Board attorney gives liquor testimony

By Charlotte Jones
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

C. Richard Gruny, legal counsel to the SIU Board of Trustees, said Wednesday he testified about two hours before a Jackson County grand jury about irregular expenditure of more than $5,000 of SIU money.

The money was used by top SIU officials to buy liquor for entertainment at the University House.

Gruny declined to give details of his testimony before the grand jury.

Gruny said he thought he was the first witness to be called for the investigation. He said he had heard that other witnesses including Hollis Merritt, assistant to the SIU president, and Thomas Leffler, chief SIU security officer, also had been called.

Merritt said he "had no comment about the case" when asked if he had been asked to appear before the grand jury.

Leffler could not be reached Wednesday.

Gruny, who was asked to testify Tuesday, said, "I told them what I knew and left."

Gruny said he investigated the case for about two weeks last spring and found that Danilo Orescanin, the former No. 2 man at SIU, had made out vouchers to the Holiday Inn for catering services when the money actually had been used to reimburse the inn for packaged liquor.

Gruny said he found no other irregularities in University spending.

Orescanin stepped down as executive vice president and campus treasurer and requested reassignment to teaching Feb. 28 after disclosing the use of the restricted funds, admitting he authorized the expenditures last winter.

Orescanin has said he didn't do anything wrong and he followed proper procedure in use of restricted funds to buy the liquor.

Former SIU President David R. Derge announced his resignation March 14 in what he called "the best interests of the University," two weeks after the irregularities were announced.

Derge has been reassigned to teach government at SIU beginning fall.

Orescanin is teaching business courses at SIU.

The grand jury which convened Monday is the first in session in Jackson County since the expenditure last February.

Goals committee hears suggestions by faculty, students, city residents

By Jeff Jouett
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Students, community residents, and faculty members were among those who provided suggestions at the second public hearing of the President's Advisory Committee on Goals and Objectives Wednesday.

By 9 p.m. seven speakers had addressed the committee and the participating audience of about 45 persons. The goals committee is soliciting input for a report it will present to Interim President Hiram Lesar for a Master Plan Phase IV statement for SIU.

A third public hearing is scheduled for Wednesday at 7 p.m. at a place to be announced, said Terry D. Mathias, administrative assistant for the committee.

The meeting was scheduled because many people were concerned because they did not get a chance to speak, Mathias said.

Martin Van Metre, executive vice president of Carbondale Chamber of Commerce, told the panel "What is good for SIU is good for Carbondale."

Van Metre called on SIU to continue its work in the social and economic improvement of the community.

"We'd like to see SIU become a model institution for the nation in administration, teaching, and faculty-student relations," he added.

Forest Lightle III, speaking on behalf of Illinois Public Interest Research Group (IPIRG) and Student Government, released some "major statistical conclusions" from a survey of student opinion conducted in spring and fall of 1973 by IPIRG.

Lightle said that of the more than 400 students sampled, 70 per cent agreed that SIU's educational goals are irrelevant to getting a good education.

Eighty per cent of the students questioned, he said, responded they felt they are forced to work to maintain a grade point average and not to learn.

Karen Stephens, a senior in English and Spanish Education, emphasized to the committee that the atmosphere in most classes is "trying to beat the system rather than learning."

Raymond C. Nowacki, associate professor of engineering mechanics and materials, told the panel he spoke as an individual in suggesting SIU move to improve the quality of its education and its graduates.

"Too many courses can be passed with too little effort on the part of the students," Nowacki said.

Citing examples of course evaluations in "The Mirror," a student critique of classes, Nowacki claimed a high percentage of students put little work into certain courses yet expects A and B grades.

"Of what benefit to society or anyone is a course whose content can be mastered with little or no effort on the part of students?" he asked.

Nowacki added that instructors "create the illusion of learning by giving higher grades," and there is an over emphasis on research and publication among faculty members at SIU.

"Higher education should emphasize quality and not quantity," he continued.

Loren Walker, a student in design, urged the committee to consider using technology to expand and coordinate the educational resources within the university.

"A lack of coordination between departments within the university has been a detriment in the past," he said.

Edward Adams, a Carbondale resident who said he was speaking as a "retired bureaucrat," suggested SIU "move away from the authoritarian philosophies that dominate higher education."

Adams called upon the committee to "develop a philosophy and organization to encourage more effective democracy."

Carbondale City Councilman Clark Vineyard asked the panel to "recognize SIU's distinction as the social and cultural center of the region."

"College should give students some real world experience before they graduate," he added.

Beg your pardon

Remarks addressed to the President's Advisory Committee on Goals and Objectives by two persons were transposed through a composing room error in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian, and the name of one of the persons was misspelled.

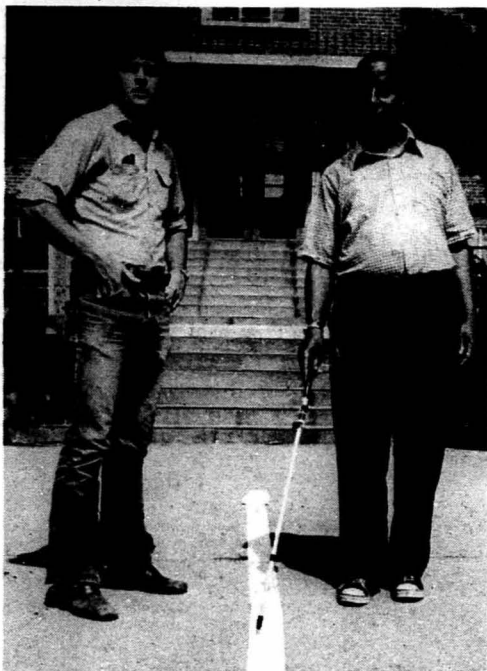

William Bowlby, president of Southern Illinois, Inc., was the witness whose name was misspelled. A remark made by Richard Hayes, director of the SIU Affirmative Action program, was wrongly attributed to Bowlby by implication.

It was Hayes who said: "Now I'm at a loss as to just what the community is getting from SIU that we can point a finger to and say 'Look!'"

The Daily Egyptian regrets the errors.

Student's design aids blind to 'see'

By Carl Courtner
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An SIU senior, Richard Striblinger, has invented a battery operated cane for the blind.

Striblinger's cane, which was demonstrated in the mall behind Woody Hall Wednesday, uses a photoelectric cell located in its tip to send messages to the blind user about objects in the user's path.

Striblinger said the cane is easily adaptable to most urban environments and costs less than $10 to produce. Sophisticated radar canes, the most advanced of current canes on the market for the blind, cost around $30.

Striblinger's cane uses half a dozen electrical components, the most expensive costing around 90 cents. It is powered by a 39-cent transistor radio battery which, the young inventor said, "will last for months."

Systems Council will recommend division of panel

By Jeff Jouett
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Struggling for two hours Wednesday, Carbondale's half of the Advisory Committee on Board and Executive Officer Relationships agreed to suggest a subcommittee approach when the entire committee meets next in Edwardsville on July 24.

Made up of 10 representatives from both the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses of SIU, the advisory committee was set up by the Board of Trustees to recommend revisions in the SIU administrative structure "to insure maximum autonomy."

Carbondale's contingency to the advisory panel consented to suggest the group handle aspects of their revisions from their separate campus subcommittees—with a six-member coordinating committee to "facilitate the flow of information between the groups."

The committee has been asked to report to the Board by Oct. 1. The Carbondale contingency spent much of Wednesday's meeting deciding how best to work within their time limitation and how to interpret their charge from the Board.

Because Carbondale campus is switching to early semesters, its summer break will be in the middle of August while Edwardsville campus, still on a quarter system, will dismiss for summer break in September. This will leave about a month when the entire 20-member committee could not meet, Carbondale co-chairman C. Addison Hickman, professor of economy, noted. Committee member Tony Wahner, graduate student in chemistry, voiced concern that the committee's charge called for "just a fine tuning of the present governance model" and left no room for alternative suggestions.

Hickman said he had talked to Board Chairman Ivan A. Elliott, Jr. and had been assured "Elliott's formal position is not to restrict us to trivial changes."

Herbert S. Donow, associate professor of English and proxy for committee member E. Earle Stibitz, professor of English, said, "Committees like this are Frankenstein monsters—as they should be."

Illini ask state for hike in budget

URBANA, (AP)—The University of Illinois Board of Trustees decided Wednesday to ask the state legislature for $248 million for 1975-1976—$28 million more than approved by the General Assembly for this school year.

The board's approval was tentative, allowing board members time to study the proposal.

Even with the 12 per cent increase, U. of I. President John E. Corbally called the request "largely a stand-still budget."

"There are no requests for personnel or operating funds that are in excess of inflationary pressures," he said. "They are, in fact, less than inflation would require."

Among the increases in the budget are funds to provide an average 9.5 per cent pay raise to university employees.

The budget also lists $50.3 million in capital requests—building, remodeling and land purchases. The legislature approved $18.4 million for these purposes in the current fiscal year.

The inexpensive photoelectric cell in the cane's tip sends high frequency signals through the cane and a wire to an inexpensive ear phone used by the blind person. The signals change with the light intensity of the path the blind person is walking. An object, another pedestrian or a curb will each send a different signal through the cane to the blind person. Even street lane and crosswalk markings are registered by the cane.

The young inventor developed the cane for his engineering design course, taught by Dale Besterfield, assistant professor of technology.

"I got the idea," Striblinger explained, "by watching blind students trying to determine which path to take where all the crosswalks come together in front of Morris Library."

He hopes to have the university install white tape along all the sidewalks and hallways on the campus. He has presented his model to Ron Blosser, staff assistant in specialized Student Services. The two plan to demonstrate the cane for the University research and development committee soon.

"If the university undertakes the project," Striblinger said, "different kinds of slash marks can tell a blind person how many more steps to an intersection and how many steps in a stairwell."

Meanwhile, SIU's young inventor is installing a penlight on the tip of the cane so it can be used in total darkness. He is also working up a color code so the cane's photoelectric cell can provide an all-new dimension to the "sight" of the blind.

GSC urges parity on SIU athletics

By Bill Layne
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Graduate Student Council recommended parity for funding of SIU men and women's intercollegiate athletic programs at a meeting Wednesday night in the Student Center.

Approving a motion by Jack Hamilton, economics, the council recommended that an extra $45,000 a year be added to the women's athletic allocation over the next five years.

Additional funds for the women's program would come from cutting funding for the men's program.

Based on current funding, Hamilton said, the two programs would achieve parity after five years.

A motion by the council Co-Rec committee concerning funding of the base building of the Co-Rec complex was approved. Another motion by the committee on funding of building phases one and two was rejected. The council expressed reservations concerning the use of medical fee benefits, accumulated over the past 10 years, for the building.

Council action on the motion, along with stipulations about the use of medical fees, will be forwarded to the Recreation Building Committee.

In other business, Tom Strini, music, outlined the proposed new policy concerning grievance policy concerning grievance procedures for graduate students. Strini said the new procedures, if adopted unchanged, would deal quickly with grievance situations. The proposal would also help to screen out unwarranted complaints, Strini said.

The council also approved Lynn Kinsel-Rainey, guidance, to replace Mary Day as GSC representative to the Graduate Council.

Family planning group views 'Future Shock' developments

Twenty-eight of the 29 southern region counties were represented at the Illinois Family Planning Council meeting held Wednesday in the Mississippi Room in the Student Center.

"Communicating Family Services" was the title of the session that 28 women representatives of Family Services attended.

Pat West, project administrator and state coordinator for Southern Illinois, said the meeting was held to update family planning information and discuss new innovations in family planning.

West said, "'Future Shock' was shown at the meeting to trigger a mechanism to future planning and

High prices of liquor hit by Eckert

By Dave Iyata
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

High liquor prices in Carbondale show that there is no competition among local liquor outlets, Neal Eckert, mayor and liquor commissioner, said Wednesday.

At a meeting of the Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board, Eckert cited a price survey comparing this city with others. "This (survey) shows beyond reasonable doubt that there is no price competition in the city," Eckert said.

Eckert recommended unlimited liquor licensing with strong prerequisites, implemented through two types of licenses: sale to all persons above the age of 21, and sales restricted to beer and wine.

"I don't think you can make a moral or health plea by allowing a monopoly," Eckert said.

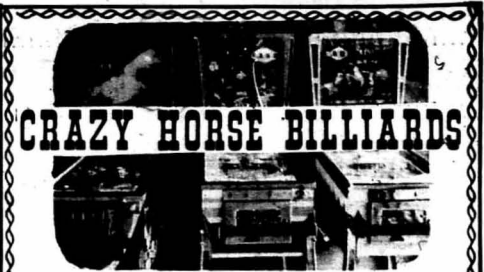

Too much power is invested in the office of the liquor commissioner, and should be transferred to the City Council, Eckert said. The Liquor Advisory Board would be retained and the mayor would hold emergency powers to close bars, Eckert added.

Chairwoman Jean Sternberg said that it is common knowledge residents were buying liquor outside of Carbondale. Restrictions on licenses work to the detriment of the city, she said.

However, she voiced approval of the mayor's proposals.

Steve Hoffman, member of the advisory board, admitted representing the Carbondale Liquor Dealers Assn. when he criticized the mayor's proposals on unlimited licensing.

"If that is supposed to mean that I have a vested interest that I try to defend, the answer is 'absolutely,'" Hoffman said.

Now that Mr. and Mrs. Nixon are back from the Middle East, Europe and Russia, the question arises of where they should go for their well-earned vacation.

All things considered, probably their best bet is Nixon Country.

Nixon Country, as you know, is centered in the Middle West. Enough stories have been written lately by enterprising reporters about its political climate, its population and their attitudes toward Washington and life in general to indicate the kind of a reception Mr. and Mrs. Nixon would receive.

Scene: A backyard barbecue at the home of Harry and Mary Bess Hoosier. Pat and Dick enter, looking somewhat nervous.

Harry: Well, by gosh, it's Pat and Dick. Have a beer. Don't mind if I call you Pat and Dick, do you? We're sure great admirers of yours.

Dick: Thank you, my fellow American.

Harry: Like I was saying to Mary Bess just yesterday, that Watergate business...

Mary Bess: Now, Harry, don't start talking politics.

Harry: Dick won't mind. And like I was saying, it was nothing but a sixth rate burglary...

Dick: Fourth rate.

Harry: Like the kind the Democrats probably been pulling off for years. And that Ellsberg thing! Fact he was going to a shrink shows he's the kind of guy who ought to have his head examined.

Dick: I had no prior knowledge...

Harry: Then you take your income taxes. That's a bum rap. I mean who doesn't try to cut a corner here and there?

Dick: My accountants are totally responsible...

Harry (winking): That's what accountants are for, right? Then all this talk about wire tapping. The way I hear it, anybody who hasn't got his phone bugged in Washington is a real nobody who isn't worth bugging.

Mary Bess: Watch the hamburgers, Harry!

Harry: Damn! Excuse me. Mary Bess doesn't like cussing. Not that those transcripts bothered her, Dick. I mean she knows that's the way everybody talks in Washington.

Mary Bess: Some hot potato salad? It's George and Irma's contribution.

Harry: Speaking of contributions, Dick, I sure don't hold it against you taking all those millions from those lobbyists in return for favors. Like I say, that's been going on in Washington since Hector was a pup. Have a hamburger.

Dick: I had no direct...

Harry: It's like paying off those Watergate guys. We all know that everybody in Washington is on the take. And you didn't do anything different than any other politician does all the time back there.

Dick: Prior to March 21, I had no...

Harry (clapping him on the back): So we just want you to know, Dick, that while those liberal Eastern newspapers may be out to get you, we folks out here in Nixon Country are behind you 100 per cent.

Dick (beaming): Harry, you're a real American! (Copyright Chronicle Publishing Co. 1974)

Thanks SIU

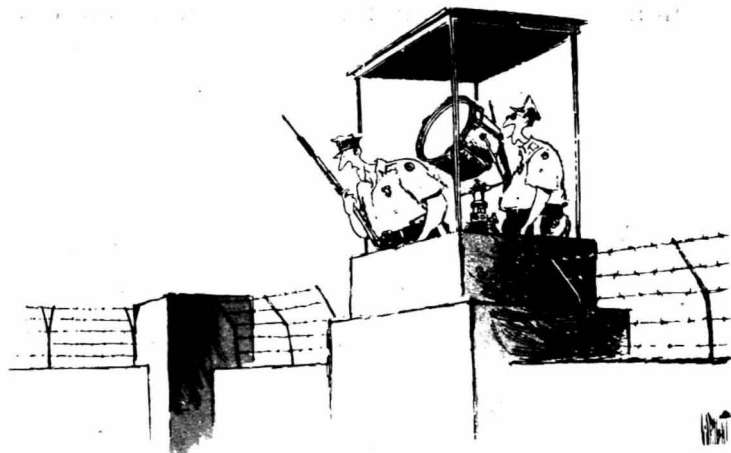

To the Daily Egyptian:

The citizens of Alto Pass are writing this letter to express sincere thanks and gratitude for services given us by your institution. Through the efforts of the Community Development Department of Southern Illinois University, the Civic Group of Alto Pass was introduced to the Southern Illinois University Interior Design Department. Our Civic Group expressed interest in having the town designed and improved in appearance and the Interior Design Department accepted this challenge.

Under the direction of Mr. Frank Morigi, a most comprehensive and beautiful set of designs were presented to the citizens of Alto Pass. Needless to say, our community could not have afforded such a professional plan which we now hope will help our community to improve itself.

We again wish to offer our special thanks to Mr. Morigi and the students who worked so hard on this project. We also wish to make you aware that we appreciate the complete and ongoing help given us by your community development department in helping our community. Each member of the Civic Group and the citizens of Alto Pass thank you and Southern Illinois University for the outstanding services given our community.

Campaign funding 'distasteful'

"Raising money is the most distasteful aspect of any campaign," according to Ray Buss, a director in the headquarters of 24th Congressional District candidate Paul Simon.

Very few people would take exception to Mr. Buss' statement, and even fewer would think that one should cower from the task of trying to remedy the dismal situation because of the attendant bad taste.

Stalled in committee in the House now is a bill (sponsored in the Senate by Senators Kennedy, Mondale, Muskie and Schweiker) which would put a ceiling on campaign spending and contributions, and which would match private funds with equal federal funds.

The Kennedy proposal, as it is called, limits presidential campaign spending to $21 million per candidate—a figure well below the $34 million spent by McGovern and the outlandishly misspent $55 million by the Nixon camp in 1972.

Another feature of the federal election spending bill is the limit of $175,000 on Senatorial campaign spending and $90,000 on Congressional races. In 1972, the General Accounting Office (GAO) estimates, House candidates spent about $225,000 each, winners and losers alike.

This financing plan now pending would establish a special account in the Treasury, with the Comptroller General allocating funds to eligible candidates. The needed monies would come from the income tax check-off plan now in effect, with the one dollar ante being upped to two dollars on single returns and four dollars on joint returns. People would still have the option of rejecting the check-off, in which case Congress would appropriate the necessary funds to make up the deficit.

All this may sound a bit confusing, but what it means is that the federal government will subsidize the cost of national elections with a budget of about $75 million annually, or $300 million over the four-year election span.

The proposal calls for detailed disclosure by candidates of all contributions over one hundred dollars, and limits the amount individuals and organizations can contribute.

Opponents of the bill, namely Watergate Committee member Senator Lowell P. Weicker, claim the proposal would create a "raid on the Treasury" by the proliferation of unqualified candidates. They also claim, in noble Jeffersonian terms, that the bill deprives an individual of his constitutional right to support the political party of his choice to whatever extent he sees fit.

Considering the events of the past two years, greater access to the political forum by minority opinions may be just what our two-party system needs to wake it up to the needs of a troubled people. And the only individuals hampered by the restricted contributions clause would be the rich, and the powerful corporations, who put the system in the terrible mess it is in today anyway.

Common Cause's John Gardner reports that special interest groups have so far doubled their 1972 Congressional spending rate, pumping more than $17.4 million into the 1974 races already. Something needs to be done in Washington soon, so this perverted and senseless usurpation of our political process does not have to continue.

No straight thinking human in this country would be willing to concede that the system we have today is equitable, or even manageable. But of all the talk and the many plans put before Congress so far, the Kennedy proposal is the best, with the greatest likelihood for success. This nation could not stand another bitter dishful like 1972.

Watergate fallout

To the Daily Egyptian:

An interesting fallout of Watergate is that we now have both John Ehrlichman and President Richard Nixon pleading for justice. Their reason is simple: since Washington, D.C. is largely Democratic and largely black, it would be hard for them to get a trial by their impartial peer group. So?

Those black Democrats have been unable to get the same kind of justice for decades. Naturally, I would not like Watergate to turn into a kangaroo court with a pre-determined verdict, but there is a kind of poetic justice in the President's not being able to get the jury he thinks he deserves. Why should he be different?

Downfall of free forum area caused by lack of equipment

By Karl Plath
Student Writer

SIU's free forum area, established in 1970, has been allowed to deteriorate to a point where it is practically unnoticeable. The free forum area, just south of

Anthony Hall, was created in the aftermath of the 1970 campus disturbances. Its purpose, as stated in SIU's "Interim Policy on Demonstrations," is to "facilitate the peaceful and orderly presentation of a variety of views."

It is to be open to all members of the University, with any necessary sound equipment provided by the Student Activities Office, the policy continues.

The facilities that had been provided are no longer available.

Sharon Hooker, assistant coordinator of student activities, said the sound equipment is "nonfunctional" and she didn't know when it would be replaced.

When apprised of the lack of facilities, Swinburne said, "It looks as if we may have dropped the ball on that one. It is something that we will have to work on."

Bruce Swinburne, dean of students, said the free forum area

Center hopes to fill communications void

The new Public Access Video Center, a part of the Long Branch Foundation for the Arts and Sciences, hopes to fill a "communication vacuum" in Southern Illinois and, at the same time, bring people together.

Herb Roan, a lecturer in the design department at SIU and co-director of the foundation, feels the center will fill this void by enlightening people to the potential role of video.

"The power of videotape as a communication medium hasn't been realized," Roan said. "We want to bring up the awareness of videotape to the people."

Roan said he wants people to come to the center and feel free to use the video equipment for taping their own social statements, whether local, national or experimental in nature.

"It's an off-campus communication classroom," Roan said. "It's the people's."

The videotapes produced through the center will be shown via channels 17 and 18, the "open channels" of Cablevision and perhaps on Cablevision's own Channels 7 and 13.

The center, located at 100 E. Jackson St., is scheduled to open July 28. Besides the video center, the Long Branch will house an art gallery for the disadvantaged and a crafts workshop. Roan called it a "storefront people's place." "I'm excited about being here," Roan said. "I want to make it an advantaged place for people."

Applicants delay recommendations for police chief

As the Monday afternoon deadline approached the number of applicants for the new Carbondale police chief rose to 74. City Manager Carroll Fry announced Wednesday.

Originally the police chief selection committee hoped to make three recommendations by Aug. 1. But now the announcement of the finalists will be pushed back because of the high number of applicants, Fry said.

Fry said the selection committee will announce its choice for police chief on Sept. 1, as planned.

The committee, consisting of representatives from several civic groups, will look for an "articulate, experienced, good command officer," according to Fry.

Former Police Chief Joseph Dakin resigned June 4, during a budget dispute with Fry and the city council. Capt. Edward Hogan is serving as interim chief until Aug. 31.

Newsmen to give award

The Golden Quill Award for weekly newspaper editorial excellence will be presented Thursday at the twentieth annual convention of the International Society of Weekly Newspaper Editors (ISWNE) being held this week at Pere Marquette State Park, near Grafton.

The presentation will be made in ceremonies at the conclusion of the evening session. The session will start at 6:30 p.m. with a reception in the park lodge. A banquet is scheduled at 7:30 p.m., followed by a showing of the Jerry Bruck Jr. Film, "I.F. Stone's Weekly." The presentation will follow the film.

Each year the top 12 weekly newspaper editorials for the previous year are released at the ISWNE convention in a publication called "The Golden Dozen." The Golden Quill Award is given to the writer of the editorial judged to be the best among the dozen.

SIU School of Journalism faculty Ralph Johnson and Edgar Trotter are judges for this year's award.

The headquarters and business office of the ISWNE is located at the School of Journalism.

Cypriot leader seeks support

By The Associated Press

Archbishop Makarios, ousted president of Cyprus, conferred with British leaders in London Wednesday and said he won a promise of help in regaining power.

Makarios, who said he would fly to New York on Thursday to present his case to the United Nations, said British Prime Minister Harold Wilson assured him sole recognition as the legitimate president of Cyprus.

Highly placed sources also said Wilson agreed to apply diplomatic pressure on Athens to withdraw the 650 Greek officers who head the Cypriot national guard that deposed Makarios.

Remodeling bids will be opened by school board

Bids for the repainting and restyling of shower room facilities at Lincoln Junior High School will be opened at the meeting of the Carbondale elementary school board at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the district's Administrative Office.

The board will also act on a recommendation that tuition for non-resident students be raised to $1,096.31 for the 1974-75 school year, an increase of $134.80 over last year's tuition charge of $961.51.

District Superintendent Laurence W. Martin said the increase is based on the per capita cost for non-resident students for the 1973-74 school year. Martin said the district had only one non-resident student last year.

Possibilities for future use or demolition of the Attucks School building will also be considered at the meeting.

CCHS board looks at budget at 7:30 meeting

The Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) Board of Education will consider adoption of a tentative budget for the 1974-75 school year in a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the CCHS Learning Center.

If the tentative budget is approved, it will go on public display for at least 30 days, and then a Public hearing will be held so Carbondale citizens can offer changes in the budget. The CCHS Board can also offer changes in the budget during this time period.

The board will also review the student teaching contract between CCHS and SIU and continue a discussion of involvement in a Community Education program.

Schmidt sees tensions eased

BONN, Germany (AP)—West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt said Wednesday that tension between the United States and its European allies has largely disappeared and Atlantic relations now can be viewed in a rather relaxed way.

In an exclusive interview with The Associated Press, he also said that inflation was an urgent problem that could endanger democratic society and called on developed nations to act to hold down prices. Schmidt said that since last year's Middle East war and the subsequent energy crisis, Washington and Western Europe have recognized the necessity "to consult each other before you act."

"So I think any of the participating parties will at present see and judge European-American relations in a rather relaxed way. I don't have the feeling of any tension any longer."

Schmidt, whose country's 7 per cent inflation rate is one of the lowest in the West, urged the governments of industrialized nations "to act much more decisively against the inflationary sources inside their own countries than most of them have done hitherto."

"If they don't do it successfully," the former finance minister warned, "I do foresee dangers for the specific fabric of our democratic societies."

"You can't fight inflation and make money cheap. You have to make money scarce and expensive if you want to fight inflation," he said.

Steve Drakulich plunges his sword into Malcom Rothman in a lighter moment from "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum."

'A Funny Thing...' scheduled to happen again this weekend

"A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," which had audiences laughing for three nights last weekend, will be presented again by Summer Playhouse '74 at 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday in University Theater.

Set in Rome in the year 200 B.C., this musical comedy involves a slave's quest for freedom and his young master's quest for love. Everything under the sun somehow manages to get in their way, however, and as soon as one hardship is resolved, another one immediately begins.

"A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" is set at a frantic pace and contains almost every verbal and visual gag in the book. Aided by a cast of characters possessing questionable reputations and motives, the play is a satire on societal roles.

Luring courtesans, a nagging wife, a slave in drag disguise, the Marx Brothers, a near sighted and senile old man, a buyer of women's flesh, and a conceited Roman soldier comprise the play's two hours of wit, music and dance.

Directed by Darwin Reid Payne, the cast includes Malcom Rothman as Psuedolus the slave, William Martin as Hero his master, Dennis Kinsella and Patty McCormick as Hero's parents, Christopher Adams as Hysterium their slave-in-chief, Steve Drakulich as the Roman soldier Miles Gloriosus, James Gullidge as the old man, Dick Fernandez as Marcus Lycus, and Maureen Conway as Philia, Hero's lover.

Tickets for "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" are available at the University Theatre box office and the Central Ticket Office in the Student Center. Tickets are $2.75 for the general public and $1.75 for students.

Student officers hear traffic pleas

Traffic appeals are being handled by several hearing officers this summer. August Lemarchal, coordinator of parking and traffic, said Wednesday.

"Two students are serving as hearing officers this summer," Lemarchal said. He added that there have been few appeals this summer.

The student hearing officers will be replaced by a full-time paid hearing officer in the fall. The new hearing officer should be appointed a few weeks before the fall semester begins, said Jerry Lacey, special assistant to the vice president.

Strike workers to complete lot on Grand Avenue

An official at R.B. Stephens Construction Co., now upgrading some of the campus parking facilities, said Wednesday he expects Lot 107, at Grand Avenue and Elizabeth Street, to be completed by the end of this week.

Don Plemister, an estimator and engineer for Stephens, said Lot 107 should be completed by Thursday or Friday providing the weather holds out.

Stephens employees had been honoring the statewide Teamsters strike. They began working on the lots again Tuesday.

Plemister said once the crew finishes up at 107 they will begin grading and surfacing Lot 4, south of Communications Building.

Lot 55, at Grand Avenue and Washington Street, will undergo excavation starting Thursday, Plemister said. Stephens is awaiting equipment arrivals necessary to start the excavation.

Bank buys school bonds

The Mercantile Trust Co. of St. Louis purchased $1.5 million in Murphysboro school bonds Tuesday night to help finance a new high school for District 186.

The $1.5 million will represent 30 per cent of the cost of the structure. The remaining 70 per cent is being financed by the Capital Development Board.

The bonds carry an annual interest rate of 6.714 per cent, said J.C. Blackwood, superintendent. They will mature in 1989.

The new building will be constructed on 28-acre site west of the Jackson County Nursing Home. The building will accommodate 900 students.

Following heart attack

Hall of Famer Dean dead at 63

RENO, Nev. (AP)—It was two decades or so ago, and Dizzy Dean, the Arkansas farm boy who had fastballed his way into baseball's Hall of Fame, was playing golf with the president of the United States.

Dwight D. Eisenhower looked over his corpulent companion and wondered aloud how it was that Dizzy had allowed his once raw-boned body to balloon to 300 pounds.

"Oh! Diz thought a moment before responding, 'I'll tell you how it was, Mr. President. For the first 20 years of my life, I never had enough to eat—and I ain't caught up yet.'"

Dizzy Dean died early Wednesday at St. Mary's Hospital, two days after suffering a heart attack. He was 63.

His wife Patricia, who calmed Dizzy's wild spending habits after their marriage, and his brother Paul, who formed the other half of the feared "me 'n Paul" pitching duo for the St. Louis Cardinals' Gas House Gang in the 1930s, were at Dean's bedside when he died.

Dean, who carried his down-home twang into the broadcast booth while serving as a self-described baseball "commultator," suffered his second heart attack in five days on Monday, and had been in serious condition since.

The man who made English teachers cringe as he described baseball games with "ain't," "slud," and "threwed" became one of baseball's greatest pitchers despite losing effectiveness to an arm injury at 27, when he should have been reaching his peak.

Dean won 150 games, lost 83, threw 27 shutouts, and led the National League in strikeouts for four years.

His best season was 1934 when, at the age of 23, he won 30 games and lost seven. Brother Paul chipped in with 19 victories and the Cardinals won the National League pennant. Dizzy won two games in the World series and Paul won the other two, giving the Cards the world championship.

Dizzy's career was cut short when a line drive off the bat of Earl Averill struck his toe in the 1937 All-Star game. The injury forced him to change his pitching motion, and that caused an injury to his arm, forcing him to depend on curves instead of his fastball.

His career actually ended with a 3-3 record in 1940, although he came out of the broadcasting booth in 1947 to pitch four scoreless innings for the St. Louis Browns.

Dean broadcast for the Browns through the 1940s, worked for two years as a "commultator" for the New York Yankees beginning in 1950, then returned to St. Louis and broadcast some Saturday games on national television.

Close matches typify tourney

The recent men's intramural summer racquetball tournament left more than one opponent breathless as close matches were the rule in three championship contests.

The team of Mickey Vinsavage and Mike Dunn polished off their final round opponents in exhaustive fashion. Ms. Vinsavage, a health education major, and Dunn, a graduate student in physical education, outlasted Sally Cotten of the women's physical education staff and Jim Malone, a grad student in physical education, by the scores of 11-21, 21-10 and 21-19.

Dunn repeated in the singles by stunning premier campus racquetballer, Ron York (1974 singles and doubles champion) 9-21, 21-11 and 21-15.

The rubber game of the match found Dunn and York trading and matching points to a 15-15 deadlock, before Dunn squeezed out a couple of rubbers and kill shots for his 21-15 triumph.

Dunn's shot for a piece of all three first place trophies missed as he and partner Larry Schaake lost in the double finals to York and Ted Boyle, chairman of the English department, 21-15, 21-19.

Men's IM triple crown evades tennis entrant

Dick Bortz, perennial campus intramural tennis favorite, came through with two legs of the tennis triple crown by being on the winning side of doubles and mixed doubles competition of the 1974 men's intramural tennis tournament.

Bortz teamed up with Lou Kroph to knock off four other doubles opponents including Tom Syrstad and Tim Flynn (6-1, 3-6, 6-1) in the finals.

Sally Cotten of the women's physical education department paired with Bortz, topping off three rounds of action with a 6-0, 6-2 win over the Williams-Hamilton team in the championship match.

The third leg of the triple crown averted Bortz when George Skaldy dumped him in the quarterfinals. But only Flynn and Chris Calandro survived the semifinals. Flynn handled Calandro in two sets (6-1, 6-4) to win the first place singles trophy.

Perry heads A.L. All-Star staff

NEW YORK (AP)—Cleveland's sensational Gaylord Perry, winner of 15 consecutive games, and Kansas City's Steve Busby, who has hurled the only no-hitter in the major leagues this season, headed an eight-man pitching staff named Wednesday for the American League All-Star team.

In addition to Perry and Busby, American League Manager Dick Williams of the California Angels selected Jim Hunter and Rollie Fingers of Oakland, John Hiller of Detroit, Luis Tiant of Boston, Wilbur Wood of Chicago and Mike Cuellar of Baltimore.

The combined over-all record of the staff that will face the National League's best hitters next Tuesday night in the All-Star Game in Pittsburgh was 96-59 through games of Tuesday.

The leader was Perry, with a 15-2 record. The Indians' veteran right-hander began his remarkable winning streak after being beaten in the opening game of the season by the New York Yankees and didn't lose again until July 8 when Oakland beat him 4-3 in 10 innings.

The 15 straight victories were only one shy of the American League record. Perry, who has pitched in three All-Star games including the 1966 classic when he was the winner for the National League, is expected to be the American League's starter Tuesday.

Busby, 13-8, also a right-hander, is the only pitcher in major league history to hurl no-hitters in each of his first two seasons in the majors. He pitched his first no-hitter as a rookie on April 27, 1973, beating Detroit 3-0. His second masterpiece was a 2-0 triumph over Milwaukee last June 19.

The selection of Hiller, 11-7, capped a courageous comeback by the Tigers' left-hander. In 1971, he had a heart attack, and it appeared he never would pitch again. He missed the entire 1971 season and half of 1972, before rejoining the Tigers. Last year, he set a major league record for saves with 38, and has seven saves this season.

Wood, a workhorse with a 14-11 record and a tantalizing knuckleball, has been the American League leader in games started in each of the past two seasons. This was the third nomination for the left-hander to the All-Star team.

Hunter, a right-hander with a 13-8 record, was chosen to the All-Star squad for the sixth time. Tiant, 13-7, and also a right-hander, was picked for the second time. The left-handed Cuellar, 12-5, will be making his fourth All-Star appearance, and Fingers, a right-handed relief specialist with a 7-2 mark, appeared in his first All-Star game last year.

The National League pitchers, named earlier Wednesday, were Andy Messersmith and Mike Marshall of Los Angeles, Ken Brett of Pittsburgh, Jon Matlack of New York, Buzz Capra of Atlanta, Lynn McGlothen of St. Louis, Steve Carlton of Philadelphia and Steve Rogers of Montreal.

NFL players propose 24-hour negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP)—Striking National Football League players Tuesday proposed that negotiations with club owners be resumed around the clock in an attempt to resolve their contract dispute and end the 17-day strike that already has wiped out the College All-Star game.

The NFL Players' Association said if negotiations under the auspices of a federal mediator fail it would be willing to send all but its so-called freedom issues to binding arbitration.

The freedom issues, however, would be given to a five-member, blue-ribbon commission, including one newsmen, for investigation and recommendations.

"In our view, the time has come to reassess the dispute between the NFL Players Association and the owners, and if necessary, to seek a new approach to a solution of the dispute," union President Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers told a news conference.
