Bush, Gore dominate election

Local uncontested elections give predicted results

JASON COKER, KATE MCCANN, & ANNE MARIE TAVELLA
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTERS

Results from Jackson County primary elections Tuesday showed further support for Vice President Al Gore and Texas Gov. George W. Bush, as well as other incumbents and those running uncontested in Jackson County.

In local elections, Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, defeated Kenneth Charles "Bud" Wietzer in the Democratic primary for 12th U.S. District Congress. There was no republican candidate on the ballot.

In two unsurprising victories for the 115th District Representative primaries, Rep. Mike Bost, R-Murphysboro, won the Republican primary and Robert L. Koehn won the Democratic primary. Both campaigns were uncontested.

Presidential Primary

Vice President Al Gore and Texas Gov. George W.

Bush, won the Democratic and Republican presidential primaries, respectively. Gore received 1,862 votes while Bush received 1,568 votes on their parties' ballots.

Gore has won every primary and caucus in his campaign this year. He continued his winning streak in Jackson County and also claimed victory in Illinois.

His only challenger, former New Jersey Sen. Bill Bradley, waged a competitive campaign, and, for a while, led Gore in fund-raising. Bradley bowed out of the campaign earlier this month.

Gore centered his campaign around many issues, including his political experience, foreign affairs and the environment. But it is his economic policy that garnered the most support.

Gore is well liked among the SIUC College Democrats, said Vice President Leslie Rossman, a sophomore in political science from Northbrook.

The College Democrats, she said, campaigned all day Tuesday to get students to vote. They did phone polling and handed out fliers to students.

Moving down the road to recovery

Retired SIUC police officer recuperates from stroke leaving lasting impressions on those who helped him

RHONDA SCIARRA
STUDENT AFFAIRS EDITOR

James "Trigger" Lindsey lay in a bed for more than a month at the Herrin Acute Rehabilitation Center in Herrin Hospital oblivious to his surroundings.

It had been almost two months since Lindsey suffered a sudden heart attack, followed by crippling stroke and catatonic seizure. He then received the phone call that brought him back to life.

The birthday phone call from his son came at 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 3. Trigger picked up the phone to hear his son James Lindsey's voice. After weeks of worrying about his father's condition, his son knew that in that instant his father would recover when they first exchanged words.

"It just seemed like he snapped out of it," James said. "We joked. We talked. I can say that was the first time I knew I had my dad back."

But it would be a long, hard journey for Trigger to return to his normal self after being in a position where no one thought he would survive.

On the afternoon of July 15, Trigger, a retired SIUC police officer and Carbondale resident, became fatigued while carrying lunch trays for the senior citizens at Senior Adult Services, 409 N. Springer St. Trigger had volunteered at the center daily for the last two years.

Sweating extensively and flushed, Trigger knew something was wrong, but because of his stubbornness, he adamantly refused to be taken anywhere in an ambulance.

Instead, another worker at the senior center drove him into the emergency room of Memorial Hospital of Carbondale: Lindsey walked into the emergency room, explained what was wrong, and lay down in a nearby examining room. That was the last thing he would remember for almost two months.

After surviving the first few days at Memorial Hospital, Trigger's family had him moved to St. John's Hospital in Springfield. Shortly after his father suffered the heart attack, Trigger's son James prepared to make the drive from Dallas to Springfield to see his father, unaware of how serious his father's condition was.

While Trigger was being treated for the heart attack, he suffered a stroke while at St. John's Hospital. The stroke left him unable to move the left side of his body and hindered his speech and thinking.

"The doctors then advised me to get on the next available flight from Dallas," James said. "They didn't think he would make the night."

Trigger was not expected to go home again.

A man called Trigger

Lindsey is referred to as "Trigger" by almost everyone who knows him. There are two stories behind the moniker. One day as a child, a neighbor told him if he did not stop crying, his new name would be Jim Trigger.

In high school, Trigger pretended he was from a radio station and asked a schoolmate a trivia question about the name of Roy Rogers' horse. When the girl answered "Trigger," he told her she was correct, that she had won 14 pounds of horse manure and then hung up. The girl told all of her friends the next day, and the name Trigger stuck.

Dual headquarters created unusual circumstance

President's Office employee received improper travel reimbursements

JAYETTE BOLINSKI
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

An SIUC President's Office employee was improperly reimbursed $4,500 for travel expenses last year, according to the findings released Tuesday by the Illinois Auditor General.

University officials maintain, however, that the employee worked under unique circumstances and the travel reimbursements actually saved SIUC about $2,900.

Jack Dyer, former media coordinator for the President's Office, claimed and received reimbursements for the cost of commuting between his primary office in Carbondale and his residence in St. Louis during days when he actually was working at the Edwardsville campus. At the time of the reimbursements, Dyer maintained a secondary office at the Edwardsville campus, creating what the President's Office calls an unusual circumstance for the employee and the University.

State guidelines stipulate that no employees, including those who work for SIUC, are to be reimbursed for commuting from home to work.

University officials apparently believed Dyer deserved some sort of compensation for his commute. The alternative to reimbursing Dyer for travel expenses, University officials told the auditor's office, would have been to pay out an additional $2,900 over the course of the year for hotel lodging because Dyer was not working at his primary headquarters.

Because Dyer maintained two headquarters, he may have been eligible for a state exception to the travel

Seven burglaries occur over break

Police have no suspects in any of the incidences

DAVID FERRARA
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Burglars entered seven SIUC student residences during spring break, and Carbondale police said Tuesday they believe the incidents are unrelated. At least three of the burglaries involved broken windows, but police said that in five of the burglaries the residents left their doors or windows unlocked.

The DAILY EGYPTIAN received information on six of the burglaries. But information on a seventh reported burglary was unavailable as of Tuesday.

In one incident, students returned to their apartment in the 600 block of South University Avenue and found a man in their apartment. The students gave police a description of the man, who is the only suspect in any of the burglaries, police said. The suspect is described as a 185-pound, 5-foot 10-inch black man who was last seen wearing dark pants, a blue jacket, a black shirt and a white baseball cap. The students returned to their apartment and found the suspect stealing a videocassette recorder. Police have no suspects in any of the following incidents:

- A 22 year-old SIUC woman said she returned from spring break this weekend to her apartment in the 600 block of South Poplar Street to find a television, computer, answering machine and

USG to discuss athletic fee

Undergraduate Student Government will meet tonight at 7 in Student Center Ballroom B.

Senators will debate a resolution calling for the opposition of the 6-percent athletic fee increase for fiscal year 2002.

A resolution expressing USG's disapproval of the Notification and Violence Disclosure Protocol, a policy that allows the University to contact parents of under-21-year-old students that have violated laws or policies regarding drugs and alcohol, will also be debated.

Footo will not return

Dean Joe Footo announced that he will be taking a position at Arizona State University

ANDREA DONALDSON
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Joe Footo, dean of the College of Mass Communication and Media Arts, announced to the college faculty, Tuesday afternoon, that he will be permanently leaving SIUC as of June 30.

Footo will be taking a position at Arizona State University as the director of the Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Telecommunication, effective July 15. He will also be a Walter Cronkite Endowment professor.

"It is a very fine school, rated in the top 10 in both broadcast and print media," Footo said. "It's a school that had exceptional leadership — Doug Anderson, an SIUC alumnus, recently stepped down as the director of the Walter Cronkite School of Journalism — and has a faculty that appreciates good leadership."

Footo announced in November that he would be resigning as dean to take a year-long sabbatical to do research. After which, he was to return to the college as a member of the Radio-Television Department faculty.

He said he was looking forward to his sabbatical leave and the chance to further his research, but administrative challenges have always tugged at him.

The position at the Walter Cronkite School of Journalism was brought to Footo's attention in late January, and he met with Cronkite in New York during an interview process in February. Footo decided Monday to accept the position at ASU.

"When the opportunity arose [with ASU], it was difficult to resist," Footo said.

Footo said this was a very opportune time to make such a move with his older son graduating high school. Though problems may occur, he said his two younger children will be able to adjust to the move.

Another chance to save an Illinois landmark

State bill is in the works to save the Old Slave House

DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The future of the Old Slave House now rests in the hands of Illinois lawmakers. A bill has been offered by state legislators to have the state purchase the Old Slave House, where slaves were allegedly held and sold into slavery during the mid-to-late 1800s.

Senate Bill 1951 was offered Feb. 24 by State Rep. Ned Mitchell of the 59th District. The bill allocates $550,000 from the state general revenue fund to the Illinois Historical Preservation Agency to purchase the house.

Mitchell, who is currently running for re-election and could not be reached for comment, added the bill to the Senate's appropriations bill under the member initiatives rule. A member initiative is a special amendment for specific projects that is attached to larger appropriation bills by lawmakers.

Since February, the bill has been in the Illinois Senate rules committee. If the bill stays in committee, it could be lost for the rest of the spring session.

"The state is our last hope," said George Sisk, the house's owner for the last 30 years. "We don't have that many options. If they don't purchase the house, I'm afraid it will be lost."

Women have always spoken out against injustice. Yet, 9 out of 10 women raped on campus don't say a word. Maybe it's because most campus rapes are committed by someone the victim knows, so she may think it doesn't count. Except, no one asks for rape. And no one has the right to force you into sex against your will.

OUR WORD

Lobbying students reflect the best of SIUC

Fifteen SIUC students and four SIUC-Edwardsville students made their way to Springfield March 8, hoping to garner support for SIUC for the proposed budget of $320.6 million for the fiscal year 2001. This budget, an increase of 5.7 percent for SIUC, was recommended by Gov. George Ryan.

What these 19 students did, proves one thing: students at SIUC care about their University. The students who went to Springfield reflect the best of our student body.

They did not go to Springfield unaware of University issues. They went in and showed, as representatives of the student body, that students are educated and care about University issues. They reflected SIUC positively, showing that when you care enough about your school and fellow classmates, good things may surface.

Legislators, including David Luechtefeld, R-Okawville, and Carol Ronen, D-Chicago, appreciated the visit from the SIUC students.

The students from SIUC spent eight hours traveling by bus and lobbying with legislators from Illinois. They presented each of the legislators with an information packet about SIUC.

One main change in the budget concerns faculty salaries. The new budget would almost bring SIUC salaries to the level of other state universities and peer institutions outside of Illinois. These may retain faculty interested in teaching at a higher-paying university.

Several new academic programs, including a new environmental policy and resources doctorate program, were also discussed.

With the final approval of the budget, these programs could take shape, and the first doctorate program for environmental policy and resources would begin in fall 2001.

One of the big selling points of SIUC to prospective students is campus appearance. If the proposed budget is approved, deferred maintenance may be attended to. Altgeld Hall, the Old Baptist Foundation and the Communications Building would benefit from the appropriate funding.

The $29 million decrease to the proposed budget made by Ryan in Springfield that day in no way diminishes the accomplishment of those students who traveled to Springfield to lobby for the budget.

It does not diminish the fact that those students spent an entire day working toward their goal of making sure SIUC receives the full amount of the proposed budget.

Searching for Joey Potter

The final nail has been hammered into the coffin of spring break 2000. Let us reflect upon the week that was: I spent my break on the coast, in search of movie stars. No, I didn't go to Los Angeles — come on, I'm a poor student, too. Actually I spent part of my vacation in Wilmington, N.C. Some of you may be scratching your heads and wondering what sort of famous folk reside in that particular part of the nation. Well, don't feel alone because I had no clue either. However, one of my wisest friends knew the answer: the cast of "Dawson's Creek."

For those of you unaware of the show, here's a little run-down: The show stars several up-and-coming actors, namely my favorite, Katie Holmes (who plays Joey Potter). She's a button-nosed angel with a smile that could melt butter. Anyway, it's the story of four high school kids living in the fictional town of Capeside who have more problems than most adults you know. In addition, they use a lot of big words and talk like 50-year-old rocket scientists. For example, "Dawson, your impudent disregard for my frangible psyche has caused a rift in my otherwise lucid acumen on the kinship of our peers and because of it, I find myself torn and somewhat askew." And these are teenagers. Really.

Anyway, I was a little apprehensive about spending my time in search of pseudo-famous people whose show appears on one of the lowest rated channels on the planet. However, once we arrived in Capeside — I mean Wilmington — I immediately felt the fever. At every tourist attraction, I saw an autographed picture of the cast, hung proudly over the cash register. In one of the shops, the cast and many other famous people had actually signed a wall. Thanks to my eager friend, we were also able to obtain a copy of one of the autographed pictures and a FAQ sheet on the cast. We drove around town and got pictures of some of the shooting locations. We even got some hilarious stories on the cast's extra-curricular (read: drunken) activities. (Don't worry, Katie, I'll never tell.) And finally, we found our way to the production facility.

My heart began to race, my palms began to sweat. We walked up to the gate and were brutally rebuffed. The tours, which occur every weekend, had ended and it would be another five days before we would be allowed a chance to get into the lives of Dawson and company. However, the guard felt sorry for us and allowed us past the gates. The guard took our picture as we posed in front of a giant mural of the cast. For my friend, and now me, this was bittersweet. We were able to smell the candy, but not have a taste.

As we left and headed further down the coast, I began thinking, what makes us so enamored by stars? Aren't they just people like us? How was I so easily enchanted by these kids? What if the people you look at every day are destined for fame? Will you give them a second look, or just walk on by? I guess in some ways, famous people are role models. We want to be like them, or look like them, or act like them, or even be able to say we knew a guy who knew a girl who had a friend who saw one of them once.

Some of you may think it absurd that mature adults would spend an inordinate amount of time looking for famous people. For those doubters, in the tradition of Dawson and his pals, I offer you this gem of wisdom: "Don't seize the mirth of your fellow man, for it could perilously lambaste their fundamental felicity and cause incorrigible impairment."

University funds should be put to better use

DEAR EDITOR:

I have recently finished reading the DAILY EGYPTIAN on Friday, March 3, and was surprised to see that the school hired Civitas to redesign the land.

The school talks about how it does not have enough funds to keep the maintenance up on the school, as far as new roofs or bad piping. Yet here it is paying $20,000 for the first of three steps to make the aesthetic of the school better.

In my opinion, I believe this is a waste of the funds the school has, which should be used for alternate needs. Many of the things going wrong at school, such as parking and maintenance, need to be addressed before we move on to making the campus look a little better, which I believe looks very nice right now. If we keep wasting our revenue on these things, enrollment will continue to drop because of poor activities students have about things already currently messed up.

[Interim Chancellor] John Jackson and [Vice Chancellor for Administration] Glen Postland need to realize this before they waste too much time and money on needless things. Also, the raises in student fees for the Student Center, Student Health Services, and University Housing rates are all needed increases to keep up the services we currently have. The items needed for these things have to come from somewhere, and, personally, a few more dollars on my bursar is not going to change much to get what we need. I agree with the increases to keep these services up to par.

Greeks wrongly placed in negative light

DEAR EDITOR:

Once again the DAILY EGYPTIAN has managed to insult the greek system at SIUC without an ounce of factual information or insight as to the reality of the situation.

David Ferrara's article titled "SIUC man awaits hate crime hearing" printed in the March 21 edition of the DAILY EGYPTIAN identified Daniel Paczynski as an SIUC student living at the Sigma Pi fraternity house located at 606 W. College St.

Not only does Paczynski not even live at the fraternity house, but any idiot could realize by looking in the phone book that the Sigma Pi fraternity house is not located at 606 W. College St.; it is located at 307 W. College St.

Whether or not the author's intention was to say that the Sigma Pi fraternity house is full of a bunch of homophobic guys who beat up homosexuals is irrelevant because people who read the article, but not the retraction, are going to assume that the guys living there hate homosexual people and find nothing wrong with beating them up for no reason.

Maybe if you stopped attempting to get information from 12 year olds and drink people who have no idea what's going on, you might be able to print a factual article one of these days.

There is no reason that this magazine should have happened. You have managed to insult 50 decent guys just because your reporters don't know how to research.

So thank you once again for the support of your school's greek system.

Bobby Rush continues to hang on Chicago Congressional seat

Harvard man loses by slim margin

KATE MCCANN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The intense race for the Democratic candidate in the 1st Congressional District drew to a close when U.S. Congressman Bobby Rush beat out three other black candidates to claim the seat in the historic south-side district late Tuesday.

Rush, 53, beat out second-favored candidate, Illinois State Sen. Barack Obama, D-Chicago, after Obama managed to gain support in the racially mixed Hyde Park neighborhood, the predominantly white western suburbs, and other neighborhoods in the 1st District.

Obama, 38, has similar views as Rush on most political issues such as gun control, universal health care, social security and most other major policy issues.

The two candidates' contrasting backgrounds and the "old vs. new" aspect of the election sparked city-wide debate in the congressional race. Obama, a graduate of Harvard Law school from a racially mixed family, has displayed a more adverse attitude toward protesting than Rush.

Rush, a graduate of Roosevelt University, has distinguished himself as a more radical civil rights activist.

In addition to co-founding the Illinois Black Panther Party and marching in several protests against police brutality, Rush has a long political history in Illinois. He has had the position of 1st District Congressman for four consecutive terms, following prominent black Congressmen such as Ralph Metcalfe and former Mayor of Chicago Harold Washington.

Rush ran for mayor of Chicago in the 1999 election, losing to long-term Chicago Democratic Mayor Richard M. Daley. He lost in a landslide, losing even the votes of the 2nd Ward, where he was ward alderman from 1983-1992.

Rush is not being endorsed by Mayor Daley, who is in support of Obama. Rush is, however, backed by President Clinton. Obama is also the favored candidate of the Chicago Tribune.

The 1st Congressional District has had a black congressman since 1928, the longest running tradition in the country.

Illinois State Sen. Donne E. Trotter, D-Chicago, and George Roby, a former police officer, also lost in the primaries to Rush.

Raymond G. Wardingley is the uncontested Republican candidate in the 1st Congressional District race.

University grapples with discrepancies

President's Office maintains audit findings positive overall

JAYETTE BOLINSKI
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SIU paid out more than $66,000 in questionable unemployment disbursements and vacation benefits during fiscal year 1999 according to state audit findings released Tuesday.

The Illinois auditor general cited 28 cases in which the University improperly paid benefits or failed to protest unemployment claims.

The audit found that the University paid unemployment benefits to employees who were still receiving paychecks from the University, failed to report vacation payments and failed to protest potentially ineligible unemployment claims. Specifically, the University:

- paid $5,749 in unemployment benefits over 38 weeks to recipients who were still receiving a paycheck from the University;

- failed to report $14,060 in vacation payments over 161 weeks while the employees were receiving unemployment benefits that amounted to $41,524;

- failed to protest potentially ineligible unemployment claims in instances where employees had resigned, resulting in a payout of $12,302 over 55 weeks;

- failed to protest another potentially ineligible unemployment claim after an employee had been terminated for misconduct, resulting in a payout of $6,680 over 29 weeks; and

- lacked some documentation to provide for adequate review of unemployment benefits paid out and charged to the state.

A spokesman of the Auditor General's Office said the agency did special testing of unemployment benefits at all Illinois universities this year, which is why the problem cropped up.

Calls to Pamela Brandt, director of the SIUC Human Resources Office, which handles unemployment and other employee benefits on this campus, were referred to A.G. Monaco, director of Personnel Services at the Edwardsville campus.

Monaco was in meetings Tuesday afternoon and did not return calls.

Scott Kaiser, media coordinator for the Office of the President, said he is uncertain if it is possible to recoup the money that was paid out in these instances but added that the University will do everything it can to recapture any of the money.

Kaiser said it appears the University needs to do a better job of tracking its unemployment claims.

"It's clear that in some instances we didn't do a good job of documenting the case, so that's one thing we can do better," he said. "We also need to make sure we have the proper documentation to take care of the situation better."

Kaiser also pointed out that the majority of SIU unemployment claims seem to be handled efficiently. The auditor general found 28 problems in a sampling of 75 out of 164 University-benefit recipients.

"If you read our response to our finding, it says that we accept the recommendations and are in the process of reviewing our procedures for unemployment compensation claims," he said. "We just need to do a better job on those. And we will."

Fellow and retired SIU police officers who had worked alongside Trigger during his 30-plus hours on the force kept him in their prayers and thoughts. Lt. Andrew Smith had worked with him from 1970 until Trigger's 1996 retirement.

"We were all very saddened," Smith said. "Anytime a fellow police officer comes down with an ailment, it affects us like a family."

Trigger, prior to the heart attack and stroke, was known for being a "character," a comedian who always had something to say about any situation. Trigger worked numerous concerts at the SIU Arena, including a visit from Elvis Presley in the 1970s. After each song Presley sang, a scarf was thrown into the audience of more than 3,000.

Two 20-something women got into a screaming match over who would keep one of the scarves, then minutes later, two 40-something women fought over another scarf. In both cases, Trigger took a small knife out of his pocket and told the women what he would do to solve their dilemmas.

"I said, 'I don't care whose scarf it is,'" Trigger recalled. "I'll cut that scarf into two, and if you don't like it I'll kick you both out."

Prior to the heart attack, Trigger was an avid high school basketball referee, drove a school bus, and was active in the community, volunteering at the senior center daily.

"Trigger knew everybody on campus and, in fact, Trigger knew everyone in Southern Illinois," Smith said. "Everyone knew Trigger."

But following the events in July, Trigger remained only a shadow of his former self.

hospital alive," James said.

His condition slightly improved to where doctors thought Trigger would live, but James did not leave his father's bedside for the next 10 days. His son served as a liaison between the doctors and nurses and his father. Their father-son relationship shifted, as James became Trigger's primary caretaker — feeding and bathing his father.

"I kind of did the same things for him that he did for me when I was a child," James said. "I stayed at his bedside night and day."

From Springfield, Lindsey was moved to a Carbondale nursing home at the end of September, and after being told of the death of his brother-in-law, Trigger suffered a seizure. He was sent back to Memorial Hospital and spent nine days in intensive care. On Aug. 9, Trigger was taken to the Acute Rehabilitation Institute in Herrin where he would remain until Sept. 15.

Don Kirk was the occupational therapist who first evaluated Trigger when he arrived in Herrin. Trigger was completely dependent on others. He needed people to assist him when he ate, dressed, bathed and to use the bathroom. Because of Trigger's restlessness and difficulty speaking, he easily became frustrated and agitated with therapy and caretakers.

"When he first came in, he was very difficult to work with," Kirk said. "He was very uncooperative and very demanding. He was the biggest complainer."

Trigger had to relearn how to speak and regain control of his muscles. With three hours of physical and occupational therapy each day, Trigger slowly began to strengthen the left side of his body.

The phone call from his son on his birthday proved to be the turning point in Trigger's recovery. Up until the call, Trigger had not remembered a thing and had no recollection of any of the events of the past summer.

"It cheered me up because up until that time I had been out of it," Trigger said. "When he called me, I recognized his voice and it put new life into me."

But weeks after the Sept. 3 phone call, Trigger's sense of humor began to emerge through the small jokes and stories he would share with other patients around him. Bits of the old Trigger came back to life.

Kirk, from Sesser, said one such story Trigger shared with her hit close to home. Trigger, who refereed Illinois high school basketball for 30 years, told her about one boys basketball game between Carterville and Sesser-Valer high schools. As a referee, Trigger always enforced the rules. At that game, a Sesser-Valer coach and a starting player was thrown out for breaking those rules, leaving the assistant coach with the team.

"I happened to be a cheerleader at that game, and the people he was talking about were my husband and my father-in-law. My husband was the starting player and his father was the assistant coach," Kirk said.

As Trigger's spirits improved, so did his ability to care for himself. In the next couple of weeks, Trigger began to come to the realization that therapy helped. He once despised group therapy, but now became a cheerleader for other patients encouraging them to go.

The road to recovery

Trigger was honored March 15 at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago and Southern Illinois Healthcare Rehabilitation Honorees Dinner at John A. Logan College for his courage and determination during his rehabilitation in the past year.

He is one of three honorees chosen from about 700 patients seen at the Acute Rehabilitation Institute of Herrin, which opened in early 1998.

Trigger endured his last day of outpatient physical therapy March 3, and has almost completely recovered from the events of the summer. He is now living back on his farm in Carbondale with his wife, JoAnn. He is able to drive, speak and doing yard work, which he considers therapy and exercise on its own.

Now that it has been almost six months since Trigger left the Acute Rehabilitation Center, the mention of his name still brings smiles to the people who worked with him.

"It was a sad day, and we all cried. Everybody was just really attached to him," Kirk said. "Trigger — he is one of those patients you will never forget. When we say 'Trigger,' everyone knows who we are talking about."

The long road ahead

At St. John's Hospital in Springfield, Trigger's family began to prepare for the worst, and James was left with the responsibility of making arrangements if Trigger were to die.

"I kind of made peace with God and figured he would not leave the recovery."

Trigger had to relearn how to speak and regain control of his muscles. With three hours of physical and occupational therapy each day, Trigger slowly began to strengthen the left side of his body.

The phone call from his son on his birthday proved to be the turning point in Trigger's recovery. Up until the call, Trigger had not remembered a thing and had no recollection of any of the events of the past summer.

regulations. Legally, the University should have filed an Exception Report with the Higher Education Travel Control Board. The board, among other things, sets travel policy such as reimbursement rates for mileage, per diem requirements and acceptable lodging rates.

The board's rules indicate only that exceptions may be granted "when necessary to meet special or unavoidable circumstances and when in the best interests of the State."

Scott Kaiser, media coordinator for the President's Office, said Dyer's situation was unique because he had work obligations at more than one headquarters.

"In order to do what we did with Mr. Dyer's situation, we should have applied for an exception, and we did not do that," Kaiser said. "If it arises again, we obviously would want to comply with that requirement."

Dyer left the President's Office earlier this semester to work at the East St. Louis Center. Kaiser said the University will continue its policy of not reimbursing employees for commutes to and from work and added that no changes in that policy will take place because of this incident.

"Jack isn't in this office anymore, so this individual case that they cited is not in effect anymore."

going through.

All of the top-three players dropped their singles matches, but the bottom three picked up the slack, evening the singles play. That would prove to be the deciding factor in the outcome of the match, as the doubles teams aced three-straight matches to get the 6-3 win.

Erika Ochoa, a sophomore from Durango, Mexico, said the contribution from the doubles teams were needed because the Florida heat and humidity were starting to take its toll.

"That really made a difference,"

Ochoa said. "We are not used to the hot weather."

Auld had to retire a few players in the last match against Syracuse before heat exhaustion could set in. The temperature was in the mid-80s, but the humidity made it much worse.

"It was an exhausting trip," Auld said.

Auld said her team's level of play increased as the week progressed. The Salukis (5-2) are not upset with the two losses, knowing they improved as conference play is quickly nearing.

"It's not that we played particularly bad, but it just wasn't enough to win," Auld said. "I can't sometimes look at the results, I have to look at the improvement."

• Another student returned to the 600 block of North Carico Street and found the porch window ajar. A number of compact discs valued at more than $500 were reported missing in the incident.

• A 21-year-old SIU student also returned from break to his apartment in the 900 block of West Mill Street and found a $1,100 speaker box missing. Police said the incident occurred when someone forced a door open and broke a window at the apartment between Thursday and Monday.

• Someone entered a residence in the 700 block of West Pecan Street between Sunday and Monday by breaking a window near the front door while the students were away on break. A resident said a stereo receiver, a flashlight, and jewelry with a total value of at least $4,500 were missing.

• Two SIUC men returned to their apartment in the 600 block of West Cherry Street and found someone had broken out a window, and stolen $20 in change, a Sony Play Station, Play Station games and $30. During the investigation, police found three street signs and charged one of the victims with theft. The man was released on a notice to appear in Carbondale City Court.

Similar items were stolen in all the reported burglaries and all occurred in areas where students predominantly reside — at least four occurred south of Illinois Route 13. Police stated in a fax to the Daily Egyptian Tuesday, "There is no indication the burglaries are connected," but did not comment as to why not.

Carbondale police provide a pamphlet about securing apartments and homes available to the public at the Carbondale Police Department. In the pamphlets, police outline the importance of locking doors and windows and making sure the residence appears occupied. Anyone living off campus interested in having police monitor their residence while out of town should go to the police department and ask about the program.

"Students need to be informed a little better," Rossman said. "If so, they will come out and vote."

Bush was the republican favorite, but had his campaign derailed by Arizona Sen. John McCain in New Hampshire.

SIUC College Republicans have been split in their support between Bush and McCain. They even sponsored a debate between the Bush and McCain delegates late last month.

Colleges' Republican Joseph Cobetto, a sophomore in political science from Jerseyville, said it is important to vote in all elections and get active in politics at every level.

"It is important that people of the state of Illinois have their voices heard," Cobetto said. "Democracy cannot exist if there is no participation."

Bush espouses a conservative agenda based around cutting taxes, local control of schools, streamlining government, a pro-life stance, and fostering overseas trade with China, among other countries.

There's not much we can do for it after that." The money is expected to go toward the purchase of the house, I'm afraid it will be lost. There's not much we can do for it after that."

The money is expected to go toward the purchase of the house, and the acquisition of a portion of the 9.7 acres that surround the house. The money does not include the operational budget that IHPA will need to maintain the house once it is reopened.

Sisk's grandfather bought the house in 1913. He turned it into a tourist site in the 1930s. The house closed in 1996 because of health problems suffered by the Sisks. George Sisk and his wife have been working to have it reopened ever since.

The state set aside $500,000 for the acquisition of the house in 1997, but the money was lost when a deal could not be reached by Sisk and IHPA concerning how the money would be used. Supporters of the house are skeptical as to whether the bill will ever see the light of day.

"If they will give us the actual site, we'll run from there," said Jon Musgrave, a researcher of the house, who would like to see the state purchase the rest of the area surrounding the house, including the old salt mines in Gallatin where the house now sits.

The house's original owner, John Crenshaw, was a major salt manufacturer in the region during the 1830s. Musgrave said if the state purchased the additional land, it would have to acquire almost 200 acres.

Musgrave was one of the original researchers, along with Ron Nelson and Gary DeNeal, who discovered new documents in 1997 linking Crenshaw to the kidnapping of free blacks, further bolstering the case that the house is where slaves were kept. He wants to see something done, so that the house can be reopened to the public.

"I really hope it gets done," he said. "The Sisks have put their lives on hold for last few years, and I think it's time for the state to do its part."

FOOTE

"Our family has a remarkable attitude," Foote said. "Especially the children, since we will be uprooting them."

Foote's wife, Jody, had also planned to go on sabbatical leave, but will now be resigning from her position at Morris Library. Jody Foote said the family is supportive of the move and excited for the opportunity.

"It is a great program, and it opens a lot of doors for Joe — being in a large media market," she said.

Jody Foote said she does not have a job lined up. At this point, she said her main concern is making sure the family gets settled.

"With two children in middle school, a lot of adjustments will have to be made," she said.

A search committee has been formed and began reviewing applications for the dean position Friday. Lyle White, head of the search committee, said it has accepted between 15 and 20 complete applications.

"At the committee, we are making recommendations to Dr. Margaret Winters of applicants to be brought in for on-campus interviews," White said.

The committee is still accepting applications for the dean's position and the search will continue until it is filled.

late U.S. Rep. Melvin Price. He was re-elected to full term in November 1988.

In the 1998 elections, Costello ran against republican challenger Bill Price, also of Belleville, in a heated campaign in which Price repeatedly attacked Costello's ethics and politics.

Costello was named as an unindicted co-conspirator by federal prosecutors in the 1997 case of Amiel Cueto, a longtime friend and business associate who was convicted of obstruction of justice.

Costello, 50, an East St. Louis native, is a former law enforcement officer.

Wierzer, 51, a contractor/businessman from Granite City, ran against Costello in the 1998 Democratic primaries. Despite the results, Wierzer was not discouraged.

"I'm not going to lose any sleep over this," Wierzer said. "I'm having fun; that's all that matters."

Wierzer affirmed his plans to run in the next congressional election, and confidently said he would eventually be elected as 12th district congressman.

District 12 is composed of St. Clair, Monroe, Randolph, Perry, Jackson, Union and Alexander counties.

115th District Representative

Mike Bost received 2,045 republican votes for his potential re-election to his state representative position. Robert L. Koehn gained 2,129 democratic votes.

Bost said if re-elected, he plans to continue the work he has done for Southern Illinois during his past three terms.

One example Bost gave was his participation in the Edge Program. The program helps to increase employment by encouraging businesses to come to Southern Illinois.

Bost said education, including higher education, has always been, and will remain, important to him.

"We have fully funded SIU's budget request each year since I have been in the legislature," Bost said.

A major priority of Bost's is to bridge the disparity between Northern and Southern Illinois, and work with ensuring all senior citizens have complete access to needed prescription medicine.

On the top of Koehn's list is tax relief for average working families and issues directly related to SIU. He also said that he would work on improving access to prescription pharmaceuticals for low-income seniors.

If elected, Koehn said he would work to increase and stabilize funding for SIU because it is an important anchor in Southern Illinois.

Koehn said SIU is a valuable asset to Southern Illinois, and not only because it is a place of education.

"SIU has to continually be looked at as a research center," Koehn said.

On Feb. 22, Bost signed a pledge outlining his plans to run a fair and honest campaign. Bost said he did not want to be subjected to the negative campaigning he experienced in the 1998 elections.

Koehn said he has recently sent out his signed copy of the pledge.

"I certainly have no qualms about signing it," Koehn said.

ENGINEER TRAINING PROGRAM

Unimin Corporation is the leading producer of industrial minerals in North America with over 40 mining and processing facilities in the United States and Canada. We are the world's largest producer of high-purity quartz, nepheline syenite, glass sands, frac sands, foundry sands and other silica sands for the glass, ceramic, oil service, semiconductor, quartz lighting, foundry and paint and coatings industries. We also play a major role in plastics, refractories, and metallurgical and construction-related products.

The Engineer Training Program is a four-year program designed to provide a wide range of experience to recently graduated BS or MS Engineer's in the Operations and Technical Services aspects of the Company. Spend two years in the Technical Services Department at our Ottawa, IL Regional Office as an Engineer Trainee working in Geology/Mine Planning, Environmental Affairs and Process & Project Engineering. Upon completion of the Technical Services training, you will transfer to the Operations Department where you will spend two years as a Supervisor Trainee learning the Mining, Processing, Maintenance, Quality Control, Safety, Production & Shipping and Purchasing functions. At the completion of the four-year program you will be ready for assignment as a Plant Superintendent or as an Engineer in one of the Technical Service disciplines.

We have immediate openings in the Technical Services Department at our Ottawa, IL Regional Office for an Engineer Trainee.

Qualified candidates will have a degree in one of the above listed disciplines and possess excellent communication, organizational and computer skills. You must be willing to relocate and willing to travel.

Unimin offers a comprehensive salary and benefits package including medical/dental, pension and 401(k) Savings Plan. Please forward resume with salary requirement to FDILLON@UNIMIN.COM or in a MS WORD format or you may mail your resume to: Manager, Human Resources, EIT Program get some people here and be in the Big Dance next year."

Collum, regarded as one of SIU's greatest players in several years, expressed similar bittersweet sentiments.

"I'm glad I made the decision to come here," Collum said. "I'm proud of everybody on this team. This is something that you won't forget, and I know I won't forget."

Said Thunell: "It's been the best time of my life."

Thunell scored 21 points to lead the Salukis in their win over the Buffaloes. Collum added 14 points and Timson scored 12 as the Salukis used 52-percent shooting and 11-of-18 three-point shooting to build a double-digit second-half lead before surviving a late Colorado run for the 94-92 win.

SIU was only the third team to win at Colorado this year, the others being Big 12 powers Missouri and Kansas.

Perhaps foreshadowing the Salukis' future, Williams (17 points) and Jermaine Dearman (10 points) were SIU's top scorers against BYU. Weber wants his prized freshmen duo, along with the other returning Salukis, to win the 20-win season as a launching pad to even better things to come.

"Our young kids hopefully got a taste of it, hopefully it makes them hungry, and we've got to learn from it," Weber said. "It was a very good season, it was a lot of fun, a lot of spe-

Jackson is anticipating a good crowd for the forums and hopes to fill the position by July 1.

"There has been some anticipation within the media already, so I anticipate a good crowd," Jackson said.

Jackson said people will have the chance to listen to the candidates and "get a feel of what their style may be."

Robert Fournier, senior associate commissioner of the Mid-American Conference, is visiting the campus first. He met with the Civil Service and Administrative Professional Staff Tuesday and is scheduled to meet with students today at 9:30 a.m. and faculty at 1:30 p.m. in the University Museum.

Fournier served as the assistant athletic director for the University of Akron from 1985-1995. He then joined the MAC as the associate commissioner and was promoted to senior associate commissioner two years later.

Paul Kowalczyk will be next to visit campus. Kowalczyk, associate director of athletics at Northwestern University, will visit the campus on Thursday and Friday.

Kowalczyk has supervised and administered marketing and promotions, media services, and facilities at Northwestern since 1995. He played an integral part in increasing season ticket sales at the university by 295 percent, along with increasing corporate sponsorship by more than $1 million.

The third candidate, Daniel Spielmann, will visit the campus Monday. Spielmann served as athletic director at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay for nine years and has been involved in athletic administration for 12 years.

He helped move Wisconsin-Green Bay, a former Division II program, into Division I and increased the basketball program's season ticket base from 1,000 to more than 5,000, amounting to near sell-out crowds.

Spielmann also served on the chancellor's leadership team as their chief of staff.

Up-and-coming Salukis must replace leadership

The first two seasons for the SIU men's basketball team under head coach Bruce Weber have surpassed all expectations. Under Weber's tireless tutelage, the SIU program has quickly regained much of the luster it briefly lost during the tail end of Rich Herrin's successful tenure.

So as alluring as a third-round National Invitational Tournament matchup with the University of Notre Dame would have been, throw out the ugly season-ending loss at Brigham Young University Monday night when reflecting on SIU's just-completed season.

The Notre Dame game, by the way, would have been played in South Bend, Ind., which would have been the third-straight home game in the tournament for the Irish, and the third-straight away game for SIU. Nobody ever said the NIT brass was into fairness, but that's for another column.

Even the most optimistic Saluki fans couldn't have reasonably foreseen a better year out of the Salukis than what they got.

SIU produced 20 wins, impressive non-conference triumphs over UMass of the Atlantic 10, UNC-Charlotte of Conference USA and Colorado of the Big 12, a postseason tournament appearance and victory, and a team that battled all season for the MVC title and wound up in third-place.

Not bad for a team without a consistent low-post scorer or an abundance of size and speed. Not to mention the Salukis didn't shoot particularly well, and relied most heavily on a freshman, albeit a superb one, in guard Kent Williams.

The 1999-2000 edition of Saluki basketball was a satisfying one, considering all the Salukis accomplished without the raw ability that most postseason-caliber teams enjoy.

SIU fans have every right to be proud of the Salukis, who weren't quite athletic enough to get over the hump and become an elite team.

SIU has the chance to make that leap next season and make the NCAA tournament, but it won't be easy. The Salukis will be without the smart and tough floor leadership of guard Ricky Collum, the versatility and heart of 6-foot-9-inch Chris Thunell and the emotional and physical presence of Derrick Tilmon.

Although the trio may be replaced with more gifted athletes, it will be nearly impossible to restore the leadership and positive karma this year's seniors brought to the table every time they laced up their Nikes.

Abel Schrader and Joshua Cross will be SIU's lone seniors next season, and the duo must take the example set by this year's seniors to help bring along the younger players and keep the squad focused on winning. So far in their careers, both have shown flashes of brilliance, but whether they can become more consistent on-the-court and develop into team leaders is a mystery.

Another glaring question on the minds of Saluki fans is whether SIU can recover from losing Collum. The point guard position is the most important one, especially in college basketball, and Collum ran the show shrewdly.

Sophomore Brandon Mells saw a lot of time at the point this season, and while he is a terrific athlete and showed an improving shooting touch, Mells has still not learned well enough how to avoid costly mistakes. Without Collum's steadying presence, there will be a lot of pressure on Mells to work out the kinks in his game and blossom into a dependable starting point guard.

The other guard spot will be incapable hands with Williams. Williams, this year's Valley Newcomer of the Year, will only improve by adding strength and honing his shooting stroke.

One of the most anticipated off-season happenings will be how much progress athletic freshman forward Jermaine Dearman can make. Dearman is big, quick and athletic. He could be dominating with a summer of adding muscle and a more sophisticated approach to the game to go with his aggressiveness.

Expect ultra-skinny but skilled freshman forward Brad Korn to become a factor next year, if he can put about 15-20 pounds of meat on his lean frame. And redshirted 6-foot-6-inch Sylvester Willis should benefit from a year of practicing with the team and will likely be able to help on defense.

Along with the returning players, Weber will have a handful of newcomers that should come as a just-what-the-doctor-ordered influx of athleticism. Weber signed three players in the fall, most notably sophomore junior college transfer Toshay Harvey, who some say has Monte Jenkins-type athletic ability and can also shoot.

High school seniors Stetson Hairston and Josh Warren, also fall signees, will join the Salukis after impressive prep careers.

Now, Weber is aggressively pursuing a junior college big man to team with Dearman. If he can sign another skilled player or two come the April signing period, especially a post player, look out MVC.

Saluki backers have all the reason in the world to be pleased. It appears Weber will be sticking around for a few years, and it will be thrilling to watch Weber build a team around Williams and Dearman that can make major noise in March.

It's always disappointing when a fun season comes to its finish, and this year's crop of seniors will be dearly missed. But if SIU effectively address its offseason riddles, come this time next year, the Salukis will have made another step toward reestablishing themselves as a powerhouse.

Baseball game cancelled because of soggy field

The SIU baseball game Tuesday at Abe Martin Field against Saint Louis University was canceled because of wet field conditions. Team officials may reschedule the game later in the season.

The Salukis (9-9) play a four-game series in Normal starting Friday against Illinois State University.

The Salukis do not play another home game until next Tuesday against the University of Illinois at 2 p.m.

Men's golf team opens play with 11th-place finish

The SIU men's golf team shot a team total of 956 for an 11th place finish at the Southwest Missouri

State Spring Classic this weekend.

The competition featured a 14-team field, of which Arkansas State University (874) placed first, Southwest Missouri State University (875) came in second and Southeast Missouri State University (903) took third.

SIU juniors Brandon Bullard and Jerrod Capps both shot 236 to lead the Salukis, and tie for 35th place individually.

Season crashes to conclusion at BYU

Salukis' season ends with 25-point loss in second round of NIT

JAY SCHWAB
SPORTS EDITOR

The joyride has ended for the SIU men's basketball team in a season that will be fondly remembered by the Salukis and their fans.

Brigham Young University broke open what was a fairly competitive game in the second half and advanced to the third round of the National Invitation Tournament with a convincing 82-57 win over SIU, in front of 16,949 screaming Cougar fans Monday night at the Marriott Center in Provo, Utah.

BYU (22-10) earned a meeting with the University of Notre Dame tonight in South Bend, Ind., with the rights to a trip to New York City and the NIT semifinal round at stake. SIU, meanwhile, concluded what was its best season since 1994-95 with a 20-13 record that included the Salukis' first postseason win since 1991.

The team was forced to stay out West after its 94-92 win over the University of Colorado in the first round of the NIT Thursday night, and the Salukis, unaccustomed to playing in front of such a huge crowd, took it on the chin in the early stages of the game. They never fully recovered.

SIU showed all the signs of road weariness throughout the game, such as sloppy ball-handling, poor shooting and an inability to fight through screens on defense.

"We had a taste of big time college basketball here," said SIU head coach Bruce Weber on his postgame radio show. "They've been very tough here at home, and I think that physical play really caused problems for us in the first half."

BYU blistered its way to a 19-5 lead early against a shell-shocked Saluki team. SIU eventually settled down and made a game of it, but the Cougars took a 34-26 lead into the locker room at halftime.

Back-to-back three pointers by Saluki freshman guard Kent Williams brought SIU to within six at 42-36 a few minutes into the second half, but a three by BYU guard Terrell Lyday quickly quashed the comeback bid and SIU would never again mount a major threat.

The game was closer than the final score indicated, as the Cougars beefed up their lead with the outcome already decided late. BYU was aided by ice-cold SIU shooting, as the Salukis mustered just 29-percent shooting on the night against an active Cougar defense.

The Cougars were led by 19 points from Lyday and 16 points from 6-foot-9-inch Mekeli Wesley.

SIU, which was the last school from Illinois still playing basketball, now bids farewell to senior starters Ricky Colham, Derrick Tilmon and Chris Thunell, along with senior reserve Lance Brywn.

"I feel bad, but I knew it had to come to an end," Tilmon said. "You can't play forever. Hopefully they'll

Time to meet the candidates

Everyone encouraged to attend open forum for candidates for athletic director position

ANDY EGENSES
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The SIUC campus and community will have the opportunity to meet the three finalists for the athletic director position in public meetings this week.

Open forums have been scheduled starting today and will continue through Monday to allow interested parties to meet and ask questions to the candidates. The candidates will also meet with members of the SIU Alumni Association and the Saluki Booster Club.

Ed Bueger, executive director of the SIU Alumni Association, will moderate the forums.

Ron Knowlton, chairman of the athletic director search committee, is hoping for a good turnout of people throughout the process.

"It's a highly-visible position and an important position," Knowlton said.

Although a format has not yet been established, Knowlton anticipates the candidates will offer opening remarks for about 10 minutes before opening the meeting for questions from the audience.

Knowlton expects the forum to allow ample time for a question and answer session. After the meeting is completed, evaluations forms will be made available so administrative officials can get feedback from the general public.

Interim Chancellor John Jackson plans to review the evaluation forms after all the meetings are completed before making any final decision.

Temperatures heat up SIU

Women's tennis finishes 2-2 in Florida humidity

ANDY EGENSES

SIU women's tennis coach Judy Auld was more than pleased from top to bottom with her team's effort coming off four matches during spring break.

The team went 2-2 during the stretch and got some much needed help from their lower-seeded singles players and doubles teams.

"I think the big thing was that when somebody was down, somebody else stepped up," Auld said. "That's what makes a team."

SIU's No. 1 player, sophomore Simona Petrutu, only came away with one singles win during the week, and each of the top three singles players struggled. SIU lost the first and last matches of the week to Rollins College, 3-6, and Syracuse University, 2-7. Those losses were sandwiched between two victories against Stetson University, 6-3, and the University of Illinois-Chicago, 7-2.

The Stetson match was an example of SIU overcoming the problems its best players were
