CIPS officials consent to meet with SCAM

The president and other leading officials of the Central Illinois Public Service Co. (CIPS) announced Thursday that they will hold a public meeting Dec. 9 in Marion to discuss the company's proposed rate increases for electricity and natural gas.

The Southern Counties Action Movement (SCAM) claims the meeting is the result of their efforts. CIPS President K.E. Bowen's commitment to appear at the meeting they said is an "unprecedented victory for consumers."

SCAM, which opposes the CIPS proposal for a 21 per cent increase in electric rates and an 11 per cent hike in natural gas prices, was formed in late August and has since that time tried to arrange the meeting with Bowen.

Bowen had rejected earlier proposals for public meeting, saying the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) hearings were "the proper forum" for the discussion of the proposed increases.

The ICC must approve any rate increase proposal made by a public utility.

Larry Flesner, a SCAM spokesman said the public meeting was proof that an "organized citizen action can make a difference."

SCAM will meet to discuss the upcoming meeting with the CIPS heads Nov. 18 in the Machinists Hall in Herrin. Flesner described the affair as a combination victory party and organizational meeting. It is open to the public.

Look out, taxpayers: county mails tax bills

By H.B. Koplowitz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Jackson County, the last county in Illinois to process its tax bills, has finally mailed them to property owners. Shirley Booker, Jackson County treasurer, said Friday.

After a five-month delay, the 30,000 to 32,000 tax bills, which will bring in an estimated $9 million, were mailed Friday.

Revenue from the bills will be mailed to county taxing bodies as soon as they are received instead of waiting for all the bills to be paid, Booker said.

Booker said the tax bills can be paid by mail, at any county bank or at the County Treasurer's Office. The first installment is due 30 days after a tax bill is received, Booker said. The second installment is due 30 days after that.

Supervisor of Assessments Lowell Heller said that although he expects the tax bills to be processed faster next year, they still will not be out on time. He said that in 1977 he expects the bills to be ready by June or July. He expects the 1978 bills to be issued on schedule, May 1.

Heller explained that because the bills were late this year, the Board of Review won't finish hearing appeals by property owners until about the start of the year. That will hold up sending the assessor's books to the county clerk, which will hold up the entire process for next year's tax collections.

Heller said property owners can expect their taxes to go up as much as seven per cent next year. One of the reasons for the higher taxes Heller says, is that the state is revising its sales to assessment ratio.

This year the ratio was 29 per cent, next year it will go up to 30.62 per cent. The year after he said, it will rise to 33 per cent and level off.

Heller said another reason for higher taxes is that the rate of inflation on the value of farm land in Jackson County has been 30 per cent since 1975, and land values in Carbondale and Murphysboro have kept pace.

Industrial nations seek to head off OPEC hike

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is consulting urgently with other industrialized countries on ways to head off an anticipated oil price increase next month, a State Department spokesman said Thursday.

Some oil cartel countries favor an increase of 10 per cent or more but spokesman Robert Funseth said any price hike would hurt exporting countries as well as imports.

He said the United States has been in close consultation with Japan and the Western European countries on ways to persuade the oil countries to forego a price hike when they meet in Qatar.

These countries have cited international inflation to justify an increase but Funseth said the fourfold increase imposed by the cartel since 1973 more than compensates for the higher import costs to them.

U.N. statement is focus

Israel accuses U.S. of discrimination

By Larry Thorson
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel accused the United States Friday of anti-Israel "discrimination" by backing a United Nations Security Council statement critical of Israeli policy in the occupied Arab territories. The foreign ministry issued a sharply worded statement saying Foreign Minister Yigal Allon had summoned U.S. Ambassador Malcolm Toon for an "urgent meeting" to give him Israel's reaction to Thursday's Security Council consensus statement.

The Israeli statement said that the United States and Israel may differ on matters of policy, "but disagreements should not be exposed at any time or in any forum. A hostile Egyptian initiative... is not the proper occasion for airing such disagreements."

The Security Council consensus, responding to a complaint by Egypt, "sharply deplored" Israel's policies in the Arab territories won during the 1967 war and termed them "an obstacle to peace."

Israel has established 70 Jewish settlements in the occupied territories. It has moved some 35,000 Jews into Arab East Jerusalem and has said it would never give up that territory.

The Israeli foreign ministry statement noted that part of the speech given at the U.N. meeting by the American representative, Albert W. Sherer Jr., had been friendly toward Israel.

"But the negative aspects of this discussion and his concluding remarks outweighed the positive words without measure and from all points of view," the Israeli statement said. It argued that the Security Council measure could foster extremism among Arab states and in the occupied territories.

"Mr. Allon asked the United States ambassador to convey to the secretary of state Israel's deep regret at the discrimination practiced by the United States in this case," the statement said.

A foreign ministry spokesman said that by "discrimination," the statement meant the United States had supported a Security Council measure that was one-sided, depicting Israel only in a negative way and saying nothing in Israel's favor.

Israel's bristling reaction to the American position had been obvious when Allon and Toon encountered each other earlier Friday at a building where the Israeli foreign minister was to confer with a delegation of U.S. congressmen.

"I am only saying good morning out of convention," Allon told Toon curtly.

After his private meeting with Allon, Toon commented that he and the foreign minister had exchanged views frankly. "It was perfectly obvious that we didn't agree," the ambassador said.

U.S., Vietnam try to normalize relations

By David Zimmerman
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP)—American and Vietnamese diplomats opened talks Friday on the question of 800 Americans missing in action and other issues in an attempt to find a basis for normalizing relations.

Neither the American representative, Samuel R. Gammon, the No. 2 man at the U.S. Embassy, nor his Vietnamese counterpart, Tran Hoan, would say anything to reporters after the two-hour meeting. It was held in a two-story white building in suburban Neuilly that once housed a Viet Cong office and is now said to be the Vietnamese ambassador's residence.

But the American Embassy said that "issues of interest to both countries were raised," with the problem of getting information on the missing U.S. servicemen "our primary concern."

The main concern of the Vietnamese is postwar reconstruction aid, pledged by the United States in the 1973 Paris accords. The Ford administration backed off from the pledge when the North Vietnamese overran the South 18 months ago.

Officials in Washington said when the Paris talks were announced a week ago that both sides would speak from prepared position papers, with no spontaneous discussion, and that concrete progress was not expected until President-elect Jimmy Carter takes office in January.

The United States is also opposed to Vietnamese membership in the United Nations until the Vietnamese come up with what Washington considers a satisfactory accounting of the 800 MIAs. Barring any sensational developments in Paris, a U.S. veto in the Security Council is likely when the issue comes to a vote next week.

The Vietnamese inherited about $5 billion worth of U.S. arms and equipment following the fall of Saigon in April 1975. But despite the military windfall Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger reportedly thinks the Vietnamese view establishment of friendly ties with Washington as crucial to their independence.

"They need a third country to balance the Soviets and China," Kissinger was quoted as telling the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia in closed hearings 10 months ago.

Charges dismissed against area landlord

By H. B. Koplowitz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A battery charge against Carbondale landlord Paul Parrish has been dropped by Assistant State's Atty. John Clemons for lack of evidence.

Parrish was arrested Oct. 14 after allegedly striking a tenant on the arm and mouth with a hammer. The tenant, Gregory McElroy, 22, a senior in zoology, signed a complaint against Parrish following an argument. McElroy was being evicted by Parrish for keeping his dog in an apartment on New Era Road owned by Parrish.

Clemons said Friday he decided to drop the case after an attorney for Parrish brought the assistant state's attorney sworn statements by two men who said they witnessed the incident. They said in their statements that Parrish did not strike McElroy.

"On the basis of the new evidence, I doubt that I could successfully prosecute," Clemons said. "Parrish raised a reasonable doubt by producing two witnesses."

Clemons said that if the case had gone to court it would have been the word of Parrish and his two witnesses against the word of McElroy and his witness, which Clemons said would have created a "standoff. A standoff in court ends up with a not guilty verdict," he said.

Clemons said a report from Memorial Hospital of Carbondale that McElroy did not require medical treatment, and the fact that there was no signed statement by McElroy in the police report weakened the case.

Parrish also had a charge of aggravated assault and battery dropped against him in 1972 for allegedly brandishing an ornamental sword hanging in his office against one of his tenants. The charges were dropped because of lack of a speedy trial.

Date set for school committee's reports

Peg Stauber, secretary of the Planning Long-range Intelligent Goals to Help Our Troubled Schools Committee (PLIGHTS), said Friday all subcommittee reports will be submitted on Dec. 2. Stauber said reports from the finance, services, facilities, administration, curriculum and extracurricular activities, and interinstitutional cooperation subcommittees will be the subject of a public discussion at 7:30 p.m., Dec. 9 in the Carbondale Community High School learning center.

National guard subs for Springfield firemen

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Gov. Daniel Walker ordered 35 Illinois National Guard troops to Springfield on Friday to assist in fighting fires as a strike of the city's firemen continued in its second day. The firemen walked off the job early Thursday morning, leaving fire protection for Springfield's 100,000 residents in the hands of five command personnel, led by Health and Safety Commissioner Pat Ward.

A press aide to the governor, Mark Clark, said the troops are members of a Bloomington-based unit and would be on standby at Camp Lincoln on the north edge of Springfield and available if needed. At least seven fires have been reported since the strike began, none of them serious, officials said. The dispute centers on the city council's refusal to sign a binding, written agreement with the firemen, represented by Local 37 of the International Association of Firefighters.

State revenue called $14 million too high

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Gov. Daniel Walker's budget chief said Friday that the administration's estimate last spring of state revenues for fiscal 1977 may have been $14 million too high, but added, "We're not alarmed." The report by Budget Director Leonard Schaeff, apparently was more optimistic than one issued earlier this week by the House Republican staff.

UPS, Teamsters reach tentative agreement

WASHINGTON (AP)—A tentative agreement has been reached between the Teamsters Union and United Parcel Service whose operations in 15 Eastern states have been shut down for more than eight weeks, an informed source said Friday. The agreement, which must be ratified by union members, was reached during the night but the parties were not ready to make the formal announcement, the source said.

The strike by 1,000 Teamsters has caused tremendous backups at UPS warehouses and in the Postal Service, which has had to shoulder the added load at the start of its busiest season of the year.

Kleindienst may be fraud defendant

CHICAGO (AP)—Published reports that the Teamsters largest welfare fund will name Richard G. Kleindienst as a defendant in a $14 million lawsuit are "grievously precipitous," an attorney for the fund said Friday. The lawyer, James Coghlan, acknowledged that the Central States, Southeast and Southwest Areas Health and Welfare Fund has contemplated including the former attorney general as an individual defendant in a U.S. District Court suit which alleges fraud by five insurance companies.

Convict's execution request denied again

By Bobbe Dabbling
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Gary Mark Gilmore was turned down again Friday on his request that he be executed on schedule, but he went ahead with plans for his death before a firing squad, asking for a six-pack of beer as his last meal.

Lt. E.S. Fagan, supervisor of the state prison's maximum security unit, said Gilmore asked for the beer casually. He said no decision has been made but that the request probably would be granted, if the execution is held.

Gov. Calvin Rampton said Friday he would not rescind his stay of execution to allow the convicted murderer to die on Monday as originally scheduled.

Gilmore, 35, who has said he would rather die than spend the rest of his life in prison, appealed to the governor Thursday night through a statement to let him die as originally sentenced.

Gilmore's statement said delaying the execution puts him through "the stress of cruel, unusual and inhuman punishment."

A spokesman for the governor said Rampton had made it clear that he plans no further action, meaning the Utah Board of Pardons will consider the case in its regular meeting, which starts Wednesday.

The three-member board could commute the sentence to life in prison, reduce it to a prison term of less than life or leave the sentence as is and ask the trial judge to reschedule the execution.

Gilmore was convicted for the murder of a motel clerk during a robbery.

Black students shut bars in Soweto

By Larry Heinzerling
Associated Press Writer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Angry black students of Soweto, mixing puritan zeal with political militancy, have shut down virtually every bar in their sprawling township of over a million residents.

In just weeks they have succeeded in doing what police and preachers have been trying for years in a fight against heavy drinking among south African blacks.

The students, who sparked the first riots in Soweto in June, destroyed most government-run beerhalls in a wave of firebombing as racial unrest spread throughout the country.

Now they have ordered the closing of underground speakeasies known as "shebeens," ranging from high class pubs to low life distributors of moonshine.

Most owners have complied voluntarily. Student vigilante squads in this black city south of Johannesburg roam the streets and threaten those who don't.

The militant Soweto Students Representative Council ordered the closings for two reasons: to honor blacks killed and detained in South Africa's nationwide racial unrest and to attack the problem of heavy drinking among black adults.

"Nothing good has ever come out of shebeens. Many of our fathers and brothers have been killed in or out of them," the students declared in a pamphlet circulated in Soweto. "We can no longer tolerate seeing our fathers' pay packets being emptied in shebeens."

The Association of Soweto Shebeens recently issued a statement pleading to be allowed to reopen for business and stating, "the white man is still making huge profits from liquor sales" in Johannesburg.

The owners argued that they were family bread winners and had to finance education for their children.

"One or two children benefit while many wives and children suffer," came the student retort in another pamphlet. "The shebeens must close down."

Heavy drinking is prevalent among South Africa's blacks, and some studies say this is a result of the depressing conditions in which blacks live in this white-ruled nation.

Craft shop for campus backed by Grad Council

By Ann Schottman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Following a presentation Thursday night by John W. Corker, Student Center director, the Graduate Student Council (GSC) passed a motion to endorse use of up to $25,000 in Student Welfare and Recreational Building Trust Fund monies (SWRF) for construction of a crafts shop in the Student Center.

Corker said after the meeting that he will also seek Student Government endorsement of the motion.

The Student Center board will then draft a resolution to present to the SIU Board of Trustees on Dec. 14, he said. If the board approves the resolution, construction of the craft shop would begin within five to 20 days, Corker said. He said he expects the shop would be completed by the middle of February.

Plans for a craft shop include facilities for pottery, macrame stained glass, leather working, weaving, drawing, painting and picture matting and framing.

Students will have free access to the shop.

It would also be open to faculty, staff and spouses of all SIU students and employees, Corker said.

Corker said it would be open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., six or seven days a week. The craft shop would be located in the basement of the Student Center near the Big Muddy Room.

The shop, estimated to cost $30,610, was to be built entirely out of Student Center funds. However, Gov. Walker's veto of SIU's budget reduced the Student Center fee allocations by 33 per cent, making it unfeasible for the Student Center to entirely finance construction of the shop.

According to the motion the GSC endorsed, the Student Center will pay $5,610 of the construction costs. If the General Assembly overrides Walker's veto and restores full funding to the Student Center, the center would repay the SWRF fees.

However, according to the motion, if full funding is not restored to the Student Center, the center will not repay any of the SWRF fees.

Student Senate allocation perpetuates Quarter Night

A night out for two bits is still possible because of $903.90 given to the Southern Laboratory Theater by the Student Senate.

Southern Laboratory Theater, a student run organization, produces Quarter Nights—an evening of entertainment at the theater for only 25 cents.

In their regular meeting Wednesday evening, the senators voted to allocate money to the laboratory theater to be used for production materials, publicity and office supplies.

The senate also approved a resolution asking $295 for the School of Business Student Council. According to the resolution, the money is to be used for a student orientation for three local high schools in February, a guest speaker in March, a parade of honors in April and office supplies for the council.

The senate also voted not to recognize a resolution submitted by the Arab Student Association asking for $257.63. The resolution states that the money was requested for speaker's fees for a lecture given by Father Joseph Ryan, president of Americans for Justice in the Middle East.

GSC to members: 'Back override effort'

By Ann Schottman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Graduate Student Council (GSC) has urged all members to support the Student Activities Committee in its lobbying effort to restore cuts in state higher education funding.

The Illinois General Assembly will meet next week to consider an override of a veto by Gov. Daniel Walker's which resulted in a reduction in funding.

The GSC passed out names and addresses of state senators and representatives in the 58th and 59th Districts Thursday night as well as form letters supporting restoration of the full higher education budget.

Members were urged to contact their senators and representatives either by sending the form letter or by composing their own letter.

In other business, Ricardo Caballero, History Department representative, voiced concern that teaching assistant staff cards are no longer accepted at the library, and that library fines are now levied on teaching assistants.

Previously, teaching assistants with staff cards could check out a book for 12 weeks and did not have to pay fines. If a teaching assistant never brought back a book checked out on a staff card, he could still graduate, said Lloyd Worley, vice president of GSC. "The library is punishing us for using books," he said.

Staff cards are no longer issued to new teaching assistants, Worley said, because of a "fiat" of the previous graduate dean at the request of the library. Teaching assistants are staff, and the fact that they are denied that status is crazy.

He said the GSC must work to protect the rights of those still possessing staff cards, and at the same time working to restore staff status to new teaching assistants.

A motion was passed asking Kenneth G. Peterson, dean of library affairs, to attend the next GSC meeting to answer questions.

Concern was expressed over a recent Graduate Council ruling that an incomplete will turn into an "E" if it is not complete in two years.

The matter was tabled after there was some confusion as to what the previous policy was.

David Wunsch, a representative of the newly-formed Graduate Club, made a plea for membership and asked members of the GSC to post bulletins in their departments announcing the club's next meeting.

"We just started to get enough people to come in to break even," Wunsch said. "We have fifty-three dollars left for the rest of the semester. We made money for the first time last week—we made nine dollars."

The GSC passed a motion to hold its Christmas party with the Graduate Club at the New Life Center on Dec. 3.

Carter talks transition with two top aides

By James Gerstenzang
Associated Press Writer

PLAINS, Ga. (AP)—President-elect Jimmy Carter met Friday with two of his top aides to discuss the transition from the Ford administration amid reports of a rivalry between Hamilton Jordan and Jack H. Watson Jr.

Watson and Jordan flew into Americus Friday morning and, before they could leave the small airport, were insisting to reporters that talk of competition between them was "nonsense, all nonsense."

The two have both prepared separate transition memoranda, but they describe them as complementing each other and said they were not competing for Carter's attention.

When they stopped out of their chartered jet and faced reporters, Jordan, the former campaign director, said jokingly to Watson, head of the transition staff, "Let's kiss right here."

They then drove off to Carter's home about 10 miles away to talk with him about filling top jobs in the new administration and on the White House staff.

Carter has said he approves the competition among his staff members, and there have been signs that it is growing. Jordan's thick memorandum on filling positions in the administration duplicates to a degree Watson's recommendations.

Watson, an Atlanta lawyer who began work on the transition well before election day, prepared a stack of briefing books on appointments, government organization and options open to Carter.

One former campaign aide said that Jordan was "moving to head off Watson."

Although Jordan said that reports of competition were "nonsense," and Watson echoed him by saying, "all nonsense," one Carter insider said: "I guess we can expect more of that. I don't think there's any doubt Jimmy's going to receive competing recommendations, and he's not going to say, 'Hey, stop that,' because he likes competition among the corps. Jimmy's pretty happy with what's going on."

Carter, in addition to the session at his home with Jordan and Watson, met with several aides to review plans for the inauguration ceremonies on Jan. 20.

Among these aides was Gerald Rafshoon, Carter's campaign advertising chief, who flew in with Jordan and Watson to go over inauguration plans. With his campaign work completed, Rafshoon's role has been unclear.

There had been indications earlier that Carter might begin announcing names of possible administration officials on Monday, but Jordan squelched that, saying he didn't think any such lists would be ready by then. "We're simply reacting to a lot of names coming to us," Watson said.

A look at President Carter's prospects

By Garry Wills

The talk in Washington is this. Jack Watson's work on a Carter transition team was completely insulated from the Carter campaign. That would make sense. When Carter wanted vice presidential prospects interviewed, he sent Charles Kirbo out on that task—a man who had not been intimately involved in the day to day campaign. There seemed to have been no deals or bargainings for future office. This, too, is in character. Carter seeks independence, to a fault. One of his troubles may, in the future, be his reluctance to trade favors. But for the immediate future that does give him a comparatively free hand. He has the opportunity to be as statesmanlike in his first presidential choices as he was in that first decision as the candidate (choosing Walter Mondale).

We can expect his team of young expeditors to continue serving him—Hamilton Jordan, Jody Powell, Greg Schneiders, and the others. Some try to compare these totally loyal dependents to Richard Nixon's flunkies and yesmen. But there is a great difference. The Haldemans and Ehrlichmans helped Nixon seal himself off from the world. Carter uses his men to get him out and about.

The better comparison would be not with Nixon but with Eisenhower. Carter is the second president of this century who went to one of the national military academies. (The only one in the nineteenth century was Ulysses S. Grant.) Carter runs a tight ship. He wants subordinates to perform, and he would probably be as ruthless as Eisenhower in dumping them if they did not perform well and as he wished.

Carter's is a very orderly engineer's mind. He likes to know where things are—clearly marked channels, clearly defined responsibilities. His government reorganization in Georgia was at least partly an esthetic matter: messiness offends him.

This could make it difficult for Carter to maneuver through the deliberate clutter of Congress. Often a kind of camaraderie and deference are necessary to open a way through such thickets. Here Carter's own personality, and the loyalty of his aides to one boss and one boss only, could become an obstacle.

In foreign affairs, there has been a rumor that Carter might seek a secretary of state from the Congress, to ease otherwise prickly relations. But he is more likely to seek expertise, where he is perceived to be weak. This could be a job for Zbigniew Brzezinski (who has yearned for the spot over the years and seems to be lobbying for it). But Carter might do better to choose one of the older guard who is not tainted by Vietnam—a man who could work with the political establishment without being its prisoner.

It would be a mistake to think that Carter will be able to work easily with Congress just because he has a majority of the same party. Even an old master of Capitol Hill like Lyndon Johnson found there are structural imperatives that cause different priorities in the White House and in Congress. There will be the honeymoon granted all presidents, of whatever party, and a scramble to get some things done before lines harden, but harden they will, in that moral equivalent of war we call our politics.

Chocolate prices up; so is my temper

By Joan S. Taylor
Editor-in-chief

I used to be able to talk about chocolate in a rational way.

But this week, the Nestle Co. joined the other chocolate barons—Hershey Corp., M & M and Peter Paul—when it announced that the price of the chocolate bar will soon be increased by 25 per cent. The retail price of your average Snickers will go from 15 to 20 cents. The price hike is being blamed on the rising cost of the cocoa bean.

I suppose the cocoa bean scare will last just long enough to firmly establish 20 cents as the cost of a candy bar. (If you're thinking, "I'm already putting 20 cents in the vending machine for a candy bar,"—you're right. I'll save my vending machine tirade for another day.)

The inflated cost of sugar drove the price from 10 to 15 cents. But when the cost of sugar dropped, the cost of the candy bar did not.

All the companies mentioned have cited "higher costs" as the reason for the increases. That rationale gives me indigestion, heartburn and a twitch in my left eye. Higher prices are the reason for higher prices.

I suppose next we'll learn that famine causes hunger, snow causes blizzards and killing causes death.

I've just about had it. I want a nickel candy bar that weighs more than .032 ounces.

Under Nixon, the price of sugar upped the ante for candy. Under Ford, the price of chocolate is doing it again. What can we expect under Carter? I won't be surprised if we're hit with the rising cost of peanuts.

I guess I should be thankful I'm still young. By the time I lose my teeth, it will be nearly impossible to scrape up enough money to buy something chewy and sweet. But I guess I should also be thankful I'm getting older. I'm losing my sweet tooth and have to watch my weight.

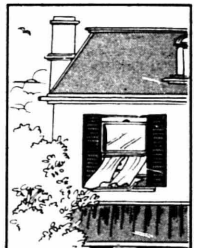

Chocolate is just one of those things you can't grow in your backyard. Sure, there are alternatives. Some companies have come out with fake chocolate at the old prices of real chocolate.

Fake (or imitation as they like to call it) is a drag. It doesn't melt in your hand like the real stuff.

For those whose favorite snacktime flavors are butterscotch and strawberry, this may sound like so much steam. But as far as I'm concerned, a chocolate bar without real chocolate is a sham. And a chocolate chip cookie without real chocolate chips is not a chocolate chip cookie.

Foreign students taught culture of America in homes

Many of the approximately 800 foreign students at SIU could spend four years at the university and never really learn about the people of the United States, according to Inga Solberger, a volunteer worker in the SIU International Student and Faculty Affairs Office.

The hospitality program at SIU, said Solberger, helps foreign students meet American families. She said that anyone interested in hosting a foreign student, in Thanksgiving or any other time, can contact the International Office, Wing C Woody Hall. The phone number is 453-5774.

The hospitality program enables foreign students to get an impression of American culture that would otherwise be unavailable to them, because most of them live in dormitories.

The hospitality program is one of several programs under the Community Liaison Board (CLB) which is a part of International Education. The main function of the CLB is to help foreign students adjust to SIU and the United States.

According to Jared Dorn, assistant director for International Education, The International Office has a very small, paid staff, and has to rely mostly on volunteers.

Solberger said that many foreign students are eager to meet American families.

Daniel F. Mullen

An SIU student was killed when his motorcycle collided with an automobile on U.S. 51 south of Pleasant Hill Road, Illinois State Police said Friday.

Daniel F. Mullen, 23, a senior in philosophy, died Thursday night when his motorcycle hit the side of an auto driven by another student, David D. McCarthy, 26, of R. R. 6, Carbondale police said.

Mullen and McCarthy were taken by ambulance to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, police said. A hospital spokesperson said Mullen, who sustained multiple injuries, was pronounced dead on arrival. McCarthy was treated at the hospital and released.

Both the auto and the motorcycle sustained major damage. Mullen was wearing a helmet at the time of the accident, police said.

Services for Mullen, who resided at 6250 Forest Glen, Chicago, will be

Creative workshop to offer bicentennial arts and crafts

R. Scott Voigt
Student Writer

The Rural Creative Workshop (RCW) will sponsor a bicentennial arts and crafts festival on Saturday from 3 to 10 p.m. at the Grand Tower grammar school in Grand Tower.

The festival will feature a demonstration of blacksmithing skills, pioneer arts and crafts, a cakewalk, a pot-luck supper, country and rock bands, and a slide show illustrating the functions of the RCW.

Directed by Barb Trent of Makanda, the RCW encompasses programs in Ava, Grand Tower, Makanda, Mount Carbon and Pomona. The RCW was designed to meet the needs of rural people, young and old, as a cultural-recreational outlet which might otherwise be unavailable.

The RCW was founded in 1975 due to lack of community-based services in Jackson county, Trent said. Ms. Trent said that the services available before the RCW were operated by people who did not have a real understanding of the needs of rural residents.

The RCW became a non-profit corporation in early 1976, and is funded through a bicentennial grant from Grand Tower and by donations from the individual communities the workshop serves.

Due to the limited funds available to the RCW, much of the staff consists of SIU students completing degrees in social-related fields. "The RCW is looking for volunteers all the time," Trent said. "Interested persons should call the RCW office in Makanda at 549-0937 in the a.m.," she added.

Trent is a student completing her masters degree from Governor's St. U., near Chicago, where she received her bachelor's degree.

Trent stressed that volunteers are helping the programs to become self-sufficient. Trent cited as an example the Makanda program, which is now run entirely by local young people. "Workers donated by various towns through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) were extremely helpful in aiding the Makanda program to grow, but the positions ended recently," Trent said.

The Alpha Kappa Lambda fraternity has been working with RCW lately, supervising such activities as intramural football and basketball leagues between participating towns. "A group of youngsters recently attended the SIU-vs-Arkansas St. Football game at McAndrew stadium with the fraternity," said Trent. "Tickets were donated by the SIU Athletic dept.," she added. "A trip to the St. Louis zoo was also held recently, with 120 youngsters attending," Trent said.

Trent said long range goals for the RCW include creating a spirit of accomplishment and cooperation between persons in rural communities, realization of community self-help through cooperative effort of young and old and self-sufficiency of the individual community programs.

Two DC-3s wait at the Southern Illinois Airport for the Saluki football team to board. SIU airport Operations owns six planes which are used for travel by the athletic department, faculty and administrators as well as students. (Staff photo by Peter Zimmerman)

SIU airport operations flying three daily flights, six planes

By Judy Comstock
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
When the Saluki football team travels to Bowling Green this weekend, they will be flying on airplanes owned and operated by SIU's Airport Operations.

The cost of the flight, almost $3,500, will be paid to Airport Operations out of the budget for the team.

Airport Operations, a part of the University's transportation system, is located at Southern Illinois Airport, north of Carbondale. It is the organization that carries athletic teams, administrators, faculty members and students groups on University-related travel.

John Elliott Ketring, chief pilot for Airport Operations, said the operation is a self-supporting division of the University, which receives no state funds. "We're like a business enterprise within the University," Ketring said.

The service is funded by fees charged to departments when they use air transportation, Ketring said. Anyone within the University planning to use the airplane service, can call Airport Operations to make a reservation. Ketring said reservations are taken on a first come, first served basis.

The department, division or organization the person represents is then billed for the flight, Ketring said. He added that the money comes out of the funds allocated for transportation within the department's budget.

Charter flights through Airport Operations are available to anyone, Ketring said. The rates for the charters are higher than rates for the University to compensate for the higher cost of the charter license, Ketring said. The charter service helps support the operation.

Airport Operations run a fuel concession for the airlines that use the airport, Ketring said. He said they do mechanical and maintenance work for private individuals and fill in for Air Illinois when needed.

Southern Illinois Airport is owned and operated by the Southern Illinois Airport Authority, a taxing body encompassing Murphysboro and Carbondale Townships.

Like the airlines that use the airport, Airport Operations pays a fee for the use of the space. Ketring said the space is rented on a yearly basis, the cost being determined by the amount of space used.

Ketring said Airport Operations averages three flights per day. The service is available to people at the Edwardsville campus Ketring said, as well as to members of the Board of Trustees flying to and from meetings.

It is cheaper and more convenient for the University to have its own air transportation system than to use commercial airlines, Ketring said. People can schedule flights through Airport Operations to leave at various times, while the airlines have a limited number of flights, he said.

To illustrate the difference in prices between commercial airlines and Airport Operations Ketring cited round trip prices to Springfield. On Air Illinois, he said, the fare is $58 per person, while it is $189 for five people with the university airplanes.

Ketring said Airport Operations has six planes: two DC3s, with capacity for 21 passengers each; one 411, with an eight passenger capacity; one 402, for ten passengers; and two 310s with capacities for five passengers. The DC3s were donated to the University by General Motors and the Air Force, Ketring said.

Four transportation pilots, besides Ketring, are employed at Airport Operations he said. Student pilots are often used as co-pilots, he said.

Dorm fire leaves none injured

A fire on the first floor of Kellogg Hall at Thompson Point caused no injuries but did do minor damage to the floor, University police said Friday.

A short in the cord of an iron was listed as the cause of the Thursday fire, police said.

The fire, which occurred at about 1:30 p.m., was extinguished before the Carbondale Fire Department arrived, police said. The residents pulled the alarm to notify the fire department and then put out the fire themselves. Carbondale Police Carbondale Police also reported Friday the arrest of an SIU student who allegedly kicked in a door at Wilson Hall, 1101 S. Wall St.

Robert L. Smith, 18, a freshman in mathematics was arrested after the manager of Wilson Hall, Larry Davis, signed a complaint against Smith, police said.

Smith, who was charged with criminal damage to property, is a resident of Wilson Hall, police said.

Women's field hockey captain gains respect of team through leadership

By Pat Matreci
Student Writer

Although she has already completed enough hours to fulfill graduation requirements last Spring, Lisa Millar, fullback for the SIU women's field hockey team, came back to SIU "to end on a better season."

Millar, a senior in women's physical education, is currently taking enough hours merely to satisfy athletic eligibility requirements. Her main purpose for returning to SIU was to play field hockey.

"I was a little disappointed in my performance last year," Millar said. "I had one year of eligibility left, so I decided to come back."

Other factors influenced her decision to come back, one being the first Illinois State Field Hockey Tournament, which the Salukis won. Millar has been the team captain for the past three seasons. She commented on some of her responsibilities as captain.

"I think that a large responsibility of mine is to boost team morale and hustle," Millar said. "Sometimes I just say a few words to my teammates. Sometimes I just try to set an example by pushing myself harder so the others keep going. I have found this to be a little easier to do this year."

Millar said some of the most important qualities of a leader are the ability to communicate with all the players, to gain the respect of teammates and to have general concern for the team.

Millar thinks she is very able to communicate with the players because she "likes everyone and has never had a problem talking."

Commenting on respect of her teammates, Millar said, "Respect is gained. I've been through a lot with many of the players and have gained their respect. I believe that respect for me has grown enough for me to be the leader of the team."

Millar has a deep concern for the team. She said, "If you can't get along with each other off the field, forget it when you get onto the field. We play as a unit, and to do that we have to get along. We each have a part on the team; when we put them together, it creates a whole, not 11 pieces in different positions."

One characteristic of the 1976 team that makes it function well, according to Millar, is the unity among the squad.

"We all want to win," Millar said, "as a team and for the coach (Julee Illner). We care about each other and we are confident of each others' abilities. It's nice to know that everyone is going all-out on the field. We depend on each other a lot, and this makes us more able to operate smoothly."

Two unbeaten teams to clash in intramural football finals

By Jim Misunas
Student Writer

Phi Sigma Kappa and the Bench Eagles, both unbeaten powers, meet Saturday in SIU's men's intramural flag football championship. Game time is noon on the intramural fields east of the Arena.

Phi Sigma Kappa (8-0) defeated defending champion Gold 'Bo 19-7 in a Thursday semifinal game. Bench Eagles (10-0) advanced by beating the Meatpackers 27-12. Bench Eagles lost 7-2 in last year's final. year's final.

"Most of our games have been defensive, physical contests," said Phi Sigma Coach Kirk Champion. "And I don't expect the final game to be any different," he said.

"It'll be a battle of defenses," said Bench Eagles Coach Lenny Lucey.

"We're going to play our usual game," Champion said. "Nothing will be different. We'll just go with what's been successful for us." For Phi Sig, that'll probably mean quarterback Bob Knezevich passing for touchdowns. Knezevich tossed for 18 during the season.

But Bench Eagles won't be able to play their usual game because star quarterback Matt Smith won't be at the contest.

"Matt's attending a wedding Saturday and he won't make the game," Lucey said. "So, Doug Hamman is starting for us at quarterback. He's played there before, but it figures to change our offensive style a bit," he said. Smith had thrown for 20 touchdowns for Bench Eagles.

Smith passed for all seven Bench Eagle touchdowns that the team scored in the playoffs. Offensive end Mark Miffin has caught five of them, three in Thursday's win over the Meatpackers. Smith also threw two touchdown passes to Dave Curl. Bench Eagles defeated the Blues 14-6, and Dirty Dingers 6-0 in earlier playoff games.

"Phi Sigma is tough on defense," Lucey said. "That's their strong point. They also like to run some, but I think our team can stop that."

'Bombs' no longer burning Saluki defense

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Last year's Saluki football team was 1-9-1 partly because the defensive secondary was frequently burned on long touchdown passes.

This year, the team has won six games, partly because the secondary hasn't been giving up many long touchdown passes.

That secondary is led by cornerbacks Oyd Craddock and Joe Hosman, monster Ron Geels and safety Valdwre Rodgers.

A week ago, the SIU pass defense was ranked 12th in the nation, giving up only about 80 yards a game in the air. Although Illinois State threw 36 times, the secondary held steady, allowing no touchdowns and is currently giving up a still respectable 102.3 yards a game.

"The defensive line is getting a good rush for us, and it helps the secondary play better," Hosman said. Now a senior, Hosman is tied with line backer Dan Brown for the team lead with three interceptions.

"We're getting real close in the secondary and all of us are pulling for each other," he said.

The secondary hasn't been set in terms of starters for more than a few games in a row since the season began.

At different times, Joe Hage and Mike Bellantoni have also started and Geels and Craddock have played two different positions.

Geels is the surprise of the bunch. He is a walk-on from last year's team, although he was just a "dummy" then. But he worked his way from what seemed like last-string, and started the third game of the year when Rodgers was injured.

The "monster" position is more like a linebacker than a defensive back and helps defend against the run more than the pass.

Craddock, the only freshman of the group, started in his first college game and promptly gave up a touchdown pass against McNeese State. But hasn't been burned since.

He was recruited from St. Augustine

High School in New Orleans from defensive backs Coach Rich Solomon who raids that school every year for choice players. He brought back five for this year's team.

"I heard that defensive back wasn't the strong point of this team," Craddock said. "And I thought I would be able to start this year."

"Our coverage is basically the same as it was in high school, although the receivers we cover are better."

As a freshman, he has a lot to learn, but he's trying to improve his man-to-man coverage and wants to be more aggressive.

"You have to improve," he said. "Back there, you can't have a mistake, or it means a touchdown."

Hosman probably has had the toughest competition this year because he and Bellantoni, the man behind him, are roommates. In the beginning of the season, whoever played better would start, but Hosman has come on strong in the last three games, intercepting a pass in each.

Last Saturday was Joe Hosman Day, thrown by the boosters in his home town of Herrin, and he pleased them with one of those interceptions.

"The secondar will get a couple more against Bowling Green," he said. "They beat us soundly last year (48-6), but we're confident that we can beat them."

"Yeah, we're looking forward to this game," Geels said. "We're going to kick their (posteriors)."

'No pressure' in District V for Saluki runners

The Southern Illinois cross country Salukis will have the unexpected pleasure of "just running for experience" in the NCAA District Five meet on Saturday in Stillwater, Okla., as a result of winning the Valley championship last weekend.

By winning the Valley cross country title, the Salukis now automatically qualify for the NCAA nationals on November 22 at Denton, Tex. The only other team to gain an automatic berth from District Five, is the Big Eight champion Colorado.

Three teams will advance to the NCAA finals from District Five, so one additional squad, other than SIU or Colorado, will earn a trip to Denton. Saluki Head Coach Lew Hartzog feels that the remaining spot could go to Wichita State, the team which the Salukis upset to win the Valley.

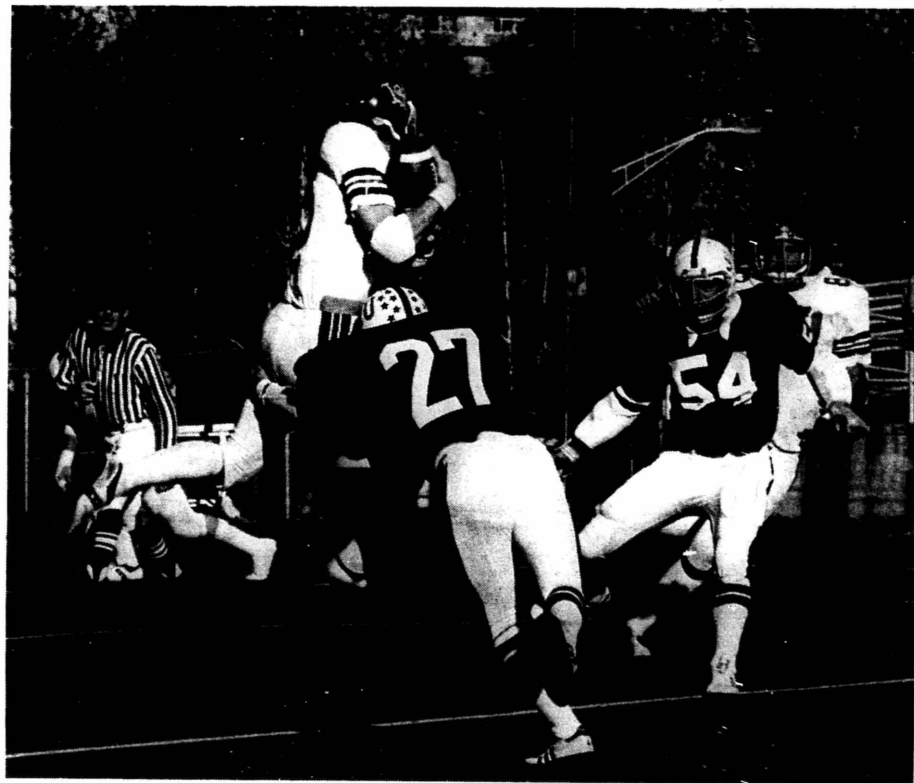

Fifteen teams will run Saturday, including all teams from the Big Eight and Valley conferences, in addition to North Texas State, Oral Roberts and St. Louis University.

"We do not have to be there (Stillwater), but I do feel that the meet will be a great benefit to us, particularly for Paul Craig, Mike Sawyer, Larry Haney and Michael Bisase who are all underclassmen," said Hartzog. Sawyer was third individually in the Valley meet, Craig sixth, and Bisase 12th.

"Early in the season we stayed out of the Indiana Invitational because I didn't think it would help us," Hartzog said, "but in this case, I think it would hurt us to layoff this weekend. The time between last Saturday and November 22nd is too long." "The kids are really high and want to run," continued Hartzog, "I don't want to stop them."

Said Assistant Coach Don Merrick, "We should finish in the top six or seven. This is a nonpressure meet—what we're after is a team effort. We don't want our top three (Sayer, Craig, and Jerry George) to blast off and leave the pack. We'd rather see them hang back and help their teammates."

The course in Stillwater is 10,000 meters (roughly six-and-a-quarter miles). The farthest the Salukis have ran in a meet this year is five miles.

Joe Hosman (27) and Dan Brown (54) prepare to put the clamps on Illinois State wide receiver Jeff Gowan. Hosman and SIU defensive secondary teammates Oyd Craddock, Ron Geels, and Valdwre

Field hockey team loses 1-0; spikers winning at state meet

By Lee Feinswog and Dave Heun
Daily Egyptian Sports Writers

The bubble burst Friday for the women's field hockey team. After going 16 games without a loss, it was defeated by Ohio State 1-0 in the first round of the Midwest regional playoffs at Eastern Illinois University.

The loss ruined all chances of going to the nationals and now the team can finish no higher than fifth place in the regionals.

In a telephone interview after the game, Coach Julie Illner said that Ohio State scored on a breakaway in the first five minutes of play, and that was it.

"We dominated the game almost entirely. We played a good game—it was a good game all-around—but we couldn't put the ball in the goal. If you don't score, you can't win," Illner said.

"We didn't have very many shots but did have a lot of penetration time. We had the jitters to start with, and that hurt," she said.

Illner said that Kathy Vondresak had "the best game I'd ever seen her play," and Diane Bednarczyk also played a very strong game.

Junior Pat Matreci was obviously upset about the loss.

"We're pretty down. We're still getting over the shock," she said. "When you totally dominate a team like that...it was fluke that they scored."

After the first game, Matreci acknowledged that SIU couldn't let the loss bring the team down.

"We've got another game to play, so we'll have to come back," she said. In the consolation round, SIU beat Indiana State 4-0. Helen Meyer scored three times and Judy Seger once.

SIU will play Davis and Alkins College Saturday at 9 a.m.

While the field hockey team was having its perfect season ruined, the women's volleyball team was faring much better, as it competed for the state title.

In Friday's first round of competition in the women's volleyball state tournament at Illinois State University, the Salukis racked up two wins.

The Salukis defeated Chicago State 15-7, 15-7 and beat Bradley 15-7, 15-7. They were scheduled to go against the University of Illinois at 4:30.

To qualify for the next round of action, a team must place first or second in its pool. The Salukis, by beating Chicago State and Bradley, have an excellent chance to finish in the top two.

Coach Debbie Hunter was pleased and felt the Salukies were fired up.

The team had not seen action in two weeks and the players had expressed their desire to get into action in the tournament.

The teams from the other pools were playing in a different gym on the campus, according to JV spiker Kerri Harris, so the Salukis did not know who they would face Saturday.

The top teams in each pool will be seeded again Saturday and compete in a single elimination tournament to determine the state champ.
