Storage permits to be handed out on need basis

DECALS: Parking Division to change the way green stickers are handed out to students.

> PAUL TECHO DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Green storage parking permits will not be issued on a first come, first serve basis for the 1998-99 decal year as was the case last year.

Green storage permits will once again be available only to freshman and sophomores residing on campus who receive exceptions from the University Housing Office to store a vehicle on campus. Green storage permits are issued to students who retide on campus and are not eligible for a red overnight parking decal. According to the Parking Division, legitimate need includes: an academic major or documented situation that requires attending classes off campus, service in the National Guard or Reserves, documented off-campus employment and special need with approved documentation.

Exemptions are not granted automatically and availability is not guaranteed.

Students who wish to obtain a green storage permit should apply to the University Housing office as soon as possi-

The deadline for applying for an exception is Aug. 3. Merilyn Hogan, coordinator of Parking and Traffic, said the Parking Division is merely returning to its original policy.

"Last year was just a trial run with the first come, first serve basis," she said.
"It created a lot of problems. There were students who had jobs who could not get decals. Hogan said the original policy is the fairest system because it is based on need.

The change in policy last year was brought about by Housing and Student Development under the direction of the vice chancellor for Student Affairs.

Officials were trying to determine how many green parking spaces would be needed to meet demand.

Hogan said most agree the policy was not the best for students.

There are about 330 green storage decals available.

By Aug. 1999, an additional 460 spaces will be created when a parking lot near Sam Rinella fields is expanded.

To obtain an overnight red decal, one must either have 56 hours of credit or be 21 years of age and live on campus. A red commuter decal is available for anyone who is 21, or a junior who lives off-campus or a freshman or sophomore under 21 who lives with their parents, immediate family member or legal guardian. Yellow decals are available for anyone who only needs to park on campus from 4 p.m. to 2 a.m.

Other parking options are the Newman

Center or the City of Carbondale.

The Newman Center, located near the Recreation Center at 715 S. Washington Avenue, charges $50 per semester.

The two city lots are available along the railroad tracks at Grand Avenue near Brush Towers. City permits cost $12 per month.

STEAMING: While many people tried to stay cool Monday, Dawn and Brad Leahy, both SIUC Alumni from Carbondale, were among the brave few who ventured to Campus Lake Beach to catch some rays in the sweltering heat. The mercury hit 94 degrees Monday with a heat index of 108.

Temperatures approaching 100 degrees Monday and no relief in sight until Wednesday have SIU students and staff looking for ways to cope with the heat.

But Doc Horsley, a meteorologist in the SIUC Geography Department, said this is not the worst weather Southern Illinois has ever seen.

"We'll call this a hot spell," Horsley said.
"This is not comfortable, but we've had a great deal worse situations in past years."

The heat has been responsible for deaths across the nation, including 79 people in Texas during the past two weeks, 43 of whom were illegal immigrants crossing the border into the U.S., 22 people in Louisiana, nine in Oklahoma, and one each in California, Arizona and Missouri. The Northeast is the next area expected to suffer from miserable

The National Weather Service forecast near 100-degree temperatures for Tuesday with an afternoon heat index of 105 to 115 degrees. Wednesday's forecast calls for a chance of thunderstorms, as do forecasts for

A Carbondale Memorial Hospital spokesman said Monday afternoon there had been no heat-related deaths there during the past week. She said that emergency room personnel had treated "a couple" of heat-related illnesses Monday afternoon, but said the hos-pital does not officially track such illnesses. # Sheriff's department pondering ways to save money $$$$: Placing ads on squad cars one idea Jackson County officials have to defray costs.

> CORINNE MANNING DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The Jackson County Sheriff's Department is considering advertising for local companies on squad cars in exchange for services or money in an attempt to make better use of funds and to defray costs.

Jackson County Sheriff Bill Kilquist has approached two cellular phone companies, proposing that they advertise on the outside of squad cars in exchange for free or discounted cellular air time for all squad cars. He said one company expressed interest and said it would pick up the cost of painting the advertisement on the vehicle.

"You can't become complacent and think that you're going to get along, because you can't," Kilquist said. "Everything is costing more and the resources are just not there."

Defraying the amount spent on cellular phones would allow the department to spend that money on other things to make their services more efficient.

Kilquist said he has also considered advertising for alarm or construction companies, but he said he does have boundaries. He will not advertise for alcohol, tobacco, guns or to anyone with a felony record.

"It might at first sound offensive to some people, but we're getting eaten up with rising cost and dwindling resources and we've got to try some different things and go out and do some different hustles," he said.

"It is no more offensive to see the Nike logo on college and high school jerseys", he said. "The difference is that Nike is trying to further its image and the game where in this case the department is trying to provide the best services with its resources

'Unless they're standing in my shoes and sitting in my seat and trying to run this orga-nization, they shouldn't have a gripe," Kilquist said.

 Bryan K. English, 35, of Carbondale was arrested at 8:08 p.m. Thursday at 515 S. Illinois Ave, for unlawful use of a weapon, disorderly conduct and trespassing after he pulled a stock knife and pointed it at a police officer. English was asked to leave Pagliai's Pizzo and Pasto and refused, acting like he had a weapon. When police arrived, English pulled a steak knife out of his back pocket and pointed it at an officer. English was subdued and taken to Jackson County Jail where awaits bond to be posted.

After several horrific examples of school violence in neighboring states, legislators met with school police and social service officials as one part of a statewide campaign by House Republicans to discuss school violence within communi-force, school officials and social service officials voiced their personal observations and experiences in dealing with troubled youths and істасу.

Representative Bost said House Republicans will work on legisla-tion concerning school violence when they go back into session in the fall.

"A lot of this right now is col-lecting the information, so that as we move forward we can be as well-informed as possible to see what legislation needs to be done so we don't blindly go out and create legislation in a reactive mode," Bost said. "But we would actually do something that would help the local community."

Phil Trapani, Principal Murphysboro High School, said dealing with school violence is a responsibility schools share with society. He also emphasized the importance of information sharing between the State's Attorney's Office, the school and juvenile judges.

"Certainly schools have an important responsibility in dealing with the problem, particularly high Trapani said. "I think one of the keys is dealing with outside agencies. Murphysboro has taken a proactive approach to this not just for next year but for the past five or six years."

While Trapani cited legislation that has helped the schools, such as being able to expel students for more than two years; and teacher training, he said some legislation has been more burdensome than helpful.

"Do not give us any more mandates that we can't afford to implement and do not give us any more teachers. They do not need anymore paperwork," Trapani said. "A lot of what's coming down from Springfield costs us money we can't afford and costs."

Giving communities flexibility in dealing with violence is a priori-

"If we're going to force them to implement something we're going to have to provide the funds," he said. "After the hearings are done we want to make sure there are no unfunded mandates."

Marcy Weber, a teacher at Murphysboro High School, explained the high school's strategies for handling potentially violent or troubled teens. Students with social, academic and financial problems are evaluated by teachers and counselors and a full-time social worker will be hired next year.

"We provide them with adequ academic choices to ward off fail-ure, one of the factors that leads to violence is a very frustrated child who feels like a failure," she said.

Internet usage, popularity increases

> ANGIE ROYER DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

1995, Thomas Johnson asked his class if anybody had been on the Internet, and only one student raised their hand. But over the course of the next couple of years there has been a dramatic increase of students who raised hands.

Johnson, an associate professor journalism, said some classes at SIUC - encourage or require Internet use

"In my experience there has been a tremendous growth in just a couple of years," Johnson said.

The dominant reason why peo-ple use the Internet is that there is a vast amount of information that can be accessed easily and cheap-

Johnson usually requires his classes to sign up to a Listserv. A Listserv is a group e-mail. A Listserv allows Johnson to send the students messages or the students can send Johnson messages or the students can send messages to each other.

Some professors may put home pages on the Internet that can give students access to information they may have missed in class or even study guides to future exams.

The Individualized Learning Programs in Continuing Education use the Internet to display some of their independent studies. Students can get access to courses they may need to take over the Internet and communicate to the professors through e-mail. Johnson said professors are seeing the benefits in using the Internet.

"More and more professors are realizing it's more of a conve-nience to students," said Johnson.

But use of the Internet is not all

Students have limited access to the Internet because of limited facilities, Geoffrey Nathan, an associate professor in linguistics,

"The only real solution is to build more labs or to increase the dial-on facilities," Nathan said.

Another pltfall in Internet use is that if students ask questions or something is not clear, they will not get a speedy answer. Even though Johnson uses the Internet for his classes, he also sees the downfalls.

You are much better to be in a class and being able to ask a professor right there than trying to send a professor an e-mail of questions," Johnson said.

The Internet may provide some information quicker than libraries but library information is more reli-able and sometimes easier to use.

Nathan said that the use of books is equally important as the "Students can't leaf through an Internet document where you can a book," Nathan said. "In some ways I don't think the Internet will ever rival the library."

Students have to make sure the information that they use from the Internet is credible and reliable. The Web contains parody sites that are made to fool people, but govern-ment or media sources should be a reliable source.

"I think students have to develop ood reasoning skills on what seems to be good source of information and what is not," Johnson said. "Anyone can post anything on the Internet and nobody checks to see if it's accu-

Searing heat turns border patrol into angels of mercy

Border Patrol agents in Del Rio, Texas, were checking a train bound for San Antonio when they came across air holes punched in the top of a sealed boxcar. Inside, they found 11 listless men from Mexico, baking in 150-degree with no food or water.

Three other young men ere not so lucky. The Border Parrol is still searching for their bodies after apprehending com-panions who crossed the border illegally with them. They, reported leaving the three behind when they fell ill from heat exhaustion on their trek across vast, dry-as-dust ranch-

A searing heat wave that ha turned parts of Texas and the Midwest into a huge oven has also converted agents of the U.S. Border Patrol into unlikely angels of mercy these days. They are carrying out what amount to search-and-rescue missions for illegal aliens who run into trouble while trying to make it across the U.S.-

Mexican border. The heat wave has been blamed for the deaths of more than 100 people in several states so far. It has taken a particularly heavy, toll on illegal immigrants, who increasingly seek out remote crossing points to avoid a crackdown in populated areas. Many of the crossers come from cooler cliates in Mexico, either at higher elevations or near the coast and are unprepared for the siz zling heat and drought that have settled on southern Texas.

In a speech to teachers in New Orleans after spending the weekend in his scorching h state of Arkansas, President Clinton blamed the heat wave on global warming "As you can see from this sweltering heat" the vice president is right the climate of our country and our globe is changing," he said. The globe is warming.

This is not an entirely new idea, Kilquist said. The department owns a 185-foot tower on which a cellular phone company placed its antennas in exchange for free ceilular time during the past two to three years.

Kilquist receives a monthly phone log and checks the calls made to monitor abuse of the equipment and the service.

The department also has _ken such measures as not serving coffee to prisoners, making prisoners pay for their own medical expenses and making the department a smoke free

Eliminating smoking in the building has kept the building cleaner, cut costs, eliminated false smoke alarms and cut medical costs for prisoners and sick time for officers.

· avoid strenuous activities during the hottest hours of the day.

Anne Abney, a sophomore in accounting from Galatia, said her house has no air conditioning and she spends as much time as possible in buildings on campus or at the mall.

'It's way too hot, and I can't do anything," she said. "I have three fans blowing on mc, and I don't sleep with any covers."

Abney said she takes maps in the Student Center whenever she has the chance.

"I wish they'd keep the Student Center open all night so that I-could sleep there," she said.

Basically I just walk around the house with as little clothing on as possible, and I drink a lot of water and eat a lut of ice cream.

Schroder going from child acting star to 'NYPD Blue'

BALTIMORE SUN

PASADENA, Calif. - Can Rick (a.k.a. Ricky) Schroder make the journey in viewers, minds from child star in "Silver Spoons" to adult detective on the mean streets of "NYPD Blue"?

That's the question that was a sked a dozen different ways here recently as Schroder — accompanied by producers Steven Bocheo and David Milch as well as co-star Dennis Franz met with television critics in Step 1 of their sales campaign for the new Rick Schroder. He takes Jimmy Smits' place on the show

For a guy with only a third-grade formal education, the 28year-old Schroder gave some pretty solid answers.

Rick."... It really doesn't bother me, though: But it just took on a life of its own."... In his expanded use of the word, "hing," as well as the pro-fanity, he's already talking the talk of "NYPD Blue" anyway. And he's got the attitude, too. "Yeah, it has been a struggle having been a child star. But all good things are at struggle; The good things are a struggle; I think, he said

"I survived because I had a life outside of this. That was the biggest thing. I have a wife and bigges timing. There are we are three kids and a ranch in Colorado. And I've got many other hobbies and interests besides this... This is just a part of my life.

Naval Academy's dairy cow, the latest victim of downsizing

GAMBRILLS, Md. - It's the same sad stery throughout the military: Changing times and rising costs force base closings and layoffs.

This time, it's the Navy's fleet of ows that are about to lose their

After more than 85 years of operation - and at least several years of losing money — the U.S. Naval Academy announced recent-ly that it will close its private dairy farm in rural Gambrills. It's the last dairy farm in Anne Arundel County. Md., and the Defense Department's only dairy farm anywhere:

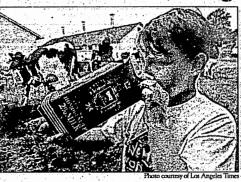

Starting next month, midshipmen will get their milk from a commercial dairy that promises to save the Annapolis military college 25 cents on the gallon. Although the academy will keep the land, its herd of Holsteins will be sent off to civilian pastures.

Even at the tradition-bound academy, few tears are being shed for the farm. Officials have never been too sure how to deal with this oddball legacy of a turn-of-the-cen-tury health scare, and few midshipmen ever see the cows.

"It gets us out of the dairy business," said Cmdr. Mike Brady, an academy spokesman. "There's nowhere in our mission statement where you see "agriculture' or

In 1911, Navy officials opened a small dairy farm on campus after an sman dary ram on campus atter an outbreak of typhoid fever was traced to milk from commercial suppliers. A few years later, the farm relocated to an 865-acre site in Gambrills, about 15 miles northest of Annapolis.

With 300 cows and a staff of about 13, the dairy produces 700 to 1,000 gallons of milk a day, packaged in distinctive blue cartons bearing the academy crest. It also packages orange juice, iced tea and fruit juices made elsewhere.

Technically, it's a self-supporting business: The dairy receives no fed-erally appropriated funds but instead runs a break-even operation based on sales to the academy, which is its only customer.

But for 30 years, it has been expensive embarrassment for the academy. Navy officials moved to close it in 1967, but Congress refused, declaring the cow pasture a "morale-building asset" and ordering the academy to keep milking.

In 1994, an academy audit showed that the farm cost the academy almost $260,000 a year more for milk products than it would pay a commercial supplier. The farm became an easy target for newspapers and television news shows trying to illustrate government waste and was mocked by Vice President Al Gore during a Larry King interview a few years ago.

Recent studies show film is still a male-dominated world

LOS ANGELES TIMES

HOLLYWOOD - In a bleak sessment of female employment in Hollywood, two separate studies have concluded that women continue to lag significantly behind their male counterparts in key creative positions even as the movie and television industries enjoy boom

The Directors Guild of America came out with a report this week showing that the number of days worked by female film directors fell from 8.8 percent of the total in 1996

"i'm rather shocked by the downward trend," DGA President Jack Shea said. "I don't understand it. Our general trend since we started (collecting data) in the early 1980s ... has been going up — slowly, slowly, and not fast enough as far as I'm concerned. Suddenly, to see this turn down when we thought it was going up and business is so good, something has to be

The findings for female directors echoed another recent study conducted for Women in Film that concluded that while more females are being employed as directors, producers, writers, editors and cinematographers, their numbers still fall far short of men.

"I think the bottom line with the study is that we found women were underrepresented behind the scenes and remain underrepresented," said Martha M. Lauzen, a professor at munication, who conducted the auzen, who analyzed employment by motion picture studio and film genre, researched the top 100 grossing movies of 1997, 1992 and 1987. The 300 films included such familiar titles as "Men in Black." "The Lost World: Jurassic Black," "The Lost World: Jurassic Park," "My Best Friend's Wedding," "Batman Returns," "Home Alone 2," "Sister Act" and "Fatal Attraction."

She found that while the number of female producers, executive pro ducers and writers increased signifi-cantly over the past decade, the number of female directors, cinematographers and editors remained For example, only 5 percent of the top 100 top-grossing films released last year were directed by women — up from 3 percent in 1987. Meanwhile, no female cinematographers worked on any of the 300 movies examined.

"It means that women are shut out in the role of cinematographers and virtually shut out as directors," Lauzen said. "You have some highprofile directors like a Penny Marshall, and she gets lots of press, but 5 percent is a relatively low

As for cinematographers, Lauzen noted that only 2 percent of the 161 members of the American Society of Cinematographers are female. In order to join the society, the study said, individuals must have three sponsors and have served as a director of photography for at least five years.

The study also found:

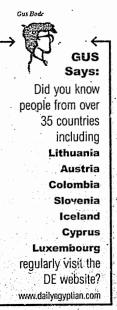

On average, men outnumbered women 8-to-1 per film in behindthe-scenes roles.

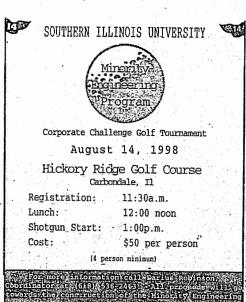

Nearly half (45 percent) of the films examined had no female executive producers, producers, directors, writers, cinematographers or Women comprised 20 percent of the producers (including co-producers) working in the top 100 films last year, up from 12 percent a decade ago. When a woman worked as executive producer, the average number of women working behind the scenes doubled.

Raiders sign draft choice

WASHINGTON POST

NAPA, Calif. -- The Oakland Raiders have called a news conference to announce the signing of Heisman Trophy winner Charles Woodson, ESPN is reporting.

Woodson was the No. 4 overall draft pick and would become the highest draft choice o sign so far.

Primarily a cornerback, Woodson also played receiver and punt returner during his Michigan career, becoming the first predominantly defensive player to win the Heisman Trophy.

When he was drafted back in April, Woodson said he wanted to play more than just corner-back for the Raiders, but he won't be upset if he's restricted to defense for a while.

Oakland had the NFL's worst defense last season, in large part due to problems in the secondary.

All I'm asking from the world of professional sports is for it to save its dignity while it still can. Some organizations have done this to the best of their ability. Most profootball teams have yet to use their playing fields or walls to make an extra buck while baseball teams such as the Boston Red Sex and Chicago Cubs have yet to ruin their great ballparks with corporate eye sores. When you take into account that both those clubs are among the top in highest payrolls in all of baseball that takes away the argument that rising players salaries are the reason for teams to sell out.

For many fans a trip to their favorite ballpark is like a religious pilgrimage. To go see their favorite teams and players perform in their most beloved sporting arena is like going to Sunday Mass. Owners need to realize this and stem the tide of ruining the serenity of professional sports, otherwise the New York Yankees may move out of the house the Ruth built and into Starbucks Stadlum.

Earnhardt Jr. dominates like dad

have loved to have been there to see it, but he was off deep-sea fishing in

Dale Earnhardt Jr. put on a demonstration of racing that must have reminded many of the estimated 45,000 fans what it was like when Dale Earnhardt dominated Winston Cup racing by winning seven championships.

This time it was Busch Grand National racing, but Dale Jr., was every bit as dominating Sunday in winning the Kenwood Home & Car Audio 300 at California Speedway as his father had ever been. Of the 150 laps run around Penske Motorsports' D-shaped two-mile oval, Earnhardt Jr.'s blue No. 3 Chevrolet led 141 of them. The only time he was not in front was when he was in the pits. The remarkably easy win in a car owned by his stepmother, Terma, moved the 23-year-old, third-generation driver to the front of every sta-tistical category in Busch Grand National. He took over the series lead by six points over Matt Censeth, who finished third. Kevin Lepage was second.

"The car just came to life today," said Earnhardt. "I wasn't teal pleased with the qualifying setup, but today it responded any time I pulling away with each lap.

"When he wanted to leave, he just stepped on the gas," said Lepage. "He was driving the way
Jeff Gordon does in Winston Cup. When he's on a roll, there's nothing

I know I need experience to back up talent, but if I get a little more mature on and off the race track, this team will be able to do anything.

wanted."

He started second but beat polesitter Robert Pressley off the starting line and never looked back. Pressley finished 15th.

Three yellow caution flags served to slow Earnhardt more than the opposition. At times his lead was more than 10 seconds, only to be wiped out by a yellow flag. At the end he was 6.76 seconds ahead, you can do about it."

Earnhardt averaged 148,48 mph for the two-hour, one-minute, ninesecond race. This broke Todd Bodine's year-old record of 145.083 mph. The win was worth $68,175.

It was Earnhardt's fourth win this season and his second on a superspeedway after also winning at Texas. His other wins were on the high-banked oval at Dover Downs and the flat mile at Milwaukee Earnhardt earned the nickname "Dominator" with a one-sided win at Milwaukee, but Sunday's was even more so.

"I just hope you all keep on having a reason to call me the Dominator" said a grinning Earnhardt. "I know I need experience to back up talent, but if I get a little more mature on and off race track, this team will be able to do anything."

The race was as dull as it was one-sided. For lap after lap, cars paraded single-file around the huge track looking more like they were practicing than racing. Over the last 40 laps, after positions had been established following the last pit stop, there was not a single pass among the top 10 cars.

On lap 110, it was Earnhardt, Lepage, Kenseth and Phil Parsons in Chevrolets, David Green in a Pontiac, Jeff Purvis, Elliott Sas Mark Krogh, Joe Bessey and Mike Dillon in Chevrolets — an precisely how they finished. and that's

Top athlete's stardom is long overdue

UNIONDALE, N.Y. - Marion Jones made the front page of the New York Times on Sunday.

What took her se long? Those of us in Southern California who followed her through her teen years can hardly be surprised by her success. She is no more remarkable now than she was as an Oxnard Rio Mesa ninth grader who dunked a tennis ball, as a 10th grader who ran the fastest 100meter time ever by a high school girl or, after transferring to Thousand Oaks, as an 11th-grader who earned an invitation to run on a U.S. relay team in the 1992 Summer Olympics in Barcelona, although she declined because she wanted to slow down a little.

Now, it seems as if everyone has discovered what we knew long ago, that she is the successor to Jackie Joyner-Kersee as her sport's probably her planet's - greatest female athlete.

Jones, 22, would have been anointed sooner if she hadn't, like Joyner-Kersee before her at UCLA. detoured to play college basketball, starting at point guard as a freshman in 1994 on North Carolina's NCAA championship team.

Fortunately for a sport like track and field that is constantly on a star search, she was no basketball Jones. Even though she could have pur-sued a professional career through the WNBA or ABL, she left the sport with a year of eligibility remaining to concentrate on sprinting and long jumping.

That was 15 months ago, but it took only about the first three of them to re-establish herself as a phenon. Before the end of last summer, she had run the world's fastest times in the 100 and 200, won the world championship in the 100 and taken the U.S. long jump title from year, even after two-time Olympic champion Gail Devers withdrew because of a foot injury.

Still in the field were the reigning 200-meter world champion, Ukraine's Zhanna Pintusevich; a former 200-meter world champion. Jamaica's Merlene Ottey, and Jones' immediate predecessor as the U.S. 200-meter champion, Inger Miller. It was the first time in history that all eight women in a 100 race 10.49 is safe for decades to come.

Jones isn't among them.
"What I don't understand is the attitude of the other sprinters," she said earlier this year. "They look at Flo-Jo's record and say, "We can never do that, we can never reach it.' In my opinion, that's the reason the women's sprints have made no progress in the last 10 years. The way I see that, if you put records out of reach, you'll never beat them.

"I'm lucky to be born with this body and this mentality. So many etes have one or the other. I think I've got the talent, and I know I've got the goals.

"I want to go down in history as the fastest woman who's ever been on Earth. So is it better for me to set my goal at 10.76 or 10.48? That's motivation."

Trevor Graham, a Jamaican Olympian who coaches her in Raleigh, N.C., said he believes she eventually will own world records in the 100, 200 and long jump but will be satisfied in these still early stages be satisfied in these still early stages of her development if she breaks 10.70 in the 100. She ran 10.71 in May, the fifth-fastest time ever behind Griffith Joyner's four fastest. Jones' time on Sunday night was 10.90, her second slowest in nine races at the distance this year, but still considerably faster than the second.

still considerably faster than the second-place Fintusevich's 11.09 and nore respectable than it looks on paper considering the 0.8 meters per second head wind.

Joyner-Kersee.
This summer, she became the first woman in 50 years to win the 100, 200 and long jump at the U.S. outdoor championships and has the world's best eight performances in the 100, the best two in the 200 and two of the best three in the long sprinter sale is chasing is one who hasn't competed in 10 years.

It has been that long since Florence Griffith Joyner set her amazing world records in the 100 and 200.

While it now seems apparent that Jones is capable of surpassing Griffith Joyner's best of 21.34 seconds in the 200, most within the sport believe her 100 record of

49ers wide receiver begins practice one day early

STOCKTON, Calif. - Jerry Rice showed up at the San Francisco 49ers' training camp a day early, worked out his surgically reconstructed left knee by catching a few passes, and the crowd on hand for Monday's practice went nuts.

Rice is back from his lost season, anxious to show he can regain the form that made him the NFL's premier receiver. But the 49ers, who saw Rice return from a season-opening knee injury only to fracture his kneecap in his first game back Dec. 15, plan to limit his workouts. Coach Steve Mariucci also all but ruled him out of the first two or three exhibition games.

Leeann Reed could not be happier now that she is getting paid to coach a sport she Saluki women's cross country and track coach Don DeNoon hired Reed as assistant coach effective Aug. 3. Reed fills the void created by the departure of Tina Debro.

Reed was an unpaid volunteer assistant since 1994 for the team. She helped with the cross country team while working as a language arts and social studies teacher at Lincoln Middle School in Carbondale during the last four years. Reed also was track coach the last two years at the school.

Reed was a member of the Salukis' cross country and track team from 1989-94.

She was a three-sport athlete and was named twice to the all-conference team in cross country. Reed had her best showing as a sophomore when she placed second in the Missouri Valley Conference Cross Country Championships.

Coach DeNoon said Reed deserves the promotion and has shown her loyalty.

"I gave her full responsibility of the distance runners this past spring and the kids responded real well," DeNoon said. "She has been right there with us as an athlete

NEW WOMEN ON CAMPUS: Leeann Reed, a 1989-94 Saluki cross country and track member and unpaid volunteer assistant since 1994, will jump into work as the new Saluki women's cross country and track assistant coach starting Aug. 3. and continued that after graduation.

DeNoon will remain coach of the program until the upcoming season, but will mostly concentrate on the women's track

DeNoon said Reed brings a high level of energy and works well with the athletes. Reed's responsibilities will include helping with the distance runners and recruiting

Reed said, "I want unity to be the main thing because I want the players to love the sport and enjoy their time at school."

cycling club hopes grueling practices pay off

ERIN FAFOGLIA DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SIUC's Cycling Club has spent grueling hours pedaling through Southern Illinois trails and terrain. The thousands of miles and sweat put into training this summer will give the team an edge at upcoming relay and race events.

The club is preparing for a 12-hour relay race at Palos Park in Chicago Aug. 9. The mountain bike race will costs of five-man teams and the team which accomplishes the laps will prevail.

Mike Tripp, club president and medical school student from Chatham, said he is confident the tear., will do well in Chicago.

"It will be long and interesting," Tripp said. "We have a good team and we have been consistently riding, trying to get our-selves acclimated to the heat."

Tripp said the training also consists of climbing hills to build endurance.

Since the relay is on mountain bikes, it will be more difficult and will demand more endurance.

Three members Tripp, Todd Shaw and Julie Mattison, a graduate student in physiology from Los Angeles, are participating.

he team is getting ready for the Collegiate Mountain Bike Series races which start in September. Tripp said the team will compete in at least three races in the Midwest series.

"I'd like to see a couple members do some of these races," Tripp said. "Maybe some will make it to regionals. I'd like to see myself place in the top five.

"We're a pretty small team compared to ther universities, but we still do very well. We're a tight group and are always trying to help each other improve."

Mattison has participated in the races in the past and is looking forward to the Chicago relay and the fall season.

"The competition at the roces is good," Mattison said, "So much effort and time goes into preparing for races."

Mattison said year-long road riling prepares beginning cyclists to move up to mountain bike racing, and keeps the advanced cyclists in shape.

"A good way to start is real riding because it works you up-to mountain biking," Mattison said.
"That way you'll be better trained and practice home run ball. What I found instead was that neither the Cardinals nor their opponents, the Houston Astros, were taking batting practice that day. I spent the next two hours trying to take in all of the advertisements in the stadium.

Cardinals' ownership has decided to degrade their ancient stadium further by selling out to any corporate sponsor that will fork over some money. It's getting so bad nowa-days that going to a Cardinals game is like stepping into the yellow pages. Isn't it enough that they're charging $4.75 for a flat, warm

I counted five instances where companies that compete against each other both advertised side by side, such as Target and Wal-Mart and McDonald's and Hardees. The way the Cardinals are going, soon you might be seeing advertisements on the player: uni-

How would you like ee a great big Skoal advertisement on the back of McGwire's jersey? Big Red chewing gum is the perfect ad for McGwire.

It may seem like I'm picking on the Cardinals, but I will admit that they are by far not alone in this prostitution of America's favorite form of entertainment. Just a couple of weeks ago, the granddaddy of them all, the Rose Bowl sold out to AT&T. The bowl game, which is the final college football bowl game to give into the corporate sponsorship, will be known as the Rose Bowl presented by AT&T. It's bad enough that I have to wake up on

New Year's Day with a hangover, but now this year I'll watch my favorite football game sell out.

I want to know how AT&T can actually represent the Rose Bowl. Are 58-year-old operators going to play effensive line for Michigan, while the out-of-shape telephone repairmen play defensive backs for UCLA?

The National Hockey League has advertisements directly on the ice. In every sport there are at least a handful of arenas or stadiums that are named after corporate :ponsorships. Such as the Delta Center in Utah or Bank One Ballpark in Arizona. In pro basketball teams have rolling advertisement; on the side that change every time the ball is taken past half court.

kind of fun to watch Actually those when a fast break is on and the sign operators have to scramble to get the next ad rolled

I know that corporate sponsorships are nothing new and in some cases they've been around almost as long as the games them-

But it's going too far when you put a United Van Lines logo on the tarp, as is the case at Busch Stadium.

I'm also well aware that some advertisements in the stadiums is necessary to keep ticket prices down.

In most cases these rampant cases of selling out to the corporations is a matter of nothing more than greed, on the part of the currers and the players. When advertisements for riverboat casinos exist inside a baseball stadium that's nothing more than greed and typocritical.

Remember, this is the same league that won't let it's all-time greatest hitter. Pete
