Bush, Gore dominate election

Local uncontested elections give predicted results

Results from Jackson County primary elections Tuesday showed further support for Vice President Al Gore and Texas Gov. George W. Bush, as well as other incumbents and those running uncontested in Jackson County.

In local elections, Jerry Convelo, D-Bellefontaine, defeated Kenneth Charles "Bud" Winter in the Democratic primary for the U.S. District Congress. There was no republican candidate on the ballot.

In two unseating victories for the 115th District, Republican representative Rep. Mike Bost, R-Murphysboro, won the Republican primary and Robert L. Koehn won the Democratic primary. Both campaigns were uncontested.

Presidential Primary
Vice President Al Gore and Texas Gov. George W. Bush, won the Democratic and Republican presidential primaries, respectively. Gore received 1,762 votes while Bush received 1,568 votes on their party ballots.

Bush won every primary and caucus in his campaign this year. He continued his winning streak in Jackson County but also claimed victory in Illinois.

His only challenge, former New Jersey Sen. Jim Bradley, waged a competitive campaign, and, for a while, led Gore in early voting. Bradley bowed out of the campaign early this month.

Bush centered his campaign around many issues, including his political experience, foreign affairs and the environment. But it is his economic policy that garnered the most support.

A good win laced among the SIUC College Democrats, said Vice President Leslie Rosson, a sophomore in political science from Northbrook.

The College Democrats, she said, campaigned all day Tuesday to get students to vote. They did phone polling and handed out fliers to students.

Moving down the road to recovery

Retired SIUC police officer recuperates from stroke leaving lasting impressions on those who helped him

James "Trigger" Lindsey lay in a bed for more than a month at the Harris Anne Rehabilitation Center in Herrin, Ill., recovering from his heart attack.

It had been almost two months since Lindsey suffered a sudden heart attack, followed by a life-saving coronary surgery. He then received the phone call that brought him back to life.

The birthday phone call from his son came at 7:20 p.m. on Sept. 3. Trigger picked up the phone to hear his son James Lindsey Undsey, a retired SIU police officer and Carbondale emergency room, explained what was unable to move his left arm.

"I just seemed like he snapped out of it," James said. "We joked, we talked. You can say that was the first time I knew I had my dad back."

It would be a long, hard journey for Trigger to return to his normal self and being in a position where one could think he would survive.

On the afternoon of July 15, Trigger, a retired SIU police officer and Carbondale resident, became fatigued while carrying lunch trays for the senior citizens at his residence in St. Louis. He was told to return to Home Base, which Trigger sits in a wheelchair.

Having extensively and flushed, Trigger knew something was wrong, but when he told his roommates, he adamantly refused to be taken anywhere in an ambulance.

Instead, another worker at the senior center drove him into the emergency room of Memorial Hospital of Carbondale. Lindsey walked into the emergency room, explained what was wrong, and lay down in a nearby examining room. That was the last thing he would remember for almost two months.

After surviving the first few days at Memorial Hospital, Trigger's family had moved to St. John's Hospital in Springfield. Shortly after his father suffered the heart attack, Trigger's son James prayed to make the drive from Dallas to Springfield to see his father, unaware of how serious his father's condition was.

While Trigger was being treated for the heart attack, he suffered a stroke while at St. John's Hospital. The stroke left him unable to move the left side of his body and hindered his speech and thinking.

"The doctors then advised me to get on the next available flight from Dallas," James said. "They didn't think he would make the trip.

Trigger was not expected to go home again.

A man called Trigger
Lindsey is referred to as "Trigger" by almost everyone who knows him. There are two strips behind the moniker One day as a child, a neighbor told him if he did not stop crying, his new name would be Jim Trigger.

In high school, Trigger pretended he was from a radio station and asked a schoolmate a trivia question about the name of Ray Rogers' home. When the girl answered "Trigger," he told her for she was correct, that she had been 14 years of loose mause and then hung up. The girl told all of her friends the next day, and the name Trigger stuck.

Dual headquarters created unusual circumstance
President's Office employee received improper travel reimbursements

DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

An SIU President's Office employee was improperly reimbursed $4,500 for travel expenses last year, according to the findings released Tuesday by the Illinois Auditor General.

University officials maintain, however, that the employee worked under unique circumstances and the travel reimbursements actually saved SIU about $2,500.

Jack Dyer, former media coordinator for the President's Office, claimed and received reimbursements for the cost of commuting between his primary office in Carbondale and his residence in St. Louis driving days when he actually was working at the Edwardsville campus.

Dr. Dyer maintained a secondary office at the Edwardsville campus, creating what the President's Office calls an unusual circumstance for the employee and the University.

State guidelines stipulate that no employees, including the President's Office, are to be reimbursed for commuting from home to work.

University officials apparently believed Dyer deserved some sort of compensation for his commute. The administrative for reimbursing Dyer for travel expenses. University officials told the auditors' office, would have been to pay out an additional $2,500 in the event of the year for hotel lodging because Dyer was not working at his primary headquarters.

Because Dyer maintained two headquarters, he may be eligible for a rate exception to the travel

Seven burglaries occur over break

Police have no suspects in any of the incidents.

David Ferrara
Daily Egyptian reporter

Burglaries occurred on SIUC student residences during spring break, and Carbondale police said Tuesday they believe the incidents are unrelated. At least three of the burglaries involved broken windows, but police said that in five of the burglaries the residents left their doors or windows unlocked.

The Daily Egyptian received information on all of the burglaries, but information on a seventh reported burglary was unavailable as of Tuesday.

In one incident, students returned to their apartment in the 600 block of South University Avenue and found a man in their apartment. The students gave police a description of the man, who is the only suspect in any of the burglaries, police said. The suspect is described as a 180-pound, five-foot eight-inch black man who was last seen wearing dark pants, a blue sweat, a black shirt and a white baseball cap. The students returned to their apartment and found the suspect stealing a video cassette recorder. Police have no suspects in any of the following incidents:

- A 22-year-old SIUC woman said she returned from spring break this weekend to her apartment in the 600 block of South Poplar Street to find a television, computer and answering machine missing.

Foote will not return

Dean Joe Foote announced that he will be taking a position at Arizona State University.

Andrea Donaldson
Daily Egyptian reporter

Joe Foote, dean of the College of Mass Communication and Media Ars, announced to the college faculty, Tuesday afternoon, that he will be permanently leaving SIUC as of June 30. Foote will take a position at Arizona State University as the director of the Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Telecommunication, effective July 25. He will also be a Walter Cronkite Endowed Professor.

"It is a very fine school, rated in the top 10 in both broadcast and print media," Foote said. "It's a school that had exceptional leadership. — Doug Anderson, a SIUC alumnus who recently stepped down as the director of the Walter-Cronkite School of Journalism — and has a faculty that appreciates good leadership.

Foote announced in November that he would be resigning as dean to take a year-long sabbatical to do research and write his book. He said he was looking forward to teaching again, to scholarly study, and the chance to further his research, but administrative challenges; "have always tugged at him.

The position at the Walter Cronkite School of Journalism was brought to Foote's attention in late January and he met with Cronkite in New York during an interview process in February. Foote decided Monday to accept the position at ASU.

"When the opportunity arose (with ASU), it was difficult to resist," Foote said.

Foote said this was a very opportune time to make such a move with his older son graduating high school. Though problems may occur, he said his two younger children will be able to adjust to the move.
Lobbying students reflect the best of SIU

Fifteen SIUC students and four SIU-Edwardsville students made their way to Springfield March 8, hoping to garner support for SIU for the proposed budget of $320 million for the fiscal year 2000. This budget, an increase of $7.7 percent for SIU, was recommended by Gov. George Ryan.

What those 19 students did, proves one thing: students do care about their University. The students who went to Springfield reflect the best of our student body.

They did not go to Springfield unaware of University issues. They went in and showed, as representative of the student body, that students are educated and care about University issues. They reflected SIU, providing them with a chance to learn about your school and fellow classmates, good things and bad.

They were led by, including, David Litschfeld, R.J. Okavala, and Carol Rogers, D-Chicago, appreciated the visit from the students.

The students from SIUC spent eight hours traveling by bus and lobbying with legislature from Illinois. They presented each of the legislators with an information packet about SIU. One main change in the budget concerns faculty salaries. The new budget would almost bring SIU salaries to the level of other state universities and peer institutions outside of Illinois. These may remain faculty incentives in teaching at a higher-teaching university. Several new academic programs, including a new environmental policy and resources doctorate program, were also discussed.

One of the big selling points of SIU to prospective students is campus appearance. If the proposed budget is approved, average student may reflect SIU, providing them with a chance to get to the live on-campus and become familiar with the old campus. The Communications Building would benefit from the appropriate funding.

The SIU students were in the proposed budget made by Ryan in Springfield that day in which the accomplishment of those students who traveled to Springfield to lobby for the budget.

The SIU students spent an entire day working toward their goal of making sure SIU receives the full amount of the proposed budget.

For The Rest of Us

The first film has been hammered into the envelope to be sent. Let us reflect upon the week that was. Together, we are on the cusp of a new movie star. No, I didn’t go to Los Angeles — come on, I’m a poor student. Actually, I spent part of my vacation in Washington, D.C. Some of you may be wondering how you are doing and wondering what sort of famous face is visible in that particular part of the nation. Well, don’t feel alone because I had no clue either. However, one of my test friends knew the answer: the cast of “Townsend’s Counsel.”

For those of you unaware of the show, here’s a little run-down. The show stars a group of male and female actors, namely, my favorite, Katie Hahn (who plays Joey Potter). She’s a bad-assed redhead with a smile that could melt butter. Anyway, it’s the story of a SHU center that is in charge of a fictional town of Capeside. Who has more problems than most, which you know in addition, they work in a level of big birds and talk like 50-year-old sailors. For example, Dawson, your impediment to my nightmares, has a crush on a guy who is my other favorite, Jenkins (who plays Jenkins). For those who cannot identify with Jenkins, just look at the show itself. We were able to obtain a copy of one of the autographed pictures and a VHS copy of the show. The show was aired on Channel 24, which is the main channel in the area. We drove around town and got pictures of some of the unusual shots and some of the shows that I have extended to me. This seems like an interesting story on the car’s extra-durability (watchDurability) activities. Don’t worry, Kate, I’ll never sell. And finally, we found our way to the production facility.

Mary’s voice began to rise, my palates began to lower. We walked up to the stage and were automatically ushered into the tour, which was a very pleasant experience.

University funds should be put to better use

Dear Editor:

I have recently finished reading the DAILY EAGLE on Friday, March 10 and was surprised to see that the school hired Crocs to redesign its logo.

The school tells us it does not have enough funds to keep the maintenance up on the school, as far as I can see, they did not pay. Here it is paying $20,000 for the first of three years to keep the logo up.

In my opinion, I believe this is a waste of the students' money. The school should be used for students' needs, such as keeping the gym going and paying for the logo. I think the money would be better spent on something more important.

Greek4s wrongly placed in negative light

Dear Editor:

The Daily Egyptian has managed to construct the system in SIU without an issue of information or insight into the real issues affecting SIU.

David Frieze's article titled "SIU's Secret Sauce" was written to help us understand how SIU operates. The Daily Egyptian's editorial department did not mention the Sigma Pi fraternity house located at 606 W. College.

Not only does Sigma Pi not even own the fraternity house, but also, if you were looking to replace the house or make them a fraternity, the Sigma Pi fraternity house is located at 606 W. College.

Whether or not the author's intention was to say that the Sigma Pi fraternity house is full of nonsense and that the SIU students are just a bunch of dummies, then we must ask ourselves why the author would not even mention the fraternity house, since it is in the Sierra and students would need to get in contact with their fraternity house before anything happens.

Maybe if you stopped pretending to get information from 11 year olds you would be a better writer.

There is no reason that this should happen to SIU. People who have no idea what's going on, you might consider getting into the real SIU and not just another group of people with no idea what's going on.

Sure, you could do research on the last line, but that's not important.

Sincerely,

[Emily協]
Bobby Rush continues to hang on Chicago Congressional seat

Harvard man loses by slim margin

Rush, a graduate of Roosevelt University, has distinguished himself as a more radical civil rights activist.

In addition to co-founding the Illinois Black Panther Party and marching in several protests against police brutality, Rush has a long political history in Illinois. He has held the position of 1st District Congressman for four consecutive terms, following prominent black Congressmen such as Ralph Metcalfe and former Mayor of Chicago Harold Washington.

Rush ran for mayor of Chicago in the 1999 election, which was won by Richard M. Daley. He lost in a landslide, losing even the votes of the 2nd Ward, where he was ward alderman from 1983-1992.

Rush is not being endorsed by Mayor Daley, who is in support of Obama. Rush is, however, backed by President Clinton and other Democratic candidates to claim the seat in the historic south-side district Tuesday.

Rush, 53, beat out second-favord candidate, Illinois State Sen. Barack Obama, D-Chicago, after Obama managed to gain support in the racially mixed Hyde Park neighborhood, the predominantly white western suburbs, and other neighborhoods in the 1st District.

Obama, 38, has similar views to Rush on most political issues such as control, universal health care, social security and most other major policy issues.

The two candidates' contrasting backgrounds and the "old vs. new" aspect of the election: sparked city-wide debate in the congressional race. Obama, a graduate of Harvard Law school from a racially mixed family, has displayed a more advanced attitude toward protesting than Rush.

regulations. Legally, the University should have filed an Exception Report with the Higher Education Travel Control Board. The board, among other things, sets travel policy such as reimbursement rates for mileage, per diem requirements and acceptable lodging rates.

The board’s rules indicate only that exceptions may be granted “when necessary to meet special or unavoidable circumstances and when in the best interests of the State.”

Scott Kaiser, media coordinator for the President’s Office, said Dyer’s situation was unique because he had work obligations at more than one headquarters.

“In order to do what we did with Mr. Dyer’s situation, we should have applied for an exception, and we did not do that,” Kaiser said. “If it arises again, we obviously would want to comply with that requirement.”

Dyer left the President’s Office earlier this semester to work at the East St. Louis Center. Kaiser said the University will continue its policy of not reimbursing employees for commutes to and from work and added that no changes in that policy will take place because of this incident.

Going through.

All of the top-three players dropped their singles matches, but the bottom three picked up the slack, evening the singles play. That would prove to be the deciding factor in the outcome of the match, as the doubles teamsaced three-straight matches to get the 6-3 win.

Erika Ochoa, a sophomore from Durango, Mexico, said the contributions from the doubles teams were needed because the Florida heat and humidity were starting to take its toll.

“That really made a difference,” Ochoa said. “We aren’t used to the hot weather.”

Auld had to retire a few players in the last match against Syracuse before heat exhaustion could set in. The temperature was in the mid-80s, but the humidity made it much worse.

“It was an exhausting trip,” Auld said.

Auld said her team’s level of play increased as the week progressed. The Salukis (5-2) are not upset with the two losses, knowing they improved as conference play is quickly nearing.

“It’s not that we played particularly bad, but it just wasn’t enough to win,” Auld said. “I can’t sometimes look at the results, I have to look at the improvement.”

The state is our last hope.
We don’t have many options. If they don’t purchase the house, I’m afraid it will be lost.
Judy Koehn, chairman of the search committee

There’s not much we can do for it after that.” The money is expected to go toward the purchase of the house and the acquisition of a portion of the 9.7 acres that surround the house. The money does not include the operational budget that IHDA will need to maintain the house once the transaction is completed.

Sick granddaughter bought the house in 1973. He turned it into a museum in the 1990s. The house closed in 1996 because of health problems experienced by the Sick. George Sick and his wife have been working to have it reopened ever since.

The state set aside $500,000 for the acquisition of the house in 1997, but the money was lost when a deal could not be reached by Sick and IHDA concerning how the money would be used. Supporters of the house are skeptical as to whether the list price of $850,000 is worth the asking price of $1.2 million.

“If they will give us the actual sum, we’ll run from there,” said Josi Moser, a member of the house, who would like to see the state purchase the house.

“arly two children in middle school, a lot of adjustments will have to be made,” Sick said.

A search committee has been formed and began reviewing applications for the director position. Friday, Lyfe White, head of the search committee, said it has accepted 12 and 20 complete applications.

At the committee’s meeting, members made recommendations to Dr. Michael Warner of applicants so to have him for on-campus interviews, White said.

“Our family has a remarkable attitude,” Foote said. “Especially the children, since we will be uprooting them.”

Foxie’s wife, Judy, has also planned to go on sabbatical leave, resigning from her position at Morris Library. Judy Foote said her family is supportive of the move and excited for the opportunity.

“I think it’s a great project, and it opens a lot of doors for Joe being in a large media market,” she said.

Josi Foote said she does not want you to feel bad. At this point, she said her main concern is making the family get settled.

ANDREW B. FOLDS, President

Jackson is anticipating a good crowd for the forums and hopes to fill the position by July 1.

“T’ll be the best time of my life,” Thunell said. He scored 21 points to lead the Salukis to their win over the Buffaloes. Collum added 14 points and Tilmon scored 12 as the Salukis used 53-percent shooting and 11-of-18 three-point shooting to build a double-digit-second-half lead before surviving a late Colorado run for the 94-92 win.

SIU was only the third team to visit at Colorado this season, the other being Big 12 powers Missouri and Kansas.

Perhaps forecasting the Salukis' future, Williams (17 points) and Jermaine Denise (10 points) were SIU's top scorers against BYU.

Weber was happy his first recruit from, along with the other returning Salukis, to the 20-win season as a launching pad to see better things to come.

"Our young kids hopefully got a taste of it, hopefully it makes them hungry, and we've got a taste for it," Weber said. "It was a very good season, it was a lot of fun, a lot of spe-

Up-and-coming Salukis must replace leadership

The first two seasons for the SIU men's basketball team under head coach Barry Hinson have expanded all expectations. Under Hinson's guidance, the SIU program has quickly improved, making the team a top contender in the MVC.

Jay Schwab
Sports Editor

The Salukis are back in full force with their talented guards, including Derrick Tilmon, who has shown himself as a powerhouse. With the addition of freshman guard Keenan Williams, the team will likely be able to help on defense.

So far, the Salukis have won 20 games, impressive for a team with little experienced talent. However, their ability to avoid costly mistakes will be key to their success.

The 1999-2000 edition of Saluki basketball has been a satisfying one, with the team working hard to improve. Looking ahead, the Salukis will focus on building a winning culture for the future.

The Salukis' starting lineup for the season opener against the University of Illinois at Normal is set to feature guards Derrick Tilmon and Josh Warren. The team will be looking to improve on its 11th place finish in the MVC.

The team is also focused on building a winning culture, with the emphasis on teamwork and determination. With the addition of new players, the team will be looking to make a strong impact on the conference.

The upcoming season will be an exciting one for the Salukis, with the team looking forward to showcasing their skills and improving on their previous season's performance.

Time to meet the candidates

Everyone encouraged to attend open forum for candidates for athletic director position

Andy Forman

Daily Egyptian reporter

The SIUC campus and community will have the opportunity to meet the three finalists for the athletic director's position in public meetings this week.

Open forums have been scheduled starting today and will continue through Monday to allow interested parties to meet and ask questions of the candidates. The candidates will also meet with members of the Alumni Association and the Saluki Athletic Club.

Ed Buerger, executive director of the SIU Alumni Association, will moderate the forums.

Ron Knowlton, chairman of the athletic director search committee, is hoping for a good turnout of people to attend the meetings.

"It's a highly-visible position and an important position," Knowlton said.

Although a format has not yet been established, Knowlton anticipates the candidates will offer through scenes on defense. "We had a team of big-time college basketball here," said SIU head coach Bruce Weber on his postgame radio show. "They're very tough here at home, and I think that obviously played a major role in the game."
