Budget cuts force SPC to slash events

By Eric Oestmann
Staff Writer

More than $20,000 in budget cuts in the Student Programming Council's budget has cut some of its programs this summer and will cut some in the fall.

"I understood some cutbacks were planned for all the Registered Student Organizations, but I was surprised that SPC was cut so significantly by the USO," Dave Palmisano, executive chair of the council, said.

The Undergraduate Student Organization, which appropriates some money to SPC, cut SPC's fiscal year 1988 budget from about $107,000 to $87,000.

"The budget cuts are old news and SPC is looking to the future," he said.

The cutback will only hurt the quantity, not the quality, of the programs, he said.

The major programs SPC sponsors, such as Springfest, E-Night, Homecoming and some lectures, will not be affected by the budget cut, he said.

Poindexter admits to giving 'fuzzy' details of arms role

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Poindexter, the link between President Reagan and the two covert operations that erupted into the Iran-Contra scandal, gave Congress admittedly "fuzzy" recollections Thursday of crucial elements of the affair.

Poindexter's responses to specific queries about his role in the foreign policy scandal led some members of the select House-Senate committees to question or reserve judgment on his credibility.

What apparently most concerned committee members was Poindexter's surprising disclosure that for all of 1986, while he was national security adviser, he never told Reagan about the details of the far-flung, clandestine, private operation run by Lt. Col. Oliver North to keep the Nicaraguan Contras armed and in the field while official U.S. aid to the rebels was banned by Congress.

In addition, Poindexter's memory failed him when chief Senate counsel Arthur Liman questioned him about a purported administration cover-up in November 1986, when CIA Director William Casey, North and other Reagan aides were preparing alleged false statements about the U.S. overture to Iran.

Poindexter also was asked again about his assertion that he did not inform Reagan that proceeds from the sale of weapons to Iran were being sent to the Contras, testimony that panel members questioned.

House panel member Louis

Stokes, D-Ohio, said the testimony on the diversion "does not square with me. It does not appear logical that a man of his intellect and management skills would arrogate onto himself the responsibility of making what he himself describes as a momentous decision affecting the president."

Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, would not say that he didn't believe Poindexter, noting he would wait until Poindexter finished his testimony.

But asked directly whether he was concerned about Poindexter's inability to recollect key facts, Mitchell said: "Yes."

Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said he is sold on Poindexter's truthfulness, warning, too, "The penalties of perjury are very severe."

"Ronald Reagan denies knowing of the diversion. Here

SIU-C cash management best of 4 state universities

By Deedra Lawhead
Staff Writer

SIU-C performed the best in a recent cash management audit of four state universities, the Auditor General's office said.

Each of the universities was generally within standards, but SIU-C did the best, John Donelan, audit manager, said.

An audit was done to determine if state agencies deposit money within 48 hours as state laws require, Donelan said.

A report issued in June by the Auditor General's office stated that the University of Illinois, Eastern Illinois University, Illinois State University and SIU-C had not deposited all cash receipts in their local bank within 48 hours.

Of the randomly selected transactions over the last year that the audit team studied, they found only eight receipts that were not deposited within 48 hours, James Belt, vice president for financial affairs, said. Weekends or holidays delayed processing of six transactions, Belt said, adding that most receipts are deposited within 24 hours.

Janet Taylor, audit supervisor, said SIU-C made 88 percent of its deposits within 48 hours; U of I, 84 percent; ISU, 73 percent; and EIU, 56 percent.

Donelan said most large receipts should be deposited in interest-bearing accounts the day received. That makes more cash available for investment and reduces short-term borrowing.

All receipts are pooled into an income fund and the interest earned from that fund is transferred monthly to the state treasurer, Stuart Robinson, SIU-C assistant treasurer, said.

House OKs railroad relocation funding bill

By Deedra Lawhead
Staff Writer

The U.S. House of Representatives has approved a bill that would provide funding for Carbondale's railroad relocation project.

The House voted 282-102 in favor of a transportation appropriations bill containing $2.5 million in funds earmarked for the project. Rep. Ken Gray, D-Ill., who requested the funds, was not available for comment.

If approved by the Senate and President Reagan, the $2.5 million will be added to $2.6 million approved last year, and the entire sum will become available Oct. 1, said Richard Darby, Gray's press secretary.

The money will be used to build a temporary railway alongside the existing railway and to begin the actual process of lowering the Illinois Central Gulf railroad tracks on the north end of the project, said Eldon Gosnell, director of the Railroad Relocation Unit. The temporary railway will carry traffic during construction.

Darby said he doubts the $2.6 million approved last year will be given to the city unless the $2.5 million also is approved.

Iran cautions France; threatens to break ties

PARIS (UPI) — Iran threatened Thursday to break off diplomatic relations with France unless it lifted a police siege of Iran's Embassy in Paris within 72 hours and punished police who allegedly beat up an Iranian diplomat. Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said French Charge D'Affaires in Tehran Pierre Lafrance was summoned to the Foreign Ministry Thursday and given the ultimatum with an official protest.

Soviet emigres flood consular office in Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Soviet emigres Thursday jammed the first Soviet consular offices in Israel in 20 years, many seeking visas to visit family members in the Soviet Union. Not since the Soviet Union broke relations with Israel during the Six Day War in 1967 have the Soviets made it so easy for Jewish emigrants living in Israel to apply for visas for trips back home. The easing of procedures coincided with a visit to Israel this week by an eight-member Soviet consular delegation — seen as a sign of improving relations.

Philippine panel files case against Marcos

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — The government filed a lawsuit against ousted ruler Ferdinand Marcos and his family Thursday, charging they plundered, extorted and embezzled about $10 billion in assets during 20 years in power. The case — the second of 45 civil actions the government expects to file in an attempt to recover Marcos' alleged ill-gotten wealth — was lodged in a special anti-graft court in Manila.

Controversial Yugoslavian art exhibit opens

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Much of Yugoslavia's largest private art collection — amassed by a controversial dealer who once claimed he was an art adviser to the Nazis in World War II — goes on exhibit today in the "Zagreb Louvre." About 1,500 paintings, glass, china and marble sculptures and other works going on display at the Mimara Museum on Franklin Roosevelt Square in downtown Zagreb are part of a collection of 3,754 pieces said to date from 3,000 B.C. to the 20th century.

Crude oil prices rise in frenzied trading

By United Press International

Oil prices shot up to an 18-month high of $22.34 a barrel Thursday on the New York Mercantile Exchange in wildly erratic trading amid fears over Persian Gulf tensions and signs U.S. motorists are burning near-record amounts of fuel. Analysts said the price explosion in West Texas intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude that has surged by $1.41 a barrel on the Merc since July 6, could add between 3 cents and 4 cents a gallon to pump prices in the United States.

Shuttle booster program on target for flight

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI) — A top NASA rocket engineer said Thursday that despite an "exceptionally tight" schedule, the agency should be able to meet its June 1988 target for the first post-Challenger shuttle flight. To make sure the shuttle's twin boosters will work as planned, John W. Thomas, manager of the shuttle booster redesign program, said engineers will test fire two and possibly three additional rockets before the scheduled launch.

Indian museum may move to Smithsonian

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Smithsonian Institution officials Thursday denied any intention of "raiding" New York City's historic treasures in a proposal to move an American Indian museum from its Manhattan roots to the nation's capital. The Manhattan museum directors — though legally bound to keep the treasures in New York City as stipulated by founder George Heye — said they are concerned about low attendance and fear the artifacts may fall into disrepair unless the collection is moved to a better location.

U.S. warns Israel on tourist harassment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has warned Israel that unless it stops "arbitrary and discriminatory treatment" of Arab-American and black American travelers, an embarrassing U.S. travel advisory will be issued, officials said Thursday. The Israeli government has been told it has 30 days to stop harassing such American citizens when they try to enter Israel, or the State Department will issue the unprecedented travel warning, sources said.

'Readable' labels to speed check-out of texts, materials

By Cara Day
Staff Writer

Advanced technology is bringing changes to Morris Library.

Optical Character Recognition readers have been hooked into the circulation desk computers to make checking out library materials quicker and more accurate, said Jay Starratt, assistant director of library services.

Each of the five check-out terminals is equipped with an OCR reader. The other six readers are being used in the reserve department and the marking section in the serials department where new books are prepared for circulation.

The eleven OCR readers cost $20,000.

STARRATT SAID he hopes to have 150,000 books labeled before fall semester starts.

"That'll take care of 70 percent of circulation ... library lore says 80 percent of circulation comes from 20 percent of your collection," he said. The library has nearly 2 million volumes.

"There's no sense spending money on labeling things that won't go out" because a lot of the research books don't get checked out very often, but they are used in the library, he pointed out.

LABELS, WHICH can be "read" by the OCR, are being affixed to Browsing Room books, new books and books that have been checked out at least once in the past year. Books less frequently used also will receive labels as they are returned to the library, Starratt said.

Linda Davis, head of circulation, said the OCR readers have been on her order list for two years and money just became available for them.

"I've been here 20 years and ... this is the third (circulation) system I've worked with. I think it's the biggest advancement I've seen since I've been here," she said.

MORRIS LIBRARY is part of a 29-library system, Library Computer System. Within the system Northeastern University was the first to use OCR.

"We are about the fourth or fifth to get it," Starratt said, "but we're the biggest to do it in the LCS system. The other libraries were able to close down for a couple of days, but we couldn't."

The Northeastern library closed for three days and used all workers to label their books, Davis said.

The number of student workers hired at the library will not be affected by the OCR, Davis said.

THE OCR is "very beneficial to the patron because if you came in with 15 books we'd have to key in each call number," she said. With the OCR label, the workers just pull the reader across the label and it automatically discharges or charges the books."

There has been discussion with Admissions and Records about changing student I.D. numbers so they would be OCR readable, she said.

"This could happen as early as fall '88," but until that happens the library workers will put readable labels on the I.D. cards, she said.

About three weeks into the fall 1987 semester, tables will be set up in the library lobby for several weeks for OCR-readable labels to be put on I.D. cards, Davis said. After that, students who don't have stickers will get them when they come in to check out library materials.

THE RESPONSE to OCR by library workers and students has been positive.

Gina Charles, sophomore in paralegal studies, has worked at Morris library for a year.

"It cuts time because we don't have to punch in the call number and there's less chance of error," Charles said.

SIU cannot repeal First Amendment

SIU-EDWARDSVILLE'S student newspaper, the Alestle, survived the First Amendment turmoil it suffered during spring semester. Michelle Paul, who became editor in June, said her authority has not been infringed upon by the administration.

The conflict between the newspaper and the administration began last October after a story was printed about a secretary who then-editor Deborah Pauly thought was stealing money from the newspaper.

In what Pauly said was punishment for printing the story, advertising commission money was withheld from the newspaper and the paper's bylaws were ordered rewritten to include pro-administration changes.

Now, after the Legislature has looked into the situation, advertising commissions once again are being paid to the Alestle, the paper was reimbursed for the missing money, and Paul is being allowed to do her job.

It's good that the administration has stopped interfering with the Alestle, but the Alestle should have been left alone in the first place.

EVEN THE SUPREME COURT, as in the 1969 case Tinker v. Des Moines Independent School District, stated that students have First Amendment rights as much as anybody else.

SIU shouldn't feel it can control the Alestle. When an institution that espouses academic freedom tries to restrict press freedom, something is wrong.

The Alestle had done nothing wrong. It printed a story the administration didn't like, and that's something the administration must accept. To restrict a newspaper is unconstitutional.

If SIU doesn't want embarrassing things printed about itself, it shouldn't do anything embarrassing. It's that simple.

Opinions from elsewhere

Washington Post

The news from the skies these days is not at all comforting. The latest certified horror story involved a Delta Air Lines jumbo jet that drifted 60 miles off course over the North Atlantic and came within 100 feet of colliding with a Continental Airlines jet....

Aviation safety officials cite all sorts of factors — starting with more air traffic. But more to the point are some conditions cited in a National Transportation Safety Board report on the collision last August of an Aeromexico jetliner and a small private plane near Los Angeles that killed 82 people. The board said inadequacies of the system for controlling traffic — rather than individual human errors — were the prime cause. The private pilot's airspace violation clearly was an element, but board members renewed their call for more measures to reduce the threat of in-air collisions.

The gist of these recommendations gets down to two basics: better equipment, better-trained people. Luck is no substitute for maximum precautions.

Sun-Sentinel, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Kitty Dukakis, wife of Democratic presidential hopeful and Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, showed great courage in revealing that she was addicted to amphetamines for 26 years.

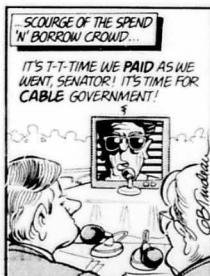

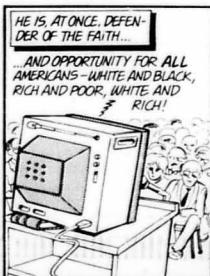

The public really has little, if any, right to know that Mrs. Dukakis had a long-term addiction to diet pills but sought treatment and kicked the habit five years ago.

But she said it for all to hear, probably because it would come out anyway during her husband's quest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mrs. Dukakis beat the inevitable gossip-mongers to the punch, and, as some other political wives have done, set an admirable example for others with drug problems to follow.

The public is spared another tawdry expose and, instead, is given a positive story of recovery and self-respect.

Women should assert their rights

Pat Sweet is a good woman. I could see she is when she told the DE reporter that she chose to return to school to gain independence and personal identity. She is working on a Masters in playwriting and has already completed two plays.

What I can't understand, though, is why she said, "I don't mean to sound like a feminist." What's wrong with sounding like a feminist?

My intentions are not to slander Ms. Sweet. She clearly has a stronger identity and independence than many other individuals. But why must someone such as herself — with obvious talent, intelligence, experience (including Vietnam), discipline and long-term goals — have to excuse her beliefs? Why must women continue to ask for respect and recognition with timidity and regret? Of course the women of Vietnam deserve a little recognition. They were there too!

Women today are brought up differently than, say, fifty years ago. My mother, like millions of others, was not encouraged to pursue a career or to find personal independence or identity. Women were dependents. Dependent on men.

This is not the case anymore. Since the liberation movements in the 1960s, women have been developing the courage to stand up, look out at the world men have created, and say with dignity and pride, "We demand our rights." We do not have to ask or say we're sorry about it.

Since the beginning of time, women have passively accepted their inferior role in relation to men. They have done as they were told. They have tried their best to please men.

This is not the case anymore.

Men must now try to please women. The time for change is now. Not tomorrow. Not next week. A woman is not an inanimate object, a thing to fondle or play with.

Feminism is not a joke. It is a movement concerned with human liberty. Men may laugh, but they laugh out of fear and ignorance. In a democratic, thinking and progressive (not backward) society, I find it hard to believe that half the human population is being ignored, laughed at and smirked at when they demand their rights.

Why not pass the Equal Rights Amendment? Why not sound like a feminist? It is those people who reject equal rights and human decency who need to explain themselves.

Why not sound like a feminist? I haven't the faintest idea. —Nicole Glasser, senior, political science empty beer bottle.

Bottle deposits could abate litter

Has your bicycle tire's inner tube ever been lacerated by a sharp piece of glass or a razor-edged can after you inadvertently ran over it?

There has been a solution lurking in our midst for quite a while now, and a rather simple solution at that: place a 10-cent refund stamp on all bottles and cans sold within the borders of Illinois — within the entirety of the United States for that matter.

Before the deposit was placed on some of the 16-ounce soft drink bottles, they had their place lying in the gutter next to the rest of the pollutants and eyesores. Today, it is indeed a rare sight to find one of these returnable bottles unleashed on a street or field of America.

People have already accepted returnable soft drink bottles and returnable "long neck" beer bottles. This process of going to the store, purchasing the product, taking it home to consume it and returning the bottles back to the store is not that inconvenient. You are going back to the store to purchase more of your favorite beverage anyway, aren't you?

Would the cost of stamping bottles and cans with "10-cent refund" be worth the price compared to the aesthetic beauty and safety of not having bottles and cans littering the state of Illinois?

Yes, I think so. —Paul M. Bogusz, junior, computer information processing.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, whose members are the student-editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a Journalism School faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247 Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten, double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letter of less than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

'Dead men don't tell tales' adage could be used in Contra hearings

This week the Iran-contra hearings finally got the star they deserve. They've been fascinating hearings all along but their worth had been masked by a style that appealed primarily to bibliographers and encyclopedia writers. They've needed a star, someone to light up the screen.

They got it in Lt. Col. Ollie North. He was, boffo smash in the early going, combining the more attractive qualities of Tom Sawyer, John Wayne, Jimmy Swaggart, Richard Nixon and Phil Donahue. Ask him the time, he gives you the Declaration of Independence. Request his name and you get the Gettysburg address.

Is he believable? Well, it depends on who you are, I guess. Some people believe one thing, some another. In any case, in the first few days of the hearings Col. North portrayed himself as being only slightly inferior to the Boy Scout code. He lies a little, but only to save innocent lives.

He says he kept giving retired Gen. Richard Secord money to help the Contras but he didn't keep track of it because he trusted the general. And that the general and his partner, Albert Hakim, were setting aside hundreds of thousands of dollars for North but that he wasn't aware of it.

Sure. He also says that he thought at the time that President Reagan knew what was going on but that he has since learned that the President didn't.

The Republicans didn't fare well, but Ollie and Fawn looked good

Now that Ollie North has finished testifying, the only question that remains is who will be the fall guy?

As North himself said, the fall guy role had been discussed by some of those involved in the Iran-contra witcheroo.

The role of the fall guy would be to take the heat so final blame wouldn't reach the President.

After President Reagan fired North, it looked like the decision already had been made — the fall guy would be Ollie himself.

But it's obvious that is no longer possible. After six days of dramatic testimony, North has risen from potential fall guy to superstar.

By acclamation, he is a national hero. So it stands to reason that the fall guy will have to be someone who gave North his marching orders.

But who will that be?

It surely can't be Robert McFarlane, Ollie's former boss, since he had already left the White House staff by the time most of the mischief was hatched. Besides, listening to McFarlane testify, it's clear that even if he had been around, nobody would have told him what was going on anyway. It's no wonder poor McFarlane left; he got less respect than Rodney Dangerfield.

That leads us to Adm. John Poindexter, who succeeded McFarlane as head of the National Security Council. He would make a logical candidate for fall guy because he had direct access to President Reagan and was Ollie's boss.

Although Poindexter has

Donald Kaul

Tribune Media Services

Right.

North got pretty much of a free ride the first 2½ days of the hearings. Which is one of the problems of the hearings so far — the lawyers. With the exception of Arthur Liman, the Senate committee chief counsel, the lawyers play slop-pitch softball.

I have great hopes that the politicians on the committee will be able to penetrate North's strategic defense system next week. North's secretary, Fawn Hall, made them look like fools when she appeared before them, giving them lessons in foreign policy while arguing that she was just a secretary doing what she was told. (And not only that. I myself defended her against what I thought were sexist charges that she had smuggled documents out of the White House in her bra. As it turned out, she smuggled them out in her underpants. Catch me trying to defend a woman I don't know again.)

let that happen with North and it'll be interesting to see how they handle him.

The Republicans on the committee are, for the most part, worthless as interrogators. They think their job is to make the President look good, no matter what. Rep. Henry Hyde of Illinois is perhaps the worst offender. But Republican Sens. Warren Rudman of New Hampshire, William Cohen of Maine and Paul Trible of Virginia are notable exceptions to the GOP. 'I'd rather be with the President than right' philosophy.

The Democrats, with no president to defend, have a much stronger crew on board. The two chairmen, Sen. Daniel Inouye of Hawaii and Rep. Lee Hamilton of Indiana, are two of the most respected members of Congress and these hearings make it easy to see why.

There are other sharp questioners on the committee — Sen. George Mitchell of Maine, Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, Rep. Ed Jenkins of Georgia, Rep. Dante Fascell of Florida — but the one who impresses me the most is Rep. Tom Foley of Washington. He doesn't try to play games, he doesn't try to be cute; every time he opens his mouth, he says something. And people listen. You hear him and wonder why we don't get a chance to vote for people like that for president.

It was a dynamite week of hearings. Next week could be even better.

Mike Royko

Tribune Media Services

taken some responsibility, he doesn't seem to fit the fall guy role, either. If anything, he's widely described by those who know him as even more of a follow-orders, chain-of-command, go-by-the-book military sort than Ollie.

Of course, it's always possible that in Poindexter's future testimony, he'll shock everyone by saying:

"Yes, senator, I did it. I made all those spooky decisions to sell arms to the Ayatollah, to shift the profits to the Contras, to set up the secret Swiss bank accounts, to do business with that kinky Iranian profiteer. You ask why I did it, why I took these grave matters into my own hands? I'll tell you why. Because every time I went in and tried to ask the President what we should do, he fell asleep on me. By God, how much snoring can one man be expected to take?"

Or he might say: "Yes, I explained the plans to the President, and he seemed to be listening. But I'm not sure he understood because when I finished and was leaving the Oval Office, he said: 'Sounds fine, Bob, and tell them to put it on whole wheat and hold the mayo.'"

But I have a hunch that Poindexter will somehow avoid the fall guy role. And where does that leave us?

Well, if you've been following the hearings, it seems obvious that the fall guy has already been selected. And the choice couldn't be more perfect.

Whom did Ollie go to for guidance and wisdom? Who was his personal hero? Who told him how to fib, finagle and con? Who was his mentor in the James Bond game?

Of course, the late William Casey, former head of the CIA.

Casey can now be the shadowy mastermind who decided to keep Reagan in the dark, which probably isn't difficult on the sunniest of days. He can be the one who skirted the law and urged the obedient and worshipful North on to his secret missions.

And since he was known for his creative brilliance, who knows? Maybe it's true.

Either way, true or not, Casey's in no position to deny it. Since we all have to go sometime, I don't think it's disrespectful to say that his timing couldn't have been better.

North will be able to march off to his new career as a national hero. Poindexter can go wherever discarded admirals go. Congress can stop trembling about all those angry letters and telegrams from voters.

And President Reagan? He can just point at the cemetery and say: "The buck stops there."

Adventures in Babysitting — (Varsity, PG-13) Elisabeth Shue of "Karate Kid" discovers babysitting isn't what it's cracked up to be in this comic nightmare produced by Touchstone Films.

Benji the Hunted — (Fox Eastgate, G) Benji has his fourth Walt Disney adventure, with a twist. No humans speak after the first 12 minutes. Arf?

Beverly Hills Cop 2 — (Varsity, R) Eddie Murphy and most of the cast of the original are back for more laughs and adventure. Brigitte Nielsen, Sylvester Stallone's wife, co-stars as the villainess.

Dragnet — (Saluki, PG-13) Dan Aykroyd and Tom Hanks star in this comedy spoof of the original television series.

Full Metal Jacket — (University 4, R) This powerful Vietnam War drama is said to be as good as or even better than "Platoon." Written, produced and directed by Stanley Kubrick of "Clockwork Orange."

Innerspace — (University 4, PG) Dennis Quaid is miniaturized and injected into the body of a nerd (Martin Short) in this comedy directed by Joe Dante and produced by Steven Spielberg.

Jaws: The Revenge — (Saluki, PG-13) Hold on to your flotation devices, that Great White is back for revenge in number four of the series. Lorraine Gary of the original is back, this time co-starring with Michael Caine.

The Lost Boys — (University 4, R) Young, punk vampires stalk the night scene in this new wave thriller. Sneak preview 8:30 p.m. Friday only.

Band camp to give Shryock performance

Musicians from the SIU Senior High School Band Camp will present a concert of band and choral music at 1 p.m. Saturday in Shryock Auditorium.

High School students, mostly from the Southern Illinois area, have been on campus this week participating in an annual music camp sponsored by the School of Music.

The 83 students participated in concert band, chorus, jazz ensemble, swing choir and a piano camp.

The jazz ensemble and swing choir will perform at 7:30 p.m. in Shryock.

The piano segment of the camp, "Great Pianists Program," is conducted by Donald Beattie, associate professor of piano pedagogy.

All performances are free of charge and are open to the public.

AIDS fear produces latex glove shortage

MASSILLON, Ohio (UPI) — The acquired immune deficiency syndrome crisis is causing a shortage of latex gloves and manufacturers are scrambling to keep up with demand, the president of a major supplier said Thursday.

Smith and Nephew Medical Co. of Massillon, one of the largest suppliers of medical supply gloves to hospitals in the United States, is facing what its president, Frank Rauch, said is a "feverish demand" from its customers.

Rauch said orders to his privately held company have quadrupled in the past few months. He said hospitals that have ordered 100 cases of gloves a month are now ordering 100 cases a week.

"I think there is an explosive demand for medical gloves of all kinds, and that is not all that surprising, given the amount of publicity on the AIDS issue,"

Rauch said. "There is a sustaining increase in demand because there has been a very definite change in the past several years for hospital protocols."

Rauch said there are no accurate estimates on how many such gloves are sold and used in the country each year.

He said the company increased its output by 30 percent and has plans for "active expansion."

Other Registered Student Organizations, which sometimes ask SPC for co-sponsorships, will be hurt by the budget cuts, he said.

An example would be if the housing program wanted to have a Parents Day and wanted SPC to co-sponsor the event. "We couldn't sponsor that unless we had already put that money aside," Palmisano said.

There also will not be as many concerts and films presented as a result of the cut backs, he said.

"The USO would not fund any of the films for SPC, but the Graduate and Professional Student Council gave us $4,000, which we decided to use to bail out our film program," Palmisano said.

SPC tries to get popular films that can compete with the video market in prices, he said.

Because students are paying for SPC through student fees, charging them more than $2 would be making them pay twice.

SPC also sponsors trips for students during spring break and to baseball and football games.

secretary wants to be sure any money appropriated for the project is significant enough to really get the project underway," he said.

Gosnell said he has confidence in Gray's ability to get funding for the project, which began in 1973.

"This project is at the mercy of the Congress every year," he said. "We have to survive year by year on money appropriated by Congress."

you have Admiral Poindexter, with a lot to lose; he is facing prosecution," Hyde said. "I believe the president and Admiral Poindexter at this point. He has admitted the facts, which amount to deceiving Congress and attempting to cover up a political embarrassment. It is a sorry tale of cover-up. Who gets the benefit of the doubt? I want to give it to the president because we see no evidence that he knew."

Liman noted the memory dilemma, asking Poindexter at one point Thursday, "Now, Admiral, you're a man who prides yourself on memory. Fair to say?"

Poindexter, 50 — a Navy rear admiral, first in his 1958 class at the U.S. Naval Academy who holds a doctorate in nuclear physics from Cal Tech and a computer buff — said, "I have a reasonably good memory."

goes down we'll still have to write everything up manually, then when it comes back up we have to put the information into the computer," she said.

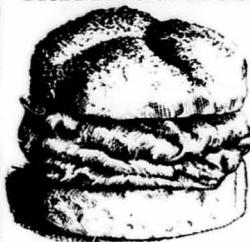

STARRATT SAID the Northeastern library is trying to develop a back-up system that would allow temporary input when the LCS system goes down.

Brian Coleman, a graduate in economics, has worked at the library for two years. He said it seems the old system is just as fast right now because most books being checked out don't have the OCR labels yet.

Mary Ellen Ford, a graduate in theater, is from Cleveland where she said the public library had a system similar to OCR. She said she didn't think Morris was archaic but checking out was more time-consuming. "This system will be better," she said.

Arab official warns that Gulf War could spread

By United Press International

Arab League Secretary-General Chadli Klibi, arriving in Rome for talks on ways to end the Iran-Iraq war, warned Thursday there was "a great danger" the conflict could spread to other nations.

Iraqi attacks on Iran's offshore gunboat bases are raising tensions in the Persian Gulf with about a week to go before the U.S. Navy plans to begin escorting Kuwaiti tankers flying the American flag through the waterway.

Klibi arrived in Rome from Saudi Arabia to head an Arab delegation in talks Friday in Italy.

Media cautioned on Gulf coverage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon Thursday warned the news media covering the Persian Gulf to stay clear of Navy vessels escorting Kuwaiti tankers because the U.S. warships are on hair-trigger alert with orders to shoot first.

"It's not in their best interests to be operating in the vicinity of our naval forces," Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims said. "There are hazards involved in approaching our military units too closely, and we are warning those."

News organizations have been making preparations for chartering aircraft and boats, Sims said, in apparent attempts to facilitate coverage of the warships escorting the tankers in the gulf run, which begins next week.

'Brighton Beach' displays old problems in new light

By Winnie Stones
Staff Writer

A 1937 setting deals with 1987 problems in the Summer Playhouse production of Neil Simon's autobiographical play, "Brighton Beach Memoirs."

The Great Depression is on the way out and World War II is just around the corner as Simon's play unfolds in Brighton Beach, Brooklyn, N.Y. The story deals with a family of Russian Jewish immigrant heritage.

An integral part of the play is the very detailed set, designed by Barbara Mangrum, a SIU graduate student in production design. The set depicts a typical white, two-story frame house of the era. A Yankees pennant hanging in the boy's bedroom, an old-fashioned gothic radio and other details make the scene realistic.

THE PLAY opens with lead character, Eugene Morris Jerome, portraying Simon at 15, acting out his baseball fantasies in the back yard. Eugene, played by SIU theater sophomore Alban Dennis, proved to be the stand-out character of the play. He has most of the humorous lines and speaks directly to the audience, providing useful insight to the action of the play.

Inside the house, we see the rest of Eugene's family preparing for the evening meal. There isn't much room in the house with Eugene, his brother Stanley, mother Kate, father Jack, Kate's sister Blanche, and Blanche's two daughters Laurie and Nora.

THE FAMILY of seven is the entire cast, and while the wisecracking Eugene received most of the audience's attention, the entire cast played an equal role in the action of the play.

All the characters gave strong, believable performances, especially Kate, played by stand-up comedienne Carolyn Wilson and Jack, played by SIU theater veteran Andy Cook. Jack is the father and the main breadwinner but Eugene's mother wears the pants in the family, constantly yelling at Eugene to run to the store. She keeps the family and the cast together with her controlled performance.

EUGENE'S OLDER brother Stanley, played by Greg Paul, another SIU sophomore, does a good job in giving Eugene brotherly advice about girls, "wacking off," gambling, smoking, and anything else that can prevent his little brother from making the same mistakes he did.

On the other side of the family, there is Kate's sister Blanche, played by first year Summer Playhouse actress Margaret Connelly. Blanche, a widow, has brought her two daughters to live in the house. She just hangs around the house sewing. Hampered by an asthma condition, Blanche constantly thinks about paying back the family for its hospitality, getting a job and a new husband.

HEALTH PROBLEMS are just one of the modern issues dealt with in the play. Blanche's younger daughter, Laurie, played by recent SIU radio and television graduate Suzanne Gibson, has a heart flutter when she gets too excited. Eugene is convinced it's just a ploy to keep her from her fair share of the chores.

Laurie's older sister Nora, played by Jennifer Finch, is the center of Eugene's adolescent incestuous fantasies of the "golden palace of the Himalayas." She gives a strong performance as a perfectly healthy 16-year-old girl with aspirations of performing in a Broadway show.

MANY TIMES during the play simultaneous conversations take place. This is where the lighting, designed by Melanie G. Furber, played a crucial role, creating "mini stages" in the house. Without the lighting, many parts of the play would have been confusing.

The costumes, designed by Jan Hiatt, were not elaborate. The plain everyday clothes worn in the late thirties appeared authentic, especially Eugene's beat-up pair of canvas, high top sneakers.

Directed by Cash Baxter, "Brighton Beach Memoirs" is one of his last productions at SIU-C. Baxter, who also directed the Summer Playhouse musical "110 in the Shade," kept the pace of the play quick but not so fast that important points were missed.

The audience reacted in wholehearted laughter at funny moments and tender moments gave folks a chance to reflect on the love and togetherness portrayed by the family.

Hall-of-Famer speaks out, urges politics-Games truce

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Donna de Varona, winner of two gold medals at the 1964 Summer Games, called for a political truce in 1988 during her induction into the Olympic Hall of Fame Thursday at the Olympic Festival.

"The Summer Games have become a tool for politicians," said de Varona. "Since the terrorists-hostage situation in '72 at Munich, the Games have been embroiled in politics.

"Now, we've got a situation in Korea that could add the '88 Games in Seoul to that list. Cuba is suggesting that the Socialist countries consider boycotting the Games if North Korea is not allowed to hold some of the events.

"I'd like to use this occasion to ask the United States and the Soviet Union, the two most powerful countries in this world, to call for a political truce during the Summer Games," de Varona said. "Let's give them back to the athletes."

De Varona, who made her Olympic debut as a 13-year-old swimmer at the Rome Games in 1960, was one of four inducted Thursday to the Hall of Fame.

The others were Shirley Babashoff, who as a swimmer at Montreal in 1976 became the only American woman to win five Olympic medals in one Games; Floyd Patterson, who won the Olympic middleweight boxing title in 1952 and the world heavyweight professional title in 1956; and Dr. Leroy T. Walker, who was honored for coaching the 1976 U.S. Olympic track and field team.

The Festival moved into its fourth day Thursday with the final evening of swimming, a continuation of wrestling and the start of diving.

In swimming, attention was focused on 17-year-old Californian Sarah Anderson, seeking to become the first woman to win six Festival gold medals in the same year.

Anderson, a 5-foot-9, 130-pounder from Riverside, won four the first two nights and was expected to compete in the 400 freestyle and 4x100 Thursday night.

Tuesday, she won the 200-meter freestyle and was a member of the winning 800 freestyle relay team. Wednesday, she won the 800 freestyle and anchored the winning 400 freestyle team.

"I'm really pleased," Anderson said after receiving her fourth gold medal to move to within one of the Festival record. "I came in to the Festival not even expecting to place very well here. But I got caught up in all the excitement of the Festival. I guess I really psyched myself up."

Jon Olsen, Jonesboro, Ark., led the men in gold medals with three — winning the 50-meter freestyle and being a member of the winning teams in the 400 medley relay and the 800 freestyle relay.

The diving was expected to feature Greg Louganis, a double gold winner in the 1984 Olympics and who has dominated the event at the Festival during the '80s. Louganis was a double winner in the 1982, 1983, 1985 and 1986 Festivals.

Thursday marked the first appearance for the top seeds in freestyle wrestling. The top Americans in every class are present at the Festival with the exception of 114 1/2-pound star Joe Gonzales who is sidelined by an injury.

vie for the No. 1 position, too." The legendary mentor, nine times named NCAA District V coach of the year, expects the experience factor will be a big boon for Mullican.

"I think Mullican was a little jittery in some of the matches last year," Hartzog said. "It was his first year as a collegiate player. In the early part of the season, he was as nervous as a cat on a hot tin roof, but he eventually settled down. I think both he and Pavelonis will be a good deal better this year."

Pavelonis of Harrisburg, younger brother of the starter.

The Salukis are waiting on an NCAA clearance for sophomore Brant Gessner of Mount Vernon, who dropped out of Furman University (Greenville, S.C.) for medical reasons, but Hartzog expects it will come through.

"If and when we get that clearance," Hartzog said, "Gessner could challenge for a starting spot."

Hartzog said he expects competitive performances and always has as a coach, be it in track, field events or golf.

"I expect the kids to be tougher than hell without me being on their backs all the time," he said. "I know they'll have a bad shot once in a while, or even a bad round. But I don't stand for a whole bunch of poor play getting them down.

"My life has been centered around working with young people. That's what I do best and what I enjoy. I'm really looking forward to this year or else I wouldn't be coaching," Hartzog said.

The Saluki linksters tee off the fall slate Sept. 7 in the 36-hole Western Illinois Invitational at the Franklin Country Club in West Frankfort. Hartzog will be able to field 12 players in that event, and feels it will help him determine how some of the younger players will stand up to tournament pressure.

Five other tournaments are on the Saluki schedule, including the 36-hole Saluki Invitational Oct. 11-12 at the Rend Lake Country Club in Benton.

Hartzog said other tournaments may be added to the slate at a later date.

Spikers and brews

Local pub caters to volleyball fans

By Darren Richardson
Staff Writer

Volleyball and taverns aren't generally thought of in the same category, but at the Pinch Penny Pub in Carbondale, it's hard to separate the two.

With league play in progress from 6-10 p.m. Monday to Thursday, 1-9 p.m. on Saturdays and open play for Pinch Penny customers Fridays and Sundays, one can almost always catch a glimpse of spiker action on balmy summer afternoons and cool evenings.

After the beer garden was completed in the fall of 1985, owner Fotios "Frank" Karayiannis decided volleyball would be a nice addition to make the atmosphere enjoyable.

"We had the space and wanted to fill it the best way we could think of," Karayiannis said. "Volleyball seemed to be a popular sport, so that's what we went with."

Although that first autumn was devoted to open play for Pinch Penny customers, Karayiannis said leagues were formed in the spring of 1986 and interest has been on the rise since.

This summer, 44 teams in four divisions, consisting of some 450 students, city employees, real estate agents and just about any occupation one can think of take part in the leagues. Usually, Karayiannis said, the seasons are eight games long, but team captains voted on a seven-game season for the summer to allow more people to participate.

"There are corec and men's leagues," Karayiannis said,

"with an A and B division in both. The A divisions are the people who take the games a little more seriously. This summer, we've got 4 men's A, 8 corec A, 10 men's B and 22 corec B."

"The majority of players this summer happen to be students, although we've got plenty of non-students playing too," Karayiannis said. "But in the fall and spring it's predominantly students."

"We used to have a flat fee per team," he said, "but now we've gone to a $4 per person charge since some teams have fewer players on the roster than others."

The leagues start the first week of the semester in the summer and fall, and the first week after break in the spring semester, Karayiannis said. The leagues end a week before finals, he said, to give student participants a chance to study for crucial final exams.

Teams usually play only once a week, but sometimes rainouts will force matches on Fridays and Sundays. But Karayiannis said this isn't much of a problem as customers still get a chance for open play after the matches are made up.

On the surface, it may seem that volleyball in The Garden might make for alcohol-induced, devil-may-care attitudes about play, but according to Karayiannis and Pinch Penny Liquor Store manager Steve Timcak, that's not the case.

"When we first put up the nets, we weren't sure if it would be a huge party scene or not, but it turned out that the players got pretty serious about it," Timcak said.

"People come prepared to play," Karayiannis added. "It's really not very often that you see people drinking before or during the games." The winning teams, he explained, are rewarded with a pitcher of beer for their victorious efforts.

"We want The Garden to be recreational," he said. "We don't blare acid-rock music so loud that you can't think straight or have to shout at the top of your lungs to talk with your friends. It's designed to be a place where you can come play volleyball or pitch horseshoes or just relax. The main thing is to spend time with friends and enjoy yourself."

Regular season play draws to a close July 30, with playoff competition beginning the next day through Aug. 2. Players on each of the 4 division-winning teams receive an elbow-length jersey for capturing the championships.

Karayiannis said he expects "50-some" teams for the fall slate, and anticipates no problem filling the rosters.

"We've had to turn people away before because of the tremendous interest," he said. "It's on a first-come, first-serve basis, so the earlier you sign up, the better."

Participants must be 21 or older, Karayiannis said. For more information visit Pinch Penny Pub or call at 529-3348.

Big lineup brightens future for men linksters this fall

Saluki men's golf coach Lew Hartzog says he's got a strong team for the 1987-88 season, despite losing the services of two talented golfers to graduation.

"Even with the loss of Jay Sala and Mike Tucker, I feel we will be a better golf team this coming year," Hartzog said. "Mainly because the young men know me better and know what to expect of me now, and I think I know a whole lot more about handling golfers than I did at this time a year ago."

Though he won't play, Sala, who has one semester left before graduation, has volunteered his services as an assistant coach.

"Jay came in and offered his help and I accepted it heartily because he's so enthusiastic about what he does," Hartzog said. "He plans to stay on as a graduate assistant. I hope to have his services for a couple of years. The kids like him, and he'll be there when they need him."

Hartzog, in his second season as linkster skipper, had no idea this time last year he'd be back in a coaching role. He said he took the job as coach "somewhat reluctantly" after Athletics Director Jim Livengood requested him to coach for a year. Now the partially-retired Hartzog, NCAA track and field coach of the year in 1982, is eager to face the challenge of developing a champion golf squad. "When I retired," Hartzog said, "it was with the understanding I'd work half-time for two years. I'm glad now that I took the job. I may coach golf for 10 years. As long as my health holds up and Mr. Livengood wants me to do it, I'll be the golf coach."

The golfers have their work cut out for them if they are to capture the Missouri Valley Conference title, a goal Hartzog has set for himself before he steps down from the helm.

"Tulsa and Wichita State are going to be extremely tough. And I was really impressed with Illinois State all last year," Hartzog said.

Leading the SIUC charge are seniors Bobby Pavelonis of Harrisburg, Jeff Mullican of Marion and Todd Eastin of Flora. Sophomores Mike Cowen of Montgomery and Marc Maslauski of Springfield should also play key roles in the Saluki season.

"The leaders will be Pavelonis and Mullican," Hartzog said. "Cowen could

PRAIRIE GAMES UPDATE

Archers aim to please before sparse crowd

URBANA (UPI) — On a bright, cool, breezy Thursday at the Prairie State Games, the only people gathered to watch the archery competition appear to be the friends and families of the competitors.

But competing in near anonymity is nothing new to the 22 archers firing at red, yellow and blue ringed targets as far as 90 meters away.

"Archery has to be the top contender for the least-known and least-understood amateur sport in the country," said Bob Clark, coach of the North Shore archery team.

"People know less about archery than even other generally unrecognized sports like track and field," he said. "You could ask people if they know who Darrel Pace is and 99.99 percent of them would have no idea," Clark said.

Pace, by the way, is the most successful archer in the country. He is a winner of several national championships and is an Olympic medal winner.

Many people don't even consider archery a real sport, said Andrea Frank of Arlington Heights, a competitor in the women's scholastic division.

"I told my friends I was coming down to play in the Prairie State Games. They asked what sport and when I said archery, they just laughed," Frank said.

But the lack of recognition doesn't make the players lose their competitive edge or enjoy the sport any less, Clark said.

"The people who shoot a lot and compete in tournaments really enjoy the sport," he said. "There are a lot of families who travel around the country together to tournaments and get a lot of entertainment from the sport."

"We're not a big spectator sport, we don't have a lot of people coming out to stand in a field to see us," Clark said. "If more people would come out and see what it's all about, I think they'd take a liking to the sport."
