SIUC volunteers to help with flood

By Bill Kugelberg
Politics Writer

SIUC is preparing to join the countless agencies and volunteers responding to the flood-ravaged area of Southern Illinois.

Rain and floods virtually have paralyzed many downstate communities in the past weeks. Gov. Jim Edgar called on area volunteers Wednesday, announcing that the disaster is far from over.

University to contribute to disaster relief efforts Gus Bode

Dr. Harriet Wilson Barlow, associate director of Student Development, said the Saluki Volunteer Corps is working with Undergraduate Student Government and Graduate and Professional Student Council to get people to volunteer to help.

"Right now, we are trying to get people we can contact who will mobilize if we get the call for help," Barlow said.

Gov. Jim Edgar has declared seven downstate counties as state disaster areas and said he expects more problems in the next week.

"The Great Flood of 1993 is a clear threat to people and property in Southern Illinois, and we want to be fully prepared for the crests that will hit during the next few days," Edgar said.

Since the floods and rains have been so unpredictable, Barlow said she is not certain when or if the SIUC volunteers will be needed.

"At this point, we do not know

Striking mine workers unite at rally

By Shawna Donovan

The hot sun blazed on 12,000 people who came together from all over the nation to support the striking United Mine Workers at the Pinckneyville fairgrounds.

The crowd, composed of different unions of different crafts, brought together the feeling of Solidarity 1993 as leaders spoke of assurance and brotherhood.

Richard Trumka, UMWA president, said workers will have to unite to get their jobs back and form better relations with companies.

"America has failed to reach international workers standards," he said. "When labor stands united, they will not defeat us."

"If we stand united, companies will know if you pick on one of us," he said. "You pick on all of us."

Trumka has been negotiating with area mines to reach a contract agreement since the UMWA strike started May 10. The strike is a result of a failed contract which included retiree benefits and job security provisions.

Burriss names group to offer aid to farmers

By Bill Kugelberg
Politics Writer

Attorney General Roland W. Burriss has joined federal and state government officials trying to assist Midwest flood victims.

Flooding along the Mississippi, Rock and Illinois Rivers has produced millions of dollars in damage to businesses and homeowners in the region.

Burriss has appointed a flood assistance task force to assist individuals who have suffered from the flooding.

The attorney general said many people in Illinois will have legal needs which he will address so they do not have to suffer more financial hardship than they already have.

"There are thousands of Illinoisans who have been severely hurt by the flooding of 1993, many of whom are our state's farmers," Burriss said. "Many farmers have not only lost this year's crops, but stand to lose many of their possessions and their homes as well."

Burriss added that many Illinois farmers stand to lose their crops and homes and this may be some farmers' last year farming.

Karen McNaught, assistant attorney general of the Agriculture Law Division, was appointed to head the task force. McNaught will be assisted by a representative of the Consumer Protective Division along with support staff from Burriss' office.

Ernie Slottag, a spokesman for Burriss said the task force is being set up to help people who may need help rebuilding or getting back into everyday life after the flood waters recede.

"We are working as a referral office to help people not get caught up in consumer scams," Slottag said.

Slottag also said many lessons were learned during last year's hurricane in Florida, and there was some indication that people were going door-to-door for donations to help hurricane victims.

"People were asking for donations to help victims, but the money was not being passed on to them, it was being kept," Slottag said.

Flood waters are forcing many people from their homes who live along the Mississippi river; people who will be searching for rebuilding help once the flood crisis is over.

Hopig g to avoid any consumer scams, Burriss said he wants to help everybody he can.

"I want to make absolutely sure that each and every person who needs assistance during this difficult time will have access to it," Burriss said.

Those people who are in need of assistance should contact the Attorney General's office at 1-800-252-8666 or 217-782-9011, or contact the Carbondale regional office at 618-457-3505.

Discrimination claims under investigation

By Tracy Moss
General Assignment Writer

Evergreen Terrace residents, claiming ethnic discrimination and abuse of job hours by a Terrace resident manager, have taken their complaints to administration officials.

Harvey Welch, vice president for student affairs, met with Cindy Ferree-Dean, a Terrace resident and employee, and two other residents, Jill Rickabaugh, and Kim Huffman, Tuesday to discuss the employee abuse of job hours and ethnic discrimination at Evergreen Terrace.

Welch said there is an investigation of the matter currently underway.

"A group of students from Evergreen Terrace brought me some concerns they had and I have asked the housing office for the necessary help in investigating the situation," Welch said.

Welch said he had no idea how long the investigation would take.

"To be fair I must listen to everyone and that can take quite a while," he said.

Welch said he was unable to discuss the details of the matter because it is a personnel matter.

Amaya makes Cavs' summer cut

By Dan Leahy
Sports Writer

Ashraf Amaya will be packing his bags this weekend, but he won't be going home.

Amaya has survived the first cut and made the Cleveland Cavaliers 11-man summer league team.

Amaya will travel to Minnesota with the team to play in three exhibition games. Amaya will get his first look at other talents in the league, as the Cavs will play the Detroit Pistons, Indiana Pacers and Minnesota Timberwolves.

Bill Neff, Amaya's league representative, said he talked to Amaya on Tuesday about how the former Saluki star felt about the Cavs experience.

"He said he felt he was doing pretty well out there, but I still don't think he feels entirely comfortable on the floor," Neff said. "He wants to show that he can handle the ball outside, but hasn't been able to showcase everything he can do yet."

Neff said Cleveland's system lacks the freedom to allow big men to roam around on the perimeter.

Even with his limited exposure, Amaya has impressed the Cavs enough to stay.

Gary Fitzsimmons, Cleveland's player personnel director and SIUC graduate, said Amaya's athleticism and competitiveness earned him a longer look.

But Fitzsimmons also said the stakes have been raised, as Amaya will be performing against better competition.

Neff said he believes Amaya will play well enough to earn an invitation to the Cavaliers veterans

Golf course for British Open painfully unique

The Washington Post

SANDWICH, England—The buzzwords are basic enough at the British Open that began Thursday at Royal St. George's Golf Club. The players are talking about touch, about feel, about imagination to craft shots that, even if perfectly struck, still can take a wild bounce toward down the fairway or into the ghastly rough and yawning traps.

The hollyhocks are in full bloom in the surrounding towns and villages, but the golf course hard by the English Channel is devoid of trees or flowering shrubbery, save for the scraggly, strangling stuff that eats shots.

Bernard Darwin, the London Times's late, great golf correspondent (and grandson of Charles Darwin), wrote in 1910 that Royal St. George's, considered by many the most difficult of the Open courses, "is as nearly my idea of heaven as is to be attained on any earthly links."

But that is clearly not a view shared by many of the participants who must contend with its royal-pain eccentricities in this $1.5 million, 122d Open. In fact, some in these parts define local knowledge on this course as a player's ability to find his way back to the clubhouse from the acres of rolling dunes.

Consider the winning scores at the last two Opens here on the humpy, bumpy Sandwich fairways and greens. They total 2 under par, on the par-70, 6,860-yard course that plays considerably longer, or shorter, depending on how the wind blows.

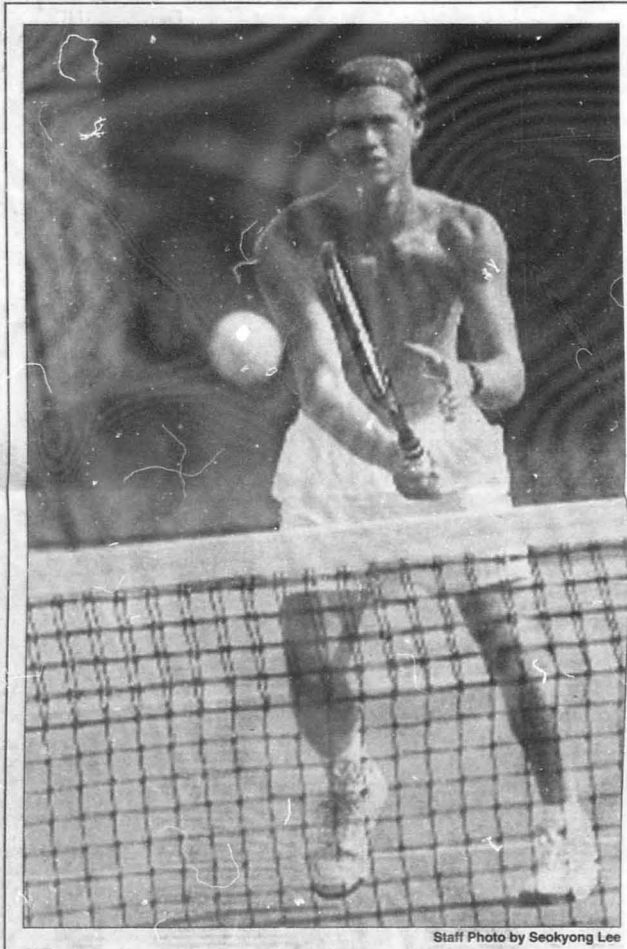

That's in marked contrast with the next toughest courses on the Open rotation — a 12-under total for the last two Opens at Royal Lytham and Turnberry, or the easiest, 30 under in the last two events at regal St. Andrews.

This style course "is something we've never seen before," said John Cook, who finished second to Nick Faldo at Muirfield last July. "You just take what you can get and go on from there. You'll get bounces you don't like, but you just accept it and go on. It was wild when I first saw it."

"I'll be taking my good luck pills each morning before I play," said Australia's Greg Norman, whose only major championship victory is the 1986 British Open at Turnberry. "You need to play the mental game for a week and it's a course (on which) you have to have your patience. You play a vast variety of shots to get the ball from Point A to Point B. It's true golf."

And occasionally true grief.

49ers make history with $25.5 million contract for player

Sporting News

ROCKLIN, Calif.—When Steve Young reports to the San Francisco 49ers' training camp Thursday afternoon, he will be a day late but he will not be a dollar short.

The 49ers made the quarterback the richest player in NFL history late Wednesday when they gave him a five-year, $26.5 million contract.

Young, the NFL's most valuable player who caused the club some momentary embarrassment when he did not report by the 6 p.m. deadline Wednesday, was expected to arrive after the first morning workout Thursday.

"I'm not sure I'll be there," said Carmen Policy, 49er president, from the team's Santa Clara offices. "I think I gave them my car in the process."

John Elway, the Denver Bronco quarterback and previously highest-paid player, this spring signed a four-year extension worth 19.1 million.

"Steve has waited so long for this, and now it's finally here," said Leigh Steinberg, Young's agent. "This is the dawning of a new era. ... There is no question who the 49ers' quarterback is now and in the future."

And, subtly, the contract illustrated who the 49er quarterback isn't.

"It will be great, great solace to pass a week or two without hearing the 'M' word," Steinberg said.

Young, who last year was the first player in NFL history to lead the league in passing in consecutive seasons with 100-plus ratings, was the main reason the 49ers traded Joe Montana to the Kansas City Chiefs last spring. This is the team's first training camp in 15 years without Montana, so officials were noticeably nervous Wednesday when Young didn't show up.

"I don't know that quarterback controversies ever end," said George Seifert, 49er coach. "Joe may not be on the team ... but he is still in pro football. I don't know if that will all of a sudden disappear." Wednesday marked the first time the straight-and-narrow Young had missed a day of training camp in nine seasons, although it became obvious to Steinberg that he would not miss much more.

"I don't want to say Steve was anxious, but after his 35th call to my office today ...," Steinberg said. "Steve is emotionally unsuited to miss camp. We were not leaving tonight until we got this done."

Young, even before knowing about his

Lasorda's contract extended

Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES—Dodger President Peter O'Malley extended the contract of Manager Tom Lasorda Wednesday by one year, retaining his longtime skipper through the 1994 season.

Lasorda, in his 17th season as manager, originally signed with the Dodgers in 1949, when he began his professional career as a pitcher.

The decision, which came after a Wednesday meeting of O'Malley, Lasorda and Executive Vice President Fred Claire, allows the club to start the second half of the season without the distraction of Lasorda's contract expiring this year.

"I just traveled 9,000 miles in the last three days, and I feel great," Lasorda said shortly after being told by O'Malley. "I called my wife, so, and she was thrilled and then I called my brother. Everybody knows that I love this organization ... and I'm grateful to be part of it for another year."

"I've been bragging the last couple days about the Dodgers after the way they handled (the deaths of Roy) Campanella and (Don) Drysdale. It is an organization with a heart, and they remember people and never forget."

During the Dodgers' poor start this season, there was speculation that Lasorda would not be back next season. But Lasorda has been able to blend a team of veterans and youth, turning a 14-22 record to 46-41 at the All-Star break.

"Tommy coming back is as we want it and I'm pleased," Claire said. "Tommy has done a good job and maintained his enthusiasm for the job and I'm pleased he wants to come back."

Lasorda is only the second manager the Dodgers have had since they moved from Brooklyn to Los Angeles in 1958. Lasorda succeeded Walter Alston on Sept. 29, 1976, and has won two World Series championships, four National League pennants and six Western Division titles.

Last season, however, the Dodgers finished with the worst record in baseball, and when they got off to a poor start this season, there was speculation that this was Lasorda's last season as manager.

In an interview earlier this season, O'Malley did not give Lasorda a vote of confidence and went so far as to say he could make decisions in January or

U.N. HEADQUARTERS ATTACKED IN SOMALIA — The head of U.N. peacekeeping forces said Wednesday there is U.N. anger over continuing complaints from Italian officials about the United Nations' aggressive military operations there. The move came as Somali militiamen fired on U.N. headquarters in the tense capital, Mogadishu. There were no immediate reports of casualties in the attack, which appeared aimed at American soldiers, seen as the backbone of the U.N. force.

NO PROGRESS IN ARISTIDE RETURN PLAN — Haitian political adversaries tried Wednesday to draw up a truce that would facilitate the return of exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide but ended their first session without even agreeing on who should be admitted to the meetings, sources close to the discussions said. The negotiators, who meet again Thursday, appeared to have differences over who is a legitimate political leader and therefore eligible to participate.

U.N. ITALIAN GENERAL RELIEVED OF DUTIES — The United Nations, seeking to reassert control over the divided peace-keeping operation in Somalia, has removed the Italian contingent's commander. Gen. Bruno Loi, commander of the 2,442-man Italian force in Mogadishu, has been "rotated back to Rome" and is expected to return to Italy "as soon as possible," Kofi Annan, U.N. undersecretary general for peace-keeping operations, announced Wednesday.

KILLING OF CARDINAL HEATS WAR ON DRUGS — Attorney General Jorge Carpizo's investigation into a drug gang's killing of a Catholic cardinal has shed new light on the extent of official complicity in trafficking throughout Mexico, including paid informants and operatives at high levels of government. The May 24 killing of Cardinal Juan Jesus Posadas Ocampo in Guadalajara led to the dismantlement of a major Mexican drug cartel.

SAFETY OFFICIALS INSPECT NISSAN AIR BAGS — Edward Brickman was slowing for a stop sign when he joined a small club: drivers claiming their cars' air bags went off for no good reason. There was no accident, says Brickman. "There was a tremendous pop in the car," he said. He says the air bag's deployment, which occurs when a spark sets off a small canister of propellant, cracked the windshield of his 1992 Nissan Maxima. He drove to a hospital. Wednesday, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said it has opened a formal investigation into the incident and two other reports and covers 34,000 '92 Maximas with air bags.

BOMB SCARE ENDS MUSIC STUDENT'S THESIS — When what school employees thought was a suspicious package arrived in the mail early this month at California State University, Dominguez Hills, nervous officials summoned members of the bomb squad, who proceeded to explode the package. The package contained not a bomb, but the remnants of sheet music and a cassette tape. Now, officials have determined that the contents were the master's thesis of graduate student Tekasini Kawai.

CHELSEA PUTDOWN MAKES STARS HURL — They thought it was a perfectly harmless little joke. But when Wayne and Garth of NBC's "Saturday Night Live" turned their stone-washed wit to Chelsea Clinton in a sketch, making wisecracks about her appearance, the response was less than excellent. After hearing boos from the TV community and public criticism from Hillary Rodham Clinton, the show's producers edited out the offending comments when the show was rebroadcast recently.

KID WHO STOLE SUBWAY SPEAKS TO YOUTHS — Keron Thomas, a 16-year-old joyrider was sentenced to three years' probation. He had a message for kids who might think about taking a subway for a spin. Don't. "I wouldn't advise them to," Thomas said. "It's dangerous." Wednesday, Thomas went on a 45-mile adventure on a crowded train. On May 8 he stole a crowded subway train and drove it through 56 stops, missing the last one and getting caught.

Meets to get IDOT in touch with citizens

By Erick J.B. Enriquez
Police Writer

Illinois taxpayers will have a chance offer their input with the Illinois Department of Transportation at special open house meetings designed for the public interaction next week.

Citizens will be able to meet with the Department of Transportation beginning July 19 to ask questions and offer comments on transportation issues and projects.

The first meetings will deal with the five-year highway improvement program that contains specific projects and their funding.

The transportation plan, covering a 25 year time-frame, will be discussed in four full day public forums.

Martha Shiebel, public affairs officer for the DOT, said the transportation plan is relevant to the Southern Illinois area because there has been an intense growth in rural areas within the past few years.

Shiebel said 13 counties in Southern Illinois are affected by the program including: Perry, Franklin, Jackson, Williamson, Saline, Gallatin, Union, Johnson, Pope, Harden, Alexander, Pulaski and Massac.

Highway program projects that should concern residents in Southern Illinois include:

- Repairs and improvements of five bridges on Interstate 51 south of Marion in Pulaski County.
- Ongoing construction of Illinois Route 13.
- Engineering work and bridge replacement east of Cape Girardeau over the Mississippi river.
- Reconstructions and bridge replacements on U.S. 51.

Kirk Brown, Illinois

transportation secretary, said they hope as many people as possible will attend the meetings and get involved in the process of transportation improvement priorities.

"The citizens of Illinois in rural areas as well as cities are in a good position to tell the Department what they need in terms of transportation facilities in their communities," Brown said. "We want to hear from them if they have concerns about an issue or a particular project."

"We also want to hear if they think we are doing something right. We want everyone's views," Brown said.

Jim Slifer, deputy director of planning and programming, said the open houses are a first time endeavor for IDOT, so they are not sure what to expect.

"These open houses are not only designed to give anyone with interests to come in and give their thoughts on certain issues, but also to stimulate people's thoughts," Slifer said. "We want to hear what John and Mary Q. Citizen have to say."

Slifer said the Department of Transportation has had excellent input from the public in the past.

Shiebel said other issues that will be discussed include: the future of freight transportation, traffic congestion, and the aging population.

"One important issue is how we can reconcile making improvements to highways and comply with the Clean Air Act at the same time," Shiebel said.

Shiebel said all the meetings are open to everyone.

"We will have tables and displays so people can become familiar with these services," Shiebel said.

She said there will be representatives from IDOT to take comments from the public.

Legislation to add cash for libraries

By Sean L. N. Hao
General Assignment Writer

Gov. Jim Edgar Wednesday signed legislation increasing the title and processing fees for vehicles to provide $19 million in increased funding for the state's public libraries.

The "Live & Learn" program will be funded through an $8 increase in vehicle title fees and a $10 increase in the processing charges for transferring license plates.

Connie Stuedel, director of the Carbondale Public Library, said the program is the fulfillment of a promise made by George H. Ryan, who also serves as the state's head librarian.

"We depend on property taxes for our money, and any money we get from the state, over an above that, really helps," she said.

Stuedel, said the increase in library funding is a shift of recent trends.

"Library funding over the last couple of years has been cut drastically. Library funding is based on population. Last year we received about 75 cents per resident, and now that amount will be about $1.25," she said.

The Carbondale Public Library will not be allowed to use the estimated $8,000 funding increase for construction, but it is available for expansion of collections and computers.

"Projects in mind include expansion of our CD ROM and reference collections," she said. "A portion of the money will also be used to increase the accessibility of the library."

Stuedel said the 34 percent increase in per capita grants will result in continued development of the library's multi-cultural area.

Changes aid parties of sexual harassment

SEXUAL HARASSMENT IS A SERIOUS OFFENSE. The grievance process involved with harassment charges are equally grave. But the University adopted policy guidelines in hope "for the orderly and prompt resolution" of all complaints filed by SIUC faculty, staff and students.

Last May, however, a sexual harassment charge was filed with SIUC personnel services. Unfortunately, the same procedures meant to protect the parties involved worked against them. Deadlines for each step allowed five months to pass before even a hearing could be set — enough time for turmoil to brew both on and off campus for the parties involved, said Pamela Brandt, director of personnel services.

But Brandt introduced proposed policy changes to the faculty senate this week, changes that would allow for the resolution of charges as soon as they are filed.

UNDER CURRENT PROCEDURES, DEADLINES exist for each step of the grievance procedure. A person wishing to file a sexual harassment charge against another has 120 days after the incident to report it. Personnel officers have five days thereafter to review the complaint and meet with the person bringing the charge. They then have 10 days to notify the person being charged, and the person charged has 10 days after that to respond, and so on and so on until the hearing finally is set.

As shown by the case mentioned above, the problem exists in that the steps can be manipulated, allowing people to take the maximum amount of time the deadline deems possible before responding. And this usually is the situation.

Since the last revision to the policy in 1989, however, personnel services is using the sum of what it has learned about the policy and adjusting it accordingly. If the policy changes are approved, these step-by-step deadlines would be thrown out.

THE PROPOSED CHANGES WOULD CONTINUE the 120-day deadline for a sexual harassment charge to be filed, but the remaining deadlines no longer would exist. Instead, the procedure would resolve the problem in as short amount of time possible after the complaint has been filed.

The benefits of such a change are two-fold: Both the alleged victim and the accused harasser would have less time to await a decision, and perhaps even more importantly, the policy actually might reach out to those it was meant to protect in the first place.

The complexity of the existing procedure deters some from filing legitimate complaints because of the strenuous process involved. The new changes would not permit people to pointlessly drag out the matter, and more victims might speak out as a result.

THIS PROCEDURAL CHANGE HAS BEEN recommended by officials within the University, but other changes to the sexual harassment policy have been handed down from the state level because of recent changes in the Illinois Human Rights Act. The University's definition of sexual harassment would be adjusted to match that of the Illinois Department of Human Rights, and some sort of a sexual harassment training program would be implemented.

Faculty members will vote on these proposed changes in September, and it is in everyone's best interest to give them a favorable nod. Too many obstacles currently plague the sexual harassment process at the University, and they treat the matter as a less serious offense than it truly is.

These changes would not only tighten the grievance process to reach a greater efficiency, but they also send a message to those committing the offense, a message that should have been sent long ago: Sexual harassment will not be tolerated at SIUC.

Disney movie fills kids' minds with prejudice, stereotypes about women

LA TIMES-WASHINGTON POST

KEMPTON, Pa.—Would you give your child a copy of "Little Black Sambo"? Would you fill a child's head with sugar-coated racism and stereotypes? If the answer is no, then don't take that cherished little psyche to see "Snow White".

A friend of mine showed me a cartoon called Coal Black and de Sebben Dwarf produced by Warner Brothers as part of the Merrie Melodies series in the 1940s. The racism in this film is crystal clear, and we would rant and rave about what it might teach our children if someone tried to make it palatable with marketing hype today. Why is it so difficult, then, for many of us to see what's being said about women in fairy tales like "Snow White"?

Unfortunately for my trusting little daughter, I took her to see 'ol' Snow and the guys last Saturday. I went out of a sort of duty combined with nostalgia. All children are supposed to see "Snow White," right? I had this benign image of the film—beautifully realized animation, magic happening right there on the screen. I couldn't wait to see my daughter's eyes light up.

How many of you plunked down your money only to feel your stomachs turn while your little one's eyes begged for reassurance as the dagger went for Snow's heart?

In case you've forgotten, here's how the story goes.

1. Young woman spends day wishing for a man. (What else is a girl to do with her time?)
2. Jealous stepmother queen wants youngster eliminated because of her beauty. (Powerful women certainly are rotten. And as for those stepmothers... well!)
3. Young woman goes into the forest with an armed man whose intent is to stab her in the back and cut out her heart. (Let's desensitize children to the mutilation of women as easily as possible.)
4. Snow White escapes into the dark forest where horrifying eyeballs glare at her and tree limbs grab at her ankles. (The path for a woman alone is pretty scary, huh children?)

5. Young woman leaves the forest and throws herself on the ground, sobbing. Within minutes she miraculously recovers from her trauma and apologizes to the animals, "I'm so ashamed of the fuss I've made." (Stuff those emotions, girls. It's unladylike for women to show anger when they are treated badly, particularly after those murder attempts.)

6. Snow then comes upon a cottage and decides to clean it, top to bottom. (Funny how seven men who can sing "Hi Ho!", swing a pick and sift tiny diamonds from inside a mountain of dirt all day long can't wash a dish.)

7. Men return home to find young woman sleeping. They decide to get rid of her for fear of the queen until they find out she can bake a fine gooseberry pie. She can stay! She can stay! (Is this beginning to sound like one of Jerry Seinfeld's bad dreams? And what about those dwarves?)

8. Evil queen disguises herself as an old "hag" and offers young woman a poisoned apple. Poor Snow takes a bite and swoons. Seven men chase the queen off a cliff and the buzzards descend. (Women need men to get them out of predicaments.)

9. The prince arrives and kisses the "dead" White, who is resurrected. (The primary goal of a woman's life, obtaining the love and protection of a man, is achieved, as it is in Cinderella, The Little Mermaid, Sleeping Beauty, etc., etc.)

10. They live happily ever after. (Funny how these tales never give specifics on that "ever after" stuff. Maybe we should ask Princess Di.)

So, a woman's worth is based first on her appearance. Next she is saved by her ability to clean and cook. At last she is doomed to a sleeping death because she bites the apple in pursuit of her fondest desires.

How does she regain her life? Why, by way of the only antidote in the Western World for a woman's unfulfilled dreams a man's kiss.

The message of "Snow White" is that for a woman to be esteemed, she must have the stamp of approval of a man and in fact may not survive without it.

Many young girls spend days and nights worrying about their looks, and gauge their worth in direct proportion to their acceptability to adolescent males.

This lunacy produces bulimia, anorexia and suicide. It is what sends battered girlfriends back to men who then become battering husbands.

It's why women go to doctors who cut up their bodies in an effort to keep them prettier longer. Many women put their lives on hold, drifting along waiting for a man — they believe life starts only after marriage. It's a myth. We swallowed it whole as children. Can we afford to visit it on another generation?

It's not only women who suffer. What about little boys who try to fill the role of that prince?

Now, before some of you get to huffin' and puffin' and want to blow my house in, let's get a few things straight. I enjoy being a wife and mother. I wash a couple of dishes every now and then. I bake cookies with my daughter (even though Hillary made that comment). But I wouldn't enjoy those roles without a career. Recall news stories about the stress on the families when men are laid off from work for months. You'll get the picture of many women who feel they could have been more, done more, with their entire lives, had they not bought into the myth.

I want my daughter to figure out what she might contribute to this world. While she explores I hope she's not hampered by any of the beliefs that have limited generations of women. So I'm trying to put Snow White where she belongs: in mothballs, right next to paper doll June Cleaver ("Common mothers, didn't she make you just want to spit?").

So, watch out for that queen and her apple. Don't let Disney's lazy and irresponsible attempt to sell outdated merchandise take a bite out your wallet and a chunk out of your children.

sides brought union workers to the picket lines.

Negotiations went on Thursday with Peabody Coal officials, the major mine company the UMWA is striking, but were unsuccessful.

"I think they are realizing they cannot operate without union workers because they are not manufacturing very much coal," Trunka said.

Donald Johnson, Illinois president of the American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organization, said social reform has a price.

"We are born in pain and we will live in pain," Johnson said. "Social reform for the good comes with a price tag, and we will not forget that."

delegation visited picket lines at the companies after the rally.

An international delegation was on hand at the rally along with several local politicians.

Three Illinois unions also have been locked out.

CIPS workers, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 702 and the OE Local 149 have been locked out since May, along with the Staley Corn Mill Local 37 of Decatur which has been locked out since June 27.

Dennis Howell, an IBEW Local 702 member from Marion, said unions are becoming stronger.

"We laxed a little in the past but we are making it up today by uniting strength," he said.

Michael Boggs, general secretary for the International Federation of Chemical, Energy and General

Workers Union, said the negotiations with area mines was an experience.

"We have been to Jurassic Park and we are back to say the dinosaurs are still living," he said. "Democracy is America is failing because how can a country send its children to Kuwait to fight for democracy when it is not achieved here."

Local politicians, including state Reps. David Phelps, D-Eldorado; Larry Woolard, D-Carterville and Gerald Hawkins, D-Du Quoin, joined state senators Jim Rea, D-Christopher and Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin; at the rally.

Region 3, which covers UMWA facilities of Arkansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Western Kentucky and Alabama, all are on a selective company strikes since May.

The delegation will be talking to the U.S. Secretary of Labor today.

Evergreen Terrace Resident Council, said the assistant resident manager, Harriet Sturgeon, has made, in her official capacity as manager, derogatory ethnic comments about the international students that live there.

"She is constantly making comments that Malaysians and Asians are the reason for the roach problems," she said.

Harriet Sturgeon could not be interviewed about the allegations despite repeated voice mail messages and a message to her secretary stating that the residents' claims would be printed.

Rickabaugh said at the resident council meeting, more residents brought up complaints about such discriminatory comments expressed by the resident assistants.

"There is extreme insensitivity to the diversity in Evergreen Terrace," she said.

John Abolaji, resident of Terrace and president of the International Student Council, said he has heard such discriminatory comments from the resident assistants and residents always complain about it.

Abolaji said the discriminatory attitudes of the resident assistants surely is nothing new.

"This problem has been going on for a while and I think that people are just now reacting to things," he said.

Abolaji said the International Student Council has not yet taken action on the issue, but will become involved if the Graduate Student Council and the Undergraduate Student Government become involved.

Terrace residents also are getting fed up with misappropriation of work hours by the resident assistants.

Kim Huffman, former president of the Evergreen Terrace Resident Council, said while she was president she received many complaints from residents about the resident assistants.

"I was never in a position to do anything about it because I didn't work in the office where I could get proof," she said.

In November of 1992, Ferree-Dean, who was an employee in the Terrace office, began documenting the number of hours that Harriet Sturgeon, a resident assistant, was being paid for her time but not working.

"Between December and March I documented over 100 hours when she was on the clock but not working," Ferree-Dean said.

Ferree-Dean said that Elyse Crowell, Terrace resident manager and Sturgeon's superior, approves the hours that Sturgeon does not work.

Sturgeon claims comp time but never documents where she was or what she was doing, she said.

"She never documented anything until the complaints arised, then she filled in a calendar of hours after the fact," Ferree-Dean said.

Ed Jones, director of housing, met with Ferree-Dean and seven past or present employees of Evergreen Terrace to discuss the claims.

Ferree-Dean said Jones assured them an investigation would take place.

"Nothing was done," she said.

Jones could not be interviewed despite voice mail messages about the Evergreen Terrace situation.

Dave Walls, a physical plant plumber, was one of the employees at Evergreen Terrace that attended the meeting.

Walls said Jones told him to put his complaints into a written statement and turn it in to the housing office.

Walls said he did submit a written statement and Jones assured him his job at Evergreen would be secure.

About three days later Walls was moved from the Evergreen Terrace area and assigned to work at University Park, he said.

"I spoke to Jones about it and he said it wasn't his problem because it wasn't his personnel that actually transferred me," Walls said.

Ferree-Dean said many residents and employees, including Walls, were afraid to come forward because they were afraid to lose their housing or their jobs.

Rickabaugh said when Ferree-Dean began to take action on the problems she had observed, other residents finally had the confidence to speak up and they came forward with many complaints.

Also, meetings of the residence council were held to discuss the problems and the residents were very supportive, Rickabaugh said.

Susan Hall, president of the Graduate Student and Professional Council, attended one of the meetings as an observer since the GPSC had not discussed or acted on the issue.

Hall said she was impressed with the number and concern of residents who attended the meeting.

Hall said the GPSC has not taken any action on the issue, but members discussed the Terrace problems at the council's meeting Wednesday.

Mike Spiwak, president of the undergraduate student government, said USG has not taken any action either.

Hong Kong students to present 'killer' thriller

By William Ragan
Entertainment Editor

A hail of 10,000 bullets will pour through the Student Center Auditorium this weekend when Hong Kong director John Woo's highly stylized, ultraviolent film "The Killer" will be shown.

The 1989 film blends elements of American gangster films with an absurd sense of camp, creating an extreme landscape where the gun clips are never changed and people still walk after getting shot many times.

Eiren Chong, chairperson of the Student Programming Counsel's Film and Video Committee and a Hong Kong native, said he chose to show

Group to introduce viewers to alternative entertainment form the film to provide more entertainment options for the growing Asian student population.

"In the past few years, the (Asian) students haven't had a movie from Hong Kong," he said. "I wanted to bring a more contemporary art film."

Chong has made an effort to program more films for international students, given the video committee's limited space and budget in the summer.

SPC-Film and Video also presented "Okage" last month, a Japanese film about gay culture.

John Woo, director of "The Killer," began his film career making genre martial arts films in the mid-1970s, but soon progressed to directing his own features.

Woo's 1986 film "A Better Tomorrow" launched a stream of Asian-made gangster movies.

The movie's uncertain mood was influenced by the pessimistic attitude many Hong Kong residents have toward the Chinese government.

In 1997, the city will be given back to China, and Woo said he is not hopeful about the situation.

"I know that the new government won't allow me any freedom of speech nor freedom of creation," he said. "I can't approve of totalitarianism, and I know that people like myself will be crushed by the new regime."

This desperation adds a hint of substance beneath the blood and gore of "The Killer," which seems to be as influenced by American directors, such as Martin Scorsese, as the Chinese political situation.

"The Killer" was one of the few Hong Kong films to be widely distributed in the United States, a fact Woo attributes to his American influences.

"American people like the style of my movies because they're very close to what they're used to seeing," he said. "Most Hong Kong films are made to be distributed only in Asia. The American audience can't relate to them.

"Americans are a bit narrow-minded sometimes — they can't get involved in a film if the subject is not close to what they're interested in," Woo said.

Ironically, Woo's extreme appropriation of the gangster film ended up influencing many young American directors, including Quentin Tarantino, director of "Reservoir Dogs."

Woo is now writing a screenplay for Tarantino to direct.

"The Killer" will be shown at 5:30 and 9 tonight and Saturday night in the Student Center Auditorium. Admission is $1. The movie is co-sponsored by the Hong Kong Student Association.

Official warns of poison ivy risk

By Erika Bellafiore
Health Writer

Poison ivy can be contracted while walking through the woods or right outside the door, an SIUC health official said.

Poison ivy is a trailing, climbing vine with green leaves that grows in groups of three, with greenish-white flowers and berries. In the fall or in dryer conditions, the leaves turn orange-red, and in the winter the leaves fall off the vines.

Elizabeth James, SIUC staff nurse at Health Services, said poison ivy can grow on trees, on the ground or on anything available.

"If there is nothing to grow on, it will grow on the ground and look like a shrub," James said. "It can grow on fences and houses as long as it has a way to climb."

People are most susceptible to poison ivy in the spring and summer, because those are the times when the plant is lush, James said.

"Susceptibility varies among individuals," James said. "Older people and people with a fair complexion are more prone to get it."

Peter Hatlestad, assistant program director of the Spectrum Wilderness Program with Touch of Nature, said poison ivy can be contracted if the oily substance, urushiol, contained in the plant gets on skin or clothing and if wood smoke containing the oily substance is inhaled.

"If the oily substance gets into the lungs, eyes or an open wound it may get in the bloodstream, but poison ivy is typically a topical problem," Hatlestad said.

The oil takes about 30 minutes to penetrate the skin. Skin should be cleaned with gentle soap and water as soon as possible, Hatlestad said.

James said clothes that have been in contact with the oily substance should be taken off immediately and washed.

Once the oily substance is absorbed in the skin, an itchy rash may appear within 24 to 48 hours, but a delayed hypersensitivity reaction may occur, James said.

Delayed hypersensitivity means no reaction occurs the first time a person comes in contact with poison ivy, but a reaction will occur upon second exposure, she said.

The symptoms of poison ivy include itching, red welts and watery blisters, in patches. Usually it will heal naturally, but in severe cases a physician's attention is needed. The irritation usually will run its course in 10 to 20 days, James said.

"Early symptoms can be treated with wet compresses, cool baths, and over-the-counter topical solutions," James said.

Severe cases are treated by oral or injected anti-inflammatory steroids, she said.

"The best prevention methods are being able to identify the plant and wearing clothes that cover the body and, if ordered by a physician, a series of poison ivy extract injections," she said.

James said the saying to remember is: "Leaflets three, let it be."

use the library, and the area is a place where children can learn about their cultures. What we've done and will continue to do is provide a leisure atmosphere for our patrons, rather than an academic one."

The Carbondale Public Library, and area libraries will be receiving a total of $10,000 more than they received last year.

The new law also provides an added $2 million dollars for organ donor awareness programs in Drivers License Examining Stations.

Kim St. Aubin, of the Secretary of States office, the current organ donor sign-up rate of 22 percent could be better in light of a recent Harvard study.

"The results of the study showed that 66 percent of those surveyed were in favor of donating organs," she said.

St. Aubin said details of the program have not been decided upon, but that it would involve educating people about what organ donation means to others, and how to become a donor.

The legislation also includes $12 million in funding for the Secretary of State's Office, $2 million of which will be used to replenish the states supply of license plates. About $700,000 of this money will be used to expand services in drivers examination facilities across the state.

SIUC employees advance careers with internships

By Patti Dulik
General Assignment Writer

Two SIUC women employees had the opportunity to dabble in administrative careers by taking part in the Administrative Internship Program.

Offered by SIUC's University Women's Professional Advancements, the internship, began in fall 1992 and ended in spring 1993.

Lynn Connley, associate University Ombudsman, chose to do her internship with Pamela Brandt, director of SIUC's Personnel Office, because she wanted a broad administrative experience.

"Having been in the Ombudsman office for about eighteen years, the breadth of my experience through this job was such that I did not want to get into an internship that would allow me only one small section of the university," she said. "Personnel is a large department which oversees the entire human resources management for the whole university."

Connely spent a great part of her internship working with the Administrative Professional Management Plan Development Committee which worked on designing and implementing an improved salary administration program and compensation plan for the Administrative Professional staff.

"This was a particularly hard task because it was dealing with a widely diverse group of people," she said. "It's difficult to put this group into specific categories, thus it's difficult to put together a solid plan that everyone is fairly pleased with."

Connely said she was fortunate that Brandt agreed to work with her.

"The energy this woman has is just amazing," she said. "She has the ability to change hats immediately. She is really on top of things."

Ann-Janine Morey, associate professor in the English department, chose to shadow Benjamin Shepherd, Vice President of Academic Affairs and Provost in the fall of 1992.

Morey said she applied for the administrative internship because she had just finished a book and was ready to explore other career possibilities at SIUC.

Morey said she wanted to learn about the time management skills needed to be an administrative professional while seeing different leadership styles as well.

Morey said her work with Shepherd consisted mainly of observation.

"The administration is a lot different from teaching. You spend endless time in meetings," she said. "That's how the work of the university gets done, though."

In addition to attending many administrative meetings with Shepherd, Morey kept him advised on the general education program because she was a member of the faculty senate.

Shepherd said the timeliness and quality of Morey's work was superb.

"She definitely has the potential to work in the administrative field but it all really depends on what she wants to do," he said. "I strongly encourage her to go into administration."

Morey worked with John Jackson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, during the spring.

Morey's internship with Jackson consisted of working on publicity for SIUC's Study Abroad program and studying faculty effort reports to see how SIUC's faculty spends their time.

Summer camps, students alleviating business losses

By Jeff McIntire
Business Writer

Business is slow in the Student Center this time of the year, but summer camps and students living on-campus are helping to alleviate some of the losses.

T.J. Rutherford, an associate director of Student Center business, said they are forced to reduce the operating hours of some services, but they get help from the camps and on-campus residents.

"We are working with other departments like Athletics and Continuing Education to attract summer camps" he said. "We also get help from students in on-campus housing since the cafeterias are closed during the summer—we sell meal plans to those students."

McDonald's has been affected by the slower business, but is still able to operate efficiently.

Steve Short of Short Enterprises, owner of a McDonald's franchise, said the Student Center restaurant has had to cut back on employees' hours, but not employees.

"It works out fairly well with us; around 95 percent of our employees are students who leave automatically for the summer, so we don't have to cut anyone," he said. "Even if it gets slow in the Student Center, we can send some of our employees to the other stores, so it works out rather nicely for us."

Tim Moore, a unit manager for Student Center Dining Services, said the Marketplace cafeteria actually does more business during the summer because of the camps, but the other facilities such as Sub City and Pizza Hut are slower.

"The Marketplace is about three times as busy as it is during the school year," he said. "The hours of operation are reduced during the summer for the other places due to the decreased traffic."

The Student Center Bowling and Billiards receives support from international students and summer camps.

Marie Straube, director of Student Center Bowling and Billiards, said the children's camps are able to keep the operation running.

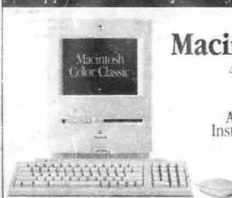

"We are slow, but the children's camps are keeping us steady and above water as well as international students," she said.

Other programs Bowling and Billiards is offering during the summer are Tuesday night faculty/student bowling leagues and three bowling games for the price of two from 7 to 9pm on Saturday nights.

Jim Skiersch, director of the bookstore, said the bookstore employees are kept busy moving inventory in preparation for the fall.

"Although it doesn't seem busy on the surface, we are very busy during the summer," he said. "About 85 percent of our energies over the summer are used to get ready for the fall."

The answer to the test question.

Pets of the week

Above: Larry, Moe and Curly are feisty, 7-week-old puppies. They are baset hound, German shepherd, chow mixes. There are two adorable males and one cute female available.

Right: Harlin is a 10-month-old, housebroken, male cat. He is a white, long-haired mix with orange patches.

All these loveable critters are available for adoption at the Jackson County Humane Shelter.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

Please Be Sure to Check Your Classified Advertisement For Errors On The First Day Of Publication

The Daily Egyptian cannot be responsible for more than one day's incorrect insertion. Advertisers are responsible for checking their advertisements for errors on the first day they appear. Errors not the fault of the advertiser which lessen the value of the advertisement will be adjusted.

All classified advertising must be processed before 12:00 Noon to appear in the next day's publication. Anything processed after 12:00 Noon will go in the following day's publication. Classified advertising must be paid in advance except for those accounts with established credit. A 29¢ charge will be added to billed classified advertising. A service charge of $7.50 will be added to the advertiser's account for every check returned to the Daily Egyptian unpaid by the advertiser's bank. Early cancellation of a classified advertisement will be charged a $2.00 service fee. Any refund under $2.00 will be forfeited due to the cost of processing.

All advertising submitted to the Daily Egyptian is subject to approval and may be revised, rejected, or cancelled at any time.

The Daily Egyptian assumes no liability if for any reason it becomes necessary to omit an advertisement.
A sample of all mail-order items must be submitted and approved prior to deadline for publication.
No ads will be mis-classified.

camp, which means even more pressure.

"In veterans camp 16 guys are playing for a team that has a 12-man roster," Neff said.

"Ten or eleven of those guys already have spots, so the other five or six guys are fighting for one spot."

Neff said he has been telling teams Amaya would be a great choice for one of those last spots.

"Here's one of the best 60 players in America, a great kid, who can come off the bench to play defense, rebound, run the floor and not make many mistakes," Neff said.

"Teams looking for a quality young player off the bench can't go wrong with Amaya."

After the three games this weekend, Amaya will go to L.A. to play four games for the Lakers in the prestigious L.A. Summer League.

Neff said Amaya's play in the next few games will determine whether or not he receives and invitation to veterans camp.

"If he goes out there and gets 5-8 points, a few free throws and seven rebounds in 30 minutes of play, that's a good performance," Neff said. "And I think he will get invited to a veterans camp."

Even though the Lakers have already held their free-agent workouts, they have a spot available on their summer-league and offered it to Amaya.

Amaya was expected to play with the Cavaliers tonight at 5 p.m. when they faced off with the Detroit Pistons.

June, when asked about Lasorda's managerial status.

But when the team began winning, it began to look as though he would be back.

"We had an off day, it seems like there should be something to get accomplished that is worthwhile," Claire said, when asked why the extension was made Wednesday. "Beyond that we have been through a lot in the first half, and when we reflect on all that has happened and the importance of it, and the distance we have to travel and looking beyond that, we thought it was the right time."

"We knew (speculation) was going to happen at some point, but that wasn't the driving force. Over-riding that is the fact that we ... want Tommy to continue."

"If there was any reason why, it's because he does the job well, he loves it, and all of you know his energy level has not decreased at all, nor has his caring for the players."

Lasorda said he didn't know whether he got a salary increase with the extension, because he and O'Malley don't discuss his salary anymore.

"Whatever my paycheck is, that's what it is," Lasorda said. "I told Peter I will work for you whatever you will pay me."

Lasorda said he had just flown in from the All-Star game Wednesday, where he was a National League coach, and he and Mike Piazza, who was on the team, had stopped to get a bite to eat.

"When I got back to my car my wife, Jo, said that Peter wanted me to come in. I thought maybe he wanted to talk about the club or something and that's when he told me.

"... I hear people ask, 'Why one year? Why two years?' ... But I think the best way for us to go is one year at a time. There is going to come a time when I may say, that this is it. But for now, I really and truly feel like I can do a good job for (the Dodgers) and I think I can give them all of my energy and all of my time to my job."

"They have handled my situation over the years. I am very proud of this, and we will go back into this second half with all the energy and all the drive we can. I'm thinking about 1993, about having a good home stand and making some damage on this lead that the Giants have ..."

Said O'Malley: "Tommy is our manager. I admire his commitment and dedication to bringing a championship back to the city of Los Angeles."

Nicklaus ever recorded in a major, a 13-over 83 in the first round in 1981 that included four double bogeys and two bogeys on the back nine.

Of course he shot 66 the next day and made the cut.

But in 1985, he posted a 77 in the second round and did not play on the weekend for the only time, a total of 31 British Open appearances.

Nicklaus came back to Sandwich on Tuesday on a far more upbeat note after his victory Sunday in the U.S. Senior Open at Cherry Hills in Denver, his first triumph in two years.

At 53, he's given little chance to win here — the odds Wednesday were 150-1 despite his three titles and seven runner-up finishes. But Nicklaus still believes he has a chance.

"I'm not here to finish 40th," he said Wednesday, admitting that he also did not decide to come until the night after the third round of the Senior Open last Saturday. "I don't know if I can win or not win. My goal is to play well and be competitive."

If I didn't believe in my own head I could win, I wouldn't be here."

Faldo, as usual, is the odds-makers' choice to win his fourth Open, listed Wednesday as a 6-to-1 favorite by the William Hill bookmakers. Three weeks after an ugly 9-over finish and a tie for 72nd in the U.S. Open at Baltusrol in New Jersey, England's hero has proclaimed himself back in form.

Two weeks ago, he won his third straight Irish Open, and he said this week he's satisfied with the state of his game.

"You need some imagination around here," Faldo said. "You should be quite delighted to get on some of the greens."

It's going to demand an awful lot. Anyone who can hit the ball low and work it both ways will have a chance."

Mark Calcavecchia (1989) is the only U.S. winner of a British Open in the last nine years.

But several Americans are on everyone's mind, particularly Payne Stewart and Paul Azinger, best friends and noted for their abilities to adjust to wind and difficult conditions.

U.S. Open champion Lee Janzen is playing in only his second British Open and has said his main goal is merely to play well in a style of golf he's not had much experience with.

He's trying to become the first player to win the U.S. and British titles in the same year since Tom Watson did it in 1982.

But Fred Couples insists he's not ready to win because, "My game is not great right now." No one's ready to count him out either, but Couples said Stewart, runner-up at Baltusrol, probably would be his choice as the leading American hope.

"I'm playing right at the top of my game," said Stewart, who finished second in the Scottish Open last week at Gleneagles. "And depending on the bounces you get out here and with patience, I don't see why I can't win."

"The thing I've always enjoyed about this Open is that they don't really care what score wins."

contract, said he was prepared to deal with locker-room problems involving the great disparity in salaries caused by free agency.

"It will be a difficult situation for some teams who don't communicate well with each other," Young said. "Teams have to convince players that, 'hey, we did this to win.'"

Trivia buffs will remember that this is the second time Young has been the highest-paid player in professional football. He joined the Los Angeles Express of the now-defunct United States Football League as a rookie from Brigham Young in 1984.
