Reagan says 'high time' to meet Soviet leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, renewing an offer to meet with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, said Thursday night it is "high time" for a superpower summit and that there was a good chance it would take place.

Reagan said during a nationally televised news conference there is a range of bilateral issues of interest to the United States and the Soviet Union that could be discussed at such a meeting.

Reagan first offered to meet with Gorbachev in a note delivered by Vice President George Bush last week during the funeral of the late Soviet leader, Konstantin Chernenko. Since then there has been no reply, but Reagan said he doesn't feel rebuffed because "the man has only been in office for a few days."

Reagan opened his third news conference in as many months with a strong appeal for the Democratic-controlled House of Representatives to follow the Senate's lead and approve funding for 21 additional MX missiles.

Describing next week's votes as "a testing time," Reagan said, "there is little prospect for progress" at the U.S.-Soviet arms control talks which resumed last week in Geneva without congressional approval of the missiles.

"The votes there will answer the question of whether we stand united at Geneva or divided over the most fundamental question" of national security, he said. The administration is asking Congress to approve $1.5 billion for the nuclear missiles, which many critics claim would be vulnerable in a conflict with the Soviets.

Reagan said that in the decade that the MX has been debated in this country, the Soviets have deployed 600 land-based missiles targeted at the United States, and are on the verge of deploying two new types while "we are still debating."

Book storage funds granted by Thompson

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

Approval of a request for $1.6 million to design and construct a storage facility on the SIU-C campus has been granted by Gov. Thompson.

State Rep. Ralph Dunn, R-DuQuoin, said the governor approved the funds Tuesday. The funds, requested by SIU-C officials in November, will be supplied by the Capitol Development Board.

Marion Fuller, CDB spokeswoman, said the next step toward constructing the facility is for the University to submit a design proposal to the development board.

Fischer-Stein Associates of Carbondale has been hired by the University and approved by CDB to provide an architectural design, Fuller said.

A request for the funding and a description of the storage space that the library needs was submitted to the governor last fall, said Kenneth Peterson, dean of library affairs. Peterson said he expects work on a design for the facility to start soon.

A memo from the Bureau of the Budget, part of the executive office of the governor, says the design of the facility should be completed and approved by August and construction of the facility completed by January.

Proposals call for a building with 30,000 square feet of storage room and a capacity of 600,000 volumes.

John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs and research, said that the projected completion date might be "a little optimistic." Guyon said that construction work can be difficult in Southern Illinois during winter months.

No specific site for the facility has been selected, Guyon said, but it will most likely be located on McLafferty Road or in the general vicinity of Morris Library. He said the pros and cons of both sites are still being discussed.

A bill co-sponsored by Dunn to allow SIU-C to build a storage facility on campus was approved by the governor eight months ago. The bill was submitted after opposition was voiced to plans to purchase a former grocery warehouse in Marion for library storage.

Farm bill approved by House

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The Illinois House on Thursday approved emergency credit legislation that would help hard-pressed farmers get crops in the ground this spring by allowing them to defer interest on operating loans.

The measure, sent to the Senate on a 99-14 vote, would have the state pay half the interest on the loans when they come due at the farmers' banks in a year. Farmers would repay the state over the following five years with no additional interest.

The plan would in effect allow farmers to borrow money for seed, fuel, fertilizer and other immediate needs and pay only 6 to 7 percent interest when the loan comes due — about half the prevailing rate.

"Many farmers are in a desperate need for a low rate of interest on their loans," said Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro. "The need is real, it's not over-exaggeration."

It's estimated that more than 15,000 farmers could be helped by the measure, which would be a state alternative if an emergency federal farm credit plan doesn't materialize.

Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst, spoke against the measure. He complained that the government has been too willing to bail out farmers, some of whom made bad business decisions.

"It's going to be very difficult to wean them back to the reality other businesses have faced," Hoffman said, referring to the Reagan administration proposal to do away with price supports eventually.

City officials to study insurance alternatives

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

Retired Carbondale city employees have been sent letters telling them to disregard previous notices informing them of changes in their insurance rates and coverage.

City officials are studying alternatives to excluding the retirees from the city's group insurance.

City Manager Bill Dixon said Thursday that Blue Cross-Blue Shield Insurance Company of Illinois has given the city permission to retain the present insurance plan for current and retired city employees beyond the beginning of the new fiscal year on May 1.

Dixon said, however, that the city will begin paying more money for insuring city employees at the beginning of the new fiscal year even if a new plan is not yet adopted.

The City Council requested the delay Monday after retired city employees led by retired City Manager Carroll Fry complained that they were

U.S. economy expands 2.1 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Economic growth slowed to a surprisingly weak 2.1 percent during the first three months of the year, while one measure of inflation spurted to its highest level in almost three years, the government reported Thursday.

The Reagan administration and many private economists called both statistics misleading, contending that the economic expansion is more robust and inflation far less of a menace than the Commerce Department figures seem to indicate.

Other analysts were less optimistic, warning that the unexpected weakness could translate into climbing unemployment rates as domestic industries lose further sales to a flood of foreign imports.

All sides agreed that the department's estimate of growth in the gross national product — the total output of goods and services — was much lower than the 4 percent rate that had been widely expected for January through March.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said that while the growth figure was lower than expected, "we continue to believe that the economy is on a path of steady growth with low inflation."

Soviet diplomat shot, killed by motorcyclists in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Two men on a motorcycle pumped several shots through the right rear window of a Soviet diplomat's car Thursday, killing him instantly, police reported. Police identified the diplomat as V. Khitzchenko, 48, a senior engineer in the Soviet Embassy's Economic Affairs department. Embassy spokesman Vladimir N. Tsatsyn confirmed the identification, but the embassy refused to give the victim's first name or answer questions.

Police fire on blacks marching to white town

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police fired into a crowd of blacks marching toward a white town Thursday, killing 17 and wounding 19, the government said. It was the bloodiest single incident in a year. Louis le Grange, the white government's minister of law and order, said the violence began Thursday morning when 3,000 to 4,000 blacks advanced on a police detachment of 19 men and stoned them, refusing orders to disperse. Newspapers quoted an unidentified witness as saying, "Police suddenly opened fire. We deny we stoned them."

Iraq kills hundreds, seizes Iranian positions

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq said Thursday that its ground forces staged a lightning strike on Iranian lines, seizing enemy positions and killing hundreds of soldiers. Iran said Baghdad's warplanes bombed the border city of Ilam, killing 12 people. In a communique, the Iraqi military command said two army brigades had taken part in a two-phase attack on the Iranians in the southern desert region of the front and occupied more than two miles of "enemy positions."

Two Lebanese filming for CBS killed in attack

ANKOUN, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli tanks and armored personnel carriers smashed through several Shiite Moslem villages in south Lebanon on Thursday in a hunt for guerrillas. At least 23 people were reported killed, including two Lebanese filming for CBS News. The sweep was the latest in a month-old Israeli crackdown on Shiite towns and villages in an attempt to halt guerrilla attacks on Israeli forces. Israel invaded Lebanon in 1982.

O'Neill calls MX missile the 'wrong stuff'

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, refusing to concede President Reagan a victory on the MX missile, said Thursday the nuclear weapon is the "wrong stuff." A $41 billion military spending program that would make the nation weaker, not stronger. The Senate voted twice this week to authorize and appropriate $1.5 billion to buy a second installment of 21 MX missiles. The House gets its chance to pass judgment next week in two votes of its own.

Five Ohio savings and loans resume business

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Five of 69 state-chartered savings and loans ordered closed by the state were open for business Thursday, and although lines formed at some branches, officials reported no shortage of cash. Brian Usher, Gov. Richard Celeste's press secretary, said some additional institutions might open for full service Friday or Monday, with "most if not all" open for limited withdrawals Friday. State officials scurried to put regulations in place that would allow most of the 66 other closed thrifts to open for limited service.

World's Fair head says downstate support needed

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Offering lures to cities from Arlington Heights to Decatur, the head of the Chicago World's Fair 1992 Authority launched a new campaign Thursday to sell the rest of Illinois on the proposed fair. John Kramer, general manager of the fair authority, acknowledged he faces an uphill battle this spring to persuade state legislators from outside the Chicago area to approve more money for the fair.

Lawyer in Greylord investigation sentenced

CHICAGO (AP) — Lawyer Dean Wolfson, who admitted paying bribes to fix court cases after his indictment in the federal Operation Greylord investigation, was sentenced Thursday to seven and one-half years in prison. Wolfson was also fined $3,000 and ordered to do 2,400 hours of community service. Wolfson, 55, pleaded guilty Jan. 25 to one count of racketeering and three counts of mail fraud. He was indicted as a result of Greylord, a three and one-half year federal probe of corruption in the Cook County court system.

AA helps woman fight alcoholism

Editor's note: This is the fourth in a four-part series on alcoholism.

By Karen Wiltberger
Staff Writer

The thin woman stared back at her hollow, high cheeks in the mirror hanging over the bathroom sink. She held tightly to her best friend, her only friend: a glass of cheap vodka slightly diluted with grapefruit juice.

As the woman, who often awoke with skaking fingers and a cottonlike texture in her mouth, sipped her companion, her nerves relaxed. And she began another day on her way to her own secure world of drunkenness.

In this way, she hid from the rest of the living world. She dressed in a robe and opened the kitchen cupboard doors where one or two gallon-sized bottles of vodka always awaited her.

"I REMEMBER when I felt so alone and so hopeless and so scared," the 42-year-old woman recalled about her last months of sliding to the bottom of alcoholism. "The telephone would ring or someone would knock at the door and I was afraid to answer."

'When I pictured an alcoholic, I pictured the people on Skid Row and in the gutters trying to get money to buy Ripple.'

Terry, now a recovering alcoholic living in a rural Wisconsin town with no post office, sat on a beaten, unraveling couch at her daughter's rented college apartment. She looked at ease as she sipped from a large glass of unsweetened iced tea with two oversized slices of lemon. She held an Eve cigarette between two fingers of her left hand.

"I was either going to go crazy or die," remembered Terry, whose recently permed curls of fine, auburn hair frame her facial features.

INSTEAD, SHE chose to walk another path — a path recapturing sobriety and sanity. It leads her to sometimes three, sometimes as many as seven Alcoholics Anonymous meetings a week.

Terry, the only name known to her AA companions, is approaching 10 months of sobriety with the help of AA.

Her first contact with the group began nearly five years ago and for two years it helped her to stay sober one day at a time. But then came a two-year relapse after she popped open one can of beer. That was all it took to trigger a compulsion to drink, Terry said.

"I never dreamed that I was going to become alcoholic," said Terry, appearing almost innocent in her green almond-shaped eyes. "When I pictured an alcoholic, I pictured the people on Skid Row and in the gutters trying to get money to buy Ripple."

LOOKING BACK on her earliest days of drinking, Terry said she sees herself as a bashful, introverted, self-conscious 18-year-old who thought people didn't like her.

But when she drank, her personality changed and people liked her more — so she thought, she remembered.

"I would go from being quiet and afraid of people to being the life of the party," she said, lighting up another Eve.

During the 14 years of her first marriage, Terry said, she drank on weekends, for it was an accepted facet of her social scene. Dinner, dance and drink.

"But I always wanted to keep going," she recalled.

AFTER HER divorce in the mid '70s, Terry said, she found herself losing control over the alcohol. During those years, she waitressed at night in northern Illinois earning enough money to support a moderately priced townhouse and her two daughters, ages 9 and 12.

She kept home-cooked meals on the table. She arranged slumber parties for her daughters' birthdays. She had close relationships with family and friends.

But then everything that she cared so much about disappeared. All in a matter of time.

The home-cooked meals became T.V. dinners. Full-time waitressing became a part-time job. Her children moved in with their father and his new wife and two children. And the townhouse withered away into unpaid bills.

"SO, I WAS going to find my knight in shining armor — in the bars," she said, smiling at the thought. She did have some brief encounters with men "but I always got hurt," Terry recalled.

Over the years, she erased her desire for men and bars, pulling herself further from life and closer to the one friend she desired.

"I would go to work and I couldn't wait to get home and drink," Terry said. "I would drink at home."

A closet drinker? "Perhaps." She shrugged, sipping from her second glass of iced tea garnished with another oversized slice of lemon.

"THERE WAS really no one to hide it from. My kids weren't there." She glanced at her daughter, appearing a little uneasy. "That's when I thought there was nobody but me. And gradually there wasn't even me anymore."

Terry said she tried to have fun while she drank, but always "ended up depressed, crying and fighting with the people she loved."

S-Senate to fund computer program for RSOs

By Cynthia Weiss
Staff Writer

The Student Senate approved a funding bill Wednesday which will provide 15 hours a week of computer services to be shared by Recognized Student Organizations.

Comptech, a computer services company located on the second floor of the Student Center, offered its services to the Undergraduate Student Organization at a "substantial" discount, said Grayson Gile, Comptech representative.

The senate allocated $1,350 for implementation of the program: $840 for contracted computer time, $160 for overtime and $350 for advertising the program over a one year period.

Once certain legal questions pertaining to a contractual agreement between the USO and Comptech are resolved, the arrangement will be finalized, said USO Finance Committee Chairman Mark Skowronski.

Gile indicated that the formal deal will probably not go into effect until fall 1985, but that Comptech would be willing to begin providing the discounted service by the hour to RSOs this spring.

Gile called the agreement

"mutually beneficial."

In other business, senators discussed whether the USO should endorse political candidates.

A resolution supporting City Council candidate Keith Tuxhorn, submitted by Sen. Tom Jurgens, sparked a lengthy and heated debate. When a motion was finally made to defeat the resolution, Jurgens withdrew it.

Funding for the April 18 USO elections was another topic of discussion at Wednesday night's meeting.

The senate also passed resolutions in favor of increasing the availability of student financial aid, increasing funding for Morris Library and hiring a professional fund-raiser for SIU-C intercollegiate athletics programs.

Hospital petition cause for concern

THOSE WHO OPPOSE ABORTION, and those who support the right to have abortions are mobilizing in anticipation of a decision on voluntary abortion operations at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale. While it is easy to make the hospital's decision just another forum for arguing the issue of abortion, that isn't really at the heart of the issue.

The crux of the matter isn't whether or not abortions should be legal. They are. The issue isn't whether or not the doctors have the right to publically express their views on abortion. They do have that right.

Memorial Hospital is one of only a handful of facilities in the area that performs licensed abortions. The two nearest abortion clinics other than Memorial Hospital are located 50 and 100 miles away in Cape Girardeau, Mo., and Granite City. In the absence of a private clinic in the area that will perform abortions, Memorial hospital provides access to a health service that would otherwise be unavailable. Eliminating abortions at Memorial Hospital, making a trip of at least 50 miles necessary, would have the unfavorable effect of making an abortion even more of a financial burden for people in the low-income bracket.

THIRTY-TWO OF THE DOCTORS at the hospital have signed the anti-abortion petition. That leaves 35 who didn't. Those who object to the operation shouldn't be forced to participate in abortion related procedures. Hospital officials have been cooperative in the past by excusing staff members who object to abortions from participating in them.

As long as abortion remains a legally permissible operation, doctors at Carbondale Memorial ought to be able to provide that service for the public.

Hospitals — the field of medicine in general — are not simply private corporations like, say General Motors. By the very nature of medicine and its profound impact on the public's health, hospitals cannot be considered merely in terms of dollars and cents.

There is a larger issue at stake — public safety. A petition drive to end voluntary abortion procedures at Memorial Hospital is wrong in that it smacks of the medicine-as-a-private-corporation mentality. The medical profession, because of its unique service, should transcend corporate interests.

Errors damaged column

In his column opposing capital punishment, Mike Frey makes two serious errors. He misinterprets the Babylonian legal code: an "eye for an eye" to mean a mandatory punishment. It means a limit: the punishment may not exceed the offence. Someone is not to be executed for knocking out a tooth. In the case of Charles Manson or John Gacy, capital punishment is hardly excessive, considering their crimes.

Frey's second mistake is his ignorance of American government. Capital punishment is provided for in the Constitution (Bill of Rights, Art. V). It is not up to the Supreme Court to outlaw constitutional provisions. However, it would be up to the Supreme Court to overturn an act of Congress outlawing capital punishment, since such an act would violate the Bill of Rights. — Frank W. Oglesbee, Professor, Radio and Television.

Dome is in need of repair

Hey, has anyone been out to the dome lately?

Yes, I'm sad to report "Bucky" Fuller would be turning in his grave if he saw the dome's current state of disrepair. This is a design of minimal cost and minimal maintenance — a classic. SIU-C has done a bang-up job with the campus lake area. Why not finish the job and fix the dome. — Gary Oster, sophomore, Therapeutic Recreation and Joe Huet, senior, Geography.

Plea to women to stop mind games suggests personal frustrations

Mr. Roberts would like women to "stop playing mind games with their sexuality and admit to an interest comparable to the average adult male." He says this would increase communication and avoid frustration between the sexes. His plea suggests personal frustration at being unable to communicate with women because we object to his equating pornography with normal sexual desires and fantasies.

I suggest Mr. Roberts become informed about the current research on the connection between pornography and violence against women and children. A cause and effect association is strongly indicated. "Take Back the Night" is an easily available anthology of information about pornography and its connection to violence. I especially recommend the articles "Playboy Isn't Playing" and "Dirty Books, Dirty Films and Dirty Data." The increasing incidence of rape is not caused by women playing games, but by a combination of factors including anger at women for speaking out against sexual and economic victimization. The rapidly escalating pornography business is capitalizing on male insecurity. The images in these films and magazines pander to the anxieties resulting from precariously false gender assumptions in our culture. These are invariably suggestive of the powerful over the powerless.

Pornography creates a need for more pornography because its solution to human needs cannot be found in the real world when men and women are able to communicate. It is pornographers, not feminists, who profit from polarization between women and men. When counting their money, the pornographers aren't worrying about the victims of those consumers who act out the pictures in their minds.

After studying the research on the subject, Mr. Roberts might make the effort to really listen to women instead of quibbling over semantics and assuming that a game is being played. By criticizing Kathryn Ward as an assumed authority who is out of touch with "most experts" he reveals how uninformed he is on the subject. More importantly, he exposes his readiness to discount a woman who offers him an opportunity for dialogue. — Lynn Otterson, Carbondale.

All-campus variety show deserved coverage in paper

On March 2 there were four different events held here on campus: the Alabama concert, "The Barber of Seville" opera, the last home game for the women cagers and the 38th Annual Theta Xi All-Campus Variety Show.

All of those were covered by the Daily Egyptian in the march 4 edition except for the Theta Xi Variety Show. There was extensive planning, organizing and practising for this show. There were many fine acts, and on the whole the show was very entertaining.

Theta Xi was co-sponsored by the Inter-Greek Council and the Student Programming Council, with prizes provided by American Express. The Service To Southern Award was presented by Bruce Swinburne. And the Kaplan Memorial Scholarship Award was presented by John McPherson.

Many Patron Society Members, alumni and students made up the audience at Shryock Auditorium.

Congratulations to producer Sherry Zack and everyone involved in the planning of a very successful show. Also, congratulations to everyone who performed in last Saturday's show, especially the women of Sigma Kappa sorority and the men of Theta Xi fraternity, who won the large group category with their show entitled "Reveille." The men of Delta Chi fraternity, with their act, "Surfin' Southern Style," and the Black Fire Dancers with their organizing and practising for this show. There were many fine acts, and on the whole the show was very entertaining.

The 38th Annual Theta Xi All-Campus Variety Show, with this year's theme, "Strike Up the Band," was a major success and proved to be a very entertaining evening.

Since the D.E. didn't cover this year's show, thank you for letting me cover some of it for you. But with all the work put into the show by so many people, please find time in your busy schedules to cover next year's show. — Terry R. Reinsner, sophomore, Business Administration.

Letters Policy

Signed articles, including letters, Viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, whose members are the student-editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a Journalism School faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten, double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters of less than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Saluki outfielder Gerald Pitchford steals second base Wednesday against Greenville College. Pitchford leads the Salukis with 12 stolen bases.

The best game in town begins another season

Spring — and baseball — is in the air. And the best bet for an afternoon of the best of both is at Abe Martin Field watching the baseball Salukis.

The Saluki home schedule includes 12 doubleheaders and four single-game contests. The Salukis' next home game is Saturday at 2 p.m. against Murray State.

Support for the Salukis is nearly legendary, with the "Hill Gang" leading the cheers. This year could see an added dimension to the cheering section with the addition of a kazoo chorus, advocated by Brian Powell, morning disc jockey at WTO-FM.

Powell said he and two friends got the idea from a St. Louis Blues hockey game. "I've been an avid hill gang member for a number of years now. We thought it would be kind of fun to bring in the kazoos," he said. "Saluki baseball is a great form of entertainment."

The Salukis are rebounding from a 20-22 record in 1984, the first losing season in the 15 years the team has been coached by Richard "Itchy" Jones. Jones entered this season with a career record of 520-199 at SIU-C.

Despite the losing record, the Salukis won the 1984 Missouri Valley Conference championship with a 9-5 mark in conference play. Winning the championship entitled the Salukis to host the post-season conference tournament.

The Salukis got off to a good start this season on their annual trip to Florida where they compiled a 7-6 record. The Salukis victories included a win over a solid James Madison team, which competed in the 1983 College World Series.

In the first home game of the season on Wednesday, the Salukis shelled Greenville with 17 hits on the way to a 17-1 victory.

The Salukis are led this year by pitcher Gary Bockhorn, who has been described by Jones as possibly the best junior pitcher in the country. Bockhorn led the Salukis last year with five wins and 64 strikeouts.

The Saluki offensive attack is led by outfielder Robert Jones, who led the team last year with six home runs and 34 RBIs. Jones hit his second home run of the season Wednesday against Greenville, a shot which cleared the center field fence and nearly hit the flag pole.

An added dimension to the Salukis' offensive attack this season is base stealing. The team has 48 steals so far this year, passing the season total of 33 for last year. Outfielder Gerald Pitchford, who is playing his first season with the Salukis after transferring from Belleville Area College, leads the Salukis with 12 steals in 12 attempts.

Movie offers modern twist to biblical story of lost son

By Martin Folan
Staff Writer

The biblical story of the lost son, told in Luke 15:11-32, is brought to the screen in Ken Wales' production of "The Prodigal."

The movie parallels most of the biblical story, which tells about a son who leaves home with half of his father's possessions, engages in reckless living and loses all he owns when famine spreads throughout the country in which he is living. He later returns to his father to confess sin against his father and God.

After hearing his son's confessions, the father celebrates his son's rebirth by having a feast and outfitting his son with shoes, a robe and rings on his fingers.

The movie portrays the story in a modernized version. Greg Stuart, a long-haired, bearded pot-smoker, portrays the lost son, who leaves home at age 21 to live with his girlfriend in the woods.

After his brother, Scott, finds him, he returns home to celebrate the birthday of his father, Elton Stuart. Once at home, he follows up on Elton's suggestion to find a job. Elton tells him to apply for the position of professional tennis instructor at a local club.

With no scene showing Greg shaving and cutting his hair, Wales leaves the audience wondering who the clean-cut, short-haired tennis player is in the next scene.

Greg, now employed as a tennis instructor, meets the club owner's daughter Sheila, who becomes his representative and drives him across the lake in her speedboat to her extravagant apartment.

Here he begins living recklessly, which parallels Luke 15:13-14, by spending money on liquor and speeding through the town in Sheila's sports car.

Stoned and drunk, Greg wakes his parents by stumbling up the staircase after returning home late one evening.

Greg then acquires a trio of enemies, as Scott becomes angry with his brother's behavior and Sheila kicks him out of her apartment.

With nowhere to go but the bar, Greg again becomes intoxicated. After he is taken from the bar by Scott, both brothers are attacked by a group of black boys on the street.

While sitting on the floor in a friend's bathroom, recovering, with his hand in the toilet, Greg opened his door of life and welcomed the Lord back in.

He recalled the time he fell out of a fishing boat and nearly drowned before calling out to God and being saved.

Later, the Rev. Billy Graham fits in perfectly by preaching the Word and saving a crowd of people, including the Stuarts, at a football stadium.

The ending is a much-to-be-expected scene, in that Greg slowly walks up to the stage with the people to be saved; Scott sees him among the crowd and joins him; and Anne Stuart, Elton's wife, tells Elton to walk with the boys.

While walking with his father, Greg asks him, "Will you stand by me dad?"

The choir assures this to be a spiritual experience by singing out songs of praise, as his father replies, "I'll be right behind you son."

Although it is a good movie, it can be better understood by audience members if verses from Luke are read beforehand.

ALCOHOLISM: Group helps woman

alcohol and I could drink and have fun because I was in charge.

"But when I drink I have no control. The alcohol has the power over me. It takes me where ever it wants to go," she said.

Luckily, Terry said, she followed the advice of an old friend's father one afternoon and decided to attend an AA meeting.

THAT NIGHT, she finished the last drop of vodka in her upstairs apartment. The next morning she unwrapped her robe from her depreciating body and reluctantly stepped into the shower. At noon, she entered her first AA meeting alone and terrified, she recalled.

INSURANCE: Choices studied

being unfairly forced out of the insurance program.

City Manager Bill Dixon confirmed that letters were sent to 30 retired city employees last week notifying them that their insurance policies will no longer be part of Blue Cross-Blue Shield's group coverage plan to the city beginning May 1. The retired employees were given the option of converting their group policies to other coverage plans.

Fry said that without the group rate retired employees could be charged more money for insurance. He also charged that city has a obligation to continue to include the former employees in the group insurance.

Although a written contract does not exist, he said a "contract by precedent" is in effect since retired employees have been included in the group insurance with current city employees for several years.

Dixon said not including retired employees in the city's group insurance was proposed as part of the city's cost containment policy. The city now pays for half of the current city employees insurance costs. Retired employees pay their own premiums at the group rate.

Dixon said the city still pays money to have the retired employees included in the group rate. Fry said figures indicating how much retired employees raise the "experience rating" of the city's insurance cost have never been presented. He said the experience rating is based on the number of claims filed.

"We have seen no evidence that we are raising the cost of the health care program," Fry said. "We do not know why we are being frozen out of the plan."

The council also directed Dixon to prepare a report justifying why he recommended that retired employees be converted to other coverage, as well as providing alternative insurance plans and options for the council.

Councilman Keith Tuxhorn said the city should have solicited bids on group insurance rates from other insurance companies. He said the present plan was "badly run."

Dixon said that bids were not put out since city officials are contemplating changes in the insurance plan and should not be committed to a multi-year insurance contract.

The people were so friendly, Terry said about the meeting where she sat timidly and listened. She listened to the others tell the rest of the group about their drinking histories, how they arrived at AA and how they were learning to live without alcohol.

Afterwards, Terry remembered, she recognized her own life, her powerlessness over alcohol and unmanageability of her life.

"EVEN THOUGH all their stories were a little different, the feelings, the fears, the denials were all the same," she said.

Now, hundreds of stories later, Terry says she's lucky. "I never got a DUI...I never killed anybody," she said.

"But, in AA we call those 'yets' because alcoholism is progressive and if you keep drinking all those things come," she said earnestly.

Terry said sobriety for her has to come before every other aspect of her life. Any chance for a happy life with the people she loves would be forgotten forever without it, she said.

"To win, you must surrender," she said. "You have to give up and say 'I'm an alcoholic."

"I MAY NOT like it, but I am. And there's no way in hell I can ever have fun drinking again."

Though she doesn't have a craving to drink, a desire sometimes haunts her. At those times, Terry said, she recites the serenity prayer: "God, grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, courage to change the things I can, and wisdom to know the difference."

Or she attends an AA meeting or calls a friend. "It goes away," she said.

And restoring her life is everything that means most to her.

On Christmas Eve, she gained a husband and another daughter, whom she lives with in a modern trailer in rural Wheatland, Wis. She visits her own two grown-up daughters when they can break away from their busy lives. And she's putting home-cooked meals on the table again.

"I don't want to drink anymore, and that's a miracle," Terry said, smiling as she set down her third glass of tea with yet another lemon slice.

And she put out the last Eve of the evening.

Vials of medical data could help save lives

By Sarah Rohrs
Staff Writer

A piece of paper inside a vial kept in the refrigerator could save a person's life in emergency situations.

The paper would note a person's medications, allergies, physician's name and past medical diagnoses, as well as religious preference.

The Greater Egypt Health Council is initiating a Vial of Life Program in Jackson County to distribute the vials.

The about 3,000 elderly homebound residents of Jackson County need the vials most, said Eric Bleyer of the health council.

Bleyer said that the Jackson County Ambulance Service approached the health council with the idea for the program.

Often, elderly residents are unable to tell ambulance workers what medication they are taking or who their doctors are, Bleyer said.

The program will begin April 1 and will include only homebound residents of Jackson County. However, Bleyer expects it to expand to include all residents of Southern Illinois.

Homebound residents in Jackson County will be reached through home health agencies, such as Carbondale Memorial Hospital, Quality of Life Services and the Carbondale Clinic, who each help between 50 and 70 homebound residents, Bleyer said.

The information for the vials will be filled out by nurses and physicians who have contact with the homebound residents, he said.

Individuals wanting a vial may contact the Murphysboro or Carbondale Senior Citizens Center, or any home health agency or the Jackson County Ambulance Service.

Richmond plans education reform conference

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

A conference on education reform and school improvement will be held Saturday in Davis Auditorium, located in the Wham Education Building.

State Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, is sponsoring the conference. It is scheduled from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Anyone interested in the state's education policy is welcome to attend. No prior registration is required.

According to a press release, Richmond said he arranged the conference to provide a public forum for his constituents to address and react to "the numerous issues confronting our schools today."

Similar conferences have been and are being held around the state at the request of House Speaker Michael Madigan. Among the issues Richmond said he expects to be discussed are student and teacher performance, the state's role in upgrading educational standards and efforts to provide more resources for needed school improvements.

The conference will include two panel discussions. One will focus on teacher preparation and certification and the other on policy and curriculum guidelines.

"This conference is designed to provide local input and participation in shaping state education policy," Richmond said. "The collective efforts of parents, teachers, administrators and lawmakers are vital to help determine the direction of our schools."

Public relations chapter receives Midwest award

The SIU-C Public Relations Student Society of America chapter has received the 1985 PRSSA Midwest District Outstanding Chapter Award.

The chapter is sponsored by the St. Louis professional chapter of the Public Relations Society of America and is supported by the public relations specialization in the Department of Speech Communication.

SIU-C PRSSA chapter president Dawn Rizzo explained that the chapter submitted a 24-page proposal describing the chapter's development and accomplishments this school year in areas such as fund raising, special events, membership, professional development and other operational functions.

Rizzo noted that judges were particularly impressed with the Levi Strauss 501 Jeans account which Pyramid Public Relations Agency, PRSSA's student-run agency, handled last semester.

As one of only 14 student agencies chosen from across the nation to participate in the project, Pyramid designed a 501 Jeans publicity campaign directed toward the SIU-C student body.

The PRSSA Midwest District Conference held Feb. 22-24 in Des Moines, Iowa, included competition from all PRSSA chapters on university and college campuses throughout the Midwest.

Allan B. Azevedo did not work as an assistant professor at the SIU-C Vocational Technical Institute, now the School of Technical Careers, from October 1972 to May 1983, as stated in the Daily Egyptian on Wednesday.

Azevedo was employed by the University in 1971 and resigned in 1973, said Harry G. Miller, dean of STC.

Telpro will offer video competition

Telpro, the student television and radio production company, is sponsoring an SIU Video Contest.

Video productions made by students will be judged in the categories of entertainment, news, sports, PSA-commercial, instructional, and public affairs.

Rules and applications are available at the Radio-TV Department in the Communications Building. Tapes must be entered before March 31.

Contest winners and runners-up will be notified in May, and will receive certificates of recognition for outstanding video productions.

Math competition will be at Arena

Southern Illinois' high school mathematics students will compete in an exam grid Saturday at the SIU Arena.

SIU's 28th annual Mathematics Field Day will draw students from 53 high schools for team and individual scoring competitions.

The contest was created to recognize high school students for outstanding abilities.

Flirtatious fashions accenting femininity best bets for spring

By Kim DuShane

It's a women's spring. Spring 1985 is one of the most flirtatious seasons in years.

Proportions are quite exaggerated - duster jackets over skin-hugging minis, tummy-taunting boleros and even super-tight tunics.

Bold patterns of jungle florals, geometric shapes and delicate prints are mixed together.

The only hint of a man's wardrobe is the outrageously oversized shirt from his side of the closet, a must for spring.

A concentration on femininity is due to the rebound from tailored men's-style suits this past fall. Five basic concepts are popping up: short, shirt, shape, pattern and print.

ANY LAYERS draped around the body will make the wearer appear more slender. And body conscious shapes are a personal dramatic statement.

Sportswear for spring is short, flirtatious and fun, from short, hugging skirts to deep-plunged tops. Leather, suede and crisp cottons blended with denim mix beautifully.

Short, narrow skirts show off the leg, as do the new full walking shorts. Variety is the key.

Shoulders have a special place in sportswear, being proud and strong at one moment or soft and feminine the next.

ACTIVE CLOTHES are a college woman's favorite, with accents of bold colors and strong prints.

The fun is in creating your own look. Mixing bold over-sized sweatshirts with striped tights is a real emotional statement, or on warmer days, a huge

T-shirt worn as a dress with a pair of flat sandals.

Swimwear has become a statement of how body conscious we are. Many parts have been cut out of suits to force the eye to focus on body parts.

One-piece swimsuits are flattering and sexy this spring, and the only reason to buy a two-piece is for an almost all-over tan. Leather look-alikes, leopard prints and zipper scuba style suits will be seen at the pool.

Neon colors and black are the wildest combination this season, and will show off a tan.

Wild squiggles and geometric shapes also cover the swimwear scene.

THREE NEW SUIT ideas for 1985 are the three-piece suit by Norma Kamali, a bikini with a flared micro-mini overskirt made of the same fabric; a tanning suit, with fabric that allows you to tan directly through the suit; and the wet suit, which is one color when dry, but get it wet and deeper shades of designs and prints appear.

Some favorite designers and manufacturers are extremely matchable.

Georges Marciano uses the basics of denim and whites, and a whole new creation is explored. From faded, crushed tight jeans to over-sized jackets and shirts, Marciano shows the true rugged look.

ANOTHER SPRING fashion leader is Esprit Sport. Esprit uses bold colors and basic over-sized patterns which work well for a quick pack and long weekend.

SPRING: Feminine fashion flirts

Gitano has a simple nautical look. Navy and white are summer classics, and Gitano makes them beautifully. A part of the collection loved most are their short, puffed shorts with a double-breasted blouson.

The dressy day look is a large part of an active woman's life, and comfort is important.

Ralph Lauren, Calvin Klein, and Perry Ellis American with Levi Strauss, all have created lines with long full skirts and big shirts. The shirts go everywhere, whether plain or printed, oversized or short. Try one over a basic black mini.

BARE MIDRIFTS came out last summer under the torn T-shirts of the "FLASHdance" look. This year, many tops are available with detail to show off your tummy. Those hours of working out can be emphasized from a full-length, duster jacket cut short in front.

With the body "in," backs and shoulders are also showing up in unusual places. A tunic hooked at the nape of the neck leaves the vest open.

Also, you can find deep asymmetrical patterns cut out of the back.

Creative artwork and words in print also have a small market in this season's buying.

Other accents are with pastels of cocoa, mauve, pale blue or peach. These colors work well with symmetrical stripes and polka dots, also used for small geometric shapes.

SUBTLE COLORS work well for a more sophisticated afternoon look.

For evening, razzle-dazzle is out, and in its place we find pure radiant femininity. For formal graduation parties or fraternity and sorority functions, dressing up is very stylish. The less hoop the better, though, and a full slip is used to enhance the drape, not a hoop which creates the shape. Too much frill is out — elegance is the key.

Taffeta and silks are perfect for looking your best.

This spring, Gunne Sax is showing gold lame to ingenu white lace. Colors to watch for include black, white, pastel peach and lemon yellow.

FOR THE COLLEGE graduate, there are more streamlined dresses. Beading and sequins are beautiful accents to a dress. Look for long and lean, with length about five inches above the ankle.

Fun accents include large rhinestone earrings, and a matte or pearlized lipstick. Short, black cape jackets are perfect for the evening chill. Silk, satin or taffeta wrapped and pleated around the hips and waist show femininity.

For your hair, just sweep it back off your face and let bangs tousle free, full and natural.

Clothes reflect men's active lives

By Corey Peterson

Menswear is changing to fit the young men who are active in sports and business and serious about their playtime and leisure.

The change in contemporary and classic looks are strong reactions to acceptance of new fabrics, detail of design and the influence of outside sources.

Fabrics are important this year because of technical advances in the textile industry, and insurge of natural fibers and a need for excitement in color and fabric detail.

BETTER BLENDS of fibers and synthetic fabrics such as polyesters that feel like cotton, rayons like linen and polyurethane resembling leather and suede have brought versatility to fabric options as well as lower cost and easier care.

Natural fibers are re-emerging in new blends for yarns that dye, print, weave and knit into a variety of contemporary fabrics. The naturals include cotton and wool, along with a new appeal for linen and raw silk, and newcomers ramie, blax and viscose.

THESE FIBERS add a crispness to texture, durability to wearing and comfortable feel for casual and active dressing.

Advances in dyeing and color development have led to a brighter array of color choices from soft pastel plaids, brights on charcoal and blacks, and a new craze for neons in activewear. Printing has caused a trend in nostalgic design with Hawaiian, graffiti and collage motifs as well as abstracts, stripes and solids.

BUSINESS AND casual suits are now enjoying mixes of colors and patterns never before acceptable in suiting.

Important suitmakers for men in business are Alexander Julian with his "Colours" lines and the sporty

European designers Raffinati and Daniel Hechter. Classic mainstays such as Hart Schaffner & Marx, Austin Reed and Ralph Lauren's Polo University Club offer traditional looks with standards of navy, pinstriping and camels or tans.

ALTHOUGH CLASSICS are staples of men's fashion, there is a need for something new as a result of change in the lifestyles of today's young men. Classics such as the polo and sweater vest are adapting with new colors, patterns, knit combinations and piece details.

A need for individuality has led to an insurge of detailing and intrusion of private labels for a look that's different and personal.

A major impression on men's sportswear is maximum use of piece detail in design, such as combinations of leather, denim and sweatshirting.

LAST YEAR'S fads brought zippers and snaps in new places. Sometimes functional, but more often non-functional, these notions in detail were certainly eye-catching and offered less than traditional composition.

Now more aware of fashion's possibilities, men are looking for the contemporary trend that gives more sophistication, but still lends itself to the conservative tradition.

Even so, tradition has become one of America's greatest new fashion influences. Men's suits are seeing a return to traditional British tailoring for style, sophistication, fit and quality, yet are mixed with contemporary fabrics showing progression, creativity and ease.

THE CASUAL design of the polo shirt, the sweater vest and the pleated pant are re-emerging classics, but with a different twist of style. Polos from Alexander Julian are splashed with geometric shapes of brilliant color on black backdrops or streaked with multicolored stripes in hues new to American design.

Sweater vests from Generra and Adam Sloane now sport argyle arrangements that are knitted as well as printed and mix rib knits with broadcloth, sweatshirting with denim. Pleated pants from Moustache or Union Bay have added fullness, placing them somewhere between fitted and baggies.

ALONG WITH tradition is a re-emergence of nostalgia. For spring, the trend includes a potpourri reminiscent of customs from the 50s, defiance of the 60s and individuality of the 70s.

Sportswear now flaunts the graffiti, stripe patterns and paisley prints of the 50s, the Hawaiian and surfer style garb of the 60s, and the unique detail influences of the 70s such as asymmetrical closures and flashy polished fabrics.

OTHER MAJOR influences stem from the need for individuality and excitement brought on by the male awareness of what clothing can do. Private labels from Japan like code bleu or India's Shah Safari offer the influence of other cultures. Europe also has a constant influx of contemporary style and design from the British new wave movement, to the Italian "at ease" casual look.

Accessories can enhance a variety of looks

By Laura Colett

Accessories are the fastest way to turn a head or change a look this season.

For spring, accessories range from flirtatious and provocative to simple, spare and subtle, in a variety of colors and designs.

It could be the flirty dangle of a frosty pink earring, the assertiveness of a sailor cap or the elegance of a wrapped silk scarf held with a simple, bold brooch, but whatever the character, these accessories subtly accent the fashion trends for spring with a light touch.

THE BIG NEWS this season is scarves. They appear with a more sophisticated sense of design in big squares and oblongs of cotton and silk. Of course, they are laden with prints of every kind: modern "artsy" prints, graffiti, calligraphy letters mixed with dots, spectator stripes, bold graphics, grids, nautical symbols, doodles, color splashes, confetti and abstract patterns, and even silk screen photo images.

And don't forget the florals. Bold and brassy or traditional and quiet, any type of flowers will do.

Fabrics include lace, silk and satin. Chiffon makes a comeback for the play on femininity in oversized pale oblongs and bias ties. Silk shantung is used in the oblong, done in bright plaids and prints.

or knees. Even hats are wrapped with them.

Accessories that give fashion a livelier twist begin with color, and there are plenty to choose from. Brights range from raspberry to lime green and brilliant yellow. Many off-beat colors are cropping up, such as muted chartreuse, faded coral red or orange sherbet. Anything goes, from flushed creamy pink to shamrock green.

Hats are one of the fun finds of the season. The looks are many, designed to suit every mood, from romantically feminine or spunky and whimsical to the nautical look. There are demure asymmetrical brims that swoop up on one side and updated softer-looking fedoras for the feminine flair.

STRAW HATS come in various shapes and sizes: seductive-looking, with a big brim that hides the face, and medium brims with netting for a more delicate look. Fezes give an exotic effect, and Italian sailor caps and berets provide a sporty spectator feel. Cloches with big bows and novelty hats will also be seen.

LOOKS: Accessories enhance has unmistakable character in pieces strong enough to stand alone. A strong wrist and ear are key focal points.

Cuffs are back, wide and bold, but bangles are on the back shelf for spring.

Large, geometric earrings will make an impact in black or silver color. Whittened neons arise for tropical accents, and navy and white with yellow as a new contrast for the nautical effect.

NECKLACES extend to extremes, either long or short. Along with the paler hues of spring, a frosted look in jewelry will be popular, revealing an opalescent and mother-of-pearl look. Frosting is mixed with pearls and clear or pastel crystal beads. Metals will be paled and creamy, and pins will be a hot item, featuring anything related to the sea.

Stockings are another accessory emphasizing a trend of the season the "leggy" look. Hosiery, in general, is sheerer but comes in all intensities from a whisper-pale to hot brights. Misty blue, seafoam and lemon ice pastels cover the paler side, while turquoise, fuschia, orange and char- treuse neons play up the racier side.

A NEW SHIMMER will reflect the opalescent look in jewelry. Sheer lace is the romantic way to cover the leg. Texture is still important, but sheerer and more delicate, incorporating things such as rosettes, fishnets, diamonds and brush strokes. Prints are very much alive with graffiti brush strokes and paint splashes, either all over or just in front. Anklets and sport socks are still a key part of this season's accessories, but in the new pale or bright colors in open crochet looks. Lace or lace trim will be used often, with pretty cuffs updating sports socks.

IN SHOES, flats are still being influenced by menswear, but appear in soft supple leathers with dainty details. Pretty tones such as apricot, sky blue, lemon, coffee, and yes, even florals make them more feminine. Sandals are strappier than ever.

ON THE DRESSIER side are shoes in sleek, racy shapes. Textures range from soft smooth suede to high relief-embossed looks. The new femininity is epitomized with provocative embellishments such as outsize bows and vamps that have an old-fashioned curl. High heels are back, stronger and more open. The shaped slingback is taking the place of the all-around pump.

A mixing of textures adds distinctive look to women's fashions

By Laura Collet

This season, maybe more than ever, basics are taking the lead role in the production of the major designs for 1985.

Menswear's presence is still prevalent, but it has faded into the background to make way for a new light style that brings about a new look in femininity.

The key words this season are pure and romantic. They bring a whole new range of colors, textures and patterns to the fabric.

The mixing of patterns and textures is also a distinctive part of the spring arena. Inspirations come from as diverse backgrounds as 18th century painters to the Old West. Clearly, a wide variety of fabrics are being used.

MANY LIGHTWEIGHT wools are being offered this spring. They add a new dimension to an all-year wardrobe. They range in price from $12 to $18 a yard.

These new midweight wools make perfect unlined coats that can be layered into fall and make convenient clothes for travel. Also, attention is drawn to the surface texture of these wools. Raised self stripes and deep diagonals add to the visual pleasure of the fabric.

LINENS ARE still abundant and popular. Whether they are used naturally or updated with patterns and added luster, they are being seen in long duster coats, new skirt and blouse combinations, and the always present spring linen suit.

Pure linen yarn-dyed suitings feature effects and patterns such as checkerboards, houndstooth and stripes with some new pastel colors, all with a new luster. The linens run about $12 a yard.

Linen and cotton are the blends to watch this spring. The fabric works well for blouses, skirts and lightweight dresses during summer's hotter months. The fabrics cost from $10 to $12 a yard.

EVEN WITH ALL the pastels, brights are not to be overlooked. There is a full range in linens, from a bright red-orange and fuschia to a deep indigo blue.

Fabrics such as crepe and jersey are being manipulated to epitomize the new femininity being played upon this season and also for the new wrapping of the body that may be coming from the influence of India.

Heavy silk crepe and silk shantung, about $18 a yard, are used to mix a sense of the feminine, while still holding the desired silhouette. These show up mostly in dresses with fullness at the top — particularly at the shoulders — and tapering down to emphasize the hips, or relaxed with a dropped seam and low pockets. These play up the feminine form in provocative new shapes and lengths.

LACE IS becoming prettier, more refined and sometimes crops up in unexpected places. Evening fabrics are being used for daywear. Fabrics such as organza, charmeuse and taffeta are taking the form of lightweight overcoats and dusters.

A significant introduction into this season's fabric line is upholstery material, especially chintz, which brings about the florals that are seen anywhere and everywhere.

BLOUSES, SKIRTS and pants look like they have been snatched directly from grandma's sofa — with chrysanthemums, lilies and rosebuds everywhere. It is a look derived directly from 18th century painters that brings to mind the inside of English country homes. Perhaps it is brought about through the new surge of British traditionalism.

There are big florals and delicate ones, pastels and brights, used by themselves or in perky combinations with other prints. So for spring 1985, it looks like "everything's coming up roses."

COMING ON even stronger than last season is the idea of mixing textures and patterns. This combination adds a novel twist to any wardrobe. While florals are leading the way, there is a note of surprise when mixed with the new plaids and stripes. Prints with one coordinating element are being allowed to mix with each other for an exciting look.

The look of the Old West also uses mixes of patterns and fabrics. By mixing suede and linen with a dash of florals and stripes with jeans, the whole look comes together with a "feminine cowboy" appearance that has a rugged but flirtatious feel.

BIG, BOLD plaids are placed with small stripes and daisies for an effective whimsical look. These are fun fabrics and mixes that belong in a season like spring.

For cotton, the fabric costs from $4 to $8 a yard and about $12 a yard for silk-cotton blends.

The bold graphic prints cannot be forgotten either. Strong space-related geometrics are making the most of neutrals and color, and many have the modernistic approach of splashes of color on the fabric.

Color this season runs the gamut from bright neons to subdued pastels, always having a general brightness about them.

Navy moves in like a lion, trying to take the place of basic black. Red is the basic color to have. It becomes the pivotal color.

Fewer sew at home now, says owner of fabric store

Creating one's own clothes by sewing at home is still an option for some people, though fewer people are now taking the time to sew.

Pat Rayfield, owner of A Special Place, a fabric store in the K-mart Plaza in Carbondale, said that though there are "not nearly as many" people sewing as there were 20 or 30 years ago, some people are still buying fabric to make their own clothing.

She said they sew because "you can fit yourself properly at a lower price, and you can have whatever you want."

But with more women working, the number who sew their own clothes is decreasing, she said. High school and college women don't seem to be as interested in sewing as they were in the past either, she said.

Dorothy Gannon, manager of Jo Ann Fabrics, said that though she has not been in the business long enough to compare business now with 20 years ago, she has actually seen an increase in fabric sold in the last year or so.

"People sewed more last year than the year before and so far this year it appears that the trend is continuing," she said.

She said there may be several reasons behind this trend. For one thing, pattern companies are becoming more "fashion conscious." Also with better economic conditions in the last year people have more money to expand their wardrobes, she said.

She also said because women often need to increase their wardrobe when they work, they may make more clothing for themselves or have it made for them. They are not as likely to make their children's clothing as before.

She said she has noticed more young people sewing, including young men.

"Our store is one of a 600-plus chain, and that continues to grow, so the market is still quite good for what we're doing."

Sue Ridley, Clothing and Textiles Department faculty member, said she did not know whether more people in general are sewing, but she did know that more students are majoring in clothing and textiles and more non-majors are taking electives in the department.

She said enrollment in the department's clothing construction class has doubled since last semester.

Sheriff keeps promise of increased training

By Jane Grandolfo
Staff Writer

Some might have thought they were finished with school after graduating from the law enforcement academy. But officers of the Jackson County Sheriff's Department are just beginning.

In 1984, the officers received 3,002 hours of training. In 1985 they will probably receive more.

Sheriff William Kilquist views the increased officer training program as honoring his 1982 campaign promise. "The officers were so starved for training, I made an election promise that I would try to mandate 60 hours of training per officer each year," Kilquist said.

In-house training, using a recently purchased video cassette recorder, has proven to be the "biggest bang for the buck," Kilquist said. The Sheriff's Department's $8,500 annual training budget leaves little money for officers to travel out of state for training sessions.

"You can hit more people with in-house training. Outside training is more expensive," he said.

Some of the areas that officers are becoming versed in are traffic accident reconstruction, interview and interrogation, courtroom security, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, and Identi-Kit — a technique that aids victims and law enforcement officials in constructing from memory a picture of the offender.

Kilquist said the department's 15 road officers are reluctant to train in "gray areas" such as human relations, but traditionally like to learn new skills, such as building search and shooting techniques.

"There are times these guys really don't feel they need things like aggression management or oral communications training," he said, "but some of the training is mandatory — there are no excuses."

Every attempt is made to make training sessions convenient. Tapes are available for viewing during slow shifts and officers are paid overtime to come in on their days off, Kilquist said.

Occasionally the Jackson County State's Attorney will record new laws and procedures for officers to view on tape, he said.

Training should be an ongoing process that is essential to combatting crime, Kilquist said. "Society is changing so quick and criminals are learning so fast it's becoming harder and harder to provide services. Increased training can certainly help."

As far as Kilquist is concerned, not just patrol officers need training. Jail officers have received training on security techniques, clerical workers have taken computer classes and even cooks have taken classes to become certified food handlers.

The money spent on training is well invested, Kilquist said. "I think it's shown in the amount of crimes we've solved and the services we've given Jackson County."

Officers may receive intangible benefits as well. "Training really helps their morale," he said.

With the 1984 training taken into account, the department now has 12 officers trained in the use of Identi-Kit, 10 qualified in breath alcohol testing, and four with advanced training in traffic accident analysis, reconstruction and DUI management.

Goals for 1985 include stepped-up firearms training, realistic building search-traffic stop training, and increasing the department's skills in photography, management and survival techniques, Kilquist said.

Michael Redgrave dies; was head of acting family

LONDON (AP) — Sir Michael Redgrave, the British film and stage actor and patriarch of the Redgrave acting dynasty, died Thursday. He was 77 and had been suffering from Parkinson's disease for 12 years.

Redgrave died at The Nursing Home at Denham in the county of Buckinghamshire west of London, said his agent Anne Hutton. His son, Corin, was at his bedside when he died, she said.

Redgrave, one of the most accomplished actors of a generation that includes Sir Laurence Olivier and Sir John Gielgud, starred in dozens of plays and movies.

Illness had kept him off the stage since the 1970s, but in 1983 he published his autobiography, "In My Mind's Eye."

Vanessa Redgrave's daughters by director Tony Richardson, Joely and Natasha Richardson, carry on the acting tradition.

Abortion rights leader tells pro-choicers to speak up

By Jeff Cull
Staff Writer

The surge of conservatism in politics and society is "whittling away" at women's rights and makes it especially important for pro-choicers to speak up, said Barbara Moore, state coordinator of the Religious Coalition For Abortion Rights.

Moore, whose organization is made up of over 30 religious groups, spoke Tuesday at a meeting of the Southern Illinoisians For Choice. The group recently formed in response to 32 physicians at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale who want the hospital to drop its policy of performing abortions.

Moore said that since abortion was legalized by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1973, women have taken their rights for granted. In addition, since abortion is such an emotional subject, pro-choicers are often hesitant to express their views, and lawmakers consider it "political suicide."

Pro-choicers should be wary because anti-abortionists have, over the last few years, been successful in passing laws which have made it harder for women to have abortions, Moore said.

For example, Medicaid recipients, Peace Corp volunteers and family members of military personnel used to receive financial help for abortions, but now they don't unless the woman's life is in danger, Moore said.

She said Medicaid recipients and Peace Corp volunteers are low income individuals who especially need financial help.

Pro-choice legislators are sponsoring a bill called the Reproductive Health Equity Act, now in the U.S. House of Representatives. The bill would reinstate abortion benefits to the above groups and others.

Moore said there are dozens of pro-life bills and riders to bills introduced in the state and national legislatures each year which aim to change the focus of abortion from a women's rights issue to a fetal issue.

One example of pro-lifers' attempts to decrease women's rights is the introduction of bills which would require women under the age of 18 to have parental consent before having an abortion, Moore said.

She said this would mean more women would wait until the second or third trimester of their pregnancy before deciding to have an abortion, instead of in the first trimester, when an abortion is safer.

Moore said what should particularly worry pro-choicers is President Reagan's vow to appoint a pro-life person to the U.S. Supreme Court if one of the current justices resigns or dies. The current court majority is 5 to 4 in favor of pro-choice, Moore said. If Reagan has the chance to replace a pro-choice justice, the majority would be on the pro-life side.

Marion students may repeat vaccines

MARION (AP) — Students in this Southern Illinois town may have to repeat the painful process of immunization because records of their shots are poorly documented, school officials said Thursday.

A recent Illinois Department of Public Health audit found numerous cases in which immunization records were incomplete, inaccurate or otherwise failed to meet state requirements, said District Superintendent A.C. Storme.

"The problem is really not one of not being immunized," Storme said. "It's a matter of their records not being accurate or not being what the Public Health people want."

"For example, a child might have had a measles shot, but the doctor would not put down the day of the month. June 1975 isn't enough. They (state officials) want to know the day in June of 1975."

As a result, he said, students have until April 26 to get their records in order or risk being barred from class. A free immunization clinic was scheduled for April 23 for those who could not provide complete, accurate immunization records, he added.

The superintendent said the situation is not unique to Marion.

Carter wins heavyweight intramural wrestling title

By Stan Goff
Staff Writer

Gary Carter of the Happy Hindus defeated Tyrone Simpson of the Quitters in the heavyweight class of a wrestling meet sponsored by the SIU-C intramural sports program March 7, helping the Happy Hindus finish first in the team standings.

The Hindus won six of the nine weight classes and finished second at two other weights to easily outscore the second-place Quitters 64-28. The Few placed third with 21 points, and Delta Chi finished fourth with 7 points.

John Field of the Happy

Hindus defeated The Few's Rob Murren in the 178-190 pound class final, while the Happy Hindus' Ted Bessette won at 168-177 over John Miller. Rick Reinecke, Don Caudle and Stacy Van Horn also won for the Happy Hindus, with Graig Nickell and Mike Loneragan finishing second for the team champions.

Tom Miller at 151-158 was the lone member from The Few to finish first, as he defeated Don Kush in the finals. John Zimmerman (127-134) joined Simpson as the two Quitters finishing second.

George Schultz beat Nickell for the title at 159-167, and Don Dolwick topped Ghassan Abdullah in the 135-142 final. Scott Grammer finished as runner-up to Van Horn in the 119-126 division.

The intramural office will accept entries up until noon on Friday for a swim meet to be held at the Student Recreation Center on Saturday. The meet will involve both individual and team competition.

The intramural basketball championship games will played at Davis Gymnasium beginning Monday night of next week and concluding on Thursday night.

Men's rugby club set to battle Springfield

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

The SIU-C rugby club will open its home schedule on Saturday when it hosts the Springfield club in a 1 p.m. contest at the rugby pitch behind Abe Martin Field.

It will be fan appreciation day, and free refreshments will be available for all persons in attendance.

The SIU-C team is 0-1 after losing its season opener to Western Kentucky at Bowling Green, Ky., earlier this month. The club's back line didn't play well in that contest, but team captain Dan O'Neil expects the unit to perform better against Springfield.

"We plan on the backline running together and having a better game," O'Neil said. "They've had a chance to practice together."

The backline players for the team are Mike Kerr, John Cona, John Broadland, Bill

Danielak, Mike Sheridan and Mike Rickerson.

The return of John Hefernan and Bill Svetlik should also help the team, O'Neil said. The pair missed the team's season-opening game.

"That kind of hurt us at Western Kentucky, not having those guys," O'Neil said. "We look forward to them playing against Springfield."

Springfield will be a tough opponent, O'Neil said. The team placed second in the Pensacola (Fla.) Rugby Tournament last week.

O'Neil said the contest would also be a "grudge match" because Chris Burger, the coach for the SIU-C team last season, is now playing for Springfield.

The SIU-C B team will also be in action. The club is 1-0 after defeating Western Kentucky 10-7. Joe Dietrich was the top player for SIU-C in that game, as he scored all of the team's points.

Men's tennis team wants to end losing streak

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

The men's tennis team will attempt to get back on the winning track this weekend when it travels to West Lafayette, Ind., to battle Purdue in a dual meet on Saturday and then return home to face Illinois-Chicago in a dual meet on Sunday.

The Salukis ended their six-match spring training trip last week by losing four consecutive matches. SIU-C, 4-9, will be trying to end the streak. But Coach Dick LeFevre said he was not disappointed by his team's performance on the spring trip.

"We look at our spring trip

as a training trip which will prepare us for the outdoor season," LeFevre said. "If we can come out of there winning anything, we feel we're ahead

The Salukis opened the trip by gaining a pair of 5-4 victories over Central Florida Community College and South Florida. SIU-C won all three doubles matches to overcome Central Florida, and got a solid performance from No. 1 singles player Per Wadmark to defeat South Florida.

Wadmark defeated a nationally-ranked player in singles competition and teamed with Rollie Oliquino to win at No. 1 doubles.

The Saluki losing streak began when they were defeated by Florida 8-1. The No. 3 doubles team of Chris Visconti and Scott Krueger was the only winner for SIU-C.

The Salukis left Florida for South Carolina following the match, but had no better luck there. Furman beat SIU-C 8-1 at Charleston S.C., and the No. 3 doubles team was again the only winner for SIU-C.

The Salukis lost 5-4 to the College of Charleston the following day. SIU-C ended its trip at Georgia, where the Bulldogs blanked the Salukis 9-0. Georgia is ranked sixth nationally.

LeFevre said he didn't know much about Purdue, although the Boiler makers beat Evansville 9-0 this year. SIU-C defeated the Purple Aces by a 6-3 score.

The match against Illinois-Chicago will be the Salukis' first outdoor meet of the year. The Salukis were scheduled to host Tennessee-Martin Wednesday, but the match has been postponed until April 24.

SALUKI NOTES: The No. 1 doubles team of Wadmark and Oliquino have broke into the Top 40 ratings of the nation's doubles teams. The tandem finished in a tie for 32nd with a team from Texas A & M in this week's ratings, LeFevre said. The team has an 8-4 record this season.

"It's pretty tough to get into these ratings so I think it's a nice accomplishment," LeFevre said.

Wadmark is also playing well of late at his No. 1 singles position, LeFevre said. He lost his first three singles matches of the season, but has built a 6-6 record since then.

Lars Nilsson, the Salukis' No. 7 singles player, play at Purdue on Saturday and host Illinois-Chicago on Sunday. The Salukis will execute a backhand volley.

Seaver gains 15th opening day starting assignment

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Three-time Cy Young Award-winner Tom Seaver, already a familiar entry in major league baseball's record books, will merit a new line April 9 when the Chicago White Sox right-hander makes his 15th opening-day start.

Manager Tony LaRussa on Thursday named Seaver his opening-day pitcher against the Milwaukee Brewers.

"He was our winningest pitcher last year and nobody threw more effectively," LaRussa said. "Plus, he's throwing free and easy this spring."

The 40-year-old Seaver, who made his American League debut last season with Chicago, will break the major league record for opening-day starts he now shares with legendary fastballer Walter Johnson. Both men pitched 14 openers.

Seaver posted a 15-11 mark with the White Sox and led the staff in shutouts with four. He begins 1985 just 12 wins shy of the coveted 300-victory plateau.

"Anytime you do something greater than a pillar of the game like Walter Johnson, it's very rewarding," said Seaver, who put in lengthy stints with the New York Mets and Cincinnati Reds before joining the White Sox.

"But you must keep it in perspective," he said. Even though I'm highest among active pitchers with 60 shutouts, I'm still 53 behind Walter Johnson."

Seaver drew 10 straight opening-day assignments with the Mets from 1968-77 and came back to open the 1983 season for New York after being reacquired in a trade. He started the 1978, 1979 and 1981 contests for Cincinnati.

Men golfers hope to finish fifth at EKU Invitational

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

SIU-C Coach Darren Vaughn hopes the Saluki men's golf team finishes in the top five in the Eastern Kentucky Invitational to be played at Richmond, Ky. March 22 and 23.

The Salukis will need to overcome early season problems to do well in the 54-hole event. Foremost is the mental game, Vaughn said.

"I hope they all keep their heads and don't let one bad shot disturb their games. When you hit a bad shot, the key to golf is to forget it and go on," Vaughn said.

The Salukis have not had much time to practice since the last tournament played in Florida. Although they were able to hold qualifying rounds at Crab Orchard Golf Club, Vaughn is concerned.

"We've needed to get a few more practice rounds in to try and get a better feel for the game," Vaughn said.

Another problem will be experience. The Salukis who qualified for the trip will have their first look at the Richmond course in a Friday practice round, and even Vaughn has not played the course before.

"I don't think anybody's played the course yet, so we'll go out kind of blind," Vaughn said.

SIU-C will be represented by sophomores Jay Sala, John Harp and Bobby Pavelonis. Seniors J.D. Tomlinson and Boyd Watson will also compete.

"I expect J.D. to play well.

He hit the ball well in the last tournament, so if he can putt and chip well, he'll do fine," Vaughn said.

This will be Watson's first tournament appearance as a Saluki.

"He's level headed, but it's tough to say how he'll do because some people play the same in practice as they do in tournaments. Others play better in one than the other. I've watched him play, and he hits the ball well, but I'll just have to wait and see how he does in tournament play," Vaughn said.

Taking different players to the competition may also effect the scores, Vaughn said.

"Just the makeup of the team might change how they think. When you get used to playing with the same guys all the time, you know what to expect," Vaughn said.

Vaughn believes his team has the potential to make the top five, but it will depend on controlling the mental aspects of the game.

"I hope they all shoot par, but I can't say for sure. I do have good expectations that hopefully we'll do better than the last tournament and finish in the top five. We've got to go out with the attitude to play better mentally and then just see how we finish," Vaughn said.

Vaughn did not receive any information as to the number of schools in the field, but thought some of the schools the Salukis competed against in the Sunshine Invitational are also entered.

Women gymnasts pursue NCAA bid

By Stan Goff
Staff Writer

Saturday's dual meet at the University of Missouri will be the final opportunity for the SIU-C women's gymnastics team to nail down one of the six invitations to the NCAA Central Regionals.

The Salukis, 7-9, lost to the Tigers last month at the Arena, but Coach Herb Vogel isn't concerned about winning or losing at this stage of the season.

"Winning doesn't matter for either team in this meet. We're just looking to score well and, in all likelihood, we must score 180 or higher to go to the regionals," Vogel said.

The Salukis are currently in a heated race with Illinois and Illinois State for the sixth and final invitation to the regional meet on March 30 at Tuscaloosa, Ala. ISU's average score of 179.50 is just ahead of SIU-C's 179.22 and the Illini's 179.12. The Redbirds travel to Champaign this weekend to take on Illinois for their final meet of the regular season.

"Illinois just has to replace a low score of 176.10 and apparently both teams will improve their averages, so we'll have to do the same," Vogel said.

If the Salukis fail to qualify for the regionals as a team, three all-around gymnasts stand a good chance to qualify individually. Juniors Lori Steele and Gina Hey and sophomore Michelle Spillman may receive at-large bids to compete at Tuscaloosa.

"Spillman and Steele are pretty much locked in, but they need to improve their averages Saturday to increase their chances for nationals. Hey, on the other hand is marginal. She might have to break 37 to qualify," Vogel said.

Against Southeast Missouri State on March 10, Steele scored a career-high 37.70 as the Salukis captured the top three all-around spots. Spillman scored a 36.65 and Hey a 36.60.

At last week's Gateway Invitational Meet, Steele finished fourth with a 36.00 and Jennier Moore added a 35.90 to place sixth. If the Salukis are to top the 180 mark this week, they'll need another strong performance from Moore to go along with Spillman, Hey and Steele's all-around scores.

"I feel disappointed if we don't get four all-arounders scoring 36 in a meet. It's just a matter of concentration. That's all it is," Vogel said.

SIU-C will also count on additional scoring punch from Margaret Callcott, Maggi Nidiffer and Nancy Sanchez. Callcott, the team captain, scored a 9.55 on the uneven bars against SEMO to tie Spillman for first, while Nidiffer and Sanchez have worked three or four events in each meet since the Salukis suffered injuries to Joanne Oppenheim, Diana Cook and Gretchen Koepf-Baker earlier in the season.

Lonnie Smith awaits decision after altercation with Pallone

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball said Thursday no action would be taken against Lonnie Smith until it reviewed a report on the altercation between the St. Louis Cardinals' outfielder and two umpires during an exhibition game.

Smith was ejected in the ninth inning of Wednesday's 4-1 Cardinal loss to the Boston Red Sox following an argument with American League umpire Larry Young, who ruled that Smith tripped a fly ball in the seventh inning.

Smith and Young went nose-to-nose when Smith took the field in the ninth inning and Smith appeared to bump the umpire. National League umpire Dave Pallone fell to the ground while breaking up the argument.

Katy Feeney, a National League spokeswoman, said the umpire's report on the game had been sent to the league. But because the game was between American and NL teams, she said Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's office would decide whether to fine or suspend Smith.

Chuck Adams, a baseball spokesman, said the commissioner had not yet received the report.

Hatcher, Dayett keys to Cubs' victory over A's

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Rookies Billy Hatcher and Brian Dayett both gotkey hits to lead the Chicago Cubs to an 11-10 come-from-behind victory over the Oakland A's Thursday in Cactus League Exhibition action at HoHoKamPark.

In their second comeback win in two days, the Cubs capitalized on four consecutive Oakland errors in the sixth inning and scored five runs to go ahead 8-6.

After the A's regained the lead with a four-run seventh inning, the Cubs responded with three runs in the bottom of the eighth for the final margin, with Hatcher driving in the game-winning RBI.

Dayett led the Cubs with a 3-for-4 afternoon, including a double and two singles. He also scored two runs. Starting pitcher Rick Sutcliffe was 2-for-2 at the plate with one RBI. Cubs centerfielder Bobby Dernier stole three bases, including a theft of home in the fifth inning.

Reliever Ray Fontenot was credited with the win, and Lee Smith, who took over in the ninth, got the save as the Cubs improved their pre-season record to 13-4. Jay Howell, 0-1, took the loss.

Snooks becomes important figure in men cagers' future

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's basketball program will face a rebuilding year after losing six seniors that formed the nucleus of this season's 14-14 team.

But one of the bright spots returning for the Salukis is junior Tony Snooks, who came on strong late in the season after earning a starting position at forward.

Snooks started the last six games of the season and averaged 9.7 points and 6.3 rebounds to help the Salukis win four out of their last six games and salvage a .500 season.

Through the first 21 games, Snooks averaged only 2.7 points and 2.6 rebounds in a backup role behind foul-pugged center Kenny Perry.

"I THOUGHT I was going to play forward the whole year but eventually I had to play a lot at center," Snooks said. "It was something I really didn't want to do, but I wanted to help the team. When I was playing center, it was like a change in my whole game."

Saluki coach Allen Van Winkle said it took some time for Snooks, a junior college transfer, to adjust to Division I ball.

"WE STARTED him near the end of the season and as the games went on, he continued to play better," Van Winkle said. "He probably played his best games of the year in our last two games against Indiana State and Wichita State."

Snooks scored 12 points and added six rebounds to help the Salukis notch an 85-84 victory over Indiana State. It was SIU-C's only Missouri Valley Conference road victory of the year.

Tony Snooks

Five days later Snooks scored a season-high 14 points and added eight rebounds, matching his season-high, in a 69-66 loss at Wichita State in the first-round of the MVC Post-Season Tournament.

THE WICHITA State game also marked the third time this season that Snooks played against his former high school teammate and All-America forward Xavier McDaniel. Snooks' other teammate at A.C. Flora High School was Tyrone Corbin, who started for three years at DePaul.

Snooks played on the junior varsity team his junior year while McDaniel and Corbin played together on the front line for the A.C. Flora varsity. Snooks moved into the starting lineup his senior year at center-forward and helped Flora win the South Carolina Class 3A State Championship.

After graduating from high school, Snooks said he originally had no intentions of playing college basketball. But he made a last-minute decision and attended Benedict College, an NAIA school in his hometown of Columbia.

BUT AFTER Benedict was put on probation, Snooks transferred to Howard College in Big Spring, Texas. He averaged 12 points and 12 rebounds to help Howard post a 28-4 record before it was eliminated in the junior college regionals by West Texas Junior College.

Snooks said he selected SIU-C over Wyoming, Middle Tennessee State, and Arkansas-Little Rock because he liked the players he met and felt comfortable with Van Winkle's style of basketball.

Many of Snooks' points this season came on tip-ins and by being at the right place at the right time.

"I JUST watch the way the ball bounces," Snooks said. "I really like to play around the basket and I just keep my eye on the ball all the time. If the ball comes off, I try to be there."

Snooks said he was surprised the Salukis only finished .500 this season despite returning all five starters from last year's 15-13 team.

"Not only the rest of the teams in the league improved but we just had a lot of bad luck on the road," he said. "I felt if the officials just went out and let us play a very strong physical game, we would of had a better season."

SNOOKS SAID he hopes Van Winkle continues to coach at SIU-C.

"I sure hope he sticks around because I feel not only he (Van Winkle) made a lot of mistakes, we all made a lot of mistakes," Snooks said. "If he does come back, I think we'll have a great year. If he doesn't come back, I still think we'll have a great year so its a matter of time."

Henderson develops into Brock's base stealing rival

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — It was just about the time that Lou Brock's great career was ending with the St. Louis Cardinals that Rickey Henderson first came to the major leagues.

Brock was waiting to be voted into the Hall of Fame in 1985 as the greatest base stealer the game had ever known, and Henderson was embarking upon a career that he hoped would rival Brock's.

"I came on just at the right time," Henderson said. "Brock was the last of the great base stealers, and I brought base stealing back to life."

In his first partial season in the major leagues, Henderson stole 33 bases in 89 games for the Oakland A's in 1979. It was only a hint of what was to come for the Chicago native who was raised in Northern California.

In each of the next five seasons, Henderson led the American League in stolen bases, three times breaking the 100-stolen base mark and, in 1982, breaking Brock's single-season record of 118 with 130 thefts.

Brock, who retired as a player after 1979, still holds the career mark with 938 stolen bases in 17 major league seasons. In his 5th seasons, the 26-year-old Henderson has 493 stolen bases and will begin adding to that in 1985 as a member of the New York Yankees, to whom he was traded in December.

While currently in a walking cast, Henderson is expected to be healthy in a few weeks. He sprained his left ankle last Sunday while making a sort of half-slide feet-first into third base.

"When I came up, I sort of brought back base stealing as a way to help a team," Henderson said. "Of course, then guys like Tim Lincecum (of Montreal) came behind me, making base stealing a great asset to the game."

Women swimmers fare well at NCAA finals

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

The SIU-C women's swimming team produced some strong efforts in the first day of competition at the NCAA Division I Championships at Tuscaloosa, Ala., Thursday.

Preliminary events were held during the afternoon with the finals scheduled for the evening. At press time only one final event — the 200-yard medley relay — had been completed.

In the 200-yard medley relay, the Saluki quartet of Wendy Irick, Amanda Martin, Lori Rea and Rene Royalty finished second with a time of 1:43.7. Texas won the event with a pool record time of 1:42.21. SIU-C also eclipsed the previous pool record of 1:44.56.

Diver Wendy Lucero also had a good day for the Salukis. After semifinal competition in the 1-meter event, Lucero was in first place with 336.05 points.

The finals for the 1-meter diving competition were held Thursday evening.

Freshman Lori Rea was the only other individual Saluki to reach the finals Thursday. Rea placed third with a time of 54.8 in the 100-yard butterfly preliminaries and finished fifth in the preliminaries of the 50-yard freestyle with a 23.41. The top eight finishers in the preliminaries advance to the finals.

The 800-yard freestyle relay team of Roxanne Carlton, Janie Coontz, Stacy Westfall and Armi Airaksinen also qualified for the finals by placing sixth in the preliminaries with a time of 7:26.14.

Coontz and Carlton reached the consolation finals of the 500-yard freestyle. The swimmers who place ninth through 16th in the preliminaries advance to the consolation finals. Coontz and Carlton tied for 14th in the 500-yard freestyle with identical times of 4:51.42.

Several Salukis failed to qualify for either the finals or consolation finals.

Westfall finished 31st in the 500-yard freestyle with a 4:56.03; Airaksinen placed 26th in the 100-yard butterfly with a 56.67; Irick took 17th place in the 200-yard backstroke with a 2:03.76; and Royalty finished 28th in the 50-yard freestyle with a 24.09.

Hot Salukis ready to face Murray St.

By Stan Goff
Staff Writer

The Salukis will put their hot bats up against Murray State University this weekend in a home-and-home series beginning with a 2 p.m. game at Abe Martin Field on Saturday, and concluding with a 2 p.m. game at Murray, Ky. on Sunday.

SIU-C, 9-7, is hitting .315 as a team and coming off a 17-1 rout of Greenville College on Wednesday, in which it attacked Panther pitching for 17 base hits.

Right fielder Robert Jones, who had struggled in the past week, played a big part in the Salukis win with an RBI single in the first and a towering home run to center field in the sixth.

"Robert's got to get started. We need his hot bat and RBIs in the middle of the lineup. And when he gets going, this will be one of our strongest hitting teams in a while," SIU-C Coach Richard "Tchy" Jones said.

Several Salukis are swinging the bat better than a year ago when SIU-C hit .265 as a team, most notably infielders Jay Burch, Mike Gellinger and Jay Hammond.

Burch is hitting .360 with 11 runs batted in, after driving in 14 runs all of last year while hitting .191. Gellinger has 12 RBIs and is second on the team with an average of .447, after batting .271 with 10 RBIs a year ago. First baseman Hammond has a .282 average and nine RBIs, compared to .179 and three in 1984.

Shortstop Terry Jones, designated hitter Steve Finley, and newcomers Charlie Hillemann, Chuck Verschoore and Gerald Pitchford have all contributed to the Salukis' attack.

Jay Burch is tagged out by Greenville third baseman Pat Flanagan during Wednesday's game. The Salukis will host Murray State on Saturday.

Jones, who hit .312 last year as a freshman, leads the club with 22 hits and a .449 average, and Finley leads the club with 20 RBIs despite missing three games in Florida with a finger injury.

Hillemann, a freshman, is hitting .386 with two home runs and 12 RBIs, while Verschoore, another freshman, has nine RBIs and a .316 mark.

Pitchford came to SIU-C from Belleville Area College, and leads the team with four homers, 19 runs scored and 12 stolen bases. Pitchford stole three bases in the first two innings of the Greenville game and has yet to be thrown out in 12 attempts.

"Running is a big part of our game. We do have enough speed that teams have to think about us on the base paths," Jones said.

Jones is also hoping that the pitching staff will improve on last year's 5.23 earned run average which ranked last in the Missouri Valley Conference. If Wednesday's win is a sign of things to come, Jones will get his wish.

Georgia Tech's second half rally upends Illinois

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Mark Price bombed from outside while Yvon Joseph and John Salley scored inside as sixth-ranked Georgia Tech rode a second-half explosion to a 61-53 victory over No. 12 Illinois in the NCAA East Regional semifinals Thursday night. Georgia Tech broke a 29-29 halftime tie, grabbed a 52-37 lead with 7:02 remaining and withstood Doug Altenberger's outside shooting that brought the Fighting Illini within 55-51 with 1:33 to go.

Georgia Tech, 27-7, will meet the winner of Thursday night's second game between top-ranked Georgetown and No. 14 Loyola of Chicago in Saturday's regional final.

Leading 39-35, Georgia Tech reeled off seven consecutive points, the first five by Joseph and the last two by Salley. After Illinois' Bruce

Douglas sank two free throws to cut the gap to 46-37 with 10:16 to go, the Yellow Jackets took off on a six-point spurt. Salley, who had 14 points, started it with a stuff and Price, who scored 20 points, sank two deep jumpers to give Georgia Tech its biggest lead, 52-37.

The Illini, 26-9, had made 62 percent of its first-half field goal attempts but only three of 12 while Georgia Tech was opening its 15-point advantage.

Altenberger, who led all scorers with 24 points, changed that when he began hitting consistently from the 16- to 20-foot range. He got Illinois' next 14 points, making the score 55-51, before fouling out with 1:25 remaining.

Softball team to battle weather, opponents in Saluki Invitational

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

If the weather permits, the Saluki women's softball team is hoping to improve on a 3-6 record this weekend when it hosts the annual Saluki Invitational.

Six teams, including pre-season Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference favorite Illinois State, are entered in the tournament, which is scheduled for this Friday and Saturday. Other teams include GCAC opponent Indiana State, Ball State, Northern Illinois and Illinois Central College.

The games are scheduled to be played on the intramural baseball diamonds across from the Recreation Center, but the possibility of bad weather has left scheduling plans undetermined. If the games cannot be played there, some games may be moved to the diamonds just south of the tennis courts or east of the Arena.

The Salukis enter the tournament trying to break a four-game losing streak. SIU-C has failed to score during the losing streak, while its opponents have tallied 13 runs.

Junior shortstop-catcher Jenny Shupryt is leading the team in batting with a .357 average. But she has not received any offensive support from her teammates in recent games.

Although the Saluki pitching staff has been giving up runs, the mound corps is greatly improved over last year. SIU-C pitchers have struck out 24 batters in nine games, compared to 41 total strikeouts in 33 games last year. Two freshmen, Lisa Peterson and Kelly Powell have thrown all but two innings for the Saluki's this season.

Peterson has a 1.3 record and a 1.17 earned run average. Powell is 2-3 with a 1.20 ERA.

"Based on their overall team balance, Illinois State probably has to be rated as the tournament favorite," SIU-C coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. "They have the pitching depth this year, which they lacked last year."

Illinois Central College, a junior college, is a quality team which would like to come to the tourney and beat the four-year schools. Brechtelsbauer said ICC has a good chance of advancing to the nationals this year.

For tournament scheduling information, call 536-5566 on Friday. For definite details on Saturday's games, call student information at 453-5351. There is a possibility that all or some of the games could be canceled or rescheduled because of the weather.

The Salukis also have a doubleheader scheduled for 11 a.m. Sunday with Northern Illinois. NIU is led by senior shortstop Amy Veld and pitcher Laurie Miller. SIU-C has not played the Huskies in several seasons because of rainy weather.

The other teams scheduled to compete in the Invitational are not considered to be as strong as Illinois State and ICC.

Ball State is struggling with an 0-8-1 record and Indiana State is in a rebuilding year. The Sycamores are led by shortstop Stacey Pritchard and pitcher Eileen Murdock.
