Assets freeze causes trouble for Iranians

By Erick Howenstine
Staff Writer

Many of the 160 Iranian students attending SIU-C have apparently been directly affected by the freeze on Iranian assets imposed by the U.S. government last November.

Checks sent to students from Iran have not been accepted by most American banks since August. Afshin Razani, graduate student in sociology, said in a recent interview.

"It's been difficult financially for about a year," Razani said. Many banks in Iran closed during the revolution, and those in the United States became skeptical about cashing Iranian checks. "The freezing of the assets in November made the problem much worse," he said.

Many Iranians have resorted to borrowing money from friends and banks, using their cars as collateral, Razani said. "Some have even had to sell their cars."

Gordon Watson, cashier at the First National Bank and Trust Co., in Carbondale, said that under normal circumstances, when money from Iran is sent to a student here, a draft is bought which would be transferred to the student's bank. However, since Iranian funds have been frozen, this transaction is illegal, he said.

New York's Citibank and Chicago's First National have refused to transfer funds to Iranian students. Some Iranian students have reported being sent the message, "Account blocked pursuant to executive order 2170," the order freezing Iranian funds.

Terry Rohlfing, a spokesman for First Federal Savings in Carbondale, said the only inconvenience Iranians have had to face there is a delay of "up to several weeks," after a request is sent for collection of money.

Razani said that money from home often takes up to six months to arrive. Checks for as little as $25 are often rejected, he said. "The only way to get money from home is to have it sent first to a 'Mr. X' in Europe, who would then have the check transferred from his bank to one in the United States."

Watson said banks in London are often used for this type of transaction.

"But we are afraid that the European banks may also freeze Iranian assets," Razani added. "It's still risky."

Demolition begins on Amtrak station site

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

A week later than expected, crews began Tuesday razing 19 buildings on South Illinois Avenue that are located on the future site of an Amtrak station Tuesday.

Ahmed's Fantastic Falafil Factory, 901 S. Illinois Ave., was the first structure to be leveled by a three man wrecking crew from Dore & Associates, Contracting, Inc., of Michigan City, Ind.

A bystander said it took "no more than 15 minutes" to reduce the wood structure to a pile of lumber.

Dale Nobel, a city engineer, said the crews demolished Ahmed's first to make more room for the contractors to work on bringing down other buildings.

City crews, as well as those from Dore, spent Tuesday ripping out tiles, lumber, steel beams and any other salvageable material, Nobel said. The city will use some of the materials in other projects, he said.

The city authorized the company to begin demolition Jan. 21, according to Eldon Gosnell, project director for the city's railroad relocation unit. The contractor was tied up on another project out of state and couldn't start on South Illinois Avenue until this week, Nobel said.

The contracting firm will receive $68,395 for leveling the buildings located from Cherry to Elm streets on the east side of South Illinois Avenue. The contractor estimates that it will take two or three weeks to raze the buildings.

Two other buildings, Brunner Office Supply Co., 321 S. Illinois Ave., and Lorien Lost will be demolished as soon as a lawsuit involving the city's acquisition of the two sites is settled. Standard Business Systems, which owns the building housing both stores, refused to take the city's offer to sell in July. The city filed a petition for condemnation of the structure in August.

The new train depot is one phase of a $73 million Railroad Relocation Demonstration Project, which is 95 percent funded by the federal government. The city, SIU-C and the state will fund the other 5 percent of the project. Other phases of the project include depressing the railroad tracks 30 feet from the SIU-C physical plant through downtown Carbondale and the construction of two overpasses. One of the overpasses is scheduled to be located at U.S. 51 and Pleasant Hill Road and the other will be farther north on U.S. 51.

The Federal Highway Administration allocated $8.7 million for the final design plans on the track depression and on the right-of-way acquisition for the U.S. 51 overpass earlier this month.

Plaza Lounge owners agree to close doors for 20 days

An injunction against the owners of Plaza Lounge for alleged incidents of topless dancing there was suspended after the owners agreed to close the bar for 20 days next month.

After meeting in executive session for an hour Monday night, Carbondale Liquor Control Commission members announced they would drop charges against Plaza Lounge if the owners agreed to close the bar from Feb. 4 to 24.

Commission Secretary Janet Vaught said Vicky Rose, secretary for the Plaza Motel Lounge, Inc., located at 527 E. Main St., and Ralph Parrish, president of the company, accepted the commission's offer of compromise.

The injunction, filed in accordance with an ordinance passed by the city in December of 1978 that banned topless and bottomless dancing, had originally requested that the lounge remain closed for 30 days.

The case had been pending in Jackson County Circuit Court.

The city Liquor Control Commission found Plaza Lounge guilty of liquor code violations on Sept. 4 and suspended its liquor license from Oct. 4 to Nov. 1.

Oil prices increase

NEW YORK (AP) — Iraq, the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait and Qatar on Tuesday followed Saudi Arabia in $2-a-barrel crude oil price increases that left observers surprised and worried that further boosts were on the way.

"This whole thing doesn't seem to make sense," a trader at one large U.S. oil company said of Tuesday's 7 percent to 8 percent increases. "We've gone back into the leapfrogging game again," said another.

The Kuwaiti move to $27.50 was announced by the country's oil minister, Sheikh Ali Khalifa Al Sabah, while the other increases were reported by the official United Arab Emirates news agency and also by industry sources in New York.

As was the case with the 8.3 percent Saudi increase, which came on top of a 33 percent boost last month, the latest increases were retroactive to Jan. 1.

Iraq — the second-largest member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries after Saudi Arabia — Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar provide around 2 percent of U.S. oil needs.

Iraq's price rose to $27.96, the United Arab Emirates went to $30.56, and Qatar's climbed to $29.23.

Gus says the city's worries about topless dancing seem bottomless.

CIPS delays construction of power plant

By Dean Athans
Staff Writer

Central Illinois Public Service Co. announced Tuesday that further construction on one of its power plants near Olney will be deferred until next year.

About half of Newton Unit II, CIPS' $350 million plant, is constructed. It was due to go "on-line" in March of next year but two construction deferrals will delay production of electricity from the plant until December of 1982.

Reg Ankrum, public information supervisor for CIPS, said the delay will cause a $30 million "cost overrun."

Local citizens' groups are angered by the additional construction because they feel the plant should not be built at all.

Southern Counties Action Movement representatives claim the Newton I plant that was finished in 1977 is capable of producing 35 percent more electricity than is needed in the area. SCAM claims that the construction costs for Newton II will be paid for by CIPS' customers but the electricity generated by it will be sold to other states and power companies.

CIPS representatives say the Newton I plant does have a 35 percent surplus but that "sometime after 1982" another plant will be needed.

"Our planning was off," Ankrum said. "But that's because ten years ago, when we started plans for Newton II, statistics showed that customer usage was going to increase at the same pace it had been—75 percent in ten years."

Embargo may damage future of grain market

By Andrew Zinner
Staff Writer

The recent Soviet involvement in Afghanistan has caused a dramatic shift in American foreign policy toward the Soviet Union Part of President Carter's "get tough" stance has included the enforcement of a grain embargo against the Soviets and resulted in the cutoff of shipments of about 17 million tons of grain.

Critics of the move have said that the embargo will cause grain prices to drop and could put a financial squeeze on the American farmer. Walter Wills, professor of agricultural industries and an authority on agricultural economics, was interviewed recently about how the embargo will affect farmers.

Walter Wills

Q. Do you think President Carter's idea for the recent grain embargo was a good idea from an agricultural-economic point of view?

A. It depends upon what a person is really looking at. From the standpoint of what it does to farm income, anytime that you severely restrain, and these are severe limitations (the cutoff of 17 million tons of grain to the Soviets), then there will be an adverse effect on price. What we really get involved with is the impact of the very kind of thing the government has done to lessen the impact on this embargo, and it really comes back to a consideration of national policy on international affairs, which is an entirely different consideration.

Q. How will the farmers be hurt, what with the government trying to subsidize as much as possible, both nationwide and in Southern Illinois?

A. All grain farmers nationwide will be affected in the same way. The government has taken a number of measures to help minimize, at least, the adverse impacts caused by the embargo. There are some things that, looking at it from a long-range viewpoint, should be recognized. First, if the government has added to the reserve some 500 million bushels of corn, then this corn still is in existence, and the fact that the government is going to have it in reserve, it will eventually come back onto the market, and, in the long run, will have an impact on price. Another impact

Bush opposes Ted's wage plan

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Republican presidential hopeful George Bush Tuesday said he opposed Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's calls for a six-month wage and price freeze and for mandatory gasoline rationing.

"They're not necessary," the former CIA chief and U.S. ambassador to the United Nations said on arrival here for a private dinner hosted by Gov. James R. Thompson.

"Wage and price controls have been tried in the past and they have disastrously failed," said Bush.

Islamic nations oust Afghans

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Thirty-four of the world's 41 Islamic nations Tuesday demanded the immediate, unconditional withdrawal of all Soviet troops from Afghanistan and suspended Afghanistan's membership in their organization.

Foreign ministers of the 34 nations plus the Palestine Liberation Organization also urged boycotting the Moscow Olympics, breaking relations with Afghanistan, solidarity with the Afghan Moslem rebels, aid to Afghan refugees and helping Afghans Moslem neighbors withstand any threat to their security.

Draft bill may be hard to get

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will have a hard time getting his standby draft registration proposal through Congress whether or not it includes women, several influential congressmen predict.

Staff aides on the two committees that would take up such legislation question whether any proposal stands a better chance than the registration bill defeated in the House last year.

Olympic boycott may be urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — All Americans, not just athletes may be asked to boycott the 1980 Summer Olympic Games in Moscow under a resolution widely supported in the Senate.

The measure, tying the boycott to the continued presence of Soviet troops in Afghanistan, was expected to win approval of the full Senate Tuesday.

Police link man to two more burglaries

By Leanne Waxman
Staff Writer

Police have linked two additional burglaries to Lee H. Parker, who was arrested last week for possession of stolen property in connection with burglaries at Lewis Park Apartments. They have estimated the total value of recovered stolen property at $4,000 to $5,000.

Stereo speakers belonging to Diane Eschner, a Lewis Park resident, were recovered by Carbondale detectives at a St. Louis pawn shop Monday. Silverware taken from a Makanda residence earlier this month was also recovered at Sam Light's Pawn Shop, 2601 Olive St., St. Louis. Clothing and jewelry taken in a Logan Street burglary last month were recovered and linked to Parker, Carbondale Detective William Kilquist said.

Kilquist said police are linking Parker to the burglaries because they discovered stolen items had been pawned by Parker at Pan-American Imports in Carbondale. Property recovered from two Cambria residences, where Parker had apparently asked acquaintances to store some of his belongings, also linked him to other burglaries.

A preliminary hearing has been set for Feb. 8 in Williamson County Circuit Court. Bond has been set at $30,000 but the Illinois Department of Corrections is blocking Parker's release because the charge brought against him is a parole violation. He was convicted of murder in 1964 and paroled last October, according to an Illinois Department of Corrections official.

If Parker makes bond, he will be released to the Illinois Department of Corrections, Williamson County State's Attorney Charles Granati said. Parker was hired as a groundskeeper by Lewis Park in October. Formal charges have not yet been filed, Jackson County Assistant States Attorney Guice Strong said.

To date, five burglaries have been linked to Parker and police believe he will be linked to other burglaries as the investigation continues. Kilquist said the investigation will end late next week.

Police are investigating the possibility that Parker was assisted in the burglaries, Kilquist said.

"We're working on the possibility that these burglaries were not committed by a single man but possibly a group," Kilquist said.

Property was also recovered from a Hester Street burglary that occurred last month, where an estimated $1,800 of camera and stereo equipment and clothing was taken.

Recovered stolen property taken from the Lewis Park business office on Dec. 11 was also connected to Parker, police said.

"There is still a lot of property to be recovered," Kilquist said.

The recovery rate for stolen property taken in burglaries and handled by Carbondale Police is 3 percent, Carbondale Police Lt. Terry Murhy said.

Police have ruled out Parker's involvement in last Wednesday's Lewis Park burglary, where about $1,000 in stereo equipment was taken, because the method of entry for the burglary does not jive with methods of entry for the other burglaries, Murphy said.

To the five burglaries police have linked Parker, entry was "basically not forced," Kilquist said.

Court upholds blind primaries for Illinois

By Jeff Smyth
Staff Writer

The Illinois Supreme Court has voted to uphold the Cook County Circuit Court decision that states a candidate running for delegate on the Republican ballot cannot list his presidential choice on the March 18 ballot.

The blind primary bill, which was signed by the governor last June, was challenged by the campaign organizations of Ronald Reagan, Robert Dole and Philip Crane in the Cook County Circuit Court on the basis that voters should have a right to know the presidential preference of the delegates they are voting for. The court ruled against the appellants and an appeal was made by State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Schaumburg, to the state Supreme Court which upheld the lower court's ruling.

Totten said he was disappointed with the courts ruling, but not surprised. He said that he felt a blind primary takes away from the voters their only chance to choose who the Republican presidential nominee will be.

Totten said the bill was engineered by former Texas Gov. John Connally's supporters to help Connally gain a large number of Illinois delegate votes by making Illinois Gov. Thompson his running mate.

City Council may create new department

By Mary Harmon
Staff Writer

An ordinance establishing a separate department for water and sewers and a referendum to create a forest preserve district were among the items considered by the Carbondale City Council this week.

City Manager Carroll Fry requested that the council approve an ordinance that would establish a Department of Water and Sewage Services.

The city's water and sewage services are currently maintained with the Department of Public Works, but the department has been "spread too thin," Fry wrote in a memo to council members outlining his proposal.

The Railroad Relocation Project has created a greater work load for the present supervisor of public works, and has not allowed enough time for the necessary supervision of water and sewer needs, Fry stated.

A "marked lack of coordination" and the budget demands of the divisions reflect the lack of time in the department, Fry added.

The council will vote on the ordinance to approve the reorganization proposal at its Feb. 7 meeting.

Under new business placed before the council for consideration Mayor Hans Fischer suggested the possibility of a public referendum for the formation of a forest preserve area.

In other business considered by the council for formal vote next week was the city's budget ceiling proposal for the fiscal year 1981.

Help challenge drinking law

On Jan. 1, I was told to remove myself, until I turn 21, from my favorite barstool, where I enjoyed listening to the music and socializing.

Chicago first raised their age for carry-outs to 21 claiming that this would prevent younger high school students from acquiring alcohol. Statistical evidence was also presented showing a correlation between a lower drinking age and an increase in traffic accidents among those under 21. Naturally, alcohol had to be the culprit, not the increased usage of marijuana or Quaaludes.

Without even waiting for results, the momentum was used to up the age to 21 for consumption within drinking establishment also. Neighboring communities were afraid of becoming party havens, so drinking laws changed, all the dominoes fell to Springfield.

House Bill 21, which barely passed by a simple majority, not only raised the drinking age to 21, but also carried a rider which deprives home rule units of their previous control.

According to Art 7, Sec. 6, Subpart g of the Illinois Constitution, this should only be achieved by three fifths of each house. There has been considerable legal controversy over whether the bill was in fact properly passed.

Home rule communities and college towns, such as DeKalb, Champaign and Carbondale, are not likely to be places where a great number of 19- and 20-year-old college students come into much contact with the local high school students. These are communities where drinking and driving are not the problem of other places. Bars are within walking distance, buses are accessible and most of the drinking takes place in the residence halls, fraternities and sororities.

At 19 years old, I am considered an adult in every other respect. I am allowed to hold a full-time job, pay taxes elect who will govern society, drive a car, get married, be prosecuted as an adult and die for my country, yet I may not sit in a restaurant, tavern or disco and order a glass of beer or wine.

Many adults claim people my age are apathetic because we hardly objected to HB 21 before it became law. I only noticed minimal coverage of the issue by the media. I can only speculate that this is because no one with clout was affected, no editor or reporter was directly affected and no one with enough money to please advertisers was affected.

We need your help to show that we are not apathetic and care about our rights.

Register to vote. Affect society, it affects you. Legislators want and need our vote when we stand together.

Write your legislators. Ask them to introduce legislation allowing 19 and 20 year olds to drink inside drinking establishments, if the community permits. This is a compromise at least.

Students at Northern Illinois University are leading a legal challenge regarding the constitutionality of HB21. We need both signatures and funds. Endorsements can be sent to the Student Association or the Residence Hall Association at NIU, DeKalb, 60115.

The City of DeKalb had considered a court battle, but Mayor Judy King backed away, even though she thinks we have a chance. More than 40 percent of her constituents are students. Where does that show you her interests lie? — Gery Silver, Residence Hall Association, NIU

Youth committed to their country

On November 21 myself and leaders representing six other major youth groups met with Ali Agah the Iranian Charge D'Affaires at the Iranian Embassy. We demanded immediate release of the hostages being held by students in Iran on behalf of American students and young people.

American youth are just as committed to their country as those radical Iranians who have engaged in violence against the United States are to theirs. Many of the demonstrations in this country have been organized by members of our organizations. There has been an outpouring of patriotism by American college students over the last few weeks. No longer are young people protesting our nations strengths, but deploring its weaknesses. We will continue to mobilize young people in any constructive manner.

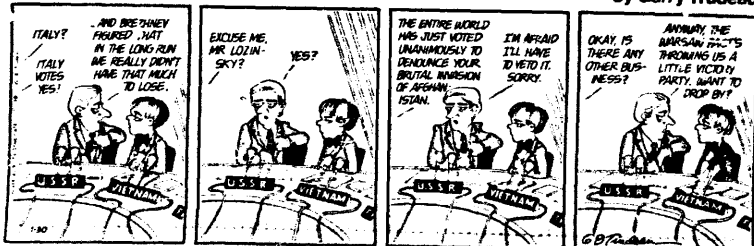

Let it be clear that any efforts by groups such as USSA or ACLU that encourage or defend potentially inflammatory gatherings by Iranian students who support the embassy takeover or that challenge the government's attempt to deport illegal Iranian aliens, do not have the support of any significant portion of American students.

The voice of American students and other young people cries out for a strong response to the Iranian crisis — a response which includes the deportation of those who have waived their right to enjoy the benefits of freedom they find in America, but which are absent in their homeland. — Robert C. Heckman, executive director, Young Americans for Freedom

Survey to probe Greek views

In the next few weeks students from Thompson Point, East Campus and off-campus housing will be interviewed by members of social Greek Letter organizations to collect their perceptions and ideas of fraternities and sororities on the SIU-C campus.

The survey was prepared by the Inter-fraternity Council and revisions have taken over a semester to avoid any invasion of privacy of the students interviewed.

Voluntary participation is asked of the students who will be interviewed and responses will be held in confidence.

The survey will be conducted by personal interviews so that those students interviewed can ask questions and get straight up-front answers. This will hopefully eliminate most or some of the rumors about social Greek Letter organizations, thus providing for more open communications between Greeks and other students.

The Greeks of SIU-C are seriously striving for better relations between themselves and students and other student organizations.

The social Greek Letter organizations hope the survey will help them aid the campus in all means possible. — Mike Aasman, IFC Public Relations

Dialogue with Russians broken

The Korean and Vietnam wars should convince the average man that our political and military leaders are not infallible.

Student reaction to the Vietnam war extricated this country from a military quagmire, before it augmented to dimensions that would have incited a confrontation with China.

All students must realize from the start, that the invasion of Afghanistan and the very rapid deterioration of detente involve them directly. Today's students would be tomorrow's soldiers.

The new, get-tough 'Carter Doctrine' has put the Soviet Union on notice. Military movement by the Soviets into Pakistan, Turkey or western Europe would most certainly cause the U.S. to declare a war.

Russian movements into Iran or Yugoslavia, would dangerously risk the same response. Our country's actions will now be reactions to Soviet military movements.

During 1979 SALT II was having great difficulty gaining ratification by the senate. In order to pass the treaty that he had signed, President Carter began making concessions to the senate. The first was the promise of increased military spending. The last was convincing west European NATO nations to accept long-range nuclear weapons capable of hitting deep within Russia, to be installed during the next three years.

To the Soviets, SALT II is now a joke. In order for future strategic arms limitation talks to guarantee Soviet security, they would have to include each NATO nation accepting the long-range missiles.

What was the American reaction to placement of nuclear missiles in Cuba? The Soviets took too much advantage of the U.S. at SALT II, and now the U.S. has put the Russians into an intolerable situation.

The Russians spoke out vigorously against the NATO decision, before and after its passage. Dialogue with the Russians has since broken down. The Soviets are now resorting to actions.

The best political course that the U.S. could now take, is to re-establish a dialogue with the Soviets. SALT II should be rejected by the U.S. senate, and renegotiated with the Russians. The NATO decision for new missiles should be rescinded, in exchange for Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan, establishment of quadripart elections there and troop reductions in eastern Europe.

With a little luck and a lot of diplomacy, the U.S. may still compete in the 1980 Moscow Olympics. — James Moruzzi, Graduate Student, Zoology Taxing the poor to feed the rich?

"In an effort to end what he calls 'confusion at the checkout lanes,' Rep. Ralph Dunn, R-DuQuoin, has introduced a bill that would increase state sales tax on food and medicine to 4.5 cents on the dollar."

That was the first paragraph of a story that appeared in the DE on Friday, Jan. 25. Maybe I'm just jumping the gun, but I can't see Dunn wanting to raise the tax to 4.5 percent only to end 'confusion at the checkout lanes.'

Why? He's one of our state legislators who voted against abolishing the state tax on food and medicine.

He got his way—almost. The tax was lowered from 5 percent to 4 percent on food and medicines, but kept at 5 percent for general merchandise (clothes, etc.). He did lose out a little, but now he wants to get the tax set at 4.5 percent for all items—food and non-food.

That means if we buy a dollars worth of merchandise, we get taxed at 4.5 percent. But since the Department of Treasury has yet to print half pennies, the actual tax would come out to 5 percent—back to where we started.

A tax cut, as such, is supposed to be beneficial to all taxpayers, but this one, once again, will be helping the rich who spend a majority of their money on general merchandise.

True the .5 percent increase on food and medicine would be offset by the .5 percent decrease on general merchandise. But for the family who spends a majority of their paycheck on food, this increase will hurt.

As the saying goes, "it is the poor to feed the rich," or is it... — Joseph Alonso, Junior, Recreation

Prine to appear at Shryock

John Prine, a Chicago area folk-rocker, will appear in concert at 8 p.m. Feb. 9, in Shryock Auditorium. Appearing with Prine will be singer-songwriter Thom Bishop. The concert is sponsored by the Student Programming Consorts Committee.

Tickets for the show will go on sale at 8 a.m. Tuesday in the Student Center Ticket Office. John Scott, Consorts Committee chairman, emphasized that all tickets will be sold on a "first come, first served" basis. Scott also said no lists for positions in ticket lines will be honored before Tuesday.

Prine, who last appeared at Shryock in October of 1977, has released two albums since then. The first, 1978's "Bruised Orange," was selected as one of the ten best albums of the year by "Time" magazine.

With "Pink Cadillac," the Maywood native tried to achieve a more basic sound than he has explored in the past. Recorded in Memphis' famed Sam Phillips Studios, the album was put together with production assistance from Sam, Jerry and Knox Phillips and reflects an almost "rockabilly" sound.

Keep a contract to lose weight

By Jennell Olson
Staff Writer

"I will eat three meals for the next week. The first meal will be at 8 a.m. The second meal will be at noon. The third meal will be at 5 p.m. I will eat two snacks. The first snack will be at 3 p.m. and the second at 10 p.m." Signed, a determined dieter.

Writing a contract and adhering to its terms was one of the suggestions offered by Tricia Grandis, a senior in food and nutrition, when she lectured on "Sensible Weight Reduction" in the Student Center last week.

Launching the semester's Forum 30 Plus series sponsored by the Student Programming Lectures Committee, Grandis explained a behavior modification approach to losing weight.

In addition to writing a contract, Grandis suggested keeping a food diary of what was eaten, how much, when, where, with whom and the time spent eating.

"Most people spend about 15 minutes eating a meal when they should be spending 30," Grandis said. "It's also important to note what mood you were in when you ate. Loneliness and depression often trigger people to eat."

Grandis said dieters should be aware of their eating patterns in order to determine what behavior should be changed. For example, if you notice that most of your eating is done during the time spent studying, you should try to quit eating during those hours.

"If you feel really hungry, you should wait at least 15 minutes before eating anything because hunger pains usually last 10 or 15 minutes, and you're apt to overeat if you don't wait until they subside," said Grandis, who admitted she has never had a weight problem. To calculate how much you should weigh, Grandis said that women who are five feet tall should weigh 100 pounds. For every additional inch, add five pounds.

Grandis, who hopes to work for a community health program when she graduates, also gave tips on how to choose a diet from the multitude of "fad diets" saturating the market. If it includes some of the foods you like, if you will be eating a variety of foods and if you can stay on it for three to six months without endangering your health, it will probably be a beneficial diet.

Other tips: Don't talk about food, never go to the grocery store when you are hungry, keep track of calories, shop by a list and, most importantly, take time to think about what you are eating and enjoy it.

SPC Video wants students with film production interest

By Charity Gould
Staff Writer

Student Programming Council Video Chairperson Phil Ranstrom is looking for students interested in film production.

Ranstrom said SPC Video has invested in new equipment for this semester and plans to produce as many student projects as possible. Two student productions have already been scheduled for screening this semester.

"Our unique feature is that our productions are done by students," said Ranstrom, a senior in English and radio-television. "We have $15,000 in new video equipment this semester," he said.

A student production already in the works is "Running Conversation with James Paul," which involves an SIU-C assistant professor of English who recites poetry while running.

"In the Kitchen with Doris," a story about a male transvestite who enjoys cooking, is another student production that will be shown this semester.

SPC Video projects have been shown in the Student Center for about four years, Ranstrom said. The shows usually last an hour and run Monday through Thursday

Midler's acting saves 'Rose'

By Paula Walker
Features Editor

Only an incredibly magnetic performer could make a movie with a cliché story line, mundane camera work, shallow characters, and often unintelligible dialogue worth seeing.

Bette Midler's performance as "The Rose" keeps the saga of a late '60s rock star from failing completely. Midler, who was a singer in New York during that era, gives a dynamic, almost totally believable performance.

The believability of her character is hindered by the

Frederic Forrest and Bette Midler star in "The Rose," a tragic success story script, which seldom allows her to break out of the Hollywood stereotype of a star. Her character is further hindered by two poorly-acted scenes in the beginning of the film.

The movie begins with Rose's entourage departing from an airplane marked "The Rose, '69 Tour." Rose stumbles down the ladder as she is getting off, and the fall is obviously faked. Next comes a concert scene that makes the audience painfully aware Midler is acting the part of a performer.

Several hundred extras were hired for the first concert, and the crowd shots look like shots of extras. They are dressed in '70s garb and look pretty unenthusiastic. The remaining concert scenes come off as much more convincing, probably because Midler had a real audience.

She gave an excellent performance in the second concert scene, producing a moving rendition of "When a Man Loves a Woman." Several thousand people paid their way into the two concerts this scene was taken from.

The most dramatic concert scene was the final one, shot at Long Beach Stadium. It's the best scene because over 10,000 real fans demonstrated genuine enthusiasm and because the change of location forced the camera people to come up with some different angles. The same old straight-on shots of Midler were getting rather boring.

Frederic Forrest shows a lot of talent in his role as Rose's boyfriend, but it's wasted on a character which is never allowed to develop fully. He comes from nowhere and disappears as inexplicably. We know he is a Texan and an Army deserter, and that's about all. He is often shown watching Rose from behind the scenes, clapping passionately with a drooling grin plastered on his face.

Alan Bates, who plays Rose's manager, could have made a sizable contribution, but his British accent often made him impossible to understand. In one scene, Rose awakens during a flight and bursts into tears, wailing about never knowing where she is. Bates turns to Forrest and says gravely, "Welcome to rock and roll." If all his lines were as corny as that one, maybe it was best that he be unintelligible.

Record sales in Carbondale do not reflect national trends

By Craig DeVrieze
Staff Writer

Late releases by Led Zeppelin, Fleetwood Mac and the Eagles may have been three of the most highly anticipated albums of 1979, but none of them finished near the top of the year-end sales charts. Instead those charts were dominated by names very familiar to AM playlists.

Billboard magazine's list of the year's best-selling records was headed by Billy Joel's "52nd Street," followed by the Bee Gees' "Spirits Having Flown." Donna Summer, AM radio's hottest item, cracked the Top Ten twice. Also in the Top Ten were Supertramp, the Doobie Brothers, Styx, Rod Stewart and newcomers The Cars and Blondie.

The only thing best seller lists at three Carbondale record stores had in common was that they had very little in common with the national charts.

Only The Record Bar came close, listing albums by Styx, Supertramp, Donna Summer and the Bee Gees among its Top Ten. That list was topped by Kenny Rogers. Also named were Charlie Daniels, the Blues Brothers, Rickie Lee Jones, Bad Company and Led Zeppelin.

Side One Records cited records by the Cars and Blondie among its top sellers and said releases by Led Zeppelin, Fleetwood Mac and the Eagles also finished high.

At Plaza Records, Blondie, Supertramp and the Doobie Brothers albums sold well. Also on that list were new recordings by Michael Jackson, Earth, Wind and Fire, Talking Heads, Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers, Wrappers, Delight, The Eagles and Led Zeppelin.

Steve Koteff, manager of Plaza, attributes the difference in national sales and Carbondale sales to the diversity of the town's population.

"Half the time, we're not representative of the rest of the country because of the University," he said, adding that his store doesn't follow national trends "because we're a college-oriented store."

In that respect, Koteff feels he has to cater to a variety of tastes. He finds that an album is most successful when it falls between two categories of tastes.

"Any time an album appeals to soul people and rock people it's going to be big," he said.

Koteff said his store had a good year in 1979 and anticipates record sales picking up in 1980, particularly in Carbondale. Looking at the new drinking law he said, "A lot of people are going to be staying home and listening to music."

Health workshop is planned

By Jennif Olson
Staff Writer

For students interested in learning about their bodies and how to keep them healthy, the Health Activation Program of the Student Wellness Resource Center is sponsoring a four-week workshop titled "Where's My Liver?"

The workshops will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. on four consecutive Tuesdays beginning Feb. 12. Interested persons should register in advance.

"We don't want to make it too technical," said John Woodall, a graduate assistant in the Health Activation Program and organizer of the workshops. "We're trying to promote positive wellness concepts students can use to improve their health."

The first workshop will focus on colds and respiratory problems. Woodall said he will explain how and why someone gets sick as well as when it is necessary to visit the Health Service.

"If a student understands his system and what goes wrong when he gets a cold, he'll be better able to protect himself from getting one," Woodall said.

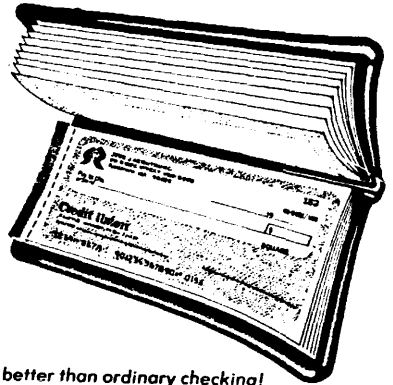

The second workshop will be on sexual health. Pelvic exams, venereal disease and how to lessen the chances of getting infections will be some of the topics covered.

Gastro-intestinal disorders such as colitis, a swelling of the large intestine, constipation, diarrhea and stomachaches will be topics of the third workshop. As in the other workshops, Woodall said he will explain what goes wrong, why and how to prevent it.

The final workshop will be a general overview of how to stay healthy.

New Morris Library Circulation Policies.

Effective February 1, 1980

Grace Period for Overdue Library Materials

January 28-31, 1980

Following a period of extensive study and review, new circulation policies for Morris Library have been written. These policies, which incorporate compromises based upon recommendations from both faculty and student constituency groups on campus, were officially approved by Acting President Lesar on December 3, 1979.

The new policies will become effective on February 1, 1980. Preparatory to their implementation, there will be a GRACE PERIOD from Monday through Thursday, January 28-31, 1980. During this period overdue library materials may be returned without payment of fines. The no-fine grace period applies to all SIU-C students, faculty, civil service and administrative/professional staff, and courtesy card holders.

THE FOLLOWING LIBRARY MATERIALS ARE NOT INCLUDED IN THE GRACE PERIOD:

- Recalled Items
- Reserve Room Items
- Items charged out overnight only or by special permission
- Materials from the SIU-C Law Library or Learning Resource Service

All overdue materials not returned by 12 midnight, January 31, 1980, will remain subject to overdue charges in line with the new circulation policies. These policies appear in the January 24, 1980, issue of the Daily Egyptian, and printed copies are also available in Morris Library.

Thanks and appreciation are expressed to representatives from constituency groups, faculty members, students, the Library Affairs Advisory Committee, the ad hoc Morris Library Circulation Policies Committee, and members of the University administration who have contributed to these policy changes.

Good performance makes 'The Rose' worthwhile to see

Vilmos Zsigmond, director of photography, who has "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" to his credit, didn't seem to want to put much time into this film. The movie was shot in 10 weeks and looks it. The crowd and concert shots are stagnant and the outside of the plane is shown at least five times.

Several sub-plots are slopped together to give the movie the sex and drug scenes that have to exist in a trite film about a performer. Rose tells Forrest she once took on a whole football team, and the football field is brought into the picture twice after that.

Lesbianism is even brought into the picture, in a totally far-fetched scene between Rose and a former lover. Midler tells Sandra McCabe that she has finally found a real man. McCabe says "I had one once," then follows it up with "I want what you have." For some unfathomable reason, that comment brings on a kissing scene.

Almost as unrealistic as that scene is one in which Rose asks for "reds" from another performer while she is on stage in a bar. Equally unconvincing is a shot of three groupies running a marijuana cigarette assembly line backstage.

Without Midler, who has acted on stage before but never in films, this movie would have been a total bore.

Grain embargo analyzed

of this embargo is that we had worked very hard over a long period of time to develop the Russian market, and we're not talking about losing the market for a year, but rather losing it for a number of years. In addition to this, if the embargo is effective, and Russia is not able to get grain from the U.S., then the Russians would not be able to feed their livestock, and this would probably mean they would be forced to liquidate some of their livestock herds. If you liquidate the herds, it will take several years to build them back up. Third, this is the fourth time in less than a decade that we have had an embargo. This would probably mean that countries would be more aware that the United States is only a dependable source of part of their agricultural products. There are other sources of grain that will be developed in Europe and the Soviet Union.

Q. Would it be as easy to strike up a deal with the Chinese as it was with the Russians, and, if so, do the Chinese need as much grain as the Russians do?

A. I saw where someone from the University of Illinois said that if the Chinese should decide that they were going to increase their need for livestock production, then they would need the grain, but so far they have given no indication that this is one of their high-priority items. The other point to keep in mind when talking about the great Chinese market is that they have to have the money first. Also, a deal with the Chinese would not happen overnight, but would take about 10 years. There must also be facilities to store all this grain.

Q. Is it right for the United States to use food as a weapon?

A. When you talk about using food as a weapon, it is something that we have, whether or not this is unfair from a humanitarian standpoint. But maybe it's the only weapon we have.

Q. It seems that Carter has decided to use the American farmer as a soldier in this war. How do you think farmers feel about this?

A. Farmers have always had mixed emotions about trading with the Russians, anyway. Our farmers as a whole are a conservative group, and may be the last bastion of capitalism in the United States. They get really difficult because on the one hand, they want to back this effort of our government, and on the whole the farmers' approach has been very good, and then they turn right around and say that they do believe in a certain amount of freedom, but it's freedom for everybody but us. The farmers are not quite sure that that's the way to fight wars. If you're going to fight a war, it ought to involve more than one sector of the economy. There is one other implication of this embargo that we should be aware of, too, and that is, we had a large carryover of corn before the 1979 harvest.

Lady gymnasts 'double' at Chicago

By Rick Klatt
Staff Writer

The Lady Salukis competed in two meets last weekend, taking first place in one and fifth place in the other. Oh, it may say on the schedule that they were at Chicago for the Windy City Invitational, but nevertheless, they did compete in two meets.

SIU took first place in the warmups and fifth in the real thing. "During our warmups we had opposing coaches and players watching us," Coach Herb Vogel said, "and we were having an excellent workout. The only problem was that, quite possibly, we were too good in the workouts. We fell apart in the meet."

The Salukis had the good warmup even though the equipment for the meet was not set up when they arrived early Friday afternoon.

And, if not having equipment ready for the practice wasn't bad enough, the Salukis were seeded into a lower bracket of competition, limiting SIU's chances for a good showing.

"In gymnastics, the scores escalate from person to person," Vogel explained. "This means that a girl of so-so ability can score higher than normal if she follows someone who scores well. The judges can't be blamed, it's a human process. "So, if we had followed one of the higher-ranked teams," Vogel added, "our score could very well have been near the 140.00s."

Instead, SIU finished with 128.75, just 15 behind Nebraska. No. 1 ranked Louisville took the team championship with 134.05. Minnesota was second, 132.45, and Illinois third, 130.55.

"If we could have hit 50 percent of our routines, we would have won the thing handsly," the 17-year coach said.

In hitting less than nine percent, two of 24, the veteran coach felt the Salukis gave away 12 points in performance errors. He added that the 128.75 score is 14 points better than the Salukis' last meet, Dec. 15 at Iowa State.

Individually, freshman Lori Erickson took top honors among Salukis in the all around with a score of 32.60, vaulting, 8.5, and uneven bars, 8.25. Erickson also was second in the floor exercise and third in the balance beam.

Pam Harrington was second to Erickson in the all around, 32.50, but first in the floor exercise, 8.45, and second beam, 8.35.

Val Painton, last year's lone Saluki national qualifier, was third in the all around.

"The escalation process hurt us real bad," Vogel said. "Val would have had a 9.0 in the beam if she was in a later round. Much the same could be said for a few of our other scores."

Louisville's Julie Bender entered the meet as the No. 1 all rounder in the nation and defended the title, edging Mimi Eberle 34.80-34.45.

Erickson's all-around score tied her with Louisville's Cindy LaFountain for sixth place in the invitational. Harrington placed 10th, Painton 26th, Pam Conklin (30.30), 34th, and captain Maureen Hennessey (30.25), 35th.

"What we need is competition," Vogel said. "If we can get confident in our ability, there is some light in the end of the tunnel."

"I don't show it as much," Gottfried added, "but things bother me just as much as they do that guy who's up there yelling."

pointing 5-12 record. "Our team is young, and next year when two starters like Wayne and I are gone, there will be some holes to fill in," Smith said. "But the program is solid. The fans just need to get behind the team a little more."

"When I look back on the past for years though, we've had some great support," he added.

New attitude a boost for Theobald

By Dave Kane
Staff Writer

Things couldn't have looked much better for Rick Theobald as he prepared for the 1978-79 season on the Saluki diving team. As a freshman, he made the NCAA championships and was expected to do even bigger things as a sophomore.

But fate in the form of a broken leg stepped in before Theobald had a chance to achieve any of those big things. Ironically, the injury's benefits almost outweighed the disadvantages, according to Theobald.

"It was a time to get my attitude together," Theobald said. "I watched all my friends practicing and had to decide if I was going to do all that work. I had three months to think about it, and I even considered quitting school."

"But Julian Krug (former Saluki diving coach) came up to the hospital during the time I was there and really inspired me and kept me goal oriented. All he kept saying was how well I could do in the AAU's."

As it turned out, Theobald heeded Krug's advice and recovered in time to place 14th in the AAU National Meet at the end of the season. Now a junior, he has become SIU's top diver in the one- and three-meter events. Among his top performances this season have been wins over Carlos Giuron, a member of the Mexican National Team and an Olympic finalist in 1976; and last week's win in one-meter competition against Southern Methodist's Rick Tennant, an NCAA finalist last season.

Coming back from any injury is an accomplishment, and Theobald was no exception. But he said a newly-found attitude following the injury was more important.

"Now I feel like diving is the highest expression of myself," Theobald said. "It's a way of me working toward something that doesn't have anything to do with anyone else. It didn't used to be that way. I'd always fret if I was diving badly, but now if I am, I just tell myself there'll be better days."

Diving Coach Denny Golden agrees that Theobald's recent performances show a change in attitude and a good chance for those better days ahead.

"Beating Tennant was really great for Rick," Golden said, "and his performance in Mexico also was outstanding. I think it's given him a newly found confidence," and the NCAA's aren't that far away."

Although Theobald holds an individualistic attitude toward his labors for the Salukis, he points out that he and the other divers aren't a separate fraternity from the swimmers.

"We have a really close team," he said.

First home meet awaits gymnasts

By Ed Dougherty
Staff Writer

The advantage of being the home team finally will be awarded to Bill Meade and his men's gymnastics team Thursday night, when the Salukis will take on Louisiana State after the men's basketball team's game against Bradley.

Meade said the home meet might be the key to getting his team, which has lost three consecutive meets, back on track.

"We should be recovered from our western trip by now," Meade said. "The presence of a home crowd should improve our performance."

The home crowd will

Applications now being taken for Saluki bat girls

The SIU baseball season is right around the corner, and the Salukis need some dugout assistance. For the fourth season in a row, the baseball team will employ the use of bat girls to help during games with equipment and hospitality.

In the past, the pom-pom squad doubled as bat girls, but this season, the 10 positions will be available to any full-time student who can attend at least half of the Salukis' home games and has a knowledge of the sport.

definitely have an effect on the gymnastics team, but will it be positive or negative? According to two performing freshmen, it could go either way.

"I'm really looking forward to performing in front of a home crowd," said freshman all-arounder Dave Hoffman. "But I don't think it will be much of an advantage for me. It probably will be a little harder because I'll be trying to impress my friends."

Freshman all-arounder Jim Muenz is looking forward to his first home meet.

"I want to be a lot more consistent than I have been in the past," Muenz said. "I want to do well so I can impress my friends."

Meade said that LSU, which is ranked 17th in the nation, "has a good team. But that doesn't mean we aren't capable of winning."

Lady cagers face difficult trip

By David Kane
Staff Writer

Although Coach Cindy Scott might feel the most difficult portion of the Lady Salukis' basketball schedule may be over, the team faces a two-day road trip this weekend.

Friday night, SIU will be in Terre Haute, Ind. to face Indiana State. The Sycamores, 8-9 this season, have won four of their last five games and are coming off a 71-69 win over Central Michigan.

The Lady Salukis then will travel north Saturday to play Purdue. The Boilermakers are at the bottom of the Big Ten Conference standings. Indiana, a team the Salukis defeated, 56-52, Saturday night, recently handed Purdue a 54-45 setback.

SIU and Indiana State have one thing in common—a leading scorer at point guard. The Sycamores' Shelly Newell carries a 14.5 points per game average, while Connie Erickson is averaging 9.6 as a Saluki. Some of the scoring burden has been taken off Erickson, however, since Scott has instituted a new offense that relies on more offense from the inside. Forward Mary Boyes topped SIU scorers in the win over Indiana with 14.

Other starters averaging in double figures for the Sycamores are sophomore forward Judy Ellner (13.2) and junior forward Dru Cox (10). Although Newell is a key point producer for SIU at point guard, it appears the Lady Salukis also will have to contain Ellner and Cox on the front line.

Coached by Edith Godoski, the Sycamores' only loss in their last five games came against Illinois in overtime. Other recent wins included a 71-62 victory over DePaul and a 71-32 win over Ohio State. In her ninth year, Godoski holds a 114-51 lifetime record.

Purdue, meanwhile, is 2-10 and on a four-game loss string. Led by junior forward Laura Newcomb with a 15.4 per game average, Purdue is shooting just 37 percent from the field and is averaging over 25 turnovers a game. The 1-3-1 trap defense SIU employed against Indiana could force the Boilermakers into plenty of mistakes.

Saluki cager Barry Smith finds new home in spotlight

By Mark Pabich
Staff Writer

For three seasons, Barry Smith has played in the shadow of his Saluki teammates on the basketball court. Gary Wilson, Milt Huggins and Wayne Abrams have commanded the limelight, while Smith has been lucky to have a few rays cast upon him.

No longer, however. The spotlight now is on the SIU senior, who leads the Salukis in scoring and minutes played this year.

Opposing coaches who used to call Smith a possible scoring threat no longer use the word possible. Fans who once knew Smith as simply one of the starting five now refer to him as a team leader.

Things concerning Smith have changed considerably since he was recruited from nearby Eldorado High School, and no one is more aware of the change than Smith himself.

"When I first came to Southern and became a starter, I didn't consider myself a scorer," Smith said. "I was able to do other things well that kept me in the lineup."

"Now, however, I guess I have to consider myself a scorer. The team needs any scoring effort I can give."

Smith has had some excellent efforts so far this season. Besides his 28-point performance against Tulsa last Saturday, Smith pumped in a career-high 35 points in a game with Drake earlier this season.

Despite the fine season he is having, Smith is quick to point out his main goal is to help SIU to a strong finish.

"Sure, I'm happy I'm personally having a good year, but I don't want to have to think about it," Smith said. "I'd rather concentrate on the team winning."

"We've had to struggle at times this year and that's not something the players and coaching staff are used to," he continued. "I honestly believe we can beat any team in the Valley."

Another change about the Salukis' co-captain is his attitude toward professional basketball.

"I've had a consistent career at SIU, but up until this season I didn't think I could play pro ball," Smith said. "If an offer came by to try out for a team, however, I would take the chance now. You never know until you try."

Smith's chances for pro scouts to see him have increased due to the presence of Abrams, SIU's other co-captain. Smith said all the publicity Abrams receives doesn't create any rivalries between the two stars.

"Wayne and I are good friends and roommates on the road," he said. "We're out there to win, and when you play well, the rest will take care of itself. People will notice you individually, no matter who you play with."

"Sure there are times when I've felt I might've been overlooked, but if a great player like Wayne is getting the attention, it doesn't feel as bad," he said.

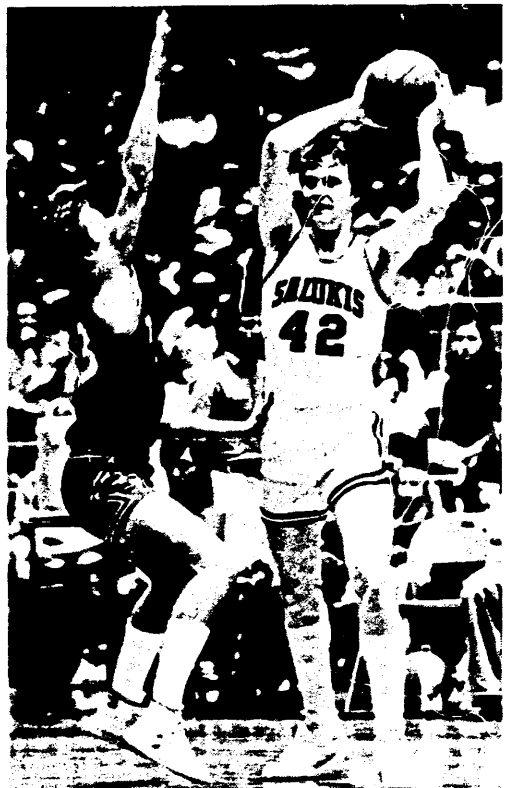

Smith said he isn't worried about being forgotten or lost in the SIU basketball past when he finishes his career, which seems unlikely for someone who later this season will become one of the Salukis' elite 1,000-point scorers. He said coming from the Southern Illinois area has helped him.

"When I was little, I used to come watch Greg Sterrick and SIU play, and they were like heroes to me," Smith said. "The fans really got behind the team and everyone knew all about the players. They still talk about the past."

"Who knows, maybe I'm a hero to some local kid who might just be all thrilled about coming to SIU in the future like I was when I was little," he added.

Smith said he sees positive things for this season and the future of SIU basketball, despite the Salukis' disappearance.

First-place Braves boast speed, size

By Mark Pabich
Staff Writer

Saluki basketball Head Coach Joe Gottfried knows the Bradley Braves are a good basketball team simply by looking at their record. He found out firsthand Monday night that the Braves are strong, as he was in Peoria watching them defeat West Texas State, 84-79.

The Braves come to the Arena Thursday at 7:35 p.m., and Gottfried said his team can expect tough competition from the Missouri Valley's leader.

"They are the best team we've seen in the Valley," Gottfried said. "Awesome is a pretty good word to describe some of their players."

Sophomore forward sensation Mitchell "J.J." Anderson is one of those players. Anderson was voted the MVC's top newcomer last season, and is the guiding force behind Bradley's offensive attack, averaging 19.4 points per game.

Gottfried said Anderson is a definite All-American player. "He can move inside and outside," he said. "He's a very physical player who can lead the fast break. One of our main concerns besides stopping Anderson from scoring will be to prevent the fast break."

Gottfried said the Salukis' defensive performance against Tulsa would help them control Bradley from running.

"Scott Russ will play a big role in helping to stop Bradley on the fast break," Gottfried said, "but that's just one aspect we'll need to look out for."

"Besides running with the ball, they are capable of running a slower, more patient game," Gottfried said. "Then, we have to look out for their center, Don Reese."

Reese is averaging 12 points per game in Valley play and is a tough rebounder, according to Gottfried. Reese pulled down 14 offensive rebounds against West Texas State.

"Compton Hinds once again could be a big factor in stopping the pass from reaching the middle and Reese," Gottfried said. "Reese will need to have pressure on him when he's on defense, too."

"Overall, Bradley is strong at every position," Gottfried said. "We're going to have to have good performances from each one of our starters, and especially the bench. Our bench was one of the keys to the win over Tulsa."

Gottfried said one advantage Bradley has had early this season has been playing at home, something the Salukis haven't enjoyed as frequently.

"They're playing extremely well right now, with a lot of confidence. The home crowd can make a big difference," Gottfried said. "Maybe the fact they're in first place and must keep their position will help us. They'll have to face us before our home crowd and because of that, the pressure is off our club."

After the game against Bradley, the Salukis will continue their homestand Saturday against Indiana State, last season's NCAA runner-up, next Thursday against Drake, which boasts one of college basketball's top scorers in Lewis Lloyd.

progress of Edward Thomas."

Many have been puzzled over the play of Nance, a 6-6 forward. An all-star from Kentucky, Saluki fans had high expectations for him.

"But he lived up to them," Gottfried said. "If you look at the statistics after the first four or five games he played, he was averaging 17 points and 13 rebounds. Then, he tailed off. We're confident he's rising back up again."

Gottfried sees some positive points coming from the Salukis' problems.

"It never is ideal to rely on freshmen, but I look on it as a plus," he said. "They're getting valuable experience they wouldn't get in normal situations."

"Everyone who has been playing has been progressing," Gottfried said. "As a group, we haven't progressed much in terms of consistency, but individually, we've shown a lot of progress. Down the road, this will be a plus for us."

Is Saluki basketball in good shape, even with the disappointing record?

"There's no doubt about it," Gottfried said. "With the numbers we'll have returning next year, we feel that the program is going in the right direction."

Some Saluki followers believe Gottfried himself is a part of the problem. The second-year coach tends to be quiet and low-key both on and off the court, in contrast to many successful coaches such as Bobby Knight and Digger Phelps.

"I don't know that success is based on a lot of emotion," Gottfried responded. "You can find many coaches who don't go in that direction."

Saluki plans disrupted by Camp decision, injuries

By Scott Stahmer
Sports Editor

Editor's note: This is the second in a three-part series analyzing the problems SIU's men's basketball team has had this year.

October 22, 1979 is a date that forever will live in infamy around SIU's men's basketball office.

Until then, chances for a run at the Missouri Valley Conference title looked good. The addition of 6-11 junior college transfer Rod Camp, another junior college transfer and five promising freshmen, coupled with returning lettermen Wayne Abrams, Barry Smith and Charles Moore, gave the Salukis what seemed to be a solid nucleus.

But Oct. 22 was the date on which Camp, who was one of the nation's most highly recruited junior college players last year, was declared ineligible by the NCAA. Within the next two weeks, two other recruits expected to contribute—Edward Thomas and Charles Nance—were injured. And Abrams scratched the corners in his eye soon before the first game at Evansville.

"You tie the Camp decision into the injuries to Thomas and Nance and Wayne, and all of a sudden you get off to a bad start," Saluki Coach Joe Gottfried said. "Then, you're still regrouping when the Valley season starts. The other Valley teams did not have this experience."

Instead of contending for the MVC title, the Salukis are 1-6 in conference play. They are 5-12 overall. It makes one wonder how good the team could be with Camp.

"It's hard to tell how good we'd be with him," Gottfried said. "We could have gotten off to a good start with him."

Gottfried said the Salukis had to change their defensive philosophy when Camp was declared ineligible. Further changes, he said, had to be made when Thomas and Nance were injured.

Since Thomas and Camp both had experience from their junior college days, their loss robbed the Salukis of a large amount of experience, also.

"We were put into a situation where he had to play young people we wanted to spot early," Gottfried said. "You go around the country, and there are not that many freshmen making active contributions. You have to push them. Sometimes, they make mistakes."

Nance and fellow freshmen Kent Payne, Karl Morris and Darnall Jones all have been starters at least once. Most of SIU's Valley opponents do not start as many freshmen, with the exception of Wichita State.

"Inexperience goes through a whole year," Gottfried said. "Sometimes, it takes a player a year and a half to adjust."

"We'll play well for a period of time," Gottfried said, "and then part of the time we won't play well."

Despite the won-loss record, Gottfried said, he has not been displeased with the progress of the freshmen.

"Nance's progress was peaking after he came back, then all of a sudden it tailed down," the coach said. "That's going to happen with freshmen. Morris scored 12 points against Kansas State, then he went out with pneumonia."

"Jones... yes, he's progressing," Gottfried continued. "Payne is doing a lot of things well other than scoring, which we feel is his strength. (David) Youngblood has been hindered somewhat by the

Landlord-tenant disputes often resolved in small claims court

By Karen Gullo
Staff Writer

Landlord-tenant disputes now constitute 12 percent or more of the total caseload in United States' small claims courts, according to a study by a member of the American Bar Association's Special Committee on Housing and Urban Development Law.

The most common claim by landlords is for rent due and damage done to rental property by the tenant, and the most common claim by tenants is for return of their security deposit, according to the study.

Published in the book, "Housing Justice in Small Claims Courts," by the National Center for State Courts, the study was conducted by ABA member John C. Ruhnka and funded by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Based on extensive data from a two-year nationwide examination of 15 small claims courts, the study suggests that the small claims process can be a very effective way of pursuing landlord-tenant disputes.

According to the Student's Legal Assistance Office, out of 3,452 cases (not court cases) handled by that office since it first began operating in April 1977, 907 cases have involved landlord-tenant disputes. Since last September, the office has handled 570 cases, and 160 involved landlord-tenant disputes. How many of these cases actually went to court has not been determined, but it has been estimated that about 10 percent end up being filed in the Jackson County Circuit Court.

According to a staff member of the Champaign-Urbana Tenant Union, an organization serving residents of the Champaign community and students of the University of Illinois, somewhere between 7,000 and 8,000 cases were handled by the Union last year. The Union serves as intermediary between landlords and tenants to solve disputes and advise students and residents of their legal rights. Of the cases handled last year, an estimated 10 percent went to court in Champaign County, according to a Union staff member.

The ABA report stated that landlords file counterclaims four times more often than do tenants. Some judges felt that landlord counterclaims in return-of-security deposit cases were often filed to intimidate tenant claimants, the study reports.

Under a new Illinois law which became effective Jan. 1, landlords found by a court to have willfully refused to return a security deposit must pay twice the amount of the deposit due and attorney fees. The law states the landlord has 45 days after a premises has been vacated to return the security deposit or to furnish receipts or statements of estimated costs for repairing damage.

Speech professor says Nazi ideas can still be 'dangerous' in America

By Conrad Stultz
Staff Writer

The American Nazi movement is powerless to take over the United States government, but Nazi ideals—racism, and nationalism—can be as dangerous today as they were in the days of the Jewish holocaust, an authority on the subject says.

Randy Bytwerk, an assistant professor of speech communications at SIU-C who has researched the American Nazi movement for nine years, spoke to an audience of about 60 Monday night in the Student Center. The lecture was sponsored by the Student Programming Council.

"I don't think we need to worry about these people taking power," Bytwerk said, because "their material is so obviously bankrupt that they aren't going to get very far."

Bytwerk said now-deceased Nazi Leader George Lincoln Rockwell, founder of the National Socialist White People's Party, had a propensity for attracting publicity.

Rockwell's Jew-traitor passes, in which he offered to delay gassing any Jew who would confess to be traitors to the nation, were widely publicized, Bytwerk said. The news media also publicized "boat tickets to Africa" that were offered to any Blacks who would take them.

Another prime example of what the Nazis would do for publicity, Bytwerk said, was staged by Rockwell followers at a 1960s homosexual rights convention in San Francisco. Bytwerk said a Nazi ran through the convention hall yelling, "Where's Rabbi Meyer? I've got a case of vaseline for the queers convention." Rabbi Meyer was a sponsor of the convention.

"Their goal is to not be polite," he said. Rather, "the Nazis wanted to be as blatant as possible. Their intention is to put things in a way that will get attention and arouse an uproar."

About six Nazi organizations exist in the United States, including one founded in 1970 by former SIU student Frank Collin. Collin formed the Nationalist Socialist Party of America after he was expelled from Rockwell's organization for having a Jewish father.

Collin and his group of about 25 followers recently caused an uproar in the predominantly Jewish Chicago suburb of Skokie, with an ensuing Supreme Court battle over Collin's right to a parade permit there, Bytwerk said.

"The Nazis want to polarize the people they are dealing with," Bytwerk said. "They don't want a big group against them or a small group for them."

SIU-C may contract with Portugal to train soil, livestock instructors

By Conrad Stuntz
Staff Writer

SIU-C is being considered for a $5 million, four-year contract with the Portuguese government to train instructors in soil, livestock and crop management in the rural regions of the European nation.

"We feel fairly optimistic about it," Howard Olson, director of SIU-C's Office of International Food and Development, said. The University will find out whether it will receive the contract in March, Olson said.

The contract would require 30 instructors in agriculture and textiles to staff three polytechnical institutes in Portugal. Texas Technical Institute would provide the textile personnel, while SIU-C would provide the agriculture staff, Olson said.

Olson recently met with Portuguese officials in Washington D.C. to explain SIU-C's School of Agriculture's faculty qualifications. The most important of these is a proficiency in speaking Portuguese, a skill many of the faculty in the school acquired while working on similar programs in Brazil.

All of the teaching positions except four would be two to three month appointments. The other four positions would be two-year terms.

SIU-C would administer the program through the Agency for International Development, a United States government organization which recently gave the University a $500,000 strengthening grant to participate in such programs.

"Portugal is anything but well developed," Olson said. "Fifty percent of her food comes from outside sources."

Olson said Portuguese officials are concerned about rural migration into Portugal's largest cities, Lisbon and Porto. City slums are growing larger, Olson said, so the officials want to develop opportunities in the outlying areas for the rural population.

Vance: Trade with Iran has halted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance says long-promised new sanctions against Iran have become irrelevant because measures already taken by the administration have brought U.S.-Iranian trade to a virtual halt.

In an interview, Vance also took a conciliatory approach toward President-elect Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, offering to work with him to end the crisis over American hostages, held by militants in Tehran for 87 days.

Iran, together with the United States, should address, "the grave situation" caused by the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, Vance said.

But Vance, answering questions in his office Monday, said, "In practical effect, the sanctions are in place already."

He said a freeze imposed on Iranian assets in U.S. banks after the Nov. 4 seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and other measures had brought trade to a standstill.

Chicago teachers

wait for back pay;

still out of school

CHICAGO (AP) — Teachers in the nation's third-largest school system said they were staying out of their classrooms again Tuesday despite the City Council's assurances that overdue pay would be made up on Friday.

More than 95 percent of the troubled system's 24,355 teachers stayed out of school and less than 7 percent of its 472,355 students came to classes in the 647 schools Monday, authorities said.

School Board President Catherine Rohrer pleaded late Monday with the teachers to return to work Tuesday.

However, Chicago Teachers Union President Robert Healey said the teachers proved their patience during the past two months of the system's financing crisis when they missed three paychecks. They later received two of the checks.

Gov. Thompson 'declares war' over defeat of tax ceiling bill

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — With an eye toward gaining control of one of the legislative chambers next November, Gov. James R. Thompson has ended a three-year truce with the General Assembly and declared war on Democrats over the tax ceiling issue.

In a speech to a federation of industry and trade groups, Republican Thompson accused Democratic legislators of playing a "shell game" with taxpayers by scuttling his proposal to clamp a ceiling on property tax increases.

"We lost—Illinois taxpayers lost—the skirmish last week," Thompson said, referring to defeat of his tax ceiling proposal by the Democratic-controlled Senate.

"But I, for one, fully intend to renew the battle when the General Assembly returns in March," the governor said. He said he hoped the group he was addressing, the Business and Industry Federation for Economic Concern, "will be in the front lines with me until we win the war."

At a news conference after his speech, Thompson said he would campaign for Republican House and Senate candidates for next November's elections, and that "Republicans control of one or both of the houses of the General Assembly would be one of the healthiest things to happen to Illinois state government in a long, long time."

In his speech, Thompson put the blame for defeat of the tax ceiling proposal on Democratic leaders of the Legislature, saying a "handful of its majority leaders did everything they could to tilt the odds against the taxpayer."

Thompson said those leaders "bowed to well-organized, well-financed interests on the spending side of the local tax issue."

Thompson's proposed ceiling would have, with certain exceptions, limited local property tax increases to the rate of growth in the total income of Illinois residents—a little over 9 percent.

Instead, the General Assembly passed legislation to increase the state's "homestead exemption" from $1,500 to $3,000. The effect is to raise the amount by which the assessed value of a home can increase without taxes having to be paid on the increase.

The governor said again today that he plans to sign the bill, but that he doesn't think it goes far enough.

Hiding diplomats escape from Iran under false cover

By The Associated Press
Six American diplomats who hid for 12 weeks at friendly embassies in Tehran have slipped secretly out of Iran under cover of false Canadian passports. State Department officials said.

Canadian sources in Ottawa said the Canadian Embassy itself had harbored U.S. diplomats since the Nov. 4 takeover of the American Embassy, but the U.S. sources refused to name the other embassy or embassies involved, citing the possibility of reprisals against those embassies.

Canada unexpectedly shut down its Tehran mission Monday and withdrew Ambassador Ken Taylor and three persons described as embassy staff members. The Canadian Embassy is 200 yards down the street from the U.S. Embassy.

The Washington officials, who asked not to be identified, would not give the identities, jobs or whereabouts of the six newly escaped Americans.

The diplomats were outside the U.S. Embassy when it was seized by Moslem militants and were able to find shelter in friendly embassies until this past weekend, when Canada issued them false passports and got them out of Iran, the American officials said.

Among those who avoided capture Nov. 4 were the highest-ranking U.S. diplomat in Iran, Charge d'Affaires L. Bruce Laingen, and two top aides. They have been in "protective custody" at the Iranian Foreign Ministry since then, and apparently were not involved in Monday's reported escape.

The militants still hold some 50 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy and continue to press their demand for return of the ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran.

Police nab Menard escapee at Kentucky Lake roadblock

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky State Police have arrested a 35-year-old escapee from the Menard Correctional Center, authorities said Tuesday.

William T. Schwartz, who walked away from a prison honor farm near Chester on Jan. 13, was arrested near Lake City, Ky. late Monday afternoon.

Authorities said he was driving a car stolen in West Alton, Mo.

Police set up a roadblock on U.S. 641, which runs across the Kentucky Lake dam, and forced the car into a guard rail.

They said Schwartz refused to leave the car until they fired teargas into it. Police said Schwartz was armed with a .38-caliber revolver but offered no resistance.

Schwartz had been sought in connection with assault in Missouri, burglary in Tennessee, a shootout near Elizabethtown, Ky., and kidnapping and auto theft near Bowling Green, Ky.

He was serving time at Menard on a burglary conviction from Jersey County at the time of his escape.

Schwartz is being held in Paducah, Ky., pending filing of formal charges and possible extradition proceedings, police said.

Authorities are still searching for Alan Lighthouse, 27, a convicted rapist from Rockford who walked away from Menard with Schwartz.

Kennedy: Truth is best Chappaquiddick defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, in a special appeal to the voters of New England, says he has told the truth all along about the accident at Chappaquiddick and wants to be judged fairly. "not on the basis of gossip and speculation."

"I know there are many who do not believe me," the Massachusetts senator said in a paid political advertisement. "But my testimony is the only truth I can tell because that is the way it happened."

Kennedy injected the issue of the 1969 accident Monday night at the beginning of a 30-minute televised speech in which he gave New England's voters a taste of his sharpened campaign against President Carter. "I have only just begun to fight," declared Kennedy, ticking off his opposition to administration policies he says are hazardous abroad and a failure at home.

Except for the mention of Chappaquiddick, the speech aired on five New England television stations was a repeat of an address earlier in the day in which Kennedy detailed his difference with Carter on numerous domestic and foreign policy issues.

The speech at Georgetown University drew sharp reactions from the Carter campaign.

The Carter-Mondale Presidential Committee said Kennedy was "seeking to deal with his own political problems rather than the complex realities of governing."

Committee drafting bill to keep medical records confidential

WASHINGTON (AP) — So you think what you tell your doctor or psychiatrist is not going beyond the office door. Well, don't bet on it.

Computers may be putting the most personal and intimate details of your life in the hands of people you don't even know — medical researchers, insurance agents, credit agencies and law enforcement officers.

To make matters worse, you may have no knowledge of what is contained in those records.

That's the concern expressed by Rep. Richardson Freyer, D-N.C., chairman of the House Government Operation's Information subcommittee which is now drafting a proposed law that would protect the privacy of medical patients.

It also would assure most adult patients and even some minors — the right to see their medical files.

The new regulations would apply to all hospitals, skilled nursing homes, federally operated medical facilities and intermediate care facilities certified for Medicaid funds, along with doctors attending patients at those centers.

What the private family doctor wishes to disclose would still be left up to medical ethics.

Judge: Refusing to load Russian grain is illegal

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal judge ruled Tuesday that union officials could not legally direct dock workers at the nation's second busiest port to refuse to load a ship chartered to carry grain to Russia.

The temporary restraining order signed by U.S. District Judge Veronica Wicker was limited to the Julia L., a Greek ship moored at the Continental Grain Co. elevator at nearby Westwego.

The order was sought by the New Orleans Steamship Association after longshoremen defied a similar ruling by third-party arbitrators.

"We have to advise members that we have no objection to loading the Julia L.," said Victor Hess, the union's lawyer.

Jimmy Durante dies at age 86

By JERRY BUCK

Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jimmy Durante, the honky-tonk comic with outsized nose, whose artful mix of clowning fractured English and heart-warming pathos endeared him to generations of Americans, died Tuesday at age 86.

The famed "Schnozzois" as he was known to friends and fans alike, died alone in a hospital room where he had been confined for three weeks for treatment of a lung ailment.

Upon learning the news, comedian George Burns, 84, a long-time friend, said, "What can I say that the world doesn't already know? He was a fine man and a wonderful artist."

Red Buttons, another old friend, said, "I loved him. We all loved him. I am sorry to hear the news."

"But I am almost glad he is out of his misery."

Durante was admitted to St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica on Jan. 7, suffering from acute lung congestion. The cause of death was listed as pneumonitis complicated by the effects of previous strokes, said Chris Thomas, a hospital spokeswoman.

After a stroke in November 1972 left him partially paralyzed and confined to a wheelchair, Durante was forced to say good night to Mrs. Calabash for the last time and retire from show business.

Throughout his career, one of his trademarks was to end his performances with, "Good night, Mrs. Calabash, wherever you are." He once confided he was referring to his first wife, who had died.

Durante's routines were a show business staple for 64 years, and he was a leading star on radio and in early television. He made nearly 30 movies and until 1972, played regular engagements in Las Vegas and on television.

He found retirement hard to accept, remaining at home with his wife, Marjorie, and their adopted daughter, Cece. They rarely went out.

So in April 1974, Durante went to New York for a Banshee luncheon attended by newspaper editors and publishers. He received an award from the Banshees and responded with a faltering rendition of his longtime trademark, "Inka Dinka Doo."

Carter increases energy budget; more money for conservation, solar

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's 1981 energy budget; lays out an ambitious strategy to curb America's appetite for imported oil. Coupled with sharp increases for defense, the energy plan signals a two-pronged approach to securing U.S. fuel supplies.

Overall, the Carter energy plan provides no quick solution to one of the nation's thorniest problems: assuring the availability of fuel. But it includes a shift in priorities that Energy Secretary Charles Duncan called the start of a "20-year transition to energy diversification."

The shift will mean:

—More money for conservation, for solar energy, for synthetic fuels and fusion.

—A reduced emphasis on non-fusion nuclear research.

Carter's latest strategy takes into consideration the ongoing crises in the Persian Gulf where turmoil in Iran and Soviet ambitions expose the U.S. vulnerability to uncertain supplies of foreign oil.

Carter is seeking $8.1 billion for energy programs in 1981, eight times the billion-dollar spending set in 1971, prior to the Arab oil embargo that brought an end to cheap and plentiful oil supplies.

In drawing his $616 billion

1981 federal budget, the president marked defense and energy for the two biggest increases in spending, highlighting his efforts to assure U.S. fuel supplies.

The energy plan may mollify critics who have charged Carter with ignoring conservation as a way to cut fuel consumption.

Carter proposed slowing development of advanced nuclear reactors, omitting the Clinch River breeder reactor and proposing an end to work on gas-cooled reactors.

Indications are that higher prices have already established conservation in many households.

Energy advisor to share needs

By Mary Harmon
Staff Writer

Carbondale's energy coordinator, Robert Pauls, will be spending the month of February in Washington, D. C., gathering information that will help the city become less dependent on outside sources for its energy needs.

Pauls, who has been the city's energy advisor since November, will serve as a resource advisor on the President's Clearinghouse on Community Energy Efficiency, an information sharing network.

Pauls will share Carbondale's energy conservation experiences with other community representatives and acquire information about energy programs being conducted by other municipal governments.

Pauls, who will represent both the city and the National League of Cities, an association of municipal governing units, said local governments can better implement their energy programs than can the federal government.

"Local governments are more in touch with their own energy needs and they have the resources necessary to implement their own energy programs," Pauls said. "I don't want to discount the federal government's efforts. They have done an adequate job, but they can do a lot more."

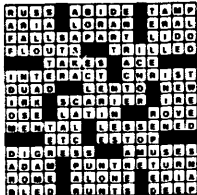

"Communities spend millions of dollars to buy fuel oil. But it goes to some conglomerate and does not come back to the community. If that money could stay within the community, it could have a multiplier effect by increasing the standard of living, for instance," he said.

Carbondale has an energy plan in the making, but it has not yet been finalized. It will include an education program showing the viability and simplicity of conservation.
