City debates alcohol at concerts

FAIR DAYS: Council's vote allows alcohol consumption to continue at Sunset Concerts.

> JENNIFER CAMDEN DE Pourries Editor

Underage drinking and chil-dren's exposure to drinking were debated at Tuesday's Carbondale City Council meeting as the council considered whether or not to allow alcohol at the Sunset Concerts at Turkcy Park.

In the end, the council voted 3-2 to allow alcohol consumption dur-ing this summer's concerts at the park by declaring them "Fair Days," which allows legal public drinking on special occasions.

Councilman John Yow, who opposed the concert's "Fair Days" designation, said be has opposed it for the last 10 years. He said there are so many young people at the concert that the police cannot catch all underage drinkers.

"It's impossible for them to enforce the laws," he said. "They can't go around to every individual and say, 'What have you got in that Styrofoam cup?'"

At the meeting, the Rev. Jeff Scott of the University Baptist Church said children are prohibited from entering bars, and bars are not ted to open near churches or schools.

"Yet we allow 4- or 5-year-olds the sights, sounds and smells of the bar crowd from the convenience of playground swings," he said.

Mayor Neil Dillard, who voted for the Fair Days designation, said children are present at the concerts, but they should be supervised.

"No young children should be in the park at that hour of the evening without parents, guardians or care-takers with them," he said.

Scott said the "Fair Days" desig-

New budget system to begin at SIU

CHANGES: Responsibility Center Management plan a concern for University faculty.

> WILLIAM HATFIELD DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

A new budgeting system that will be implemented at SIUC and SIUE will share responsibility for budget making and allow administrators to do their more effectively, an administrator says.

However, some faculty say they believe it is inappropriate and could lead to a lowering of academic standards for SIUC.

Elaine Hyden, vice-president for planning and budget services and chairwoman of the Responsibility Center Management (RCM) com-mittee, said RCM is a decentralized management style that ties the generation of credit hours to the generation of money.

"In its most basic level, a department can think of ways to generate revenue, and it gets to keep and use that money," Hyden said. Hyden said RCM is driven by academic priorities of the University. She said it provides incentives to academic departments to create new resources from their actions. She said under this system, academic units will be responsible for their own bud-geting and be aware of all costs.

SIU President Ted Sanders said although it may be months or years before it is implemented, there has been faculty concern regarding RCM. He said it is partially caused by lack of information.

"Anytime things change, it makes everyone ner-vous," Sanders said, "Particularly, if there is limited participation in what those changes are

Albert Melone, president of the SIUC Faculty Senate, said originally there were no faculty mem bers on the steering committee. He said after he argued that the implementation affected faculty

SIUC provides access for all

stages of construction under way on campus.

> TRAVIS DENEAL DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SIUC has a reputation for going out of its way to help students with disabilities, and Susan Salatino said that was a significant factor in her decision to attend school here.
"I was amazed how accessible it is,"

Salatino, an undecided freshman from Carbondale who uses a wheelchair. "The entire town is geared toward helping students with disabilities."

The 1990 Americans with Disabilities Act mandates all public areas to be accessible to all people. Last fall, SIUC began a campus-wide renovation project to make every build-ing ADA-compliant.

Allan Haake, supervising engineer at the Physical Plant who oversees the $24 million project, said a majority of the campus build-ings are being renovated.
"There are three different phases of renovations going on right now, and they are being done by three different contractors," Haake said. "For instance, they are installing auto-matic door operators, drinking fountains and modifying restroom facilities."

Contract bidding for the project's fourth phase will be next month, he said.

Haske said 36 buildings should be ADA-compliant by August, and the final 12 build-ings should be compliant by December.

compliant by August, and the time 12 consings should be compliant by December.

While it may take some time for all of the renovations to be completed, Kathleen Plesko, the director of the Students With Disabilities Service, said the University should be commended for its progress.

"In a perfect world it could be done overnight, but the campus is making much of an effort to comply." Plesko said.

She said there have been few student conplaints about disabled-student access.

plaints about disabled-student access.

"We've had just a handful of complaints over the past two years," she said, "When there is a complaint, we move quickly to take care of it."

Some disabled students say they have minor complaints, though,

Salatino said there has been at least one door she has encountered that is designated a disabled-access door, but does not have an automatic door opener.

There is a door in front of the agriculture building that is marked disabled accessible and has a post for a push plate, but there is no push plate," she said. "It is a very hard door to open. However, I found a back door that is very easy to open, so I've used it ever since." Salatino said when she questioned a maintenance crew about the lack of a push plate, they told here there was a delay because they had to do some special digging for an electric

"It wasn't a hig problem," she said. "If something doesn't work, we just find another way around the problem.

Lydia Motsinger, a junior in social work from Christopher who uses an electric scooter, said she has also noticed there are no automatic door openers on some doors designated disabled access

Drivers to renew licenses by mail

NO MORE LINES:

Good drivers can use toll-free number to order license.

> HAROLD G. DOWNS DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

For some Illinois automobile drivers, the days of waiting in line at the local Driver's License Examining Station are over.

The Illinois General Assembly enacted a law Jan, I allowing "good" drivers to be able to renew their licenses by mail. The new procedure enables those who qualify to bypass the normal issuing process and obtain a renewal by phone.

To be a "good" driver, one must meet several criteria.

"Good driving is based on an individual's driving record and whether or not there were any seri-ous incidents that occurred," said ous incidents that occurred." said Dave Urbanck, press secretary for Secretary of State George Ryan. Such incidents, said Urbanck, include accidents that resulted in injury or death, DUI's and automo-bile wrecks.

When the time comes for licenses to be renewed, those who are "good" drivers receive a notice by mail stating that renewal time has arrived. The notice is accompanied by a tollfree telephone number to call to renew the license. Those who utilize the system will have to pay for the renewal by credit card.

Urbanek said the only cost in addition to the normal $10 renewal fee is $1.50, which is the transaction fee charged for the use of the credit

Urbanek said there are many advantages for people who use the new system.

"People do not have to wait in line. They just dial the telephone and pay by credit card, which allows many people to take advantage of this resource," he said. "It presents a different option for drivers, as well

Jim White thought he was going to the Indiday Inn in Marion for a family photo, but when he arrived and 100 people yelled "surprise" at his retirement party, White said he realized the photo was going to be larger than he anticipated.

White, chairman for automotive technology, which is a department within the College of Applied Sciences and Arts, retired Dec. 31 after being chairman since 1986. White started teaching at SIUC in

When White opened the door of the banquet room at 7:07 p.m. Saturday and saw all the people inside, he threw his hat inside the door to see if it was safe.

"I am speechless right now. I cannot believe all these people," White said, "Where did they come from?"

Jack Greer, interim chairman for automotive technology, said most of the people at the party were alumni who came from all across the country to attend the party.

"It took a lot of planning to keep this a secret from Jim," he said.

The banquet half sounded like a class reunion more than a retirement party because of all the alumni in the room discussing their days at SIUC. The half also featured a food buffet and a movie projector set up to show old General Motors movies.

Automotive technology club students also were invited to the party.

Tim Eenigenburg, a senior in automotive technology from Lansing, Mich., and president of the automotive club, said automotive students will miss White's knowledge of the automotive industry.

"He knows all the professionals in the industry and has so many connections," he

White said he has big plans for his retirement and hopes to have timefor them all.

"The thing that will take the longest is cleaning out my office," he said. "You collect a lot of things in 35 years."
White said he would like to go to Florida on vacation with his wife, Barbara; do some renovations at his home, possibly go back to work if he gets bored and continue his love of music by devoting more time to his band, Jazz Express.

Modern English is product of butchered old language

As ludicrous as the

Oakland School

Board position may be, I would elect

not to take issue with it for the simple reason that I have a bigger fish

It behooves me that the Oakland School Board would make such wanton and disparaging assertions that those who speak Ebonies have some gene deficiency which impedes their ability to speak the "main stream language." As Mr. Eko stated eloquently in his "Guest Column" in the Jan. 14 issue of the Daily Egyptian, Africans and those of African descent are some of the best masters of the English language, and the fact that to most of them it is a second or even a third language validates this point.

Such assertions only confirm the inevitable — that the thinking of the Oakland policymak-ers is at its lowest ebb. As ludicrous as the Oakland School Board position may be, I would elect not to take issue with it for the simple fact that I have a bigger fish to fry. To paraphrase Jesus in the Bible, "He who doesn't have any sins should cast the first stone."

I am appalled at the number of people who claim to be sinless as they cast stones without hesitation at those who propose that Ebonics should be a recognized language and should be taught at schools. I see nothing so egregious about this proposal except, of course, it runs counter to the societal unity we seek to achieve, and for this reason alone, it should be taken for what it is. But let's take a sober assessment of what standard English really is and who speaks that sort of English.

When America gained independence from the British in 1776, British English was the language spoken here. But over was the language as bored acre. But over time, that language has been altered, cos-metic changes applied, and in some cases it had been utterly reversed, and we have conveniently inscrete our own phrases, pronunciations and spellings, which are obviously incongruent with the British English

For example, the British pronounce the word "schedule" differently from Americans: Americans pronounce it Americans. Americans pronounce it "ske'joo!" while the British pronounce it "shed'yoo!." Same word, different pronunciation. Further, the British spell the words "program" and "center" "programme" and "center" while Americans spell it "program" and "center." Same word, different spelling. The list goes on. Since this deviation from the British English occurred in the 1700s before the avert of electronic media, not much was said about it. And by default, it became "standard English."

I am certain that the British refer to this deviation as "Ameribonics" and dis-miss it as a caricature of the standard British English. How many times would I hear news reporters who supposedly should be speaking the "standard English" say on the nightly news "there is two men in the room' rather than "there are two men in the room."

Or "How come... ?"
instead of "Why?..."
And how many times would I read in academ ic iournals the sentence "second of all" rather than "secondly" as stan-dard British English would have it? All of these sentences, albeit obviously erroneous, are widely used in offi-cial and professional circles. Thus, I must address the lingering question in my mind who really speaks "standard English?"

What is standard English, and what is American English? Is there an aspectu-al difference? Is American English not a deviation of British English? And if so, why is a language which is a devia-tion of another called standard? If we call the deviating language standard what then shall we call the original language? Super standard?

The debate surrounding Ebonics centers chiefly on black identity, giving young black men and women a sense of ownership, of belonging. While I do not advocate that it be included in curriculums all of over the country, I am stating emphatically that some of those who criticize Ebonics are themselves, for the most part, guilty of mutilating and "murdering" the stand: English — a classic case of the blind leading the blind. Why, then, are we in such a hurry to cast the first stone at Ebonics, which happens to be a deviation of a language which itself is a deviation from another?

Let's not forget that those who live in glass houses must not engage in the unruly behavior of throwing stones, for

United front

New era of faculty relations begins with first negotiations

AS SIUC ADMINISTRATORS AND FACULTY begin at what one official calls "ground zero" to forge a contract that will define both sides' roles in University governance, it is imperative that the students' best interests are given top priority.

The faculty's decision to unionize last fall has its pros and cons, and individuals on both sides of the issue are justified in their views. However, the decision has been made, and it is time for both sides to "grow where they have been planted."

The potential for this union to benefit the campus is great, but equally great is the potential for disaster. To make the new union work, several factors must be considered

First, it is important that all faculty - particularly those who voted for the union — to get involved. At last count, about 150 of the 389 professors who voted for the union are actually members of it.

IT IS LUDICROUS TO THINK THAT A UNION with no members will represent anyone's interests effectively. Like it or not, the union is here, and even those who do not support it need to get involved if they wish to have their voices heard.

SIUC's ability to attract good faculty has ranked high among the arguments for unionization. Right now, SIUC faculty draw an average annual salary of $46,400 roughly 9 percent less than the national average of $50,980.

Obviously, the University cannot attract superior faculty if its pay rate is this far below average. It is hoped that the union will force SIUC to increase salaries enough that it can compete with other universities.

At the same time, the union must avoid the pitfall of substituting an across-the-board salary-increase system for its existing merit-pay system.

IMPROVING THE QUALITY OF EDUCATION at SIUC does not depend solely on attracting new faculty. Providing existing faculty with incentives such as higher pay for better teaching also is an integral part of the improvement process that should not be overlooked.

Some opponents of unionization have expressed fears that merit pay will be lost in the collective-bargaining process.

To sacrifice a system that can have a direct, positive effect on the quality of instruction at SIUC would be illogical at best

In contract negotiations, there always will be disagreement, so the potential for gridlock always exists. If selfish interests come into play, the students could suffer. For this reason, the welfare of the students must be given top pri-

Furthermore, to prevent students from bearing the financial burden of any anticipated "improvements," the union must be willing to spend the time and effort necessary to convince our state legislature that SIUC deserves funding for faculty pay raises.

THE STATE OF ILLINOIS IS NOTORIOUS FOR underpaying college teachers. If the union does not push the General Assembly to compensate for these funding deficiencies in its next budget, all the negotiations in the world will be worthless. The University has to have money in order to give money to its instructors.

If improving the quality of education is truly the goal of unionization - as we sincerely hope it is -then both sides must keep that goal foremost in their minds as they come to the bargaining table.

"That doesn't mean the unit has to pay all costs, but possibly cost can be reduced."

Melone said RCM is an inappropriate model for running University.

Hyden said the committee is attempting to dispel some of the misconceptions about RCM by creating a Web page and by having meetings in the future.

The committees are still so new that we haven't had time to educate the University community," Hyden said. "We are still working on ting the word out and allowing peo-

John Whitlock, director of the University Museum, said he attended all four of the November meetings to select the provost so be could ask how the perceived RCM will affect the museum, which does not tum a profit.

"I wanted to know how service mits will fare under Responsibility Center Management," Whitlock-said, "The response was that the University would have allocations for those types of units, or that the University would actually have a service charge to other units or the campus."

Hyden said the library and other services are essential to the University and will still function.

CONSERVATIVE: More first year college students are actively involved in the community.

DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Cortney Hammack began community service work in high school when she helped bring a prison to her hometown, and she now continues community service as a member of a freshman class that a national survey has called more civic-minded.

"My town was trying to build a prison, and they asked the high school class to help out." Hammack, an undecided freshman from Pinckneyville, said. "We helped make signs and showed everyone that the community was working together."

A recent national survey indicated that college freshmen are more interested in community service projects, are more socially conservative and express boredom in class.

The survey was conducted by the University of California at Los Angeles' Higher Education Research Institute, More than 250,000 college freshmen took part in the survey that polled more 502 universities.

Also Hammock said because she is a member of the Delta Zeta sorority, she helps organizations such as the Red Cross, the Easter Seals and the American

She said she enjoys the work and would do it even if she was not involved in a sorority.

"I have always done community service work," she said. "I don't dread doing it. In fact, I don't mind doing it at all."

Another freshman, Ryan Sanders, a marketing major from Des Plaines, helps the community by giving blood to the Red Cross.

"I just do it because I am healthy now but may need it someday," Sanders said. "Hopefully, people would do the same thing for me." While many freshman like Sanders and Hammack enjoy helping out the community, they follow a national trend in political apathy, according to the survey.

The survey shows that only about 30 percent of college freshmen view keeping up with politics as important. The number has not declined or increased from past years.

Sanders said he may be active in volunteer projects, but he is not interested in politics at all. He said he probably is more liberal on issues like abortion, but he does not keep up with politics.

"I do not follow politics hardly at all," he said, "I am just not interested."

Ignoring politics is not just a matter of boredom for Brooke Sigafus, a freshman in dental hygiene from Warren.

"I hate politics," she said. "There are certain issues I care about. On abortion I go both ways on the issue."

The survey indicates that freshmen are more socially conservative, but Scott Hays, an assistant professor in political science, said that does not mean there are more students interested in politics. "Politics has not stimulated the kind of conflicts that get people interested," Hays said. "There may be a rise in interest in students, but it is not, say, an increase from 2 percent to 70 percent. It is pretty misleading to say there is an increase when it is more like a 2 percent to a 10 percent increase."

Hays said students still are apathetic when it comes to politics. He said student political groups find themselves lucky when 30 percent of the students actually vote.

He said the freshman class may be more civicminded, but many students do not care about politics.

'The increase in volunteerism is synonymous with political alienation," he said. "I think there is a nuch greater population who feels alienated."

Incinerator reopens at Crab Orchard

DISAGREE: Local environmentalists criticize PCB burns.

BRAD WEBER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The Crab Orchant National Wildlife Refuge incinerator reopened Sunday following a week-long shutdown because of the cold weather, which caused safety concerns, the program's manager says.

Operators who run the incinerator in Williamson County decided that the frigid temperatures posed a danger, so the incinerator was shut down Jan. 12, said Richard Davis, project manager for the incinerator.

"The incinerator is a lot like a car," Davis said, "When it gets cold, the diesel fuel doesn't flow as good, and the water cooling system has no antifreeze, so it can freeze up."

The incinerator began burning PCB-contaminated soil in November. The incinerator is part of the Environmental Protection Agency's superfund clean-up project.

About 80,000 tons of soil contaminated with polychlorinated biphenyls, or PCBs, on the refuge will have burned through the incinerator by the end of February, completing the incinerator task.

The project has been criticized by local environmentalists because of the cancer-causing dioxins released when PCBs are burned. The contaminated soil was left on the refuge by Sangamo Electric Company, which operated in the area from 1946 to 1962.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife officials at the refuge have said the incineration is necessary before the PCB in the soil harm wildlife. The EPA had concluded that the incinerator will not produce enough dioxin to pose a risk to humans or the environment.

One local environmentalist says she still is concerned with the state of the Crab Orchard incinerator.

"I think that for the last eight years, the community has been trying to voice their opinion, and the federal agencies didn't listen to the community," said Kristen Kordecki, a member of the Student Environmental Center.

This was not the first time that the incinerator has been shut down. In September, during mini-burn testing, two power fluctuations caused a shutdown of the incinerator.

No contaminants were released at the time because no material was being fed into the incinerator, Davis said.

"I think that it goes to show how the EPA is inefficient about incinerators," Kordecki, a senior in cinema and photography from Hanover Park, said.

Once the incinerator has completed the burning of the soil, the incinerator then will be removed from Crab Orchard.

Because of this and other shutdowns the date of the completion incineration has been pushed back to an unknown date.

back to an unknown date.
"I think that progress on the incinerator is going great," Davis said. "I'm very pleased with what has been going on."

ARENA DURING THEIR 1994 VISIT, IT WAS ONLY A TREMOR SETTING THE STAGE FOR THE EARTHQUAKE TUESDAY NIGHT THAT SENT THE NEEDLE SOARING OFF THE ROCK-TOUR SCALE AND LEFT MANY FANS WONDERING WHAT HAD HIT THEM.

Lighter flames and shrieking screams dotted the foggy air as the lights went down. The sound of the title track off "Mellon Collie and the Infinite Sadness" lazily rolled from the army of amplifiers, pouring nervous anticipation onto the near-capacity crowd.

and run across. Needless to say, he was briskly removed by the Pumpkins' less-than-friendly looking security goons.

The Pumpkins' equipment furthered their god-like image for the worshippers below. With its multiple projector screens, innumerable amplifiers and its stage-to-celling tower of stage lights, the stage was a iconic spectade in itself. With the exception of the song "Disarm" from their "Siamese Dream" album, the songs the Pumpkins used to delight the gathering were from their newest album "Mellon Collic and the Infinite Sadness."

The crowd got a special treat when Jimmy Frog of The Frogs assaulted the stage in his green-winged glitter costume. Frog ran out and climbed onto a stack of speakers and strummed along with the Pumpkins as they revved up their hit "1979." Frog, much to the crowd's delight, ran around the stage tossing a stuffed animal, and he even found the time to take over vocals at several points in the song. Frog did a fairly respectable imitation of Billy Corgan's whining voice. Throughout the set, Corgan and James iha periodically spoke idle chatter to the reverent masses, with D'Arcy piping up only once to correct lha's mistake in quoting a line from a "Star Trek" episode.

The opening band, "Fountains of Wayne," softened up the crowd with its pop rock melodles that received a surprisingly respectable reaction from those present. While they played their radio hit "Radiation Vibe," many excled fans-to-be were danding. While it seemed that everyone enjoyed the show, the reason people were stunned by the performance varied.

jeff Filice, a sophomore in aviation flight from Memphis, said he impressed not only by the show, but also by the Pumpkins' set-up.

HISTORY-AND-THE-MATERIAL-GIRL-

Virtually devoid of talent as both an actor and a singer, Antonio Banderas makes a vallant but futile attempt to overcome his deficiencies as the everpresent narrator, Che, In the much-hyped film version of Andrew Lloyd Webber's hit musical, "Evita," that received the Golden Globe Award for "Best Movie."

With his smoldering good looks and sexy Spanish accent, Banderas fits in admirably with film's well-constructed set. It's really too bad that the part demands a performer who can actually Fortunately for the audience, the film is much more than a music video. Madonna turns in the performance of her life in the title role as she summons all the sympathy, hatred and "Sturm und Drang" her character demands.

Madonna's Evita comes off as a cynically doe-eyed sweetheart with a heart of lead who dies a tragic death. Broadway fans may have some doubts about the rock diva's ability to handle the role vocally (especially if they have heard the abominable techno travesty of "Don't Cry for Me, Argentina" that has poisoned the alrwaves for the past month).

However, the extensive voice training Madonna underwent for the role pays off — her vocal versatility is obvious within the first two measures of the opening song.

If Madonna is believable as "a cross between a fantasy of the bedroom and a saint," Jonathan Pryce is simply the embodiment of Juan Peron. Pryce doesn't act; he channels. Expect to hear more from the gifted but largely underexposed Pryce, who may well be the next Anthony Hopkins.

Visually, "Evita" makes a graceful transition from stage to celluloid. The film is resplendent with images that make it seem one part PBS documentary, one part MTV video and one part CNN campalgn coverage.

Images of violence and carnage are Juxtaposed against touching flashbacks of the young Eva's tearful attempt to attend her father's funeral and politically charged pictures of Evita giving unnervingly stirring speeches that leave the viewer feeling more than a little relieved that Madonna's tastes run more toward basketball stars Republicans.

Through it all, Lloyd Webber's dazzling score and Tim ("The Llon King") Rice's powerful lyrics keep the story moving along with a fascinating mix of sarcasm and sympathy.

Like the original stage musical, the film

"Evita" gives the viewer a well-balanced picture of the woman herself.
Yes, "Santa Evita" is a manipulative, ruthless woman who puts self-interest ahead of her people's welfare. But when Che quietly kisses Eva's casket after criticizing her sharply throughout the film, we understand. Eva falls, and she falls hard. It is impossible to witness that kind of change and remain unaffected by it. Because of her strength in life, we must, like Argentina, cry for her at her death.

Madonna's surprising emergence as a legitimate actress and Pryce's sympa-thetic performance as a kind of modern Macbeth (one almost expects him to cry, "Out, out, brief candle ..." as Eva dies) make the film Oscar-worthy in spite of Banderas' mediocrity.

Audiences who gambled $50 on orchestra seats to see Lloyd Webber's mangy, "Cats" and were disappointed should remember his seductive "Phantom" and forgive and forget.

"Evita" is $4.25 well spere, and you don't even have to pay a scalper for the close-ups.

The Prodigy Music for the Jilted Generation Mute Records, 1995

When listening to this album's 13 tracks, one is pelted not only with hard-core dance beats, but also with soothing ambient sounds and even a little lazz.

With this, his second full-length elease, electronic artist Liam Howlett of Essex, England, mirrored the development of such other up and coming bands such as The Underworld and fellow Brits The Chemical Brothers. This mixture of fresh lyrics and sounds with classic rhythms will pull even the heaviest-foot-ed person out of the chair and onto the

Two tracks from this album, "Voodoo People" and "One Love," were featured in the computer-jock movie "Hackers." The infectious grooves just do not stop from one tune to the next. If you were to close your eyes, you would feel as is you were flowing along in a white water over of music.

This effort put The Prodigy on the international electronic music map and paved the way for Howlett to become a member of the mainstream music scene.

Listening to their Tool-like bass lines one is forced to cling to possible musical talent when trying to comprehend why — or perhaps more importantly how — this band managed to escape the garage

Throughout this heavy-metal festival lyrics are screamed at a much higher level than the lead singer is vocally capable of reaching.

The result is generally an ear punishing growling sound, with a barely recognizable word thrown in about once every

The high points of this album are that at times it does feature some mediocre musical talent, and the CD jewel case has a cool little pencil inside it (reminiscent of the flies in Alice in Chains' "Jar of Flies"

This is music that one could truly enjoy live at a bar after a few drinks. But when one is sober, it is too hard to ignore the band's lack of vocal talent and wavering musical ability.

After five years together, this Carbondale-based band produces its first CD, "Epochrypha."

By LISA M. PANGBURN

T IS PEOPLE AND MUSIC THAT CREATE A BAND, BUT FOR A BAND TO CREATE A COLLECTIVE REPRODUCTION OF ITS WORK, IT TAKES DILKENCE AND PERSISTENCE, FOR ONE LOCAL BAND THIS HAS BEEN PUT TO THE TEST AND IT HAS DISCOVERED THE HARD WORK IT TAKES TO PRODUCE A CD AND PUBLICLY RELEASE IT.

St. Stephen's Blues, which has been together for nearly five years, is a group of seven men who sing and play instruments ranging from electric guitar to the flute. And on Saturday, after five years together, they release band's first CD.

The CD is filled with fantastic original blues.

Songs like, "The Way
That You Move" will remind people what it is like to feel good rather than sorrowful, but "The Ballad of Casey J." puts the somber feeling back in the blues.

Robbie Stokes, lead guitarist for the band, said all the determination it took to manufacture the first CD brought the band closer together

"it was more work and less work than I thought it would be," he said. "Through the miracle of electronic technology, sometimes it was less work, but with all the people in the band and all their ideas, it was sometimes more work."

In bringing the members of the band together, Stokes sald there were ups and downs of the "Epochrypha" pro-

"We did a lot of wringing of hands when trying to decide what songs to use for the CD," he said. "Every one of us has individual differences and opinions, but we came out on top. I feel very positive about the CD.

"The advice of a good friend finally meant something to me after we started to put the CD together. He told me "Never mix an album by committee." I really understand what he meant by that. But, from the band's standpoint, there really was great input from everybody."

in the five years St. Stephen's Blues has been togeth-er, It has built up a loyal audience in cities like St. Louis and Chicago. The band has played with bands like Peace in the Jones at Mississippi Nights in St. Louis and have packed the venue. St. Stephen's performances can be compared to that of the Grateful Dead. Their music supplies the ability to drop in Jazz-like impulse interludes and extend versions of the songs on stage.

The demographics of the band have attracted people who are both young and old, Stokes said.

"We have had people from 16 to 60 at our gigs, and all have had a good time," he said.

Stokes said the positive feeling of making the CD has empowered the members of the band.

It has done us a lot of good," he sald. "it has allowed us to take control of our destiny. We intend to do more recording and do it better. "Actually, we're thinking of starting our own record label, but that is still In the works. I just hope everyone comes out for the CD release party and thanks to our fans for putting up with all of our shit."

o rap artists are not singing and swinging and getting merry like Christmas, but some might question whether or not rap artists deserve their jaded reputation. They do make music. Some of it makes people dance or bob their heads, and some of it is shocking enough to cause controversy. To some SIUC students, this controversy may be the reason rap music is still around.

From the early days of the groups like Run DMC, Schooly D and the Sugar Hill Gang, rap has been scrutinized and looked upon as something that would not last in the mainstream. But, through this scrutiny, rappers were not thought to be negative, Early rap was about the parties and making the crowd get up and dance. One song that emphasizes what early rap was all about is "Rappers Delight" by the Sugar Hill Gang. Lyrics like, "Now what you hear is not a test/I'm rappin' to the beat and me/the groove and my friends are gonna try to move your feet," describe what rap, at least early rap, was all about.

Then and Now

Rashad Jackson, a junior in business management from Chicago, and a newcomer to the rap Industry with his first single coming out in june, sald when rap began, it was the kind of music peuple listened to at parties.

"Rap used to be the kind of music in which the rapper was singing to make the crewd move," he said. "Then it went through a political phase attacking the government, and now it's about a way of life and how people live and what they see. Rap is no longer just partying all the time." Jackson said he does not think rappers always deserve the negative connotations placed on them by the media because most rappers are versatile.

"There are party-type rhymes when what you are saying is not really important, and some rhymes tell a story," he said. "With rap music, you switch up and mix it with anything like classical, record of the reason." gospel or jazz.

gospel or Jazz."

Jackson sald when he raps he uses expressive words that can give his listeners a picture of what he is rapping about.

"I try not to curse when I rap because it is not necessary." he sald. "I say things like." I co-exist with everything that's positive the situational factor allows me in spirit to live/ transitive is my mind state/ I've arisen from the sleep of the dead there's no disease that can touch my supports or bring my. no disease that can touch my euphoria or bring my Inner soul dread."

Barry Sewell, a senior in radio and television from Chicago, and a Carbondale disc jockey, sald that some rappers are in the rap game because they truly think of rap as an art and want to express themselves. But, with rap being a more than-a-billion-dollar industry, rappers who are in it strictly for the money are usually the ones who give rappers their bad reputations.

Sewell sald the rappers who talk about killing and drugs also give the artists a bad name.

"So-called 'gangsta rap' is just a fad," he said.

"A lot of these rappers don't know about the stuff they rap about, and they say what they think they have to say to sell records."

Sewell said he does not think that "gangsta" rap is bad as long as the rapper can show some flexibility in what he or the rape about.

"People back in the day did it for fun because they liked to do it," he said. "But, a lot of people today don't really care about rap and do it just for the money.

Sewell said that all rappers do not have bad reputations because of the different types of peo-ple who pursue rapping as a career. "There are rappers turned actors and basketball players who rap, and I think it's good that people can branch out," he said.

Negative or Positive Sewell said it is wrong to categorize rappers as gangsta rappers or those who are into hip hop because most rappers have many different styles.

"Take for instance Tupac (Shakur)," he said. "He was a talented brother and the things that he said and how he portrayed himself could be thought of as negative, but a lot of his rhymes are positive and uplifiting to black people. Sewell said although a lot of people say that most rap promotes violence, he thinks rappers just talk about life in the nood.

"Rap is not meant to promote violence," he said. "It is displaying lyrical talent and telling people what is going on, not to go out and do it. jerome Vann, a junior in business management from Chicago, and owner of Phunk Squadd music production company in Carbondale, said in today's society, people are not interested in positive rap music.

"Nowadays, no one wants to hear about people doing good," he said. "If you're not doing negative things, record sales are low. That's the way society

Good Guys, Bad Guys
Sewell said that although there are some people in the rap industry he does not care for, there are others who have made positive impact on him.

"I got interested in rap in the late '80s when people like Boogle Down Productions, KRS1, EPMD, Eric B. and Rakim and NWA came out," he said. "The creativity in their lyrics, not to mention their beats, inspired me."

Jackson said he thinks the good rappers are the ackson said ne thinks the good rappers are the ones who have positive messages.

I like people like A Tribe Called Quest. The Roots, OutKast, Goodle Mob, the Wu Tang Clan and De La Soul," he said, "People like OutKast tälk about spiritual and political things, and I like that."
Jackson said people who use explicit lyrics to sell records are on his list for the bad guys, or girls, as the case may be.

"I do not like Lil! Kim because she is just nasty and explicit for no reason," he said.

Michael Maroy, a junior in radio-television from Chicago, said he likes Tupac because he was able to say a lot through his raps before his death last

"Tupac was so successful because nobody embodied hard-core everyday living in the 'hood in America the way he did." he said. "For some reason people can identify with that tough ghetto mentality.

Rashida Greene, a freshman in electrical engineering from Chicago, said she only likes rappers who have been around for a long time.

I like people like Queen Latifah, MC Lyte and Salt and Pepa because they know how to entertain as well as enlighten," she said. "A lot of new female rappers just want to talk about how much money or sex they can get."

Jackson said rap music can only be defined in a general sense because of the variety of things people can do with it.
"Rap is, simply put, beats, lyrics and rhymes,"

Maroy said rap music was designed as a different form of talking.

"Rap was a form of communication from people on the streets to people on the streets," he said. You can educate people through rapping. Maroy said rap is something that comes from the heart of the rapper.

Whether rappers are old school or new school, negative or positive, or good or bad, is the opinion of the listener. But, rap is a big part of the music industry no matter what the reputation of rappers may be. While there are some rappers who give mostly negative connotations in their music, there are also rappers who educate, enlighten and try to uplift their communities.

upilit their communities.

Some students think that although these people have chosen the same profession, it is unfair that they all have the same reputation. Like Rev. Run sald in his latest song, "World So Cruel," instead of condemning these rappers, it is time to help them see where they may have gone wrong.

HE LENS OF ANOTHER

By CHRISTOPHER MILLER

It is even more rare for an artist to die in the line of duty

Bringing an exhibition of such artists to the University Museum was as much a collaboration as the artwork listelf, said Alan Harasimowicz, museum exhibits designer. The exhibit, titled "Louis Sulivan et al. Through the Lens of Richard Nickel," consists of photographs taken by Richard Nickel, an architectural preser rationist from Chicago, of buildings designed by Louis Sullivan. Several three-dimensional architectural ornaments complement the two-dimensional photographs.

Sullivan, a late 19th century architect known as the "father of the skyscraper," was one of many architects who helped rebuild Chicago in the aftermath of the Great Chicago Fire in 1871.

Famous residential architect Frank Lloyd Wright, who called himself the "pencil in Sullivan's hand," was hired by Sullivan in 1888. Later in his career, Sullivan moved toward designing smaller buildings in small cities throughout the Midwest. Though the organic style faded from popularity, Sullivan clung to It and eventually was driven into poverty. Sullivan died four years before Nickel was born in 1928.

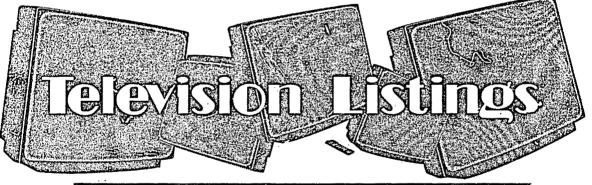

Though the two never met, they were so passionately involved and connected," Harasimowicz said.

Nickel served as photographer in the military before curoiling in the Design Institute of Chicago. One of his assignments at the institute was to photograph the architecture of Sullivan. Nickel soon became a crusader for preserving Sullivan's work. At the time, many of his buildings were slated for demolition. While trying to photograph and salvage architectural ornaments from the Chicago Stock Exchange before it was torn down, Nickel was killed when the floor collapsed beneath him. On April 14, 1972, Nickel's friends noticed him missing. Though it was not unusual for Nickel to disappear for several days to photograph buildings in other parts of the country, it was finding his car near the stock exchange that eventually led to the dramatic discovery of his death on May 9, 1972.

"This man gave his life in pursuit of the preservation and documentation of this architecture." Harasimowicz said.

The exhibit was brought to the University Museum with the help of the Art Institute of Chicago and several individuals, some of whom loaned architectural ornaments from their personal collection to the exhibit. Many ornaments also were borrowed from SIU at Edwardsville's museum.

Internet sites support, mock Ebonics

Ebonics cannot seem to escape the torment of the World Wide Web, where it tends to be jeered more than revered. Here are two sites supporting Ebonics. followed by two dedicated to discussion and four taking a sardonic stab at it.

The Oakland Unified School District is the proving ground for the controversial the proving ground on the commonstan-dard "black English," or Ebonics. The district's site includes the school board's unanimous December resolution recognizing Ebonics as a teaching tool and a statement from the board on its decision.

http://www.west.net/~joyland/Oakl and.htm

This page summarizes the Oakland School Board's policy aiming to improve English proficiency by using language unique to African-American students in the classroom.

It briefly lists and explains some of the misconceptions surrounding the Ebonics controversy and outlines the rationale behind the policy adopted,

Charles Dorsett's personal editorial page on Ebonics. It is not a polished academic paper, but it does give a lot of facts, as well as his own opinion. He does not admit to being pro or con on the issue, but does suggest that the subject is a multiple choice question.

Dorsett refers to Ebonics as an expression, but also bashes the teachers who are firmly against the subject. Dorsett brings up the point that at many univer-sities, college students learn to speak different languages with different accents.

He states whatever language is being studied the student will be able to identify and describe the rules that make up the grammatical system. He then poses question of what the correct grammatical rules are for Ebonics. In his page, Dorsett describes 14 different dialects

"Da Offishul Ebonics "Hood." sponsored by I Can't Belleve it's not English. is the home of the Ebonics Aptitude Test (EAT). The multiple-choice test can be taken on screen with results returned via e-mail in a few minutes.

The 'hood also includes a modest library of literature translated into Ebonics. Among them is a version of "The Rhyme of the Ancient Mariner" and Plato's "The Defense of Socrates." A handful of translated nursery rhymes round out the collection.

The 'Lectric Library of Classical Literature has a more extensive collection of classic literature translated into Ebonics. Among the "E-Bliterated" works EDORICS. Among the E-Billerated works are "Faradice Lawst (Fust Book)" by "Jim Milton," "Damlet - De "MAN" O Demark" by "Willy Shakpeer" and "W. automotive technology from St. Louis, said he went to the retirement party to remember the good times he had at SIUC.

"We used to go listen to Jim play in his band on the weekend," he said. "Jim has always loved music, and he is always loved music, and he is preity good on the drums." Dehman said SIUC is loosing an asset because of White's retirement. While White was at SIUC, the automotive technology program was selected as the most outstanding program in the nation by the Vocation Association for automobiles.

White won the only award at the University from EJ. Simon, the SIUC official who hired White, for his outwho first while, to the University. In 1975, White also won the Outstanding Teachers award from SIUC students in automotive technology,

"Jim is one of the sharpest Dehman said. "He loves to fix things, and that is lacking in our industry."

It was announced at the retirement party that a Jim White scholarship fund may be set up for $20,000 for a student in automotive technology, but it is still in the developmental stages.

Dave Knecht, an 1963 enduate of automotive technology from Lansing, Mich. said be thinks such a scholar-ship would make White's dedication to the automotive industry live on.

"Jim has such good dedi-cation," he said, "You could call him at 6 a.m. and he would be at the college.

DAILY EGYPTIAN

Knecht said he works for Oldsmobile, and the compa-ny considers SIUC's automotive technology program the best in the United States.

"Jim ran a top-quality pro gram, and he always paid attention to detail," he said.

Elaine Vitello, dean of the College of Applied Sciences and Arts, said the search for a new chairperson is going to be national and is still ? the developmental stage.

White said he is going to miss the people he worked with most of all.

There are no words to express what I feel about this party," he said.

"I am still honored and shocked."

Andy Volpert, a senior in education from Danville and president of the College Republicans, said his organization has seen an increase in the amount of freshings who participate in politics.

The underclassmen are some of the most dedicated students in the club," he said. "Now it is gradually going towards the majority being freshmen and sophomores." He said the group has seen great help from the freshman class, but he said there are many students who are simply not interested in politics.

"All of our freshmen voted, and we registered a lot of freshmen who said they were voting for the first time," he said.

"Apparently, though, there are a lot people who are apathetic."

However, despite some problems, Motsinger said she still is impressed with the vast majority of the cam-pus' accessibility to dis-abled students. SIUC always has maintained a position of easing the bur-den of its disabled students, though the last few years there has been an increase in the University's support, an SIUC ADA spokesman

"In terms of responding to the ADA guidelines, SIUC has been a leader," said Seymour Bryson, SIUC's ADA officer and an executive assistant to the chancellor.

LONG ROAD HOME:

SIUC loses third straight road game despite Tucker's return.

RYAN KEITH DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The return of the Saluki men's basketball team's top rebounder was not enough Wednesday night as SIUC extended its losing streak to

Junior forward Rashad Tucker returned from a two-grame suspension with three points and nine rebounds, but the Salukis fell to Southwest Missouri State rebounds, but the Salukis telt to Southwest Missouri State University 73-58.

With the loss, the Salukis fall to 8-9 overall and 1-5 in the Missouri Valley Conference. Southwest improved to 14-3 overall and 4-2 in conference play in front of 7,638 at the Hammons Center in Springfield, Mo

Mo.
"We got an old-fashioned butt-whipping tonight," Saluki coach Rich Herrin said,

Tucker struggled offensively in his first game back since leaving SIU Arena at halftime of SIUC's 76-70 loss to Illinois State University Jan. 12 and being sus-pended for SIUC's two road games last weekend. Tucker made just one of 13 field goal attempts and com-mitted three turnovers while playing 29 minutes off the bench Wednesday.

The Salukis opened slowly on the offensive end in both halves Wednesday, Southwest jumped out wednesday. Southwest jumped out to a 27-11 lead in the first half, but two three-point field goals by sophomore forward Monte Jenkins sparked a 12-0 Saluki run to close the gap to 29-23.

SIUC drew within two points at 29-27 and had a chance to tie the game, but junior guard Troy Hudson missed a layup, and Southwest closed the half with a 4-0 run to take a 33-27 lead into the locker room.

Southwest then effectively sealed the win with an 11-0 nun to open the lead. The Salukis drew as close as ten points to 50-40 on a three-point field goal by junior guard Shane Hawkins, but Southwest responded to each Saluki run with a run of their own in breaking their two-game losing streak.

Herrin said Southwest's run to open the second half proved to be too much to overcome.

"We played very poorly to open the second half," Herrin said. "They got on a big roll and made their free throws to put us away."

with 20 points, including four three-point field goals. Jenkins added another solid performance with 13 points, while Hawkins and sophomore center James Watts chipped in eight points each.

Adding to Southwest's scoring runs, the Salukis had a difficult time from the field Wednesday. The Salukis shot 30 percent from the field, with Watts, Hawkins and Jenkins a combined 10-of-31. Southwest finished the game shooting 44 percent from the field.

The Salukis were shut down on the backboards by the Bears in the second half. Southwest used its height advantage at the power forward and center positions to hold the Salukis to just one shot on its offensive end on each trip, and out-rebounded SIUC 52-41 for the

The Bears also gained an advantage on their own offensive end, where they were able to get several attempts from the field each trip and score from the inside over the smaller Salukis.

Herrin said the Bears' height gave them an advantage over the Salukis.

"We played very good defense in the last 10 minutes of the first half." Herrin said. "But they've got some skilled big people who took our post players out of the game in the sec-

The Salukis look to get back on the winning track when they begin a three-game home stand against Indiana State University Saturday at SIU Arena at 7:05 p.m.
Herrin said his squad must be ready to play against Indiana State Saturday.

"We'll have to regroup and come ready to play Saturday," Herrin said.

Siefert also has won two Super Bowls with 49ers, who recently dumped the eight-year veteran.

Just think if Hart could get

• The recruiting process would run itself. Siefert's reputation alone would attract a number of players throughout the region. Siefert's name would become commonplace in every high school in the state,

• ABC, NBC, ESPN and FOX all would be negotiating with each other over who's going to cover Saluki football. Vince Cellini and Sports Illustrated's Peter King would analyze Siefert's Saturday trategy on CNNSI every Friday night, while the St. Louis Post Dispatch would lead with SIUC instead of that other team.

 McAndrew Stadium's ticket sales would skyrocket into huge numbers, boosting the program

 Hart is looking for someone to stick around for a while. Siefert would not leave until he established SIUC as a formidable Gateway contender and national title prospect.
Oh, the potential for success is endless.

Yet, the potential is not without its share of problems.

For one, Siefert would have a hard time making the transition from the ranks of the NFL to Division I-AA football. Yet it does afford him the opportunity to redefine his coaching skills on an entirely different level.

But, the harsh reality is this: ould SIUC afford Siefert? bluop Probably not.

I mean, he is used to a pretty hefty income. Although they bid him ado, the 49er's organization still is giving Siefert $2 million a year for his troubles. That would buy a pretty hefty house in Carbondale. Hell, that would buy most of Carbondale.

Clearly, the benefits outweigh the costs, and Siefert is the man for the job. Hopefully Hart has considered that.

After all, hiring Siefert is the best thing for Saluki football.

Rodman suspended games

BAD WORM: Loss of ad deals could cost far more than NBA fine.

THE WASHINGTON POST

A California-based hamburger chain announced Tuesday it has pulled its television commercials featuring Chicago Bulls star forreaturing Cincago buts star for-ward Dennis Rodman, Carl's Jr. Restaurants, becomes the second company in the past two months to alter its relationship with Rodman, one of the NBA's most proficient rebounders who has become equally well known for his behavior on and off the court.

Last Friday, Rodman was sus-pended for at least 11 garnes with-cut pay for kicking a television camerarman who was sitting court-side during agents in Minneapolica side during a game in Minneapolis a week ago. Commissioner David Stern also will require Rodman to meet with a counselor designated by the league. The National Basketball Players Association — the players' union — has filed a grievance, but Rodman is serving his second suspension in six weeks.

Suzi Brown, a spokeswoman for Carl's Jr., which has 665 stores, said the company on Monday made the decision to drop Rodman from its television commercials, kodman made one commercial as part of the company's 18-month-long cam-paign known as, "If it doesn't get all over the place, it doesn't belong in your face." The commercial initially aired last May during the NBA playoffs.

"When we decided to use Mr. Rodman, the things he did to gain publicity were relatively harmless to others," Brown said. "In light of the recent incident, and the suspenne recent incident, and the suspen-sion and mandatory counseling, we decided to pull the commercial for the time being."

Eastman Kodak was in the midst of a Rodman-based television covmercial campaign for its new Advantix camera last month when Rodman used profanity during a live postgame TV interview after he was ejected from a game. That outburst, in which he also criticized referees and Stern, prompted the Bulls to suspend Rodman for two games and left Kodak having to explain its Kodak altered its campaign and indicated it probably will not retain Rodman as a spokesman.

"We would certainly think long and hard and consider the experi-ence we just had," before using him again," Kodak spokesman Charlie Smith said.

Football Rumors

The deadline SIUC Athletic Director Jim Hart set on filling the coaching vacancy left by former Saluki football coach Shawn Watson is fast approaching. Hart, who is in Chicago interviewing like-ly candidates, said he prefers to have someone named by Friday.

one named by rrivay.

Only thing is, Hart has not given any indication as to who is in the running for Watson's old job. Yet it seems members of the Saluki football team prefer to promote compose from industry and of loyality. someone from in-house out of loyalty.

Several players confirmed Wednesday that a petition, signed by 40 members of the team, was submitted to Hart requesting that he promote defensive coordinator Linwood Ferguson, Ferguson also served as Watson's assistant head coach.

According to one player, Hart listened to what the players had to say and accepted the petition, but did not comment on it.

Ferguson has been with SIUC since 1994, after a six-year stint at North Carolina A & T, who were ranked among the nation's top 10 from 1990-1992.

Not to belittle Ferguson, or any other member of SIUC's staff for that matter, but rejecting the petition is not much of a sur-prise. Hart made it perfectly clear when Watson stepped down Jan. 6 that he was not going to promote any current assistant coach-

Hart's aim is to find the best qualified coach for the University. That is his first and foremost responsibility.

Given the talent pool that's available across the nation, Hart has chosen to examine all available coaches. Both the Division I-A and AA ranks witnessed a tremendous turnover of coaches last season. It's simply a pool too rich in talent to pass up and is vital enough to explore in depth.

Yet speculation as to who will be standing on the sideline next season has surfaced as well.

It has been rumored that former University of Illinois coach Lou Tepper was vying for the position. Funny thing is, that's news to Hart, who said Tepper has not contacted him.

Thank goodness Tepper's name is only a rumor.

After running Illinois' program into the ground, Tepper should not be allowed the privilege of stepping onto a football field, let alone Southern Illinois University.

Tepper left the Illini program in shambles with a 25-31-2 record in five seasons of work. Last season the Illini went 2-9 under Tepper. The season was one of poor football and poor attendance, which ultimately led to and poor automatice, which animately rea to Tepper's dismissal.

After leaving Illinois, Tepper took over as defensive coordinator at Maryland. Yet less than a month after joining the Terps, Tepper opted to leave to pursue another head coaching job.

His departure at Maryland apparently was the spark that started the speculation concerning SIUC.

Forget Tepper.

Because there is such a talented pool of coaches available these days, maybe Hart will take things a little further.

Tepper is not the man we want in McAndrew. Why not go for T-Bone rather than chopped steak?

George Siefert is available. Hey, it's not such a bad idea.

Think about what a coach like Siefert could do for the Saluki football program. After all, he holds the NFL's best-winning percentage of all-time with an eight-year 108-35 record with the San Francisco 49ers,

IT CAN BE DONE: SIUC's championship hopes revive as SMSU's 66 home game winning streak finally ends.

DONNA COLTER DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Not many coaches have an idea of who will come out on top in the women's Missouri Valley Conference regular season even though half of it is finished

Until Monday, Southwest Missouri State University remained the only undefeated team in the MVC, but the team's streak ended with a 61-60 overtime loss to Illinois State University in Springfield, Mo.

The loss was the Lady Bears' first conference regular season home loss in 66 games, and home court wins are something SMSU coach Cheryl Burnett knows are very impor-

"The conference race is dictated by who takes care of their home court," she said. "All conference games are tough, but the second half is a lot more difficult than the first half, and that is what makes home games for us so critical."

The Bears are 6-1 in the MVC, SIUC is 4-3 and stands fourth in the conference. SIUC Coach Cindy Scott said SMSU's loss was a good sign for the conference. "I think it's great for the conference that somebody went and beat them on their floor," Scott said, "Parity is good in competition. It gives hope to people that they can go in there and win, where before you would go into Southwest and say 'Oh, God!' "

Scott said it is hard to win at SMSU, where crowds exceed 7,000, because of the atmosphere at Hammons Student Center,

"No. I, Southwest is very good," she said.
"And you put them in front of 7,000 fans and it is very intimidating. I think officials get intimidated in the environment, and I think the players do, too."

Scott said she is happy the conference is not being dominated by the Lady Bears this season.

"The conference has proven to be very, very equal this year," she said. "The race is probably still up for grabs. Certainly Illinois State and Southwest are in the front seat, but we are not going to write ourselves off yet."

With Illinois State upsetting SMSU on their home court, Scott said she still doesn't know who — if anyone — will upset Southwest this year.

"They (Illinois State) are certainly in the driver's seat," she said, "They have a two-game lead on us, and we hurt ourselves bad with that loss to the University of Evansville."

Wichita State University stands at 3-4 in the MVC, but coach Linda Hargrove firmly believes the race still is up for grabs.

"I think it (the MVC) is very competitive. and teams, from the very top to bottom, are all strong and can beat each other on any given night," she said. "It was evident when Evansville beat SIUC, and then when SIUC beat Illinois State, which is their only loss."

Hargrove believes SMSU's loss at home gives the whole conference a chance.

"I think the loss gives everyone hope to win over there," she said, "Drake University almost beat them there, and we almost beat them there.

'The loss will give teams a little bit of confidence entering the conference tournament that Southwest can be beaten again."

Burnett believes her team's loss means that many teams can win the conference tournament, which SMSU will host March 6-8 in Springfield, Mo. "I think this year in the conference tournament, we have any of eight teams who can win it, more so than before," Burnett said. "I think in the MVC this year, from top to bottom, there is more parity than ever."

With half of the conference season in the past, Scott said she still has no predictions about how the conference race will fall into place.

"I would like to think we could win, but there are a lot of games left," she said. "We haven't done what I thought we would have

Burnett agreed with Scott that the conference race is not like it was years past.

"It is really hard to predict this year. The unexpected already has happened," she said. "I can't give expectations and don't see how anyone in the conference could."
