Students seek job openings via Internet
By Aaron Butler

Spots of varying ages, majors and educational backgrounds all had something in common at a seminar provided Wednesday by SIUC's Career Services. They all wanted jobs and hoped to learn the tricks needed to find them: the Internet.

James Seales, director of SIUC Career Services, said employers are moving rapidly into cyberspace, where they have access to an endless number of qualified candidates from all over the world. He said by learning a few basic skills and taking advantage of the Internet, students can find employment openings far beyond anything in the local classified advertisements.

"Students will be overwhelmed," he said. "It opens doors they would ordinarily never be able to access.

"I think the budget cuts are hurting us, but we will be a healthy University with a bright future," Guyon said. "But it's going to be a tough couple of years."
CHINA TELEVISION AIRS WAR GAMES FOOTAGE—BEIJING—In a bizarre display of military muscle, China staged an order before Saturday's presidential election in Taiwan, China's state television network began airing footage of missile attacks on the island of Taiwan. Against a backdrop of running missiles and soldiers shouting their warnings to die for the motherland, China displayed its latest arsenal in action with a test target chamber in the southern waters of Taiwan. A squadron of modern St-27 fighters fired air-to-ground missiles while release targets were fired and warships surfaced several targets. 'China's Supreme Television announcer said at dozens of bombs fell toward their targets in the rolling sea. The ever-visible display of military might, broadcast from China off the main evening news program, was the latest element in China's propaganda campaign to intimidate voters in Taiwan.

MEXICAN PRI PARTY ACCUSED OF ELECTION FIXING—MEXICO CITY—Accusing Mexico's ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, of trying to sweep the town, charging a scathing shift in Mexico's tortuous journey to a more democratic political system. The opener startled when the ruling election commission in Puebla, a two-hour drive east of Mexico City, annulled the opposition's apparent victory in the Nov. 12 municipal election. Jesus Cataño, 57, candidate of the right-of-center National Action Party, or PAN, won the election with 5,835 votes—no less than 29 more than the PRI, but that the elections commission threw out enough votes on technicalities to hand governing-party candidate Miguel Angel Martinez Esquivel a slim 28-vote victory.

NATION

PEROT ANNOUNCES POSSIBLE ELECTION PLANS—SEN. Bob Dole of Kansas clinched the Republican nomination Tuesday with stories in four Midwest primaries, finally clinching the prize he first sought 16 years ago and making him almost surely the last of the World War II generation to vie for the White House. Before Dole could use his victories, this week's intensely competitive presidential face-off on Tuesday, saying for the first time that he would run for president again if members of his Reform Party ask him to, a development that would, of course, make it impossible for the White House began in 1983, told a victory rally in Washington: "Tuesday's exit is a day we can all glory in the world."

Correction/Clarification:

Monday's story, "Budget vote timing-upsets USG, GPP," was corrected to indicate that the SIU Board of Trustees passed a budget process, not an actual budget. In Tuesday's story, "Ching federal tax, SIC/Deans request for info," Harvey Welsh, SIC/vice chancellor for student affairs, was incorrectly identified. The Daily Egyptian regrets the error.
Black Panther to speak
Co-founder Sealez to trace party's history

Bobby Seale, a co-founder of the Black Panther Party, will enlighten others about the origins of his party when he speaks in May. It will be the party's first visit to this community.

Seale started the Black Areas of the Black Panthers, which differed from the militant organization the press media portrayed and brought the controversy of the SIUC community in".

Dole, Clinton must use second chance to balance budget

NOW THAT BOB DOLE HAS ALL BUT OFFICIALLY finished battling Pat Buchanan for the Republican presidential nomination and is overshadowing House Speaker Newt Gingrich as the leader of the party, it will be quite interesting to see how negotiations over balancing the national budget are handled.

The budget debate deserves the attention it received in the news media a few months ago when it was difficult to go through a day without hearing about the latest deficit projections. It’s not surprising that public interest in the debate waned, however, because leaders on both sides were more concerned with coming out ahead politically than trying to find a compromise on a budget that was fair to everyone.

Even the most naive onlookers could see through the endless rhetoric that began to resemble a tennis game. President Bush’s proposal was not passed by the public. It was somewhere between an offer to share the pain and spend and spend and spend, or pay the nation’s bills.

We believe Republicans and Democrats made a huge mistake when they turned what was initially a true debate into a repetitive bashing of each other. This was a disservice to all Americans.

Now that Dole, who does not frown on compromise like Gingrich does, will become the leading Republican negotiator in the fight, federal policymakers have another chance to seriously debate how the budget should be balanced.

We hope our leaders make better use of this opportunity to serve us than they did last time.

THIS HOPE MAY BE TOO OPTIMISTIC, THOUGH.

Political analysts are already discussing the political gains Dole and Clinton can pick up with the debate.

Some are already saying Dole can use Clinton by pushing legislation through Congress that he knows the president will veto, thus allowing him to tag Clinton as "not serious about balancing the budget.

Clinton, in turn, presented his formal budget plan that would supposedly balance the budget by 2002, the same year Dole has targeted.

These two face a very important decision: Use the debate as a tool to do something wonderful for the United States or use the debate as a medium to deliver campaign rhetoric.

Some insiders say they believe there is potential for actually working out a deal.

Robert Reich, former congressional budget director, said the two men could probably work out a compromise between themselves, but their fellow party-members could stand in the way. A compromise would "rip the Democratic Party apart," he said, and it would infuriate Republicans in Congress who want to block Clinton from accomplishing anything that would make him look good in the public eye.

These are the same people who love to tell Americans about how the future of our children is at stake, yet they place these short-term gains in front of actually trying to form a plan that has a chance of being implemented.

We hope Clinton and Dole look beyond this type of arrogance to their campaigns. A real attempt at a balanced budget will require a lot of compromise, and both leaders will incite anger in their parties by making concessions.

But appealing politicians are not as important as eliminating our expensive deficits. Clinton’s $1.5 trillion plan for the budget year beginning on Oct. 1 allocates 15 percent of that money to interest that is accruing on the federal debt, nearly the same amount as defense spending. Many Americans want, what they don’t want is more empty rhetoric and games.

Morris Library circulation irritates student

The library is the heart of the University. At SIU we are privileged to have a library that is outstanding in many respects. Morris Library’s circulation system is an exception, and a consistent source of irritation to me and many of my colleagues who are also heavy library users.

Sad, when students return borrowed materials to the circulation desk, their responsibility is far from over. There is still a fair chance that the library will fail to code the return of or simply lose track of these materials. The student is guilty and responsible for these errors until proven innocent.

I have found it worthwhile to keep receipt for all the books I return since my first semester here, when I escaped being charged with the loss of a $40 book only by spending my valuable time pestering the charge. Astonishingly, the book was eventually found on the shelf. The wrong shelf. I strongly advise all library users to keep records for everything you return, to escape similar charges that may come your way.

But when my studies demand that I use dozens of books at a time, the receipts become a hassle to file and deal with. Yet I must not lose a single one, for I never know when I will be charged for a book I returned months ago. Why should students be obliged to deal with this, in addition to all other responsibilities?

Meanwhile, I was charged for a book missing or misplaced by circulation for the third time this year. Although the book was once again found on the shelf, the whole encounter was a waste of time, not for me, but also for the library personnel who had to deal with my complaint.

This brings me to my final point. The necessity for circulation to issue these hundreds of receipts and to have to resolve all these problems, of which circulation itself is the cause, is a waste of resources. If they could do things right the first time, we would all benefit.

Slashing defense budget incorrect

On Thursday, Feb. 29, Spike Perkins stated that the military wasn’t used for humanitarian causes.

While servicemen and women in Haiti and Bosnia might be told to disagreewith him, there’s a reason why the military isn’t used for humanitarian causes: The U.S. military purpose is to wage war and win. Or to be ready to do so when called upon, even though the real goal of most soldiers, and the real goal of the military, is to end war.

A couple of points need to be made about his comments concerning budget cuts, defense budgets and the deficic.

Under the GOP budget, Medicare, Social Security, Medicaid, and miscellaneous entitlements (food stamps, EITC, etc.) will increase by $228 billion in 1995. Perkins said we don’t hear much about cutting funding for the military yet, after adjusting for inflation, the defense budget has been slashed by 28 percent from 1989 to 1995. As a percentage of total outlays, defense spending has declined since the 1950s. Defense budgets comprised 60% of spending in 1950, 52% in 1960, and 1994 – although from 1985 to 1994 it was between 26.06% and 28.1%. The percentage of defense spending (after adjusting for inflation) is only 4 percent a year (emphasis mine). If you’re going to be picky about things like facts and logic, then tumbiing this house of cards is easy.

Starting in 1981, increasing the defense budget ($157.5 billion) by 4 percent a year is to be sure that we stayed ahead of inflation. Would have resulted in defense spending of $1.26 trillion.

Compared to the actual total defense outlays ($1.176 trillion), we see that the actual increase above inflation was under $716 billion, or roughly, less than $60 billion a year over 12 years.

During that same time frame, revenues increased $1.142 trillion over inflation or roughly $952 billion over 12 years.

Call me kooky, but I can’t see how spending an extra $5 billion a year over 12 years, while raising an extra $952 billion a year over 12 years could be the “only” reason for a $5 trillion dollar debt.

Even after adjusting for inflation, the federal government still spends twice what it did 30 years ago, and has been raising deficits even faster. Back long before the defense increase.

Since 1965 defense budgets have been cut in half (as a percent of outlays) while real revenues have doubled.

On the other hand, social spending has doubled its share of the pie, but the pie is now twice as large. Social spending (Social Security, Income Security, Medicare, Health, Education etc.) was 23 percent of outlays in 1965, and now 27 percent today.

Despite increases over the last 30 years, the percentage of people living below the poverty line was never higher than 12.5 percent and never lower than 11.4 percent. In fact, the percentage of poor people in 1996 has only 0.2 percent less than in 1966.

Reasonable people can disagree about the appropriate size, scope and role of the military – Perkins suggests we slash defense further, while greatly expanding its work lead to include being the International Meals on Wheels. He’s so reasonable that he doesn’t even whimper – but to suggest there is an “only” cause of the debt or the deficits is intellectually lazy.

Again, reasonable people can disagree about spending priorities, but if you believe that we need to continue increasing social spending then you had better be prepared to face the fact that cutting defense budgets is not the answer to the deficit, it’s planning on a shoestring.

You had better be prepared to face the fact that defense budgets are not the major, driving force in the debt and deficits.

You had better be prepared to accept the fact that – as even the Clinton administration has stated – deficit spending is not constrained, our children will pay over 85 percent of what they earn in their lifetimes in taxes. Just to make up for what you demand that we spend today.

Perhaps Mr. Perkins said it best, “This is as much a question of our priorities as it is a comment on the state of our souls. We simply cannot afford to play this game.”

University base reductions need approximately $4.5 million on top of that, also possible $5 million on a definable loss of $3.6 million. "It's a lot of money, but it doesn't tell us how," Karrow said. "We're looking to an independent agency evaluator to find out why the administration is not cost effective," Karrow said. "We're also considering an outside consultant to find out why tuition waivers will cost $2.1 million."

Karrow said another $5 million could possibly be required to cover "maintenance of assets" that includes faculty salaries and professional development. But administrators have not confirmed that the additional amount will be needed. "I think they're scared to say that on top of $3.6 million they're going to add another $5 million," Karrow said. The council also voted to consider the Undergraduate Student Government's recent proposals to increase student fees for funding, campus organizations and create an advisory board to monitor Student Program Council spending. "I think these two issues were separated because of their nature," Terry said. "We're looking at a 20 percent increase in $8.6 million and possibly another $5 million plus $2 million on top of that. Also a faculty hiring freeze looks more like a reality." The guidelines state that University base reductions will cut approximately $4.5 million, the contingency reserve will cost approximately $3 million and tuition waivers will cost $2.1 million. "I feel the Internet is becoming a new facet in searching for jobs," Karrow said. "This makes it much easier to find a job." Scales said SIUC's Campus Wide Information System (CWIS) offers a career information page where students can search national job listings by topic, city or state. He said searching the listings by keyword; only those related to one's field, is the most effective way to find a prospective job. The CWIS career page also offers links to other World Wide Web job resources, including: CareerMosaic, an international employment Web server that recently added a Asian directory, listing jobs in Singapore, Brussels, Hong Kong, Malaysia and Thailand. Job hunters can submit resume for employers and contact a stable directory of companies dealing directly with the server. "Hundreds of employers post thousands of jobs on CareerMosaic, and online job fairs like the one connected with career seekers, allowing application submission over the Web. The Job Web, which has a special directory specifically for students seeking for employment. Books and articles on Web job hunting are organized into a bibliography. There are career resources for minorities, both college graduates and those already in the job market. The Job Web also provides economic and industry projections and offers an occupational outlook handbook. Bowling leagues showing decline in recent study

Los Angeles Times

Last year, President Clinton quietly brought Harvard University professor Robert Putnam to Camp David to brief him and the Cabinet on a new threat to American democracy. A few months later, preparing for his State of the Union speeches, Clinton called the international relations expert to the White House for another update. The creeping menace, the professor warned the president, is not a hostile foreign power, but an enemy within.

It is the way Americans bowl: While more people bowl than ever, fewer bowl in leagues.

That may sound like an esoteric but Putnam's musings on a surprising number of supportrs, it symbolizes a frightening decline in social activities that keep American democracy healthy, from voting and reading newspapers to PTA membership and church supper.

Since Putnam outlined that theory last year in his scholarly paper, "Bowling Alone: America's Declining Social Capital," he has enjoyed an improbable burst of popularity among a broad range of opinion-makers from conservative George Will to card-carrying liberal Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Putnam's catchy metaphor to warn of a troubling disconnectedness and the collapse of America's sense of community is a compelling theory — until you check it out by venturing through bowling alleys for a few evenings.

What you find around the lanes, rather than a dearth of community, is a new kind of "social capital" more relaxed, less traditional pattern of social connection shaped by the new ways Americans live and work.

You see it on Friday nights in the northeast Los Angeles neighborhood of Eagle Rock, where the bar at the All Star Lanes runs to life with couples singing karaoke and line-dancing to "Cher-Cher Breakin'."

(If you're lucky, there might be a washbasin-sized pot of Filipino goat soup on the buffet table.)

It's there in Alhambra, where glow-in-the-dark bowling, with fluorescent balls and pins, draws thousands to the Alhambra Bowling Center.
The idea of romantic turmoil in a blues song or in a musical is hardly unique, but when a Broadway musical uses the blues to tell a story of man seeking love advice, then it becomes something different. "Five Guys Named Moe," which uses the power of a tale about troubles of the heart, will be presented Friday night at Shryock Auditorium.

Clare Peters wrote the musical, blending the music on songs by rhythm and blues artists Louis Jordan, who holds the all-time record for top 10 rhythm and blues hits with 18. Charles Augins is the director and choreographer of the musical, which currently is on a nationwide tour.

The show is about Nomax (Rann Ruffin), a young man who is having problems with his girlfriend. He for­ got her birthday, and she walked out on him, leaving him with the blues.

Five guys jump out of his radio and help Nomax deal with the situation. Incidentally, all five guys are named Moe. They are: No Moe (Dennis Stowe), Big Moe (Michael Sheppard), Little Moe (Dennis Wilson), Eat Moe (Takay Lawrance) and Four-Eyed Moe (Angelo Adkins). The Moes have advice for Nomax that stems from their unique personalities, Adkins said. "Four-Eyed Moe is sort of a joker," he said. "He has trouble with the girls. He is having troubles with a girl in Paris, and he can relate to Nomax.

Adkins said his character is the talker of the group.

The show has a six-piece band playing the music on stage during the performance, Adkins said. The band features three horns, a bass, drums and a piano.

Stacey has a happy-go­ lucky voice that sounds like some of the punk artists of the early 80's. She found as though he had too many songs in the recording studio, his go­go vocals add to the fast­paced mixture of traditional R&B music and an interesting rock sound that makes the music of the Pogues.

Massage is a song that is somewhat humorous look at the plight of "two dummies." The ballad "Anniversary" sounds like it easily could change over that for fans who can't find the continuity that has been established.

Greg Edwards, the energy band's lead singer, heard how much of a hit the group is on the radio in Ireland. Edwards was in a room from Newtown, Iowa, and he said he heard how much of a hit the group is on the radio in Ireland.

"Five Guys Named Moe" plays at 8 p.m. Friday at Shryock Auditorium. Tickets are $18.50/$16.50, and there is a $4 discount for children 12 and under.
Homosexual characters and stories are still somewhat of a novelty in major Hollywood blockbuster movies. It seems big-budget producers and movie execs are too frightened to alienate the heterosexual majority by making films that directly address gays as regular people.

So how do you proceed in making a "safe," predominantly gay movie? You cast a mainstream, straight, heterosexual Hollywood actor like Robin Williams to play the gay lead role. At least that is what Mike Nichols did in "Birdcage," the remake of the 1978 French Film "La Cage Aux Folles."

Though the film is a comedy that tucks a look at a family's sexual dysfunction by society's terms because the father is gay, its bigger focus is the trials and tribulations of having a homosexual family member in a somewhat prejudiced world. Williams plays Armon Goldman, a Jewish homosexual who owns a drag queen night club in South Beach. His son, Val, was raised partly by his father and his father's lover, tells him of his plans to get married. At first, Armon is happy. But when Val tells him it is to the daughter of the conservative Sen. "Hollywood homo" that many funny and are meant to poke fun at their source and not at their sub-

In the beginning, the film follows in the way that "Philadelphia" grabbed many viewers and gave them their first true look at some of the feelings, pains and pleasures that homosexuals feel, just like "real people," or heterosexuals are called in the movie. But "Birdcage" achieves this in a more much more, less painful way. The movie, even in times of seriousness, seems to find its way to the viewer's funny-bone. This comedy usually is at the expense of others, who plays the stereotypical "Hollywood homo" that many movies have put out like oddities. In one such case, Albert (Nathan Lane), a drag-queen performer in the nightclub. When the senator and his wife visit Miami to meet Armon, the man of his dreams. In the beginning, the film follows in the way that "Philadelphia" touched scene in the movie. "Lane's performance is a good one, but it is Williams' clear-headed, confident character who realizes the boundaries set upon him because of his sexual preference. It gives viewers their true link to the dilemma within the comedy presented in the movie. What seems somehow confusing are the small doses of dark comedy thrown into the mix. When Ely Jackson, head of the morals committee, dies after having sex with an undercover black prostitute, Keeley's future is in jeopardy. While listening to the radio, the news repeated that the Rev. Al Sharpton believed Jackson's comments to the prostitute before he died. "Your money is on the counter, chocolate," was a racist statement. Keeley replied, "Now the blacks will be against us."

These incidents occur throughout the film, before and after the senator and Armon meet. These incidents have no true bearing on anything. There are satirical but funny and are meant to poke fun at their source and not at their subjects. No matter how serious, funny, straight or gay the film becomes, there is never too much or too little of any of these. The film is genuine and even will tug at the heartstrings of the straightest men and women in the world.

Spot in ‘Sweet 16’ round of NCAA tourney puts Razorbacks’ players in hog heaven

The Washington Post

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — Nolan Richardson usually could be found out on a golf course when the backdrop was the Razorbacks. But this week the NCAA tourney was presented the past few seasons. This year, however, something new was found: the Arkansas coach squarely in front of a television, like the coaches from all the other states around the country who wondered if they would get in.

“Before, I won't go in [that] I didn't care who we were playing or where. But this year, I watched it real close,” Richardson said. “The way they did it, with the East first, we were one of the first teams up on the screen. If that wasn’t the case, I knew my heart would have been pure and I was going to bigger and bigger and my throat would have been tightening. But once I saw our name, I didn’t care where we were going or who we were playing.”

Things seem back to normal with the Razorbacks. Victors over Penn State and Marquette in the first two rounds of the East Region have sent Arkansas into the round of 16 for the fourth-straight year and sixth time in the past seven seasons.

But unlike its predecessors, this team advanced as an underdog 12th seed. The Razorbacks had no other at-large selection needed below them (only champions from weaker leagues), and they were placed in the same region as Massachusetts, the nation’s No. 1 team and their opponent in Thursday night’s regional semifinal in Atlanta. These things mean that Arkansas was probably the last school admitted to the 64-team field.

That the Razorbacks (20-12) entered the tournament with a 20-point loss to Kentucky in their previous game and a hiring surge that featured four freshmen didn’t bode well for their prospects. But if it wasn’t quite the formula used by the previous two Arkansas teams, which won the national title in 1994 and lost to UCLA in the 1995 championship game, it does have a familiar ring to it.

“Do we start four freshmen? We just tell ourselves that Michigan studied five freshmen (in 1992) and they went to the championship game,” Pat Summitt said.

Former pro hoops player indicted on federal charges

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Former professional basketball player Charles “Hawkeye” Whitney has been indicted by a federal grand jury on federal charges

Whitney, 38, a former All-American at North Carolina State University and a former Kansas City Kings professional ballplayer, could face life in prison.

If convicted of all charges, Whitney, who was arrested March 1 and charged with kidnapping White House lawyer Mark Fabiani while Fabiani was on his way home from a Metrorapid stop in suburban Alexandria, Va, on Jan. 26, Whitney allegedly forced Fabiani into a car and, along with an accomplice named “Bill,” drove him to cash machines in Washington.

Fabricant told police he withdrew $1,000 from two cash machines and gave it to the two men, Whitney allegedly gave Fabiani $10 for cab fare and released him unharmed. Fabiani also was given back his watch, cellular phone and briefcase.

Maybe now is the time for three rarely recognized bench players to step filling the void left by Rodman.

With the added absence of Pippen due to a sore back, the Bulls will certainly be tested over the duration of Rodman’s suspension, which ends April 2.

The possibility of Pippen entering play sooner than expected as a result of Rodman’s suspension and fine is that he was only suspended for six games and not charged with malicious as I've seen a pitcher since I've been in college baseball," Callahan said.

"One thing that he had going for him that day is that he was really in control."

Callahan said Hutton is not a dominating pitcher, a side usually cornered by pitchers who can throw 90 mph or better.

"Tory's strength is not his velocity; it's his movement and the fact that he throws strikes down in the zone," Callahan said. "That's why he's done as well as he has.

"In the summer season, Hutton has only walked four batters, and Callahan said if a pitcher can keep his walk total under five, chances are he's going to win.

While in ICC last season, Hutton fanned 53 baserunners, while walking only seven.

Hutton said his greatest asset as a pitcher is his ability to control his pitches and place them where he wants to.

"My best asset is my control," he said. "I try to keep the ball low and get ground ball outs. I really don't try to make strikes; I just just focus on where I want to throw the ball, either outside, inside or out."

Tory's father, Gerald Hutton, said his son began pitching at a very young age and has always had the ability to put the ball where he wanted to go.

"Tory has always said good control," he said. "He was always ahead of everybody and has always done a good job."

"I really didn't think he would be a collegiate pitcher in college because of the tough competition, but he's doing one hell of a job."

"Tory Hutton said he loves playing for SIUC and enjoys the competition most of all."

"He said he is really enjoying being on the mound and will continue to work hard to improve his game every year."
Saluki pitcher throws way to top of rotation

NCAA tournament basketball action, The Midwest and East Regions will play their semi-finals today. In the Midwest Regional Kentucky (30-2), bottles Ush (27-6), and Wake Forest (25-5) battle Louisville (22-11). UMass (33-1) takes on Arkansas (20-12) and Georgetown (28-7) collides with Texas Tech (30-1) in the East Regional.

Florida State University's football program was given a one-year suspension by the NCAA Monday in part for it's involvement in the now infamous $6,000 Foot Locker shopping spree, but did market television appearances or place restrictions on scholastic duties. The NCAA also advised from banning the Seminoles from postseason appearances, which in effect poses no problems with FSU from being in either major college football polls or from going after a national championship next season.

Rodman's head butt causes headaches for Bulls

In playing 52 games for the Chicago Bulls without incident, Dennis Rodman has averaged over 15 rebounds per game, but it was only a matter of time before Rodman's volume would erupt. Rodman's head butt causes headaches for Bulls regiment was somewhat of a downer for the Bulls over the past couple of years, and obtaining Rodman from the San Antonio Spurs was an effort by the Bulls to once again make an all-out drive for the NBA title. Certainly with two of the NBA's top scorers (Michael Jordan and Scottie Pippen) already in place, the has no scheduled date been cancelled due to rodman would be able to do it. The last two summers I spent in professional sports for a franchise.

A New Department at City Hall
Beginning Next Fiscal Year

Beginning May 1, 1996, the City's 1997 Fiscal Year Budget will include a new department - The Community Services Department. The department is being created to provide better organization and coordination of social and human programs that already exist as part of City government. The Community Services Department will include the Eunna C. Hayes Child Care Program; Community Relations, Affirmative Action and EEO; Community Youth Coordination; Contract Compliance Monitoring for Social Service Agencies and Construction Projects; Affordable Housing Program Coordination; and Property Disposition.

The position of Community Services Director/Assistant City Manager has been created to manage the new Community Services Department and to provide assistance to the City Manager in the general management of the City. Don Monty, a longtime City employee, has been transferred from the position of Management Research and Analysis Manager, a position he has held since 1982, to the new position of Community Services Director/Assistant City Manager, effective January 1, 1996. Mr. Monty's former position in the Finance Department has been eliminated, however, he will continue to perform several of the same duties, including grant administration and budgeting, in his capacity of Assistant City Manager.

The reorganization will result in a better organization and coordination of social and human programs, provide general assistance in the City Manager's Office and allow the Human Resources Manager to devote almost 100% of her time to the City's Personnel programs.

Public Hearing Scheduled on City Budget

The budget for City Fiscal Year 1997 (FY 97) which begins on May 1, 1996 is in preparation. A Public Hearing is scheduled to be held on November 13, 1995 when the City Council will conduct a special meeting to discuss City goals and objectives and strategies which would be the basis for the budget. Since then the City staff has been busy preparing the budget in accordance with the City Council's policy direction. As of this writing it is planned for the proposed budget to be available for public review beginning March 23.

Comprehensive Plan Preparation Begins Public Participation Solicited

The City has hired the planning firm of Camiros, Ltd. in association with Hanson Engineers to prepare a new Comprehensive Plan for the City and the area within two miles of the City limits. Although the consultant will be drafting the plan, the plan will come from the ideas of the community. The Comprehensive Plan process includes many opportunities for citizen participation. An Advisory Committee appointed by the City Council will meet frequently with the consultants. A random survey of 500 persons will be surveyed in March, 1996. A series of forums and community meetings will occur through the Spring and Fall of 1996. The Comprehensive Plan is scheduled to be completed in the Spring of 1997 after a final set of public meetings including the Planning Commission and City Council.

Additional Housing Rehabilitation Grants Approved

In October the City of Carbondale applied to the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs (DCCA) for a grant to rehabilitate additional homes in Northeast Carbondale. Recently DCCA announced the approval of a grant to the City for $350,000. A grant application has also been submitted to the Illinois Housing Development Authority for the housing rehabilitation program. The City is eligible to receive up to 38 homes. Once the grant documents have been processed by the two State agencies and signed by the City, implementation of the grants will begin. It is anticipated that if it could be May before grants can be made to homeowners in Northeast Carbondale from these new funds. The City will mail new application forms to persons who applied last year but were not able to be funded. (There had been over 80 applications, but only enough funds to do about 20 homes.) Persons who did not apply in 1995 can contact the City to request an application also, and they will be mailed one when the applications are available. Questions about the application process or requests for an application should be directed to the Development Services Department at 457-3248.

Wanted: Housing Rehabilitation Contractors and Subcontractors

Any contractors and subcontractors who are interested in participating in the City's housing rehabilitation program are encouraged to contact the Building and Neighborhood Services Division at 457-3237. Before contractors and subcontractors can bid on projects, they need to be pre-qualified. The pre-qualification process involves verifying the contractor's work experience, evidence of insurability, and possession of appropriate licenses. The approval of all these latest grants will provide a steady flow of work for qualified contractors and subcontractors who can submit competitive bids. Contractors and subcontractors should contact the City immediately if they are interested in doing housing rehabilitation work.
Town Meeting Responses

By Jeff Doherty
City Manager

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) has been conducting a series of “Town Meetings” throughout Carbondale in an effort to hear the concerns and needs of citizens. The CAC has received numerous comments on matters ranging from community wide issues to specific neighborhood and alley problems.

Youth Services and Programs: A common concern among citizens is the need for more youth programs including recreational, educational, and employment opportunities, teen center and after school opportunities. The Carbon, Clay, and Brown counties have begun delivering the delivery system for youth programs in the community. During the Town meetings, the CAC expressed the need to further develop neighborhood youth cooperation to better coordinate the availability of current programs and to bring together the many agencies and organizations offering youth programs in order to share resources and avoid duplications.

The Community Youth Coordinator is active in Carbondale and a Youth Advisory Committee comprised of high school and junior high school students, working with the City’s Community's After School Initiative, working to develop new youth programs. The City Council in conjunction with Carbondale Junior Sports and Carbondale Soccer, Inc. to improve the delivery of these programs.

New programs that are in the development stages include a teen center. This program or another program or project often discussed in our community is the need for a community park. The City Council has discussed the idea of an aquatic park development in the City. The idea was originally put forth by the City planning commission which developed a scenario discussion by the Carbondale Park District. Funding is the current issue with the City planning for various scenarios that could lend to the development of an outdoor swimming facility.

Economic Development: New job opportunities was a need expressed during the Town meetings. New opportunities are needed to keep manufacturing jobs and other employment opportunities in Carbon, Clay, and Brown counties. The City has also been trying to attract new manufacturing jobs and other employment opportunities in the area.

Karaoke Night: Last week's Karaoke Night was a great success. The City plans to hold another Karaoke Night in the near future.

Neighborhood Town Meetings: During the Town meetings, there were comments about the maintenance of certain streets and ditches. The City has initiated the Neighborhood Town Meetings throughout the city in an effort to bring together residents and City officials to discuss neighborhood issues and plans.

Springs Clean Up Day is a city-wide project sponsored by the Carbondale Clean and Green which mobilizes hundreds of volunteers to collect litter from around the community. Last year 5 tons of trash were collected by 534 volunteers completing 50 community and university-relatedorgnizations and numerous individuals. The result of this effort is a cleaner community and a heightened awareness of the need to control litter. Their rewards were a free lunch for all, free T-shirts, and prizes for the groups collecting the most litter provided by Carbondale merchants.

Spring Clean Up will take place Saturday April 20, 1996, from 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon. Volunteers will report to Turley Park for their clean up assignments. The volunteers will report back to the park for lunch and afternoon festivities which will include music and the announcement of winners.

This year will mark the ninth year the Spring Clean Up has taken place. This is your chance to participate in a worthwhile community event that empowers individuals to take part in an environmentally significant activity.

We are encouraging individuals and groups to volunteer so that they can qualify for points for the litter collection. If you would like to pre-register or need additional information, please call Carbondale Clean and Green at 529-4148 weekdays mornings.

The City of Carbondale is busy preparing for Spring Clean-up. Beginning April 26, 1996, the City of Carbondale will conduct a special program designed to help you get rid of your accumulation of trash.

Wayne Wheeler, Maintenance and Environmental Services Manager for the City Public Works Department, requests Clean and Green’s Spring Clean-up Day as the kick-off time for the City’s Spring Clean up program.

The City’s program serves all residents of single family dwellings including dwellings with no more than four units. The cleanup will address large household items, and general trash only from the dwelling unit being served—NO HAULING FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE. Items will be collected only if brought to curbside. Collections are scheduled for Friday and subsequent Saturday as volumes dictate. Your specific collection day is scheduled by zones as specified below:

The City of Carbondale is busy preparing for Spring Clean-up. Beginning April 26, 1996, the City of Carbondale will conduct a special program designed to help you get rid of your accumulation of trash.

Wayne Wheeler, Maintenance and Environmental Services Manager for the City Public Works Department, requests Clean and Green’s Spring Clean-up Day as the kick-off time for the City’s Spring Clean up program.

The City’s program serves all residents of single family dwellings including dwellings with no more than four units. The cleanup will address large household items, and general trash only from the dwelling unit being served—NO HAULING FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE. Items will be collected only if brought to curbside. Collections are scheduled for Friday and subsequent Saturday as volumes dictate. Your specific collection day is scheduled by zones as specified below:

ZONE #1 - FRIDAY, APRIL 26, 1996 - (Monday’s City Refuse Route) All East of the Illinois Central Railroad.

ZONE #2 - FRIDAY, MAY 3, 1996 - (Tuesday’s City Refuse Route) All South of Main Street, East of Little Crab Orchard Creek, and West of Oakdale Avenue (except Oakdale Avenue).

Scene of Tragic Fire Demolished

On August 14, 1994 a fire severely damaged the home at 424 East Oak Street and killed eight young children. Following the fire, the City contacted the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which had owned the home, and arranged for the City to purchase the home. With HUD’s cooperation, the City was able to acquire the home.

The Planning Commission

The Planning Commission reviewed and recommended the proposed Comprehensive Plan to the City Council on April 16. The budget will be available for examination at the Carbondale Public Library and at the Finance Department and City Clerk’s offices at City Hall. The public hearing on the FY 97 budget is currently scheduled for April 2 in the City Council Chambers at 609 East College Street. It is anticipated that the budget will be adopted by the City Council on April 16. Persons interested in examining the budget or attending the budget hearing may want to contact the City Clerk’s Office at 405 W. Main St. and be closer to verify that the budget is on schedule. Although the budget schedule is normally met, on occasion it may slip a week or two.

The Planning Commission

The last issue of the Carbondale Communique described the role of the Planning Commission and the Commission’s recommendations. The Planning Commission also played an important role in the City’s planning efforts. The Planning Commission is comprised of 14 voting members and a non-voting member from the City Council. The Commission members are the City’s Planning Commission and the City Council members of the City Planning Commission and the City Council members of the City Planning Commission.

The Planning Commission includes the following duties for the Planning Commission:

1. Recommend to the City Council a Comprehensive Plan as a subcommittee of the future physical and social development of the City and up to 1/2 mile of City limits.

2. The Planning Commission may appear and recommend to the City Council from time to time changes in the Comprehensive Plan.

3. The Planning Commission is to promote the Comprehensive Plan.

4. Make recommendations to the City Council concerning economic development or for improvement of housing conditions within the City.

5. Review and make recommendations to the City Council concerning the Capital Improvements Program for the City as it relates to the Comprehensive Plan.

6. Review and make recommendations to the City Council on proposals for zoning and development.

7. Conduct public hearings on amendments to the zoning ordinance.

8. Make recommendations on other matters relative to the development of the City.

9. Review and comment on the Preservation Commission’s recommendations.

The Planning Commissionartery is an example of the way that citizens can participate in the government of their City. There are many other Boards and Commissions available to citizens for service to the City. If you are interested in serving on the Planning Commission or another City board or commission should contact the Mayor’s Office.

Carbondale Police Department Reviews Complaints

The Carbondale Police Department has released a summary of internal affairs investigations initiated during 1996. The summary includes an analysis of the investigation of the community’s integrity and the city's mission to provide quality police service in a fair, sensitive and professional manner.

On January 16, 1996, the City Council cleared the property. The next day the house was demolished by a contractor hired by the City.
