New proposal could add $2 to athletics fee

By Cindy Clausen
Staff Writer

A proposal for repair and modernization of intercollegiate athletics facilities may mean adding $2 to the $30 per semester athletics fee. Jean Paratore, assistant to the vice president for student affairs, said Monday.

Paratore said Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, hopes to include the proposed $2 increase on the Oct. 14 student referendum on the athletics fee.

"He would like to see it on the referendum and get students' input before doing anything," Paratore said.

President Albert Somit has said he will consider the results of the referendum in deciding whether the $30 athletics fee should be continued.

The referendum will include choices for a $20 fee and a $30 fee and may include a choice for a $32 fee with $2 to be placed in a repair, replacement and modernization account, Paratore said.

Swinburne said the account would be similar to the reservation of $2 from students' Recreation Center fees for repairs on the Recreation Center and on intramural playing fields.

Paratore said replacement of the artificial turf at McAndrew Stadium and other major renovations are given little or no funding. She said athletics budgets are too tight for these expenses and mid-year fall-out funds are insufficient.

Paratore said it is becoming increasingly difficult to get state funds for athletics facilities.

Swinburne announced the proposal at last week's meeting of the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee. He is consulting with Debbie Brown, president of the Graduate Student Council, and Todd Rogers, president of the Undergraduate Student Organization, to determine whether the proposal should be included on the referendum.

Brown said she thinks the account is a good idea because it demonstrates a "long range approach" to the problems of athletics program funding. She does not think the proposal should be included on the referendum, however, because it may tend to "cloud the issue."

House OKs Senate's bill for SIU appropriations

By Brenda Wilgenbusch
Staff Writer

The Illinois House has passed a Senate-approved $158.8 million funding level for the SIU System for fiscal 1982.

Both the House and Senate bills would eliminate Chancellor Kenneth Shaw's $12,540-a-year housing allowance. But the House version, passed Sunday, provides for a $25,000 increase in funding for contractual services, while the Senate version does not.

Vice Chancellor James Brown said the $25,000, included as travel funding in the Senate bill, is intended for utility payments at the Medical School. He said he expects the Senate to approve the House version and that Gov. James Thompson will receive the bill soon.

The $158,792,840 approved by the legislature is about $5 million less than the original appropriations bill introduced in the Senate in March by Sen. Kenneth Buzbee, D-58th District.

Though SIU's initial request to the Illinois Board of Higher Education was for $168,249,800, it was changed to $163,775,540 when introduced in the Senate.

According to Donald Wilson, system financial officer, the House and Senate bills allow for the 8-percent salary increase and 2-percent catch-up plan recommended by Thompson in January.

The bills provide for $1,502,000 funding for support and utility costs. That would mean a 4-percent increase in support funds and a 14-percent increase for utility costs, Wilson said.

Shaw has said he isn't sure how the Board of Trustees would react to the elimination of his housing allowance but that the board would consider the issue carefully.

Because the board will decide how SIU's appropriation will be distributed throughout the University, it could reinstate the housing allowance even if Thompson agrees it should be eliminated.

The board granted Shaw the housing allowance in December after deciding it would be less expensive than building another University house.

McCaughan to take complaint in front of Board of Trustees

By Brenda Wilgenbusch
Staff Writer

Charles McCaughan, the man circulating petitions opposing payment to administrators on leave from the University, will get an opportunity to speak at the July 9 meeting of the Board of Trustees in Carbondale. Chancellor Kenneth Shaw said Monday.

McCaughan began circulating petitions in June after hearing about George Mace's resignation as vice president for University relations May 12 and the agreement to continue his $50,000 salary during his one-year leave. McCaughan said that he has collected hundreds of signatures and that several people have volunteered to help.

He has sent letters to Reps. Bruce Richmond, D-58th District, and George Ryan, D-43rd District, McCaughan said, and added he will send more. He hopes to have SIU's appropriations bill reviewed and is prepared to take his complaint to the governor if necessary, he said.

Richmond said Monday he hasn't received the letters but is familiar with the petitions. "He certainly has every right to do it," Richmond said. He had "serious thoughts" about the issue before, he said, and talked to administrators about it.

"I posed that question to SIU authorities," Richmond said, "and they are preparing an answer." Although it is not the legislator's role to interfere with the operation of the University, McCaughan deserves to know the rationale if he is upset, Richmond said.

Richmond said he was told McCaughan was invited to speak at the board meeting. But McCaughan said he knew nothing of an invitation.

"Richmond knows more than I do if he said that," McCaughan said. He hasn't yet received notice that he will be allowed to speak, he said.

Vice Chancellor James Brown said the chancellor will recommend that the board hear McCaughan's comments. "It is his intention unless something happens," he said. Brown said no formal notice has been sent because McCaughan's letter of application has just been received.

City administrator takes Florida job

By Steve Moore
Staff Writer

Assistant City Manager Bill Moss resigned his position Monday, effective July 10. Moss, 34, has been hired for the city manager's post in Atlantic Beach, Fla., a city of 9,000 located near Jacksonville.

Atlantic Beach began searching for a new city manager after the previous official was indicted by a Florida grand jury on five counts of grand larceny and real estate fraud. Moss was one of 58 applicants for the job and one of four finalists to be interviewed by Atlantic Beach officials. He was approved for the position by a unanimous vote, receiving a three-year contract.

"The attractiveness of the position was instrumental in my decision to apply for the job," Moss said. He said that although the Atlantic Beach area was small and mostly undeveloped, the potential for industrial and population growth was high. He said that there was a great deal of housing development going on because the population is expected to expand to 15,000 over the next few years.

Moss said that rebuilding the city government after the disruption caused by the legal scandal will be his main objective. He said there were also important zoning and budgetary issues that will have to be resolved soon after he takes office.

Moss has worked for the city since 1974. He began as a purchasing agent and advanced to assistant city manager in 1978.

As Carbondale's assistant manager, Moss had various duties. He was the city's purchasing agent, handling all contracts for equipment and services; property manager of the nine buildings in the University city municipal complex; manager of the Eurma C. Hayes Center, which

Iran's clergy blames America for bomb killing of chief justice

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran's clergy, blaming America and leftists, vowed Monday to avenge the bombing that killed its Supreme Court chief justice and 68 other people at their Islamic party headquarters in Tehran, Iran's press reported.

The bombing Sunday night killed Ayatollah Mohammad Hussein Beheshti, 52, the chief justice and leader of the clergy-dominated Islamic Republican Party; four Cabinet ministers, eight deputy ministers, 21 members of Parliament and other leaders of the IRP.

Beheshti was considered the second most powerful man in Iran after revolutionary leader

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. No group claimed responsibility for the bombing, but most observers of Iran's politics believed it was the work of leftists incited to violence because of the ouster of moderate president Abolhassan Bani-Sadr by the clergy-led conservatives.

Iran's Interim Presidency Council, governing since Bani-Sadr was removed from office, issued a statement vowing a "showdown with enemies of Islam to the last breath."

Beheshti was a member of the three-man council that also included Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai and Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani. Sources in Tehran told The Associated Press in Beirut by telephone that Rajai and Rafsanjani were called out of the meeting of the IRP headquarters just before the blast occurred.

Several government officials issued statements blaming the leftist Mujahedeen Khalq, a group that blends Marxism and Islamic rhetoric, and the Fedayeen Khalq, a Marxist-Leninist grouping.

Khomeini said, "Who are those sitting corners (hiding)? Are they human beings or savage beasts who dare not themselves emerge?"

Guofeng replaced as Chinese leader

PEKING (AP) — China's Communist Party on Monday formally ended the era of Mao Tse-tung, replacing the late party chairman's chosen heir, Hua Guofeng, with an advocate of Deng Xiaoping's modernization campaign.

The party Central Committee issued a communique announcing Hua's long-expected resignation as leader of the party and his replacement by Hu Yaobang, 66, a close associate of Vice Chairman Deng, China's most powerful leader.

Reagan explains intentions to NAACP

DENVER (AP) — President Reagan, facing perhaps the most unresponsive audience since his inauguration, told the NAACP Monday that "government is no longer the strong draft horse of minority progress."

The president asserted that government aid programs to minorities have failed. But he said his tax and budget cuts will "move us toward black economic freedom because it is aimed at lifting the entire country and not just parts of it."

Byrne accused of delay on transit

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Republican lawmakers Monday accused Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne of stalling on a transit plan to force the General Assembly into giving her everything she wants.

Amid the name-calling, the House was expected to consider a measure creating a suburban transit authority and allowing suburban buses and commuter railroads to raise their fares to cope with the current funding crisis.

Vatican guards squelch bomb threat

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Vatican guards arrested an unemployed merchant seaman Monday just as he lit the fuse of a bomb and tried to set fire to himself in St. Peter's Basilica.

The guards in the world's oldest church snuffed the burning fuse before it could set off the bomb, a metal tube packed with explosive and lead pellets.

Police identified the suspect as Giuseppe Santangelo, 54, of Salerno.

The aborted bomb attack followed the May 13 assassination attempt against Pope John Paul II in St. Peter's Square.

The bomb drama took place about 9:45 a.m. (2:45 a.m. CDT) when there were only a few tourists and pilgrims in the huge basilica.

Police said the suspect was standing near a statue in the central nave of the basilica when guards saw him light the fuse to the bomb, which was wrapped in a newspaper.

The guards grabbed Santangelo, and he was handed over to Italian police under the 1929 Concordat that stipulates the Italian police handle crimes inside the Vatican.

Police sources said that under interrogation Santangelo said he had been unemployed for a long time after working for years as a merchant seaman. He told police he had been sleeping on a bench near Rome's central railroad station.

The sources said he gave no clear motive for his bomb attack but that it was not political. They said Santangelo told them he planned to set fire to himself at the same time he exploded the bomb. Police found traces of gasoline on his clothes.

Pending further investigation, police applied to a magistrate to hold Santangelo on a charge of possessing and carrying an explosive device.

The aborted bomb attack was the fourth bomb incident inside the basilica in recent years.

In 1962, shortly before the start of the 2nd Vatican Council, a rudimentary bomb exploded inside the basilica.

IBHE reviewing 4 programs

By Brenda Wilgenbusch
Staff Writer

Four programs in the Division of Human Development are under review by the Illinois Board of Higher Education, and may have to report to the board about improvements by April 1, 1982.

The IBHE will vote at its meeting July 7 on whether to require the programs to report. The proposal is based on recent IBHE reviews of university programs throughout the state. The reviews were looking for programs which were no longer "educationally and economically justified," according to an IBHE report.

University programs are evaluated periodically and are eliminated or improved as needed.

SU-C programs found to be deficient were programs for bachelor's degrees in child and family, food and nutrition, and family economics and management. A master's program in human development also needs improvement, according to the IBHE.

The board said the four programs have too little practical instruction, poor overall instruction and too few public service efforts by faculty.

According to coordinators of the programs and the dean of the College of Human Resources, changes have already been made.

"We have made changes but have lost the administrator in the Division of Human Development," Samuel Goldman, dean of the College of Human Resources, said.

The director of the Division of Human Development, Elsa McMullen, resigned last month.

Frank Konishi, coordinator of the food and nutrition program, said curriculum changes have been made in programs in food service management, dietetics and food and nutrition science.

Other changes include "more emphasis on the graduate level of the community nutrition program," Konishi said. Science requirements, especially in the areas of chemistry and physiology, have been increased, he said.

"We are in the process of revising, combining and eliminating some of our courses to have more efficient use of our faculty," he said.

The Division of Human Development will try to become "more visible" to the community by having graduate students working with area hospitals and health agencies, he said.

Other program changes made by the University as a result of the IBHE report would include termination of the master's program in theater in the spring of 1982.

Three bills could help solar power

By Joe Agnew
Staff Writer

Carrying the support of the Carbondale City Council, three bills that could advance solar development in Illinois by eliminating barriers were recently passed by the Legislature and sent to Gov. James Thompson.

The council has repeatedly named energy conservation as a primary goal for the city in the next decade.

The three bills would change current laws on regulation, usage and knowledge of energy efficiency measures, respectively.

A bill amending the Illinois Municipal Code would enable non-home-rule communities to regulate structures and activities that prohibit access to the measures needed to get solar systems to function properly. The bill receives the city's support, even though Carbondale has home rule, according to Robert Paul, city energy coordinator.

"We supported it even though it doesn't apply to us, because it would benefit the state as a whole," Paul said.

In giving his support, Paul cited the need for communities to regulate structures in order to make energy conservation

National animal trade would be meaningful to U.S. and Russia

THE TIME has come for a meaningful exchange between the United States and the Soviet Union.

We should swap national animals.

At one time the bald eagle was an appropriate symbol for the United States. In the days of a militaristic America, the regal raptor was perfect for enlistment posters and political cartoons. Always depicted with talons outstretched and beak open, the national bird has swooped down on Spaniards, Germans, Japanese, more Germans, Koreans and Vietnamese. In the background of the drawings would be charging cavalry, steaming battleships, advancing tanks or Phantom jets, depending on the period. If it wasn't enough to set Americans to sharpening their bayonets, there was always the eagle on the national seal. Look at the back of a dollar bill. Despite the rather unconvincing olive branch clutched in the left talon, this bird is clearly no dove of peace; note the sheaf of arrows, shield, and fierce eye.

No wonder we have a bad reputation around the world. The Soviet Union, on the other hand, is more fortunately represented by the bear.

IN THE POPULAR bestiary, bears are amiable creatures, who, when not hibernating in hollow logs, spend their days eating honey. The rare employed bear rides a bicycle in the circus, or guzzles soda-pop at a Florida tourist trap. Television has been kind to bears.

Many of us grew up with Captain Kangaroo's Dancing Bear, Smokey, Yogi, and Gentle Ben. Advertisers understand bear-appeal. The Hamm's Beer bear pushes suds. Winnie the Pooh shells for Sears. Misha the bear, Moscow's mascot for the 1980 Olympics, tried unsuccessfully to overcome the ill-will generated by the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

But the number one bear is, of course, the teddy bear.

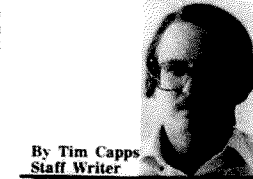

'Teddy's Bears' were first marketed in 1902 after President Theodore Roosevelt refused to shoot a captured bear while on a hunting trip. The Washington Post publicized the incident, and a small toy company named Ideal took advantage of the public interest by stitching up a few hundred toy bears. In just a year, the teddy bear population had risen to hundreds of thousands as different companies tried to keep up with demand.

Since then, the teddy bear has comforted four generations of children and insecure adults. Nearly everyone's first and possibly best friend, the bear is a powerful reminder of everything that's nice about being a child.

Can you imagine a sleepy toddler snuggling up to a stuffed eagle?

As a national symbol, the bear would be able to tap this country's deepest feelings of affection and loyalty, while presenting a positive image to the world.

BESIDES HAVING pleasant associations, the bear is a very apt symbol for present-day America.

Alexander Haig to the contrary, America no longer has the capability or desire to use the world as its private hunting grounds. The bird of prey has become the bear of comfort and our iconography should reflect this. America is overweight and ease-loving. It is more and more content to keep to its own part of the woods, as befits a country settling into sensible middle-age. Riding bear-back, the United States could finish out the '80s radiating tolerance and self-indulgence instead of paranoia.

Anyway, it's not the United States that sends its armies to hover menacingly over its allies, or to sweep down on its neighbors like birds of prey. The Soviet Union would find this exchange beneficial to its propaganda machine. Imagine the thrill of patriotism a Russian would feel when he opened up his morning Pravda and saw a cartoon of the majestic Soviet eagle seizing an Afghan or a Pole in its talons.

And while Russians were dying in pointless wars around the globe, Americans could pop open their cans of Hamm's, give Teddy a squeeze, and watch the president make an optimistic television address to the nation. And on the podium would be a presidential seal featuring a fat, happy, and very self-confident bear.

Many current laws legislate morality

I read John Montague's letter of June 25 with great interest. On which planet does Montague live? He toots his trumpet valiantly for some of the great liberal causes, but surely he knows (or ought to know) that all of the great advances of the 1960s were brought about by hard laws; people's opinions were not always changed, the laws were. (I can almost hear Montague say "but that's different!")

Or what about the amendments to the Constitution legislating into existence a vote for blacks and for women? Somebody's idea of what was morally right was imposed on others, to whom the idea was morally abhorrent. We could go on to talk of the environmental laws, and many other cases where one person's idea of moral right was another's anathema.

All law, Mr. Montague, is legislated morality; the question is who's morality is being legislated? From the tone of your letter, you didn't seem to object to the legislated morality embodied in the civil rights laws of the 60s, good for you! The point to note however is that you are, therefore, not against legislated morality per se, you just want it to be your own ideas of right and wrong that get framed into laws. I've got no problem with that, just don't get upset at the right to life movement, which has motivated millions of people to see it that laws that they (this is where I suspect you'll again have some trouble Mr. Montague, you want the pronoun to be "you") perceive as morally abhorrent be removed from the books and replaced with what they perceive as morally sound legislation. What in the world is wrong with this?

I realize you don't agree with the issue (right to life), but for some of your own statements, you surely cannot disagree with the procedure (legislation), otherwise you might want to join some extremist group, dedicated to undoing the morality that Washington imposed on the nation in the civil rights acts of the 1960s. — T.A. Clark, Graduate, Business

Other animals deserve more concern

I have little sympathy for either side of the pigeon argument. The stupidity of trying to shoot pigeons is obvious. The number that was killed was a small fraction of the population on campus. If the purpose of the exercise was to get rid of the pigeons, it failed. Once a population is established, there are two ways to get rid of it: remove the living-breeding areas, and cut off the food supply. If SIUC wanted fewer pigeons, it should have designed buildings that have no roosting-breeding areas. Fancier is not the best example of this sort of building.

For the people who cry about the death of a few pigeons, where are you when the rattlesnakes of Illinois are being slaughtered just because they are what they are, despite the fact that their populations are so small they should be considered endangered, or when the policy of the Illinois Department of Conservation emphasizes intensive management for quail and deer at the expense of all other fauna and flora?

These and many other creatures deserve your concern, not pigeons. Pigeons, in addition to starlings and house sparrows, are not native to the United States, and should, I feel, be wiped out whenever possible. These birds are using the resources that the natural U.S. birds and animals might use. There are few if any predator controls on them, so they breed freely and take up more ecological space each year.

Who cares if pigeons are shot? I do, but not because I want the pigeons to live. I want a method that will get rid of all of them quickly, and areas designed specifically to discourage a re-establishment of their populations.

Haig sends anti-communist message

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. says continuing U.S. expressions of concern about the appointment of four communists to the new French Cabinet are messages to other U.S. allies in Europe.

"It is important that all our West European partners, faced with the same decision, know that these decisions are not favorably viewed here in Washington," Haig said Sunday on CBS's "Face the Nation."

"It is simply a fact of life that communist regimes, whether they are closely affiliated with Moscow or not, pursue policies which are not consistent with the western family of nations," Haig said.

"We made no excuses or no bones about our concern," he said, adding that the Reagan administration recognizes the decision by French President Francois Mitterand is a French internal matter.

Haig denied suggestions there was disagreement within the administration on its response to the decision.

However, it appeared the State Department was harsher in its judgment than Vice President George Bush, who paid a courtesy call on Mitterand in Paris last week.

The State Department said in a statement that the appointment of the communists will affect the "tone and content of our relations" with France. Bush declined Saturday to repeat that phrase after briefing President Reagan on his trip.

Asked about the State Department's assessment, Haig said its statement and all others by the administration had been "cleared and discussed with the president personally."

Haig, who returned early Friday from a trip to China and other Pacific nations, also:

—Brushed aside Soviet complaints about a U.S. decision on arms sales to China and said U.S.-Chinese relations "must stand on their own."

"If Soviet objections become a major factor then it would 'give the Soviets a veto over the relationship,'" according to the secretary of state.

The decision opening the way for possible weapons sales is part of a continuing evolution of U.S.-Chinese relations that resumed 10 years ago and "a clear recognition...they are a friendly regime," Haig stated.

—Said the United States will continue to meet its obligations to Taiwan, including providing arms for defensive purposes, while it improves relations with China.

—Stated that the administration, "without any firm deadline being set one way or the other," is considering the possibility of talks with the Soviet Union sometime next year about reducing the growth of strategic armaments.

What makes our flame-broiled 1/4 pound Double Cheeseburger so great?

Lots of fresh toppings and tasty mustard. A big, flambéed flame-broiled, sesame seed bun.

Two four-soft squares of tangy cheese. Two crunchy slices of pickles. Two flame-broiled, beef patties. Special sauce. 100% pure beef.

Take the next "best" cheeseburger. Meet a whole lot of great when you order the big Double Cheeseburger. Big and hot. Enjoy the best of flavors. The meat, pickles and the tangy taste of cheese with a cheery sauce. This is the cheeseburger's crown. And it's yours at Burger King. Come and get it!

Campus safety transit service cut because of budget deficit

By Vicki Olgeaty
Staff Writer

The women's safety transit will only be available five nights a week this summer because of a $2,156 budget deficit for fiscal 1981, according to Jean Paratore, assistant to the vice president for student affairs.

One car will be available for use by women to travel safely from off campus to campus or vice versa Monday through Friday, Paratore said. She added that the night safety bus, which can be used by both men and women, will not be running until Nov. 2.

"We are lucky we're able to offer it at all," Paratore said.

The one-time purchase of such things as the night safety bus caused the deficit, according to Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs.

Swinburne said he is not very worried about such a small deficit. The overall fee program will show a positive balance, he said.

When the Campus Safety Fee Board realized in April that the budget would go into the red, it considered the option of ending the women's safety transit service immediately, Paratore said.

"Instead we cut out certain days here and there so that we could still offer the service that students were used to," she said.

Paratore said the summer program will be funded from the fiscal 1982 budget, and that those funds must also make up for the deficit. A 95-cent student activity fee funds the women's safety transit, the night safety bus and the salary of one graduate assistant who coordinates campus safety activities, Paratore said.

The bulk of the $38,000 obtained from the student activity fee is spent on women's transit. The board can spend only about $35,800 after the deficits are covered for this and next summer and fall and spring semesters, Paratore said.

The service will be available Sunday through Friday beginning this fall, Paratore said.

The purpose of the service is to safely transport women to and from educational functions," Paratore said. "Since there are rarely any educational functions on Saturday, there is no reason to have the service then."

Paratore plans to find out how many different people are using the service this fall. The service costs too much to run if only a handful of people are using it, she said.

viable. He said the city has a committee that is currently researching the potential for establishing protective measures for new and existing buildings.

"We're trying to devise a method that is cost-effective, legally possible, and politically acceptable," Paul said.

Another bill would amend the Public Utilities Act and prohibit discrimination by public utilities against solar energy users until 1984.

According to Elizabeth Johnson, a legislative analyst for the Illinois Institute of Natural Resources, the bill is aimed at preventing public utility companies from increasing rates for customers who adopt solar measures in their homes.

"The public utility's function

McCaughan said he doesn't expect much help from the legislators. "I don't believe they give a damn," he said. But he said that won't sway him. "I'm going to attempt to talk to the governor," he said.

Though he doesn't believe the governor will help either, McCaughan said he must try. "I think the people are going to have to put pressure on them before they'll do anything," he said.

McCaughan's petition states that signers "refuse to authorize the payment of public funds to any officer or employee as a condition of, or in exchange for, that officer or employee submitting a resignation." McCaughan wouldn't oppose paying Mace if the University could afford it, but he thinks it's a waste of money, he said.

McCaughan will present copies of the petitions to the board, as well as his reasons for believing the leave-with-pay plan is wasting University funds.

offers community service programs; administrator of the city's insurance programs; and head of the Energy Division. Moss said he also handled other duties which were assigned by the city manager.

Moss said he was glad to have had the opportunity to serve the community and praised the present government, saying, "it's a finely tuned organization capable of responding to any crisis or situation."

Carbondale City Manager Carroll Fry praised Moss' work for the city and said, "I have every confidence that he will be quite successful in his new position." According to Fry, Moss' duties will be transferred to Assistant City Manager Scott Ratter and that for the time being there will be no third city manager.

is to sell power, so when a person adapts to solar energy, his rates could go up." Johnson said the amendment would prevent this kind of intimidation.

She cited a case in New York wherein the owners of a building installed a wind generator to provide power. The generator not only provided enough power for the building, but also sent some back to Consolidated Edison. A subsequent suit by Edison, demanding that the building's owners supply their own storage for the excess energy created by the generator, was thrown out by a federal district court.

The third bill would amend the Illinois Architecture Act to specify that the state examination for architects include questions on the knowledge of energy-efficient designs.

The Illinois Institute of Natural Resources, closely involved with the drafting of the three bills, is funded by the federal government through the state.

Doerr selected to All-America team

By Jim Cagle
Staff Writer

Saluki baseball Coach Itchy Jones says that Bobby Doerr "exemplifies what college baseball is all about."

Jones is not the only one with that opinion. The Sporting News has named the former Saluki infielder to its 1981 All-America College Baseball Team.

Doerr, a 5-11, 177 pound, 22-year-old from Richton Park, Ill., was named to the St. Louis based publication's first team as a second baseman. He played shortstop for the Salukis for a large portion of last season because of injuries to the team's regular shortstop, Mike Mesh, but was drafted in the sixth round by the Montreal Expos as a second baseman earlier this month.

"I'm really happy about being selected," Doerr said from West Palm Beach, Fla., where he is playing for the Expos's Class A minor league team. "I just found out about it a few days ago. One of the other players down here told me that they read it in the paper sometime."

"It took me totally by surprise," Doerr said. "I didn't expect it at all."

Doerr, a four-year starter at SIU-C, hit .329 last season, with 25 RBI and 16 extra-base hits, three of which were home runs. He also stole 24 bases in 25 attempts.

"I think they made a great selection," Jones said. "He's the finest infielder I saw all year."

"He wasn't just a good athlete," Jones said, "he was a good student, too. He got his business degree in four years. That's something that a lot of players don't do. It just goes to show that you can be involved in college athletics and still excel as a student and get out of school on time."

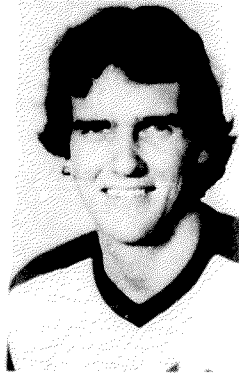

Doerr was the only senior selected to the 11-player squad. The rest were juniors. Six of the players selected were drafted in the first round.

The selection committee was composed of major league scouting directors.

The Sporting News named Wichita State outfielder Joe Carter as player of the year. University of Miami Coach Don Fraser was named coach of the year.

Other players named to the team are first baseman Phil Stephenson of Wichita State; third baseman Tim Fyzarski of Eastern Illinois; shortstop Bob Meacham of San Diego State; outfielder Dave Leeper of the University of Southern California; outfielder Kevin McKeynolds of the University of Arkansas; catcher and designated hitter Dave Castro of Miami of Florida; right-handed pitcher Mike Moore of Oral Roberts University; and left-handed pitcher Neal Heaton of Miami of Florida.

Doerr, the fifth Saluki to land the Sporting News honor, is currently starting at second base for the Expos farm club, where he has been for two weeks.

National League baseballers win mythical all-star contest

CHICAGO (UPI) — Pete Rose lined a two-run, pinch-hit double and Manny Trillo added a three-run, pinch-hit double in a seven-run sixth inning to lift the National League to a 10-2 triumph over the American League in the 1981 all-star game.

Well...at least their cardboard counterparts did. Since the players are on strike, the game was simulated with player performance cards and playing boards produced by APBA Game Co. Inc. of Lancaster, Pa.

Rose, who tied Stan Musial's National League hit mark before the strike, hit his double to left off Pete Vuckovich, who lost the mythical game for the American League. Cleveland's Len Barker intentionally walked Dusty Baker and Trillo cleared the bases with his double to left.

St. Louis' Bruce Sutter, who had recorded a save and a win in the last two National League all-star victories, got credit for the make-believe victory after allowing just one hit and striking out three in three innings of work. Atlanta's Jack Camp retired the final six American League batters to record the save in the game, which took 45 minutes to play.

Oakland's Mike Norris and Philadelphia's Steve Carlton were the starting pitchers in the "Cardboard Classic."

The American League jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Rod Carew reached first on second baseman Dave Lopes' error and Reggie Jackson, earning an all-star berth on the strength of fans' voting rather than his anemic average, lined a two-run homer to center.

Willie Randolph and Carew had back-to-back, two-out singles in the second but Brett flied to left field to end the threat. The American League would only get one more hit—a fifth-inning double by Brett—the rest of the way as the squad was limited to five hits.

The National League reached Norris for one run in the third. Montreal catcher Gary Carter led off with a double to right-center and went to third on Norris' wild pitch. Carlton, batting for himself, lifted a fly ball to short right but Carter beat a weak throw to the plate by right fielder Ken Singleton.

The National League began its dramatic rally with one out in the sixth. Chicago Cubs' first baseman Bill Buckner lined a pinch-hit single and went to third on Parker's single to right. Mike Schmidt was intentionally walked, loading the bases.

Rose's double scored Buckner and Parker with Schmidt taking third. Barker, who pitched a perfect game earlier this year, again loaded the bases after Baker's intentional walk and Trillo's double cleared them.

Carter then lined an infield single off Barker, forcing the Cleveland right-hander to leave the game. Preliminary reports (produced by chance from an "injury card") showed Barker would miss seven games.

Sutter got an infield single off Chicago's Richard Dotson, scoring Trillo, and Dave Concepcion's sacrifice fly scored Carter. Buckner singled for the seventh hit of the inning but Sutter was thrown out trying to score from second.

The National League capped its scoring in the ninth off Boston's Mark Clear. Garry Templeton of St. Louis singled and stole second and after San Francisco's Jack Clark walked, Parker's double to center scored Templeton and Clark.

Rose and Trillo shared MVP honors and received toy miniature cars.

Austin loses at Wimbledon; Shriver to face Evert Lloyd

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Pam Shriver still under treatment for a two-year-old shoulder injury, scored the biggest triumph of her tennis career Monday, a 7-5, 6-4 victory over Tracy Austin that carried her into the Wimbledon semifinals.

Shriver had played Austin 11 times before and had never won.

An excited crowd of 14,000 at Wimbledon's center court watched a tense and often jittery battle between the two 18-year-old Americans. There were a lot of errors. But as the drama mounted, Shriver, the tall player from Lutherville, Md., played the more positive tennis.

"This must be my greatest win," Shriver said. "It's three times as big a thrill as when I beat Martina Navratilova and reached the final of the U.S. Open when I was 16."

Austin was seeded third and Shriver seventh. It was the only upset of the day. Top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd hit her way past Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia 6-2, 6-2 and will play Shriver in Wednesday's semifinals.

Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia played almost flawless tennis to beat Wendy Turnbull of Australia 6-0, 6-0.

Navratilova served and volleyed to a 5-2, 6-3 victory over Virginia Ruzici of Romania.

So it will be a Czechoslovakian against a Czechoslovakian in the other semifinal — Mandlikova, 19, against Navratilova, the 24-year-old American-based expatriate.

The men's quarterfinals Tuesday include only three of the top eight seeds — Bjorn Borg, the defending champion and favorite; John McEnroe, the No. 2 seed, and third-seeded Jimmy Connors.

The women's event has followed form.

Casebeer captures third in cycling race

Jan Casebeer placed third and Dave French placed first in cycling races held in Evansville, Ind. over the weekend.

Casebeer, a senior recreation major, placed third in the 40-mile senior I-II race. The senior I-II division is the top division in cycling.

French, a junior in recreation, won the 10-mile citizen's race for the second time in two years.

Casebeer will compete in a race in Moline July 4 and will race in Glen Ellyn July 5. The SIU-Phoenix Cycle team will race July 4 in Rockford and July 5 in Glen Ellyn.

Following these races, Casebeer will compete in three races at the National Sports Festival in Syracuse, N. Y.
