No danger seen in vaccine

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The Illinois public health director Wednesday ordered immediate resumption of the state's swine flu inoculation program, saying information from federal scientists indicates no danger exists from the program.

The program was suspended Tuesday after reports that several elderly persons outside of Illinois had died after receiving the inoculation.

John Amadio, director of the Jackson County Health Dept., said this will have no immediate effect on the county because it will not be getting the vaccine until at least December. Amadio said that the media has blown the issue out of proportion. He said that if the vaccine was unsafe there would be many more reports of problems. He noted that out of a half million shots given, only a few deaths have been reported, all of them in the high risk category of people 65 and older with chronic heart or lung problems.

The shutdowns started Tuesday with the announcement that three Pittsburgh-area residents, all in their 70s and all with a history of heart or lung trouble, died after receiving the flu shots. Eight states, including Louisiana, suspended immunization programs immediately and by midday Wednesday, Michigan had joined the list, with officials reporting three deaths from inoculations.

There were eight other deaths, including the three in Michigan, two in Oklahoma City and one each in Massachusetts, Tennessee, Texas and Louisiana. Authorities said they believed the deaths were simply coincidental and indicated that those people were inoculated with a different batch of vaccine.

The Louisiana death, announced Wednesday afternoon, involved a 75-year-old woman who suffered a heart failure the day after getting a flu shot. Dr. Hypolite Landry, the coroner, said the flu shot had nothing to do with the death. "Six elderly people died in Baton Rouge over the last two days and she was one of them. The other five didn't have the flu shot and they died too.

State health officials have said there is nothing to prevent the inoculations from proceeding.

President Warren Brandt told faculty and staff in a memo Wednesday that they are being required to teach more "but with less salary in terms of purchasing power because of totally inadequate salary increases."

The memo contained a summary of the fiscal year 1977 internal budget, which Brandt was to have submitted to the Board of Trustees last month. The board is scheduled to review the budget at its meeting Thursday.

Of the total $71,432,976 internal operating budget, over $1.2 million will be used for salary increases for the Carbondale campus. SIU's Medical School will receive $350,000 for salary and $71,432,976 for salaries.

It looks simple, but it isn't easy constructing a massive ice rink for the Holiday on Ice show playing Thursday through Sunday in the SIU Arena.

According to Pat Glenn, assistant construction engineer, the entire operation takes about four days, using 10 workers on continuous eight-hour shifts.

Because the temperature of the two-inch thick ice is controlled by refrigeration compressors located in a trailer outside the building, the freezing of the ice will have little effect on the building temperature.

"Just due to the area, the amount of refrigeration we have here will bring down the building temperature a bit," Glenn said, "but it's compensated for in the arena's air conditioning system."

The ice rink operates similarly to a chill water air conditioning system. This means a solution of anti-freeze and water is circulated through the refrigeration compressors and a piping system located underneath the floor in a continuous loop.

Water normally freezes at 32 degrees Fahrenheit, the temperature of the 140 foot by 60 foot rink is maintained at 28 degrees Fahrenheit to keep the ice surface dry.

For the rink to solidify, it takes "an hour and a half to freeze one foot, which is a 16th of an inch of water, across the whole floor," Glenn said. "It takes 48 hours, two full days of ice making time, to have enough ice to skate on.

Following the final performance, the ice remains solid and the temperature is lowered as much as possible. The ice is then broken apart with sledgehammers and carried out into the parking lot.

In a portable operation like this, problems are usually numerous. But in Carbondale, Glenn said, the only real difficulty was a lack of available material.

"We ran into a problem with the anti-freeze needed for the water solution. We can't carry enough with us to do the entire floor, we have just enough to give us a start.

"That particular liquid is not available in this area, except in St. Louis, we used to transport it over here, Other than that, everything turned out okay."

Companies barred from selling oil securities

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Two companies have been barred from selling securities in Southern Illinois oil leases because they used fraud to lure investors, officials said Wednesday. The action was taken by the Secretary of State Michael Howlett's Securities Division against R-B Development Co. of Missouri, Vernon and two of its officers. The Securities Division is responsible for enforcing the state's securities laws.

The order blocking R-B Development Co. from selling oil interests was issued Friday. The order against H-A-V-E was handed down July 29. Hearings in both cases were held before the Securities Division, said promoters for the two companies gave misleading information and put investors in an effort to get them to buy securities in oil leases in Southern Illinois and Indiana.

Syrian assault batters Palestinian guerrillas

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Syrian armored brigade battered Palestinian guerrilla and leftist Lebanese positions outside Beirut in a two-pronged offensive Wednesday that upset Arab League efforts for peace.

The assault on the approaches to Beirut, behind a heavy artillery and rocket barrage, came 24 hours after Syrian forces moved against the southern port city of Sidon.

The guerrillas and leftists held to their forward positions at Bhamdoun, a mountain resort town 12 miles east of the capital, resisting Syrian tank assaults from three directions. The Palestinian guerrilla commander at Bhamdoun said the Syrians are trying to push through Beirut before an Arab summit meeting scheduled for Oct. 10-11. They will try and finish us in five days," he said. "but they will fail.

American cargo jet crashes in Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — An American cargo jet crashed Wednesday near the Bolivian city of Santa Cruz, killing all three crewmembers and an unidentified, senior government official on the ground, the Bolivian civil aeronautics office reported.

The Bolivian radio station, Panamericana, said more than 100 people were killed, but an official from the American Embassy in La Paz said he had figures of 200 people killed.

The rationale, based on a study of freshmen admitted to SIU in the fall of 1975, did not fit the facts we have obtained from Admissions and Records, Wheeler said.

Wheeler says he plans to give the board members the study on the admission policy done by you. He said that he knew to his knowledge, no one else had submitted any substantial information to the board that conflicts with the study done by the University.

The board, he said, will review the study to be presented to the board, that the students are being grouped incorrectly. "Students who did not achieve a C average in 1975 are being grouped with students who received less than a C or dropped out of the University.

Under the proposed policy entering freshmen would have to rank in the upper half of their graduating classes and score in the upper two-thirds on their ACT exams. If the student does not achieve a C average in their graduating class, he would have to score in the upper 50 per cent on the ACT.

Students who do not meet the new standards with the requirements would not have to apply as special admission students. If accepted to the University, they would have to complete in academic assistance programs.

The rationale also states that 60 per cent of the 440 students did not maintain a C average or had left the University by the end of spring semester.

The board, he said, did not accept the position of one student who offered the possibility that the current admissions program be admissible could achieve a C average or better.

"Within the 440 there is also an easily identifiable group of 200 student who did not have a C average or better," Wire said. These students had an ACT score of 14 or better. He said that such a large amount of students who did achieve a C average with students who did not, "The University's rationale for the admission policy becomes cloudy."

Wheeler said he hopes the Board decides the policy should be "thoroughly reviewed." "I am not sure if the Board today, we have now is the right one," but a more careful study should be made before the University attempts to change the policy.

State GOP hopeful calls for sunset law

By Jim Winsor

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson proposed a "sunset" law legislation Wednesday to reduce waste and improve services in state government.

In a news conference at Southern Illinois University, Thompson said a sunset law would "insure that tax dollars are spent more economically and that state programs which do not work are not eliminated."

The candidate said a sunset law would require the termination of a program or agency by a set date.

Thompson was joined by Republican secretary of state candidate William Harri s. Introduced in the late session of the General Assembly, the bill was too narrow in scope to get the job done, Thompson said.

Licensing boards were the main focus of the Democrats' proposal, he said. It was deficient because no standards were included for alternative proposals about programs to be terminated or reinitiated.

On other matters, Thompson promised to take a stand before election day on which side he would be for the legislature of Gov. Daniel Walker's cuts in the universities salary appropriations.

He said the state's fiscal problems require "measuring that $10 million request against other larger and more dire needs."

Howlett said Sunday in the Student Center that he would support the override "so we won't be losing our good professors to other states."

Thompson and Harris were also scheduled for stops in East St. Louis, Quincy and Moline Wednesday.
Board takes over all county ambulances

By H. B. Koplowitz

Despite anticipated financial problems, the Jackson County Board decided Wednesday to take control of ambulance service for the entire county.

In a unanimous vote, the board agreed to take control of service for Carbondale and the eastern half of the county. Last month the board voted to take control of the service for the western half. SIU had been operating their own service.

According to a report by the ambulance committee of the county board, ambulances would cost the county $100,000 a year. The west half of the county may lose almost $60,000 a year and the eastern half about $3,000.

To reduce the problem, the board voted to increase the rates for ambulance service. Emergency service calls will go up from $45 to $60, while transfers (ambulance calls not requiring emergency treatment) will rise from $35 to $45. According to the report, the new rates would decrease losses in the west half to under $50,000, and the east half could make a profit in excess of $2,000.

The increased rates, the report noted, would increase the volume of ambulance calls, which would raise the cost of ambulance services which provide less sophisticated service at a lower price.

To remedy the problem, Erikson suggested the county create an exclusive franchise throughout the county. "(Ambulance service) could become a monopoly and nightmares we've ever had without an exclusive franchise," Erikson said.

According to Larry Erikson, director of the Jackson County Health Dept., an exclusive franchise would not create a monopoly situation where the county would have the onlyambulances in the county. Rather, it would mean that rates would remain the same for all ambulance services. Amadio explained that government agencies, primarily the Department of Public Aid and Medicare, will pay for ambulance calls in many cases, but payment is on the lowest rate in the county. Therefore, if a second rate ambulance service charges rates, a better-equipped ambulance service in the same county would not be able to collect a higher rate even though its expenses are higher.

The board also approved the appointment of Frosty Cummings as director of the county ambulance service. Cummings presently works with the Grey Health Service.

In other business, the board got a preview of the railroad relocation plan related for construction in Carbondale in the summer of 1978. According to Dave Brewer of Clark and Dietz and Assoc., the engineering firm picked to design the relocation project, the tracks will be lowered to a trench 70 feet deep and 200 feet wide from the SIU Physical Plant to the railroad yard north of town.

Brewer said that overpasses would be built at Pleasant Hill Road, Grand Avenue, Mill Street, College Street, West Main Street, Main Street, Oak Street, and Hickory Street. He said that although construction takes five years, traffic would not be unduly hindered because only one street could be closed at a time.

Brewer said the city is "50 per cent through the process" of getting the federal funds for the project. The board was also given a copy of the proposed 1977-78 county budget. Bill Kelly, director of the finance committee, said there would be a public hearing on the budget Nov. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the Jackson County Courthouse. He said he hoped the board would be ready to vote on the budget by the next county board meeting on Nov. 10.

Evidence Flies Out the Window

My wife and I purchased a pair of George Mace's Guinea Pig Treats at the Fishnet pet store in Murdale Shopping Center. When we opened the jar at home we discovered a bug larva in it.

Six days later, when we returned the jar back to the store. On the way there my wife opened the jar and a bug flew out.

Then we got to the store and explained what had happened. The salesperson dumped it out of the jar. We asked the salesperson would not give us our 59-cents refund or a replacement.

The salesperson told us even if there was a bug in the jar it wouldn't hurt the guinea pig, but we don't want to feed our 's. Is there any way we can get our refund or a replacement? Signed, R. and E. M.

No. The manager of the Fishnet told the Consumer Action Center that he would not take the customer's word that the pet food contained the larva. Without evidence to support their claim, R. and E. M. cannot legally demand a refund.

Return Car Parts Lost

I ordered two spoilers for the front of my car on Feb. 12 from J.C. Whitney Co. in Chicago. The total price was $43.50, which I sent by money order.

When I received the spoilers, one was defective and the other I didn't like very well both back to J.C. Whitney via United Parcel Service (UPS) on July 29.

In the meantime the J.C. Whitney Co. sent me a due bill for $11.30. They apparently were not giving me full credit for the first two spoilers I returned. I then ordered a third spoiler for the rear of my car. Once again I sent a money order for the total. This spoiler was also defective and I sent it back to J.C. Whitney via United Parcel Service (UPS) on July 29.

Police chief announces Mace fine has been paid

The Murphysboro police will not arrest George Mace for failure to pay a 3-cent parking ticket, because the fine has been paid by a Carbondale policeman. Carbondale Police Chief George Kennedy said Wednesday.

The ticket, issued March 28, was paid by a policeman who was in Murphysboro that day. Kennedy said he was not sure which of two policemen used the car or who wrote the ticket or named either officer.

The ticket was sent to Mace, vice president for university relations, because his license plate was being used at the time by the Carbondale police tactical unit for surveillance work.

Mace's former wife, Peggy, said she lost the plate sometime in March. A Sept. 9 entry in the log book by Carbondale City Manager Carroll Pryor showed that a license plate was placed on the surveillance auto by a former Carbondale police officer named Charles Kennedy.

Kennedy said in September he did not know how the plate got on the car. The detective, Larry Hill, was reprimanded for the incident.

Unemployment is the primary problem facing blacks in Carbondale, according to Elbert Simon, president of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Simon said Wednesday racial discrimination in the city is a problem, but it is not an overriding handicap like unemployment. He estimated the unemployment rate for blacks in Carbondale to be three times the national average of 8 per cent.

Simon also said underemployment is a serious problem but unemployment is the greater of the two evils. People are considered underemployed if they are working jobs below the level of acquired skills and competence.

David Koch, statistician for the Employment Service in Murphysboro, said Wednesday the unemployment rate in Jackson County is about 8.9 per cent, but added that mixed industry employment is approximately 2.1 times higher. The unemployment statistics are broken down for specific races, but Koch said Jackson County's unemployment rate is higher than all the surrounding counties except for Franklin County.

Simon said he hears a lot of people saying those on welfare and the unemployed in general, don't want jobs, but he said from what he has seen in Carbondale, this is not the case.

"I've met very few people who don't want to work. The majority of the people are looking for jobs," he said. Simon said he has been able to be caught by creating public works jobs similar to the Work Projects Administration (WPA) under President Franklin Roosevelt. Simon said he will be using public jobs rather than going through the private sector would be a greater help to unemployed blacks because of a greater increase in the overall number of jobs.

"If we know, let's look at the number of blacks hired. What if a place has 10 per cent black employees out of 100. They increase the plant operating capacity by 100 employees; but what's the situation about 10 blacks are hired," he said.

To compound the unemployment problems Simon said, blacks are generally unable to come up with the necessary personal and bank references; because they don't have the required collateral to get bank loans.

Wilderness: Where the earth and its community of life are untrammeled by man, where man himself is a visitor who does not remain.

Congress-1964 Wilderness Act

In the 1800s, Illinois had 75 percent more forest lands compared with today. Since the state's population is 80 percent urban much of the land has given way to nerve-wracking industrial civilization.

Many Illinoisans, seeking wilderness tranquility, travel out of the state to where forests are more abundant. Consequently if Illinois now exports more tourism then it attracts.

In 1964, Congress passed the Eastern Wilderness Act. The act set aside over 200,000 acres of wilderness east of the 100th meridian. The act also designated additional areas for potential wilderness classification.

Since the act's passage, Illinois has created only one wilderness area. Last month 4,690 acres of Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge was designated as a wilderness area by Congress. The act still awaits action from President Ford.

Local and state citizen groups through the publication of their proposals have helped to establish areas for potential wilderness designation. In Southern Illinois, Larue-Pine Hills-Hutcheson Creek, 30 miles south west of Carbondale, has been proposed but the proposal has not been acted on.

The 1964 Wilderness Act, Congress cited four qualifications for wilderness area designation. They are:

- Appears to have been primarily affected by the forces of nature;
- Outstanding opportunities for solitude and primitive-type recreation;
- Sufficiently large to be preserved to its natural beauty;
- Must contain scientific, scenic, or historic value.

Citizen proposals, with the support of conservation groups and the public, urge the undertaking of a study of sites for areas. If their research shows that the land meets the four qualifications, they will seek support for the study of the area in hopes of persuading Congress to establish a wilderness study area and ultimately designate such land a wilderness area.

When designated as a wilderness area by Congress, land is protected from commercial enterprise, logging, motorized equipment, road construction and aircraft landing. Private owners of land within the area are guaranteed to property and land use established at the time of designation.

Since only ten percent of Illinois' 55,877 square miles of land remains forested, it is obvious the state needs lands protected within the Eastern Wilderness Act. If within a century Illinois went from 42 percent to ten percent forested, what will future pressures of economic and industrial growth take away? 90 percent?

Viewpoint

The Larue-Pine Hills-Hutcheson Creek study area proposal was first drawn up for 27,000 acres in 1975. Since then, private ownership is not affected in a designated wilderness study area. There was resident recognition which led to a boundary change to exclude all private lands. The proposal now stands at 20,000 acres.

In the personal passage through Congress and the President, and eventually becomes a wilderness area, Illinois will have 34,050 acres of protected wilderness for enduring enjoyment. Illinois may then begin importing tourism while preserving the immense diversity of its wilderness areas.

Wilderness is not an inestimable resource. We need the wilderness designations for personal solitude and for retaining some of our natural world.

International students groups being ignored

The International Student Council has been on this campus for such a long time that they should not be one of its major problems. Oddy enough, the International Student Council is a body consisting of 11 associations, but it is not truly recognized by the Student Government, the Daily Egyptian, and a lot of people in the University community. This lack of recognition results from several factors, and has resulted in several consequences.

One factor is American students' apathetic attitude toward international students' activities. Well, this may not be their fault because they have not been sensitized to the activities by the mass media to which they are exposed. Thus, we cannot help but blame the Daily Egyptian for this apathy. According to the agenda-setting function, not only do media reflect realities, but they also create realities. At the mass medium serving this community, the Daily Egyptian should also give access to several relevant public sectors.

Do not say that the International Student Council is not a relevant public sector in this community. Taking into account all relevant input from international students on this campus, one will see that we represent as sizable a number of students as many other groups on campus. We request that all people whom this message concerns restitute their thought and give us a fair chance to be a recognized public sector in this community.

In the past we have done several things in which we would have liked American students' attention, but we did not get enough attention because we did not get enough good coverage from the Daily Egyptian. There are several other things that we would like to do, but cannot because of a lack of financial resources. The executives in the Student Government might have the same structure of thought as the Daily Egyptian editor, but is it not true that by giving us enough money to do what we do in this campus, the activities would have educational benefits for this community.

We do not ask for too much. We ask only to access to the mass medium that serves that community. We ask for fair reconsideration on the part of the Student Government. We ask for a fair chance to hold activities that will give us a chance to show the American students that we also have some intuitions and do not think this is impossible unless that entire community chooses to be egotistic and apathetic.

Chauvinists also have right to free speech

After reading Laurie Vincent's letter to the editor (DE, Oct. 13, 1979) I decided that enough is enough. For the past two months I have not seen an editorial against the so-called feminist movement appear in the Daily Egyptian. It would seem that this is a type of discrimination.

I cannot agree with Earl Butz's statement that women don't want to use birth control. Earl Butz, or I, or anyone else wants to make a social statement that is at our own privilege. You do not have to like it or agree with it.

My opinion on the so-called anti-sexist movement is not very favorable. When the time comes that I cannot express my own feelings on a certain subject, I will make time for me to find myself a new country to live in. If my feelings, or anyone else's for that matter, are swept under the rug I will try and order them to change. Most of the males of this country are passive about this matter long enough. We in this country are not to the point where freedom of speech cannot be expressed. The so-called feminist movement has turned the whole male on sexual equality into a type of reverse discrimination. Many businesses, and especially restaurants, are_only women at this time because of outside feminist encouragement. I for one am not going to succumb to their pressures. Let them call me chauvinistic, narrow-minded, and let them berate my views. I don't plan on changing them one bit.

I will close this letter with a rather popular statement among "radical" males: I am a chauvinist and I'll show you somebody who is not a guy.

Tenant Unions meet benefit

Last weekend, the first annual Midwest Tenants' Union Conference was held at the Student Center. The members of the SIU Tenant Union, who organized this conference, were discussions, workshops, and general information sessions, should be highly recommended for their efforts. The conference gave a chance for not only people in the Carbondale area, but also others, to listen, argue, and meet people who are responsible for fighting protecting and enforcing their rights as tenants and landlords. As the handful of people attending this would testify, it was unfortunate that many more people did not take advantage of this outlet to voice their gripes about roofip landlords, unfair housing conditions, etc. The smaller number of participants, though, did allow for a more intimate atmosphere where meaningful discussions did occur. I would like to thank the SIU Tenant Union for establishing a conference that does represent a vital part of the educational process at SIU.

Republican treatise: All’s happy behind the wall

By Arthur Hoppe
of Chronicle American Syndicate

For the benefit of intriguing citizens, the Republican National Committee has issued a small pamphlet entitled, "A History of Eastern Europe, 1945-1976." Excerpts follow.

Following World War II, Eastern Europe was in terrible shape. Nobody knew what to do. Everybody hoped the Russians would take them in. So the Russians were richer and kinder than anybody else. But even the Russians couldn't take every body in. They did take in the Estonians, Latvians and Lithuanians, because they begged the hardest. And they finally reluctantly agreed to accept 10,000 square miles of homeless territory Finland didn't want. But they insisted on paying for it by building a "choice but to tell the other Eastern Europeans they'd Lithuanians. because they begged the hardest. And Republican treatise: All's happy behind the wall

Though they hated to do it, the Russians had no choice but to tell the other Eastern Europeans they'd Lithuanians because they begged the hardest. And Though they hated to do it, the Russians had no choice but to tell the other Eastern Europeans that the Republicans finally had to build a wall across Berlin to keep fan-crazed Westerners out. The only fly in the ointment was power-mad Czechoslovakia. But in 1968, badly-outnumbered Russian tanks defeated thousands of Czechs heavily armed with bottles and rocks. And, thanks to this historic defense by the Russians, there has been no domination of the Soviets in Eastern Europe to this day.

The Republican brochure ends there. It's a sell out. "You'd be surprised," said one Republican committeeman, "how well it's been received by people who say they are card-carrying Party members."

Application deadlines set for British scholarships

Research and Projects has announced the application deadlines for three scholarship programs involving study on Britain to be awarded in 1977.

Deadline for the Marshall Scholarship is Oct. 22, for the Rhodes Scholarships, Oct. 31, and for the Nov. 15 Danforth Fellowships.

The Marshall scholarship will be offered in 1977 for two academic years of study of any subject leading to a British university degree.

Applicants for the Marshall scholarship must have a degree from an American college or university before taking up residence at a British university. Rhodes scholarships are available to 32 students in the United States for study in any field at a British university. Applicants must be American citizens, single and between 18 and 24 years of age. They must complete a bachelor's degree before October 1977, to be considered for the 1977 awards.

Danforth Fellowships are open to all qualified persons who are interested in teaching in colleges and universities, and who plan to study for a Ph. D. in any field of study common to the undergraduate liberal arts curriculum in the United States.

Approximately 60-85 fellowships will be offered to seniors and recent graduates under 30 years of age, and 20-40 awards will be given to postbaccalaureate persons between 30 and 40 years of age.

For further information about the awards, contact Helen Vergez, Research and Projects, Woody Hall, 290C, or Jared Dorn, International Education, Woody Hall, 110B.

The lifting sound of an ethereal choir swells delicately toward the heavens. An electric piano shimmering in the distance as a tender, ambient voice softly soars above intertwining in gentle harmony.

“Good morn or evening friends, Here's your friend the Wonderer, I have serious news to pass on to everybody.”

The angel Gabriel, perhaps? No, after a two-year absence, Steve Wonder's cosmic interlude has once again descended upon the earth, this time in the form of a spellbinding three-record opus, “Songs in the Key of Life.”

Immersed in the ethereal void of darkness since birth, Wonder's interstellar travels have expanded beyond the narrow visions of our optic world to encompass an ever-widening astral and spiritual realms.

His penetrating insight, coupled with an obtinate plus for peace and an introspective sensivity to the black man's plight on earth, have created the most intensely moving and highly experimental songs heard in contemporary music.

Heralded as a child prodigy from age 12, Steve Wonder commanded national attention under Motown records' wing. But the golden hit parade has once again descended upon the earth, this time in the form of a spellbinding three-record opus, “Songs in the Key of Life.”

Steve Wonder's tender sensitive “Talking Book,” the highly personal “Inquisition,” and, finally, to the astrally prophetic “Fullfiliingness First Finalize,” his melodic epiphanies displaced any pre-existing ethnic apprehensions in an higher ground.

Phase II. “Loco in the Key of Life” firmly transcends any notions concerning limitation to the "Moonlight" sequence.

Smallest circus comes to campus

The world's smallest circus, the Royal Lichtenstein Sidewalk Circus will perform in Carbondale this week. Among the group's new assemblage of balancing acts, mimes, fables, clown performers and animal tricks Tuesday for the third year.

The Newman Center is bringing the giant one-quarter ring circus to the Home Economics Mall. The free performance begins at noon headed by a five-man ensemble. The tour is sponsored by the Newman Center and the university's department of English. Performers include Gary Gitchell, a symbol of the university's dance department; and Cap. Kevin Duggan from California who returns for this second season exhibiting his miniature horse, Obelis. Duggan is also a trained mask sculptor and will extricate himself from inside a robed and padlocked milk can filled with one hundred gallons of water.

Play employs various campus talents

Piano Death, a play written by an undergraduate in the English department and directed by an undergrad in the theater department, will be performed Monday at 4 p.m.

"The play is interesting because it is a modern reinterpretation of young musicians who are tied together by objects and inanimate objects. I think the show is worth seeing." Parch, director of the show, said. Besides being written by English major Patricia Lynch, the play is acted by interdepartmental talent. Debbie Kopp, a sociology major, plays the part of a young girl caught up in the memories of her past life. Musically, the voluptuous girl unap.

Jackson County Network, a are made monthly to the Network, said. Jacobs, coordinator of emergency services for the Jackson County Mental Health Center (JCMHC), said.

The network is a state and locally funded agency of JCMHC which began on July 1, 1975. The program needs 80 volunteers to run at top efficiency, Jacobs said.

Sixty volunteers now man the phones for four hours a week not including extra hours to compensate for the lack of volunteers. Two volunteers are required to man the phones at all times. The number of volunteers dropped from 80 to 60 last May.

The network para-professional telephone counselor handles three types of calls: crisis intervention; emergency intervention; and child and adolescent counseling. The services are offered in 15 counties in Southern Illinois.

The network's Reassurance Call Program makes weekly calls to the elderly and disabled in Jackson Country. The Reassurance line, also called a warm-line, assures the well-being, safety, and needs of those called. The calls are made at the request of concerned relatives or by those who seek companionship through the season.

For all calls, creative listening skills are employed which support and encourage an attitude of self-examination for the caller. Suicide cases, drug overdoses, and severe depression are handled. However, most callers are seeking information or person-to-person interaction and understanding, Jacobs said.

About 300 reassurance calls, 15 crisis calls and 80 emergency calls are made monthly to the Network. Forty per cent of the crisis calls are made by students, Jacobs said. "A caller's age can range from eight to eighty," Jacobs said.

The network helps prevent mental strain. Ten to 14 Jackson County citizens are admitted monthly to state and local hospitals for mental disorders. Jacobs said.

The network's Emergency Intervention Service attempts to prevent hospitalization of those with possible mental disorders by providing immediate, on-the-spot aid to emergency cases. Through careful counseling, many can be returned to a healthy mental state, Jacobs said.

A survey being developed by the network, will help find new ways to deal with mental health emergencies in Jackson Country. The survey will also determine the network's community awareness within Jackson County. Jacobs said, "We're trying to adapt to the needs of the community," Jacobs said.

Financial assistance administrators plan to travel after their retirements

By Judy Comstock
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The two top administrators at Student Work and Financial Assistance will close out their campus careers early next year.

Frank C. Adams, director, and Associate Director Raymond F. DeJarnett will retire Feb. 28 after a combined total of 37 years of service at SIU.

Adams, 68, said he is retiring so he can devote time to travel and hobbies. He said, "Retirement is my own decision. I've done administrative work for 30 years and its time for younger people with new ideas to have the opportunity to work on their careers."

Adams said he will continue to devote part of his time to promoting work and financial assistance programs, as well as consulting.

"I'll find better leisure in work and consulting," he said. "When you reduce part-time work and full-time, you produce a graduate much better prepared to go out into society."

In addition to working on my profession, we also hope to spend two or three months each year in Colorado. Adams said. "It is not to get away from the waiting tables. I'll meet people on vacation, go trout fishing in the mornings and come back to Southern Illinois each fall," he said.

Adams is a native of Sparta and has spent most of his life in Southern Illinois. He plans to live here permanently. His wife of 35 years, Mary, is from Colorado.

Adams said, "I'm sure I won't be able to replace them. They're a very loyal, dedicated people in this office." He said that he and his wife will reduce his work load and devote some time to travel, hunting, and enjoying life. "I'm sure I won't be able to go on as smooth as it's time for other things," he said.

The SIU Recreation Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at 932 Emerald Lane. The topic will be "After Spoon River; Edgar Lee Master's Poetic Development, 1916-1919," published in "The Vision of This Land: Studies of Vachel Lindsay, Edgar Lee Masters and Carl Sandburg," a volume of essays edited by two Western Illinois University professors. Russell is completing his Ph.D. dissertation on the later years of Masters.

The Student Work and Financial Assistance plan will be meeting at 11 a.m. on Thursday at the student work and financial assistance programs, and Frank Adams, director, look at hunting equipment. They will use after they retire Feb. 28. DeJarnett has been at SIU since 1960. Adams since 1957. Both plan to "travel, hunt and enjoy life" after retiring.

Candidates call for more jobs

By Jim Wiaru

However, Democrat Simon and Republican Dakin disagreed on the solution to the problem.

Simon favored establishment of a public works program similar to the Works Progress Administration (WPA) of the New Deal era.

Dakin favored reducing worker insurance requirements in Illinois, which he said drives businesses out of the state.

Simon and Dakin delivered their remarks before about 40 people at the NAACP "Meet the Candidates" political forum Sunday.

Other candidates who described their platforms included candidates for Jackson County circuit court judge, William Ridgeway, Republican, and Democratic county treasurer, Russell Marshall, R-Carbondale; and Democratic judge, William Ridgeway, Republican coroner Don Marshall, whose platforms included candidates who described their priorities in Illinois.

"Worker benefits are important," he said. "But not important enough to drive out business," from Illinois to neighboring states like Indiana. He blamed the lobbying efforts of organized labor for the insurance rates, and called for Illinois to become competitive with its neighboring states by balancing the interests of labor and business.

State Sen. Bubbee, speaking for the Democratic slate of state candidates, said gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett has the problem of being "half pounds overweight and he sounds like he's from the West Side of Chicago." Regardless of the accusation that Howlett is the puppet of Chicago mayor Richard Daley, Bubbee said Howlett is an "absolutely 100 percent honest politician" who has 16 years experience in elected state office as qualification to be governor.

County judge candidate William Ridgeway said his experience as state's attorney from 1956 to 1964 and his civil rights work during that time make him the best choice for the seat vacated by Everett Prosser. Democrat Bill Green, Ridgeway's opponent, said his 28 years of ex-

Notice to Economics Majors

The Department of Economics has recently worked out an internship arrangement with Mr. Sidney R. Schoen, Vice President of R. Rowland & Co., a member firm of the New York Stock Exchange. Mr. Schoen manages the local office of the brokerage firm which is located at 306 W. Main Street, Carbondale.

To be eligible for consideration a student must be a major in Economics, have junior or senior status, have taken, or currently be taking, Econ. 315 or Econ. 341, have an accumulative SIU grade-point-average of better than 2.500, and have some measure of enthusiasm for learning the stock brokerage business. Since success in such a business depends heavily on local, personal contacts, preference in the selection will be given to persons from Southern Illinois or those who intend to locate here after graduation.

The internship assignment to the brokerage office will be for the spring semester, 1977, or, possibly, the summer of 1977, if the spring semester appears to be too soon for the recipient to make the necessary work and academic schedule arrangements.

If you have an interest in such an internship, contact Prof. Robert G. Laster at the Department of Economics, 310E-7748, as soon as possible, but no later than October 29th.

DISCUSSIONS AND WORKSHOPS PLANNED ON HUMAN SEXUALITY

By Steve Bauman

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Human sexuality will be the topic of a week of discussions and workshops to be presented Monday through Saturday.

The discussions will run Monday through Thursday in the River Rooms of the Student Center and will be sponsored by Illinois Women’s Advocates, Sexuality Services, student activities, and Counseling Services.

Two workshops, one for men and the other for women, will be offered Oct. 22 and 23. The workshops will "explore the personal feelings, attitudes and beliefs about the participants’ sexuality," and will offer exercises to increase this awareness, Beardsley said.

The sexuality for women workshop will be from 8 to 10 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the Home Economics Building.

The men’s workshop will be from 8 to 10 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday in the Group Room of Woody Hall, Wing A.

Enhanced registration is required for both workshops, and a $3 admission fee will be charged. The registration deadline is Wednesday. Admissio is limited to 20 persons in each workshop. Further information about the workshops may be obtained by contacting either the division of Continuing Education or the Human Sexuality Services.

The River Rooms discussions will be held daily Monday through Thursday from 3 to 5 p.m.

Two discussion are scheduled for Monday. Alan Chamberlin, of the Health education department will present a video tape and lead a discussion on "The person next to you: alternative lifestyles." Other discussions will focus on gay issues, Beardsley said.

Alan Monday, Paula Greer, counselor, will lead a discussion on the "Sexual Assertiveness for Women." The topic will be "Sexual Assertiveness and Communication for Men and Women." E. Zimmerman, counselor, and Janis Vomacka, of Human Sexuality Services, will lead the discussion.

"Body Image—Dance Therapy and "Myths and Fallacies" will be the topics on Wednesday. Cheryl May, counselor, and Jane Jerab, of preventive programs, will lead the dance discussion. Beardsley will lead the discussions on "Myths and Fallacies."

The Realities of Rape" will be the topic on Oct. 21. Bobbie Piper, counselor, will be the speaker.

Also at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 21, a discussion on contraceptives will be presented.

SALUKI LINEBACKER GETS GLORY; BUT GIVES CREDIT TO LINEMEN

By Rick Korch
DailyEgyptian, Sports Editor

SALUKI linemen Dan Brown may be leading SIU in tackles, but instead of taking the glory, he tries to pass it on to his teammates, especially those on the defensive line.

After five games, Brown has 34 solo tackles to go along with 30 assists, which is 18 ahead of the next man, John Flowers.

"I get the glory, but it's the linemen, who are the key to my tackles," he said before practice Wednesday. "Their responsibility is to take out the (offensive) tackles."

Mature Bailey, Tom Ippolito and Martin Devolder are on the same side as Brown, and he compliments their play, especially Ippolito.

"Ippolito is ranked high in tackles (third), and he makes some I should make," Brown commented. "I knew what Tom was doing, which gives me confidence, and he knows what I'm doing."

Both Brown and Ippolito have been friends since they met.

"He's a hard worker, and he's the guy who makes me push myself," said the junior linemen. "I set my goals from what his are."

Brown has started for SIU since his freshman year. "I was better my freshman year, but I got a big head the second year."

But now he feels he is playing well, although "it could be better. With a different coach, you sometimes perform better, and they take more talent out of the team," he said.

Since Head Coach Roy Dempsey took over last December, Brown has gained about 20 pounds under the new weight program.

"I think it's superb," he said. "With all the new weights, we can increase our power more. Before we were limited to so many exercises."

Brown had an off game, as well as the rest of the team, last week in the 45-14 loss to East Carolina.

"They weren't a power offense, but they just fatigued us," Brown explained. "Most of their runs were to the outside."

"But we'll come back. We're all upset from the loss," he continued. "The coaches talked to us and everything is mad. There's no joking this time, everybody is serious and we're all getting down to business."

Although the Salukis' next opponent--Arkansas State, crushed them last year 36-12, the team, and Brown, expects the score to be turned around this time.

"Last year they ran up our gut, and they'll probably try the same thing this year," he said referring to the 36-1 yards rushing against Arkansas State last year against SIU. "He doubts if A-State will be able to do the same Saturday." For the first time since the season started, the team had to go through a full-gear practice Monday.

"We aren't expecting it, and everyone was half-mad," Brown said. "This week we're working on the things that we were weak on last week."

The Arkansas State game will be played in front of the home crowd at McAndrew Stadium.

GOLD 'BO looks to repeat as champs as IM flag football gets underway

By Jim Maunus
Student Writer

SIU's intramural flag football, the second season of the fall season, is underway. Games are played Monday through Friday at 4 and 5 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday at 10 a.m. and noon at fields east of the Arena.

"Several tough teams are playing in the league," said Al Lery, graduate assistant directing football. "Gold Bo, last year's champion is back, plus Legal Eagles last season, Buschleagers and Rocky Mountain Wailers are other top teams.

"They're a power offense, but they just fatigued us," Brown explained. "Most of their runs were to the outside."

"Gold Bo has the league's best quarterback while the Rocky Mountain Wailers have a real fine rushing attack," said Lery.

"They have some ex-Saluki footballers and Legal Eagles are an older, experienced team that's always in the playoffs."

Over 100 teams have signed up to play flag football in sixteen independent divisions plus the framers' league. Each team will play all other opponents in their respective divisions. Teams which have a .500 or better record at season's end will qualify for the playoffs starting the week of November 14th.

Lery warns teams that abusive and physical play will not be tolerated by flag officials.

"Our officials will not put up with any verbal or physical abuse between players or with officials," said Lery. "Any players fighting will be expelled from the games. We threw over a dozen out of games last year and we'll do it this year too if we have to."

After a player is removed from a game, he regains eligibility to play by petitioning the Office of Recreation and Intramurals. Additional disciplinary action may be taken by the Office of Recreation and Intramurals against an individual in a flagrant case.

"It's a recreational league," said Lery, "and we won't stand for abusive play. Besides, we don't want anyone getting hurt."

A new rule having team managers turn in ID cards to insure intramural equipment being returned is the only policy change introduced this season.

"We're hoping for a good year," said Lery. "Competition looks like it'll be equal and any other team could surprise one of the favorites."
Spikers tune up for home games by defeating Southeast Missouri

By Dave Hess
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The SIU women's volleyball team tuned up for Saturday's home matches with a victory over Southeast Missouri State.

The Salukis, led by 12-oz. Spikers, defeated the Lady Bears Saturday at Cape Girardeau, Mo.

The Salukis dominated on a best-of-five basis rather than the usual best-of-three format. The 15-9, 15-6, 15-6 Saluki victory improved the team's record to 13-4.

"It was a mutual decision to use a best-of-five set up," said Coach Debbie Runnels. "Whenever you want to play just one match, you usually see a best-of-five match.

The Salukis host another full day of volleyball at Davies Gym Saturday, and Runnels feels the team will be ready.

"We looked fine yesterday," said Runnels. "Riggs, referring to the team's latest victory. "We'll be ready for a real competitive game Saturday."

Hunter said the team is far ahead of last season's pace. The Salukis finished last season with a 16-14 record.

"We will play a lot more matches this season, and the team is consistent and playing better than last year," said Hunter. "The girls are getting used to playing the style of volleyball our coach teaches."

The Salukis will play three matches Saturday, the first at 10 a.m. against Florissant Valley College.

"Florissant Valley is a junior college in St. Louis," Hunter explained. "They went to the JC Nationals last season, and have requested that we compete with the varsity level competition."

At 1 p.m., the Salukis will face Arkansas State, a team Hunter claims she is unfamiliar with.

"They'll be a total surprise to us and the other teams," she said. The Salukis final match of the day will be at 3 p.m. against Eastern Illinois University.

Scoring leader Meyer is 'Hockey' at SIU

By Linda Henson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

When Helen Meyer started playing on SIU's women's field hockey team last year, few expected she would become a vital part of the team.

Meyer, a three-year starter for the Salukis in 1974 in the 12th round of the National Hockey League draft, has continued to improve and become a vital part of the team.

Meyer explained that basketball is her favorite sport and "it always has been." SIU's record last season was 16-3-1. So far this season the team has compiled a 7-0-2 mark.

"We don't plan to lose anymore and we don't plan to tie anymore and we don't have eight games left to play," said Meyer. "Hockey" said one of the main reasons SIU has such a good field hockey team this year is because everyone wants to win.

"Every game gets along with everyone else and because hockey is played in such a big space, the pressure isn't on just one person," she explained. "When we lose, the whole team loses the game." Meyer said with a smile, "Everybody likes to win. We all want to win for ourselves, but we also want to win for Miss Illner and go to the nationals."

Mannish look always 'cool'

By Mark Edgar
Student Writer

Though fashion tastes constantly change with the introduction of new fads, experts agree that one style has remained popular for more than 200 years—women in "mannish" clothes.

Shirley Friend, dean of the College of Human Resources, who teaches a fashion motivation class, calls the man-tailored way of dressing a "classic."

"The man-tailored look—suits, shirt-type jackets, vests—has always been worn by women," Friend said. "Even in the 1800's with bustles and ruffles, women wore tailored jackets."

But today's demand for the "macho macho" look in women's fashion, Friend said, also stems from the need for a more disciplined way of life.

"It's a look that reflects changes in lifestyle," she explained. "Women don't have enough time as they did in the past to spend all day shopping for clothes or making dresses. The day is so preoccupied that there is a need for versatile and easy-to-care-for clothing."

In addition to the practicality, Friend said, women are buying such classics because of the longevity. "For work or sport the mannish look is better suited. Women have learned that this type of clothing is not only long-lasting but also attractive."

Mae Tucker, manager of the Bleyer's clothing store, agrees claiming this "fashion just repeats itself," she remarked.

"The tailored look will always be around," Tucker said. "It's not a fad but a way of life. I think we are going back to a more structured type of dress. It will be more refined, yet still fashionable."

Tucker said college students in the last 10 years have gone through a time of radical garb which appears to be coming to an end.

"Young people have gone through a period of worn-out jeans and sloppy T-shirts. Now, it seems, they are more concerned with dressing up."

Tucker added that the popularity of the man-tailored look shows that buyers are less interested in dressing like everyone else. "This year women dress with comfort in mind. They aren't thinking in terms of stereotypes."

While clothing salespersons stress the value of the style, psychologist Linda Gannon contends that fashion lures mainly the fashion conscious. Gannon, who teaches psychology of women, said the outfits were neither time-saving nor convenient.

"Mental energy is still put into getting them together and to see that they are coordinated. And for some, their leisure time will be spent on clothes, no matter what is popular."

As to the psychology of wearing "mannish" clothes, Gannon said the style "doesn't have anything to do with masculinity."

"It's not that women like to dress like men, it's just that the look is now considered high fashion," she said.

Adding fashion flair to any outfit, hats for fall and winter are face-flattering and chic. From left, the "hatterdasher-wrapped look," ideal for the layered look in clothes. Buyer says fashion dictated by women

By Linda Classen

Fashion no longer dictates to the woman what she wears, but women dictate to fashion what they want.

"The midi is a good example of this," said Ms. Lenore Myer, a buyer of women's apparel at Sears. She said that women are trying for a softer, more feminine look as they wear skirts, half longsleeve shirts with buttons down the front, and three-quarter length sleeves in velour.

"I've been with fashion, but it's just a matter of education," she said. "I think the public is more aware of the look they want, and they know what it is because they see it in the magazines." Ms. Myer also said that the classic look never goes out of style. "It may cost more, but the style can be worn year after year. Cheaper clothing tends to go out of style quickly. It just doesn't endure," she said.

Ms. Myer, buyer of accessories, also said that the classic look is important. "Women are also trying for a more tailored look-a polished look. That's where accessories come in," she said.

"Accessories can update an outfit, without costing too much," Ms. Klugman said. Important looks for fall include smaller handbags than the past to go with dresses. More gold than silver will be worn this winter. Smaller earrings will be worn with the tailored look. Scarves are a nice touch to add to any outfit, she said.

"Coats go very well with wearing dresses, looking feminine and sporting the classic look," Ms. Bornstein said. "They never have been out, but business has been better in the last few years. Synthetic furs haven't reflected the fall market because they are an entirely different type of material," she said.

Mink is still the No. 1 business infurs, Bornstein said. "Younger people are interested in furs now, too. We have coats in the casual area ranging from $19 up to the more expensive line, $6,000," he said.

"I think America is emerging from an era of just taste. The 60s were atrocious. The present fashions seem very promising," she said.

In pajamas, the story's the same in sales, style

By Shelley Parson

There's no item of clothing, at least, that hasn't changed much in style and for which sales remain relatively steady. Records at C.P. Zeller's in Carbondale indicate that sales in men's pajamas have remained the same for the past five years. They come in cotton polyester blends or in nylon.

"The nylon pajamas don't sell very well, except to older men who like the way the nylon feels," said Tonya Watkins, a salesgirl at the store. "The cotton-polyester blends are in regular, short or long sleeve and pants." She said that women are buying these, according to Watkins, the men's department.

"Robes have become more stylish, resulting in an increase in sales," said Steve Goldsmith, manager of Goldsmith's, Republic-Carbondale.

The most popular are made of terry cloth or velour. There is a seasonal item, that will appear on the racks in Goldsmith's within the next month. They sell floor length men's robes with hoods, and three-quarter length velour wrap-arounds with regular collars.

As the weather gets cooler, more and more long flannel nightshirts for women will be sold, according to a spokesman for the College Shop.

She reported that shortie pajamas are always a big seller, especially around Christmas. But because they average $15, they are usually a gift item, and women don't ordinarily buy them for themselves.

Marie Little, a salesperson in the lingerie department at Sears-Roebuck and Co., estimates an average of 50 shortie combinations are sold per day, and mostly to younger women. The average price of these cotton and polyester sets is $12.

About 55 flannel nightshirts are sold at Sears every day. According to Little, the average buyer is an older woman.

Many women will remember pajamas from childhood with a smile, but for women, they are just like men's—pants with an elastic waist and a matching shirt that buttoned down the front. The College Shop doesn't even carry this style any more. Sears does but, according to Little, none have been sold this year.

Unisex boots running ahead of past demand

When a man or woman decides to put his or her best foot forward this fall, the only difference between them may be the size of the shoe.

Boots are the style this fall for men and women. High western style boots coordinate will fall fashion to hiking and athletic shoes. For a man or woman deciding to dress shoes he sells fall fashion to hiking and athletic shoes, or even more casual, the ever popular tennis and athletic shoes.

"People are buying casual shoes that are comfortable to wear," said Dave Davis, salesman at Morse shoes in the University Mall, "they're getting away from high heels and platform shoes because their feet are killing them."

"People just don't buy them platform shoes with high heels," said Steinbach, who added that the dress shoes he sells have low or wedged heels.

Gene Palisch, manager of Soh's in the University Mall, agreed with Steinbach. "The dress shoe we sell is a low-cut, no tie leather shoe with tassels of straps."

College students still buy quite a few high-heel shoes at Zwick's, said Moore, "although we sell ten pairs of casual shoes for each pair of platforms."

The Whole Gang Supports the Salukis ...
New York AP — Putting it all together will be easy for U.S. males this fall because the fashion components have been coordinated in advance through the teamwork of manufacturers and fabric stylists, reports the Men’s Fashion Association.

For the vast majority of men who like a little built-in security with their style, the new season’s emphasis is on the “complete” (pronounced compo-ray) look — related separates, coordinated put-togethers, mix ‘n’ match variables, it’s one of the strongest tastes in trends, according to MFA Fashion Director Chip Tolbert.

The look will be expressed in suits with coats, vests and trousers in harmonizing patterns and different fabrics, as well as interesting ensembles that team three-piece suits with coordinated topcoats and boys’ suits with reversible vests.

One of fall’s major trends is two or more suits with units that can be interchanged to expand a man’s options for different moods and occasions. The concept includes easy jackets that can be interchanged with regular suit jackets for two totally different attitudes.

The key is all of the components are interrelated through color, pattern and or fabric.

Tolbert notes that smartly coordinated sportswear put-togethers include color and pattern related sportcoats, outerwear, vests, sweaters and slacks, which is in tweeds, knits, velvets and satins. Fabrics can be mixed and matched to create a “weekend wardrobe.”

Some youthful versions include coordinated shirts, short type tops and matching vests and slacks.

Suits are dressed up with elbow patches, vinylex models, a pattering of double-breasted, and more vests than at any time since the 30s. Fabric makes the news, however, everything from doubleknits and denims to shetlands, chevrons and wool flannels. Even velvet — in business suits, evening suits, in the “compo” group and in eveningwear with corduroy, flannel, tweed and moahir components.

Formal wear, not to be outdone, goes to Dressier and more elegant lengths, stressing black in velvets, mohtair and textured polyesters and brocade weaves.

Overcoats range from dressy single- and double-breasted town coats that are treated with poplins, chiffons, vinyls and gabardines. A variety of lengths in sheringings. Western types, blanket coats and a rainbow-like selection of skiwear.

Sport coats are back. The blazer remains strong, particularly teamed with related separates, but odd jackets in camel hair, camel color, beaded plaids and checks, and authentic Scottish tartans are coming on.

Slacks draw on the velvets, corduroys and flannels in classic styling but jeans remain a dominant force.

Jump suits continue to grow in popularity, with the newest version being marketed with coordinated tops and jackets. For at home wear, there are garments in relaxable fabrics like velvets. Quinn knits and supersuede in two-piece outfits and one-piece jumpsuits.

New season dress shirts co ordinate perfectly with fall suits, with town and country favorites like universitys and checks, contrasting collars and cuffs, longer collar styles that are right for the collars that are being brought out of the jewelry boxes. Pin tabs, but. collars and French cuffs are coming in, too.

Neckwear looks to pattern coordination below the kist but above the top of the newly popular vest, coordinated (es) and pocket squares, and neat looks.

Male jewelry finds interest in color pants and clips revisited. Body jewelry is trending to more discreet items, such as pendants on longer chains for wear with open neck shirts.

Sports shirts revive flannels in solids and solids, many with elbow patches and contrasting trims in corduroys and other fabrics. Engineered plaids on both the chest and shoulder areas offer a brand new look. Other interesting style notes include pullovers contrasting collars and epauletts, many neck hand collar styles and raglan sleeves. Top choices for youngsters will be turtleneck pullovers, rugby shirts and Western treatments.

The sportswear scene will be crowded with sweaters — cardigan styles, some of which zip up and others with buttons, toggles and sash ties, sweater sets, sweaters with chemise detailings and sweaters with matching scarfs.

Softly styled type slouch headwear remains the top choice in hats in a variety of patterns and colors, with dressy velvets and soft felts picking up on the soft treatments.

Neat overall designs and classic bow motifs are the story in dress buttons, while sport and novelty necks feature an unending variety of new looks.

Crackling leaves. Snapping branches. Rain. Pumpkin pie. Such are the visions of seasonal things evoked by the natural fibers, earth colors and muted simplicity of women's fall and winter coats this year.

Janice Butcher, assistant manager of Worth's, noted that "The colors are more natural, more subdued, almost on the dull side. The popular colors this year are blacks, rusts and grays."

Most of the clothing stores surveyed agreed that gray is making a debut this season. While she hasn't noticed a marked increase in sales of gray coats, Janet Vacili, manager of Stuart's, reported that progressive stores used as testing grounds were sending her more grays than in other years.

Perhaps the most popular trend in women's outerwear this year is the wrap-around. The casual belted look has replaced many of the conventional button-down styles. Wrap-arounds are found mostly in below-the-knee lengths. Maxine is definitely out and, in Vaclil's opinion, there aren't as many jackets as in other years.

For a more unusual, off-beat style, several stores such as J.C. Penney's, Phillips, Main Street Boutique and Worth's, carry capes and cape-looks.

Tim Roland, Penney's merchandise manager in charge of women's fashions, observed that cape styles are particularly popular in the Southern Illinois area because of its unusually short winters. Capses and bulky sweater coats are much more seasonally versatile, said Roland.

The new trend in umbrellas this year is style. They are made in a variety of materials, colors and sizes.

"We have a good umbrella business," says Russ Hart, salesman at Sohns men's store in the University Mall.

Sohns is selling cotton umbrellas in match men's overcoats. Traveling salesmen, students and professors are big buyers of cotton umbrellas. The price of a cotton umbrella is $10. Sohns also carries a selection of nylon umbrellas for $7.50 and foldup umbrellas for $8.95. The foldup umbrellas are good gift items, according to Hart.

However, J.C. Penney sells only the standard black umbrella, which sells approximately $15. Men are saying them, according to Tonya Watkins, men's department sales clerk.

"We have sold about 10 in the last two weeks," she said. Watkins also noticed that men buy umbrellas mostly in late fall and spring when Champaign gets most of its rain.

On the other hand, Walker's, another men's store in the University Mall, does not sell an umbrella very often. According to the salesmen, men seem to start more towards raincoats.

Neater trend
in casual wear

Jumpsuits and gauchos are No. 1 in women's casual wear this fall, according to local clothing retailers. All kinds of sweaters are also selling well.

"The boho look is gone," said Audrey Kay, owner and buyer for Kay's Campus Shop at Campus Shopping Center. "Jeans are not selling like they used to. Women are dressing up much more and there is a trend toward a cleaner, much neater look."

Gaucos, which are full, below-knee-length straight-leg pants, are the look this year in denim, corduroy, ultra-suede and velveteen. Acrylic sweaters of rust, brown, navy, berry, black and forest green are selling well at Sears, said Charlotte Richert, women's fashion manager. Also, sweaters of soft hue colors are in style. Richert said that coordinates of polyester blends will always be good sellers because of their easy care and seasonal versatility.

The smock top is being carried over from the summer. Richert said, "All of them are either going softer or bolder," she added.

Jeans are dressing up at Stuart's with leather strips and color stitching, said Patty Swinburne, saleswoman. "The high waist is till the style," she added.

The mannish look, which is a business-like three-piece pin-stripe suit for women, is in style this fall, said saleswomen from Main Street Boutique, 603 S. Illinois Avenue and Hechts in the University Mall.

A new style, the Asia look, is part of this fall's fashions. "It's a below-the-knee-length dress with pants underneath it and slits up the sides," said Upton, of Worths.

The look of the '60s has returned at Illinities, 703 S. Illinois Ave. The dresses are long and slinky and made of such exciting materials as silk and satin.

Women have a lot of fashions to choose from in casual wear for fall. These sleek, new styles offer many ways to maintain individualism and look good at the same time.

"Multi-colored scarves can be worn around the neck, head and waist to accent any outfit," said Sally Roar, of Hechts.

Pipe dreams can come true in new decorating scheme

The clay pipe look in decorating? It is an idea that might appeal particularly to the young crowd, for student or career pads.

Always quick to innovate, they've used everything from wooden wire spools to cinder blocks in trying to find economical alternatives to expensive furnishings. The masonry blocks are used to hold up mattresses and box springs and the spools make tables, big and little, and are even stacked to hold stereo equipment. The terra cotta pipes can be cut for use as end table and coffee table bases, as shelves for the wall, and can be put together to form a standing lamp.

An idea suggested by designers who build rooms around beds — in one setting a chimney flue rectangular pipe, 32 by 24 inches, is used with a glass top as an end table. It was the right height for the hide-a-bed being featured, but a shorter or longer pipe could be used to accommodate another sofa or bed height.

Sect gives up its vigil for second coming

GRANNIS, Ark. (AP) - Across from the chicken processing plant, in a cafe with a cement floor and pinball machines, 15-year-old Elizabeth Bard fried hamburgers and talked of moving to where no one's ever heard of the vigil for the Second Coming of Christ.

Unable to bear the jeers of classmates, she quit school. "Even my friends—the three or four I thought I had—avoids me. It's better working here," she said of the cafe that serves workers at the town's big industry. "I'm leaving town, too—pretty soon now."

Her mother, Elizabeth Nance Bard, led the vigil that began a year ago Wednesday and ended in July with eviction of about 30 persons from a home here. Mrs. Bard says her daughter and all who believed in the vigil have been "subject to repression similar to the Jews in Nazi Germany."

"The same spirit that existed in Germany exists here—not as bad, of course—but it's really here. The people can't tolerate anybody who's different. We'd do it over again, but sometimes I wonder—maybe we've done something our children can never live down."

Most residents of this southwestern Arkansas town of 177 wonder, too, whether the vigil will be lived down. Indeed, they fear it won't be.

The burly, elderly attendant at Vaught's Texaco station said he was "tired of people asking me about that damned vigil."

Another resident said the vigil's participants were "good but misguided people. But don't use my name — last time they printed my name I got all kinds of calls in the night."

"This thing has attracted all kinds of religious fanatics to town," said Florence Higgins, who runs another cafe. "Anybody who's finished school would know Jesus won't tell you when he's coming—the Bible says even the angels won't know."

Mrs. Bard said, "We're treated like we're axmurderers."

"Even our friends are too embarrassed to bring the vigil up."

The vigil began at a family gathering at Gene Nance's three-bedroom brick home Sept. 29, 1975, when Viola Walker, Mrs. Bard's aunt, said she got a message from God that the Second Coming was near.

She said the family should stay together until the world ended.
Men’s fashion this fall calls for European look

By R. Scott Voigt
Student Writer

A neat, snug, slightly dressy European look with a return to natural fibers is high fashion in men’s casual wear this fall. But many Ill. students are combining new styles with old ones, to express themselves in a more personal way.

Larry Hale, manager of Sohn’s on South Illinois Avenue, said the main idea of the new fashions is to provide young men with some alternatives in casual attire. “If a guy wants to take a girl to a sports event or out dancing, he needs an option besides denim,” said Hale.

“Fashion is in the way clothes are put together to produce a total and highly individual look,” said Steve Goldsmith of Goldsmith’s, 811 S. Illinois Ave.

Goldsmith said that “moms are buying clothes separately and dressing them up or down, in combinations, to fit a particular occasion.”

Kathy Spiegarelli of Rocky Mountain Surplus on University Avenue said, “People was wearing the same style, but with a neater look to them.”

Tim Jones of Caru’s, 606 S. Illinois Ave., said painter’s pants, bib-overalls and jumpsuits will be popular this year. “These are not really new styles but are now becoming more popular,” he said.

“Chinos and gabardine pants are in demand this fall,” said Ben Maragin of Joe’s Pants in the University Mall.

Maragin said the pants will feature a European cut, meaning they are “more snug from the waist to the thigh and then flare to a large bottom.”

Gene Palsich, manager of Sohn’s in the University Mall, said he thinks young people are dressing up more now, for the same reason they dressed down in the late 1960’s, “to assert their individuality.”

Gene Palsich, manager of Sohn’s in the University Mall, said he thinks young people are dressing up more now, for the same reason they dressed down in the late 1960’s, “to assert their individuality.”

Steve Hale, junior in radio-TV, said brush denim will be popular this year. “I think you will see more of a European cut as in the past, but dressing them up more,” said Hale.

Little girl fashions
no longer kid stuff

By Vivian Brown
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Gypsy dresses with halter ruffles kercuchfs and wide Cluny lace trim, Victorian styles with big sleeves, prairie dresses, tabards, lace jumpsuits with cinched-in beaded ribbon belts for the holiday cruise collection.

Such descriptions may sound like couture fashions for women who want to make the best dressed list, but they are, instead, among new styles being turned out for the lilypop set—whole new look that should separate the girls from the boys, says designer Doree Selevan of Miami. And if that doesn’t do it, the new bodystyle petticoats will— they’ll be in store come spring.

“Little girls like to dress up and they enjoy clothes that emulate young juniors or older sister, the grow-up feeling that makes them want to walk and sit properly,” says Doree, who has been designing children’s clothes for little girls for 20 years, and heads her own business, Dorlea, into a million-dollar operation.

More mothers are allowing their children to select clothes right off the racks so clothes must have hanger appeal, she says. Many of her back-to-school fashions were inspired by jumpers, blouses, skirts, calicos, and plaids with such imaginative touches as pockets that say “warliars,” “lunch money,” or whatever.

Doree’s enthusiasm makes it clear that little girl fashions are no longer neutral kid stuff, even though jeans and pants are still popular.

“This dress is great with boots, this lace jumpsuit is going like wildfire with buyers (she is now making it in toddler sizes); this dress has an adorable little over-the-shoulder bag, a large golden pin is worn on this knit skirt.

She doesn’t like tan or brown for little girls. “It makes them look sallow,” she prefers pastels, rich dark greens, red and navy combinations, which she considers neat and trim for school.

“Collars really frame a little girl’s face and I like soft ruffles—they are pretty and flattering. I use big hems to extend the life of the dress, and until now I’ve taken a strong stand on lowering skirts. But I recently saw French and Italian children wearing knee-length skirts and I thought it looked quite smashing, so they’ll be in the spring line.”

In designing clothes away from the garment center of New York, she isn’t “brainwashed by outside forces” but she doesn’t really care anyway what other people are doing. Her success in stores is an indication that she is on the right track, she says.

“Our (Cuban) workers do some hand work, little French knots and the like that may decorate collars, pockets, bibs, but mainly the trimmings come from Europe—embroideries from Switzerland, Alencon-type laces from France, braids from Germany and Italy. Quality buttons from the United States are now getting scarce,” she says.

A hard worker, she even maintains an apartment at the factory where she has 250 workers, and she has parlayed her firm, Dorleas, into a three-quarter of a million dollar enterprise in 10 years. Her husband, Bernard, has been handling the finances for seven years.

She has managed to combine motherhood—three boys and a girl now in their 20s—with her business enterprises through the years, but somehow when she designs her fashions “it is like I’m designing them for my own little child,” she says. “I get carried away.”

Boots stand out as No. 1 for the well-shod woman

By Gabriella Ludwicka - Student Writer

Boots are the main fashion attraction amidst the variety of women's shoe styles available this fall. Women are wearing them with pants, dress and the new, wide pantskirt.

The casual, Western-style boot, made popular by Frye Boots, is the biggest seller according to David Moore, manager of Zwick's Shoes. Women are buying them in a light colored leather, both tan and black, to wear with the longer skirts Moore said.

Steve Maloney, assistant manager of Barker's Shoe Store, said it would take longer for the slimmer, dress boots to gain in popularity in Southern Illinois, but that the casual boot is in great demand now.

Along with boots, women are buying casual shoes they can wear with both pants and dresses, said David Davis, assistant manager of Moore Shoes. He added that casual shoes feature lower heels, crepe soles and a lot of suède this fall.

According to Ron Augustine, manager of Brown's Shoes, the negative-heel earth shoe remains a favorite in casual footwear, and the raised heel and toe of the platform is definitely out. He said women are turning to the "high-streched earth shoe" for the height they need with longer pants.

The backless clog is another top contender in the casual shoe category Moore said. And both men and women are wearing the higher quality athletic shoe, such as Adidas. These are long-lasting and comfortable.

Footwear is also flaunting more detail. Tassels, buckles and stitching decorate the softer leather of the boot.

A dressier shoe will become a more frequent sight, however, as women begin donning dresses.

Phillis contemplates buying the outrider-style, high-fashion Cobbies boots that she's modeling in front of the store mirror at Leslie's Shoes in University Mall.

Jim Stenbach, owner of Leslie's Shoes at the University Mall, said styles are already becoming more feminine. The classic pump and the T-strap, both with a more tapered heel and toe, are beginning to sell. More of the foot is revealed with the sale of open-toed shoes continuing into the fall.

Russet, chocolate and rose have re-emerged as popular new colors this season.

Boots and shoes. Opened and closed. Casual and dressy. Despite the higher prices of leather and vinyl, women are buying an assortment of shoes to match their moods and their outfits.
Plan carefully ‘fur’ your money’s worth

By the Associated Press

Planning to buy a fur coat in the August fur sales? Or perhaps you’ll wait until the winter clearances, the other popular fur buying period. No matter — fur coats are expensive. Sale prices are up and you should plan your purchase carefully if you’ve got your money’s worth.

That advice comes from fur expert Carol Ware. She and her husband, Irwin, who has been in the fur business 40 years, operate the fur salon at a Chicago specialty store, Bonwit Teller.

“There is a whole new generation of fur owners. Women have become important wage earners. First they get an apartment, then a wardrobe of clothes, then the frosting, a fur coat,” says Mrs. Ware in explaining the increased volume buying in the entire industry.

“And there is the girl who begins wearing a remodeled coat of her mother’s. If it is long, she is hooked. There are still some girls who fear people will criticize them for wearing mink, but they don’t mind wearing nutria, raccoon or Sable. A South American lamb-like caracul. In fact, natural raccoon with let-out stripes can be as elegant as any mink,” she maintains.

Mrs. Ware attends the fur auctions with her husband. A petite soft blonde who has been working with him for 10 years, she has earned a reputation as a superb fitter and stylist, attracting many well known personalities.

Budget and lifestyle should help determine the kind of coat you buy, she explained. Style and not price may be the clue to a fashionable appearance.

New fur coats are patterned like shredded wheat, basket weaves, woven ribbons and plaid effects. They are dyed amber, green, red, rust, orange and even violet. The new look is soft, straight away from the body, but not hugging it, a trend away from flared and fitted.

Here are some of her tips for fur coat shoppers:

-Petite girls have many style choices provided the coat is not too long and they “think tall.” A small woman with a large chest should not try to wear the narrow tube look, now popular, which is more successfully worn by a woman of thin build.

-Shy women should not wear mandarin collars or collarless coats. She is hooked. There are still some girls who fear people will criticize them for wearing mink, but they don’t mind wearing nutria, raccoon or Sable. A South American lamb-like caracul. In fact, natural raccoon with let-out stripes can be as elegant as any mink,” she maintains.

Art Nouveau comes back

CHICAGO (AP) — Orate designs with flowers and curlicues and pictures of voluptuous women marked a period called Art Nouveau, which is explored in a comprehensive exhibition at the Art Institute of Chicago through Oct. 31.

The term means simply “new art,” which it was at the end of the 19th and beginning of the 20th century. The movement spread throughout western Europe and the United States.

John Keefe, a curator at the Art Institute, notes that “The movement began among artists and craftsmen searching for a return to ‘honest’ construction, genuine materials and innovative design.”

It is perhaps for this reason that there has been a recent renewal of interest in the style as a reaction against plastics and stark, clean-line design in contemporary furniture, architecture and abstract painting.

The exhibition, comprising more than 300 works, was organized by the Institute for the Fine Arts at Rice University in Houston, in collaboration with the Chicago museum, and was seen there earlier this year.

The exhibition survey for the first time in the United States the overall Art Nouveau movement, including not only paintings and sculptures, but textiles, architecture, decorative arts and graphics.

This glassware and jewelry continue to have an appeal while much of the other work now seems extravagant, too ornate, even vulgar.

However, the exhibition offers an excellent opportunity for an overview of this period in art history and documents some of the social history of the world as well.

Many of the pieces come from private collections in Europe and the United States and this is likely to be the only time they will ever be seen together.

One of the best-known names represented in the show is that of Louis Comfort Tiffany, the American, whose colored glass lamps are now so prized — and imitated.

More color, more bareness, more intensity in makeup, more line in hair, more softness. More of everything that stands for glamour—total, all-out, knockout glamour.

According to Vogue magazine, that is the look in night fashions for fall 78.

Carbondale merchants feel a variety of styles will be popular this season.

Lynda Schaeffer, assistant manager of Brooks in the University Mall, thinks that satiny tops with velvets, bows, flowing fabrics and sheerness will be popular. Schaeffer said the look is definitely more feminine.

Agreeing that evening styles are getting “prettier,” Nada Stotlar, owner of Nada’s, located at Bening Square, feels that women want to be more well-dressed. She forecasts long dresses for the evening, adding that the short dinner dresses in street length will also be fashionable.

Phil Gillespie, owner of Phillip’s in University Mall, considers the most interesting new look in night fashions to be the “restaurant—a short, basic little black dress, not plain but not elaborate,” Gillespie said he thinks a majority of women will be wearing the long, “pajama” look.

He thinks there is increasing interest in the one-shoulder or off-the-shoulder fashions and the strapless may show up in after-five wear.

In a recent trip to the area, Lenore Myer, New York resident buyer for Hecht’s in the University Mall, said that she thinks one-shoulder and strapless will be prominent in evening wear.

Also popular will be the short “dressy dress,” Myers said, and the “right” length in fashions will be the one that suits the women herself.

Dresses will definitely be worn as opposed to pants, except for the dressy jumpsuit which will be very popular. There will be more bareness but the look will not be quite so popular because “not everyone has the figure for it,” she observed.

Most dieters motivated by self image

By Viviana Brown
AP Newsfeatures Writer

It isn't to attract men, improve their sex lives, save a marriage or get a promotion that drives women to seek help in losing weight, a recent survey showed.

"The real reason they want to lose weight is to feel better about themselves," explained Gloria Marshall of Downey, Calif., who has figure salons in 15 states. She became so intrigued with the reasons behind it all that she conducted a survey of patrons of two of her salons.

On the questionnaire she prepared for 2,500 clients, she found that the women's image of the ideal figure was different from that of fashion designers. In the opinion of 48.4 per cent of the women polled, the classic 36-24-36 is still the ideal, with the glamorous figure of 36-24-36 registering approval with 38 per cent of the women. Nine per cent voted for sweater girl, 36-24-36, and only 4.6 per cent chose the super slender figure, 30-22-30.

Among the reasons cited for being overweight, 37.4 per cent confirmed they love to eat and 26.6 blamed "not enough exercise." Such choices as unhappy love affairs, marital problems and so on were not big influences.

And overweight women aren't usually the frustrated, moody, depressed individuals that are depicted by some psychologists. In fact, 2.4 per cent said they were happy and content and 11.6 per cent chose "jolly, outgoing" to describe themselves. Only 6.3 per cent thought of themselves as depressed.

Thirty-three per cent of the women surveyed are in the 18 to 30 year age bracket. Thirty-six per cent were from 30 to 59 years old, and others ranged in age to 80.

Miss Marshall explained that she was "preaching plump as a teenager" but she was conscious of it - a teen-age girl learns to conquer it or stays that way - and she began dancing and taught dance. She recommends a good eating plan as well as exercise to her clients.

"They tell us the dress size they would like to be. We compute the number of visits they must make and the number of pounds they must lose and within what period of time it can be achieved - say 20 pounds in three months.

"The women fill out a form on which they tell what they like to eat, how many meals a day they eat and on which, and they get a personalized diet based on the material fed into the computer."

The diet doesn't deviate from their natural eating habits.

"People usually can't stay on diets because they don't like the foods they are told to eat and when they must eat them. We suggest things that fit into their normal eating pattern. If they don't eat breakfast, we don't suggest breakfast. If they eat six meals a day, we give them six meals a day. If they eat spaghetti for breakfast they can do that. If a woman takes her lunch to work, she can't eat grapefruit and steak, so we tailor the lunch to her convenience. But all the daily eating programs supply the proper vitamins and calories."

Red-haired Miss Marshall, 38, believes exercise is important if any reducing program. The two must work together.

Matching accessories provide that final touch

By Linda Classen
Student Writer

"Women are more accessory-minded," says Sally Gray, salesperson for Sears in the University Mall. "This year we actually have women coming in with shoes looking for matching handbags," she said.

Leather purses have always been strong but are selling especially well this year, along with matching cigarette cases and billfolds, said Lynda Schaeffer, assistant manager of Brook's in the University Mall.

"Clutch bags are big but the shoulder bag is still in, especially with school kids. They're more convenient," said Ms. Schaeffer.

"The public has also realized that good leather lasts longer so they are spending more money on the real thing," she said.

"When women buy an outfit at Worth's," said Debra Upton, salesperson at the store in the University Mall, "the most common accessory they look for is the scarf."

A couple of years ago scarves were definitely out, but they are very popular again, and manufacturers have come up with an innovation, the rain scarf, said Dorothy Burgess, manager of Philip's, in the University Mall. The rain scarf looks like an ordinary scarf, but is chemically treated to repel water said Ms. Burgess. They are very decorative and come with umbrellas to match.

Women can layer silver or gold chains over these scarves and it gives a nice effect.

"Fall fashions in jewelry include silver and gold, and they are showing a lot of wooden jewelry this year," said Ms. Burgess, "and larger earrings seem to be in style."

A nice touch to wear with jeans is the "nothing necklace."

Ms. Schaeffer said the rope-look necklace is a big seller. The manufacturers are coming out with a longer version which can be worn with cowl-neck sweaters. The previous style had been too short to be worn comfortably, she suggested.

The usual popcorn-stitch mitten, berets and tam's are back for winter, along with wide brim cloches, said a spokesman for Bleyer's College Shop, on South Illinois Avenue. "Futurer gloves-special gloves with massage action for your hands—are becoming a big seller."

Ms. Schaeffer said she thinks hats are making a comeback and Brook's is showing felt hats with feathers and wide brims.

"Sears thinks of accessories as much more than the usual purses, gloves and scarves," said Ms. Gray. "When a woman comes over to our department for accessories, we start from the foundations and work our way out," she said. "If what is underneath is all wrong, the whole look goes down the drain."

Paul Thomas, otherwise known as the plant doctor, maybe the one to see.

Thomas, a senior in botany, diagnoses and treats plants free of charge.

Thomas said, "Tending plants gives me valuable experience for later on in my career."

This is the second year Thomas has been diagnosing and treating plants at his room in Mac Smith. Thomas said he has averaged about five cases a day.

beginning of the year, when many students are bringing plants to campus and don't know how to care for them, he said he gets anywhere from 15 to 25 cases a day.

Thomas said, "The biggest reason plants get sick down here is from things like too much humidity, too much water or sun, or not enough water or sun."

People should find out what a plant needs to stay healthy when they get it," Thomas said.

"So far," he said, "all I've been treating is the common variety of house plants."

Waist-length popular

Leather coats in style for men

By Daniel Considine
Student Writer

The Fonz of television's "Happy Days" fame would have a resonating "hey" for this year's expected fashion leader in men's overwear. For as in days of ducktail and hula-hoops, the waist-length leather coat is back, according to area clothing stores.

Today's style however, is only similar in length and material to the familiar greaser jackets of the 1950's. The present short styles, selling for $90-$140, usually are brown or red and have slot or zipper pockets. They also come in a less popular trench coat style, selling for $150-$250.

According to John Siebert of Carus Men's Shop, 606 S. Illinois Ave., the leather coats have been the store's top seller.

"Customers are moving to short leather coats because they are very durable as well as stylish. They rationalize the higher price because of the great durability," said Steve Goldsmith of Goldsmith's Clothing, 811 S. Illinois Ave.

Goldsmith said he believes that besides the leather coats, other short-style coats will be good sellers. "The waist length corduroy and cloth blouson style jackets, selling for $30-$60, will also be quite popular," said Goldsmith.

Last year's leader, down and fur parkas selling for $40-$80, will also continue to sell quite well, but not in the volume of last year, said Don Odum of Walker's Men's Wear in the University Mall.

The familiar Dick Tracy-style trench coat, $80-$130 will continue to lead the field of men's overcoats, according to Larry Hale of Sobe's Men's Wear in the University Mall. Every clothing store said that hats for men are still out despite rumors to the contrary in the fashion industry.

Leather is also the dominant material in men's gloves, according to area stores. The most popular lining for these gloves, selling for $10-$12 will again be rabbit fur. A very popular and interesting type sold at the Squire Shop in the Murdale Shopping Center is the isotherm glove, a racing glove that actually massages your hand while you drive.

Men's fashions show dressier trend

By Chris Kurker
Student Writer

Fashion trends this fall are dressier with earthy tones, mix and match coordinates being most popular.

"The three-piece vested suit in classic corduroy and conservative pin-striping are enriched with earthy browns, camel, rust, grey and navy color tones," said Steve Goldsmith, of Goldsmith's at 811 S. Illinois Ave. "These trends in clothing are due to changing lifestyles and a need to be comfortable," said Goldsmith.

Larry Hale of Sobe's at 700 S. Illinois in Carbondale said "People are interested in the coordinated look with emphasis on versatility in dress and creating their own personal appearance."

Odum of Walker's Men's Wear in the University Mall.

The yardstick set by fashion leaders at Walker's is the isotherm glove, a racing glove that actually massages your hand while you drive.

The familiar Dick Tracy-style trench coat, $80-$130 will continue to lead the field of men's overcoats, according to Larry Hale of Sobe's Men's Wear in the University Mall. Every clothing store said that hats for men are still out despite rumors to the contrary in the fashion industry.

Leather is also the dominant material in men's gloves, according to area stores. The most popular lining for these gloves, selling for $10-$12 will again be rabbit fur. A very popular and interesting type sold at the Squire Shop in the Murdale Shopping Center is the isotherm glove, a racing glove that actually massages your hand while you drive.

Men's fashions show dressier trend

Fashion trends this fall are dressier with earthy tones, mix and match coordinates being most popular.

"The three-piece vested suit in classic corduroy and conservative pin-striping are enriched with earthy browns, camel, rust, grey and navy color tones," said Steve Goldsmith, of Goldsmith's at 811 S. Illinois Ave. "These trends in clothing are due to changing lifestyles and a need to be comfortable," said Goldsmith.

Larry Hale of Sobe's at 700 S. Illinois in Carbondale said "People are interested in the coordinated look with emphasis on versatility in dress and creating their own personal appearance."

The Olfactory acquires its clothing from Goodwill warehouses and various places in Kansas City. Since The Olfactory does not buy clothing from private individuals, the clothing available spans from functional jeans, flannel shirts and work shirts to Chinese kimonos, predominantly "in-style clothing and fur coats. The items are sold at reasonable prices.

The latest styles in seasonal used clothing can be found at the Nearly New Consignment Shop, at 1000 W. Main. Nearly New offers a chance for people to sell their used clothing. "The store is run on consignment. The owner gets 60 per cent, the shop gets 40 per cent," said employee Florence Patterson. "The clothing has to be in real good shape," said Patterson. "It must be cleaned and pressed before we'll take it."

Patterson feels only stylish, up-to-date clothes will sell. "No one will buy anything out of date, regardless of whether its real expensive and never been worn—we just can't sell it," she said. The only non-profit used clothing organization is the Carbondale Thrift Shop on East Jackson. "Everything is donated. What proceeds we make go to a monthly donation for the senior citizens," said Beatrice Taylor, manager of the Thrift Shop. The Thrift Shop is packed with clothing both in the front of the shop and a storage area in the back, which is filled to capacity.

"We get between two and three truckloads of clothing per week average. The clothing that needs mending goes to the Salvation Army," said Taylor.

Taylor advised buyers to look for worn areas or moth holes in judging if a piece of used clothing is worth having.

Country comfort
Exploring forgotten places, Jane and Ron are out fitted in country comfort by Lee. Their bib overalls and painters bibs are made of 100 per cent cotton. These great-looking jean fashions are available at Hunter Boys Freight and Salvage Stores, a large seller of Lees pants and western wear.
Kathy and Dwayne adventurously pose on the sign for the all new Rocky Mountain Co.

Kathy is wearing jeans by Lee, a vest by Ascente and boots by Raichle. Dwayne is wearing a jeans jacket by Mountain Products and a corduroy shirt by Madman. Belts are by Antoncroft.
