonderful support and love expressed to me by fans of the comic strip... Charlie Brown, Snoopy, Linus, Lucy... how can I ever forget them..."

"I never dreamed that this would happen to me," Schulz, said of his illness and forced retirement in a recent interview with NBC's Today Show.

"I always had the feeling that I probably would stay with the strip until I was in the early 80s. All of a sudden it's gone, it's been taken away from me."

A shy, gentle, introverted man, Schulz always refused to budge on one point: He and he alone would draw the strip.

"Peanuts," a shy, simple series of stories about a group of childhood friends and rivals, had become a handbook for Americans facing the tiny triumphs and plentiful pitfalls of modern life.

Unpredictable, hopeful, neurotic and nervous, the "Peanuts" gang took their behavioral cues from Charlie Brown, whose brave, squiggle smile always was just a shade short of confident.

"I suppose I've always felt that way: Apprehensive, anxious, that sort of thing," Schulz told one interviewer in 1989. "I have compared it sometimes to the feeling that you have when you get up on the morning of a funeral."

Museum provides lesson in prehistory

Many prehistoric artifacts will be on display at the George Fraunfelter Gallery

CODELL RODRIGUEZ
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Anyone who has seen the movie "Jurassic Park" probably remembers the ferocious velociraptor. This Friday, at the University Museum in Fanner Hall, the velociraptor and many other prehistoric exhibits will be on display to the public as part of the George Fraunfelter Gallery.

Fraunfelter was the adjunct curator of geology at SIUC from 1965 until the time he passed away in 1993. In that time, he amassed thousands of paleontological fossils from Southern Illinois for the museum. At the gallery, a selection of those fossils will be on display and will be set up as a journey through time from the Cambrian period to the Permian period.

The gallery will open at 4 p.m. with a reception and dedication from Fraunfelter's long time professional colleague and friend, John Ugaard. The gallery will be a permanent addition to the University Museum.

The exhibit begins in the Cambrian period with plenty of fossils found in Southern Illinois by Fraunfelter. It includes the remains of prehistoric sea creatures such as trilobites.

The tour continues on through the life of the dinosaurs. One exhibit includes a perfect replica of an Archaeopteryx fossil. Archaeopteryx was the first fossil found of a feathered prehistoric bird.

The exhibit continues with more displays of dinosaurs including models of dinosaur life and an actual size and shape replica of a skull from the infamous velociraptor.

Later on in the exhibit, exact replicas of human skulls show the change in brain size of hominids from Australopithecus to Cro-Magnon and present day human.

The tour continues with displays of how the Earth's land mass has changed through time and ends with examples of fossils found by area schools while on field trips. Robert DeHoe, museum education coordinator, said the fossils, which are mostly plants, were found by children from grade schools in Carbondale, Murphysboro, and Anna. Most of the fossils are in excellent shape with perfect imprints of plants from millions of years ago.

"The museum is actively involved with schools in the area that have Earth Science programs," DeHoe said.

The exhibit was made possible by a grant from Lori Huffman at the Institute of Museum and Library Services. It was also made possible by the work of the current adjunct curator of geology, Harvey Henson, and museum exhibits designer Alan Harasimowicz.

Anticipation heightens for upcoming Big Muddy

Students work to finalize details for the festival

ANNE MARIE TAVELLA
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The films are chosen, the schedule is finished and the posters will be up this week.

Even with all that is accomplished, Kurush Canteenwala's attitude is still "so far, so good."

In less than two weeks, the Big Muddy Film Festival comes to SIUC, and Canteenwala, the festival director, said there is still much to be done including finishing the brochure and finalizing what films are going to run in the competition.

Although preparing for the Department of Cinema and Photography-sponsored festival, an SIU staple for 22 years, has been endless hard work, Canteenwala said the end result is worth it.

"It's a huge bonus to both the school and the department," he said.

Canteenwala, a graduate student in cinema and photography from Bombay, India, is hoping for a good turn out, especially on the weekends, which have been packed with events.

The special tribute to recently deceased filmmakers, Robert Bresson and Stanley Kubrick, may help make this year's festival a particular success. Canteenwala said Kubrick's "A Clockwork Orange" should have a good turn out because it is popular outside of film circles.

The festival will begin with a midnight showing of "A Clockwork Orange" at Varsity Theatre, 418 S. Illinois Ave., Feb. 25.

"I think there's already a bit of a buzz that 'A Clockwork Orange' is playing," Canteenwala said, "because I don't know anybody who's seen that film on film."

The film, released in 1971, was considered controversial in its depiction of a violent future.

One of the main points of the festival is to showcase films such as documentaries, short films and experimental films that are not normally seen by the public.

"Forums for seeing certain kinds of films don't exist outside of a film festival," Canteenwala said.

For example, "Afterlife," a Japanese narrative film that confronts questions of life and the afterlife, is argued to be the best film of 1999. Michael Covell, faculty adviser for the festival, said "Afterlife" is definitely a film everyone should see.

"The story is very engaging; it's an interesting story for the viewer," Covell said.

Even with an array of quality films, Covell said the students truly make the festival work.

"It's a festival that is primarily a result of a lot of hard volunteer work forums for seeing certain kinds of films don't exist outside of a film festival.

Festival director

by the students," Covell said. "That's what makes it a success."

Other highlights of the festival will include the cult film "Run Lola Run" and "Regret to Inform," an anti-war documentary about the widows of Vietnam veterans.

Canteenwala said the more well-known films draw larger crowds, but the festival allows those who desire to see short, experimental or lesser-known films a chance to see them.

"It offers the opportunity to see films that you would just not see anywhere else," Canteenwala said.

OUR WORD

Greek Judicial Board needs to set example

Less than two weeks after the beginning of the spring semester and what was supposed to be a new start for the greek system, the Millennium Initiative stumbled. What remains to be seen is whether greek members have the strength to stage a recovery with their reputations in tact, or disqualify themselves before they're out of the gate.

The Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity is being investigated for having a party Jan. 29 that violated regulations imposed by the Millennium Initiative. While the president of the organization objected to the word "party," claiming any of their parties would have a theme, about 25 to 30 people were at the fraternity house after 2 a.m., and some were consuming alcohol. Student Development became aware of the incident after a female guest fell down the basement stairs and sustained an injury requiring surgery.

Soon, the matter will be examined by the Greek Judicial Board, a panel made up of greek members. Members of Sigma Phi Epsilon who were at the house Jan. 29 have placed the board in the precarious position of determining a fair punishment.

It would be easy to say Sigma Phi Epsilon's indiscretion signifies the failure of the Millennium Initiative and, thus, the demise of the greek system's credibility. But it would also be a simplistic over-generalization. Hold on to your judgments and conclusions because the test is yet to come.

The offending fraternity has admitted rules were broken so the board will only need to decide which rules and how serious the violations were. Next, as the board decides how the chapter will be sanctioned for their actions, they will also determine the extent they are willing to allow a small group to represent the whole SIUC greek system.

If they impose what amounts to an inconvenience on the fraternity for the infractions, they will invite a host of criticism and send several messages that the greek community will be judged by for years to come. If they react to the violations as if they were inconsequential, that same attitude will reflect on the rules themselves. Soon, more rules will be ignored, and, before you can say "Millennium Initiative," student input from greeks will be a thing of the past. Also, potential members of greek organizations are watching. If the reputation of the whole system is compromised, which will inevitably occur if the board does not take a stand now, only students who wish to identify with greek stereotypes will join. Conversely, the job of policing the greek system could become incrementally easier, as more students join to take part in the positive image some greeks are working to build.

Many greeks have worked hard to dispel myths and demonstrate the potential of their organizations. They drafted an agreement they felt was fair, and they have continued to act as advocates for their peers. Their work has not been wasted if the Greek Judicial Board insists the rules they created will be upheld by all. Mistakes will happen, as will flagrant abuse of the rules. The success of the Millennium Initiative will ultimately lie with the board's ability to maintain integrity of those rules.

Real romance can't be forced

Growing up in the good ol' United States of America, I have grown to assimilate to celebrating our traditional holidays. When I was younger, I believed holidays were just days to get out of school or work so you could be lazy for the day. Then, as I got older and wiser, I learned the history and realized what holidays really stood for. As a result, I gained respect for them — well, all but a few of them.

Yeah, some holidays are just some big propaganda to make you spend all your money, but those holidays still had meaning behind them. But the celebration of Valentine's Day is something I just don't see fit to celebrate. Don't get me wrong, I love romance and all the good things that have to do with love. I enjoy getting flowers, candy (expensive), Hallmark cards, stuffed animals (teddy bears preferably), dinner and of course, those beautiful three words said as the sun sets. Still, something about Valentine's Day makes me roll my eyes when it starts to wind down.

No, it's not the fact it's only celebrated once a year, although many would probably say it should be once a month, that makes me take deep hearts all over the place. It's not the time of year in which it appears on the calendar, despite how cold it is in most states when this holiday takes its course, that makes me want to say it shouldn't even get the title "holiday." And it is definitely not the winged baby with a diaper and a bow and arrow in his hands to symbolize this holy romantic day that makes my body scream.

But the aspect about the whole thing that sends dizziness through my head is the forced romance. As I said earlier, romance is a beautiful thing, but to be forced to be romantic is far from romantic. Through the course of the years, I've heard others and even myself fall into the trap of telling our significant other what we want for Valentine's Day. We tell our mates that we want to be taken out to Red Lobster, treated to some romantic movie, nice silk boxers, a big white fluffy teddy bear, Turtles chocolate candy and an expensive present.

ANDREA PARKER

Andrea is a sophomore in journalism. Her opinion does not necessarily reflect that of the DAILY EGYPTIAN.

It doesn't stop there. If this is not given by our significant other couples tend to throw tantrums, become upset and even break up. And for what — because the bracelet was $20 instead of $100? I've seen it happen. When I look at Valentine's Day, well when I used to look at it, I thought it was a day put aside for couples and spouses to spend a little more time together. But when I look at this day now, instead of thinking of all the beauty and poetic togetherness, I just think about all the negativity it will bring.

And, more important than receiving a present on a day reserved for giving one, I would rather receive it unexpectedly. This way I know my mate wasn't just waiting for a certain day to grace me with his love, but just surprised me one day with something from his heart because he does love me. To one day, out of the blue, get a knock on my door and hear him recite a one-page original poem to me, give me a dozen white roses, a precious kiss on the mouth and tell me, "Andrea, I love you and I wanted to do something special for you for no reason at all" — now that's a Valentine's Day.

DEAR EDITOR,
I am writing to the DAILY EGYPTIAN because it is time to shine some light in D.O.S.E.'s direction (division of skateboarding enthusiasts). D.O.S.E. deserves a hearty pat on the back for their efforts to become recognized as a strong, up and coming, respectful organization. We will be finally earning the title of RSO on the night of the Feb. 16.

In the past, lawmakers everywhere created a dark, thunderous cloud that looms over skateboarders. It changes many minds to think twice about skateboarding, and that is wrong. Kids everywhere believe, or are starting to believe, that skateboarding is a crime. That is where we come in. We stand up to the lawmakers and political icons. We look them in their eyes, and we do not back down. We are here to bless Carbondale with a skate park.

We encourage everyone to come out and join D.O.S.E., even you, Mr. Editor. We can't prove it, but D.O.S.E. can possibly lower your cholesterol, maybe even help lose weight or help you jump higher. So with all of our slacker mentalities combined, D.O.S.E. will SHINE.

Local political groups encourage participation

College Democrats and College Republicans are preparing for election season

JASON COKER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Student political groups are gearing up for Illinois primary elections by organizing debates to discuss candidate issues and inform the public of what they believe.

The College Democrats and the College Republicans are sponsoring events that hope to raise awareness for the Illinois Republican and Democratic primary elections on March 21. Although the College Democrats and the College Republicans cannot endorse specific candidates as an organization, they can encourage students to vote.

Willis Reynolds, a senior in political science from Springfield, presides over the College Democrats, and said the primary contest for the presidency is between Bill Bradley, former U.S. Senator from New Jersey, and Vice President Al Gore.

The College Democrats are active in a voter registration drive and have registered more than 80 students to vote.

The College Republicans sponsored a debate Wednesday at the Student Center between primary delegates from the campaigns of John McCain, U.S. Senator from Arizona, and Texas Gov. George W. Bush. The debate was to inform College Republican members before they vote in next month's primary.

In the New Hampshire primary, Gore won 52 percent of the vote compared to Bradley's 47 percent. McCain defeated Bush with 49 to 31 percent of the vote.

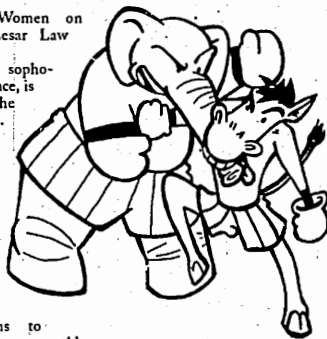

The College Democrats are helping to sponsor the Anti-Racist Rally with the group Anti-Racist Action on Feb. 23. Recent actions involving SIU School of Law graduate Matt Hale and the Confederate flag have raised concern about racism at SIUC.

The College Republicans will also have a debate between conservative activist Phyllis Schlafly and a member of the National Organization for Women on March 2 at the Lesar Law Auditorium.

Joseph Cobetto, a sophomore in political science, is a member of the College Republicans. He plans to campaign for Bush, the man he identified as having the executive experience necessary to be president.

According to Reynolds, the College Democrats have asked the College Republicans to debate them before next month's primary, however nothing has been scheduled.

Belmont Abbey College suspends fraternity's privileges for drinking incident

BELMONT, N.C. — Belmont Abbey College has suspended the pledging privileges of a fraternity while it investigates what led to an 18-year-old pledge's trip to the hospital Monday after drinking beer and wine at an on-campus party, college officials said.

The pledge, who is on the school's soccer team, drank at a Sunday night gathering attended by members of the Chi Delta Sigma fraternity, said college spokeswoman Beth Bargar. The fraternity's charter was suspended following an October 1998 "round-the-world" party after which at least one member was taken to the hospital for binge drinking.

During the suspension, which was lifted after a year, the fraternity could not engage in any fraternity-related activities, Bargar said.

The fraternity, an independent chapter without a national affiliation, was punished with a $1,500 fine and 600 hours of community service.

The initial emergency call came at 3:10 a.m. Monday from a second-floor room in the O'Connell Hall dormitory, said Chris Cloninger, an operations supervisor for Gaston County communications. The caller told an emergency dispatcher that a student was "extremely drunk" and was having severe trouble breathing. Cloninger said.

An ambulance crew found an 18-year-old male student who had difficulty waking up.

He was bruised, had a swollen nose and lip and was extremely intoxicated, said Terry Begley, assistant operations supervisor with Gaston Emergency Medical Services. Ambulance workers started an IV and took him to Gaston Memorial Hospital.

Bargar said the student was released from the hospital Monday and returned to campus. College officials have said they do not know the student's blood-alcohol level or how he was injured.

The Sunday night party violated the college's alcohol policy, which bans students under age 21 from drinking, Bargar said. The policy also requires event organizers to get permission for parties attended by underage students where alcohol is served.

There once was a girl in theater, all men, dogs and cats would pee at her, but along came a guy, who was silly and wavy and decided that he wanted to be with her.

The guy had no money for fur, and no one ever called the man six, though he taught little kids like verminous knids- he said hi, they responded with Grrr.

So the girl made the guy feel quite treasured and the guy bid the hell to impress her. Right now they're both alone but when they're on the phone, nothing means a damned thing but each other... and they never say gee, how's the weather?

Well my loving Cheescheadi, I am proud to say that we have fulfilled our first hope. This time last year you never could have persuaded me to believe what I feel now. So, I am honored to say to you this time that... I hope this Valentines won't be our last, Darling.

This opportunity I couldn't miss, To express my love to my darling Chris.
XXXX,
Amanda

DAILY EGYPTIAN sweeps competition

Students win more awards from ICPA than any other Illinois university

DAILY EGYPTIAN STAFF

For the second year in a row, the DAILY EGYPTIAN placed second in the general excellence category of the Illinois Collegiate Press Association's annual conference and award ceremony in Chicago on Saturday.

The general excellence award is given to the newspaper of a four-year university that exhibits excellence and quality in editorial content, photography, graphics, design and advertising. The Daily Northwestern of Northwestern University, the DAILY EGYPTIAN and the Northern Star of Northern Illinois University finished in the top-three, respectively. Other universities competing in the same category as the DAILY EGYPTIAN were Eastern Illinois University, Western Illinois University, Illinois State University and the University of Illinois.

The DAILY EGYPTIAN won more awards than any other school in Illinois with a total of 26. Among those awards were nine first place prizes — also more than any other competing school.

This year, 857 entries were submitted by 25 participating schools.

Categories were broken into four divisions: open, daily, non-daily more than 4,000 students and non-daily less than 4,000 students. All colleges in Illinois are eligible for entries in the open division. The DAILY EGYPTIAN won 11 awards in the open division including five first-place finishes.

The DAILY EGYPTIAN also attended the 78th annual National College Media Convention in Atlanta last October where school newspapers from around the country compete in a similar contest. The DAILY EGYPTIAN won two first place, one second and two third place awards in that competition.

First grader expelled one day for bringing a starter pistol to school

An East Aurora 1st grader who brought a starter pistol to school was expelled—a mandatory punishment that should be limited to one day, the school board decided Monday.

School District 131 officials consider "the boy's age and the circumstances of the incident before recommending the most lenient discipline for the 7-year-old Bardwell Elementary pupil. By law, any student who brings a gun or look-alike gun to school must be expelled, but the school board decides the length of the punishment.

"To me it was a no-brainer—one day was enough," school board member Bob McCue said. "This has been blown out of proportion. He was only 7 years old. He didn't know what he was doing."

Supt. Charles Ponquinette said no pupils were ever in danger during the incident.

"This was not a gun, this was a starter pistol," Ponquinette said, referring to the gun-like device that shoots only blanks and is typically used at track meets. "The student did not have it out. He was not doing anything threatening."

A teacher discovered the pistol in the boy's backpack on Jan. 24, after another student told the teacher about seeing a gun in there. The boy told school officials he brought the pistol to school because "he didn't want his older brothers to get in trouble," Ponquinette said. The police were called, but no official action was taken because the weapon was a starter pistol. The boy was suspended for four days, and a letter was sent home to parents in that classroom explaining what happened. Board member Donald Herbig said this was the first time an elementary pupil has ever been expelled in District 131, the superintendent said. Ponquinette added that in his 16 years with the district, no student has ever been caught bringing a gun to either the high school or the three middle schools.

goals," Cline said. "I want somebody who appreciates me. I like a girl who can take charge when it's needed."

Both Eisenstein and Cline listed love as overshadowing sex. Ladies, take heed. In the new millennium, college guys are looking for love as well as sex. They're also looking for personality, sense of humor and looks — the top three attributes the surveyed men are searching for.

But while the "good guy" image seems to shine through in these men, there is still plenty of "bad boys" who every woman's father warns them about. Greg Kruse, a sophomore from Kankakee, said the stereotypical image of what men and women want hits right on the mark. The survey showed that one of the top three turn-offs for the men is bad looks, showing men can still be shallow.

"The idea that guys just want sex and girls just want love is probably true as a whole," the 20-year-old business major said. "I usually look at looks first, but if they have no personality, it's no good. Sex is a big part of the relationship. Sex brings that connection."

Connections aside, others just want to enjoy the freedom that youth offers — no strings attached. Louie Schaffer, a 23-year-old junior from Evanston, has put love on the back burner.

"It's mostly sex," Schaffer said about what he's looking for. "I'm just not at that point in my life when I'm looking for marriage."

So while men differ in what they're searching for in women, when it comes down to the factor that will always unite the sexes, the answer is almost universal.

"I'd say love," Eisenstein said. "Because love lasts longer than sex."

standard when women hit the sheets.

"If guys sleep around, they're thought of as a pimp," Spellman said. "But when girls do it, they get called a slut or whore."

So what do females want in addition to love and sex?

The DAILY EGYPTIAN survey revealed top qualities females are searching for in a partner. Of the females questioned, 92 percent found personality to be most important, while intelligence and looks followed.

Spellman was right on target, thinking that females want trust, friendship and physical aspects dominating a relationship.

Females stated the biggest turn-offs in male character are untrustworthiness, drug abuse and annoying habits.

Eleana Gochis, an 18-year-old freshman in physical therapy from Glenview, agreed with Spellman.

"Trust is most important," said Gochis. "You can't love someone you can't trust."

Matt Arnold, Interfraternity Council president, said the alleged violations may not be out of accordance with the Millennium Initiative.

Arnold reported that until a Student Development fact-finding investigation is complete, they will not know for sure whether the rules broken were Millennium Initiative policies or codes of the national Sigma Phi Epsilon organization.

"I'm not angry, but I'm disappointed that these incidents occurred," Arnold said. "There are 24 other organizations that are all affected by the Greek Millennium Initiative, and I'm confident that they are taking steps to make this a success. One organization can't take the rap for all 24."

Derek Clifford, president of Phi Delta Theta interest group, said this will not affect the Millennium Initiative as much as others may think.

"It's kind of disappointing, but we knew this was going to happen because it takes a while to install any program," Clifford said. "There's going to be mistakes, and hopefully we'll work through this error to build a strong greek system and change the public's view. It may look like a setback, but it's actually a step forward because we'll learn from the mistake."

The case will be presented to the Greek Judicial Board upon the completion of the investigation. Possible sanctions range from social probation to a loss of charter or RSO status.

Carved initials bring ex-doctor's arrest

NEW YORK — An obstetrician who carved his initials into a patient's abdomen when he delivered her baby was arrested Wednesday on assault charges.

Allan Zarkin, 61, was accused of cutting "AZ" with a scalpel into the lower abdomen of Liana Gedz, 31, after delivering her baby by Caesarean section at Beth Israel Hospital on Sept. 7. Zarkin pleaded not guilty to two counts of assault at his arraignment. He was released without bail, and a hearing is scheduled for March 14.

Zarkin, whose medical license was revoked Feb. 3, faces up to 25 years in prison if convicted. The charge carries a mandatory minimum sentence of 5 years. Barry Fallick, Zarkin's lawyer, admits his client cut the letters into Gedz but said his client isn't responsible because he suffers from a brain disease that impairs his judgment. "He never meant to hurt her," Fallick said. Gedz, who is suing Zarkin for $5 million, asked prosecutors to spare Zarkin, according to Gedz's lawyer, Robert Sullivan. He said the prosecution will accomplish nothing.

"He's lost his license, a lifetime consequence," Sullivan said. But Manhattan District Atty. Robert Morgenthau said: "This is not a private lawsuit. This is a public prosecution. What we're prosecuting here is a crime."

The men came out to play for Valentine's Day

MINSBOK PARK — DAILY EGYPTIAN

An unidentified girl screams with pleasure as Adam Connell, a senior in public relations, dances in front of her during the Valentine's Day bachelor auction, sponsored by the College of Mass Communication and Media Arts, took place Sunday night, February 4, at the Student Center Auditorium.

Bachelors and female bidders help raise money for a student trip

Tom Baird wanted to play it cool and just strut for the ladies, while Adam Connell thought a little lap dance for potential bidders might inspire the women to hand over their cash.

At the Feb. 4 Valentine's Day bachelor auction it was definitely raining men for the all-female audience who got the chance to bid on 14 eligible bachelors.

The bidders and their men were provided with gift certificates to dine at local restaurants this weekend. Some of the dates occurred Friday, Saturday and Sunday while Baird and Connell will double date later this week.

The auction raised close to $500 for graduate students of the College of Mass Communications and Media Arts, who sponsored the event. The college was looking to raise money to fund a trip for MCMA graduate students to attend a media seminar in England. Although the turnout was far below the 300 women that were expected to show, event organizers were pleased.

"I think it went well, and we'll do it again now that people see that we're serious about it," said Sherynn Byrd, co-coordinator of the event. "The next time we do it the attendance should be a little higher now that they know there are some hunks [on campus]."

Connell, a senior in public relations, and Baird, manager of Applebee's, 1125 E. Main St., each brought in $30 from the women who bid on them. Both said they would have been happier if they went for a bit more money.

"If I knew it was going to be that low, maybe I would've taken off the shirt," Connell said of the minutes he had to sell himself to the audience.

Connell danced for a number of women, one time jumping over a row of seats to get to a group of ladies. McCartney Cox, who received one of Connell's dances, said she definitely got her money's worth.

"I was going to bid on him anyway, but that sealed it," she said.

Baird was actually bid on by one of his employees, Anna Nunamaker, a 1999 SIUC graduate.

"At least I'll know I got the day off," Nunamaker said with a laugh. "He's a good boss. Maybe I can talk him into a raise."

Baird did not dance, but rather relied on a cool demeanor to impress the ladies. He said there is no conflict of interest with his date because it's all in good fun, and he was just glad to be picked.

"I just didn't want to be up there standing and looking around. That would've been embarrassing," he said.

Jason Jameson brought in the highest bid of the night with $60. Jameson, a junior in administrative justice from Chicago, said prior to the auction that he was not afraid of the type of woman that would bid on him.

"Tall, short, it really didn't matter," he said.

Kay McCrimon, co-coordinator of the auction, said the most important thing was that people had some fun for a good cause.

"It was a great time, and we want more people to come out next time," she said. "The guys were hot, the ladies were bidding and we made some money, so it went really well."

Saluki bullpen finally holds in the Bulls

SIU baseball's pen men falter in first two games as South Florida takes two of three in season opening series

JAY SCHWAR
SPORTS EDITOR

Turnabout became fair play for the SIU baseball team, as the Salukis salvaged the final game of their three-game season opening series at the University of South Florida Sunday.

The Salukis used six innings of strong mound work from junior University of Nebraska transfer Josh Latimer and three solid innings out of the bullpen from sophomore Luke Nelson to hold off South Florida 3-2 in Sunday's series finale.

While the SIU bullpen struggled in a 6-1 loss Friday and a 10-6 loss Saturday to the Bulls, Sunday, it was South Florida's bullpen that failed its team.

With the score knotted up 2-2 entering the top of the ninth inning, South Florida reliever Brendan Fuller appeared to have things under control, coaxing a fly out from SIU senior infielder Joe Meeks and a ground ball out from senior catcher Kyle Kohlberg to begin the frame.

Then, Fuller lost his control.

He walked SIU junior Dustin Downs, gave up a single to senior Steve Ruggeri and then walked senior Scott Boyd to load the bases. Into the batter's box for SIU stepped sophomore Jeff Stanek, who drew another walk from Fuller, sending pinch-runner Jason Rainey trotting home with what would be the winning run.

Nelson then worked a one-two-three bottom of the ninth to preserve the 3-2 SIU win.

Callahan was thrilled with his team's pitching Sunday and had especially high praise for Latimer.

"Any time you can keep a club like South Florida to just one run over six innings, that's a pretty good job," Callahan said. "We needed somebody to step up on the mound and give us some quality innings and that's what he did."

SIU (1-2) needed the win badly after allowing the first two games, which were also competitively played, to get out of hand late.

In Saturday's tilt, South Florida (4-2) used a three-run eighth inning to break open what had been a nip-and-tuck affair and earn a 10-6 win. SIU sophomore starting pitcher Jason Westemeir, a transfer from Cal-State Fullerton, worked five innings in the game. Three of the six Bull runs scored in that span were charged to Westemeir.

The Salukis had a brief lead in the game. A three-run homer by Saluki center fielder Scott Boyd in the third inning helped propel SIU to a 5-4 lead, but the Saluki bullpen faltered in the late innings as SIU's bats went quiet.

SIU junior reliever Victor Hockett picked up the loss after allowing three runs in relief of Westemeir in a little more than two innings of work. The Saluki defense didn't help their pitchers' cause, committing two costly errors.

"We weren't very good on defense (Saturday)," Callahan said. "But overall it wasn't too bad, factoring in this was the first weekend we've played."

The opening game of the series Friday was a low-scoring affair for most of the evening, but the Bulls tallied four runs in the bottom of the seventh and one in the bottom of the eighth to pull away for a 6-1 victory.

SIU's only run of the game came in the form of a solo home run to left-center off the bat of Nelson in the first inning. Sophomore pitcher Jake Alley started the game for SIU and worked five solid innings, allowing only one hit and one unearned run.

However, the Bulls roughed up SIU junior reliever Brendon Fort in the seventh inning, pushing three runs across the plate off Fort before adding another run on an RBI single by Johnny Raburn off Saluki sophomore Pat Hon. South Florida added another run off Hon in the eighth when Chris Cuccia drove home South Florida's final run on a single to right field.

Callahan would like to stay with Alley longer, but didn't want to risk injury.

"Our pitchers, being this early, are on a pitch count," Callahan said. "Our bullpen wasn't very effective Friday or Saturday."

Bull ace John Gorham earned Friday's win by pitching seven innings of four-hit baseball.

Although the Salukis didn't win the series, Callahan said Sunday night's flight home was made more tolerable having notched the first victory of the season.

"If you're going to win a game you might as well win the last one," Callahan said. "It makes the trip home a heck of a lot nicer."

upset hopes.

"We stepped up our defensive pressure and started breaking down their offense with our defense," Burnett said.

SIU's leading scorer was Terica Hathaway. Hathaway scored 14 points in 30 minutes of action.

Filling in for Holloway was Lynn Morancie. Morancie played well under the circumstances. She scored eight points but committed eight turnovers in 25 minutes of action.

In Friday's game, SIU failed to contain Wichita State's backcourt duo of Lateesha Hill and Keomi

Johnson. Hill jumped on the Salukis early, scoring 13 of her team's 27 points in the first half.

SIU's Melaniece Bartley did her best to keep the game close as she scored 10 of her game high 21 points in the first half. As a result, the Salukis went into halftime trailing the Shockers by just six points.

Johnson, however, gave SIU a supercharged shock in the second half, during which she scored 12 of her 17 points. The Shockers' third guard, Courtney Sims, complemented Hill and Johnson well, adding 15 points and seven rebounds in 35 minutes of action.

Bartley's inside domination could not offset the Salukis' poor perimeter play, including lackluster performances from guards Molly McDowell and Kim Holloway. Star forward Terica Hathaway also performed unusually poor. Hathaway scored just four points on 2-for-13 shooting from the field.

With the victory, Wichita State improved to 18-5 overall and 10-2 in the conference. After the game SIU head coach Julie Beck acknowledged Wichita State's quality backcourt play.

"I would say they have the most talented backcourt in the conference," Beck said.

Beck also offered some insight into her team's poor performance.

"I hate to say it at this point in the season, but we have no chemistry," she said.

MISSOURI VALLEY CONFERENCE

Weekend Roundup

Evansville 60

Indiana State 69

Indiana State maintained its firm grip on the Missouri Valley Conference lead with a 69-60 home win against intra-state rival Evansville. The Sycamores remain two-games ahead of second-place SIU for the top spot in the Valley with five games left for each team.

Indiana State (18-6, 11-2 MVC) raced to a comfortable 37-24 halftime advantage. The Sycamores were led by 14 points from Abasi Thompson and Michael Menser's 13 point performance.

Purple Aces' star forward Craig Snow, who had been out of action with an injury since Jan. 29, made a surprise return to Evansville's lineup. Snow scored 17 points on 6-of-20 shooting, while Adam Seitz led the Aces (16-8, 7-6 MVC) with 22 points.

Bradley 56
Creighton 73

Leading 38-37 at the half, Creighton University opened the second half at the Civic Auditorium in Omaha, Neb., with a 15-1 run to defeat Bradley 73-56. The Braves did not score a field goal in the first 11 minutes of the second half.

The win kept Creighton (17-7, 8-5) in a tie for third place with Southwest Missouri State in the Valley. Bradley (11-13, 7-6) dropped into a tie for fifth place with Evansville.

Freshman Kyle Korver led the Bluejays with 16 points and eight rebounds, shooting 4-for-7 from three point range. Senior guard Rob Dye led Bradley with 17 points.

SW Missouri St. 74
Northern Iowa 64

Eric Judd scored 19 points to spark Southwest Missouri State's 74-64 victory at Northern Iowa.

Southwest Missouri State (15-9, 8-5 MVC) also received 14 points apiece from Kevin Ault and Scott Brakebill. The Bears were a red-hot 9-0-16 from three-point land.

Northern Iowa (12-12, 5-9 MVC) was led by Martin Coon's 19 points and Robbie Sieverding's 17 points. The Panthers, which have struggled since beating SIU at home Feb. 3, will visit the Salukis for a rematch Thursday evening.

Drake 60
Wichita State 65

Wichita State's Terrell Benton scored a career-best 23 points to boost his Shockers to a 65-60 home win against Drake.

Wichita State (9-13, 3-10 MVC) moved one step closer to moving out of the Valley cellar. The Shockers have won three of their last four MVC games after starting league play 0-9.

Drake (10-12, 4-9 MVC), meanwhile, has lost six of its last seven games. The Bulldogs received a team-high 16 points from Armand LeVasseur.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Women's tennis on target in season opening weekend

The SIU women's tennis team began its season with a quality showing, beating Murray State 8-1 Friday and host Louisville 6-3 Saturday in a tournament in Louisville, Ky.

The Salukis (2-0) enjoyed quite a bit of success in singles play. Simcna Petrutiu, Pamela Floro, Keri Crandall and Erika Ochoa all were undefeated in singles action. The Petrutiu-Floro and Ochoa-Ana Serrot doubles teams also survived the weekend unscathed.

"I think we had a really nice weekend," SIU coach Judy Auld said. "We haven't beaten Louisville in a few years, so it was nice to beat them."

SIU was also scheduled to play a match against Miami (Ohio), but that meeting was canceled due to time constraints.

way to help us win."

Illinois State (8-16, 3-10) inched back into contention in the second half to make the final score look respectable, but the Redbirds were never really a threat.

The Redbirds, whose offense appeared discombobulated because of the Salukis' pressure defense in the first half, finally came together in the second half. The Redbirds outscored SIU 39-25 after halftime but it was not nearly enough to overcome the poor start.

"Illinois State was embarrassed, so they came back and fought their butts off," Weber said.

The final 11 point deficit was the closest the Redbirds had been since it was 20-11 at the seven minute mark of the first half.

SIU freshman guard Kent Williams (11 points) was the only other Saluki besides Cross and Colium in double figures. Along with Bryson, sophomore guard Shawn Jeppson was the only Redbird in double figures, scoring 11 points.

The victory keeps SIU in second-place and two games behind MVC leader Indiana State University (18-6, 11-2 MVC), which defeated the University of Evansville 69-60 Saturday.

The Salukis will close out their three game homestand against the University of Northern Iowa Thursday. Northern Iowa defeated SIU 72-58 Feb. 3 in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

SIU will have more than revenge on the line against Northern Iowa, as the Salukis need another win in order to stay in contention for the MVC title.

"[It is] so easy to settle for second place, but we want to keep moving higher and higher," Cross said. "We've got goals right now that we're trying to achieve."

Poll results favor new coach for Tar Heels

JERRY TIPTON
KNIGHT-RIDDEN TRIBUNE

South Carolina Coach Eddie Fogler declined to grace an Internet poll with a reaction.

Apparently, 71 percent of respondents to an Internet poll voted that North Carolina should dismiss Bill Guthridge as coach.

"I don't pay any attention to polls in general," Fogler said, "let alone on the Internet."

However, Fogler did respond to the question of whether Guthridge deserved the criticism he receives.

"It's very unfair," said Fogler, a North Carolina graduate.

"He's the winningest coach in the history of college basketball in his first two seasons. With one Final Four. Two road wins lately. His team will be in the NCAA with a chance to beat anybody on a given night.

"It's just another example of you're darned if you do and darned if you don't in college basketball."

"You either spoil your fans and they want more. Or you don't give them enough and they want somebody else."

Sixth man too much for Redbirds

Salukis receive spark from junior forward and season-high 6,310 fans in blowout of ISU

COREY CUSICK
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Josh Cross should have been worn down. He should have been exhausted.

Maybe he was, but it didn't show.

Only three days after the birth of his son, Joshua Cross II, the 6-foot-4-inch junior forward led the Salukis with 14 points, while collecting 17 rebounds, both career-highs, in a 65-54 SIU victory over Missouri Valley Conference foe Illinois State University Saturday night at the Arena.

The Carbondale native and front-runner for the MVC Sixth Man of the Year award was aided by a season-high 6,310 supporters who filled the SIU Arena.

"I love it when everybody's yelling and the students are geeked and even the older fans, so it's fun, it's really fun to see everybody up on their feet," Cross said.

Cross and company ensured the fans would not go home disappointed, as SIU (15-9, 9-4 MVC) won its third straight game and soared to a season-best six games over .500.

A stingy Saluki defense held the Redbirds to only 15 first half points on 6-of-24 shooting. SIU also forced 11 first half turnovers, as the Salukis took a commanding 40-15 lead into the half.

Senior guard Ricky Collum led the charge offensively, scoring 10 of his 11 points in the first half, while Cross had already amassed eight boards in only nine minutes of action by the break. Collum, who made his presence known at both ends of the court, held the Redbirds' leading scorer, junior guard Tarise Bryson (19.7 ppg, second best in the MVC) to only four first half points.

"I don't think we ever were in it from a physical or mental standpoint," said Illinois State head coach Tom Richardson. "You can't dig yourself that kind of hole and expect to win a game."

Bryson scored a Redbird team-high 13 points for the game, but seven of them came in the last two minutes after the game was already out of reach.

Saluki head coach Bruce Weber has been pleased with Collum's leadership.

"Ricky Collum's done a great job defensively," Weber said. "He's doing what a senior has to do. He's finding a

Lady Salukis have a woeful weekend

Salukis lose both games in two-game homestand against conference rivals

COREY MCCAIN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

For Saluki women's basketball fans, this was a weekend to forget.

SIU hosted the Shockers of Wichita State University Friday, and Sunday SIU played host to Southwest Missouri State University. SIU lost both games by wide margins.

After Friday's 65-44 loss to the Shockers, SIU entered Sunday's game against conference leading Southwest Missouri State without starting point guard Kim Holloway, who injured herself during practice Saturday. The Salukis were in search of chemistry and, more importantly, a victory.

It was not to be, though, as the Bears showed SIU why they are one of the league's best teams and defeated the Salukis handily. The final score was 78-

52. The win moved SMS (18-5, 11-2 MVC) a game ahead of Wichita State (16-6, 10-2 MVC) in the Valley standings.

Although the final score wouldn't indicate it, the Salukis played well in the first half, especially on defense, where they surprised SMS with a 3-2 zone. The zone kept the Bears off-balance and caused Bear All-American guard Jackie Stiles to go 0-for-4 from the field in the first half, with all of her four points coming from the free throw line.

"We were totally unprepared for their zone defense," said SMS head coach Cheryl Burnett.

During the first half, both teams matched the other point for point. SIU went into halftime down just 25-24 and confident an upset of the No. 1 team in the Valley wasn't out of the question.

In the second half, however, the Bears pounded on the Salukis and reduced their growl to a moan. Burnett made some adjustments that put an end to SIU's
