Legislators focus on campus crime

By Chris Walka and Jackie Spinner
Staff Writers

Rising crime rates at universities nationwide have federal legislators concerned about student safety on college campuses.

U.S. Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Carterville, along with other members of the House Education and Labor Committee are working on a campus safety bill that would require all universities participating in federal student aid programs to make their crime rates public information.

The Crime Awareness and Campus Safety Act would require all universities participating in federal student aid programs to publish crime rates.

University crime not kept secret, officials say

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Federal and state lawmakers want to take a bite out of campus crime by requiring colleges to report campus crime statistics. University officials say they are already doing.

Bills pending in Congress and the Illinois General Assembly establish requirements for reporting campus crimes and publicizing college safety policies.

"We are already doing that," said Garrett Deakin, executive assistant to the chancellor for external relations. "In fact, most universities are probably already reporting campus crime."

The federal legislation would require colleges to have certified campus security policies and report a variety of crimes to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The bill also would mandate that colleges provide a copy of an annual report on campus crime to any student, applicant or employee.

University Director of Security Robert Harris said he and Florida also have enacted similar laws.

"If there wasn't some sort of problem, there wouldn't be the concern," Dave Stricklin, press secretary for Poshard, said.

David Carle, spokesman for Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, said the best path for enactment of the legislation would be to add the bills as amendments to the Higher Education Reauthorization Bill, slated for re-authorization next year.

Stricklin said the crime rates of universities should be included when prospective students and their parents examine colleges.

Stricklin said that in testimony delivered to the committee there

The bill would require colleges to report all incidents of murder, rape, robbery, assault, burglary, theft, arson, drug abuse, alcohol abuse, driving under the influence of alcohol and drugs, weapons possession, and disorderly conduct and vandalism.

Pennsylvania was the first state to adopt the crime-reporting requirements for colleges and universities. Tennessee, Louisiana

Election action

Quinn wins in heated race; Simon, Martin launch initial battery of TV commercials

Daily Egyptian wire services

The Illinois general election campaign was in full swing Wednesday, even before all the votes cast in Tuesday's primary were tallied.

Possibly the most heated race was for the Democratic nomination for state treasurer, which pitted political maverick Patrick Quinn against Rep. Peg Breslin, D-Ottawa.

Breslin conceded to Quinn Wednesday. With 99 percent of the state's precincts reporting, Breslin unofficially trailed Quinn by 17,025 votes, 440,046 to 423,021.

Quinn, a political activist who spearheaded the referendum that cut the size of the Illinois House by one-third, now faces Republican Greg Baise, the state's former transportation secretary.

"I came into the race the underdog," said Breslin, who was slated by the Democratic party. "Pat Quinn ran an aggressive and resourceful campaign. I will be on the campaign trail for him and for the entire Democratic ticket in November."

Breslin was the only statewide slated candidate who lost Tuesday. Sen. Dawn Clark Netsch, slated for the comptroller's nomination, easily turned aside three challengers.

Republican gubernatorial nominee Jim Edgar carried his namesake county handily. Challenger Dr. Robert Marshall, however, finished a poor third in his.

In Edgar County, in east-central Illinois near his home town of Charleston, Edgar racked up 2,874 votes. Conservative challenger Steven Baer got 1,119 votes and Marshall polled 191.

North of Peoria in Marshall County, Marshall garnered only 203 votes, Baer got 867 and Edgar carried the county with 1,267.

In the governor's race, Edgar will face off against Democratic Attorney General Neil Hartigan, who ran unopposed Tuesday.

Victorious statewide candidates wasted no time mobilizing for the general election.

U.S. Rep. Lynn Martin began airing her television ads Tuesday. The moderate Republican faces an uphill battle to unseat Democratic Sen. Paul Simon, who began airing his TV ads on Wednesday.

"We didn't want to waste any time getting our message across," said Simon campaign spokeswoman Ann Roosevelt. She said the campaign theme will be getting across "the really good story Simon has to tell."

Martin said she picked primary night to start her commercials because she needs to increase name recognition against the better-known Simon.

"There's no question. A lot of people have no idea who Lynn Martin is. But I'm getting better known in my party," she said.

Her first advertisement features only Martin, a resident of Loves Park near Rockford — speaking about how she wants to run a campaign without negative televi-

Collective bargaining vote to be taken by AP staffers

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

SIU-C administrative/professional staff members will vote on collective bargaining because a petition was filed with the Illinois Education Labor Relations Board requesting an election before the spring semester ends.

A majority of AP staff members requested the election to certify a union to assist employees in bargaining collectively, David Vitoff, organizer for SIU-C Illinois Education Association-National Education Association, said. The labor board, the University and the IEA-NEA will meet soon to set a date for the election.

"We anticipate an election before the end of the semester," Vitoff said.

Official election notices from the labor board must be posted in all buildings where AP staff work.

The notices, which must be posted 30 days before the election, will include voting hours, campus voting locations and voter

USG votes to centralize polling places

By Rob Cone
Staff Writer

By an 11 to 8 margin the Undergraduate Student Council voted Wednesday night to centralize the polls for the upcoming April 11 election denying both a 1988 and a 1989 voter referendum mandating multiple polling places on the SIU-C campus.

After much discussion on the issue, the council was unable to decide whether the previous voter referendums were meaningless or a mandate. Bill Hall, student trustee, asked, "Does the senate have the power to disallow a referendum?" Hall pointed out that "Those who voted for it, saw it as a poll (and) those who voted it down saw the referendums as a mandate."

Penny Felton, USG senator, said, "I think we should respect the opinion that students want multiple places to vote."

Senator Jack Sullivan, representing Thompson Point, said "I can't get my constituency to go to the Student Center to vote." He added, "I can't support this bill, because I don't think it will improve the turnout."

Tammi Todoroff, head of the USG election commission, said that in the last two election years less than 10 percent of the student

9 Saluki swimmers start tourney today

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

The best of the best, including nine Salukis, will meet today in Indianapolis to compete in the NCAA swimming championships.

SIU-C swimming coach Doug Ingram is optimistic about his swimmers' chances to score at the national meet.

"We're swimming in a fewer number of events than we have in the past couple of years, but I think we have some really high scoring potential in several of them," Ingram said. "This competition is so close. The biggest challenge is just making the qualifying time."

The Salukis qualified four swimmers for individual events and five additional Salukis will compete in relays.

All-American junior Chris Gally will return to the championships to compete in the 100 and 200-yard butterfly events. Gally also is a member of the NCAA qualifying 400 freestyle relay team. He will team with junior David Morovitz, sophomore Deryl Leubner and freshman Brian Gargan to swim the sprint relay.

Junior Eric Bradac will get his second taste of NCAA championship competition as he swims the 500 and 1650 freestyles. Bradac swam his best 500 freestyle time (4:24.57) last year at the NCAA's.

Senior Mark Canterbury received All-American honors last year at the NCAA's and is

MSU officials refute report of steroid use

University higher-ups defend football program

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan State University officials Wednesday refuted a report by the Detroit News that there was widespread steroid use by several members of the Spartans' 1987 Big Ten champion football team.

In a copyright report, the News said as many as seven Spartans may have fooled NCAA testers on the eve of the 1988 Rose Bowl game by using someone else's urine, which they carried in a plastic bag taped inside their armpits and attached to a tube that came out between their legs.

The newspaper said a two-month investigation involving more than 100 interviews with players, parents, police officers and physicians in six states found widespread steroid use during the 1987 season and that the problem, while it may have abated, is by no means gone.

"We know of no widespread drug use in our football program at our university," university spokesman Terry Denbow said at an afternoon press conference.

Denbow said no university official or coach had knowledge of steroid use by football players. "I can't deny anything (in the article) could have happened," he said, "but I'd say it was highly unlikely."

The spokesman pointed out it would have been difficult to dupe testers because all starters were tested twice before the Rose Bowl, including an unannounced testing in California.

"No Spartan tested positive in either of those tests," Denbow said.

"Our drug education treatment and testing programs were formulated by physicians, coaches, trainers and our athletic director," he added. "The system and people are not perfect. Student athletes are not immune to pressures in society today."

"At Michigan State, any coach, any administrator who thinks winning is more important than the health of the student has no place at Michigan State university. The use of steroids or another performance enhancing drug is cheating in the worst way.

Softball pitching staff excels early

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

Many coaches would agree that pitching is a huge percentage of the game in fast-pitch softball. If this is the case the Salukis could end up at the top of the heap.

"Pitching is a big part of fast-pitch softball," SIU-C softball coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. "Any team that has a mediocre hitting and defensive team can be competitive if they have a good pitcher."

Saluki pitchers threw five shutouts while only giving up eight earned runs in SIU-C's 12-game road trip to Florida and Georgia last week. The team went 9-3 during its spring trip.

SIU-C softball pitching coach Gary Buckles was pleased with the performances of his staff.

"I think they did very well," Buckles said. "To be quite honest, I really didn't expect them to perform as well as they did. We could have easily been 11-1."

Sophomore Dede Darnell, a Carbondale native, pitched five shutouts while compiling a 0.44 ERA. Darnell went 4-1 during the spring trip. She shut out Mercer University, Valdosta State, Florida A&M and Miami of Ohio while losing a 3-2 decision to Furman University.

"We have been working very close," Buckles said. "We went over her strong points and took a look at what she needs to work on. Just over the past year, Dede has picked up three to four, maybe even five mph on some of her pitches."

"With Dede we're working on being aggressive. Her motion is very different than most other pitchers and I think that is going to work to her advantage in distracting the hitters."

Darnell's 4-1 performance was matched by junior Lisa Robinson who worked a team-high 35 innings during the spring trip. She threw 15 strikeouts while giving up only four walks. Robinson compiled an era of 0.40 and pitched one shutout.

Robinson blanked Mercer University 3-0 and gained victories over Florida A&M, Connecticut and Nicholls State. She received the losing decision in the 3-1 defeat to Nebraska.

Saluki sophomore pitcher Dede Darnell warms up at practice Wednesday. Darnell was 4-1 with a 0.44 ERA during the Salukis' spring trip to Georgia and Florida.

"Lisa is probably the leader of our staff," Buckles said. "She's been in the program three years and she knows what I expect."

"Lisa is coming on very strong. She has probably one of the best out-curves of anyone that I've ever coached or seen pitch."

The only senior on the Saluki pitching staff is John A. Logan junior college transfer Jennifer Brown.

"Jennifer is a very reliable pitcher," Buckles said. "You can pretty well be sure that whenever you give her a start she will keep you in the ball game. She is pretty well developed, but she still hasn't quite conquered the rise pitch. We're hopefully going to be able to use it this year. It's a very difficult pitch to use effectively."

Brown posted a 1-1 record on the spring trip. She drew one of the Salukis' toughest assignments in nationally-ranked Florida State. The Seminoles handed the Salukis a 4-0 loss.

Brown's win came against Valdosta State in an 8-3 decision.

Freshman Angie Mick, a newcomer to the Saluki ranks, has the potential to rewrite the SIU-C record books, Buckles said.

"We could talk all day about Angie Mick and there is no way I could describe how optimistic I am about her," Buckles said. "She has more potential than anyone I've ever coached in women's fast-pitch softball."

Upset-filled Midwest Region will resume tonight in Dallas

DALLAS (UPI) — Three teams that original forecasts suggested would have hung up their uniforms by now, and another that barely survived the rigors of the early rounds, convene Thursday night to determine the finalists in the NCAA tournament's Midwest Region.

This was the region that before the tournament was pronounced to be the toughest of the bunch and it has turned out to be even tougher than previously thought.

Absent are the Oklahoma Sooners, who came into the tournament as the top-ranked team in the nation. Gone are the bulky Purdue Boilermakers, seeded second in the Midwest when things began. And nowhere to be found are the Georgetown Hoyas, who had hoped their bully boy reputation would help them in the nation's heartland. Instead, they fell victim to the only team in the history of the tournament whose name begins with "X".

The opening game of Thursday night's semifinal double-header will send the North Carolina Tar Heels (with the worst record still playing at 21-12) against the eighth-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks (28-4). The second game brings together the Xavier Musketeers (28-4) and the Texas Longhorns (23-8).

The survivors meet Saturday with the winner there earning a spot in the Final Four.

"I'm not surprised at how our region has turned out," Arkansas sophomore Lee Mayberry said. "Once the NCAA tournament begins, anything can happen."

The first of Thursday night's games, which begins at 7:10 CST, could be a repeat of North Carolina's dramatic two-point victory over Oklahoma in Austin last weekend. The Razorbacks play the same kind of style Oklahoma does. But the North Carolina-Arkansas matchup could well be affected by the Tar Heels' loss of 6-foot-6 senior Kevin Madden, who tore up a knee in practice this week.

Loyola's long-range bombs await Alabama in the West

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Long-range shots will rain in Oakland Friday night, but the downpour will do nothing to alleviate northern California's lingering drought.

Loyola-Marymount will flood the Oakland Coliseum with 3-point shots hoping to ride the barrage to a victory over Alabama in the opening round of the NCAA West Regional. The Lions have launched 68 3-pointers so far in the tournament, connecting on 32.

Friday's West Regional semifinals will be a showcase for the various uses of the 3-point shot. Both Ball State and Alabama are situational 3-point teams — only in certain circumstances do their players have the green light to launch the shot. UNLV — which faces upstart Ball State in the other semifinal — uses the 3-point shot to loosen up defenses, giving room underneath for its potent frontline to operate.

And then there is Loyola which combines the quick-striking nature of the 3-point shot with a helter-skelter fullcourt press to force the tempo of the game. The Lions try to engage their opponents in a suicidal scoring duel knowing full well that few teams can match Loyola's offensive output.

The Lions averaged 125.2 points a game during the regular season. In comparison, the Golden State Warriors currently lead the NBA with a 116 point per game average.

Transylvanian unrest quelled by tanks, troops; six killed

TIGRU MURES, Romania (UPI) — Army tanks and troops kept rival ethnic groups apart Wednesday following overnight clashes that left at least six people dead and nearly 300 wounded. The tanks rolled into Tirgu Mures's main square late Tuesday to break up fighting by rival Romanian and Hungarian groups of demonstrators who battled with iron bars, axes and clubs in Transylvania's worst ethnic unrest since World War II. A spokesman for the Mures County provisional government confirmed that six people were killed in the fighting and 294 people were wounded, 36 of them seriously, the official news agency Rompres said. At least 518 have been injured since bitter ethnic rioting erupted Monday.

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev Wednesday ordered all Lithuanians to turn in their firearms and directed the KGB to increase control of the border of the secession-minded republic. Gorbachev personally commanded Soviet authorities to confiscate weapons that are not turned in within seven days and to guarantee the upholding of the Soviet Constitution and the rights of all citizens in the Baltic republic.

Kohl predicts German unification by 1992

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl said Wednesday German reunification could take place by December 1992, when the European Community is due to form a single market. Kohl was expected to discuss the reunification process later Wednesday during a meeting in Bonn with East German conservative leaders fresh from their electoral victory. "I assume that the formation of the large European market, Dec. 31, 1992, will also see a united Germany," Kohl said after a meeting with Spanish Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez in the southern German town of Konstanz.

Egyptian president to negotiate for hostages

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egypt's President Hosni Mubarak said Wednesday he would talk to Syrian President Hafez Assad in an effort to help secure the release of Western hostages in Lebanon. Syria is Iran's only Arab ally. The kidnapers of the 18 foreign hostages, including eight Americans, are believed to be pro-Iranian Shiite Muslim extremists.

Reagan video takes stand in Iran-Contra trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ronald Reagan testified on videotape Wednesday before the jury in John Poindeexter's Iran-Contra trial, but the judge ruled the former president did not have to turn over portions of his personal diaries. Called as a defense witness for his former national security adviser, Reagan insisted in his testimony that he did not know about key parts of the worst scandal of his administration and never ordered aides to lie.

Senate rejects EPA enforcement of clean air

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite warnings it was weakening existing law, the Senate refused Wednesday to require the Environmental Protection Agency to impose smog cleanup plans on cities that do not adopt tough enough anti-pollution measures. In another important victory for Senate leaders determined to protect their compromise clean air bill with the Bush administration, senators voted 53-46 against a plan by Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., to preserve the mandatory EPA enforcement provisions in the current Clean Air Act.

Census Bureau hails its count of homeless

United Press International
 Census Bureau officials said Wednesday the agency's massive effort to count the nation's homeless was an overall success and a good start on making the rest of once-a-decade head count "a full and fair census of the American people." But the officials acknowledged a Frost Belt cold snap that filled and closed a large number of shelters before census takers arrived meant a second night of counting in a number of cities. Officials at the bureau's Suitland, Md., headquarters said they did not yet have a list of cities where the counting would take place other than Washington.

Sandwich chain switches tuna to save dolphins

HOUSTON (UPI) — Blimpie, a submarine sandwich chain with outlets in 16 states, no longer will use tuna whose capture results in the deaths of large numbers of dolphins, a company official said Wednesday. Blimpie, with 350 stores, is switching from yellowfin to skipjack tuna in hopes of saving a large number of dolphins killed each year in the netting of yellowfin tuna, said Joe Conza, president of Lone Star Blimpie. Conza said he believes Blimpie is the first major fast-food chain to make such a switch.

SIU-C professor named honorary Switzer Scholar

By Jerianne Kimmel
Staff Writer

JOHN J. BENSHOFF, assistant professor in the Rehabilitation Institute, will join 19 other experts in the field as an honorary Switzer Scholar in Rehabilitation for 1990.

Only 20 people from the United States were chosen for their leadership, expertise and achievements in the field to attend the 14th Memorial Seminar, "Employment and the Issue of Disability in the 1990s."

Society is more responsive to and able to serve people with disabilities and will continue to take great strides in that direction, Benshoff said.

"You see more and more people with disabilities accessing their rights to full participation in all elements of society," he said.

Health care and rehabilitation will be a major growth field in the 1990s in light of current and emerging issues, Benshoff said.

THESE ISSUES INCLUDE the shrinking workforce, new disability categories and the need for new technology and increased services that will allow more people with disabilities full participation and independence in life and the workplace.

John J. Benshoff

He said the need to retain present skilled workers in the workforce is a growing one. As the baby boomers near retirement, the positions left vacant will outnumber the declining young workforce. Not only are skilled workers hard to replace, but companies do not want to lose the investment made in training them, Benshoff said.

More people are categorized as disabled. AIDS is an illness that the rehabilitation profession will treat in the 1990s, Benshoff said.

Confronting and dealing with substance abuse is another challenge for the future.

THERE IS A greater number of people with severe disabilities because of the latest life-saving and life-extending medical advances, he said.

Rehabilitators must increasingly grapple with new ways to help such people lead more productive lives and careers.

He said this can be achieved by making the workplace more accessible to persons with disabilities and making sure they get the services they need, such as proper transportation.

"I enjoy translating ideas into reality," Benshoff said. "In the field, I transform ideas into a program. (At SIU-C) I transform ideas into a learning experience for students or articles that have some meaning in the field."

Benshoff has worked with private business and industry to design programs and administer facilities that help injured or chemically dependent employees get back to work quickly in an economical manner.

BENSHOFF AND THE other Switzer Scholars will meet in Washington, D.C. May 7 through 9 to make recommendations for future programming, research and legislative needs of persons with disabilities, according to Carl E. Hansen, chairman for the Mary E. Switzer Memorial Committee.

Benshoff will write one of five papers presented to the scholars during the seminar in Washington. The papers will address concepts vital to rehabilitation in coming years and the impact those recommendations will have, he said.

The articles, along with comments by the other scholars and summaries of the recommendations, will make up this year's Switzer Monograph.

The Monograph is a published collection of the scholarly articles and comments designed for use by counselors, consumers, researchers, employers, educators and policy-makers or anyone interested in the rehabilitation of the disabled, Hansen said.

BENSHOFF'S PAPER WILL discuss the role of rehabilitation as solutions to other emerging issues, such as reducing negative stereotyping of people with disabilities, the effects of new technologies and innovations in rehabilitation counseling and special treatment of minority members with disabilities.

Some persons with disabilities may be discriminated against in the workplace even though they may be competent on the job, Benshoff said.

"Do we see them as individuals who have abilities or as individuals who have disabilities?" Benshoff said.

He said a national goal for the 1990s is to "get people to see that people with disabilities can function in society like anyone else."

Former professor to lecture on value of nature

By Phil Pearson
Staff Writer

A professor of political science who dropped out of the academic rat-race to spread his message of "the inherent value of nature" will speak at 7:30 tonight in Lawson Hall, John McHale, public relations chairman for the Student Environmental Center, said.

McHale said Lou Gold, a former professor of political science at the University of Illinois, will talk about how human activity and politics affect nature now and in the future.

"He will talk about the effects of our lives and how (they) effect the environment and how they will affect it in the future," McHale said.

According to McHale and published newspaper and magazine articles, Gold's main crusade is to get the 800,000-acre Siskiyou National Forest in Southwestern Oregon redesignated as a national park. Changing the designation would end all timber harvest in the area, which includes considerable acreage of virgin timber, McHale said.

Much of the timber in the Siskiyou area is harvested and sold to the Japanese in an attempt to help maintain a trade balance, and this is what Gold opposes, McHale said.

"It's not as much anti-Japan as it is anti-Bush and anti-Reagan policy," he said, adding the past two presidencies have done little to promote environmental protection.

McHale said much of Gold's philosophy is rooted in the transcendentalist tradition.

"We value nature simply because it is a natural system, which has an inherent right not to be infringed upon," he said.

McHale said Gold spends most of the year traveling and speaking across the country.

Enterprise zoning: Boost for economy

FINALLY.

Gov. James R. Thompson recently announced that Carbondale, Murphysboro and Jackson County would be awarded an enterprise zone status. This move will enable civic officials to offer state incentives, to encourage companies to expand or locate within its borders. They will be able to offer sales and utility tax exemptions, investment tax and job creation tax credits, income tax deductions and increased accessibilities to the state's business financing program.

THE NEW DESIGNATION is one of 12 announced so far this year, which brings Illinois' total number of enterprise zones to 81. Not bad, especially considering Illinois has the largest number of enterprise zones in the country. More zones will stimulate more economic growth, which will in turn create and retain more jobs for the citizens of Illinois. And that's a recipe for economic success that even the simplest cook could follow.

Not only that, but 10 of the new zones are located in Southern Illinois, which will give our region an extra slot in the arm to spur added economic growth.

THIS ACTION will be vital to the success of University Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit's 21st Century Plan. Two of the most important steps Pettit deems necessary in the process of transforming the University into a Carnegie I research facility is economic expansion and the completion of better roadways and other forms of transportation. These endeavors would have to be undertaken before these businesses could locate here, but they would simultaneously make the University more physically accessible to the rest of the state.

This classification also will bring a desperately needed industrial diversity to the area. Instead of solely relying on the traditional industries such as coal mining and agriculture, we will be able to branch out and possibly avoid the economic pitfalls that can follow when those industries flounder.

WE CAN ONLY prosper under this new zoning, provided the local and civic officials equal their initial fervor they showed while campaigning for the new zoning. The time for action, foresight and planning is now. By working together to use these economic tools to their greatest abilities, we can all benefit.

Congress exempt from norms

Scripps Howard News Service

For congressional hypocrisy, look no further than Capitol Hill itself. Although it's a major employer, Congress has consistently exempted itself from the labor legislation it imposes on other U.S. businesses, large and small.

For example, Congress doesn't have to abide by the 1964 Civil Rights Act, the Equal Employment Opportunity Act, or even Occupational Safety and Health regulations.

Last year, the House of Representatives gave in on the double standard, just a little, by bringing itself under the Fair Labor Standards Act, which sets minimum wages and other employment restrictions. And guess what? The Honorable Members don't like it.

They complain about all the paperwork required by the act — paperwork they've imposed on every other employer in the country. The grumbling has led to a move to reinstate the exemption. "They ask how they can possibly comply with such complex laws," says one congressman. "The irony never hits them."

We hope the irony continues to hit them — good and hard. Any action reinstating the exemption should be immediately — and loudly — labeled as the scandal it is.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Board, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editor, page editor, the associate editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a School of Journalism faculty member.

Letters to the editor must be submitted directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Class bulletin hides worthy subjects behind nondescript course headings

If you can prow through the SIU class bulletin long enough without going crazy and have the deductive eye and keen insight of a Jerry Della Fama or a Herb Lubalin, you too may find there are other advertising classes being taught here at SIU-C that deal with advertising campaigns, television commercial concepts, corporate image, conceptual publication, packaging design and how to survive in the advertising design world as a writer, designer, art director and even an account service person.

Unfortunately, these subjects are deceptively hidden under other course titles like: Graphic Reproduction, Type as Image, Visual Communication I, II, III, IV and Portfolio.

These classes are taught by people who were art directors, designers, writers and creative directors in some of the largest advertising agencies, publication firms and product and graphic design shops in the country. That is real world experience you won't find at 90% of the universities in this country, much less this state.

You also will be surprised to find that the classes listed above are taught in the same college you are now enrolled in, the School of Art and Design in the College of Communication and Fine Arts.

There also are classes that have been identified in speech, radio and television, business administration, English, interior design, management, marketing, psychology and even journalism that advertising majors should take to prepare themselves for the upcoming "real world" situations they will face.

If you are an advertising major looking for an account service job in advertising or public relations, you may get lucky and find one; but they are few and far between. Forget about finding a job in the creative end of advertising or public relations, because you are not getting the type of knowledge you need to be hired or even considered.

There is a very unique experiment going on right now between an advertising campaigns class in the School of Journalism and an advertising campaigns class in the School of Art and Design. We have teamed advertising and creative design people to come up with the marketing, media and creative solutions for a national campaign. The team must make a full-blown presentation to the two instructors from both sides. This project has been done for three years and has been extremely successful.

But, wouldn't it be nice to know of, or be advised about, other classes in other units that would give you the tools to get that job you've wanted in advertising, design or whatever? Wouldn't it be nice to be told you have options outside of your major that pertain to you? The School of Art and Design won't be the solution to all of your problems, but we can fill some of the gaps in your major.

Before you write that obituary for all the advertising majors, talk to some of those advertising majors presently taking design and portfolio classes with us. Then come talk to me. It's not too late. — Larry Briggs, associate professor, school of art and design.

Satanism and rock 'n' roll have little in common, except that freedom of religion applies to both

Hey, what the bjmimies? I must be possessed by Satan because I listen to Rock and Roll. Yes, Rock and Roll once again is under attack. In fact, the arts always have been targeted by narrow-minded people who have no respect for the sanctity of free speech and expression.

Wasn't it Albert Einstein who said, "Great spirits have always encountered violent opposition from mediocre minds?"

Music is as pervasive. Subjects for literary, theatrical and, yes, musical works need not always be about goodness and upbeat subjects. Indeed, it is unthinkable that art could be censored or even banned if it strays from these subjects.

Had Cardinal John O'Connor (the cardinal from New York who is the latest on the Rock-is-evil bandwagon) or Tipper Gore (the head of the Parents Music Resource Center) been around when Shakespeare wrote Macbeth, would they want to ban this work that portrays multiple murders, suicide and black magic?

How about banning Romeo and Juliet because it teaches that the way to deal with the loss of a loved one is suicide?

Should we cloak the statue of David by Michelangelo because of its nudity?

Now Cardinal O'Connor is targeting, among others, the Ozzy Osborne song "Suicide Solution." This song was the basis of a lawsuit against Osborne which claimed the song drove one youth to suicide. The song is not pretty and lovely, but it does not advocate suicide. The song speaks of the dangers of alcohol abuse and how it can be a route to suicide.

"Wine is fine but whiskey's quicker, suicide is slow with liquor" the lyrics say, painting a picture of a self-inflicted imminent death when alcohol takes over a life.

The Ozzy song is frequently targeted and a good example of how the censorship demons have missed the boat in a big way.

These people also pick on the Satanist influenced lyrics of heavy metal music. A song is no more than an aural book, poem or picture.

And let's face it, freedom of religion is a birthright guaranteed by the Constitution. With that and free speech on your side, you could sing about worshipping Charles Manson if you like.

Hey Cardinal O'Connor, what are you going to do when people who aren't Christians organize to ban Christian music because, as some people believe, Christianity is perceived to be evil?

Music is an art, art is expression and expression is not limited to a few detailed feelings or experiences. There are people who want to limit it to those.

Some of the music may be offensive, but that is a subjective measurement. The choice to listen to a particular record is a personal one. — Greg Goodhart, senior, music and Glenn Knoblock, senior, geology.

Aspirin reduces stroke risk for heart condition sufferers

BOSTON (UPI) — A daily dose of aspirin can cut in half the risk of strokes in people who suffer from a heart condition that affects 1 million Americans, researchers reported Wednesday.

A study of older people who suffer from an irregular heartbeat that makes them prone to strokes found one tablet of aspirin a day was an effective preventive measure, said Ruth McBride, who helped compile the results.

McBride said people with a condition known as atrial fibrillation who took the aspirin had 50 percent fewer strokes than a comparable group that received no medication.

The aspirin therapy was so successful, she said, that 18 months into the study a monitoring group told researchers to start giving the non-aspirin group either aspirin or an anti-coagulant known as warfarin.

The research "found, unexpectedly, that you've got to give these people something," said McBride, a biostatistician at the Statistics and Epidemiology Research Center in Seattle. The study results were published in The New England Journal of Medicine.

From June 1987 to November 1989, 517 people with irregular heartbeats were given one aspirin tablet daily while 528 received a useless substitute. Nineteen people in the aspirin group suffered strokes and 38 people had strokes in the comparison group.

There was also a reduction in the stroke rate among 159 people who received warfarin but because the research was interrupted by the monitoring committee, "we really don't have a good idea of warfarin's effectiveness yet," said McBride.

McBride said that because most of the study subjects were under 75, the researchers could not come to any conclusions about the effect of aspirin or warfarin in people older than that.

Atrial fibrillation affects about 1 million Americans, most of them over 60.

body voted.

Pleading the case for a single voting location, Todoroff said she felt the Student Center was the most centralized location on campus and backed up her feelings with a census of student traffic completed Wednesday afternoon indicating nearly 17,000 students frequent the Student Center. She added that an additional feature of the single location would be a computerized voting system.

Todoroff said the computerized system would yield immediate results, lower the chances of voter fraud, reduce poll-worker shifts and enhance voter confidentiality.

Sullivan countered Todoroff's figures when he asked, "Of the 17,000 (students) how many are repeats? I go through the Student Center two or three times a day," he said.

Student senator Greg Blake said that the multiple polling location increased voter participation in the '89 election—the first election providing students with more than one polling place—by 10 percent, but, said election commission officials, the 10 percent increase was offset by a 15 percent rise in student enrollment.

USG Senator Rod Hughes ended the discussion by saying, "If they (the students) want to vote, they're going to vote. It doesn't matter if you put a voting booth in front of their house."

doesn't object to providing the crime statistics, but to providing an annual report on campus crime to all student applicants, whether or not they request one.

The state bill, sponsored by Sen. Doris Karpicel, R-Roselle, would require the crime information to be given to any college applicant.

"We don't hide anything," Harris said. "If a crime has been committed, it is public information."

SIU provides crime statistics to both the Illinois State Police and FBI, Deakin said.

"They want the University (to report crimes), but there is nothing in the bill to require cities to do the same thing," Harris said. "Universities are strapped for dollars, and this could be expensive."

Douglas F. Tuttle, government relations chairman for the International Association of Campus Law Enforcement Administrators, said nobody knows how many colleges are reporting their crimes.

"The ones that report directly are mostly large, public institutions," said Tuttle, also the director of public safety at the University of Delaware.

The association supports college departments reporting their crimes, he said.

"An informed public is a safer public," Tuttle said. "No college or university can assure you will be free from harm, but what institutions should do is provide the information about the crimes."

sion commercials. It also gives people an address to write to give their input on her spots.

"Let me know what you think," Martin says in the commercial. "You have the right to know where I stand and the issues where Paul Simon and I disagree."

The second spot gives some of Martin's personal background and discusses her legislative experience in Washington and Springfield. It calls her "a recognized champion of tax cuts and spending restraints."

Simon's first ad shows a nurse caring for a newborn infant. As she cradles the child, the nurse praises Simon's concern for drug-addicted mothers and their offspring and his sponsorship of legislation creating special prenatal units for them.

The second spot shows Simon attending his regular "town meetings" and other gatherings in Illinois, noting the senator has returned to the state "more than once a week for the past six years" and has sponsored more than 400 town meetings.

The Simon spots are produced by the Washington firm of Doak and Shrum. Roosevelt noted that while the firm is Washington-based, principal David Doak has a long history of working with Simon in Illinois. Roosevelt said Chicago-based David Axelrod, who helped Simon win election six years ago, is not under contract to the campaign this year.

Martin's 30-second spots were produced by Roger Ailes, the man responsible for President Bush's negative commercials that hurt presidential opponent Michael Dukakis in 1988.

eligibility requirements.

The Professional Staff Organizing Committee of the SIU-C IEA-NEA filed the petition with the labor board.

In a November 1988 election, 46 percent of the AP staff voted in favor of collective bargaining.

The issues will be the same in the upcoming election as in 1988, issues including health benefits, salary plans, job security and professional respect, Vitoff said.

Scare tactics are expected to be used by anti-bargaining groups, he said, and people should be prepared for the tactics.

Vitoff said the scare tactics and myths have been disproved at the SIU-Edwardsville campus, where bargaining is "going well and a new spirit of cooperation" is growing.

The SIU-E AP staff has already begun negotiations, which include grievance procedures with binding arbitration and minimum salary increase for soft-money employees, he said.

The salaries of soft-money employees, who make up a large number of AP staff members, are not derived from state appropriations, Vitoff said.

Michael Becker, director of SIU-C employee relations, said the University is aware the petition was filed and is looking at the situation.

was evidence to support the theory that universities did not formulate available data, the data was not recorded or the data was not made public.

"The intent of the bill is there to be a fairly accessible way to get information," Stricklin said.

The first hearing on the problem was March 15, and no possible mechanics of how the bill might be implemented or operated had been discussed.

Two similar Senate bills to the House legislation are sponsored by Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pennsylvania, and Sen. Al Gore, D-Tennessee. Hearings have not been held yet on the Senate proposals.

Study: Few students earn degree in 4 years

By Tony Mancuso
Staff Writer

Less than 20 percent of all SIU-C students are earning a bachelor's degree in four years, but almost 40 percent are earning their degrees after five years, according to a study released by Institutional Research and Studies.

The study, released by Research Assistant Norma Grassini, found that of the 2,351 freshmen studied that began at the University in 1984, 449 had graduated by 1988 and 928 had graduated by 1989.

Grassini did a similar study for entering freshmen in 1981. She reported that of the 2,390 students studied, 5.1, or 24.7 percent, graduated in four years or less and 938, or 39.2 percent, graduated in five years.

The National Institute of Independent Colleges and Universities, which compiled a study on 28,000 freshmen entering institutions in 1980, reported in February that 15.5 percent had graduated after four years.

SIU Board of Trustees member Ivan A. Elliott Jr., said he was pleased with the totals for SIU-C, considering the national average.

"(SIU-C is) much better than the national average, and I feel that speaks very well for the University," Elliott said.

He said although the four-year graduation rate is declining, the five-year rate may be more meaningful in today's society.

"More students are changing programs and majors, and it is taking longer to graduate. Five years is not excessive for today's students," Elliott said.

College of Education Dean Donald Beggs agreed.

"The assumption is that students know what they want when they enter a university. People must realize students generally end up with a different degree than they thought they would get," he said.

Beggs listed three other factors as cause for a student's prolonged university career.

"A significant number of students are not taking a cumulative 30 hours each year. They are only taking 12 to 14 hours a semester, which will not get them to the 120-hour minimum for a degree in four years," he said.

Beggs said for a number of personal reasons students may decide not to go a semester so they can settle problems—personal, financial or other.

He said SIU-C also has a large number of non-traditional students who have jobs or families that do not allow them to start and finish studies in a normal time span.

Many students have a tough time making the transition from a structured high school setting to the university atmosphere. They cannot make proper use of their spare time, Beggs said.

King's Wok liquor license controversy brewing

By Nora Bentley and Mario Miliikin
Staff Writers

A Carbondale restaurant owner's application for a Class A liquor license is quickly turning into a class A controversy.

Lin Chang, owner of the King's Wok and 611 Bar-BQ, approached the Local Liquor Control Commission Tuesday with a request for a liquor license at the King's Wok, at 2721 S. Illinois Ave. along Highway 51.

Before being annexed into the city limits in 1989 the restaurant had a policy of "bring your own" liquor because the township is dry. Once annexed that policy could no longer be followed since the city requires a liquor license before alcohol can be sold.

Chang said she is applying for the license, which would allow her to sell alcohol by the drink and package, because her business decreased once the "bring your own" policy was discontinued.

She said she is only interested in selling drinks with meals and that the restaurant will not contain a bar and alcohol won't be sold by the package.

Council approves shelter grant application

By Nora Bentley
Staff writer

The Women's Center, Good Samaritan House and Mary's House were given a thumbs up from City Council as approval was given for the city manager to sign certificates of local approval for emergency shelter grant applications at Carbondale's City Council meeting Tuesday.

The Women's Center, 408 W. Freeman St., is applying for a grant for construction of an addition to the center and for operation expenses to serve more homeless women and children.

Juli Claussen, executive director of the center, said that preliminary plans include additions of 1,800 square feet.

Three or four bedrooms, one that will be accessible to the disabled, two offices, a large room for groups and an enlarged children's playroom are part of the plans.

The center will also have to add a larger parking area, Claussen said. Possibilities for this include the center's backyard and land next to the center.

If the center does not receive the grant then Claussen said other funding sources will be tried.

Good Samaritan House is requesting funds for a two-bedroom conversion, support services and operating expenses. A storage area will be converted to create the bedrooms and a toilet and shower.

The renovation will be at the transitional housing for men, which is above the emergency shelter at 701 S. Marion St.

Susan Metcalf, assistant director of the Good Samaritan House, said the renovation would increase capacity by three, the current capacity is eight.

Mary's House, 306 N. University Ave., is applying for funding for repair and maintenance, support services and operating expenses. This includes $7,700 for a mortgage payment.

Debbie Kramer, housemother for the Good Samaritan House, said that Mary's House, which opened in December, is transitional housing for women that can house five.

"I have no intentions of opening a bar," Chang said.

But the request for the license has some nearby residents of King's Wok up in arms.

Tommy Glisson, a neighbor of King's Wok, said there is and always has been opposition to establishments selling alcohol in the area.

In the past, liquor licenses have been denied to a convenience store and other businesses wanting to sell package liquor. A request also was withdrawn by a restaurant because of the concern of area residents.

"The issue is still very much alive," Rev. Leslie Pappas, also a neighbor of King's Wok, said.

Glisson also complained of excessive noise at late hours, trash and tall weeds on the premises and also said he had a letter that the Jackson County Sheriff had sent King's Wok telling them consider their neighbors.

"It's not a situation where there haven't been problems," he said.

Chang countered by saying that with a liquor license she would have more control over when people had to leave. With a liquor license city jurisdiction would require she to close at 2 a.m., but before the annexation the restaurant could stay open until 4 a.m.

The liquor commission members were split in their opinions and decided to postpone the decision until the April 17 meeting.

Liquor Commissioner John Yow said that people in the area are very concerned and that he will not support the license.

Mayor Neil Dillard said he would also oppose the license. "I believe the area should be maintained as it is."

Liquor Commissioner Keith Luxhorn said that he has no problem with the restaurant having a liquor license because there has been liquor there in the past and there haven't been any problems.

Study: AIDS doesn't slow campus sex patterns

BOSTON (UPI) — College women are using condoms more frequently in response to AIDS but their sexual behavior otherwise is unchanged from that of their 1970s predecessors, a campus survey indicated Wednesday.

Researchers in Rhode Island who queried 132 women students in 1989 found the same proportion had six or more lifetime sexual partners as 486 women who were surveyed in 1975, prior to the epidemics of AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases.

The women of the pre- and post-AIDS eras showed no differences in their willingness to engage in oral or anal sex or to have multiple partners, said Dr.

Stephen Zinner, a professor of medicine at Brown University who helped conduct the survey.

While he called "the increase in condom use "encouraging," he noted the proportion of women polled in 1989 who had their partners use condoms still was only 41 percent.

"If less than 50 percent of the women in this educated college group use condoms, one would have to wonder what the proportion is in other groups," said Zinner, whose study appeared in The New England Journal of Medicine.

He said the fact that the women were no more likely than their predecessors to limit their number of sexual partners, despite apprehensions about AIDS, means "we have a long way to go to get the message across about safe sex practices."

In their survey, Zinner and colleagues asked questions of women who had medical examinations at a college health center in 1975, 1986 and 1989.

Study supports theory of 'greenhouse effect'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The recent global warming trend cannot be explained away by natural, long-term climate changes, bolstering views that man-made "greenhouse" gases are causing the temperature rise, a study showed Wednesday.

University of East Anglia said its computer simulation shows natural climate variations cannot completely account for the 0.9 degree Fahrenheit jump in the world's average temperature over the past century.

Although long-term climate swings were found to be "unexpectedly large," researchers said their study showed such fluctuations probably could not generate more than a 0.54 degree rise or drop in average global temperature over a 100-year period.

Many scientists think carbon dioxide and other gases, produced by the burning of fossil fuels and clearing of forests, are boosting Earth's temperature by acting like a greenhouse and trapping energy in the atmosphere.

pollutants.

But others have argued the warming trend recorded since the mid-1800s may stem from natural, long-term variations in Earth's climate, not man-made Reporting in the journal Nature, East Anglia's T.M. Wigley and S.C. Raper said their work "virtually eliminates" the likelihood that natural climate variability is the sole explanation for recent global warming.

Truck driver killed by dumbbell

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (UPI) — A truck driver was killed early Wednesday when someone threw a 30-pound dumbbell off a highway overpass onto his truck, authorities said.

Spartanburg County Coroner Jim Burnett said Philip E. Reed, 38, of Westville, Ind., was driving east on Interstate 26 when the dumbbell crashed through the windshield of his rig.

Burnett said the end of the steel weight bar penetrated Reed's chest and ruptured his heart, causing him to bleed to death.

He said Reed's truck apparently was targeted at random.

Professor tours Tiananmen, finds evidence of fire, tanks

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

An Emeritus professor who visited China after the Tiananmen Square incident said in a lecture that he and other tourists could get permission to see Tiananmen Square while the Chinese people could not.

In numerous places on the square there were signs of tank tracks and places that had been burned, many of which had obviously been recently repaired. Dave Christensen, director of the Emeritus College, said in his lecture at the Carbondale Public Library Tuesday afternoon.

Accompanying the lecture was a slide presentation with pictures of Tiananmen Square and many other pictures of crafts, trades and schools throughout China. The square had the surreal appearance of a post apocalyptic wasteland in the pictures. It was virtually deserted and soldiers were posted every 100 yards to keep the people out, Christensen said.

Because of the incident the tourist trade has fallen off, but the Chinese "need and want tourists badly, so they were very nice to us," Christensen said of his November 1989 trip.

Christensen taught urban planning, geography of international trade and geography of the United States as a visiting professor at a university in China in 1987, he said.

"In 1987 there were tourist groups all over. (In 1989) we saw hardly any Europeans, Americans or Japanese," he said.

Christensen added that throughout China, his group was treated very well to encourage them to tell everyone how nice it was in China so it seemed "that the Tiananmen Square incident didn't really matter, only it does."

Christensen and his wife Carol were joined on the trip mostly by educators, he said. The group traveled throughout the eastern half of China visiting Shanghai, Beijing, Zhengzhou, Luoyang, Xian, Guilin and leaving from Hong Kong, he said.

The group saw many examples of Chinese culture. Many of Christensen's pictures portrayed Chinese people producing the artistic crafts like rugs, silk cloths, metalworks and other products often sold in the United States, he said.

At one point during the trip, Christensen's group visited a university where one of Christensen's former students was teaching English. The group was split up so that one American was speaking with three or four Chinese students to help the students with their conversational skills, he said.

Christensen added that during most of the trip the group was accompanied by a government-paid guide. The guide was very attentive to the group's needs but one time when the group was in a public building members saw a wooden box with a slot on it that had "box for accusation letters" written on it.

When Christensen asked the guide what this box was for the guide replied after some deliberation that it was a "suggestion box." Christensen, who showed a photograph of the box, said he was not so sure that she was telling the truth. Perhaps she was trying to save face, he said.

Springfest moves to Arena fields for 'bigger and better' celebration

By Richard Hund
Staff Writer

Springfest will move from Old Main to the Arena playing fields this year for a "bigger and better" event. coordinators of the event say.

Improvements on the April 21 event will include an added entertainment stage, a larger carnival area with more rides and an enlarged area in front of the main stage. Donald Castle, assistant program coordinator for Student Programming Council, said.

"We were limited in the entertainment we could provide with the space we had (in previous years)," Castle said, speaking on behalf of the Springfest committee.

The four stages will now include the main stage, family/variety entertainment, a local stage of Carbondale bands and a student stage of "any kind" of entertainment, he said.

The University alcohol policy and the separation of the boat regatta made the greatest impact on Springfest, Castle said.

"Last year everything in Springfest was within the alcohol consumption area," he said. "This year there is entertainment outside of the alcohol consumption area."

"You can have a good time with alcohol or without alcohol at Springfest," he said.

Castle also said the boat regatta gave the perception that "more was going on" when it was scheduled on the same day as Springfest.

Registered Student Organizations are encouraged to participate in entertainment booths. Applications must be turned in by 4 p.m. on April 10.

The theme of Springfest, "Salukis in Space '90," reflects progressive educational and environmental issues, Dave Miller, Springfest chairperson, said.

"It goes along with our idea of making Springfest bigger and better," he said.

Administration will not seek restrictions on funding for art

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Bush administration, in a policy decision likely to anger conservatives, said Wednesday it would not seek any content restrictions on the federal funding of art.

President Bush's decision was revealed at a congressional hearing on the reauthorization of the National Endowment for the Arts, which was besieged with protests last year for funding controversial art projects.

Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., chairman of the House Education and Labor subcommittee on post-secondary education, revealed the Bush administration position when he announced: "The administration has decided to ask for a reauthorization of the National Endowment for the Arts that does not contain any controversial language with regard to content. That's a very important matter."

Williams said he was hopeful the decision would put an end to the contentiousness that has surrounded federal funding of the endowment.

NEA Chairman John Frohnmayer, who confirmed the Bush administration position, agreed, saying Congress should not meddle in the affairs of artistic freedom or the First Amendment protection of free speech.

U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., led a storm of protests last year against federal funding of two controversial art projects, which included homoerotic photos and a crucifix submerged in urine.

"I think we must have accountability" in deciding what art projects get funded, Frohnmayer said. "But it shouldn't be through legislation."

Frohnmayer, using a Washington synonym for meddling, said the NEA should not be "micromanaged" by Congress. He also noted that the endowment has designed an elaborate process for screening art project candidates for funding. The NEA refuses to fund art it deems "obscene."

Last year a storm of protests erupted after arch-conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., vehemently objected to federal funding of two controversial art projects. One exhibit of homosexual eroticism by photographer Robert Mapplethorpe featured pictures of nude men in erotic poses. Another exhibit included a photograph by Andre Serrano of a crucifix in a bottle of urine.

Helms pressured the NEA to restrict funding for controversial art and pushed through Congress a measure that pulled $40,000 of NEA funding, the equivalent of money spent for the two objectionable projects. Congress appropriated $171 million for the NEA this year.

On March 6, Helms asked the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, to determine whether the NEA violated the law when it approved funding for 11 projects.

'Demon-like' Lowe returns to screen

Movie takes look at dark side of instant friendship

By Jeanne Bickler
Entertainment Editor

Rob Lowe's off-screen life has already established him as a bad influence, at least on teen-age girls. Epic Productions is capitalizing on Lowe's already established reputation by giving him the title role in its new movie, "Bad Influence."

In fact, as art imitates life, there is even a videotaped sex scene—how ironic.

Lowe plays Alex, a vagrant soul who is the granter of many wishes. His demon-like character has the cold-blooded ability to do away with anything or anyone that interferes with his fun or the fun of his friends.

James Spader ("Sex, Lies and Videotape") plays Michael Boll, an aspiring corporate yuppie who falls into friendship with Alex. Michael confides in Alex about many things.

For example, Michael doesn't really want to get married, but he's engaged. He wants a promotion, but another one of his co-workers also is up for the position, and Michael is afraid he won't get the job.

Alex knows how to take care of these problems for Michael, but Michael disagrees with his violent methods.

Eventually, Michael realizes that he has to give up his friendship with Alex in order to get his life back to normal. But Alex is having none of that.

"Bad Influence" is a slightly understated title for this film. The things Alex does to Michael are so outrageous and so horrible that the word "bad" just doesn't do them justice.

Suspense really isn't the most important part of this film. The development of the relationship between Alex and Michael, however, is interesting. It's fun to watch conservative Michael cut loose with Alex, and then freak out when he realizes he's losing control.

It seems that the character of Alex really is supposed to be representative of the devil. In the credits Lowe is listed simply as Alex, casting no opinion on the devil's last name.

Director Curtis Hanson has created an intentionally dark film, showing the seedy side of an instant friendship.

full-length play about a Hispanic theater company in South America that rehearses for a revolution to happen.

"This play is a real think-piece with Latino flair," said Denise Dillard, graduate assistant in the theater department. The play will be directed by Carlyn Cahill, graduate assistant in the theater department.

A second full-length play, written by Dan Stark, teaching assistant in the theater department, is "Dirty Harry Inferno." This is a comedy about life in southern California. This play will be directed by Wilson Lindauer, a doctoral student in speech communication.

Roseanna Whitlow, graduate assistant in the theater department, has written two one-act plays, "Mitts On" and "Saturday Games." Brian Holtz, a senior in theater, will be directing these plays.

Voters reject 'Automotive shish kebab'

BERWYN (UPI) — Voters have decided that eight cars stacked on a pole like an automotive shish kebab is not the type of art they want in front of their local shopping center.

In Tuesday's primary election in the suburb of Berwyn west of Chicago, 65 percent of the voters said they would like to get rid of the so-called "Spindle" artwork in front of Cermak Plaza.

Voters liked the piece called "Bil-Bored" even less. Eighty percent wanted to remove a sculpture some critics describe as a large pork chop-shaped slab of household junk that is passing as art.

Davie Berman, owner of Cermak Plaza, said he would be willing to remove at least one of the sculptures if residents disapproved. He said he'd be more likely to take down "Bil-Bored," because "Spindle" has been on display only a few months.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

March 19, 1990

To the University Community:

Sexual harassment in any form, runs counter to the objectives of the University. Every student, faculty member, and staff member must be free to work or study without the fear of sexual intimidation, whether it takes the form of unwanted sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, verbal or other expressive behavior, or physical conduct commonly understood to be of a sexual nature. The University is committed to providing the entire University community with an environment free of all forms of discrimination, including sexual harassment, and will take whatever action is needed to prevent, stop, correct or discipline behavior that violates the University's policy on sexual harassment.

Sexual harassment is defined as any unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal and physical conduct of a sexual nature. It includes instances when such conduct is indicated to be a term or condition of an individual's academic or employment experience, used as a basis for academic or employment decisions, interferes with an individual's academic or employment performance, or creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive academic or employment environment.

Since the revision to the policy in March 1989, a campus-wide educational effort has been implemented. These programs are essential in establishing a campus environment as free as possible of sexual harassment. The goals to be achieved, through education, are: (1) educate the University community on what behaviors constitute sexual harassment; (2) outline the options available to individuals for complaint resolution; (3) discuss the potential cost to the University and to individuals involved in a complaint; (4) inform supervisors in how to properly handle complaints; and (5) most importantly, how to prevent sexual harassment from occurring.

In addition to being a violation of University policy, sexual harassment is against the law!!! It is a violation of Title VII of the federal 1964 Civil Rights Act and Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972 and a civil rights violation of the Illinois Human Rights Act.

Sexual harassment will not just go away. We must make an effort to bring it to light and see that it is dealt with properly when it does occur. I encourage you to read the enclosed policy carefully and to give active support to ensure that SIUC is free from all forms of sexual harassment.

Sincerely,

John C. Guyon
President

Sexual Harassment Policy And Overview Of The Complaint Resolution Procedures

for
Faculty, Administrative/Professional Staff, Civil Service Employees, and Students

Revised 1989
Effective March 15, 1989

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY AT CARBONDALE

University Policy On Sexual Harassment

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale is committed to creating and maintaining a community in which students, faculty, and staff can work together in an atmosphere free of all forms of harassment, exploitation, or intimidation. Sexual harassment, like harassment on the basis of race or religion, is a form of discrimination expressly prohibited by law. It is a violation of Title VII of the federal 1964 Civil Rights Act and Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972 and a civil rights violation of the Illinois Human Rights Act.

In addition to being illegal, sexual harassment runs counter to the objectives of the University. When people feel coerced, threatened, intimidated, or otherwise pressured by others into granting sexual favors, or are singled out for derision or abuse because of their gender, their academic and work performance is liable to suffer. Such actions violate the dignity of the individual and the integrity of the University as an institution of learning. Academic freedom can exist only when non-threatening, non-coercive atmosphere of mutual respect. Sexual harassment is harmful not only to the persons involved but also to the entire University community.

The University will take whatever action is needed to prevent, stop, correct, or discipline behavior that violates this policy. Disciplinary action may include, but is not limited to, oral or written warnings, demotion, transfer, suspension, or dismissal for cause.

Definitions and Examples

Sexual harassment is defined as unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, verbal or other expressive behaviors, or physical conduct commonly understood to be of a sexual nature, when:

submission to, or toleration of, such conduct on or off campus is made, either explicitly or implicitly, a term or condition of instruction, employment, or participation in other University activities;

submission to, or rejection of, such conduct is used as a basis for employment or for academic decisions or assessments affecting the individual's status as an employee or student; or such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's status as a student or employee or creates an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work or educational environment.

Sexual harassment may involve the behavior of a person of either sex toward a person of the opposite or the same sex. Examples of behavior that would be considered sexual harassment include, but are not limited to, the following:

physical assault;

direct or implied threats that submission to sexual advances will be a condition of employment, work status, promotion, grades, or letters of recommendation;

a pattern of conduct, annoying or humiliating in a sexual way, that includes comments of a sexual nature and/or sexually explicit statements, questions, jokes, or anecdotes;

a pattern of conduct that would annoy or humiliate a reasonable person at whom the conduct was obviously directed. Such conduct includes, but is not limited to gestures, facial expressions, speech, or physical contact understood to be sexual in nature or which is repeated after the individual signifies that the conduct is perceived to be offensively sexual.

Consenting Relationships

Consenting romantic and sexual relationships between a faculty member and a student or between a supervisor and an employee, while not expressly forbidden, are discouraged. Taking note of the respect and trust accorded a professor by a student and of the power exercised by the professor, a relationship between a faculty member and a student should be considered one of professional and client, in which sexual relationships are inappropriate. A similar relationship exists between a supervisor and an employee. The power differential inherent in such relationships compromises the subordinate's free choice. A faculty member or supervisor who enters into a sexual relationship with a student or an employee, where a professional power differential obviously exists, must realize that if a charge of sexual harassment is subsequently lodged, the burden will be on the faculty member or supervisor to prove immunity on grounds of mutual consent.

Relationships between a graduate student and an undergraduate, when the graduate student has some supervisory responsibility for the undergraduate, belong in this category. Among other relationships included are those between a student or employee and an administrator, coach, adviser, program director, counselor, or residential staff member who has supervisory responsibility for that student or employee.

Protection of the Complainant and Others

No student, faculty member, or staff member may be subjected to any form of reprisal for seeking information on sexual harassment, filing a sexual harassment complaint, or serving as a witness in a proceeding involving a complaint of sexual harassment. Any retaliatory action will be a violation of this policy and will be grounds for disciplinary action. Individuals who believe they have been subjected to reprisal for their participation in a sexual harassment complaint may use the procedures of this policy to seek redress.

Protection of the Accused

Accusations of sexual harassment are grievous and can have serious and far-reaching effects on the careers and lives of accused individuals. Allegations of sexual harassment must be made in good faith and not out of malice. Individuals who believe they have been falsely accused of sexual harassment may use the procedures of this policy to seek redress.

Responsibility of Supervisors

Supervisory personnel are charged with maintaining an atmosphere that discourages sexual harassment and ensuring that the University policy is enforced in their areas. Supervisors are directed to discourage all behavior that might be considered sexual harassment and to respond promptly to sexual harassment complaints. University officials who knowingly condone incidents of sexual harassment or instances of reprisal for reporting such complaints will be subject to disciplinary action.

Complaint Resolution Office

The President has assigned responsibility for the administration of this policy to Personnel Services and Labor Relations and has named its Executive Director as the complaint resolution officer for the University. The complaint resolution officer will disseminate the policy to the University community, devise education and training programs, maintain centralized records of sexual harassment complaints, oversee the grievance process, coordinate the resolution of complaints, and evaluate the effectiveness of the complaint resolution procedures and related educational programs.

For further information about the sexual harassment policy and complaint resolution procedures, you may contact one of the Sexual Harassment Information Centers: Affirmative Action 536-6818; Counseling Center 453-5371; International Programs and Services 453-5774; Ombudsman Office 453-2411; Personnel Services and Labor Relations 536-3369; Women's Services 453-3855; Women's Studies 453-5141, and the Graduate School 453-4540.

An individual may initiate a charge with either the Illinois Department of Human Rights and/or the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Such a charge must be filed within 180 days of the alleged act of discrimination or sexual harassment.

Baseball team sweeps ASU to give Jones 700th win here

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

The Saluki men's baseball team is on a roll.

SIU-C swept a doubleheader from Arkansas State Wednesday by scores of 4-0 and 4-2.

With two victories Wednesday, the Salukis improved to 12-2 and have won 10 consecutive games.

The victory in game one gave Saluki coach Richard "Itchy" Jones his 700th victory at SIU-C. Jones' record at SIU-C is 701-333-5 in his 21st season.

"That just shows you've been at one place for a long time," Jones said. "We've been fortunate to have support from the administration at SIU-C. We've also had outstanding players through the years."

The Salukis continued to receive good pitching. Sophomore right-hander Sean Bergman (2-1) went the distance hurling a four-hit shutout for the Salukis in the first game. In seven innings, Bergman struck out eight and walked two.

"We won today because we continue to get good pitching," Jones said. "When you get good pitching, you are always in the game."

Matt Whiteside was the losing pitcher for Arkansas State. Whiteside also went the distance yielding four earned runs on eight hits and striking out four.

With two outs and the bases loaded in the first inning, senior catcher Matt Giegling doubled inside the left-field foul line. Doug Shields, Tim Davis and Brad Hollenkamp scored on Giegling's hit giving the Salukis a 3-0 lead.

The Salukis added another run in the third inning. Hollenkamp led off with a single. He advanced to second on a Giegling single and moved to third on a sacrifice bunt.

Hollenkamp scored on a sacrifice fly by Dave Wrona giving the Dawgs a 4-0 lead. Bergman's pitching held Arkansas State in check the rest of the way.

The Salukis' good pitching carried over into the second game. Junior right-hander Bob Finder (3-1) was the winning pitcher for the Salukis. Finder pitched five and two-third innings, yielding two runs and three hits. He struck out four batters and walked one.

Finder had a perfect game through four innings. Junior right-hander Alan Levine pitched the final inning and a third to pick up his third save. Levine struck out three batters and yielded two hits.

The Salukis scored single tallies in the second, third, sixth and seventh innings.

The first two SIU-C runs scored on a ground ball and wild pitch respectively.

Leading 2-0, the Salukis added another run in the top of the sixth on a two-out triple by Mike Kirkpatrick. Kirkpatrick scored on a double by Kurt Endebruck giving the Salukis a 3-0 lead.

The Salukis secured the victory by adding an insurance run in the top of the seventh on a RBI single by Giegling.

Legally blind Florida woman gets 2 holes-in-one in 2 days

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A woman who is legally blind scored a hole-in-one on a golf course last weekend and then repeated the feat the following day.

"It hasn't sunk in yet," said Margaret Waldron, 74. "If it happens as infrequently as my husband says, I'm going out to buy some lottery tickets."

Waldron's eyesight began to deteriorate 10 years ago and she now has only peripheral vision. She cannot read or drive a car. When playing golf, she relies on her husband to give her distance, direction and pin placement.

"My husband will tell me where the pin is. If I can't see it, he will tell me to look for a certain tree behind the green. To align myself, I'll look for something like a leaf or little twig, whatever is five or six feet out in front of me and try to swing to that point, along that line," she said.

The first of her back-to-back aces came Sunday on the 87-yard seventh hole at Amelia Island Plantation's Long Point course as her husband, Pete, and two club members watched.

"I didn't see it, of course," Waldron said. "But the woman I was playing with said, 'Ohhh, that's pretty! Ohh, it's in the cup!' I didn't believe her."

She didn't believe it the next day either when she used the same 7-iron and same scarred old golf ball to ace the hole again.

"Unbelievable," said Jay Gress, a vacationer from Fort Washington, Pa., who witnessed the shot with his wife, Dale.

The ball rolled in and everyone except Mrs. Waldron began jumping and yelling and hugging her.

Young women's squad defies odds in 1989-90

After a 4-7 start this season, the odds appeared to be against a young Saluki women's basketball team qualifying for the four-team Gateway Conference tournament — let alone advancing to the NCAA tournament. But don't tell this basketball team about odds.

From the Press Box

Greg Scott

This year's Saluki team didn't mind playing with its back to the wall. The team was at its best when the odds were against it.

The Salukis knew they were beginning the season with five newcomers — junior transfers Alison Smith and Cheryl Weis and freshmen Anita Scott, Angie Rougeau and Kelly Firth. They also knew that only two starters — junior forward Amy Rakers and sophomore point guard Colleen Heimstead — were returning from last season.

But opposing Gateway Conference coaches knew not to sell the Salukis short. Despite their youth, the Salukis were picked to win the Gateway Conference in the preseason coaches' poll.

I guess you can say the opposing coaches knew what they were doing. But after the Salukis lost their first two league games at home, a conference title didn't seem likely.

But the Salukis didn't quit. After winning just four of their first 11 games, the Salukis rallied by winning 17 of their last 19 games — culminating with a 71-54 victory over Illinois State March 10 to win the conference tournament championship and clinch their third NCAA tournament bid in five years.

"Our team really grew up after the first of the year," Saluki coach Cindy Scott said. "They found a way to win one close game after another. Considering we're so young, that's probably the most remarkable thing about our season."

The Salukis made huge strides as the season progressed. This was a Saluki team that blew an 11-point lead against Creighton in the last four minutes of regulation in a heartbreaking 85-84 overtime defeat Dec. 4 at the Arena. And Indiana State defeated the Salukis 38-37 Jan. 2.

So what was the Salukis' super turnaround attributed to? Well as star forward Amy Rakers said, "We just got together as a team and decided what we wanted to do."

The Salukis matured and came together as a team. After Jan. 6, the Salukis went 7-0 in games decided by 6 points or less. They were 8-1 on the road in Gateway competition this season.

It was a team that won in places where teams aren't supposed to win. The Salukis' 62-60 upset victory over 18th-ranked Tennessee Tech Jan. 15 at Cookeville and a 70-61 victory over Illinois State Feb. 28 at Bloomington-Normal support this claim.

Prior to their games against the Salukis, Tennessee Tech had won 40 of its last 41 games at home and Illinois State had won 25 consecutive games at home.

"It's hard to believe how far this young team came," Scott said. "We've got a group that refused to give up. I'm probably more proud of this team than any team I've coached."

Scott, who has a 13-year record of 251-114 at SIU-C, was the ideal coach in a situation that required time and patience. Even after SIU-C's slow start, opponents weren't looking past their talent and winning tradition. As Southwest Missouri State coach Cheryl Burnett said, "Their success didn't surprise us. Coach Scott has been around too long to underestimate."

The players on this team represent what Saluki women's basketball has become known for: pride and determination. Maybe it was Gateway Conference Player-of-the-Year and tournament MVP Amy Rakers playing through nagging injuries all season to lead her team to the NCAA; or Colleen Heimstead maturing and providing leadership during the Salukis' stretch run; or guard Alison Smith's winning baskets in the closing seconds; or the effort of eager youngsters like Kelly Firth and Angie Rougeau.

After the Salukis' 73-61 first-round defeat to Ohio State in the NCAA tournament March 14, Scott guaranteed her team's return to the "Big Dance." With this group, I wouldn't bet against her.

Mick was a four-year starter for Centralia High School and as a junior, led her team to the Illinois High School Association Quarterfinals. She holds 30 school records at Centralia.

"Angie is a very hard worker. Nothing for her has come by accident," Buckles said. "She has an excellent assortment of pitches."

Mick was absent from action on the spring trip due to a hip problem. She is expected to return to action this weekend at the Saluki Invitational.

Going into the spring season the Saluki coaches were concerned about the decision of Traci Furlow to quit school. Furlow led the Salukis last year with a 9-9 record and a 1.55 ERA.

"Traci was definitely a leader,"

Buckles said. "She was what I call a stopper. You could bring her in during the toughest of situations and be confident she'd get you out of it."

"As a result of Traci not coming back, the other girls realize that they'll have to pick up the slack and I think they did just that this past week on our spring trip."

hoping to repeat that performance in this his last year of intercollegiate swimming. Canterbury will compete in the 100 and 200 breaststrokes.

Freshman Glen Hignett, a native of South Africa, will get his first shot at NCAA championship competition in the 100 butterfly. Hignett came on strong for the Salukis after receiving his intercollegiate eligibility at the beginning of the second semester.
