Collett proposes Bicameral system

By Jan Tranchita
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A proposal to make Student Government a two-house legislative body was introduced by Sue Collett, student body vice president, at a Friday luncheon for student organization presidents.

Ms. Collett's proposal suggests a second body composed of all student organization presidents. This presidents' council would function alongside Student Senate in a legislative and advisory capacity, said Joe Krzysiak, assistant to Jon Taylor.

"It would allow much more input into Student Government," Krzysiak said. If implemented, campus organizations would be doubly represented—one senator and the organization president—in two separate Student Government organs, he said. A plan to allow graduate student participation in Student Government was also discussed at the meeting. Krzysiak said that such a move would increase involvement in Student Government, and thus increase its effectiveness. Currently, only undergraduates are eligible for office.

Representatives from ten groups attended the meeting to discuss problems facing their organizations.

Don LaSaine, president of the School of Business Student Council, said, "The key issue is finding a way to get students involved. Student groups need more representation in Student Government," he said. Taylor, who planned the luncheon, said, "We want to make Student Government as service-oriented for students as possible. We want to touch people and involve them."

"We want to involve people behind the scenes and have them help out. This is why I ran—to put human resources behind Student Government."

Taylor said he hoped Student Government would "listen for the first month" to ideas and problems of different groups.

One main concern, voiced by several presidents, is administrative hampering of government actions.

Gene Plocher, School of Agriculture Student Council president, contends that administrative questioning of budget requests makes action difficult.

Bill Clarke, assistant to Taylor, explained that money is given to administrators and not directly to governing councils. Consequently, problems occur if administrators disagree with use of funds, Clarke said.

Ali Schams, international student representative, said he thought an effort is being made by the International Student Center to "alienate international and American students."

He said that the "great cultural opportunity of an international center is lost," and that most foreign students dislike the center and would like to see changes made.

Carbondale to utilize new purchasing system

By Monroe Walker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A centralized purchasing system will be initiated by the City of Carbondale next Monday, City Manager Carroll J. Fry announced Friday morning.

He said centralized purchasing will place responsibility upon each department head to manage his own expenditures and work within budgetary funds.

"A centralized purchasing program will mean substantial savings to the city," he said, "because the purchasing agent can allow more time in comparing prices and can buy in quantity."

Fry said that in the past the city has not known what it owed because of uncertainty about purchases made.

"Each department was spending and nobody knew who was purchasing what," he said. "With centralized purchasing, nobody buys except on a purchase order, so we know where the budget stands."

Jerry Maxwell, assistant city manager, said that centralized purchasing will force departments to spend within their budgets.

Centralized purchasing will incorporate "everything that the city buys," he said, "and that includes all goods and services."

Maxwell said that it will allow for the "purchase of goods at the lowest possible price, increase internal efficiency and save money."

Questioned about the amount of savings to the city, Maxwell said that "we can't ascertain at this point where those savings are or exactly how much they will be in dollar volume."

Fry said that the information will be supplied as soon as it is available.

Joseph O'Rourke, purchasing agent, said that both the business community and staff members "seem to be in favor of it."

He explained the procedure, stating that, "if a department head submits a requisition to the purchasing department by 10:30 a.m., they will receive a purchase order before 5 p.m. except in those cases where bids are required."

Fry said that centralized purchasing had already been set up by city ordinance and "what we're doing is implementing it."

He said that under the old system, the results were about the same as "turning your wife loose with a check book."

Letters will be sent out to "all merchants and vendors" informing them of the procedure to follow for submitting bills to the city for payment.

Nominee's position termed 'radical'

Connally won't back McGovern

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Former Treasury Secretary John Connally said Friday he will not support Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern but rather will work to enlist Democrats in President Nixon's re-election drive.

The man who until two months ago was the only Democrat in Nixon's cabinet accused McGovern of "sabotaging the President's Vietnam peace efforts and sharply criticized other McGovern positions as 'radical in character.'"

As he emerged from a three-hour meeting with Nixon, Connally again left open the possibility he would accept any offer to be Nixon's vice presidential running mate.

"I haven't closed any doors and I don't want to," Connally said, adding that "I don't think it will be offered."

Connally told newsmen he would remain a Democrat but would "do everything in my power" in the months ahead to encourage Democrats to defect to Nixon in the general election.

The former Texas governor came to the Western White House to brief Nixon on a 35-day, 15-nation around-the-world tour he took at Nixon's request after resigning from his cabinet post.

He said they discussed the "special assignment" Nixon said last month he had in mind for Connally. Actually, Connally said, "we talked about three different assignments."

He wouldn't name them, saying Nixon would make an announcement in a week or so, but said they were "intermittent jobs" not of a political nature, possibly involving some foreign travel.

The assignments, Connally added, are "not anything earth shaking." He ruled out a role for himself in the Vietnam peace talks and in negotiations of a nuclear arms treaty with the Soviet Union.

From the tone of Connally's comment, it was clear much of his session with Nixon dealt with politics and Nixon's re-election campaign.

He singled out for criticism McGovern's pledge to bring home all American troops and prisoners from Vietnam within 90 days after his inauguration.

"Obviously, a president of the United States has no power to bring home prisoners of war" until Hanoi is ready to release them, he said.

Connally said McGovern's end-the-war pledge was "an unfair statement" which "sabotages the efforts" of Nixon to negotiate an end to the war. He said there is no hope for a negotiated settlement so long as the Democratic nominee is campaigning on such a platform.

He also criticized McGovern's economic policies "as the height of fiscal irresponsibility" and said his promise to grant amnesty to young men who left the country to avoid the draft was "a glorification of men who refused to serve their nation."

Connally's attack on the Democratic nominee appeared to signal the start of a continuing White House assault on McGovern and it indicated Nixon's campaign will hit hard on the senator's liberal positions.

De-sexing planned for course titles

By Bernard F. Whalen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The removal of the word "man's" from the titles of general studies areas A, B and C is one of five policy changes that will be recommended to the Faculty Council next Tuesday.

Gene Dybvig, chairman of the general studies joint standing committee, said there is no reason to exclude women by limiting titles to men only.

"This is a world of people," he said.

The equality-of-the-sexes movement on campus gained a victory earlier this week when SIU Security Police agreed to change their motto from "We Serve All Men" to "We Serve All People." The motto is printed on the rear of the patrol cars.

The Area titles to be de-sexed now are Man's Physical Environment and Biological Inheritance, Man's Social Inheritance and Social Responsibility and Man's Insights and Appreciations.

Area D will remain Organization and Communication of Ideas. The committee recommends changing Area E from Health and Physical Development to "Human Health and Well Being."

Dybvig said the Area E title change was recommended to get away from what he called the "P.E. connotation." He said the present title has a physical education implication and the courses encompass much more than P.E.

In Area D the committee recommends GSD 107 Basic College Math be dropped and all students be required to demonstrate a knowledge equivalent to GSD 106, Intermediate Algebra, a noncredit course.

In the report the committee said mathematics belongs in the communications area, but at the same time some assurance should be made that students have the basic math skills to handle the everyday problems that arise. The GSD 106 recommendation is designed to cover those students who enter with no math background. Area D previously included English composition, speech, math and foreign language.

The committee said elementary foreign language is not appropriate for areas devoted to the "Organization and Communication of Ideas" and "Insights and Appreciations." It was recommended foreign language courses be returned to their respective departments and be offered as departmental courses.

The final policy change recommends the total credit hour requirement in Area D be reduced from 14 to 12 hours. However, the committee also recommended the total credit hour requirement in Area E be increased from five to six hours. The total general studies credit hour requirement, as recommended by the committee, would be 96 instead of the present 67 hours. In 1969 students were required to fulfill 96 hours in general studies areas.

The committee based some of their recommendations on an enrollment changes and junior college transfer students. Between the fall of 1968 and the fall of 1972 there was a 40 per cent reduction in the freshman enrollment. From 7,465 to 4,538.

The committee also feels there has been an increase in the number of transfer students who have already fulfilled many of their General Studies requirements elsewhere. Junior college students with an Associate Arts degree will have completed all General Studies requirements, according to the committee.

The committee said one of its aims was to create as much flexibility for the student as possible in fulfilling general studies requirements. The committee recommendations will be presented to the faculty council as a legislative proposal and will be submitted to a vote.

Signs guide motorists to trauma centers

New signs directing motorists to the nearest hospitals with trauma centers for emergency medical care are being placed along Illinois freeways at various locations. William F. Cellini, transportation secretary, announced Thursday.

The signs are approximately five by ten feet with white letters on a blue background denoting "HOSPITAL TRAUMA CENTER" and the direction.

Other signs identified by a large "H" are also spaced along roads and streets to guide motorists to hospitals with trauma center facilities.

Professor urges Chinese rapport

By Rita Fung
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Oliver J. Caldwell made a strong plea to all Americans to establish a strong rapport and understanding with the people in China during this week's "Lunch and Learn" talk in the Student Center.

Brushing his silvery gray hair, the higher education professor pleaded: "We just can't ignore a quarter of this world's population."

"We've had a racist attitude toward all Asians. I've run into that over and over again. Our deliberate ignorance of the people in Asia can't go on," the soft-spoken, China-born professor stressed.

Caldwell applauded the Nixon trip to Peking, adding that "I hope we have sense enough not to perpetuate our own myths. If we do, we'll lose the last hope of peaceful coexistence with China."

About the Nixon trip, he pointed out one thing that was not published in newspapers: "Nobody on Nixon's staff speaks Chinese; therefore a translation gap existed."

"Two people should have gone with the President: John P. Davies and John Service. Davies just got back from his exile in Peru because he was branded a Communist during the McCarthy era," Caldwell said.

(Davies and Service were advisers to Mao Tse-tung before the Communists came into power in 1949).

"Davies was absolutely fluent in Chinese and he knew Mao and Chou En-Lai personally. He would put Kissinger in the shadow, and you can't have that," Caldwell jested in a half-way serious tone.

"Kissinger won't let anybody who knows (China) more than he does come into his circle," Caldwell rapped on, his stern-set face betraying a sense of humor.

"He wants to be the Metternich of this century. His old colleagues at Harvard are really down on him," Caldwell said.

"The American people are the most illiterate people on earth in languages," Caldwell estimated in all seriousness.

"In China today, English is a compulsory language in all schools, but Chinese is not even considered as a viable second language in many universities."

"I have a dream for SIU: I'd like to see us spend a little money in the University to buy a compound in Nanking for the purpose of graduate studies and research. I should like to see us welcoming 'communist' scholars to this campus," he continued with full vigor.

"I was in Washington this past week. The White House wanted us to do this. The only problem is that federal money cannot be used for cultural exchange with countries we don't have diplomatic ties with."

Caldwell indicated that he has presented the idea of the Nanking compounds to President Derge and "Derge is interested in the proposal."

He explained that Nanking is a realistic place to choose because of its proximity to other big cities and its easy access to Chinese civilization.

Program to help police, community relations begins

By Daryl Stephenson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

University police this week began implementing a program to improve relations between police and the campus community.

The program is under the direction of Don White, training and community relations officer, who Monday began providing officers with daily instruction on professional police ethics, the police image and improving the officer-citizen contact.

As each of the three shifts of campus security officers reports for roll call—at 7 a.m., 4:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.—the officers go to Trailer N, 5 near the security office for a half hour of instruction.

Material for the program, such as film strips, tape recordings and books, are being provided by the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP).

White said Thursday that it probably will take the rest of summer quarter to cover all the material and, through discussion, relate it to problems distinctive to a college campus.

"We know more about our campus problems than an outsider would," he said. "The IACP material can tell us what other police departments are doing, but it's our own officers, familiar with the campus and the campus people, who can best determine if an idea will work here."

White said that in the sessions held this week, "most of the officers have said that their relationship with the university community is excellent. I agree with this assessment. I have worked closely with students for about a year now."

and I have found very few negative feelings."

Near the end of the quarter, White said, outside experts in the human relations field will be invited to address the sessions. "These will include SIU instructors in such fields as sociology and psychology," White said.

"We'll probably give them more time than 30 minutes," he said, "maybe as much as two to four hours."

White, who is also a part-time student in administration of justice, said the program is being started at the request of T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services.

Mager had referred to the program last week when he made public an investigating committee's report on the throwing of tear gas May 11 and 12 in the Brush Towers University Park area. Mager also said that the report pointed to "an obvious need to continue efforts to improve coordination and control of law enforcement agencies."

White said that currently there are no arrangements for participation in the program by other law enforcement agencies, such as the Carbondale and Jackson County police.

However, he said that he and the Carbondale police had jointly applied to the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission for federal funds to implement community relations training in all departments.

"Our request was turned down," White said, "but the city's was approved for consideration, based on the feeling there was a greater need there."

White said the city's request will receive further review by the commission July 28, and, if approved, would mean that four Carbondale officers would work with two university policemen in community relations.

Funds for the commission, said White, are provided under the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration of the Justice Department.

White emphasized that student participation would greatly benefit the program.

"We need students to come in and share their thoughts with us during the sessions," White said. Such face-to-face meetings, he said, would give both students and officers the opportunity to see both sides of police work.

"Currently, I think we have a good relationship," said White, "but there is always room for improvement."

White said the sessions will be held every day for about two weeks, and then they will be reduced to about twice a week.

"We don't want to overdo it," White said.

$36.5 million goal set for McGovern campaign

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—McGovern forces are asking wealthy individuals for $4.5 million in loans kicking off a fund-raising strategy partly styled after Republican methods that have brought millions from the rich to President Nixon's campaigns.

A private meeting of select fund raisers for Sen. George McGovern was told the financial goal for the fall election campaign is $36.5 million, with $15 million of that to come from large donors.

This is an apparently reluctant switch for the populist, McGovern, who raised more than 80 percent of his pre-Democratic Convention funds from small donations solicited by direct mail.

The loan fund is to cover heavy immediate expenses in voter registration and advance telephone deposits, McGovern's chief money men told the meeting which was held hours before the national convention began.

"We need $4 million to $5.5 million to register new voters," Miles Rubin told the money raisers. Rubin is a New York lawyer who will head the special-gifts campaign, which seeks donations of $5,000 and up.

Said Rubin of voter registration: "If there was to be one effort alone in the campaign, that would be it."

He said also that telephone service deposits of up to $1.25 million would be required, $425,000 in California alone.

The loans are to be paid with $1 out of each $4 in subsequent campaign contributions.

Rubin and Henry Kimelman, a Virgin Islands importer who is McGovern's finance chairman and second highest contributor to date, confided to the meeting they were patterning their special gifts campaign after their opposition.

Morris Dees, a Montgomery, Ala., attorney, devised a successful direct-mail campaign that raised $4 million for McGovern's primary election races.

Smoothing tracks

Workers eliminate unused tracks and make necessary repairs in a project to improve railroad crossings on city streets. IC track repairs to smooth downtown

By Monroe Walker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Railroad crossings in Carbondale will be smoothed out and improved on at least four streets, according to J. W. Harrel, assistant superintendent of the Illinois Central Railroad.

Speaking in a telephone interview recently, Harrel said, "We will eliminate all unnecessary tracks to give greater access at the crossings to vehicles and pedestrians."

He said that the four crossings are Jackson, Oak, College, and Main Streets and that they would be smoothed over with tar.

"Initially, we worked on College Street," he said, "and we've completed that." Harrel said that Oak and Jackson streets are being worked on at the present time and that Jackson is almost completed. "We will get on Main Street next," he said, adding that originally Walnut was scheduled for paving improvements but, "it is a pretty good street crossing already."

He said that the city and Illinois Central were putting up the money for the repair work. No cost estimate has been made.

David Rosenthal, Carbondale finance director, said, "The railroad is paying for the pulling up of the tracks and the city is paying for the reconstruction of the streets."

He said that he doesn't know the exact amount and that he may not know until all of the necessary repairs have been made.

Bill Schwegman, director of public works, said that it is difficult to estimate total costs, but that repairs on College Street cost $3500. He said that included in the cost was resurfacing the street one block from Washington to Illinois.

Indian art, crafts displayed at Mobile Museum exhibit

By University News Service

A collection of contemporary paintings by American Indian artists, together with Indian crafts and artifacts is currently on display in the Mobile Museum Exhibit Hall at SIU.

The paintings, including works by Harrison Begay (Hask Yanne Yah), Jerry Lee, Wo Peen (Louis Gonzales), Gilbert Atencio, Ray Naha, Adeo Dodge, Tonita Pena, Michael Kabotie (Lomaqywesla), Louis Valdez, Rafael Medina, Joseph Medina, Charlie Yazzie and Gerald Maulson, are from the collection of Dr. and Mrs. Oscar Thoeny of Phoenix, Ariz.

Among the Museum artifacts displayed are ceramics, jewelry, Kachina dolls, (representing ritual dancers) carved from cottonwood root, beaded leatherwork, a huge painting (now fading) on the inner surface of a buffalo hide, a rawhide saddle and beaded saddle-blanket, weapons and domestic tools.

The exhibition will continue until Sept. 1. Visiting hours are from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. There is no admission charge.

Workshoppers to present 'Cosusudeka Plus Nine'

Fourteen students enrolled in the Summer Dance Workshop and the Oral Interpretation and Theater Workshop will present "Cosusudeka Plus Nine" at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Furr Auditorium.

All students in the production have participated daily in an hour and a half class in movement for dance and theater and in an intensive six-hour workshop in contemporary dance.

The workshop is directed by W.

Grant Gray and has been led by Kent Baker, a graduate assistant in dance-theater.

The program will feature works choreographed by Baker and the students themselves. It also will feature a re-staging of Gray's dance-theater piece which interprets James Thurber's "The Last Flower."

The high school workshops all culminate this week. The production is free and open to the public.

County punch-card voting could replace paper ballot

By Ed Donnelly
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An electronic punch-card voting system will likely be used for the Nov. 4 state and national elections to help handle 12,000 new Jackson County voters and facilitate ballot counting.

"The new system could speed up the counting procedure with little error and save money for the county," said Ms. Noel Stallings, Jackson County Board election committee chairman.

Final approval to convert from the paper ballot to mechanical punch-card system is expected at the Aug. 9 meeting of the County Board, according to Ms. Stallings. Machines would be rented.

"Bids have been sent out to three voting machine companies but they must comply with our requirements. It looks promising," Ms. Stallings said.

A new voting system required by Illinois statute stipulates that "every county over 40,000 install mechanical voting machines by 1974."

Ms. Stallings said, "We could have chosen the more popular lever system but it has proven too expensive, too heavy and requires high storage costs."

Using a lever system, Jackson County would need 100 machines at $2,000 per machine, totalling $200,000. The punch-card system would require 200 devices at $165 apiece, totalling $33,000.

Punch-card voting

"Instead of spending three days counting, I hope this November we can finish by midnight," Ms. Stallings said.

"But the company must be willing to provide public and private instruction and insert the ballots with no commitment for future purchase.

"We will strictly try to rent for November but if it works as orderly as I expect, we could be in a position to purchase a system," Ms. Stallings said.

McGovern picks woman as Demo national chairman

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Breaking with tradition, Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern chose a woman on Friday to become national chairman of the party he now commands.

Jean Westwood of West Jordan, Utah, who helped manage McGovern's campaign, was the nominee's choice for Democratic national chairman.

She succeeded Lawrence F. O'Brien, twice the party's chairman.

A black, Basil Patterson of New York, was chosen for the committee's No. 2 post—although he was not McGovern's original choice.

McGovern said O'Brien had declined his requests to remain as chairman, citing personal reasons.

The South Dakota senator spent 2½ hours conferring with O'Brien in what he said was a final attempt to persuade him to stay. "I respect his wishes," McGovern said. "I regret it, but I respect it."

The selection of Mrs. Westwood began McGovern's reshaping of Democratic party machinery for his campaign against President Nixon. It is a process McGovern will continue as he takes a post-convention break at Custer, S.D., in the Black Hills of his home state.

Meanwhile, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton flew off to Kansas City for his first campaign appearance as the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

The national committee unanimously ratified McGovern's selection of Mrs. Westwood, a co-chairman of his campaign for the nomination. She played a leading role in managing the credentials contest that restored to McGovern his sweep of California delegates at the national convention, and foretold his nomination.

Mrs. Westwood, 48, became the first woman to assume the top post in either national party. Traditionally, in both parties, the vice chairman has been a woman.

McGovern reversed that. Patterson, a former New York state senator who ran for lieutenant governor in 1970, was elected vice chairman of the committee.

McGovern had chosen Pierre Salinger, a campaign aide, former White House press secretary, and briefly a senator from California, to assume that post.

Museum pieces

The two Kachina dolls (left) currently on display at the Mobile Museum Exhibit Hall at SIU represent deer dancers who impersonate various ancestral spirits in Hopi religious rituals. Snowy white leather Sioux dress (right) is believed to have been made about the turn of the century. At left of dress is a women's hairpin necklace made from the small legbones of deer, a decorative ornament which evolved from the warrior's breast-plate. (Photos by University News Service)

"WOULDN'T YOU KNOW IT—THAT BIG GREEN KID GOT AN 'A!'"

Campus briefs

After three years as director of the academic computing division of the computer science department, Dr. E. L. Lange is leaving SIU in September to take a position in zoology at the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee.

A graduate of the School of Agriculture at Purdue University in 1969, Lange holds a degree in population genetics from the Department of Animal Sciences and an equivalent of a master's in applied statistics.

At Wisconsin he will teach statistics and population genetics in the zoology department.

Rep. Kenneth J. Gray (D-Ill.) has announced that the Department of Interior will designate SIU's Outdoor Laboratory as a National Environmental Education Landmark.

The outdoor lab is a 6,500-acre tract located on Little Grass Lake in Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge. Four resident camps accommodate up to 500 campers most of the year.

The outdoor lab has classrooms, library, field ecology stations and floating laboratory and nature center. Two principal programs are offered by SIU, one emphasizing recreation for mentally and physically handicapped persons and the other environmental education for all ages.

Gray said National Environmental Education Landmark is a component of a National Park System program designed to assist American education in stimulating environmental learning. Other components of the program make National Park System areas available to classes and assist in the development of environmental educational materials.

Senator Eagleton called 'Kennedy-type Democrat'

By Larry Hall
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—Thomas F. Eagleton got his first taste of politics at the age of seven when his father, a prominent St. Louis attorney, took him along to the 1940 Republican National Convention.

But both father and son later became strong Democrats. And on Thursday the 42-year-old Eagleton, now Missouri's junior senator, was named by Sen. George McGovern to be his vice presidential running mate.

When he defeated incumbent Democratic Sen. Edward V. Long in a 1968 primary, Eagleton called politics his life long vocation.

"I never wanted to be a policeman or a cowboy like other kids," he said.

Eagleton has sometimes been referred to as a Kennedy-type Democrat. He is youthful in appearance, smiles easily even when the joke's at his expense and is a Roman Catholic.

Sen. Edward "Ted" Kennedy helped in Eagleton's senatorial campaign four years ago.

Eagleton dislikes being labeled either a conservative or a liberal, because he says his views depend on the issue involved. Friends and close associates regard him as a liberal on most matters.

When elected to the Senate four years ago, he called that the climax of "the ultimate ambition."

"I'd like to be regarded as a great U.S. senator," he said.

Thomas, Wallis named to All-America squad

Dan Thomas, former SIU baseball player and now a professional in the Milwaukee Brewer organization, has been named the 1972 All-America college baseball team first baseman by The Sporting News.

Joe Wallis, this year's regular Saluki center fielder, received an honorable mention.

Team members were chosen by the scouting directors of the 24 major league clubs.

Thomas, a 6-2, 190-pound speedster, hit .369 for the Salukis this year. He hit at a .351 clip his freshman year.

Thomas passed up two remaining years of collegiate ball to sign a $60,000 bonus with the Brewers. He is currently playing for the Evansville Triplets of the American Association.

Joining Thomas in the all-star infield were: Ron Pruitt, Michigan State, catcher; Dave Chalk, Texas, second base; Dave Roberts, Oregon, third base; Alan Bannister, Arizona State, shortstop.

The all-star outfield included Gene Stohs, Nebraska; Willie Norwood, LaVerne; Fred Lynn, Southern California.

Dick Ruthven, Fresno State and Randy Benson, Pfeiffer, make up the pitching corps.

The Sporting News also named Roberts the college player of the year. Roberts left the University of Oregon at school's end to sign a contract with the San Diego Padres and now is playing third base for the National League club.

Roberts beat out Chalk and Bannister in the close balloting for the player of the year.

Roberts, a 6-3, 216 pound junior, broke five Oregon season records this year and one career mark. He hit .410 and smashed 12 home runs.

Chalk, a repeat from last year's team, hit .370. His career batting mark is .369.

Bannister set NCAA season marks for hits, 101, runs batted in, 90, and total bases 177. In addition, he hit .380 with 10 triples and 13 home runs. He stole 28 bases, helping Arizona State to a 64-6 record.

Ruthven has a no-hitter to his credit this season. He won 10 games and lost three for a team that compiled a 31-26 record. He struck out 153 men in 111 innings and had a 1.53 earned run average.

Benson, a left hander, compiled a 8-2 record with an outstanding 0.57 ERA. He had 129 strikeouts in 79 innings pitched.

Ron Pruitt of Michigan State is the All-America catcher. He hit .392 in 35 games this year.

Southern California's Ron Dedeaux was named Coach of the Year by The Sporting News.

Olympic team practices in Hawaii

BLOOMINGTON—Illinois State guard Doug Collins and the rest of the U.S. Olympic basketball players are in Hawaii for three weeks of practice.

Don't be fooled by those travel brochures, though. This is no pleasure trip.

Coach Henry Iba and his assistant, Donald Haskins, sent the 12-player squad through a practice session shortly after the group re-assembled last Monday at San Francisco.

The squad left Thursday for Pearl Harbor Naval Station, and there will be more of the same. Plenty more.

"I heard the last Olympic team practiced 56 times in 23 days," said guard Kenny Davis, the only AAU player on the U.S. squad. Davis, a veteran of 150 international games in World and Pan-

American competition, met Collins and several other Olympic players in Chicago en route to the west coast.

The United States has a proud tradition to uphold when it begins play in the Munich Games on Aug. 27. The USA has won seven straight championships and 55 consecutive games since basketball was introduced to the Olympics in 1936. Iba has coached the last two title squads.

"So you can see the pressure that is on us," Collins said. "I don't want to be on the first losing team, and no one else on this squad does, either. That's why we're going to be practicing so hard."

Collins is from Benton, and is one of three midwesterners on the squad. The others are Jim Brewer of Maywood, and John Brown of Dixon, Mo. Brewer attends the University of Minnesota and Brown attends Missouri.

Other Olympians are Mike Banton, St. Joseph (Pa.); Tom Burleson, North Carolina; Davis, formerly of Georgetown (Ky.); Tom Henderson, San Jacinto Jr. College; Bob Jones, North Carolina; Dwight Jones,

Blames TV cameras

Fischer 'upset' again

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP)—Bobby Fischer charged Friday that tournament organizers seemed to "upset and provoke me" deliberately, but an appeals committee rejected his request to replay the chess game he forfeited to Boris Spassky.

The world champion from the Soviet Union was awarded Thursday's second game in the championship match when Fischer refused to appear, staying in his hotel suite, because he objected to three moving picture cameras in the hall.

Thus Spassky, who won the first game, was 2-0 in the 24-game series. He needs 10 more points to retain the title. A victory counts one point and a draw half a point.

Fischer said that if the forfeit ruling were reversed and all cameras were removed, he would go ahead with the match. This demand came despite the fact the movie and television rights allowed the Icelandic Chess Federation to offer a record $125,000 purse for both players.

Gumundur Thorarinnsson, president of the Icelandic federation, said the cameras would be removed, but that Spassky's game point would stay. That still left the future of the championship in doubt.

Thorarinnsson said that if the match was stopped by Fischer's disqualification, the organizers would not pay the loser's share. This meant that Fischer could not only lose his chances at the title but a great sum of money.

As the loser he would be entitled to $46,875 from the chess federation, $45,000 from a purse of about $120,000 offered by British financier James Slater, and $27,500 from television and movie rights.

In a seven-page letter to Lothar Schmid, the chief referee, the American said he was told the cameras would be silent and invisible but "nothing could have been farther from the facts."

He previously had told Schmid that although he could not see or hear the cameras, the knowledge that they were there made him nervous.

Andrew Davis, Fischer's lawyer who arrived in the morning from New York, appeared upset by the ruling. Asked if Fischer would appear for the third game Sunday, he replied: "I can't comment on that."

Yefim Gwiler, Spassky's second, and Viktor Ivonin, from the Soviet Sports Committee, urged strict application of the tournament rules.

These provide that the clock must be started if a player doesn't appear on time for a game and after an hour the game is forfeited if he doesn't appear.

U. of I. chooses athletic director

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Cecil N. Coleman, athletic director at Wichita State University, will take over the same post at the University of Illinois effective Aug. 1.

The announcement was made Friday by the Illinois chancellor.

J. W. Pettason said he would recommend the appointment of Coleman, 48, to the university's Board of Trustees at its meeting July 19.

Coleman took over the athletic directorship at Wichita State, a Missouri Valley Conference school, after a plane crash in October 1970 killed 31 persons, including WSU's athletic director and members of the school's football team.

In Wichita, Coleman told a news conference the decision to leave his present position was difficult to make.

"We hate to leave, but the opportunity is a good one," he said. "The University of Illinois came to me with the offer, and I can't see how I can refuse it."

He said Illinois is "from a professional standpoint...among the nation's top schools."

Coleman was one of three persons given final consideration for the Illinois directorship. The others were John Toner of the University of Connecticut and Bob Brigham of Northern Illinois University.

Coleman will succeed Gene Vance, who resigned effective July 1.

Coleman, president of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics, served as athletic director at Fresno State College in California before coming to Wichita. He also served as an assistant football coach at Arizona State University.

A native of South Bend, Ind., Coleman received both his bachelor's and master's degrees in education at Arizona State.

He and his wife, Margaret, have two daughters.
